Primerica Says Cash Bids Coming In For Musicland

BY MARK MEHLER

NEW YORK America's largest music retailer apparently is on the block, with no shortage of available suitors.

Primerica Corp. disclosed Feb. 2 that it had received "indications of interest" from unidentified parties in acquiring the company's 81% stake in the 616-store Musicland Group.

Sources say the financial services firm has, in fact, received "several unsolicited cash bids" over a 24-hour period. The names of the bidders and the amount of the bids could not be confirmed. But Wall Street sources and retail competitors point to two companies as possible bidders for Musicland—Sears, the giant U.S. mass merchandiser and financial services house, which has indicated a desire to expand its specialty retailing activities, and the U.K.-based W.H. Smith, a large newspaper dealer that owns a music retail chain in England, Our Price Records.

Four Hit Titles Eclipse 300,000-Unit Mark VIDEO SUPPLIERS IN CLOVER

BY AL STEWART

NEW YORK After months of lamenting flat sales of hit titles, video suppliers are hailing January 1988 as a major breakthrough for home video.

At least four of the six hit titles released last month—led by "Platoon" and "Dirty Dancing"—have easily eclipsed the 300,000-unit-sales mark that has proven so elusive in the past.

The challenge now, suppliers say, is to maintain the momentum well into the new year.

"This is incredible," says Eric Kessler, HBO Video's vice president of new releases, feature films.

"We've never seen this type of activity before, and I think it's a very good sign. In the past we've been crushing up against that 300,000 [unit] wall. Now we've broken through, and we've seen that major titles don't cannibalize each other when they are released at the same time."

According to Kessler, HBO Video's release of the film "Platoon" in late January lured consumers into stores and created a synergy with the other titles. "People were leaving the stores with two or three movies instead of just one tape," he says.

"Platoon" shipped 380,000 units for HBO, while Vestron Video says its "Dirty Dancing" release has sold more than 360,000 units so far. The four other titles that have dominated

Crossover PDs: We'll Keep On Dancin'

BY KIM FREEMAN

NEW YORK It is irresistible to draw a parallel between the increasing popularity of the crossover radio format and disco's meteoric rise in the '70s. But programmers plying today's dance-heavy crossover approach say the format is well prepared to heed history's lessons and avoid the demise that disco suffered because of overexposure.

The penetration of crossover stations nationally is now at about the same level that disco outlets enjoyed in the mid-'70s. Since Billboard debuted its Hot Crossover 30 chart one year ago, the panel of reporters has grown to 27 stations, 13 of which are "pure" crossovers like KPWR Los Angeles; WQHT New York; WPOW Miami; WPGC-AM-FM Washington, D.C.; and WQUE

STEMRA, GEMA Flare In Bitter Licensing Battle

BY MIKE HENNESSEY

CANNES The controversial central accounting issue exploded at MIDEM with GEMA, the German mechanical rights group, abruptly suspending its reciprocal agreement with Dutch mechanical rights society STEMRA and calling for the expulsion of STEMRA from BIEM, the international mechanical rights bureau.

WCI Labels File $17 Million Suit Vs. Joe Isgro

BY STEVE GETT

NEW YORK The four major labels owned by Warner Communications Inc. have filed a $17-million-plus lawsuit against independent record promoter Joe Isgro and his companies, Isgro Enterprises and Quickcross Promotions Inc.

The suit, filed Feb. 1 in the U.S. District Court, Central District of California, charges violation of the Racketeer Influenced and Corrupt Organization Act, fraudulent deceit, and breach of contract.

The action by the labels—Warner Bros. Records, Elektra/Asylum/Nonesuch Records, Atlantic Records, and Geffen Records—marks the lat-

FROM RUSSIA, IT'S BORIS

Soviet rock star Boris Grebenshikov recently spent three weeks in this country and granted an interview to just one U.S. journalist—Billboard's Jim Bessman. In 'One To One' (page 18), Grebenshikov discusses differences between the Soviet and U.S. music scenes. And a recent concert by the Soviet band Avtograf is one of three live performances reviewed this week (page 22), as Talent In Action returns to Billboard.

Diversity, Issues Spark MIDEM Attendance Dips, But Activity Is Intense

This story was prepared by Ken Terry and Mike Hennessey.

CANNES Although attendance at the Jan. 25-29 MIDEM here actually dropped this year, the international music fair drew a more diverse group of attendees than it has in recent memory and focused on an unusually wide range of industry issues. (For more MIDEM coverage, see pages 63, 64, and 74.)

Off of the convention floor, lawyers, retailers, manufacturers, and others debated everything from digital audiotape, compact disk video, and compact disk prices to record rental, digital sampling, European mechanical royalty accounting, and the U.K.'s potentially retroactive withholding tax on touring artists.

Partly for this reason, MIDEM seemed very fragmented: CD manufacturers could care less about the problems of European mechanical rights societies, and for a little Texas label owner trying to license his records abroad, the question of when CD Video will be launched must have seemed abstract if not nonsensical.

Out of all this ferment of industry with myriad objectives, however, arose some interesting points of intersection. Some smaller labels, for instance, were readying titles on DAT in advance of the majors (Billboard, Feb. 6); one motion picture studio stated its desire to feature European songs on soundtracks; the Nashville Entertainment Assn. went abroad to promote the city's rock acts; and Czechoslovakia and the Soviet Union announced they were building CD plants.

With Mikhail Gorbachev's perestroika beginning to change economic and cultural approaches in the Communist bloc, the Soviet Union and Eastern European nations were highly visible at MIDEM this year. Not only were their delegations bigger, but they showed a willingness to deal with the West on almost capitalistic terms. As another East-West rock festival in Moscow was announced, the Soviet Union's Melodiya record label revealed a panoply of new initiatives to bring in Western rock and export local product; the director of Poland's Sopot Song Festival pleaded for Western sponsorship; and a Hungarian rock group named Vicki & Flirt was being touted to U.S. and Canadian labels by a Miami-based video supplier.

Soviets Warming To Pop Genre, Western Repertoire

BY KEN TERRY

CANNES The Soviet Union seems to be opening up to Western pop and rock records, to judge by statements of Soviet officials at this year's MIDEM.

For some time, the U.S.S.R. has imported small quantities of mainly classical records, and the domestic output of Melodiya, the state record company, has been chiefly classical all along, with some folk and jazz titles thrown in for good measure.

Recently, however, the Soviets have been recording and promoting a number of indigenous rock groups both internally and abroad. At the same time, Western pop records are starting to make inroads in the Soviet Union. According to German Avksentjev, director of Mezhdunarodnaya Kniga, the Soviet export-import agency, albums by Whitney Houston and the Alan Parsons Project were recently released in the U.S.S.R. His agency has also ordered a number of licensees from PolyGram International, he said, including LPs by hard rockers Deep Purple and Yngwe Malmsteen.

In addition, Avksentjev said, the agency is discussing the possibility of licensing albums by three

Despite Antipiracy Progress, Singapore Is 'Punished' RIAA Sings Blues Over New Trade Policy

BY BILL HOLLAND

WASHINGTON Grave disappointment has been expressed by the Recording Industry Assn. of America over a recommendation by the White House Economic Policy Council to President Reagan to strip special trade privileges from four Far East nations, including Singapore—a nation that has shown significant gains in protecting U.S. copyrights and stamping out piracy.

"We're really disappointed that the EPC has bagged in Singapore with South Korea, Taiwan, and Hong Kong," says Jay Berman, president of the RIAA. "It's virtually cleaned up piracy and counterfeiting, but it's being taken along for a ride."

Sen. Pete Wilson, R-Calif., a copyright protection advocate on the Commerce Committee, also protested the inclusion of Singapore last month during the formation of the EPC recommendation.

In a letter to the U.S. trade representative, Wilson called the move "a Catch-22," since improvement of protection had been partly responsible for increased legitimate profits in Singapore, one determination of a country's eligibility for favored-trade status. Wilson called the improvement in protection in Singapore "truly startling" and suggested that stripping benefits would be "unwise."

The EPC, created in April 1985, is chaired by Reagan and is composed of the secretaries of commerce, state, labor, transportation, and the treasury as well as the U.S. trade representative, the director of the Office of Management and Budget, and the chairman of the Council of Economic Advisers. National security and agency advisers also sit in on the meetings.

Sources say that the plan to exclude the countries from the Generalized System of Preferences was begun last year largely based on the decisions by Korea, Hong Kong, and Taiwan not to reevaluate their currencies to help adjust the U.S.

Canada Chain Apologizes For Blasting CBS Prices

BY KIRK LaPOINTE

OTTAWA A&A Records and Tapes, saying it had made several "erroneous statements" in a highly charged news release about price increases by CBS Records Canada Ltd., has apologized and withdrawn many of its statements.

The 200-plus store retail chain says it is satisfied that CBS' recent increases are "reasonable and in the best interest of the Canadian public." CBS says the new pricing is necessary to counteract rampant export of its product.

The retailer says it has "reviewed the matter with CBS senior management" and concluded that the export policy ensures that distributors receive the advantage of lower domestic prices due to trade discounts and other benefits that can be passed on to the Canadian consumer.

In late 1987, CBS upped the wholesale price of its top product to combat what it called widespread practices of exporting its material into the U.S., Europe, and Japan. Canadian pressings are comparably inexpensive because of competitive manufacturing and the relative value of the Canadian dollar to its foreign-currency counterparts (Billboard, Feb. 6).

Rackjobber Turns Tables On Home Vid Firm

New Deal: Lieberman Acquires IVE

BY CHRIS MORRIS

LOS ANGELES The merger of Minneapolis-based rackjobber Lieberman Enterprises Inc. and Newbury Park, Calif.-based home video firm International Video Entertainment Inc. has been consummated, although not precisely as planned.

On Feb. 1, Lieberman, the No. 2 rackjobber in the U.S., announced that IVE has become a wholly owned subsidiary of Lieberman, with Lie-berman assuming $37 million in debt incurred in IVE's purchase of the rack firm's stock in July 1987. This "restructuring" essentially flip-flops the deal originally posited last summer, which called for IVE to acquire Lieberman.

In announcing finalization of the IVE deal, Lieberman also said that it had entered into negotiations for the acquisition of Vista Organization Ltd., the firm that operates New York-based Vista Home Video. The new bid supersedes a previous offer by IVE to purchase Vista Home Video (Billboard, Dec. 12).

Completion of both transactions would make parent company Carolco Pictures Inc. a nearly complete vertical player in home entertainment, with interests in film production and distribution; home video manufacturing, duplication, and distribution; and retail racking.

When the IVE/Lieberman merger was begun last summer, IVE, which is owned by L.A.-based film-production firm Carolco, purchased 51% of Lieberman's stock from chairman

In the purchase agreement of June 9, IVE agreed to offer $21 for each of the remaining outstanding Lieberman shares. However, the stock market collapse of Oct. 19 made it impossible for underwriter PaineWebber Inc. to raise the $43 million necessary for completion of the transaction.

PaineWebber is currently considering a revised financing proposal; Lieberman/IVE hopes to offer shareholders the same $21 per share, with an additional sum to compensate for the delay in the transaction.

According to IVE chairman/CEO Jose Menendez, the new corporate structure of the merged IVE and Lieberman will have no impact on the way the firm does business.

"From an operations point of view, nothing changes," Menendez says. "Ultimately, it will give us a stronghold in two dynamic industries: video distribution and the retailing of audio (Continued on page 80)

S-VHS Tapes Bow At Retail

Dealers Get Special-Interest Vids

BY JIM McCULLAUGH

LOS ANGELES The first prerecorded Super-VHS programming is available to consumers.

The initial programs, now being sold to dealers, are "River Song," listing at $44.94, and "Impact Zone," at $54.95, both independently produced special-interest tapes.

Distribution is through newly formed Super Source Video of San Francisco, a division of that city's One Up Productions.

Duplication is being handled by Diner-Allied, a San Francisco-based film and production facility that claims it is the first U.S. purchaser of Super-VHS duplicating equipment from JVC, which invented the format. Hamilton Bryan, head of Super Source, says he is in the initial stages of building a direct-mail catalog and hopes to have as many as 100 titles available by summer.

He says negotiations are under way with numerous video producers, including several majors, about duplicating and distributing product on the format.

The first wave of titles, he says, are expected to be special-interest music, documentary, and travel tapes, many of which were shot on film or 1-inch video and feature digital soundtracks, the "type of product that will showcase the technology."

Toward the end of the year, he says, the company may attempt to license selected movie product for S-VHS distribution. The major studios have indicated that they have no intention of duplicating on S-VHS until (Continued on page 80)

Macrovision Claims Patent Infringement By 18 Firms

LOS ANGELES Macrovision, creators of the videocassette anticopying process used by most of the major prerecorded-home-video firms, has filed suit against 18 companies, alleging patent infringement in the manufacture or sale of "black boxes" designed to defeat the system.

Lawsuits filed in federal courts in California, New York, and Oregon name four manufacturer defendants of black boxes; the rest of the defendants are distributors and retailers of the black boxes.

The claims seek an injunction against the defendants as well as damages.

The manufacturers named in the suit are Vidicraft of Portland, Ore.; Deluxe Electronics and Xantech Corp., both of Los Angeles; and Showline Video Corp. of San Diego.

Distributor and retailer defendants are Ametron-American Electronics

Macrovision says it contacted a number of companies late last year about the alleged patent infringement, demanding that they stop the manufacture and distribution of black boxes. Several companies, including Elephant Electronics Inc. of Phoenix, Ariz., and DT Electronics International Corp., New York, complied with the request, according to Macrovision.

Virgin Expands In U.S. With Top Hits, New Logos

BY DAVE DiMARTINO

LOS ANGELES One year after its return to the U.S. marketplace, Virgin Records has established a rapidly growing, surprisingly broad U.S. presence. Since striking its manufacturing and distribution agreement with Atlantic through WEA in late 1986, the company has had hit singles and hit albums, signed such major artists as Steve Winwood and Keith Richards, and established new labels for soundtracks, new age classical, and ethnic music.

Further, on Tuesday (9) the company will issue its first commercial music video—"CV," a Peter Gabriel compilation.

Virgin is also expanding its Beverly Hills headquarters, which will eventually house not only the record company but the Virgin Music publishing group as well. In short, the company, which had previously attempted U.S. links with both Epic and Atlantic, seems to have struck gold in more ways than one this time out.

Jordan Harris and Jeff Ayeroff, managing directors of the label, both say Virgin Records America has exceeded their own expectations since its start up a year ago.

"We thought we'd hopefully lay the right foundation for the company for the next five or 10 years," says Harris. "Well, we did the foundation—but it was for a much larger house than we'd thought. So now we're going to start putting some walls up."

Among major building blocks in Virgin's foundation has been the company's proven ability to break new artists. Beginning with Cutting Crew—whose "I Just Died In Your Arms" was Virgin's first single and first No. 1 record—the label has successfully launched such artists as T'Pau, Danny Wilson, Deja, and Pretty Poison.

Ayeroff and Harris view the success of T'Pau as especially significant and indicative of the symbiotic relationship shared by the 17 Virgin labels worldwide. For instance, they point out that when Virgin released T'Pau's "Heart And Soul" in the U.K., it sank without a trace. When the single was released in the U.S., however, it quickly reached the LOS ANGELES Fleetwood Mac and John Cougar Mellencamp extended their long strings of double-platinum albums in January. "Tango In The Night" became Fleetwood Mac's fifth consecutive studio album to top the 2 million mark in U.S. sales, while "The Lonesome Jubilee" became Mellencamp's fourth album in a row to reach that sales level.

Also in January, George Michael's debut solo album, "Faith," was certified gold, platinum, and double platinum by the Recording Industry Assn. of America. U.S. sales of "Faith" are already half those of Wham!'s best-selling album, "Make

It Big."

Two metal-based albums earned multiplatinum awards in January. "Whitesnake" topped the 5-million-sales plateau, while Def Leppard's "Hysteria" topped 3 million, more than half of the 6 million units sold by the band's 1983 blockbuster, "Pyromania."

Randy Travis' "Always And Forever" was certified double platinum Jan. 29. It's the first country crossover smash to top the 2 million mark in U.S. sales since Alabama's "Roll On" four years ago. That was the group's fifth consecutive double-platinum release.

The two albums that dominated last year's Grammy Awards—Paul Simon's "Graceland" and Steve Winwood's "Back In The High Life"—advanced to the 3-million-sales plateau. Before their Grammy victories, both albums were merely platinum. Winwood's album went double platinum in April, and Simon's followed suit two weeks later.

Several albums that were considered chart disappointments came through with January certifications. Stevie Wonder's "Characters" was certified gold and platinum, while Earth, Wind & Fire's "Touch The World" and Billy Joel's "Kohuept (Live In Leningrad)" were certified gold. These are the 12th gold albums

Judge Nixes 3-Musician Restriction N.Y. Clubs Get Their Wish

BY PETER KEEPNEWS

NEW YORK The live-music scene here is already feeling the impact of a judge's ruling that a key provision of the city's cabaret law is unconstitutional (see Blue Notes, page 27).

The provision, which was added to the law in 1961, allowed eating and drinking establishments that were not licensed as cabarets to present live music, but only if it were played by no more than three musicians. Acting State Supreme Court Judge David B. Saxe ruled Jan. 28 that the three-musician limit "restricts [musicians'] freedom of expression and is therefore unconstitutional."

The provision had also originally specified that such venues could only feature keyboard or string instruments. That restriction—but not the three-musician limit—was lifted by the City Council in 1986. An additional provision that prohibits dancing in unlicensed clubs was not challenged and remains on the books.

Employment opportunities for musicians in New York began to increase almost as soon as Saxe handed down his ruling. A number of venues that had been restricted by the law to booking trios had brought in extra

ASCAP Action Restores Writer-Pub Fee Balance

BY IRV LIGHTMAN

NEW YORK As a result of an ASCAP move to correct an imbalance in distribution payments created by a surge in hit songs with foreign copyrights, U.S. publishers stand to gain 6%-7% in performance-fee dollars while writer royalties are being lowered an equal amount.

The ASCAP board, composed of publisher and writer members, voted unanimously to change the calculation of "value of credits" for works originated abroad and subpublished here.

The board's action seeks to restore the traditional 50/50 split of funds available for domestic distribution among writers and publishers.

The board's action took place Nov. 19, but ASCAP's publisher and writer members have been given details of the new method in recent weeks in a mailing that informs them of a hearing scheduled here on Thursday (11) by U.S. District Judge William C. Conner. For years, ASCAP has operated under a consent decree.

Songwriters Guild of America president George David Weiss, himself a writer, says he has had to deal with "many unhappy" members of

Tix Co. Sues Bill Graham

BY CHRIS MORRIS

LOS ANGELES A San Jose, Calif.-based ticket agency has filed a broad antitrust and restraint-of-trade suit against San Francisco concert promoter Bill Graham's companies, computerized ticket broker Bay Area Seating Service, Ticketmaster, and the Shoreline Amphitheatre.

San Jose Box Office Inc., in a complaint filed Dec. 30 in the Superior Court of California in Santa Clara County, alleges that the defendants have used a series of regional monopolies and exclusive arrangements to maintain a lock on the San Francisco market. The company says the monopolies are effectively designed to drive competing independent brokers and promoters out of business in the San Francisco Bay area.

San Jose Box is seeking injunctive relief from the courts as well as real and punitive damage awards, to be determined at a jury trial.

Representatives of Graham and BASS, the main targets of the suit, take issue with San Jose Box's charges. BASS' attorney characterizes the dispute as "a struggle over the integrity of the distribution system."

'Phantom' Reappears On Album Chart; Eurythmics, Foreigner Fight Fast Fades

IN THE WAKE of one of the biggest openings in Broadway history, the "Phantom Of The Opera" original London cast album re-enters the Top Pop Albums chart at No. 97. That's 39 notches higher than the album peaked when it was first released last summer.

"Phantom" is almost certain to become the highest-charting cast album since "Dreamgirls" climbed to No. 11 in 1982. That album charted so high because it included a hit single—Jennifer Holliday's No. 1 black hit, "And I Am Telling You I'm Not Going."

In the past 10 years, only three other cast albums have cracked the top 100. "Sweeny Todd" peaked at No. 78 in 1979, the original London cast album of "Cats" reached No. 86 in 1982, and "La Cage Aux Folles" hit No. 52 in 1983.

"Phantom" is the latest in a long string of successful albums for composer Andrew Lloyd Webber. Lloyd Webber and lyricist Tim Rice landed a blockbuster in the early '70s with "Jesus Christ Superstar," which generated three successful albums. A studio concept album hit No. 1 in 1971, a cast album reached No. 31 in 1972, and a soundtrack made No. 21 in 1973.

The team's follow-up musical, "Evita," was also a smash, yielding a hit cast album in 1980. (The album peaked at No. 105 but ultimately went platinum on the basis of slow but steady sales.) Webber encored in 1982 with "Cats," which, like "Superstar," yielded three charted albums. The original London cast album peaked at No. 86, the Broadway caster reached No. 113, and an abridged Broadway sampler hit No. 131.

FAST FACTS: Two long-running groups—Eurythmics and Foreigner—are taking their lumps on this week's charts. Eurythmics' "Savage" loses its bullet at No. 41 on the Top Pop Albums chart, two weeks after the leadoff single, "I Need A Man," petered out at No. 46 on the Hot 100. Each of the group's four prior albums cracked the top 15 and generated a top 15 single. The slump with Foreigner's album is less severe, but if anything more puzzling because the album's first single—"Say You Will"—is a top 10 hit. The band's first album in 2½ years, "Inside Information," loses its bullet at No. 18 on the pop album chart. This represents a big drop-off from the group's five prior studio albums, all of which cracked the top five.

Anita Baker's "Rapture," which dips to No. 50 on the pop album chart, has been listed in the top 50 for 78 consecutive weeks. That's every week since August 1986. That's not bad for an album that never cracked the top 10: The sleeper smash peaked at No. 11 in March 1987. "Rapture" yielded just one top 10 pop hit ("Sweet Love") but has remained a steady seller on the strength of great press and word of mouth and solid support from black and adult contemporary radio stations.

Tiffany holds at No. 1 on the Hot 100 for the second week with "Could've Been," while her cover of "I Think We're Alone Now" hangs tough at No. 1 in the U.K. Tiffany is the first artist to top the U.S. and U.K. charts simultaneously with different records since Phil Collins scored in March 1985 with "One More Night" in the States and "Easy Lover"—a duet with Philip Bailey—in the motherland.

Billy Ocean has the top new entry on the Hot 100 with "Get Outta My Dreams, Get Into My Car," which bows at No. 49. The song was produced and co-written by Robert John "Mutt" Lange, best known for his work with superstar rock acts, such as Foreigner and the Cars. It's not the first time Lange and Ocean have made waves together. Lange co-wrote two of Ocean's biggest hits: "Loverboy" (which he also co-produced) and "When The Going Gets Tough, The Tough Get Going."

Rosanne Cash's "Tennessee Flat Top Box" jumps to No. 1 on the Hot Country Singles chart—26 years after her father, Johnny Cash, took the song to No. 11 on the country chart.

