Dear Mrs. Kyle:

Many letters which I have received from very thankful customers have, over a period of years, kept me informed of the outstanding job that you have done in making friends for RCA and its products and services. The originals of many of these letters have been included in the brochure which I am pleased to present to you along with this letter.

These letters prompted me to learn more about you from those who could speak with first-hand knowledge of your contributions toward the achievement of our goals.

All sources agreed that during your employment, first as telephone operator at the Bronx Branch and later as telephone operator and then telephone supervisor at Midtown, you have carried on a crusade to keep our customers happy and pleased with our products and service.

Your treatment of customers has always been friendly, sympathetic, and understanding, and you have dedicated yourself to their satisfaction and to the welfare of our company. Your good work has lightened the task of our technicians in securing customer satisfaction under trying conditions.

You have taken full advantage of the opportunities to convert customers who were having trouble, into friends who were thankful for the courteous and sympathetic treatment and assistance they received.

You are symbolic of all our office and supervisory employes throughout the country regarding whom we have received letters of commendation from grateful customers. These employes too deserve much credit for the yeoman's service they render.

Your example is an inspiration to all of us. I thank you personally and on behalf of the Service Company for your never-ending efforts to please our customers and I congratulate and commend you for having won so many friends and boosters for RCA and the Service Company.

As more tangible evidence of appreciation, I have included with the brochure a blue vase medallion which was made especially for you. The significance of the blue vase is explained in the enclosed copy of Peter B. Kyns's book.

Sincerely,

E. C. Cahill

Mrs. Kyle Honored for Her Excellent Customer Relations

"A symbol of RCA Service." That's what one of RCA Service Company's customers had to say about Mrs. Henrietta V. Kyle. And a look at her record substantiates this opinion.

The Midtown TV Branch Telephone and Scheduling Supervisor's personnel folder is full of customer letters commending her for excellent service. And it all started almost 10 years ago.

A budget reduction sent Nettie (as she prefers to be called) looking for a new job. Her husband was ill at the time—and fortunately she looked to RCA. The day she walked into the Bronx TV Branch was a big loss to her former employer—and a red letter day for the Service Company.

She joined RCA Service Company as a service records and pricing clerk. During her more than nine years with the Service Company she has had various promotions and one transfer—to Midtown TV Branch, where she is presently employed as Telephone and Scheduling Supervisor.

Nettie's attitude toward her work—her conscientiousness and high degree of enthusiasm—has been the reason for her success. Midtown Manager Art Kruschka puts it this way: "She is constantly aware of the customer's wants and sees the request through, despite the extra effort required."

The key to Nettie's success in dealing with customers is revealed in Kruschka's appraisal of her work. "If anything could ruffle her disposition, it would be the knowledge that, on occasion, we did not completely satisfy our customers," he said.

Such a performance does not go unnoticed. Especially when customers take the time to write to Service Company President E. C. Cahill. As a result of such a distinguished record, Mrs. Kyle was honored on March 6th at Cherry Hill.

Nettie's enthusiasm has rubbed off on her co-workers. And she never stops being thrilled when customers show their appreciation for our service. Perhaps the highest

"Thanks, Nettie." Mr. Cahill expresses gratitude of the Service Company for a job well done and presents medallion and brochure to Mrs. Kyle. Mr. Cahill also presented her a book, explaining the significance of the blue vase on the medallion

Mr. S. C. Cahill, President

Dear Sir:

I — "one of many millions" — have your letter sent to me as an RCA Victor Television Owner.

I do not know how many will make a personal reply, but if I should be the only one, I want to express the gratitude, the high respect and the deep loyalty towards RCA Victor that the millions of your customers unquestionably feel.

This is, as I say above, a personal reply. I became an RCA Victor Television Owner well over seven years ago. Under a contract I had at the time I had occasion to test your service under the most difficult conditions existing in my residential area. A wonderful woman, Mrs. Nettie Kyle, was the service head of my area. Her treatment of me was the epitome of patience, kindness and efficiency. It did not surprise me that eventually she was promoted to a more populated area.

In the years that have passed, friends and relatives have also purchased RCA Victor Television sets. I like to feel that my high recommendation was a factor in their doing so. Strangely, most of them reside in the area now under Mrs. Kyle's jurisdiction. And every one of them has received the same unsurpassed service. Everyone has become an enthusiastic booster of Mrs. Kyle, a symbol of RCA Victor's Service.

Thus it is that on behalf of millions of RCA Victor Television Owners, I thank people like Mrs. Kyle, those who work under her supervision, and everyone up to you, sir. All of you breathe meaning into the famous RCA trademark of Quality.

Very truly yours,

James Erthein

A Message . . .

This issue of RCA SERVICE is dedicated to Nettie Kyle and also to all of you office and supervisory employees throughout the country who have contact with customers regarding our products and services.

Many complimentary letters are received from customers, expressing their appreciation for the friendly and understanding manner in which you handled their calls. A great many more who do not take time to write are equally impressed and thankful.

Our many friends whom you and our technicians create continue to buy RCA products and service and boost them to others.

In an effort to learn the secret of Nettie Kyle's success, we asked her what formula she used in dealing with customers.

"Offhand," she said, "I have no formula or if I have one I am not conscious of it except possibly to try to apply the Golden Rule. I do know that customers get impatient if they are kept waiting on the phone. They like to be answered by a friendly sympathetic person—not by a mechanical impersonal voice that sounds like a recording. They want to feel that you will try to take care of them promptly. They appreciate your following through for them to see that their trouble has been satisfactorily corrected. Sometimes I make a follow-up call to be sure that the customer is well pleased. Very few customers are unreasonable if you explain things fully and treat them nicely. I get a lot of satisfaction out of making friends of them."

Nettie Kyle's creed indicates a profound knowledge of customer psychology coupled with a mighty fine attitude on her part.

As a group you talk on the phone or correspond with several million customers each year. This affords you an opportunity to impress them favorably. Let's take full advantage of these opportunities and win many new friends for RCA in 1958.

S. D. Heller Named Vice President, BMEWS Service

The Radio Corporation of America has been selected by the United States Air Force to direct, as prime contractor, an anti-ballistic missile super-radar detection system program, it has been announced.

The project, which is known as BMEWS (Ballistic Missile Early Warning System), is the responsibility of RCA's Defense Electronic Products Division.

DEP selected RCA Service Company to provide the field support services in connection with the contract.

The following RCA Service Company appointments have been announced by SCO President E. C. Cahill:

Mr. Zaun, a veteran of 28 years with RCA and Award of Merit recipient in 1947, joined the Company as a student engineer. From 1930 to 1935, Mr. Zaun served as a field service engineer and worked on commercial equipment, including the installation and service of RCA equipment in Rockefeller Center, as a member of Radio Central and the Technical Service group.

From 1935 to 1939, he was Technical Editor and Service Radio & TV Service Supervisor, RCA Manufacturing Company, and during the next four years was a section and division head in the RCA Manufacturing Company. Following this, Mr. Zaun was Assistant Manager and Operations Manager in RCA Service Company's newly organized government service group. At the end of World War II he participated in developing and managing factory television service, and in 1950 was named Manager, Quality Control.

He served as Administrator, Technical Products Field Quality from 1953 until being named to his present position.

Missile Test Project Commended by Gen. Yates

A tribute to the RCA people behind the scenes who have been helping to make possible the successful testing of missiles and rockets at Cape Canaveral, was recently paid by Major General D. N. Yates, Commander of the Air Force Missile Test Center, Patrick Air Force Base, Florida.

Rocket and missile tests, which are front-page stories in our nation's newspapers, are the climax of the work of the men and women of the RCA Service Company's Missile Test Project, fanning out for thousands of miles from Patrick AFB.

The RCA people maintain and operate the complex electronic, optical and other equipment used to check out the missiles and gather data on their performances in test and in flight. Many work in remote down-range stations, stretching thousands of miles across the Caribbean Sea and Atlantic Ocean.

Pan American World Airways is the prime contractor in the operation of the AFMTC range, for which the RCA Service Company provides supporting services.

The commendation by Gen. Yates singled out the performance of RCA associates in the successful 5,000-mile test flight of the SNARK guided missile. Developed by Northrop Aircraft, the SNARK reached Ascension Island on its test last October 31, described by Gen. Yates as "a milestone in weapon development."