WE GET LETTERS: Art Goewey of Sound Warehouse in Chicago notes that Michael Bolton's "Dock Of The Bay"—which jumps to No. 37 on this week's Hot 100—is the first version of that classic to crack the top 40 since Otis Redding's original reached No. 1 in 1968. Subsequent covers by King Curtis, the Dells, Sergio Mendes & Brasil '66, Sammy Hagar, and the Reddings charted on the Hot 100 but fell short of the top 40.

Don Beckman of Spokane, Wash., notes that six of the albums in this week's top 10 have one-word titles: "Faith," "Tiffany," "Kick," "Bad," "Hysteria," and "Whitesnake." It was seven of 10 two weeks ago, with "Whitney" rounding out the one-word brigade.

James A. Geoghan of Manhasset, N.Y., notes that Lisa Lisa & Cult Jam is the first act to follow back-to-back No. 1 hits with a single that fell short of the top 40 since Peter Cetera did it in 1986. "Big Mistake," Cetera's follow-up to the chart-toppers "Glorious Love" and "Next Time I Fall," peaked at No. 61. Lisa Lisa's "Someone To Love Me For Me" did even worse, peaking at No. 78.

EXERCISE AND HEALTH VIDEO

MUSCLES ITS WAY TO THE TOP OF BILLBOARD'S VIDEO CHARTS, WEEK AFTER WEEK!

Retailers continually look to this category as a sure-fire sell-through device. Now, fitness instructors, as well as celebrities, conduct video tape fitness classes to keep those bodies moving. The appeal is to everybody including the jogger, the walker, the dieter . . . There are cassettes to teach exercising with weights, back to basics . . . tightening up those "areas" of concern. And, of course, exercises for the more advanced.

In this issue: Billboard gives Product Information. Retailer Tips. Plus Billboard's (bi-weekly) Chart on Exercise and Health Video, the industry's barometer for what's selling.

Billboard's annual Spotlight on Exercise and Health Video delivers your important ad message to buyers at major chains, video and record stores, mass merchandisers, distributors and one-stops.

New Formats Must Be Introduced Properly

BY DAVE McQUADE

Year: 20XX. A young music buff has just modem-dialed a "commercial music library" to obtain the latest release of Joanie & the Jetts. After the computer at the other end confirms the customer number or credit card, the screen reads: "ready to transfer." Two minutes later, the young music buff is jogging, while his "Runman" earphones blast out his newest record via a ROM chip.

Compact disk, CD single, digital audiotape, Hi-Fi VHS audio, analog cassette, LP, CDV... In our never-ending search for the perfect format, have we succeeded in confusing the consumer?

No one really knows where all of this new technology will take us. We cannot say with certainty that any of the current formats will be the one that will "stick." I'm sure that our parents thought that technology had peaked with the advent of the 78 rpm platter. Of course, those of us who make our living in the several formats are here to stay—at least for a while. Practically every child, teenager, and adult in this country has a cassette player either clipped to a belt, installed in a stereo rack or boom box, or mounted on a car dashboard.

Although LP sales are declining, they will certainly not disappear overnight. Again, the awesome number of turntables in use assures their continued viability in the immediate future.

Like it or not, there is a slice of America that will not run out and buy another format until the previous one is totally unavailable, if then.

Due to the dramatic drop in the cost of the CD hardware and the dropping costs of CDs, we know that the audio CD will continue to make a major mark in the music world. Never before in history has a new format been so widely and quickly accepted as CD has been. Consumers are enamored with their first digital format as a result of its clean sound, compact size, and lack of wear. The figures for Christmas tell us that both CD hardware and software sales were at an all-time ment of the market already has been affected by the new technology. It is hard to measure how many consumers are "waiting to see what happens" before investing in a new piece of digital hardware for their stereo systems, although I think the percentage is substantial.

Consumers hear the words "digital recordability" and their eyes light up like LEDs. Many believe that DAT stands for "divine audiotape," a product that has all the anwill not have the instant programmability that the CD offers.

Thirdly, DAT hardware will remain a high-dollar component for quite some time, due to its complicated high-speed head and capstan drive system and will most likely be subject to all of the maintenance and repair challenges of your very first VHS machine. While CD players are available everywhere in the $100 range, prices of DAT machines will fall no lower than the $800-$1200 range for the foreseeable future. Finally, DAT is still tape and is subject to wear, stretching, and breaking, just like any other tape.

I have little doubt that a DAT machine will be added to many stereo racks (including mine) in the very near future. I do not, however, see it endangering the currently accepted formats. DAT will have a long uphill climb ahead to gain broad market acceptance.

I applaud the research and development of new formats. They can pump new lifeblood into the music industry. Format wars, on the other hand, can be very destructive. The unavoidable truth is this: The more we offer new formats to consumers without educating them, the more we may see a segment of the market in a holding pattern, buying nothing. It is up to that portion of the music industry that interfaces directly with consumers to teach them the facts and sell them on the formats we know to be viable now.

A concentrated effort along these lines by record companies, stereo shops, music publications, and record retailers will bring the waiting consumer out of his holding pattern and his music dollars back to earth, where we can all enjoy them.

'An uneducated consumer is dangerous to all'

Dave McQuade is director of public relations for Technetronics Inc.

high, with CDs right behind cassettes for the first time.

So how does DAT figure in the new-format frontier, and more importantly, what does the consumer think?

Along with introducing a new format like DAT comes the responsibility of educating the consumer. An uneducated consumer is dangerous to all. He is the one who tells his friends that they are "crazy to buy CDs, since DAT will make them obsolete within the next year or so."

Although DAT isn't even available in the U.S. yet—except for some "gray-market" units—a seg-swers and no limitations. There are many who mistakenly believe that they will be able to record digital-to-digital with DAT, even though the machines' manufacturers have purposely given them a different sampling rate than the one used on CD players in order to deter piracy.

Although DAT is a great format, the awestruck, "waiting" consumer should be aware of all the facts: First, the DAT tape will be expensive (the way CD prices are falling at the retail level, the consumer could practically own the CD for the price of a single blank cassette tape). Secondly, the DAT listener

SOURCE-LICENSING FIGHT

Your Jan. 30 Page 1 article on local television broadcasters' source-licensing-legislation efforts misrepresents the facts in so basic and systematic a fashion as to raise the serious question of whether this is merely a case of careless journalism. To imply, much less state, that a "decision" has been made by the All-Industry TV Music License Committee not to "pursue legislation in this session of Congress to replace the current blanket license for the use of music on syndicated TV" is an out-and-out misstatement that could not have come from any authoritative source speaking for the committee. Indeed, I am the only committee source quoted, and there is nothing in the quote attributed to me that would provide the basis for this factually erroneous conclusion.

Perhaps it is not too late to advise your readers of the facts as they stand and as our committee perceives them. Eighty members of the House and nine Sen. have co-sponsored the music-reform legislation to date.

While we have never claimed achieving so basic a reform would be easy, Sen. Dennis DeConcini, D-Ariz., echoing the views of many members of Congress in his November Copyright Subcommittee hearing, stated that the broadcasters were not getting a fair shake and suggested that some reform legislation might indeed be appropriate.

Let me be crystal clear on the key point: The local television industry is determined to pursue, in all appropriate forums, improvements in an outdated and inequitable blanket-licensing system for television. Those efforts presently include—and will continue to include—pressing for copyright-reform legislation.

There are numerous additional misstatements in the article, including the purpose and scope of the Rate Court trial and an invented All-Industry Committee "walk out" on last year's negotiations with ASCAP. I would urge your editorial staff to strive for some modicum of accuracy and objectivity in its future coverage of this important issue.

DOING OUR BEST

Thanks to Nelson George for mentioning the Apollo Theatre in his year-end round-up article of Dec. 26.

It took us seven years and $17 million to get where we are in the restructuring of the Apollo. It would take us at least half that time and $2 million more to redo the upstairs seats. It would involve getting federal, state, and city landmark authorities' permissions to raise the roof and reduce the seating capacity by more than 300 seats. The reduction of capacity by that amount would rule out our being able to get sufficient patron income to pay for most of the acts that we produce there.

Increasing legroom in the upper mezzanine and lower mezzanine is in our future, but it will take time and more money than we have at this time. We apologize!

IMPORTANT OMISSIONS

In response to Bob Buziak's Commentary, "The Majors Need Indie Labels" (Billboard, Jan. 16), one must question Mr. Buziak's knowledge of the significant players in the area of independent labels. Certainly no commentary that purports to chronicle the historic and present-day importance of independent labels is complete without mentioning Berry Gordy and Motown as well as Russell Simmons, founder of Def Jam.

Such an oversight is more than my eyes could take.

IMPORTANCE OF IMAGE

David Steffen hit the nail right on the head in his Commentary on improved retail operations (Billboard, Jan. 23). I have found as a manager of a record retail store that store appearance and employee-customer relations mean more to a store's success than any blockbuster that might be out.

If Mr. Steffen is ever in Lima, I hope he pays us a visit.

Promoters, Programmers Build Country Alliance

BY YVONNE OLSON

LOS ANGELES As country promotion executives and programmers gather in Nashville this week for the Country Radio Seminar, it seems a good time to take a look at relations between the two camps.

Representatives from both sides

'The better the country music industry does, the better we all do' are not without their disagreements, but in general their relationship is characterized by an unusually good will that is perhaps driven by a common dedication to the music itself.

"Certainly there are additional elements to consider when running a station," explains KNIX Phoenix, Ariz., MD Buddy Owens, "but everything revolves around the music. It's the star of our format, always has been and always will be."

"It's a very friendly format," concurs KPLX Dallas PD Bobby Kraig. "Most of us have spent several years working in country radio or records and have developed a camaraderie on this end of the business. I think we all realize that the better the country music industry does, the better we all do."

To arrive at that conclusion, one does well to look at the format's evolution over the past few years. In the early '80s the country race began to slow down, with fewer new artists entering the fold. As a result, fewer new listeners tuned in. Although it still ranked second to AC as the most-widely-used format, country ratings were sliding.

Format leaders began to assess their strengths and weaknesses then, and the result was an aggressive musical stance. Labels worked to present multidimensional new artists, artists who presented a unique style—whether traditional or completely new—and who understood the intricacies of recording, radio, and the country audience. Radio, in turn, willingly introduced these artists to the public. Such names as Randy Travis, the Judds, Restless Heart, Lyle Lovett, Dwight Yoakam, K.T. Oslin, and many others have become familiar to a worldwide country audience in recent years.

This rejuvenation, however, has created a glut of sorts. Says Owens, "I've encountered at least 30 new acts in the last year and a half. If they're putting out good music, chances are they'll get played. But if they're just trying to sustain their careers, I really don't have the space on my playlist."

Despite the overflow of new artists, record company personnel are committed to the current onslaught of product.

"I think we need to continually introduce new artists to the industry," says Capitol promotion VP Paul Lovelace. "New artists are the lifeblood of our business, and we believe in putting out a continuous stream of quality product. That's the key—if it's quality, it'll rise no matter how many other artists are out there."

Notes KRAK Sacramento, Calif., PD Don Langford, "We're a format that's very involved in the music business. I believe in promoting new acts and working with them to create a beneficial image for all concerned. But I'm interested in superstars, too!"

Superstar involvement comes mainly by way of "sustaining" promotions like album giveaways. Explains Langford, "Stations can't always afford to give away houses and cars, but with a good working relationship with a record company, you can do these secondary contests. Most people buy country at a general retail level—the K marts rather than record outlets. So, if you're giving away an album, that's an $11 prize. It not only promotes the format and artist, but is a prize that has meaning for everyone."

But giveaway records are not as plentiful as in the past. Stations usually have to wait until the act comes to town, when giveaways provide support for the tour. All programmers note, however, that creative promotional ideas are almost never turned down by a record company.

"With over 2,000 stations playing country music, think of the amount we have to service," says Frank Lefel, Mercury Nashville's promotion VP. "But if they have an idea and it makes sense, we'll do everything we can. Unfortunately, everyone seems to think record companies are a never-ending source of money. That's not the reality."

"Record companies are not banks," states Warner Bros. Nashville VP Bob Saporiti. "We appreciate co-op situations just like everybody else. The best stations are the ones that know how to work with record companies, and vice versa. Warner enjoys a

WASHINGTON ROUNDUP

BY BILL HOLLAND

IT'S BACK! The station-transfer-tax proposal, roundly criticized by broadcasters in the last session of Congress, is back, this time as a separate bill. It's been referred to the Senate Commerce Committee for possible spring hearings. The bill, introduced last year by Sen. Ernest Hollings, D-S.C., would levy a 2%-4% fee on the sale of radio and television stations—more if stations have ignored fairness-doctrine rules.

AN AMENDMENT offered by Sen. Steve Symms, R-Idaho, to repeal media cross-ownership provisions was rejected by the Senate in voice vote Jan. 27. The cross-ownership restrictions might specifically affect Rupert Murdoch, who owns The New York Post and The Boston Herald as well as TV stations in those cities, but it would also affect other owners with newspapers and radio/TV/cable holdings in same city. The repeal comes as a loss to broadcasters and others—including President Reagan—who feel restrictions are no longer needed and are unconstitutional. It'll take a bug puff of steam in an election year to get another amendment going, insiders say.

SEE YOU IN COURT . . . A 17-member committee of group owners, networks, and media organizations has asked the U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in Washington, D.C., to take a look at the Federal Communications Commission's recently redefined rules governing indecent programming. Most find the commission's rules puzzling, fuzzy, and ill defined.

good relationship with radio and has always encouraged working together for the purpose of mutual benefit. But we don't want anything to do with those who think we have to do all the work, or foot the entire bill."

A good example of creativity is KPLX's Country Corner promotion. Responding to listener complaints that rock music is always played in record stores and that retail workers couldn't supply much information on country music, KPLX, Warner Bros., and a local record store initiated Country Corner, offering various country albums at a discount price and presented in a high-visibility display. A different album is featured each week, with several other labels now participating in the venture.

"It wasn't an earth-shattering revelation, but a new twist on an old idea," says Kraig. "It's improved our image in the marketplace and increased the visibility of our music."

Perhaps the best mutually beneficial promotion is the Listener Appreciation event, where both organizations sponsor a free or cut-rate concert featuring new artists. Most of these shows are done festival style or scheduled to coincide with community activities like a county fair.

Explains Saporiti, "Appreciation Days help us both out. The station gets a great concert at a reasonable price, and we either break a new artist in a different town or attract a few more fans for an established act."

"A live performance can make all the difference," agrees Langford. "Plus the fact that the event is heavily promoted on air. The label gets constant acknowledgment, and interest in the artist increases. Many people who see the show will buy the album afterward."

Programmers reveal why they have jumped on certain new releases.

TOP 40

"One of the best new records I've heard," says newly named KHFI Austin, Texas, PD Jerry Lousteau of Billy Ocean's "Get Out Of My Dreams, Get Into My Car" (Jive/Arista). "Of course, when you hear it you'll say, 'Anyone could have guessed that!'" he laughs. And he calls Whodini's "Rock You Again (Again And Again)" (Jive/Arista) an "instant phone-reaction record. It's everything Run-D.M.C. ever was, only better." Last on Lousteau's list this week is Whitesnake's "Gimme All Your Love Tonight" (Geffen), which he says is "so obviously Whitesnake—a great nighttime record."

BLACK/CROSSOVER

"These guys keep turning out the hits," says WUSL "Power 99" Philadelphia PD Dave Allan of Levert. "'Sweet Sensation' [Atlantic] has that Luther Vandross sound and appeal." Allan also likes a band called Mico Wave, whose current song is "Instant Replay" (Columbia). "This song has Roger on it and sounds twice as good as 'I Want To Be Your Man,'" he says. And last mention goes to Brenda Russell for "Piano In The Dark" (A&M). "It's one of those records that build out of quiet storm stations and later dominate 25-34 female requests," explains Allan. "It's getting a lot of talk with very little airplay here in Philly."

ALBUM ROCK

"We know the Rick Springfield's a hit," says KBPI Denver MD John Edwards of the RCA rocker's latest, "Rock Of Life." "It's beat out everyone on the phones for the past couple of weeks," he says. A record consistently ranking top five at 'BPI is White Lion's "Wait" (Atlantic). "A great power ballad that proves the band's mass-appeal qualities," is how Edwards describes it. Working locally for the station are Triumph's "Never Say Never" (MCA) and Glen Burtnick's "Walls Came Down" (A&M). And "if you're looking for out-of-the-box performance," says Edwards, "look no further than the David Lee Roth album." For any ostriches just pulling their heads out of sand, the album is "Skyscraper" (Warner Bros.).

COUNTRY

"Their best to date," says KSON San Diego PD Mike Shepard of Highway 101's "Cry Cry Cry" (Warner Bros.). "It's classic Highway 101, but more mass appeal than ever." Next comes K.T. Oslin's "I'll Always Come Back" (RCA). "What a great follow-up," says Shepard. And rounding out his list is relatively unknown Darden Smith and "Little Maggie" (Columbia). "When Smith opened for Rosanne Cash here, the crowd said goodbye with a standing ovation," he explains. "We were so impressed that we added his record. It's gotten great reaction out of the box."

EZ COMMUNICATIONS appoints Jeff Dorf and Fred Schumacher VPs/GMs of group stations WAIV & WOKV Jacksonville, Fla., and KMPS Seattle, respectively.

DAN MASON is named president and Michael O'Shea executive vice president of Cook Inlet Radio Partners. These appointments follow the transfer of First Media stations to this newly formed corporation.

KGIL-AM-FM San Fernando, Calif./Los Angeles GM Richard McGeary is upped to VP/GM.

Rock Stations Leave Some Fans Singing The Blues

BY J.B. GRIFFITH

ONE OF THE HOTTEST stories of 1987 was the listening public's enthusiastic acceptance of the jazz/new age/soft rock radio format programmed by such stations as KTWV "the Wave" Los Angeles.

GUEST COLUMN

"Perfect for the upscale young-professional-market segment," gushed article after article. I'm not saying there's anything inherently wrong with this easy-listening-for-the-'80s radio, but a reader glancing through recent copies of Billboard would also come across articles noting the strength of oldies-based album rockers, with headlines like "Classic Rock Format Is No Flash In The Pan."

Without question, the Wave format works. But there is another large segment of the market (with roughly the same demographics) that is still passionate about great rock'n'roll, and this group's listening needs are not being met by album rock stations that play nothing but Bon Jovi and Whitesnake or by classic rockers that plod along rehashing old Led Zeppelin cuts. The members of this potential audience grew up listening to the likes of Elvis Costello, Talking Heads, the Clash, and Television, and they later embraced such acts as Hüsker Dü, the Replacements, and R.E.M. This audience craves new, fresh, interesting rock music, the kind radio used to play before consultants stepped in and remade radio in their own image. This audience wants to hear new music, but it has no desire to suffer through 10 pop metal acts and a vintage Lynyrd Skynyrd cut to hear one song by the dB's.

PLEASE READ ON, and I'll draw a parallel with the automobile business: For years, the big three domestic auto makers smugly insisted they had their fingers on the pulse of the car-buying public, and the models they designed, produced, and marketed year after year reflected this callous attitude. A U.S. car could be counted on for a mushy ride; a large engine that wasted horsepower and gas; a distinctly nonaerodynamic styling (to the point of 90-degree sheet-metal folds on some recent General Motors products); and plenty of brightwork, bells, and whistles. Sure, the '70s oil crisis forced them to build smaller cars, but none of the big three took the extra step to reinvent the wheel until the European and Japanese car makers threatened to devastate the U.S. market with imports.

Ford, with its Taurus project, was the first domestic manufacturer to gamble on changing tastes. Even before the Taurus/Sable went on sale, some auto industry pundits were saying things like, "Ford is crazy to think middle America will buy a car that looks like a cross between an Audi and a spaceship and drives like a European sedan. They'll fall flat on their faces."

In 1987, Ford made more money than GM, Chrysler, and American Motors combined, largely because Taurus/Sable sales exploded. Ford left the other domestic auto makers in the dust because it had the foresight to anticipate a change in public tastes.

THIS BRINGS ME to my point: We are currently in a golden era of rock music, as we have been for several years. As an editor and reviewer for a monthly music magazine, I've heard so many great rock records—on both major and independent labels—in the past four years that I lost count a long time ago. Sure, some were college-radio-only fare, but a larger percentage would sound just as good—or better—than 85% of the stuff that gets added to album rock playlists. But these records were never added, and they were never played.

So here's somebody's big chance. Are there any intrepid stations (or consultants) out there in radio land willing to take the risk Ford took with the Taurus and go up against the GMs and Chryslers of album and classic rock radio? You'd have to sweat through a bad book or two; you'd have to commit to this new format the same way NBC-TV stuck with "Hill Street Blues" until it became a hit. But your target audience is there; it would only have to find you. This audience hungers to find a radio format that understands the passion, intelligence, commitment, and fire that make great rock music a unique form of art—music that really matters.

It would take some hard work. You'd have to do a lot of listening, and you'd have to break that habit of always looking at somebody else's numbers before you add a record. But there's so much great product out there being ignored that major-label artist-development departments—and independent labels—would treat you like royalty, as would your audience. Put a lot of thought into this new format, do it

FEATURED PROGRAMMING

BLACK HISTORY MONTH 1988 finds the major black syndicators having weathered last year's industry slump and doing fine. Most black syndicators usually begin the year by gearing up for the back-to-back events of Martin Luther King Jr.'s birthday in January and the Black History Month of February. This year is no exception. Two companies are also about to bow new offerings.

AMERICAN MEDIA, Atlanta, was approached by King's children about a possible production, and between Christmas and Feb. 1 it produced 22 2 1/2-minute vignettes on their lives with King. The "Martin Luther King: A Family Scrapbook" series features Yolanda, Martin III, Dexter, and Bernice King reminiscing about both light and tragic moments of their family's life.

Despite the narrow time frame between production go and airdate, American Media says it cleared over 80 stations for the series, including 21 of the top 25 black ADI markets. Meanwhile, American's bread-and-butter program, "Coast To Coast Top 20," added a "Great Black Americans" segment for February. Each of the month's weekly two-hour shows takes a look at four outstanding black Americans.

SHERIDAN BROADCASTING Network did the radio simulcast of the United Negro College Fund's "Parade Of Stars" telethon in December for the third year running. The Sheridan broadcast covers the telethon's proceedings for the entire six hours and provides programming for the two 10-minute breakaways each hour. For Black History Month, Sheridan has opted to add 30-second features on black history to its regularly scheduled newscasts.

SYNDICATE IT Productions, Burbank, Calif., has built up a catalog of special January/February programming over the past few years and rolled it out again for 1988. Along with three short-form series, Syndicate It offers the three-hour "King—A Musical Tribute" and the 24-hour "Story Of A People."

The long-form special, "King—A Musical Tribute," which was first produced in 1984 and won a CEBA award from the World Institute of Black Communications in 1985, gets updated each year. The music of "A Musical Tribute" is a blend of current pop, gospel, and songs written about King, chosen for its relevance to King's philosophy.

The mammoth "Story Of A People" has evolved from an eight-hour program to its current 24 hours since the program's 1984 debut. The musical and narrative history is on 88 stations this year and can be stripped into self-contained one-hour segments. It chronicles the legacy of black Americans from Africa to the present. The last eight hours deal with current events and are updated annually.