In his letter of commendation to Stephen D. Heller, Vice President, BMEWS Service, who was at that time, Vice President, RCA Missile Test Project, Gen. Yates wrote:

"I believe that the AFMTC Range support of this mission also was a truly significant contribution to the maintenance of national strength sufficient to deter the forces dedicated to the eclipse of the United States as a world power.

"I congratulate both Pan American

World Airways and the Radio Corporation of America Service Company on their performance in the many range tasks related to preparing for and conducting the SNARK mission.

"This is but one of the series of major operations which this Center must support with equal facility in the months to come, if we are to fulfill our responsibility to the Department of Defense. The success of the Range in this important test greatly strengthens my conviction that AFMTC will be equal to the challenges of the future."

The SNARK Missile . . . its range is in excess of 5,000 miles

Technical Products Wins January Performance Cup

Technical Products Service has been awarded the "Make '58 Really Great Performance Trophy" for its accomplishments during January. The presentation was made to Technical Products Service Vice President W. L. Jones (r. in above photo) by D. H. Kunsman, Vice President and Operations Manager, RCA Service Company.

The trophy is awarded to the operating activity of the Service Company "which has the most outstanding performance as compared to our objectives for 1958," Mr. Kunsman said.

At the end of the year, the cup will remain with the team (activity) which has for the year exceeded its goal by the greatest amount.

The contest for the cup will help each group keep track of its performance month-by-month and compare itself with the objectives, Mr. Kunsman said.

Gov. Collins (r.) chats with Mr. Heller and H. N. Morris after addressing the MTP Management Club at Cocoa, Florida

The RCA Management Club of RCA Service Company's Missile Test Project in Florida sets its sights high in the selection of guest speakers and has continued very successfully in obtaining high calibre officials at its monthly meetings.

Most recent guest speakers include Dr. Werhner von Braun, Technical Director, Army Ballistics Agency, Redstone Arsenal and designer of the Explorer—the first U. S. satellite; Governor LeRoy Collins of Florida; and Captain Robert F. Sellars, Commanding Officer, U. S. Naval Ordnance Test Unit at the Missile Test Project.

In addressing the club, which consists of all Service Co. supervisors at MTP, Gov. Collins thanked Mr. S. D. Heller, who has since been appointed Vice President, BMEWS Service, for the wonderful reception. He told the group that an investigating committee was being established to find ways to keep Florida's facilities abreast the rapid increase in residents. The state's official expression of appreciation was voiced also by Gov. Collins for RCA's activities in Florida.

Capt. Sellars, who discussed "RCA and the Navy," had high praise for the fine cooperation and excellent results achieved by RCA in meeting the Navy's requirements. He commended RCA specifically for its efforts in regard to the Vanguard and Polaris missile programs.

Dr. von Braun, world famous rocket scientist, in his address stressed the importance of the Missile Test Project in the missile development program and expressed appreciation for the cooperation accorded the Army Ballistic Missile Agency by Air Force Missile Test Project and its contractors, which include RCA Service Company.

He invited RCA management to visit ABMA facilities to better acquaint themselves with its operation. Looking to the future, Dr. von Braun predicted developments that will enable man to launch a rocket to circle the moon and return to earth, a manned rocket to the moon, and space platforms that would orbit indefinitely about the earth.

The Management Club, headed by President Harold N. Morris, Manager, Instrumentation Engineering, is devoted to the study and improvement of management communications and improved management for more economical and efficient operations.

After working as an installation and service engineer and photophone service engineer, he became Manager of Pittsburgh District in Service Company's Technical Products Service group in 1944. He served in this capacity until 1953, when he was named Manager, Chicago District Technical Products. He was named Service Manager, Technical Products—Central Region on January 1, 1957.

Every three seconds, an RCA Factory Service Technician performs a service call somewhere in the United States!

That means, in the time it takes you to read this ad—approximately 45 seconds—15 contacts were made all over the country. Fifteen RCA Victor TV owners have taken advantage of their exclusive opportunity to call RCA's own technicians for service!

As the sole RCA consumer-contact, the factory technician is truly a "goodwill ambassador" for RCA products.

He specializes on RCA Victor television, uses RCA parts exclusively, and works out of the friendly neighborhood branch of RCA Factory Service.

No wonder so many customers count on him for technical advice, especially on color TV! No wonder he lays the groundwork for RCA Victor "Living Color" sales!