Syndicate It has also been busy on two new offerings. The first is a national version of Hamilton Cloud's inspirational/nondenominational gospel show which has been running on KACE Los Angeles for the past 10 years. The one-hour weekly "Inner Visions" first went out on demo last October and will now bow in March. The show's blend of contemporary gospel, pop, and r&b even adds some reggae with a spiritual message. Syndicate It director of operations Graham Boswell says that Syndicate It's main objective is to deliver a program that consistently fits into today's urban contemporary format.

The second new offering strikes out in an affiliate-services direction. "Prime Cuts" consists of two 90-second celebrity-interview actualities, a two-minute entertainment/comedy routine, and a wrap-around script. Boswell calls "Prime Cuts" "a horse of a different color" and feels that the do-it-yourself package is an innovative step in urban syndication. Some but not all of the comedy routines will be designed as interactives, and most will be exclusive Syndicate It recorded material. Both new shows are offered on a barter basis.

LEE BAILEY Communications is very happily reporting that it took its celebration of King's birthday, "King: From Atlanta To The Mountaintop," to 103 stations in January, clearing 90% of the top 60 black ADI markets. Bailey also reprised last year's 22 90-second "American Radio Newsreel: The Black Experience" vignettes for 1988's Black History Month.

Bailey, too, is in the gospel arena with its Monday (8) bow of "Inside Gospel." After a year's legwork, the former "Gospel Spotlight" is reborn with a sponsor locked in for 26 weeks. The daily five-minute show will cover the world of gospel news, offering artist profiles and looks at contemporary issues in gospel. Bailey's years of experience with the urban music magazine "RadioScope" should show up nicely in the new offering.

And, finally, the young sales rep firm MediaAmerica, New York, has added Lee Bailey Communications as its first black syndicator client. The two firms have inked an agreement that makes MediaAmerica the sole advertising sales representative for Bailey's entire catalog.

Gannett Top 40 Gets Flak For Comments By Dees, Hamilton Two KIIS DJs Stir Up Controversy In L.A.

BY YVONNE OLSON

LOS ANGELES Gannett top 40 KIIS-AM-FM here is getting more than the average share of flak these days because of the controversial behavior of two of its DJs.

On Jan. 6, morning man Rick Dees offended listeners and entertainment circles alike when he called a homeless settlement on Venice Beach, Calif., a "PCP-crazed jungle."

After complaining that he'd like to take a moonlight stroll without stepping on the "scuzzbos," Dees suggested that "we take 'em all and throw them into a huge dumpster and take the dumpster down to the Betty Ford Center. Let's get idiots off the beach."

When the mail began pouring in, Dees attempted to justify his opinions by saying he was critical of drug dealers and their presence among certain segments of society. But that didn't eliminate the backlash.

The Los Angeles Times covered the story on Jan. 31, printing Dees' initial statements and reactions from celebrities. The paper quoted "American Top 40" host Casey Kasem as saying, "Rick could be an articulate spokesman for good instead of perpetuating these unfortunate stereotypes. I think Rick should take the opportunity to actually meet some homeless people, spend a night with them, and see who they really are. He's the No. 1 DJ in town, his opinions are very powerful, and his listeners should have the opportunity to hear what he thinks after he's seen what the situation is really like."

know and what the Times failed to mention is that Dees and his wife, Julie, have been committed to improving the plight of the homeless for some time—since even before his Jan. 6 comments. Assisted by their church, the Dees once sponsored a homeless family of five for a month. Contributions are also made regularly through the Gannett Foundation, a charitable organization founded by KIIS-FM's parent company after the earthquake in Southern California in October. The foundation donated $250,000 in December to the Community Resource Corp., which helps fund shelters for the homeless.

"Being antidrug is a far cry from being antihomesless," says KIIS program director Steve Rivers. "Rick's comments were definitely misunderstood, and it's unfortunate that [the Los Angeles Times] decided to put us in this type of spotlight instead of figuring out what he really said."

KIIS-FM's 6-10 p.m. jock, Hollywood Hamilton, also stirred up some controversy recently. For several weeks, DJ Guy Kemp of KMPC-FM across town had been harassing Hamilton via phone. Friction between the two peaked when Kemp called Hamilton while both were on the air, made some derogatory remarks about Hamilton's show, and said that PD Rivers "has the brains of an eggplant." That sent Hamilton into a frenzy, prompting him to direct numerous profane comments at Kemp, including "I don't talk to faggots" and a promise to kick Kemp's "big white ass," part of which escaped KMPC's tape delay.

When questioned about this incident, Rivers replies, "desperate people do desperate things."

"We didn't initiate the call," he says. "Kemp, a little-known DJ at a very little-known station, had a girl phone our request lines and get in line to talk with Hollywood. When he punched up the call, it turned out to be Kemp, and he had no choice but to talk to him. Admittedly, Hollywood lost his cool, but the real lack of professionalism was on Kemp's part."

Hamilton is not alone in his public disdain for Kemp. Nationally syndicated right-winger Wally George, heard regularly on country station KLAC here, is also sick of Kemp's antics. Calling Kemp "a cancer that must be removed," George has commenced a campaign to get Kemp kicked off the air and out of town.

right, and your success is virtually ensured.

The rewards for a station enterprising and courageous enough to take a bold leap into uncharted waters and program exciting, modern rock music for an audience primed for change would be tremendous. Won't somebody out there take that chance and make "contemporary rock radio"—CRR—the big story of 1988?

Changes In The Wind At Dorton, Emmis; KIIS, KDON In Flaps With Indie Labels

THE BIG NEWS this week is not quite this week's news: Look for WBMX-FM Chicago PD Lee Michaels to make headlines next week in a story pertaining to Dorton Broadcasting, the brand-new owner of WBMX and a few other hotshot urban outlets . . . Emmis, however, may top Michaels in front-page positioning, as we hear more reasons to believe last week's speculation that Emmis is very interested in NBC's remaining outlets (Billboard, Feb. 6). Word is that NBC does have a strong preference for selling out as a group, and if Emmis is the buyer, that would set up the interesting scenario of which New York pair Emmis would keep. The group could pick and choose between its own WQHT/WFAN and NBC's WNBC/WYNY. Again, if Emmis is the group's buyer, that would put it in Chicago with WKQX, Boston with WJIB, and San Francisco with KNBR/KYUU . . . And, the only news from KZZP Phoenix, Ariz., PD and Nationwide regional PD Guy Zapoleon is that he has a bad case of bronchitis. We're hoping to have a happier Zap track next week.

by Kim Freeman

GETTING TESTY ABOUT TESTING: Sutra Records president Art Kass may be the only man in history to send KIIS-AM-FM Los Angeles an urgent telegram saying "DON'T PLAY OUR RECORD." That's what the indie executive did Feb. 3, after KIIS had been playing the Cover Girls' "Because Of You" for a reported eight weeks without ever reporting it to the trades as an add. Kass is reporting this to the trades, claiming a case of discrimination against indies.

Kass isn't the only indie who is hopping mad at a top 40. Larry Lazdran runs Cherry Records in Daly City, Calif., and is having moderate Bay-area success with "MC School" by the RSP (Rock, Shock & Party) Crew. Steam gathered when the song entered KDON Monterey, Calif.'s "Budweiser Hit Wars" nightly music challenge. For six consecutive nights, the rap song beat out Whodini, TKA, Jonathan Butler, Aerosmith, R.E.M., and George Harrison in listener votes. Lazdran says he was promised a 10-night run if "MC School" kept winning. When it beat Harrison on night six, however, the station announced that "MC School" would be retired from the competition and inducted into the "Budweiser Hall Of Fame"—which is not a status necessarily accompanied by airplay. The RSP Crew is from nearby Seaside, Calif., and Lazdran is currently mounting a petition campaign to get the song reinstated in the competition or onto KDON's regular playlist. We wish good luck to both plucky indies!

WE'RE GUILTY of a sin of omission. WMMS Cleveland did win Rolling Stone's readers' poll as station of the year. But so did KSHE St. Louis and KGB-FM San Diego for markets ranked 11-20 and 21-plus, respectively . . . WLUP-AM Chicago afternoon partners Steve Dahl and Garry Meier recently became restaurateurs—of competing eateries. Dahl is part owner of Hat Dance, an upscale Mexican/Japanese place, and Meier is part owner of the just-opened Sabrina's, which has a club feel. The hot spots are located across the street from each other in Chicago's developing River North area. Are they exploiting their celebrity? Our spy heard a recent Dahl & Meier show piped into the restrooms at Sabrina's . . . Doc Morgan returns to KZEW Dallas as evening man after a three-year absence. He had been at Global Satellite Network.

The last we heard of John Lee Walker, he'd been fired from KYNO Fresno, Calif., and had walked across the street to do wake-up service at KBOS "B95." Now, he's found another managerial opportunity in his town of choice, the OM position at classic rocker KCLQ.

SAN FRANCISCO STUFF: Add KHIT here to the list of no-talk top 40s that already includes WLNZ Lansing, Mich. KHIT is the old KKCY San Francisco. Despite the station's previous decision to leave eclectic album rock for nostalgia, the Federal Communications Commission's reluctance to approve its sale moved Olympic president Ivan Braiker to make another format change, stating, "We've nothing to lose."

FCC hesitation is largely due to the fact that proposed buyer Jim Gabbert also owns KOFY-AM & TV in San Francisco. Although national ownership rules are in a state of flux—see Washington Roundup for an update—a citizen's group, the Coalition To Save The City, has heavily lobbied the FCC, trying to prevent Gabbert's acquisition of the station.

So, while Gabbert is still contracted, the station is in a state of limbo. Says Braiker, "As long as we still have it, we want to serve the community as best we can. Research uncovered a good-sized opportunity for a youth-oriented, straight-ahead top 40. KMEL leans urban, KITS has its own direction, and no one's playing mass-appeal music for teens. We're definitely about to experience a second baby boom, and I think we all better start paying attention to this age group." (KJJO Minneapolis PD Scott Klohn has successfully done just that: See PD of the week, page 17.) KHIT has even established its own Teen Advisory Council to help hit its neglected target.

It certainly doesn't sound like a station about to be sold, does it? Station insiders say Olympic retains high hopes that the sale will go through, which is why no personalities have been hired thus far. But it hasn't yet decided whether KHIT will be put on the block again if the deal dies.

If Steve Feinstein, PD of "hip AC" KKSF San Francisco, runs a classified ad for the morning personality he now wants, it will cost a fortune. Space confines us to the following Feinstein requisites: "Musical sensitivity of an album rock background, topicality and poise of an AC jock, and the intelligence and topicality of a news/talk background." Send tapes and a letter to Feinstein, but no calls. The very fact that he's looking to promote more than music in the mornings is a good example of how these jazz/new age/quality rock stations may begin to push their individuality in the near future . . . Meanwhile, the New Age Music Assn. was born last week. See Inside Track for the poop.

We can't wait to get to Frisco for the Gavin Seminar next week. Word is that KITS "Live 105" will provide attendees with another in-hotel live broadcast of morning man Alex Bennett's show on Saturday (12).

PD SPIN: It's official: Bob Mitchell is named PD at top 40 WPGC Washington, D.C. . . . Mike Colby is now programming top 40 WZOU Boston . . . KIVA Albuquerque, N.M., loses Peter Stewart as he opts for the PD slot at top 40 KZOU Little Rock, Ark. . . . John Wetherby takes the programming reins at gold/AC WFYR Chicago . . . And Ken Carson returns to program Reno, Nev., top 40 outlet KHTZ. He was last seen as PD of rocker WHJY Providence, R.I.

KMPC-FM Los Angeles, formerly the flagship station for Transtar's Niche 29 format, is now only using the service in overnights. The rest of its day hits a lot of new music and includes roughly nine currents per hour. "Everything from INXS to Depeche Mode to Huey Lewis," says KMPC PD Sam Bellamy. "We differ from KROQ because we're not too hip to play Foreigner and Bruce Springsteen alongside Gene Loves Jezebel and the Bodeans. This is full-service rock'n'roll, and if it fits the genre, we'll play it." Fewer oldies will distinguish KMPC from classics KLSX and mainstream KLOS, but Bellamy says she's hot for their listeners . . . KNBQ Seattle/Tacoma relinquishes its last-place position in the market's three-way top 40 race in favor of oldies and the WBSG calls.

Assistance in preparing this column was provided by Yvonne Olson in Los Angeles.

BY MOIRA MCCORMICK

WHEN Minneapolis/St. Paul classic oldies station KJJO-FM switched to a predominantly hard rock format one year ago under new PD Scott Klohn, it was evident that a void in Twin Cities radio had been filled.

The new KJJO-AM-FM, billing itself as "Hot Rockin' 104," has established itself as tops among teens and 18-24-year-olds, while pulling 9.7 and 2.5 shares in 18-34 and 25-54 demos, respectively. Contrasted to major rock competitor KQRS-FM, whose respective numbers in those latter categories are 20.3 and 11.0, it's obvious that KJJO is strongest with a young audience—and youngsters aren't considered the most desirable demographic these days.

The 30-year-old Klohn, a native of St. Paul, points to KQRS—where he spent four years as an air personality himself—as a living example of that philosophy. "They did a good job of taking their audience and growing up with it," he says of KQRS, which tends to feature more mainstream artists than KJJO.

In addition, being No. 1 with teens has its own financial advantages, Klohn says. "We've been getting bigger buys than ever since the last book," he observes. "When you're No. 1 in this group, you get all the major youth buys." Klohn says KJJO's advertising revenues are expected to get an even heftier shot in the arm with the new GM John Rohm, former sales manager at KQRS. "He's aggressive and youth-oriented," says Klohn, "and in the two and a half years he was at KQRS, sales went from $2.5-$7 million."

KJJO'S RATINGS as a classic oldies station had been the same for quite a while when he came on board, says Klohn, and inertia was especially noticeable when other outlets added classic cuts successfully. Before long, then-manager Scott Meier, feeling a change was in order, "knew I was a 'rock dog,'" in Klohn's words, "and decided that we'd be the underdog and go for a heavy rock format. My own taste in music runs to Aerosmith, Motley Crue, AC/DC—not really heavy metal, but heavy rock. I put together the format myself with no research, no music consultant." (The station is, now in fact in the process of setting up its own in-house, call-out research department.)

Drawing on his experience at KQRS

Scott Klohn PD of "Hot Rockin' 104-FM"

and his own musical instincts, Klohn hammered out a customized format which gets heavier as the day progresses. Daytime sees a preponderance of artists like Bryan Adams, Tom Petty, U2, Pink Floyd, and Yes mixed with such new music acts as Love & Rockets and Gene Loves Jezebel—"but flavored with some cuts of hard rockin' music. Then at night, it's a heavy metal flavor—we unleash the chains and let loose." Guns N' Roses, Dokken, Tesla, Great White, MSG, and other metal artists dominate the station's airwaves after 3 p.m. "After 7 p.m. anything goes," says Klohn. "We've broken a number of records both in this market and nationally, like White Lion's cut 'Wait.' We were the first to program the new Triumph and Aerosmith."

The station's air staff remained virtually unchanged after the format shift, Klohn says. "Everybody stayed in place, 'cause it's a young, energetic staff which is excited about what we're doing." Assistant PD/MD Michael Cross is on from 6 to 10 p.m.; Klohn says Cross "has a tremendous influence on the radio station, listening to records, putting together the playlist—and he's got a hot rockin' voice."

According to Klohn, KJJO helps cement its image as "the Twin Cities Rocker" with its frequent sponsorship of major concerts. "Our secrets," says Klohn, "have been breaking records first and being involved in concerts, by giving away tickets and passes."

The station has also made a name for itself with its Concert Adventure series in which KJJO sends listeners around the world to see concerts. "Last year, one trip involved riding with Phil Collins in the Concorde to a Genesis show in Paris; we also sent listeners to the Texas Jam and the Castle Donington Festival in England. This year, we're looking at Pink Floyd in Japan; maybe AC/DC and Rush," says Klohn.

Other regular station promotions include a $104 bumper-sticker campaign and involvement in movie premieres. "We're also broadcasting live this year for the first time from the St. Paul Winter Carnival Fun Fair in early February," says Klohn, who gives a huge nod of appreciation to promotions director Jane Dyson.

Clearly, the station is thriving, and Klohn plans to continue its growth process with the format maturation he referred to earlier. "We hope to get stronger in the 18-34 bracket in the coming year," he says, "via special day-parting and through the development of our own research department here." Research, he notes, will not hinder him from adding cuts he feels are right for the format; but, instead, will be used in rotation decisions.

Oldfield Top Priority At Virgin

BY STEVEN DUPLER

NEW YORK Mike Oldfield, the first artist ever to sign with Virgin Records, has not had a major U.S. presence since 1974. But with the Jan. 26 release of his new studio album, "Islands," the English composer/arranger/producer/multi-instrumentalist suddenly has become Virgin America's top priority.

"Magic Touch," the album's first single, hit album rock stations about three weeks ago and is currently on the playlists of about 150 outlets. The single, featuring GTR front man Max Bacon on lead vocals, is also being supported by a video, added two weeks ago by MTV and Hit Video USA.

On Feb. 15, Virgin will start working the single at top 40 stations, and according to Paul Brown, associate director of album promotion for Virgin, "We're really after this one."

That commitment should please Oldfield, who notes, "In the U.S., it's not been the audiences that have been the problem; it's been the lack of support on the part of the record company, which has never really had a strong presence in America."

Oldfield's debut, "Tubular Bells," has sold 8 million copies worldwide since its release in 1974. An instrumental single of the title track enjoyed strong radio play and sales in the U.S. in the early '70s as well, coinciding with its use in the 1974 film "The Exorcist." Since then, Oldfield has virtually disappeared from U.S. airwaves.

This time, Brown says, the label has mapped out a three-tiered radio assault: "We've developed different strategies for this album at album rock stations, top 40, and what we call 'alternative adult contemporary,' which would encompass things like the Wave, new horizons, and other contemporary acoustic instrumental-type stations," he says.

Brown says a good part of his promotional efforts has been devoted to educating, or in some cases re-educating, programmers as to "what Mike has done since 'Tubular Bells.'"

As part of this effort, Virgin has serviced album rock and new age programmers with the album, a special 12-inch containing four different edits of an instrumental track titled "Wind Chimes," and a compact disk compilation featuring selections from Oldfield's work over the past 15 years.

"People don't realize that this is the guy who wrote the score to 'The Killing Fields' and who wrote 'Family Man' [later made a top 10 hit by Hall & Oates]," says Brown. "He's also had quite a few top 10 and No. 1 hits in Europe, and we want to let them hear some of this on the CD sampler."

Oldfield himself is characteristically low-key when speaking about the album. "I'm just continuing what I've been doing on the past couple of albums, which is to put an instrumental piece on one side and then explore songwriting on the other."

Did he write the songs on "Islands" with commercial success in mind? "I love writing songs—it's a different side of me," he says. "Perhaps this record is an attempt to be a little more commercial than in the past, but that's all right."

ONE TO ONE

Soviet rock star Boris Grebenshikov talks about music in the U.S. and Russia

One of Russia's premier rock artists, Boris Grebenshikov, leader of the group Aquarium, is planning to record an album in the U.S. Under the auspices of Belka International (a New York-based company facilitating U.S. and Soviet business contact), Grebenshikov recently spent three weeks in the U.S. meeting with various major label presidents and recording artists to lay the groundwork for a return trip in the spring. During his New York City stay, the Soviet artist granted his only interview with a U.S. journalist to Billboard correspondent Jim Bessman.

Q: What are your impressions of America?

A: My impressions concern the human factor. I knew all the facts and figures about America, but even so, I knew my picture was incomplete. Back home I was unable to imagine that everything here is so real, so beautiful, so normal, and I found that Americans are so much more friendly and open-minded than I expected. They showed a genuine human interest in me and my work, and they were very kind.

Q: What were your original feelings toward the U.S.?

A: I've always treated America as a source of very powerful music, never as an antagonist, and it seemed to me that a lot of people I met here treated this paranoia thing between us the same as me. In fact, my impetus for being a musician came from Voice of America when I first heard the Beatles. I understood everything then.

Q: Who are some of the other English-speaking rock artists you like?

A: R.E.M. and Paul Simon are the best of the top 100. U2 is good and Dire Straits' first album—then they became too professional. But in Russia I listened to everyone, from Elvis Presley to the Beatles, Led Zeppelin, T. Rex—all the '60s and '70s artists.

Q: Have you been able to listen to anything during your stay here?

A: I heard a lot of radio and saw a lot of MTV, and everywhere I was surrounded by the sound of rock-'n'-roll, which made me feel quite at home. But I was kind of surprised by MTV, which I somehow found much less interesting than it could have been. I was annoyed by the fact that heavy bands like Whitesnake, punk bands like the Alarm, and progressive rockers like Yes all tend to sound the same as each other and use the same visual images of half-naked girls running around and trying to get to the band. It seems like they use their own art to sell themselves, the product. To me that's ridiculous, pathological. How on earth can you use art when it's supposed to use you as its tool?

Q: What is rock like in Russia?

A: In Russia, people listen to music with more variety. But our rock-'n'-roll in Russia is only beginning to happen on a large scale. There isn't much going on right now, but the potential is there. I just hope that me coming over here will help people realize the potential and take it more seriously. If my [U.S. album] is successful, it can open a lot of possibilities for people in Russia and help people in America open their ideas to my country.

Q: Did you get a chance to meet with any musicians while you were here?

A: I met David Bowie, Iggy Pop, Debbie Harry, and Chris Stein in New York. And in Los Angeles, Dave Stewart played guitar when I rerecorded "Ashes," an Aquarium song. I couldn't imagine how charming and human and normal, to use that word again, they can be.

Q: How were your meetings with the U.S. record labels?

A: I met with the presidents of five companies, and they were very interested and prepared to think about a record project. They don't care who you are as long as you have something interesting as a sound. But they're concerned that there are one or two songs in English that are understandable to the American audience. I expect the album to be 30%-40% Russian. In Russia, you don't need to sing in Russian to have a hit, unlike in the States, where to become popular you have to sing in English. That's exactly the thing I'm trying to change.

Q: What are your current plans?

A: I'm going back and trying to think things over and play with ideas that may come to my head, and when there's enough musical ideas for songs, I'll come back and try to co-write with some American musicians whom I trust. I don't know who they will be. Maybe David Bowie, for example, because he seemed interested and I'm interested and have been into him for a long time—for 10 years. But I have pretty strong ideas for what a song should be.

Q: Such as?

A: A song should be more about feelings than ideas. And it should have some of the unpredictability of the music of the '60s. There doesn't seem to be much of that anymore here.

'My songs are about feelings more than ideas'

Two New Features For Talent Section

This week the Talent section is again expanding its coverage, this time by bringing back two old Billboard favorites. New On The Charts (below) provides a capsule profile of an up-and-coming act making its first appearance on the Billboard charts. Talent In Action (page 22) takes a critical look at the live-performance scene with reviews of key tours and new acts.

These features, along with our 'One To One' interviews, Artist Development briefs, Boxscore listings, Steve Gett's weekly Beat column, and in-depth artist profiles, give Billboard's readers complete coverage of talent and touring.

ARTIST DEVELOPMENTS

CARS CRASH

The Cars have called it a day. After disappointing sales of their 1987 album, "Door To Door"—along with a tour that saw the group playing to many half-filled halls—the five band members are now set to pursue solo careers.

"We have no plans to work together," keyboardist Greg Hawkes told Boston Globe writer Steve Morse. "I don't know legally or logistically how to put it. There is still a legal entity called the Cars. I'm not sure how Elektra is perceiving it, but the gist of it is we have no plans to work together."

A spokeswoman for Elektra confirms the split, although she says that no official statement is being issued.

The Cars enjoyed quadruple-platinum success with their 1978 eponymous debut album and sold 5 million copies of their fifth album, "Heartbeat City."

ADDICTED TO EMI

Robert Palmer has signed an exclusive, long-term contract with EMI Music Worldwide. The announcement was made Feb. 1 in a joint statement issued by Rupert Perry, managing director of EMI Records (U.K.), and Sal Licata, chief executive officer of EMI-Manhattan Records (U.S.).

Palmer, who scored the biggest hit of his career with his last album for Island, "Riptide," is completing a new album in Milan, Italy, scheduled for worldwide release through EMI in May.

SEÑOR STING

A&M has scheduled for Feb. 16 the release of a six-song EP by Sting, featuring Spanish- and Portuguese-language versions of material from his latest album, "... Nothing Like The Sun."

The EP, titled "Nada Como El Sol—Selecciones Especiales En Español Y Portugues," will list for $5.98 in its vinyl and cassette configurations; the compact disk is expected to sell for less than $10.

NEW ON THE CHART

SCARLETT & BLACK, the British duo of Robin Hild and Sue West, is making its first showing on the Hot 100 Singles chart with "You Don't Know," the lead-off single from its eponymous Virgin debut album. The song is also featured on the Virgin soundtrack to the movie "Hiding Out."

Hild and West first began collaborating in 1983. Singer/songwriter West had been a backing vocalist for British band Doctor & the Medics. Keyboard/vocalist/songwriter Hild also has a Medical background: He had recorded some of the group's early demos in his studio.

For their debut album, West and Hild hooked up with session keyboardist Paul Fox as producer. On the album, they are accompanied by studio veterans like Dann Huff (guitar), John Pierce (bass),

Craig Krampf (drums), and Mark Isham (trumpet). Yes' Chris Squire makes a guest appearance on the track "Let Yourself Go"—which will probably be released as the follow-up to "You Don't Know"—and ex-Go-Go Jane Wiedlin also appears as a guest vocalist. STEVE GETT

Shep Pettibone Attracts Star Clientele

Remixer Breathes New Life Into Hits

BY BILL COLEMAN

NEW YORK Who have Madonna, George Michael, Janet Jackson, and David Bowie called to have their hits remixed? Shep Pettibone, that's who. With a decade in the music business and some 500 remixes to his credit, the 28-year-old New Yorker's skills are constantly in demand.

The multiformat popularity of dance music and its acceptance at radio have made Pettibone's alternate versions and lengths of current hit songs a welcome necessity, he says. "I attempt to achieve the best-possible marriage of a 12-inch that's danceable, easy to mix, and, at the same time, suitable for consumers to play at home," says Pettibone, who believes in creating depth and dynamics in his mixes, which he describes as having a "clean sound."

What most may not realize, however, is that in most cases Pettibone is not only remixing a record, he is reproducing or adding additional production to the original tracks. "Sometimes the only existing track that will remain on the tape will be the vocals," he says. Incorporating new drum patterns, bass lines, or additional instruments are not uncommon in a remix.

When a dramatic change is made in original material, its producer's vision may differ from Pettibone's. But, he says, "Most producers enjoy what I do. Both Steve Bray and Narada Michael Walden have expressed to me how much they enjoy listening to the songs that they have produced made different. They have asked me to work exclusively on their records, which I find to be a nice compliment, coming from two producers I respect and admire."

In a field where, at the moment, only a handful of remixer get projects of name artists, Pettibone says he doesn't "think that record companies are taking chances on new people to do remixes as they were at one time." Some may recall Pettibone's early start at New York's FM urban stations WKTU, WBLS, and later WRKS, where he was commissioned to remix current-hit selections especially for them. With WRKS in 1981, a select number of Pettibone's "mastermixes" were compiled into the albums "98.7 Kiss Mastermix Collection" Vols. 1 & 2.

Pettibone is offered between six and 10 projects a week. However, during the past year, he has had to cut his schedule from handling three or four remixes a week to two and occasionally only one. "It was getting to the point where I was working 20 hours a day and sleeping four," he says.

In terms of selecting material to work on, Pettibone says, "I try to choose records that are interesting and that are going to keep my interest level up. So I don't accept everything, and I basically just pick the ones I know I'll have a good time doing."

W. Alexander Agency Closes Doors In Chicago

CHICAGO The local office of Willard Alexander Inc., the last major talent agency to maintain a Chicago presence, shut its doors Jan. 15 after 35 years of business. According to agent Andy Kaufman of Willard Alexander's home office in New York, where the company was founded 45 years ago, reason for the closure was logistical rather than financial.

"The Chicago office was making money," says Kaufman. "The problem was that we no longer wanted the New York and Chicago agents [who split up the bookings of Willard Alexander's sizable roster of big band acts] to be a thousand miles apart. We needed to coordinate the activities of the big band department."

"We were extremely profitable," says Bob Birk, who with fellow agent and office chief Bill Monot primarily booked bands out of the Chicago office. A third agent, Larry Musich, was laid off a short time ago, Birk says.

Willard Alexander's 50 exclusive acts include the Glenn Miller, Tommy Dorsey, Count Basie, and Nelson Riddle orchestras. Additionally, the agency books such contemporary artists Alice Cooper and Motorhead, and at one time booked the Beastie Boys. The company, which also represents 50 nonexclusive acts, handles contemporary bookings from its New York and Los Angeles offices.

U.K.'s Johnny Hates Jazz: A U.S. Love Story?

HOT STUFF: Be on the lookout for "Turn Back The Clock," the highly auspicious Virgin debut album from new British trio Johnny Hates Jazz, which recently rocketed to No. 1 on the U.K. charts. The album is not being released here until the beginning of March, but The Beat has acquired an import-compact-disk copy and can't stop playing the damn thing!

The 10-track album boasts an abundance of very commercial cuts—excellent Brit pop fare. Highlights include "Shattered Dreams," "I Don't Want To Be A Hero," and the destined-to-be-a-huge-smash ballad "Turn Back The Clock."

The Johnny Hates Jazz lineup comprises vocalist Clark Datchler and instrumentalists Mike Nocito and Calvin Hayes, who produced the album. The group is represented by Tears For Fears' manager, Paul King.

According to Virgin promo chief Phil Quartararo, who is ultraenthusiastic about the project, the first U.S. single from the Johnny Hates Jazz album will be "Shattered Dreams," due out Feb. 29.

HEAVY DUTY: It was nice to hear Geffen a&r chief John David Kalodner raving about an act on another label—PolyGram heavy rockers Kingdom Come—in last week's column. Meanwhile, Kalodner also looks to have a potential winner on his hands with Blue Murder, the new band formed by former Thin Lizzy and Whitesnake guitarist John Sykes.

Sykes, who co-wrote much of the material and supplied excellent lead breaks on the top-selling "Whitesnake" album, is unquestionably one of the hottest guitar players to have emerged on the scene in recent years. For his new outfit, he has enlisted veteran rock drummer Carmine Appice and bassist Tony Franklin, formerly of the Firm.

As the search continues for the right lead vocalist, Blue Murder has started work on its Geffen debut album in Vancouver, British Columbia, with Bob Rock at the production helm. Don't be surprised if this project turns out to be another winner from Kalodner.

SHORT TAKES I: The late John Lennon is the subject of a movie documentary, "Imagine: John Lennon," scheduled to hit the big screen this summer. The Warner Bros. film is produced, directed, and co-written by Andrew Solt, who had access to more than 200 hours of footage, stills, and unpublished music from Lennon and Yoko Ono's personal collection . . . MCA exec Larry Solters wasn't kidding when he said Tiffany would be touring English shopping malls. Word from across the Atlantic is that the teen sensation recently made three hugely successful appearances at malls in London, Newcastle, and Birmingham . . . Debbie Harry is reportedly recording a new album with veteran producer Mike Chapman, with whom she collaborated back in her Blondie days . . . Billy Idol's "Vital Idol" album is the first package of dance remixes to be certified platinum . . . New British band the Cross, featuring Queen drummer/vocalist Roger Taylor, has just released its Virgin debut album, "Shove It," in the U.K. The group will be supporting the album with a series of British club and college dates starting Feb. 20.

SONGS REMAIN: Robert Plant will definitely be playing Led Zepelin material when he hits the road in support of his upcoming Atlantic album, "Now And Zen." During his first two solo tours, the vocalist was adamant that he would not sing any of the old tunes, but now he says, "It's time to eat some of my words."

During a recent low-key British club date with his new band, Plant performed Zeppelin nuggets like "Rock & Roll," "The Lemon Song," and "Trampled Underfoot."

Additionally, Plant has drawn from his past—in a somewhat tongue-in-cheek fashion—by sampling a number of Zeppelin riffs on "Tall Cool One," a track from his new album. As he told one Brit reporter, "Zeppelin samples have been used quite frequently in the last two or three years. I just think that if Rick Rubin can do it rather poorly and quite obviously wagon since Jan. 1.

Also, Plant's new U.S. single, "Heaven Knows," definitely warrants two thumbs up.

MOVIE SCORE: Elvis Costello has written music for the soundtrack to the film "The Courier," which stars his wife, ex-Pogues bassist Cait O'Riordan. Costello, working under his real name, Declan MacManus, delivered a selection of instrumental pieces.

In addition to Costello's contribution, the soundtrack—due out Monday (8) in the U.K.—features the U2 song "Walk To The Water" (previously available only as the B side of "With Or Without You") and cuts by young Irish bands Something Happens!, Aslan, and Cry Before Dawn.

"The Courier," set in Dublin's drug underworld, opens in London on Feb. 19. No word as yet on when the movie or the soundtrack will emerge in the U.S.

SHORT TAKES II: Still can't stop playing Joni Mitchell's "My Secret Place," her wonderful duet with Peter Gabriel, the leadoff cut from her upcoming Geffen album . . . Chuck Berry is off to Britain to promote his autobiography and to play a couple of live dates. He'll be appearing at London's Hammersmith Odeon on Friday (12) and at Glasgow Apollo on Saturday (13). Coinciding with the trip is the opening of the Berry movie "Hail! Hail! Rock 'N' Roll" in Brit movie houses . . . Ex-Frankie Goes To Hollywood lead singer Holly Johnson has been appearing in the London High Court, trying to free himself from a ZTT Records-requested injunction that has been preventing him from working. Meanwhile, Johnson has been preparing material for a solo album, which he hopes to record later this year.

and seriously, by the sound of it, like some American jackdaw, then I might as well do it myself."

According to Plant, Jimmy Page initially had no idea that Plant was sampling some of his classic guitar riffs. What was Page's reaction when he found out? "He just raised an eyebrow and looked quizzically at me," says Plant.

At press time, Plant was gearing up for a warm-up date on Feb. 3 at London's legendary Marquee club, where he appeared almost two years ago with a band called the New Yardbirds. The ex-Zepelin front man is set to kick off a monthlong U.K. tour March 16 in Newport, Wales.

Incidentally, Plant appears to be on something of a health kick these days. He quit smoking six months ago and has been on the

TALENT IN ACTION

East Rutherford, N.J.

WHITESNAKE OBVIOUSLY believes that more than 7 million albums sold worldwide says it all. So for the Snake, Rattle, & Roll tour, the band has decided to let the music do the talking. On its first headlining trek across North America, Whitesnake is not employing standard hard rock special effects in its concert presentation. There's no excessive smoke or lasers, no flying contraptions or robots moving across the stage.

Instead, the show is 90 minutes of the melodic pop metal that has "Whitesnake" firmly entrenched at the top of the Billboard Top Pop Albums chart 10 months after its release. Additional stage space seems to be the only change from the band's opening stint on Motley Crue's 1987 tour, but judging from the enthusiastic crowd here, the music is more than enough.

At the Byrne Arena date—a sell-out on Super Bowl Sunday—lead singer David Coverdale's stage presence dominated the action. He yielded the spotlight only for the requisite drum solo by Tommy Aldridge and a guitar duel between Vivian Campbell and Adrian Vandenberg.

Whitesnake's top 40 love ballads highlighted the show, and the band didn't keep the fans dangling until the encore for their appearance. "Here I Go Again" and "Is This Love" arrived early, spawning a sea of upraised cigarette lighter flames throughout the arena.

Past blasts "Slide It In" and "Guilty Of Love" may have been a little less familiar to the young audience, but the applause was cranked up for the whumping "Crying In The Rain" and the Led Zepplinesque "Still Of The Night," the regular show closers. The performance was capped with a tasty encore featuring ZZ Top's "Tush," a winking nod to Whitesnake's sexually charged image.

BRUCE HARING

THE CONNELLS

Club Lingerie,
Hollywood, Calif.

A YOUNG, POSTCOLLEGIATE crowd gave TVT Records act the Connells a warm welcome at the quintet's crowded L.A. debut show here Jan. 30, where it was co-billed with fellow alternative-market faves the Reivers and Divine Weeks. Ultimately, however, the Connells' tedious set showed the limitations faced by a so-called college band.

The Raleigh, N.C.-based group has a moody yet hard-rocking sound that is kicked along vigorously by the interplay of George Huntley and Michael Connell's twin Rickenbacker guitars. Vocalist Doug MacMillan is a capable, albeit somewhat studied and remote, front man, and the rhythm section of bassist David Connell and drummer Peele Wimberly propels a set robustly.

However, like many other Southeastern and East Coast groups, the band takes its sonic cue from R.E.M. and treads rhythmic and compositional terrain that has already been well plowed by a host of others. The spark of originality so crucial to attracting widespread attention is sorely missing.

The group essayed some offbeat covers in its encore—Bon Jovi's "Wanted Dead Or Alive," Ringo Starr's "Photograph," and Rod Stewart's "You Wear It Well." Sadly, these odd selections proved more memorable than the Connells' originals, which blended into a diffuse welter long before set's end. If this group wants to attract an audience beyond the college-aged faithful, some woodshedding would appear to be in order.

CHRIS MORRIS

Drums, New York

BILLED AS RUSSIA'S top rock'n'roll band, Avtograf (spelled so as not to conflict with RCA's Autograph) can hardly be musically groundbreaking to U.S. ears—especially coming out of a society that is only now openly embracing Western rock forms. But taken for what it is, Avtograf's rock really isn't so bad.

At this Jan. 26 gig (Avtograf's second U.S. date), the group offered bright-sounding hard pop songs, formulaic by domestic standards, but at the same time suitable for the average playlist. Lead vocalist Arthur Berkut sang in the high, confident metallic style of the Scorpions' Klaus Meine, while the rest of the quintet played capably behind.

The show, which included several songs in English, was best when it stayed pop-iest. Harder rock turns, led by Alexander Sitkovetskiy's lead guitar breaks, were less effective. The one unusual touch came when the conservatory-trained bassist brought out a bassoon to perform opposite Berkut.

Most of the songs were peace themed, including the closer, the glasnost anthem "The World Inside," on which Berkut was joined by American songstress (and opening act) Meri D. They made a nice couple, and earned Avtograf genuine applause.

Gospel LECTERN

by Bob Darden

SHE'S ONE OF THOSE PERFORMERS who go by—and only need—a single name: in her case, Dana. At least, that's the way it is in England, Ireland, and most of Europe. Since 1970, when she won the Eurovision contest representing Ireland with a song titled "All Kinds Of Everything," the tiny Londonderry native has been a favorite overseas.

That fame hasn't quite spread to these U.S. shores, despite a couple of sweet-spirited albums for Word Records a couple of years back.

Fortunately for fans on both sides of the Atlantic, Dana is back recording again, this time for the Boston-based Krystal label—which is doubtless one of only a handful of record companies run by an order of nuns, the Daughters of Saint Paul.

She has just finished up another stint in one of Great Britain's famed musical pantomimes, "Snow White And The Seven Dwarfs," which enjoyed an extended run at the Hippodrome in Bristol. Dana says she's glad to have another chance to record in the U.S. and owes the opportunity in part to—of all people—Pope John Paul II.

"After Word was sold [to ABC/Cap Cities in 1986], it seemed like there was a change in internal policy about projects like mine, and our partnership came to an end," Dana says.

"But then in March of 1987 I was singing at a conference in New Orleans when a couple of things happened. First, I was invited by Cardinal Bernard Law to sing in Boston for their Palm Sunday celebration. Secondly, I was invited to sing for the Holy Father at a youth rally where he was to appear in New Orleans for 80,000 young people."

It was after the Boston concert that Dana, a devout Roman Catholic, was approached by a representative of the Daughters of Saint Paul. The order was founded in Italy in 1915 "to bring souls to God using modern media." Founder the Rev. James Alberione's vision of using the media as an evangelical tool includes a publishing arm, film and video divisions, audiotape, and, now, sound recording.

"The sisters saw me in concert, and it was the first time they'd heard contemporary Christian music in the cathedral in Boston," Dana says. "I sang with John Michael Talbot and Dan & Cherry O'Neil [Dan is head of the Mercy Corps International and Cherry is Pat Boone's daughter].

"After our evening of song and testimony, the young people went simply bananas. The nuns invited us to their convent and we went, expecting a quaint little operation. But it was very impressive—highly professional in every respect, especially the 24-track computerized recording and video studio!"

Dana says the sisters had felt the Lord calling them to present music that reflected Christ and had built the studio on faith but had rarely used it. Krystal Records came out of Dana's meeting with the nuns. The name is taken from the order's motto, "Just as a crystal reflects the Light."

"Things come about very quickly when the Lord is directly involved," Dana says with a laugh. "My first release on Krystal was tied in with my performance in New Orleans for the Holy Father in September. It was titled 'Totus Tuus' [the title was inspired by Pope John Paul's motto 'totally yours'—meaning completely dedicated to God] and included songs from my Word albums. We also included one new song, 'Lady Of Knock,' about a particularly holy Irish place of pilgrimage."

Jazz BLUE NOTES

by Peter Keepnews

FEW PEOPLE WOULD ARGUE that New York deserves to be called the jazz capital of the world. But for a quarter of a century, New York was the only city in the country (and apparently the world) that legally restricted both the number and the type of instruments that could be played in small nightclubs, bars, and restaurants.

As detailed elsewhere in this issue, the appropriately named acting New York State Supreme Court Justice David B. Saxe has thrown out that provision of the city's cabaret law that limits unlicensed nightclubs to no more than three musicians at a time on the bandstand. His ruling came a little more than a year after the City Council finally got around to eliminating an even sillier provision of the law—the one that said unlicensed clubs could feature keyboard or string instruments but not reeds, brass, or percussion.

The provisions weren't specifically aimed at jazz venues or jazz musicians, but that's where most of the damage was done, and it's jazz musicians who were in the vanguard of the fight to get them thrown out. The lawsuit that led to Saxe's ruling was filed by three jazz artists, along with Local 802 of the American Federation of Musicians.

Trumpeter Mark Morganelli, one of the plaintiffs, was understandably overjoyed by the ruling. "I'll be shopping my wares around a wider market," he said a few days after the decision. "I'm already trying to secure a weekend gig at the Angry Squire, which is where I used to play." The Angry Squire, one of the better-known unlicensed New York jazz rooms, featured quartets and quintets until the city began cracking down on cabaret-law violators a few years ago. Morganelli said he had played there twice in the past year, "once legally and once illegally."

"This should inspire a lot more rooms to book jazz," the trumpeter added, "because it eliminates any worry that they might possibly get busted for not complying with the law. Now they won't have the excuse of saying, 'We can't use x amount of instruments, so we can't have jazz.'"

It doesn't seem quite right to predict that the elimination of the three-musician limit will lead to a jazz renaissance in New York. After all, the live jazz scene hasn't exactly been moribund recently, so any improvement would be less a question of a dead situation suddenly coming to life than of a good situation getting better. Besides, the ruling doesn't necessarily mean that hundreds and hundreds of venues will now throw their doors open to jazz, or that rooms that have been booking duos and trios will suddenly start bringing in big bands.

But the ruling is certain to create a climate that's more receptive to jazz—and receptive to more variety—than it has been in years. So even though the realities of the marketplace will continue to dictate just how much more live jazz the city can accommodate, and logistics will continue to pose their own restrictions on group size, things are clearly on the upswing in the jazz capital of the world as a result of Saxe's enlightened decision.

WQHT N.Y. Mixes Hits For New Television Show

DANCING BAREFOOT: On the heels of cable television's foray into the dance market with "Club MTV," one of the nation's hottest crossover stations, New York's own WQHT-FM "Hot 103," is contributing custom dance mixes to the new television series "ID" (which stands for "It's Dance"). The Saturday afternoon program debuted Jan. 30 on WWOR-TV. Geared toward a young audience, the combination talk/video show is hosted by Tony Award winner Hinton Battle and features crossover dance music that appeals to the pop/r&b and Latin audiences. "We're pleased to introduce 'It's Dance' in our Saturday afternoon lineup," says WWOR vice president and station manager Jane Hartley. "We think 'ID' brings a new dimension to the traditional dance-show format, providing a showcase for the positive exchange of ideas, attitudes, and trends of our tristate-area youth." For more information, contact 213-659-4141.

DOWN ON THE CORNER: Couldn't get enough of noteworthy compilations in our last issue, so here's more. Just out is "Best Of House Music" (Profile, 212-529-2600), and it has something for everyone. The two-record collection offers 12 of the most popular house and underground club tracks by various artists and labels. These songs deliver clear instructions on how to "jack, work, and move" your or someone else's body. Record one's "Diva" and "Sleaze" sides include classics by Ralphie Rosario & Xavier Gold, Liz Torres, Pleasure Pump, and Jeanne Harris; record two features selections from Marshall Jefferson, J.M. Silk, Moonfou, and 2 Puerto Ricans, A Blackman And A Dominican on its "Jack 'Till You Drop" and "Jack Of All Nations" sides. Compiled by Brian Chin, this collection has captured some of our most exciting house moments of the last year and a half and placed them on vinyl; a more than worthy investment.

ONE WAY OR ANOTHER: "Stacey who?" is what the reaction will be to "Don't Make A Fool Of Yourself" (Atlantic) from Stacey Q; unlike anything she's released before, this r&b-groove-laden (almost M.F.S.B.-inspired) track will surprise most in its postproduction and mix by Shep Pettibone, with edits by Pettibone and Tuta Aquino... Kane Gang's brilliant cover of Dennis Edwards & Siedah Garrett's soul/pop duet "Don't Look Any Further" (Capitol) should find its way onto many a turntable by virtue of its thorough Francois Kevorkian and Alan Gregorie remixes or the Mantronik "b-boy" overhaul; potential smash... The Boss may be surprised when and if he hears Natalie Cole's interpretation of his "Pink Cadillac" (EMI-Manhattan), which has been taken to the garage (so to speak) in its "house" remixes, courtesy of David Cole and Robert Clivilles; she sounds great... Taylor Dayne follows her recent smash with a similarly styled technonumber and hook in four mixes, "Prove Your Love" (Arista)... Latest from the PWL camp is "No Fool (For Love)" (Capitol) from Hazell Dean; polished, uncharacteristic midtempo technotrack with a hi-NRG delivery and feel was mixed by Phil Harding... Georgio tries for his fourth top 10 hit with "Bedrock" (Motown), which has a very pop-sounding and rather average house-style restructuring—yabba dabba doo.

SUBTERRANEAN HOMESICK blues: Imports of the week include ultimixers Coldcut's house offering "Doctorin' The House" (Ahead Of Our Life), which is proof that it has gone sample crazy... Cookie Crew has scored a pop hit in the U.K. with a remix of "Rok Da House" (Rhythm King)... Meat Beat Manifesto's techno thrash "Suck Hard" (Sweatbox) has also received a beneficial remix treatment... Innovative and for laughs is the anti-Osmond and beat-heavy "Crucifixion Of Donny—Love Puppy" (Red Rhino/Cartel) by Coco, Steel, & Lovebomb.

RIDERS ON THE STORM: The Miami-based trio Exposé has just completed 30- and 60-second commercial spots for Coca-Cola... Junior's classic "Mama Used To Say" is being remixed by Dave Ogrin for compact disk release; don't miss the talented U.K. artist's production of new r&b Epic act Paul Johnson... Expect a new album from Ziggy Marley, produced by resident Heads Chris Frantz and Tina Weymouth and featuring guest appearances by Keith Richards, Jerry Harrison, and mom Rita Marley... The Warner Bros. soundtrack to the new Michael J. Fox film, "Bright Lights, Big City," scheduled for an early March release, will feature new tracks from Prince, Narada Michael Walden, and Donald Fagene as well as recent hits from Depeche Mode, M/A/R/R/S, New Order, and Bryan Ferry... An 11-minute medley of Madonna's hits on video is currently available exclusively for clubs through the video pool Telegenics (212-227-5966).

ENGLISH SETTLEMENT: "Bedbugs And Ballyhoo" (Sire) is the excellent Doors-influenced single from Echo & the Bunnymen that has been remixed by Ivan Ivan and features former Doors man Ray Manzarek on keyboards; coupled with live covers of the rock classics "Run, Run, Run," "Friction," and "Paint It Black"... Hit-bound is the debut pop number from Scarlett & Black, the "Wang Tears For Chung Fears" pop track "You Don't Know" (Virgin)... Treat yourself to the soulful, reggae-style pop of U.K. trio the Christians, whose stateside debut is "Forgotten Town" (Island); quite engaging in its postproduction and mix from Justin Strauss and Murray Elias. Great vocals.

WRAP IT UP: "Do This My Way" (Select, 212-777-3130) from rappers Kid'N Play sounds very similar to another recent Hurby Luv Bug production, Sweet Tee's "I Got Da Feelin'"... Heavy D. & the Boyz pump hard with "Moneyearnin' Mount Vernon" (MCA), which borrows the basics from an old O'Jays tune and beefs them up; coupled with the rap ballad "Don't You Know"... The underground house bass line of "Rock The House," which later appeared as the drive in "Put The Needle To The Record," has popped up once again in the rhyme "Gettin' Money" (Casanova, 718-641-5511) by Life-N-Def.

'RoboCop' Promo Rates At Retail Orion-Palmer Program Ships 340,000

BY AL STEWART

NEW YORK "RoboCop" sold like gangbusters and the "Malone" buyback test paid off handsomely for participating retailers, according to officials at Orion Home Video.

In an effort to establish itself as an "instant major," Orion released its first two feature films with the aid of unique promotions aimed at gaining attention for the titles as well as the company itself. Orion says that some 340,000 copies of "RoboCop" were shipped in the U.S. and Canada and that the "Malone" buyback program, held in conjunction with approximately 60 Palmer Video stores, enabled dealers to profitably stock a deeper inventory on the title.

The unit volume on "RoboCop," which was spurred by a $3 million home video promotional blitz and a $53 million run at the box office, exceeded Orion's expectations by at least 40,000 units. The futuristic action/adventure film was released on videocassette by Orion Jan. 28 for a list price of $89.98.

The buyback plan for "Malone," a Burt Reynolds action/adventure movie, stipulated that after 90 days, the Palmer stores involved in the test were permitted to return one-third of their units for a 50% refund on the $57.26 wholesale cost.

When he announced the program, Len White, Orion's president and chief operating officer, said the company was hoping to offer an incentive for dealers to increase the size of their orders. The company had hoped that dealers would realize a profit on the incremental units stocked as a result of the test and be more inclined to place fatter orders in the future.

"On the surface, the test was very successful," says White, who is yet to make a decision on a follow-up buyback program. He does say, however, that he is eyeing the possibility of a pay-per-transaction program held in conjunction with the National Video chain.

White also says he is elated by the success of "RoboCop" since it comes during a month top heavy with hits [Billboard, Nov. 28]. Four other movies that did close to $50 million at the box office were released in January: "Dragnet" (MCA Home Video), "Dirty Dancing" (Vestron Video), "La Bamba" (RCA/Columbia Pictures Home Video), and "Predator" (CBS/Fox Home Video). Also, the legal dispute that stalled the release of "Platoon" for more than three months was settled, freeing HBO Video to ship the film that won an Academy Award for best picture in 1986.

In addition, White points out that unit volume was up despite a $10 price hike instituted on most A titles.

"The performance of January titles such as 'RoboCop' reflects the viability of the retail marketplace and the viability of the $89 price point," says White, who one year ago pioneered the move from $79.95 to $89.95 when he served as president of CBS/Fox Home Video.

The $3 million promotional campaign launched to promote "RoboCop" included extensive consumer and trade advertising as well as a "RoboCop Rub-Out Card" included with each copy of the movie. The sweepstakes card offered dealers the opportunity to appear in an upcoming Orion feature film. Other prizes included television sets and VCRs.

When he announced the promotion last fall [Billboard Dec. 5, 1987], White said, "This will show what Orion is all about. The days of releasing a huge title without some form of promotional campaign are over." At the time, White said he was hoping "RoboCop" would post unit sales between 250,000 and 300,000.

According to the company, the success of the buyback program, meanwhile, is closely tied to the profit generated by the incremental units. Orion says that dealers involved in the test opted to keep the copies they could have sold back since their stores made a substantial profit on all of the copies ordered.

According to Orion, dealers rented each of their 10 copies an average of 38 times at $2.99 per night. As a result, retailers grossed more than $113 on each copy of the film or almost twice their original wholesale cost.

'I Stuff, You Lick.' International Videc Entertainment's offer of a $5 rebate on select titles drew an avalanche of mail and had IVE staffers stuffing envelopes for days. Here, Lisa Rembold of the IVE marketing staff reacts to an offer from Ralph King, vice president of sales and marketing, to personally seal each envelope with a lick. King was only kidding.

Virgin Vision Focuses On Sell-Through

NEW YORK After racking up $9 million in sales during its first three months of operation, Virgin Vision has set its sights on sell-through.

At a press conference here, company officials said they would continue their commitment to the feature-film-rental market while offering sell-through-priced titles through "alternative distribution channels."

In addition to its new Portfolio Collection, the company also announced a series of 10 retail seminars that will be held throughout the country. The discussions, which began on Jan. 20 in St. Louis, will include both large and small dealers and are each scheduled to last approximately four hours.

"To the best of our knowledge, this is the first national program of retail seminars outside a major convention," said Tom Burnett, executive vice president and chairman of the seminars. "Since we deal largely through primary distributors, our only real communication gap lies between ourselves and the retailers."

Burnett stressed that the objective of the seminar program is to bridge that gap, not to promote the company's line of product. "We won't be there pitching," he said.

The company hopes to attract 15 to 25 dealers in each market with dealers selected by Virgin with the help of local distributors. The nine other meeting sites are Chicago, Boston, Philadelphia, Dallas, Los Angeles, Atlanta, Seattle, San Francisco, and Phoenix, Ariz.

The sell-through push unveiled by the company will be launched in April. The company plans to market its line of titles priced under $30 through mail order as well as

'Malone' Sells, But Dealers Want Hits Orion Tests Buyback Plan

NEW YORK The "Malone" buyback program paid off for everyone involved, according to Peter Balner, president of Palmer Video.

Balner notes that while the Orion Home Video buyback test was relatively conservative, considering the modest theatrical success of the title and the limited number of stores involved, it represents a step in the right direction. "This was definitely to our mutual benefit," says Balner. "It was good for the Palmer stores involved and it was good for Orion. My only hope is that Orion will see fit to use a release [in the future] that had more theatrical acceptance."

The Orion buyback plan came at almost the same time CBS/Fox Home Video offered a discount to retailers who purchased a two-pack of the "Predator" videocassette. While Balner says he is uncertain which strategy is the most effective route to solving the depth-of-copy problem, he applauds the efforts of companies like Orion and CBS/Fox.

"Anything that allows us to get our product cheaper is a welcome development and that's what both promotions did," says Balner. "The bottom line with [the Orion] buyback is that it effectively knocked 17% off of the wholesale cost of each unit. If you can buy more aggressively with less risk you are going to have more product to offer the consumer."

Like Balner, Gerard Nuber, owner of a Palmer Video store in Summit, N.J., says he hopes to see a buyback program instituted on a more significant title.

Nuber says it's unfortunate that Orion selected "an unknown entity" to conduct a buyback test. "If they were really serious they would have done it with 'RoboCop,'" says Nuber, who declined to participate in the test.

The first offering in the series, "Brideshead Revisited," is a six-volume drama produced for the Public Broadcasting System by British-based Granada Television. Based on the novel by Evelyn Waugh, "Brideshead Revisited" stars Jeremy Irons as a young man coming of age during the early 1900s.

Each 90-minute volume in the series will have a suggested list price of $29.95 with the set of six available for a retail price of $149.70. The street date for the series is April 27 and the prebook cutoff date is April 12.

'The Portfolio Collection is the company's first major expansion'

"Virgin's launch of the Portfolio Collection is the company's first major expansion since its commencement of U.S. video distribution last November," says Steve Bickel, president of Virgin Vision. Bickel adds that the entry into the sell-through market is an effort to "establish a significant profile in the marketplace."

During its first three months of operation, Virgin released a number of films priced at $79.95, including "Hollywood Shuffle," "Prayer For The Dying," and "Deadline." During the New York press conference, Bickel said the company's sales had hit the $9-million mark.

But they were the biggest bunch of lunatics ever to roll into war!!!

"THE MISFIT BRIGADE," based on Sven Hassel's internationally bestselling novelizations of his own wartime experiences, is a carefully tooled World War II actioner cum comedy. Devoid of high-minded artistic ambition, it is likely to do fast theatrical playoff business wherever it is picked up before heading for near-immortality as a surefire video item.

AT LEAST 10 STATES are seeking laws that would restrict video retailers, according to Rick Karpel, a regional director for the Video Software Dealers Assn. Most of the proposed laws mandate that dealers abide by the ratings system used by the Motion Picture Assn. of America. A bill recently introduced in the Michigan Senate, for example, calls for a $100 fine for renting or selling a video that does not "conspicuously display" an MPAA rating. For its part, the VSDA is advocating voluntary compliance with the rating system. "It's going to remain a hot issue, but we're hoping dealers will exercise self-regulation. That will make a lot of these laws unnecessary," says Karpel.

MARTIN LUTHER KING JR'S most memorable speeches will be included on a video due out March 23 from MPI Home Video. Priced at $29.95, the "Martin Luther King Commemorative Collection" will include two programs on one cassette, the first featuring interviews with Jesse Jackson, Bill Cosby, and Jimmy Carter and the other highlighting some of King's speeches. MPI is offering the cassette in an oversize collectible package similar to the one used by MGM/UA Home Video for the release of "Gone With The Wind." After May 23, MPI will raise the list price to $59.95.

PAY-PER-VIEW and the future of the home video industry will be the focus of a two-day round-table discussion at the Beverly Hills, Calif., Hilton March 9-10. The event is being hosted by Paul Kagan Services Corp., an industry watchdog group. The first meeting will analyze pay-per-view's influence on home video and the second will look at the growth of cassette rentals and the future of video retailing. For more information, contact PK Services Corp., 126 Clock Tower Place, Carmel, Calif., 93923-8734.

"HAIL! HAIL! ROCK 'N' ROLL" will make its home video debut in the spring. The rockumentary, which traces the life of Chuck Berry, will be released by MCA Home Video for a list price of $79.95. Produced April 7 by Stephanie Bennett ("The Compleat Beatles"), the film includes interviews with Bruce Springsteen, Bo Diddley, and Keith Richards and a concert featuring Eric Clapton, Linda Ronstadt, Robert Cray, and others.

CONGRESS VIDEO has sewn up a deal with the Vogue/Butterick Pattern company and will be offering consumers a free Vogue pattern with the purchase of a videocassette. Each of the cassettes in Congress' Quick and Easy Sewing Series will include a coupon redeemable for a Vogue pattern valued at $5.95. "Cross-promotion between industries is smart marketing and will help develop the special-interest category of home video," says Larry Kievies, president of Congress Video.

GOOD MORNING PIRATE: Canadian police say they arrested a man for trying to sell a 35mm print of the film "Good Morning Vietnam" to a Toronto-area video store. Herbert Vaetch, an employee with a film courier service, was nabbed after a stakeout and faces up to 10 years in jail if convicted.

This column offers a critical look at recent nontheatrical video releases. Suppliers interested in seeing their cassettes reviewed in this column should send VHS cassettes to Al Stewart, Billboard, 1515 Broadway, New York, N.Y. 10036. Please include the running time and suggested retail price.

"Aerosmith Video Scrapbook," CBS/Fox Home Video, 54 minutes, $19.98.

Aerosmith's recent comeback—with its fine "Permanent Vacation" album—has re-established the band's status as one of the truly great hard rock acts of all time and serves as an inspiration for many of the current metal generation. This aptly named tape gives the band's current success a historical perspective with a cleverly edited montage of concert footage and informal off-stage scenes from various points in Aerosmith's 15-year career. Eleven of its pre-"Vacation" hits are featured here in high-powered live versions, including "Dream On" and "Walk This Way." A must-have for any self-respecting rock'n'roll fan.

"Metallica, The $19.98 Home Video—Cliff 'Em All," Elektra, 90 minutes, $19.98.

Innovative speed-metalist group Metallica's first video compilation is true to its artistic vision. In a determined attempt to dispense with the glitz, dumb story lines, and sex-object girls who characterize many clips, this is strictly no frills. Much of the footage—going back to the band's early days—comes from bootleg tapes shot by fans, with predictably shaky camera work. Some rare television footage that never made the airwaves is also featured, and there is an emphasis on the group's late bassist, Cliff Burton, who died in a bus accident during its "Master Of Puppets" tour.

Metallica's live presentation, consisting of great chops, jeans and T-shirts, and no fancy effects, makes this a cinéma vérité music video, gritty and honest; it will no doubt be a big hit with Metallica fans. L.B.

"Go-Go Live At The Capitol Center," G Street Express, 100 minutes, $29.95.

Borrowing the talents of veteran concert-video director Sheldon Shemer (Prince's "Purple Rain") and the funky spirit of some of Washington, D.C.'s young black musicians, the producers of "Go-Go" succeed in capturing the infectious rhythms and homegrown grooves of go-go music. This get-down concert-party tape features hot performances by go-go masters Experience Unlimited, Rare Essence, and "Godfather of go-go" Chuck Brown & the Soul Searchers.

Go-Go music, which blends elements of rap, calypso, reggae, and big band jazz, is a moving urban formulation indigenous to the D.C. music scene. "Go-Go Live" is probably the best effort to date in bottling that spirit and readying it for export. The production is sharp and

DORF BRINGS HOME THE GOLD

In an all-new comedy starring Tim Conway!

It's the most eagerly-awaited video event of the year...DORF AND THE FIRST GAMES OF MOUNT OLYMPUS.

This follow-up to the comedy smash DORF ON GOLF finds the beloved short guy in ancient Greece, where, before the Games evolved into what they are today, there was ignorance, chaos, destruction...and Dorf! He bungles his way through the very first decathlon, assisted by his partners in laughter, Leonard and Boom-Boom.

Based on the success of its predecessor, DORF AND THE FIRST GAMES OF MOUNT OLYMPUS has built-in momentum. But still, nothing is being left to chance. It'll be backed with the most ambitious advertising and publicity campaign in made-for-video history:

'Dancing' Reorders Boom Vestron Success Story Continues

BY AL STEWART

NEW YORK One month after its release on videocassette, "Dirty Dancing" continues to be a phenomenal success story for Vestron Inc.

The company, which produced the movie, distributed it theatrically, and is now offering it on videocassette, has seen video sales go through the ceiling. After shipping more than 300,000 units to meet the Jan. 6 street date, Vestron Video saw an unusually high number of reorders. Now the company says unit volume has hit the 360,000 mark and continues to climb.

Still, the video's success is not surprising given the film's runaway success at the box office. After generating more than $60 million at the box office and finishing 11th on the list of top-grossing films of 1987, "Dirty Dancing" is being described as the highest-grossing independently distributed release in film history. Also, the film is so popular that a month after its release on videocassette, some 650 theaters across the country are still showing it.

The "Dirty Dancing" soundtrack is credited with drumming up enthusiasm for the movie. The RCA Records release has passed the 4-million-unit mark and has been on the Billboard Top Pop Albums chart for the past 12 weeks, including nine straight weeks at No. 1.

In addition, the single "Hungry Eyes," sung by Eric Carmen, has reached No. 6 on the Hot 100 chart while "She's Like The Wind," sung by the film's star Patrick Swayze, has climbed to No. 15.

The song "(I've Had) The Time of My Life," has received two Grammy Award nominations for best song from a motion picture and best pop performance by a duo.

A second soundtrack album from the same film is planned for release in March.

Vestron says it will continue to plug the movie in the hope of "lengthening the peak rental period for several months" after the title's initial video release. Nestle Food Corp., the tape's sponsor, will hold a national sweepstakes featuring the "Dirty Dancing" theme and will promote the movie in its consumer advertising and special-event marketing.

In exchange for the candy bar manufacturer's involvement, Vestron has included a 30-second commercial for one of Nestle's products at the start of the tape, making it the first tape priced at $89.98 to include a commercial. (While Pepsi Cola struck a similar deal with Paramount Home Video to put a commercial on the videocassette of "Top Gun," Paramount offered the title at the sell-through price of $26.95.)

Efforts to promote the movie included a series of "Dirty Dancing" contests held from November through January. The winning couple, to be selected by Cynthia Rhodes, one of the film's stars, will be offered an opportunity to make a cameo appearance in an upcoming Vestron film, possibly a sequel to "Dirty Dancing."

"Dirty Dancing" continues to break all the rules in the entertainment industry," says Al Rubin, Vestron's vice president of marketing and sales.

Some Are Set To Test Market; Others Are Wary Distributors Mull Video-Game Boom

BY EARL PAIGE

LOS ANGELES As key home-entertainment-software chains gradually move back into video games, some video distributors are also starting to stock the product.

Commtron, which has 16 stocking branches and is acknowledged as the largest video distributor, will enter the video-game market "possibly in the next few weeks," says Scott Meyer, vice president of merchandising.

Commtron is one of the few video distributors that have tested these newer video games, briefly handling the Sega line during Christmas. Meyer says Commtron "is well aware of the phenomenal success where people have brought it in."

Wholesalers and manufacturers see the market quickly maturing to the point where traditional home-entertainment-software distributors will have a role, says Joe Morici, vice president of sales at Capcom U.S.A., one of 22 current software licensees of leading brand Nintendo, representing about 90 titles.

"There's no way buyers are going to be able to go on buying everything available," says Morici. "Already some are confused about which title is going to sell better than some other."

Observers say that three software systems are benefiting most from this national video-game resurgence: Nintendo, the overwhelming leader; Sega; and Atari. Of the three, only Atari—currently under new ownership—was aggressively involved in manufacturing the games during their last boom.

However, wholesalers that are primarily video distributors are already stretched by the burgeoning prerecorded video business, and many have also taken on the audio compact disk, another booming software product. Video distributors now dealing extensively with CDs include Schwartz Bros., Ingram Video, Artec Distributors, Baker &

Taylor, and Commtron.

Sources say there are a number of reasons why distributors have been slow to add video games. "They're afraid; they're worried it's going to be like it was three years ago," says Morici, referring to a U.S. market that soared to $3 billion annually in 1982 only to plummet to $100 million by 1985.

Licensees like Capcom, however, eagerly point to Commtron's interest. Morici indicates that only a handful of traditional home entertainment wholesalers are involved—including the three-branch Star Video Entertainment, which handles both Nintendo and Atari.

Vendors agree that one key factor is that Nintendo, which for the last 1½ years has rapidly been developing a market for these more sophisticated games, was handling its own distribution.

When smaller accounts showed interest or large accounts sought fill-in orders, there was never adequate supply, and "there was not that much margin for distributors," Morici says.

Sources say some distributors are also wary of video games because they see them as part of the toy business, requiring a specialized channel of distribution. Indeed, in the summer Sega elected to distribute directly through leading toy marketer Tonka.

But now video games are moving out of the arcade crowd and into the mass market, says Jeff Weitzer, marketing manager at Tonka.

"Of our total sales, 25%-30% are to adults," says Weitzer of Sega's 39 titles, marketed along with the games by a rep force of 35.

Agreeing is Lou Fogelman, president of Los Angeles-based Music Plus, a 50-store chain that claims sales of more than $1 million of Nintendo product alone between Thanksgiving and Christmas (Billboard, Jan. 30).

"The hard-core [video game consumer] is 12-17, but these newer games with so much memory are appealing to adults," says Fogelman.

Distributors are also concerned by the slow pace of developments in videocassette-recorder-type games and by the specialized audiences for the floppy-disk computer games.

Both 13-branch Baker & Taylor and five-branch Schwartz Bros. handle VCR games, including VCR Quarterback, a leading title in a format viewed as basically seasonal and only tangentially related to the Nintendo boom.

VSDA Taking Applications For '88 Scholarship Grants

NEW YORK The Video Software Dealers Assn. has begun accepting applications for its 1988 scholarship grants.

Employees who work for a VSDA member company, their children, and their spouses are eligible. The grants are for students who will begin their college careers as freshmen in September. However, recipients of a scholarship from the retail trade group's sister group, the National Assn. of Recording Merchandisers, are ineligible for VSDA grants.

The application deadline is March 31.

The scholarships are for $6,000, paid in four annual disbursements of $1,500 each. Last year, VSDA grants were awarded to nine employees of member companies. Another was granted to the son of a video store owner.

Recipients will be selected by the nine-member VSDA Scholarship Committee, which is chaired by retailer Mary Chase of St. Petersburg, Fla.-based Chase-A-Rainbow.

The verdict is in on two Orion promos... see page 30

The latest character generator from RCA, Model CGA030, accommodates full-size Super-VHS camcorders or conventional camcorders with a broad menu of features—including 40-word memory, scroll, window wipe, and curtain wipe. Retail list is $299.95.

VIDEO PLUS

BY EDWARD MORRIS

A biweekly column spotlighting new video products and accessories. Vendors of such products may send information and promotional material to Edward Morris, Billboard, P. O. Box 24970, Nashville, Tenn. 37202.

CHARACTER ENRICHMENT: New from RCA (609-853-2279)—the Model CGA030 character generator for regular and Super-VHS VCRs and camcorders. It can place up to 60 characters on-screen at once—in four different size types—and store frequently used words. The device also has scroll, window wipe, and curtain wipe features. Suggested retail price: $299.95.

Also from RCA, the Model VAA003 video/audio input adapter and the Model VCA110 cassette adapter. The former, designed specifically for the RCA Model CPR350 Super-VHS camcorder, allows for dubbing of full-size Super-VHS and permits dubbing from a conventional VCR to an S-VHS VCR, or from an S-VHS VCR to an S-VHS camcorder. The cassette adapter fits VHS-C and S-VHS-C cassettes into a standard size VHS or Super-VHS VCR for playback or recording. It has a suggested retail tag of $55. The video/audio input adapter is retail priced at $69.95.

Until March 31, consumers may get sizable rebates on the purchase of blank RCA and GE videocassettes. Rebates range from a $1 return on selected tapes to a free head cleaner and a $5 rebate check on multiple purchases.

PROTECTION PACK: Discwasher (312-678-9600) is offering dealers a prepackaged counter-top display of video-protection accessories. Included in the assortment are four wet VHS video head cleaners, four VCR dust covers, five wet 8mm video head cleaners, and five wet VHS-C video head cleaners.

RABBIT REBATE: Purchasers of any of the VCR-multiplying devices from Rabbit Systems (213-393-9830) are eligible to receive a $10 manufacturer's rebate through April 8. The multipliers, which start at $59.95 and were previously discussed in this column, enable several television sets to share the signal from a single VCR.

New Formats To Spur Sales In Japan Cos. Bow Laser Wares

BY SHIG FUJITA

TOKYO Sales of videodisk players here, both the laserdisk and VHD formats, totaled 450,000 in 1987, down from the near 480,000 units sold in 1986. But with the appearance of compact disk video and combi-players capable of playing compact disks, CDVs, and laserdisks, sales are expected to top 700,000 this year.

According to Akira Kobayashi, Pioneer promotion executive, sales of videodisk players were slow in the first half of 1987 but picked up strongly in the last six months, especially after Pioneer launched its first triple-combi-players, the CLD-99S (selling at roughly $1,250) and the CLD-77 ($1,100). Pioneer videodisk-player sales in December were up 50% over the same month in 1986.

Kobayashi attributes poor sales early in 1987 to the expansion of videocassette rental, with outlets slashing overnight charges to the yen equivalent of just under $4, or even $2 in some cases.

As for the sales ratio between la-

VSDA Set For Convention Las Vegas Hosts 'Magnificent 7th'

NEW YORK Dick Kerin, vice president of video club and software sales for the 143-store Erol's chain, will chair the next Video Software Dealers Assn. convention, scheduled for Aug. 7-11 in Las Vegas.

The theme of the meet will be "The Magnificent Seventh," recognizing the occasion of the trade group's seventh convention.

Exhibits will again be staged at the Las Vegas Convention Center, but home base for VSDA will be the Las Vegas Hilton instead of Bally's Grand Hotel. Since the Hilton is located next door to the Convention Center, the switch in hotels lessens the need for shuttle buses, a dreaded necessity at previous meets.

Some buses will be running, however, because the trade group anticipates that the meet will need a satellite hotel. The second hotel has not yet been determined; Bally's and the Tropicana are candidates.

VSDA says the exhibit space will be expanded to cover the Convention Center's entire East Hall—a move that signals a dramatic increase in floor space, from 310,000 square feet to 450,000 square feet.

Part of the reason for the greater amount of space is the anticipation that previous exhibitors will want to increase the size of their booths, says Stan Silverman, director of meetings and conventions. Further, he expects that new exhibitors will be drawn to the VSDA convention.

Registration forms for the exhibit booths have already been mailed. Registration forms for the convention are due to be sent to all regular and associate members by the end of April.

Convention chairman Kerin played a conspicuous role in last year's VSDA meet. He and Ron Castell, Erol's vice president of advertising, were co-presenters of the keynote address, called "Rowing Away From The Rocks: Strategies For The '90s And Beyond."

Flagship Joins Sell-Through Fleet With New Division

BY CHRIS MORRIS

LOS ANGELES Taunton, Mass.-based Flagship Entertainment is broadening its marketing and merchandising services with a new division, Flag Services, that will place sell-through software racks in Flagship's independent member stores.

This latest wrinkle in Flagship's services is not unique—some conventional video distributors already offer similar sell-through programs to their rental-oriented accounts.

Efforts like those seen at Flagship and distributors Artec and Sight and Sound demonstrate an increasing emphasis on the part of service companies and wholesalers upon the marketing of low-priced videocassette product in independent video stores.

"It's about time that the independents address the sell-through market," says Flagship vice president Charles McCauley.

The company's Flag Services racks will contain approximately $5,000 worth of low-priced inventory; the design of the racks has not been finalized, although McCauley says that a rack should hold 136 facings, three deep. Product will be rotated and replaced every seven to 10 days by a Flagship field representative.

"There'll be personal representation for better control and communication," McCauley says.

Unlike standard distributor programs, Flag Services will require no payment up front; dealers will be billed by the field rep for product actually sold.

Although McCauley declines to identify his supplier at this time, he does say that offerings from "most of the major [home video] labels" will be included in the Flag Services program.

Video distributors have been placing increased importance on inducing their clients to initiate sell-through programs.

In October, St. Louis-based Sight and Sound Distributors established its VIP program, which merchandises 32-130 titles priced at $29.95 and below in a theme rack (Bill-

Event Pays Tribute To VCR Viewers Couch Potato Weekend Serves Up Panels & More

BY MOIRA McCORMICK

CHICAGO The cultural phenomenon known as the couch potato may not get much respect, but if a recent event at a Chicago-area hotel is any indication, all that could be changing. The Couch Potato Weekend, held Jan. 23-24 at the Hyatt Hotel in north suburban Lincolnwood, drew more than 300 people to participate in a celebration of the sofa spud—a creature whose numbers have increased exponentially since the advent of the VCR.

The weekend idea is the brainchild of Kathy Goldblatt of the public relations firm Ruth Rashman and Associates. Cost for the event was $55 per couple, covering hotel room and two days' worth of couch potato activities, including the continual showing of videos as well as panel discussions, exhibits, trivia games, and a Couch Potato Olympics.

According to Brad Burnside of three-unit Chicago-area chain Video Adventure, "the official video store of the Couch Potato Weekend," the event sought tongue-in-cheekily to raise the status of couch potatoes everywhere, largely through emphasizing an awareness of the wealth of information and culture available to spuds via home video.

Burnside appeared on a panel titled "TV Or Not TV?" along with

Chicago Tribune columnist Rick Kogan, Chicago Sun-Times writer Ernie Tucker, pop culture author Wally Podrazik, and "television therapist" Dr. Gregory Young, author of the book "Your TV Twins."

"The panel questioned the concept that a couch potato is a do-nothing," says Burnside. "The point is, being a couch potato is acceptable because of home video, which exposes people to new subjects. Someone who's never been to an opera might not plunk down $50 to try one out, but they might spend $3 to rent one on videotape, for instance. If you're a couch potato who spends all your time watching network TV programming, however, the couch potato appellation might be more of an indictment."

Burnside says he pointed out that the Denver-based research firm National Lifestyles and Demographics determined that most VCR owners have a wide range of interests and hobbies, as opposed to the stereotypical perception of the couch potato. "There's a distinction between television and creative home programming," he says.

Other activities included a presentation titled "How To Survive In A Hi-Tech World" by Video Review's Gregory P. Fagan, who examined the latest developments in such areas as high-definition television, hi-fi stereo, and MTS. Blockbuster Video provided 100 different titles, including movies and kid vid, which were aired continuously through the weekend. The Chicago Bears' Keith Van Horne presided over a showing of sports titles from Fox Hills Video.

A total of 30 exhibitors was on hand. Many of them were snack manufacturers who are finding video specialty stores to be profitable outlets. According to Penny Waserman of Ruth Rashman and Associates, "A lot of people who attended were in the video business themselves, such as specialty store owners and electronics store proprietors."

FLAGSHIP ADOPTS SELL-THROUGH PROGRAM

board, Aug. 22).

"Our [program] has been pretty successful," says Sight and Sound sales manager John Jump, claiming that some 400 outlets have participated.

The wholesale price of such a theme rack might run $400-$500, Jump says. "The retailer might make 25 or 30 points, depending on the item," he adds.

Sight and Sound plans to offer 12-16 VIP prepacks per year; dealers are required to commit themselves to carrying a certain number in order to participate.

So far, the Sight and Sound program has merchandised six different racks, featuring low-priced titles from Paramount and CBS/Fox and a holiday selection of product from a variety of major suppliers. The distributor's current program, titled A New Year, A New You, focuses on health and self-improvement fare.

"We're using our movie expertise to pull together titles under one sell-through theme," Jump says.

At Shelburne, Vt.-based Artec, the firm is pulling together a formal sell-through merchandising program, after some tentative attempts at pushing low-priced product in 1985-87.

"[Our past programs] met with varying degrees of success and failure," says Artec vice president of operations Matt Brown.

Brown terms the company's 1987 holiday sell-through rack "a resounding success." That campaign involved a custom fixture containing 50-100 cassettes; 20 top sell-through titles, priced at $14.95-$29.95, were drawn from major suppliers' seasonal programs.

The holiday program ultimately drew some 275 independent participants—and even one major account, which bought 125 of the racks.

As a result of the success of the holiday program, Brown says, "we expect to do four programs for independent retail a year, and it probably could be five or six."

According to Brown, Artec is looking at the possibility of placing its sell-through racks in nontraditional retail outlets as well, but the thrust of the project is giving the independent an opportunity to make the most of sell-through-priced product.

"The superstore can do it, because it's got the financial resources to do it," says Brown. "The other guys don't, and we've got to help them do it."

MANUFACTURERS TO BOW LASER WARES IN JAPAN

serdisk and VHD, it was 75-to-25 respectively for the year, though it became 80-to-20 by year's end because of the marketing of the triple-combi-players.

Now many bars, clubs, and restaurants with karaoke sing-along units in Japan are converting from VHD to laserdisk, due in part to the availability of more laserdisk software.

Koyabashi says that T&M Co., a major supplier of karaoke units to commercial establishments in the Kansai region, had previously handled only VHD units but had not changed to laserdisk.

Pioneer is now aiming at the home karaoke market. There are an estimated 6.5 million such units here and if 20% could be converted to laserdisk, the total would be 1.3 million.

Four firms now make laserdisk units: Pioneer, Hitachi, Sony, and Yamaha. Besides these four, seven others sell laserdisk hardware, including Columbia, TEAC, Aiwa, and NEC, by obtaining stocks from the four manufacturers.

A Jan. 11 trade newspaper report here claimed that Matsushita, which belongs to the group making VHD videodisk players, will be making laserdisk players in the latter half of 1988. Reasons given were the success of the triple-combi-players and the fact that of the 1.6 million videodisk players sold here through November, roughly 1 million were in the laserdisk format.

Koichi Ozaki, a Matsushita Electric Industrial executive, denies that a firm decision has been made on selling laserdisk players, but adds: "If we do start, it will definitely be in the triple-combi format."

Dave Fleischer Puts Pop Into 'Precious Town'

BY JIM BESSMAN

NEW YORK Repeatability is likely the most difficult quality to achieve in a music video, but producer/director Dave Fleischer says he's found an editing technique that can help keep a clip visually intriguing, rather than fatiguing.

The technical tactic, called "pop-cutting," was employed by Fleischer on the new Tom Caufield video for "Precious Town," the single from his Paradox/PolyGram album.

According to Fleischer, who heads the Animators' Consortium music-video-production company, pop-cutting is a middle ground between the seamless "match-cut," and the ragged "jump-cut."

The process discards the typical multicamera shoot in favor of repeated single takes of the same performance by the artist, done in a bluescreen facility. Fleischer says the technique helped produce

'It's a recording studio method of making music vid' a "visually and musically rhythmic performance clip" for Caufield.

"It's like a recording studio method of making music video," says Fleischer. "I'd go in and shoot umpteen zillion full takes of an entire song, from all angles and distances, in order to collect a whole catalog of performances from which to cut among.

"Invariably, the singer always gives the same emphasis to the same points in the song," he continues. "If they're dead on, I'll match two separate performances of the same song on a single gesture, rather than cutting between different views of the same take."

Fleischer says an intentional disparity in the artist's size and positioning is created by intercutting between the two different takes. The technique, Fleischer says, makes the image literally "pop" on the screen in a way that isn't as jarring as a jump-cut, but has more energy than the gentler, shape-blending match-cut.

"By popping between different live performances, I get more oomph out of the clip," says Fleischer. "The clip still works as a performance piece, but the pop-cutting provides subtle cutting where you'd normally feel a slump from watching just a continuous performance."

Fleischer says he applies pop-cutting only to the live-action artist performance on the bluescreen, which then serves as a template for the various bluescreen sequences.

In "Precious Town," these include abstract houses with shadow dancers performing in the windows and the surreal "Precious Town" trailer-park setting.

Much of this background material is animated, and Fleischer feels that pop-cutting particularly lends itself to animation.

"You generally want videos to be [densely] packed visually, so that they remain viable in repeated viewings," he says. "The problem with most animation is that it tends to overwhelm the artist."

The way to overcome that, Fleischer says, is to layer the animation over a strong performance piece.

VIDEO TRACK

NEW YORK

Director Scott Kalvert is in postproduction on the clip for Epic recording artist Jeff Cannata's "Fortune Teller." Shot partially under black light, the video was produced by Amy Raskin for Calhoun Productions.

Atlantis Productions recently completed the video for the Boogie Boys' song "I'm Coming" from their "Romeo Knight" album on Capitol. The clip was directed by Rolando Hudson and produced by Pam Gibson.

LOS ANGELES

THE DEELE'S VIDEO for "Two Occasions," from the group's "Eyes Of A Stranger" album on Solar Records, was directed by Bill Parker. Cinematographer James Rosenthal lensed the clip on 16mm Fuji film at Soka Univ. in Calabasas, Calif. The video features actress/dancer Nicole Carter. Carolyn Ali produced for Renge Films.

Director Helene Guetary is in production on the Jets' "Rocket 2 U" clip, the third single from their MCA album "Magic." Guetary also designed the set for the clip. Styling was by Catherine Chambaret, cinematography by Bill Pope. Tammara Wells produced for One Heart Corp.

Director David Fincher recently wrapped production on Martha Davis' video for "Tell It To The Moon" from her "Policy" album on Capitol. Kim Dempster produced for Propaganda Films.

OTHER CITIES

M.S.G.'s CLIP FOR "Love Is Not a Game," the single from its "Perfect Timing" album on Capitol, was directed by Jean Pellerin and Doug Freel and lensed by Crescenzo de Notarile at William Patterson College in New Jersey. Carl Ywant was the producer.

Image 2 Productions recently finished work on a video press release for Stacey Q's new album on Atlantic Records. The video, shot in several locations around the world, was directed by Craig Barker, lensed by Ed Maihot, and produced by Curt Apduhan. It will be distributed in Australia, Brazil, England, France, and Japan.

The video for Dave Mason's duet with Phoebe Snow, "Dreams I Dream," from his MCA album "Two Hearts" was lensed by Bernard Aroux in Jamaica. Directed by Jeff Stein, the clip features footage of the tropical location and an appearance by Mason's wife, Pamela, a model. Mike Riffle and Julio Flores produced for Eyeballs Inc.

Director/producer Joseph Laux and GRP recording artist Special EFX received the 1987 Videoton Award for the best Eastern European videoclip for "Hands Of The Healer," a cut from the group's "Mystique" album. The video was shot at Vajda Hunyad castle in Budapest, Hungary, for JLN Productions.

Production companies and post-production facilities are welcome to submit information on current projects. Please send material to Valerie Bisharat, Video Track, Billboard, 9107 Wilshire Blvd., Beverly Hills, Calif. 90210.

ALTERNATIVE OUTLETS: Somebody once said there's more than one way to make money on music video. And if you've got good ties with a major record company, checking out what's sitting in the archives is probably a good place to start.

Lightyear Entertainment (formerly RCA Music Video Productions) has teamed with Fox/Lorber Associates in a marketing agreement that will see Fox/Lorber acting as rep for a collection of Lightyear-owned music specials with the broadcast-syndication and pay-and-basic-cable-television markets.

The first offering in the joint venture is "The Elvis Collection," which is being presented for syndication. The program, put together in partnership with the Elvis Presley estate, is a package of four specials, highlighted by the broadcast premiere of "Elvis '56."

Fox/Lorber/Lightyear say they also plan to market material culled from Lightyear's extensive catalog of comedy and music. A few of the RCA programs contained in the archives: the award-winning Eurythmics' "Sweet Dreams" longform; "Jefferson Starship," featuring Grace Slick and Paul Kantner; "Rockin' Ronnie," billed as an "offbeat look at the life and times of Ronald Reagan, portrayed in a variety of old and new film footage, TV shows, and presidential appearances"; and "Mad Dogs & Englishmen," the classic 1971 concert movie starring Joe Cocker, Rita Coolidge, and Leon Russell.

JUST SAY ARF: The Rock Against Drugs campaign has taken a new turn for the slightly bizarre, with the filming of a Siedah Garrett rap video about a "dog on crack," according to a RAD spokesman. According to Danny Goldberg, president of RAD, the clip is a "slight departure" from the antidrug organization's previous format and is also the first RAD spot to focus on a specific drug.

"Siedah's rap about a dog on crack was her way of talking to her fans metaphorically about all drugs, and it works," Goldberg says.

Since its inception last year, the RAD campaign has received strong support from cable and broadcast TV, with MTV alone donating $4 million in air time to the cause. This year, RAD will release 10 public-service spots as well as a documentary, with the financial support of MTV and the California attorney general.

PRECIOUS METAL: The Recording Industry Assn. of America's January certifications are in, and three music video longforms have made the grade: the Grateful Dead's "So Far" and Whitesnake's "Trilogy" have both been certified gold (selling at least 25,000 units). The same Whitesnake videocassette also made the platinum grade (at least 50,000 units). Cheers to Arista, West Home Video, Warner Bros. Music Video, and Geffen Home Video.

SEARCHING FOR THE LORD: Aretha Franklin's upcoming Arista album is an all-gospel set, and the label is looking for gospel and Christian video outlets to air a new clip for "Oh Happy Day."

The label's Peter Baron says the clip is a "documentary-type" montage of still photos and footage shot in the recording studio during the making of the record.

"We've been having some trouble tracking down gospel-oriented video shows, although I'm certain there must be a lot of them in the South and Southwest," Baron says. "Can somebody help?"

Unfortunately, The Eye is as much in the dark about gospel video shows as Mr. Baron, but if you can shed some light on this, we'd like to hear from you.

PROMO DISKS: While nobody is selling compact disk videos yet, a number of labels have either already released or are planning to soon produce CDVs for promotional purposes.

MCA says it plans a March 12 release for a Lyle Lovett CDV (the video track will be for "She's No Lady"). The disk will not be sold in stores (a real drag for all 10 people who own CDV players), but will be used to attract attention in record stores to Lovett's latest MCA album, "Pontiac."

Like other labels, such as Warner Bros., MCA is teaming with a hardware company—in this case, Pioneer—on the CDV project. Pioneer is providing a CDV player to music retailers for the Lovett display. A contest in which consumers have a shot at winning the player is also part of the promo campaign.

ALL ROADS LEAD TO ROWE: We liked Rowe International's 70-foot-high jukebox on the field at half time during the Super Bowl. But how did they manage to lift Chubby Checker all the way up there? And while we're on the subject, Rowe's director of video music operations, Michael Reinert, has obviously gone media-happy. Reinert has managed (no doubt through the lawyer-type wheeling and dealing he does best) to get one of his company's R-92V video jukeboxes prominently displayed daily on the MTV set. The box is being used by the jocks to introduce videos as well as display graphics, logos, and other visual information.

MuchMusic Appeal Denied Feds Uphold Basic Cable Move

OTTAWA The federal cabinet has turned down an appeal by the leading Canadian consumer group to keep the MuchMusic Network from being arbitrarily moved to basic cable service.

The move paves the way for MuchMusic to be offered on the regular, rather than pay-television, service of Canadian cable companies.

The Consumers' Assn. of Canada argued in its appeal of a Nov. 30 federal regulatory decision that cable subscribers were being forced to absorb increased costs in their monthly fees with the addition on basic cable of MuchMusic, The Sports Network, and a French-language public affairs service.

The association said consumers, not cable companies, should decide if they want the services.

But the cabinet said the cost won't be excessive. It said that the Canadian Radio-television and Telecommunications Commission did not act outside of its mandate

Numbers Speak Volumes in Historic Rise to No. 1

By GERRY WOOD

Numbers talk: everybody else walks. In Billboard's 1987 Year-End issue, heading into the heady waters of 1988, the numbers speak volumes: how about top country album labels? Who? MCA.

How about Billboard's top country singles labels of the year? Who? MCA.

That must make MCA Billboard's top country label of the year. Right? Right!

And what about Billboard's top country album artists of the year? Take a look at these MCA biggies: No. 1 is George Strait with a total of six charted LPs. Reba McEntire is close behind in the No. 6 position, followed by Steve Earle at No. 11, and also in the coveted top 50—Lyle Lovett, Moe Bandy, the Bellamy Brothers, Ray Stevens, the Oak Ridge Boys, Lee Greenwood, Steve Wariner, John Schneider, and Waylon Jennings.

The honor roll of Billboard's top country albums of the year includes "Ocean Front Property" by George Strait (No. 2), "What Am I Gonna Do About You" by Reba McEntire (8), "Guitar Town" by Steve Earle (18), Reba's "Greatest Hits" (20), "Lyle Lovett" (24), "George Strait's Greatest Hits" (25), "# 7" by George Strait (27), "You Haven't Heard The Last Of Me" by Moe Bandy (31), "Whoever's In New England" by Reba (44), "Where The Fast Lane Ends" by the Oaks (46), "Exit 0" by Steve Earle & the Dukes (48).

MCA's Steve Wariner scores as Billboard's top country singles artist followed by labelmate Reba McEntire. Also making the rankings are George Strait, Conway Twitty, Waylon Jennings, the Oaks, Lee Greenwood, the Bellamy Brothers, John Schneider, Lyle Lovett, Moe Bandy, Glen Campbell, and Steve Earle.

And what about the top country singles of the year?

"What Am I Gonna Do About You" by Reba McEntire comes in at No. 3; "It Takes A Little Rain" and "This Crazy Love" by the Oaks (No. 10 and 13); followed by Lee Greenwood's "Mornin' Ride"; Reba's "One Promise Too Late"; Steve Wariner's "The Weekend" and "Small Town Girl"; Conway Twitty's "I Want To Know You Before We Make Love" and "Julia"; the Bellamy Brothers with the Forrester Sisters "Too Much Is Not Enough"; George Strait's "It Ain't Cool To Be Crazy About You"; and Moe Bandy's "Til' I'm Too Old To Die Young."

No wonder MCA, under the creative direction of Jimmy Bowen, marketing genius of Bruce Hinton, and production wizardry of Tony Brown, has soared to the top of Billboard's charts. The MCA team has taken this traditionally strong landmark country label and propelled it to the forefront of Nashville's impressive array of record companies. Significantly, the label not only embraces successful acts in both traditional and contemporary country sectors, but has expanded beyond country into the highly successful Master Series that has taken such acts as Larry Carlton to the top of Billboard's jazz chart. It's not a surprise, considering the past of Bowen and Hinton. Separate stories in this supplement focus on their achievements, but both

An MCA Chronology

- 1934 Decca Records established in U.S.; signs Jimmie Davis*
- 1940 Decca signs Ernest Tubb
- 1944 Decca signs Red Foley
- 1945 Paul Cohen takes charge of Decca's country division
- 1947 Owen Bradley begins producing records for Decca as an independent
- 1949 Decca signs Bill Monroe. Ernest Tubb persuades label to adopt the term "country & western" for the music it has been designating as "hillbilly"
- 1952 Kitty Wells has historic Decca hit, "It Wasn't God Who Made Honky Tonk Angels"
- 1954 Patsy Cline signs with Four Star Records, which has a distribution agreement with Decca. She does not sign with Decca exclusively until 1960.

Half the Top 10 singles of 1954, as listed by Billboard, belong to Decca, four of the five being by Webb Pierce

- 1958 Bradley succeeds Paul Cohen as Decca's Nashville chief
- 1975 Owen Bradley retires from label
- 1979 MCA acquires ABC/Dot
- 1984 Jimmy Bowen appointed president of MCA Records/Nashville
- 1987 MCA moves to its present Nashville offices at 1514 South St.

* Davis, one of Decca's earliest country artists, was elected to the Country Music Hall Of Fame in 1972. Other Decca/MCA acts and executives who have earned that honor include Ernest Tubb (1965); Uncle Dave Macon (1966); Red Foley (1967); Bob Wills (1968); the Carter Family (1970); Bill Monroe (1970); Patsy Cline (1973); Owen Bradley (1974); Paul Cohen (1976); Kitty Wells (1976); Grandpa Jones (1978); and Little Jimmy Dickens (1983).

President's Profile

JIMMY BOWEN—Producing the Lion's Share of Success with No. 1 Flair

By JOHN LOMAX III

MCA Nashville president Jimmy Bowen celebrated his 50th birthday and his 10th year in Music City in style last fall: for the first time ever MCA topped RCA to claim the title of best overall label in the annual Billboard World Of Country Music awards. MCA made a clean sweep in 1987 by also winning best singles label and best album label (the latter for the fourth consecutive year).

Bowen's own production contributions played a lion's share in the label's top showing: he produced 11 No. 1 singles and three No. 1 albums during 1987. He also crafted 12 additional top 20 singles as well as three more charted albums, each of which peaked at No. 4 or higher.

MCA's dominance of the trade charts was matched by the company's financial performance: industry observers peg the label gross in the $50 million range. Bowen himself notes that, "1987 was a tremendous improvement over 1986, the biggest gross in history for the division, biggest net in history, which is even more important, and it will be the biggest pretax profit year for MCA Nashville in history."

With accomplishments like these to his credit it will be very interesting to see how long it will take Nashville's music industry to extend the same degree of respect to Jimmy Bowen that they have so freely given to such legendary producers as Fred Rose, Don Law, Ken Nelson, Owen Bradley, Chet Atkins, Fred Foster, Frank Jones, Billy Sherrill and Larry Butler.

Bowen's achievements during his first decade in Nashville certainly equal, if not exceed, those of all the masters mentioned above yet there is a feeling in Nashville that the jury of public opinion is still deliberating.

Before we plunge further into a closer view of Bowen perhaps we should first deliver a synopsis of the man's achievements so the reader may make their own judgements upon his successes.

In the years since he moved to Music City in mid-1977 Jimmy Bowen has run the local operation for MGM, MCA, Elektra, Warner Bros. and MCA again, where he has been since mid-1984. During that period he has:

- Produced 133 top 20 singles and 31 top 10 albums.
- Crafted the staggering total of 48 No. 1 singles.
- Tallied 13 No. 1 albums.
- Earned over a dozen gold and/or platinum certifications for his work with Hank Williams Jr., George Strait, Reba McEntire, and the Bellamy Brothers.

Executive Vice President & General Manager

BRUCE HINTON—Marketing the Momentum to the Label's Best Year in History

By GERRY WOOD

Long And Winding Road" is more than the title of one of the Beatles' best ballads—it's also an accurate description of Bruce Hinton's Oz-like journey from coast to coast to Nashville. His record biz stints in New York and Los Angeles prepared him perfectly for his latter-day move to Music City in

John Anderson

The Bellamy Brothers

When Hinton relocated to Nashville to become executive vice president and general manager of MCA

Nashville, teaming with Jimmy Bowen, it marked the third time these veterans worked together. As national promotion manager with Warner/Reprise Records, Hinton first met Mo Ostin and Bowen who was a "kid a&r guy" (description courtesy of Hinton) who soon was to make it big producing such acts as Frank Sinatra and Dean Martin. Just like nowadays in Nashville, Bowen produced while Hinton promoted, pushed, and prodded the product up the charts.

Hinton later moved to Columbia Records in N.Y., because "I liked the idea of getting experience at a big company—and CBS was very No. 1 at that time," comments Hinton. When Clive Davis became head of the label, Hinton became one of Clive's "fair-haired guys" and was soon promoted to director of custom label distribution at CBS Records. After a year and a half came a call from Bowen who was starting a production company and Amos Records. "He wanted to see if I would come back and head that up, and at that point I'd simply had it with working in New York and the long commute." So Hinton packed his bags and the young man headed west again. As general manager of Amos Productions, Hinton presided over a label that was ahead of its time. "We had the first Kim Carnes album, Kenny Rogers & the First Edition, and Shiloh which included Don Henley and Jim Ed Norman, and Longbranch Pennywhistle with Glen Frey and J.D. Souther. In fact, those two groups were the genesis of the Eagles."

When Bowen decided to drop out of the music business for a couple years of non-stop conversation with his muse, Hinton started his own independent promotion company. He started with rock'n'roll but discovered he had an ear for potential country hits, and decided to switch the emphasis to country. With Peter Svendsen, an astute Texas promotion man, he formed Hinton/Svendsen Promotions. "We created the concept of the national independent promotion team," says Hinton. The firm pio-

OWEN BRADLEY—Legendary Producer Blazed Trail That Galvanized MCA/Nashville Ties

By EDWARD MORRIS

Owen Bradley was a respected local bandleader and arranger when Decca's divisional a&r man, Paul Cohen, tapped him to do some session work and independent producing for the label's country division. Bradley's first job for Cohen, he recalls, was playing organ for some Red Foley sessions in 1947.

"We did every kind of record with Red Foley," says Bradley. "For the 'Milk Cow Boogie' I had to go out to my dad's and borrow a weaning bucket, and we milked this weaning bucket into another bucket to make it sound like we were milking a cow. We had the 'Pinball Boogie' and we had good luck with the 'Chatanooga Shoe Shine Boy.' We were into boogies—we did all kind of things. We tried to get some kind of little gimmick or something on all of them. It was very important in those days. After [those early successes], Paul said he wanted me to work with him on everything. And he wasn't kidding. I was on everything, and whether anybody liked it or not, I was there. It was like that as long as he was with the company."

In 1958, following Cohen's promotion to president of Decca's Coral Records, Bradley was offered the post of a&r director of the label's Nashville office. In fact, he established the office proper, since up until the time of his appointment, Decca had no fixed Nashville headquarters.

Two years before taking over Cohen's job, Bradley produced Buddy Holly's first Nashville sessions, but it was with the label's country acts that he had his most resounding triumphs—beginning with Patsy Cline. "I always thought Patsy was ahead of her time," he says.

Following his successes with Cline, Bradley produced a seemingly endless series of masterful albums for such roster artists as Loretta Lynn, Bill Anderson, Jack Greene, Conway Twitty, Roy Drusky, Webb Pierce, Kitty Wells, and Bobby Helms, among others. He presided over the magical pairing of ex-rocker Twitty and country queen Lynn, a union that eventually earned the two four consecutive Vocal Duo Of The Year awards from the Country Music Assn.

Just as current MCA chief Jimmy Bowen has been on the leading edge of bringing digital recording technology to country sessions, Bradley was a pioneer in building state-of-the-art studios in Nashville. He built his first studio in 1951—then the famous "quonset hut" facility in 1955 on what is now Music Row. His Bradley's Barn studio in Mt. Juliet was a recording mecca for acts of all sorts by the time it burned in the early 1980s.

As a testament to his significance, the Country Music Assn. elected Bradley to its Country Music Hall Of Fame in 1974. A year later, he retired from MCA. But he continues to produce. Among his current clients is the Patsy Cline disciple, k.d. lang.

THE CREATIVE EDGE A Solid Core of In-House Producers

More than any other Nashville-based label, MCA Records has developed a solid creative core of in-house producers. While the company does not dispense with independent producers entirely, it does use staffers for most of its projects. Because label chief Jimmy Bowen believes that acts should have the deciding vote in choosing the material they will ultimately record, the common practice is to have the artists meet with songpluggers to make the first-round pick of songs. After these choices are made, then the producers work with the acts to determine the material that will actually be recorded.

Of the current four in-house producers, Bowen is studio mentor for the largest portion of the roster. He now produces or co-produces John Anderson, Glen Campbell, Skip Ewing, Lee Greenwood, Waylon Jennings, Reba McEntire, the Oak Ridge Boys, John Schneider, George Strait, Conway Twitty, and Steve Wariner.

Tony Brown, a standout musician who has performed in bands for Elvis Presley, Emmylou Harris, Rosanne Cash, and the Oak Ridge Boys, produces Steve Earle, Lyle Lovett, Nanci Griffith, Patty Loveless, and Karen Staley.

Chip Hardy's acts include Loretta Lynn, Dann

Rogers, J. D. Hart, Lionel Cartwright, and Joe Barnhill.

Buzz Stone works in the capacity of a production assistant, most recently on the Skip Ewing album.

Former staff producer Emory Gordy Jr. continues to work with Bill Monroe and Riders In The Sky on an independent basis. And James Stroud will also serve as an independent for MCA acts yet to be designated.

MCA NASHVILLE TALENT GALLERY

John Anderson: After nine Warner Bros. albums, John Anderson signed with MCA Records and combined his country efforts with those of label head/producer Jimmy Bowen. "Jimmy's dealing with a special class of country at MCA, and I'm proud to be a part of that," notes Anderson.

Anderson grew up in Apopka, Fla. and first tried his hand at the guitar at age 8. His musical influences include rock, folk, country, and bluegrass. At 17, he came to Nashville working as a singer, songwriter, and musician, and in 1977 signed a recording contract with Warner Bros. Records. He co-produced his MCA debut album, "Blue Skies Again" and describes his music as "... straight-ahead, to-the-point songs."

The Bellamy Brothers: Howard and David Bellamy were brought up during the '50s and '60s in Darby, Fla., and continue to reside on a 115-acre farm, owned by their family for six generations. Their father played guitar, dobro, and fiddle and gave the boys a strong country foundation to add to the rock influences of that era. Their first public performance was with their father in 1958 at the San Antonio, Fla. Rattlesnake Roundup.

In 1976, the brothers had the pop hit "Let Your Love Flow." When their pop popularity fizzled out, the country fans were waiting. 1979 offered "If I Said You Had a Beautiful Body Would You Hold It Against Me," cleverly written, hooky, and humorous. "Crazy From The Heart" is their latest MCA album.

Glen Campbell: After 40 albums, four gold singles, 12 gold albums, and seven platinum albums, Glen Campbell has released his MCA debut "Still Within The Sound Of My Voice."

Born in Delight, Ark., and raised on a farm in Eilston, Campbell is one of 12 children, all of whom sang and played guitar. As a teenager in the early '50s, he left Arkansas to pursue a musical career. His first job as a guitarist was with a three-piece band in Houston, Texas. At 24, he headed for Los Angeles, where he became a highly demanded session musician, playing on the records of Frank Sinatra, Merle Haggard, Elvis Presley, Ray Charles, and Nat King Cole. It was the John Hartford song "Gentle On My Mind" that sent Campbell into the artist ring in 1967. His philosophy for success is "never try to categorize music—simply pick the best from it, whether it's country, pop, rock, jazz or whatever."

Jerry Clower: After 18 years and 18 albums on the MCA label, Jerry Clower is a true recording comedian. During his stay in the Navy, he realized his talents as a humorist. Clower says, "A comic tells funny stories and a humorist tells stories funny." In 1970, he spoke to a farm group in Lubbock, Texas, when a disk jockey and farm director in the audience suggested Clower record his stories. The guy taped Clower's next talk, MCA got a copy, and the next thing Clower knew, he was on the "David Frost Show." His G-rated material welcomes families.

The Desert Rose Band: Formed by Chris Hillman, founding member of the '60s folk/rock group the Byrds, member of the Flying Burrito Brothers, of the Manassas project, of Souther-Hillman-Furay, and of the Golden State Boys. Hillman pulled together long time cohorts Herb Pedersen, John Jorgenson, Jay Dee Maness, Bill Bryson, and Steve Duncan to form the Desert Rose Band. Hillman says "They are a bunch of pros who like to play music. We have a good

THE MCA MASTER SERIES Fresh Musical Breezes Beyond Country

By DEBBIE HOLLEY

It has been several years since Tony Brown, MCA's senior vice president of a&r, dreamed up the idea of marketing the music of some of Nashville's most industry-recognized musical talent, many of whom were unknown commercially. Brown saw a niche and pursued the idea, accomplishing his feat through the creation of the MCA Master Series label.

It isn't a country label or a jazz label or a blues, new age, rock, or bluegrass label. The Master Series is a combination of all those elements. "Because people tried to pigeonhole what kind of label the Master Series was in the beginning," says Brown, "we came up with the tag line the musician's label."

Geared to the new age/jazz consumer, the Master Series' product has several distinctive qualities including material penned by the artists themselves; artist character—arrived at by allowing the artists total creative control; intensely fine-tuned mixes; and packaging that sets the Master Series albums apart from any other, yet brings those in the series together as a total concept.

Exactly two years ago this month, MCA showcased the newly-created label arm's roster of six artists. The list included guitarist Larry Carlton, pianist John Jarvis, dobro player Jerry Douglas, guitarist Albert Lee, bass violinist Edgar Meyer, and a duet—steel drum player Robert Greenidge and keyboardist Mike Utley.

They performed in Nashville before an audience that received the performances with open arms.

for release; Carlton's "Alone, But Never Alone," a jazzy blend of Carlton's guitar expertise; Jarvis' "So Fa, So Good," a country/new age/pop blend; and Douglas' "Under The Wire," a trip outside the bluegrass genre; debuted the label.

Following close behind in March of that year were three more albums. Lee's "Speechless," featuring his guitar skills but also offering a piece on mandolin and two on piano; Meyer's "Unfolding"—jazz, classical, and bluegrass that shakes, rattles, and rolls; and the dynamic duet's "Mad Music," the only one of the label's initial releases that doesn't offer the sound of a stringed instrument on any cut.

The spring of '87 brought four more album releases: Acoustic Alchemy's (Greg Carmichael and Nick Webb) "Red Dust & Spanish Lace," a work that sends forth their talents on acoustic and classical/flamenco guitars; a second Jarvis keyboard phenomenon ranging from simplicity to complexity and titled "Something Constructive"; an off-the-top-of-his-head styled classical/jazz/bluegrass/country album by Meyer that blends deliciously and is titled "Dreams Of Flight"; and the "Spring Sampler '87."

with MCA. According to Earle, "We cut tracks in four days. It was real easy." He says his attention span for making records is extremely short. "I don't understand people who take three years and go to 40 different studios to make a record. That would drive me nuts." He holds his tune "Sweet Little 66" dear to his heart—he's building a '67 Chevelle SS-396, very similar to the one in the song. Realistic is the word for his tunes.

Lee Greenwood: Greenwood terms himself "an entertainer from the old school." Greenwood was born in Los Angeles. The following year his parents divorced and his and his sister moved to Sacramento, Calif. to live with their grandparents. Both of his parents were musically inclined, his mother playing piano professionally, and his father playing saxophone with the Navy band.

At 13, he began to take a serious look at music, and after finishing high school he formed his first group. By the mid-'60s, he had established himself in Las Vegas as an arranger, band leader, songwriter, and performer. In 1978, he moved to Reno and hooked up with Larry McFaden, Mel Tillis' bass player. He became Greenwood's manager, they put together demos, and attracted the attention of producer Jerry Crutchfield, who signed Greenwood as a writer to MCA Music and as an artist to MCA/Panorama. "It Turns Me Inside Out" was released in 1981, during which time Greenwood was working in the piano bar at Las Vegas' Tropicana Hotel. Since that time, he's released nine albums and one telemarketed album.

Nanci Griffith: Austin-born Griffith has been singing professionally for 10 years, touring clubs and festivals in the Northeast and Midwest. In 1986, she signed with MCA Records. She penned more than half of the songs on her first album and co-produced the tracks with Tony Brown. "I had a real normal childhood," says Griffith, "I started playing in bars when I was 14." Her middle-class parents respected her ambitions enough to chaperone her through saloon apprenticeship.

In 1978, she recorded her first album on B.F. Deal Records and she followed four years later with one on Featherbed. She has since released two on Philo/Rounder.

Something to note about Griffith—she claims southern fiction writers have affected her outlook on life. On each of her album covers, she is pictured with a book by one of her favorite authors. She posts this as a tribute.

Dedicated to the style, she says, "I've always been a country/folk singer, and I never expected anymore than what I have. I'm just what I am."

Waylon Jennings: Raised in Littlefield, Texas, Waylon Jennings got a job as a disk jockey in 1949 at the age of 14. Soon after, he put his first band together, pulling material from the catalogs of Hank Williams (Continued on page MCA-12)

COUNTRY CATALOG— Still Enjoying Steady Sales

We've always sold country catalog really well," asserts MCA's executive vice president of distribution John Burns, "and it did help immensely those times we didn't have strong releases." Even now, with some of the bestselling acts in country music, MCA enjoys steadily profitable activity from acts that first recorded for the company when it was still Decca Records. And the recent platinum and gold sales from such newer acts as George Strait and Reba McEntire have rekindled interest in their earlier albums as well.

As an example of this sales and artistic durability, Patsy Cline's "Greatest Hits" album recently earned platinum certification. Cline had her first Decca hit in 1957 and recorded her last sides for the label shortly before her death in 1963.

Other early acts that still sell steadily from the Decca/MCA country catalog are Cline's fellow members in the Country Music Hall Of Fame, Ernest Tubb and Bill Monroe, as well as that most durable of duets, Conway Twitty and Loretta Lynn—both as solo and paired attractions.

The Oak Ridge Boys, who have been with MCA just over 10 years, have a brisk catalog, Burns says. Former acts whose early albums for MCA sell well include the Marshall Tucker Band, Don Williams, and John Conlee.

and Ernest Tubb. While working at KDAV's "Sunday Dance Party" show in 1955, he met up with Buddy Holly, who taught Jennings how to cross stylistic barriers. Holly produced Jennings' first record in 1958 and hired him to play in his band. Jennings was signed to A&M in 1963, later moving to RCA. In 1986, he ended his 20-year affiliation with RCA and moved to MCA. His most recent release is "A Man Called Hoss," Waylon Jennings' life-story to music. Jennings is credited with helping push the Nashville sound into the Outlaw movement.

Patty Loveless: One of eight children of a Pikeville, Ky. miner, Patty Loveless was so fascinated with music as a child, she began writing songs before she reached her teens. She sang professionally at age 12. At 14, her brother/sometime partner brought her to Nashville. She met with Porter Wagoner and befriended his partner Dolly Parton. For the next three years, she sang with the Wilburn Brothers. She also signed a publishing contract with the Sure Fire Music Co. Following high school, she spent 10 years singing in hotels, nightclubs, and at fairs. She returned to Nashville in 1985 to put together a demo tape that her brother circulated. In less than two months, she was signed to MCA. Most recently, she signed a publishing agreement with Acuff/Rose.

Lyle Lovett: Singer/songwriter Lyle Lovett drove from Houston, Texas to Nashville, Tenn. with his demo tape where a friend of a friend helped him set up a meeting with ASCAP's Merlin Littlefield, who played Lovett's tape for everyone he could. Shortly after, Lovett landed a songwriting deal with Criterion Music and then a recording contract with MCA/Curb. The native Texan grew up in the Klein community. While attending Texas A&M Univ., where he received a degree in journalism in 1980 and a degree in German in 1981, he began to write songs. He was performing in songwriter showcase clubs in Houston in 1979. In '83, he began playing clubs in other parts of the country and later that year wrote a song for and appeared in the CBS TV movie "Bill On His Own," starring Mickey Rooney. In 1984, Billy Williams helped Lovett produce the recordings of his songs that were brought to Nashville—the result was Lovett's debut album "Lyle Lovett."

Loretta Lynn: 1987's American Music Awards' Award of Merit recipient, Lynn went back into the studio last spring under the guiding hand of producer Jimmy Bowen. "Just A Woman," a collection of songs that bridge her recording hiatus, was the result of their collaboration. She has returned to songwriting, eagerly but cautiously, "after all, I haven't written for 10 years," she says. Meanwhile, she's busy assembling material for a follow-up book to "Coal Miner's Daughter."

Reba McEntire: Oklahoma-born McEntire broke into the charts in 1976. Her first label was Mercury, followed by a move in 1983 to MCA. Her past three albums have been self-produced with MCA chief Jimmy Bowen, something that allows her to influence the selection of material. McEntire has won practically every major award offered by the music industry. This confirms her dynamic vocal talent and enviable ability to write, choose, and record the best material. She's one of country's top selling solo female recording acts.

Bill Monroe: After 50 years in the music business, Bill Monroe is officially recognized by the Country Music Hall of Fame and by resolution of the U.S. Senate as the creator and chief proponent of the bluegrass style of music. At 75, he is still playing and creating. Born in 1911, Monroe is the youngest of eight children. The lonesome themes in his songs are traced to his childhood, when because of poor vision, he was unable to play baseball with local boys. His family background is quite musical. His mother sang and played harmonica, accordion, and fiddle. Her fiddle-playing brother, Pendleton, was made subject matter in the song "Uncle Pen." Monroe's brothers all played music. At 10 years old, he picked up the mandolin. Monroe recalls two major influences that he later blended into bluegrass—his Uncle Pen's fiddle playing and the music of Arnold Schultz, a black guitarist and fiddler. In 1934, the Monroe brothers were doing local radio shows in the Carolinas when a telegram came from the Victor Co. reading: WE MUST HAVE THE MONROE BROTHERS ON RECORDS STOP WE WON'T TAKE NO FOR AN ANSWER STOP ANSWER REQUESTED. The brothers were so successful locally they ignored the offer, but were eventually recorded on Victor, later moving to Columbia. In 1949, he moved again to Decca. Throughout his years in bluegrass, his music evolved with the times.

The Oak Ridge Boys: Release of the Oaks' "Heart-beat" album marked their 16th album since their country arrival and signing with MCA Records in 1977 (then ABC/Dot). Recent changes in the group include Steve Sanders' replacement of Bill Golden in the group. Sanders offers a youthful energy behind a soulful singing style. Since the group's beginning in Knoxville in early 1945, they've gone through more than 40 members, including two complete disband-ments, and they've crossed into both country and gospel styles.

Riders In The Sky: The western trio includes Too Slim; Woody Paul, king of the cowboy fiddlers; and Ranger Doug, idol of American youth. Their act includes jokes, skits, funny songs, and western songs. They got their start in the late '70s. They moved from one night a week at a small Nashville bluegrass club to a nationally-known act without the exposure of a major record label. They made eight albums and performed over 1,600 shows, including festivals, colleges, fairs, conventions, and club dates. The Riders made frequent appearances on the Nashville Network and are regular members of the Grand Ole Opry. They appeared with Jessica Lange in the 1985 film "Sweet Dreams." Their MCA debut "The Cowboy Way" was recorded in Nashville at a studio, where all their friends were invited for tacos, free beer, and an evening of harmony and humor in the tradition of Western movie music and live radio comedy.

Dennis Robbins: Robbins grew up in Hazelwood, N.C. and began playing guitar at age 12 with basic roots stemming from bluegrass. After spending two years with the Marines, he started playing clubs that took him from city to city across the eastern part of the U.S., during which time he worked with several bands and was featured on slide guitar during concert tours. In 1984 he moved to Nashville and landed a job playing in a bar just south of Nashville. Producer Eddie Kilroy happened to catch his show and got some of Robbins' tapes to Jimmy Bowen. Shortly after, he was signed to MCA. "The First Of Me" is his debut album.

John Schneider: Schneider popped on the music scene in 1981 with traditional country style. After several years of success in theater, commercial acting, and television acting as Bo Duke in the CBS series "The Dukes Of Hazzard," the 32-year old Mt. Kisco, N.Y. native set out for a career in country music. He was signed to CBS Records, where he completed five albums, and during which time he produced two TV network specials, "John Schneider's Christmas" and "John Schneider Back Home." In 1984, he moved from CBS to MCA Records, made a few technical changes and headed back to the charts. Most recently, he has formed the production company Trails End Productions and plans to produce movies with independent producer Earl Owensby. He tours much of the time and contributes many hours to charitable causes.

Ray Stevens: A native of Georgia, Stevens moved to Nashville in 1962. He worked on sessions around town singing background vocals and playing piano. The country comedian's first successful release was titled "Jeremiah Peabody's Poly-Unsaturated Quick Dissolving Fast Acting Pleasant Tasting Green And Purple Pills." He confirmed his talent with later follow-ups like "The Streak," "Ahab The Arab," and "Would Jesus Wear A Rolex." Stevens does have a serious side, too. That serious side revealed exquisite production and arranging talents and earned him the respect of his peers. He was awarded Grammys for "Everything Is Beautiful" and "Misty." Forty-nine year-old Stevens has released six albums for MCA, all of which are comedy styled.

AN OPEN LETTER TO JIMMY BOWEN AND BRUCE HINTON

Dear Jimmy and Bruce:

In the 20 years Jerry Clower and I have had a working relationship with MCA Records, we've seen a lot of good folks come and go. But I want you to know that, in my opinion, the team you have on the field at the moment is by far the best group of pros to ever work at MCA Records.

To you two guys, and also the other men and women who make up MCA Records/Nashville, I want to thank you for all you do for Jerry Clower and me, and let you know we consider it a great privilege to be your teammates in the music industry.

Onward and upward!

Sincerely,

major artists including Strait, McEntire, Conway Twitty and Williams, four of the field's leading singers.

•Led Nashville in an unprecedented revolution of upgrading in recording studio equipment so that the city now boasts eight rooms that he considers among the world's best.

•Gave Tony Brown the green light to launch MCA's "Master Series," recordings which have featured many of the world's top acoustic instrumentalists making music that ranges from country to Caribbean, from light jazz to new age.

•Blazed the trail for Nashville to become a leading world center for the production of digital recordings and led the way among Nashville labels in the production of CDs.

•Produced 74 top 20 singles and 16 top 10 LPs for MCA during his first 43 months with the label, a total that included 26 No. 1 singles and nine No. 1 LPs.

Jimmy Bowen was born Nov. 30, 1937, in Santa Rita, New Mexico. The family moved to Dumas, Texas soon after, in time for him to attend elementary school there and become tight with Don "Dirt" Lanier, his associate throughout many of his several music careers.

He gained his first musical fame with Buddy Knox, playing on "Party Doll" in 1957 and singing "I'm Stickin' With You," a ditty that hit No. 14 on the Billboard Hot 100 that same year. Three more chart singles followed before he realized his future in the music industry lay in non-performing areas. A number of years of dues-paying in the biz followed before Bowen found himself producing Dean Martin hits like "Everybody Needs Somebody," "The Door Is Still Open To My Heart" and "Houston" in 1964 and 1965. He went on to earn a dozen gold albums producing Dino before working his magic with the "Chairman of the Board" himself: Frank Sinatra. Bowen and Sinatra collaborated on two gold platters and "Strangers In The Night" resulted in 1966.

Between then and his move to Nashville, Bowen also launched the career of Kenny Rogers & the First Edition, produced three LPs on the spaced-out West Coast Pop Art Experimental Band, gave members of the Eagles their first break in the business and started his own label, Amos Records ("it stands for Artists, Music and Other Shit").

He decided, for various reasons, to move to Nashville in 1976. But he didn't just show up one day and say, "howdy folks, I'm a big L.A. producer who has worked with Sinatra, Martin and Sammy Davis Jr. and I'm gonna be a big country producer." No, he spent a year living in Eureka Springs, Arkansas, studying the country market and the attitudes of country consumers. During this period he also made frequent scouting trips to Music City, before settling there in 1977.

And when Bowen arrived here to stay, in a car with a broken muffler, he didn't act like an L.A. big shot, he simply eased into the local flow, setting up shop at Glaser Studios, famed hangout of renegades like Waylon Jennings, Tompall Glaser and Billy Joe Shaver.

His first Nashville-produced hits came with Mel Tillis and Roy Head. Then, in 1979, Bowen and Hank Williams Jr. unleashed "Family Tradition," a single that became a signature song for the singer and a rallying anthem for Williams' youthful fans.

Williams racked up eight gold albums with Bowen as producer, an association which yielded gems like "A Country Boy Can Survive," "Man Of Steel" and "I'm For Love."

His ability as a producer thus proven, Bowen went on to rack up staggering numbers of hit records, all the while running various labels. In many cases he would be producing other label's acts at the same time!

But all this success hasn't come easily for Bowen nor has it always won him friends. He has always insisted on doing business his way—and his way was not always the way many local industry figures were accustomed to doing things. "They don't understand me," he laments. "I don't own a publishing company. I don't have a part of any artist."

Such candor has not always won him the admiration of his peers nor has it earned him flattering imitations: "We're still kind of the oddballs for spending more money on the product than everybody else," he admits. "What's amazing is we're still the only ones in town doing it this way. If this were any other kind of music there'd be several other people doing what we're doing—'cause it works."

How can anyone produce a dozen albums a year (an average load for him) and also run a major record label? That alone is pretty amazing—so is the fact that Bowen doesn't even have an office at MCA! It makes perfect sense however when you consider the fact that he spends well over half his time in the studio—the arena where the system flourishes most fully. Asked to explain his success as a producer, Bowen says, "It's experience, 30 years of helping artists with their music and learning, after all those years, how to set up an organization."

Teamwork is the key to Bowen's success, both as a producer and as a label executive. The music that you hear on Bowen-produced records comes from the efforts of several co-producers (often including the artist), over half a dozen highly-trained first and second engineers, a couple of dozen top-flight Nashville and Los Angeles musicians, and Don Lanier, a vice president of a&r who starts the entire process by ferreting out the songs for Bowen and the artist to dress up so well.

(Lanier recalls that "when I was 11 or maybe 12, my mother told me to 'always stick with Jimmy Bowen.' I asked her just a few years back what she meant by that remark. 'Cause he's just serious enough,' was her reply.")

Bruce Hinton, another longtime Bowen friend and associate, holds the fort at the label office, overseeing day-to-day administration as well as the key promotion department. Tony Brown, one of Nashville's hottest young producers, takes plenty of turns in the studio, and he also heads up the label's innovative Master Series.

As you can see Bowen's "method" is to find the right people for the job, train them to do things as he would do them, and then turn them loose to do it. Meanwhile, he stays in constant touch by phone with both the Nashville and Los Angeles office of MCA and then ducks back into one of the studios he frequents to crank out the hits, all the while training engineers, artists and less experienced producers.

MCA, under Bowen, has also been quite innovative in their work to sell the records after they are released. Here, for instance, is the past and future thinking on MCA's country CD product: "We tried 15-song CDs; that didn't work out well. The 'two-fers' worked to a degree, but only if the price stays up. Now we have a midline price CD, with 10 or 11 songs, to sell at under $10. And this year we're coming with a second midline price below that, retailing at the $8.50 range. 1988 will be the biggest year yet for CD sales—but it will be for disks under $10."

The Master Series is another example of bold thinking. "I think we'll do over $3 million there in 1988. I hope it will be a $10 million part of our business in 1990... We're starting to develop artists who will be meaningful over the next 15, 20 years." Jon Goin and a new "acoustic supergroup" join the Master Series stable in 1988.

New talent is the lifeblood of any company and, in the past two years alone MCA has introduced such heralded new acts as Steve Earle, Lyle Lovett, the Desert Rose Band, Patty Loveless and Nanci Griffith. That policy will continue in 1988 with the release of debut albums by two extraordinarily talented writer/artists: Karen Staley and Skip Ewing, both set for spring release.

What else is coming up for MCA in 1988? "We'll be doing more concentrated marketing campaigns with an outside marketing/advertising firm. They'll be along the lines of our 1987 'Swing Into Profits' campaign, tied in with baseball. We had hoped to do $12 million in that campaign—we did $19.

"James Stroud joined us as a staff producer in January. Also, we've hired Chuck Rhodes from KVIL in Dallas, one of the top AC stations in the U.S. He will help take the right things to AC radio and he'll be working the 'Wave' stations with the things from our Master Series that fit there as well as AC stations which play some light jazz."

No chat with Bowen would be complete without a few zingers and this visit was no exception: "There's nobody in town in the record business paying attention to the general record business. I don't think they've heard Springsteen or John Mellencamp or Bon Jovi. They don't have these people at their house, and that's frightening. They need young wives. But that's frightening. How can you be a tit on the hog and not know about the hog?"

"Influences? If Springsteen and John Mellencamp haven't been influenced by a couple of hillbillies in the last year nobody ever has. Listen to their music... ZZ Top country? Shit, listen to them, they almost are now!"

If a person were to take a vote and ask everyone in the Nashville music business to raise their hands if they have ever been hopping mad about something Jimmy Bowen has done, chances are you'd probably see a show of about 80%-90%. And if you asked them then to raise their hands again if they felt that he has been good for the city, you'd see an even higher percentage of hands in the air.

Time will tell whether Jimmy Bowen one day wins election to the Country Music Hall of Fame, as his achievements merit. Inevitably, history will view Bowen's work in a far more benevolent light than do his contemporaries, once the hubbub has died down over his production expenditures (averaging $125,000 or so per frontline LP) and his candid opinions. He'll take his place alongside the other Nashville legends, and, until that time we will have his music to savor and his remarks to ponder. One wishes all the Nashville label bosses were this talented—and colorful!

neered the approach of national country radio campaigns for artists and became the top operation of its kind in the country. The company also specialized in marketing major country music-oriented movies such as "Every Which Way But Loose," "Electric Horseman," and "Urban Cowboy." The production company, Hin-Jen Productions, featured the talents of Jim Ed Norman and scored hits for such acts as Michael Martin Murphey, Mickey Gilley, and Johnny Lee.

MCA's Irving Azoff and Jimmy Bowen, who had long since moved to Nashville and was about to take over MCA's Nashville reins, called Hinton and made "the proverbial offer that couldn't be refused," according to Hinton who adds, "I'm glad in a lot of ways that I made the move to Nashville. We're enjoying the label's best year in history here, and, personally, the lifestyle is wonderful."

The L.A.-turned-New York-turned-L.A.-turned-Nashville executive has discussed Nashville/L.A. parallels with others who have migrated to Nashville from the west coast. "From around 1968 to the early '70s, Hollywood was what Nashville is now in terms of lifestyle. All the studios were within four or five blocks, and you could walk from Wally Heider's over to RCA and see 10 people you knew. It was a little village. That's long since gone in Hollywood, but thankfully that tight knit musical community idea is in full bloom here."

Ironically, the person who first brought Bruce Hinton to Nashville was Billboard's Hal Cook. "It was for a country music week back in 1964," Hinton recalls, then emphasizes how Nashville has grown over the past 24 years—as a metropolitan city and as a music village.

And just how did MCA soar to the top of the Billboard chart listings? "It starts with the music," advises Hinton. "Bowen and Tony Brown—the a&r team—gave us the music. It was good and delivered in a timely fashion so that we could plan and market our product." Hinton, going on two decades in his relationship with Bowen, still marvels at the man who has almost singlehandedly propelled Nashville into the nuclear digital studio age. "In the rock'n'roll field, one of your superstar acts may not give you an album for two years. When you have Bowen around the music, it gets delivered when it's supposed to be delivered. I can have a fall program with some lead horses that accounts will get excited about because Bowen will make sure that the product is there. When it's good and gets delivered on time, synergy comes out of that."

The other key to the label's success, according to Hinton, is the MCA staff. "When Bowen and I arrived at MCA, we were able to hand-pick the best person for each position. Consequently, we now have a group of professionals who, under the MCA banner, have come together as the most formidable team I've seen in my years in the music business. From promotion to a&r, production to marketing, sales to administration, art to publicity, to the mailroom, we've got the best folks taking the music to the streets."

Buoyed by the remarkable upswing in MCA fortunes, Hinton looks to even greater days ahead. "We have a remarkably diversified roster. I think we'll see some of our new young talent make it in a very meaningful way. I expect we'll see our sophomore acts crash all the way through. We're working to take our mid-level acts to consistent gold record status. And I think you'll see career-making albums from several of our artists this year."

The MCA Master Series, the high-quality program of jazz- and pop-oriented releases, has resulted in the release of many critically acclaimed albums that have gained deserved chart attention, including No. 1 on Billboard's jazz chart. Citing the success of such non-country product from the often stereotyped country citadel of Nashville, Hinton beams with pride: "Nashville is a special city and music center. The Master Series is one way of saying that to the world."

Hinton's personal and professional goals are closely intertwined. And they're summed up by his pledge, "We're No. 1, and the goal is to stay No. 1."

The odd-couple chemistry of Bowen and Hinton, spiced by the talent of Tony Brown and the supporting cast of MCA characters, employees and stars alike, just might make Hinton's goals become a reality.

Carlton, and September moved forward with five releases: "Changing Channels" by Jerry Douglas; "Jubilee" by the Utley/Greenidge duo; "Gagged But Not Bound" by Albert Lee; "Fall Sampler '87;" and the Billy Joe Walker Jr. debut "Treehouse," a collection of the popular session guitarist's composition and production talents.

Spring 1988 will be off and running with the release of yet another five in March: Giles Reaves, Acoustic Alchemy, a sampler, a debut release by guitarist Jon Goin, and a project titled "Guitar Stars," a compilation that will include compositions by Carlton, Acoustic Alchemy, Walker, Lee, and Douglas.

Master Series albums are released in the spring and fall each year. Samplers are marketed equally as enthusiastically as the individual works. According to Brown, "the samplers are some of the best sellers. And, sales overall for the Master Series have increased extremely well and are getting better thanks to the Wave format, which plays this kind of music in heavy rotation."

Brown plans to continue with the "eclectic blends, but we'll possibly pursue some of the more commercial avenues than we have in the past, on certain acts. I am entertaining thoughts of select vocals."

George Strait. Strait's first single was released six years ago, and from that point he went straight to the top. He and his Ace In The Hole Band are credited with breaking venue sellout records. His album "Ocean Front Property" was the first album to ever debut on Billboard's country album chart at No. 1 (it remained there for five consecutive weeks), and he was ACM and CMA male vocalist of the year for two consecutive years. His mixture of swing and honky-tonk country warm the soul and renew traditional country spirits.

Conway Twitty: With 53 No. 1s under his belt, Twitty has hit nearly every style of popular music. Twitty's father, who was a riverboat pilot, started teaching his son guitar chords at age 4. The family resided in the town of Friars Point, a small Mississippi river town, where he was influenced by the gospel sounds from a black church as well as the radio cast of the Grand Ole Opry. He got his first band together when he was 10 and two years later landed his own radio show locally broadcast every Saturday morning. After a stay in the Army, he headed for Sun Studios in Memphis and hit with a teen ballad titled "It's Only Make Believe," released on MGM in 1958. Eight years later he switched to country and moved to Decca (later MCA). In 1982 he moved to Warner Bros. (at that time Elektra) and worked on his first TV special "Conway Twitty On The Mississippi." He has since returned to MCA Records. As a businessman, he is involved in music publishing, restaurants, and a travel agency. In addition, he holds stock in three minor league baseball teams and is founder of "Twitty City," a nine-acre tourist complex located on the outskirts of Nashville and the site of his home and those of his four children.

Steve Wariner: Wariner was signed to his first recording contract (RCA) by Chet Atkins. That agreement produced his first No. 1 with "All Roads Lead To You." Known as a balladeer and guitarist, Wariner got his start playing guitar and singing in a country band that was formed by his father. His father allowed the 10-year-old to play on weekends. When he was 17, he opened a set for Dottie West and following the show she asked him to join her on the road, replacing her resigning bassist. After working with West he spent three years working with singer Bob Luman, a gig that led to his apprenticeship with Atkins. His guitar playing dreams include doing an instrumental album someday.

New to the MCA Nashville roster in 1988 are:

Ethel & the Shameless Hussies: A unique female trio who bring a sense of humor to their music. Currently at work on an album for 1988 release.

Skip Ewing: A talented singer-songwriter who has already supplied hits for George Jones, George Strait, Charley Pride and Keith Whitley. His first single, "Your Memory Wins Again," has just shipped. His debut LP, "Coast Of Colorado," will be out in April.

Johnny Gimble: Undoubtedly the most recognized fiddle player to come out of Texas in the last 30 years. The CMA "Instrumentalist of the Year" is set to release an album for MCA Nashville this year.

Hillary Kanter: A singer-songwriter who's had songs recorded by T.G. Sheppard, Dolly Parton, the Oak Ridge Boys, Marie Osmond, and Eddie Rabbitt. Look for a single to be released later this spring.

Karen Staley: A singer-songwriter who has sung back-up on tour with Reba McEntire and penned Michael Martin Murphey and Holly Dunn's smash "Face In The Crowd." Her debut album, "Wildest Dreams," is set for early summer release.

Family. Kapp later signed Ernest Tubb and more hits followed. Paul Cohen came to Nashville in 1945 to direct Decca's country thrust. Red Foley soon joined the roster as Owen Bradley started producing for the label. Bill Monroe signed in the '50s and Kitty Wells soon became the queen of country music. She laid the ground work for such distaff artists as Patsy Cline, Brenda Lee, and Loretta Lynn. Decca later became MCA, and in 1979, absorbed ABC Records, leading to additional growth under Jim Foglesong's direction. Now led by Bowen, Hinton et al., MCA has surged to the top of the pack. That's not an easy position to reach—or to maintain—because of the splendid caliber of competition. But, judging from the success patterns of the past, the impressive activities of the present, and the potent potentialities of the future, MCA Nashville's spot at the top not only is well-earned, but also could be well-entrenched.

BMG Pub Unit Gets Songs To Pitch Haggard, Pennington Catalogs Included

NASHVILLE Within a week of opening a publishing office here in late January, the Bertelsmann Music Group found itself with plenty of country material to pitch. Through BMG's Arista Music in Los Angeles, the Nashville office became partial custodian of Merle Haggard's Shade Tree and Mount Shasta collections, J.P. Pennington's Pacific Island catalog, and more than 600 Window Music copyrights.

Arista/BMG administers the Haggard and Pennington properties and owns Window. Pennington is one of the founders and lead singer of the group Exile. The Window catalog contains songs by Ed Bruce, Linda Hargrove, Larry Kingston, Frank Dycus, and others.

Henry Hurt, vice president of Arista Music, is running the Nashville operation. Chuck Bedwell is professional manager, and Sharon Percifull is office manager. Hurt comes to BMG after 17 years with Chappell in Nashville. Percifull also worked at Chappell. Bedwell moves to the publishing operation from RCA Records.

BMG is bidding for the Dejamus and Nashlon catalogs here also, Hurt confirms.

Hurt has signed Rick Peoples and Bob Morrison as writers, but the company will administer rather than own Morrison's songs. "We've been open a week," Hurt says, "and I've had 25 writers call for appointments. We're really structured to be a small environment for writers. Four or five writers are all we can handle without increasing our staff." Hurt says he will also deal with writers on a song-by-song basis.

The office has tape-duplication facilities but no demo studio. Hurt argues that it makes more sense for an operation the size of his to rent studio time for demos. He adds that Nashville's current enthusiasm for traditional tunes makes the demos of most of the catalog songs useful as are. For others, he says, new demos will have to be made before he can pitch them.

The Arista office in Los Angeles will continue to pitch country material, too, Hurt says.

EDWARD MORRIS

Former Child Prodigy Is Consummate Professional On Stage Brenda Lee To Star In Opryland Show

"ENTERTAINMENT LEGEND Brenda Lee will headline a major stage production at Opryland USA from late March through October," boasts a news release from the Nashville theme park. "'Little Miss Dynamite' will appear in a Broadway-sized production called 'Music! Music! Music! Starring Brenda Lee' that is performed in the 1,600-seat Acuff Theater." The release goes on to mention that the show, which focuses on the U.S.A.'s three major music-producing centers—Nashville, Broadway, and Hollywood—features a cast of 22 singers and dancers, a 16-piece orchestra, and special effects.

Now, as Paul Harvey says, the rest of the story.

Lee is one of the greatest singers ever to grace the U.S. rock, pop, and country stages. And unlike many child prodigies whose lives turn sour shortly after puberty, she has shown equal grace as wife, mother, friend, and continuing chanteuse.

Born Brenda Mae Tarpley Dec. 11, 1944, in Atlanta, Lee showed fascination with radio music when she was only 8 months old. When she was 3, she could mimic parts of songs, and at the advanced age of 5, she could sing entire songs. She made her stage debut at that age by singing "Take Me Out To The Ballgame" and winning a school talent contest. The tot gained a weekly stint on an Atlanta radio show and began her television career the following year. Now, advancing to the ripe old age of 10, Lee appeared on Peanut Faircloth's TV series. The Augusta, Ga., DJ brought Lee to the attention of Red Foley and manager Dub Albritton. Soon Lee was belting out her songs on Foley's ABC-TV show "Ozark Jubilee." Her fame spread with appearances on TV shows hosted by Perry Como, Steve Allen, and Ed Sullivan.

When she was barely a dozen years old, Lee began her recording career with Decca in Nashville. She charted in 1957 with "One Step At A Time" but two years later was still hitless. In a brilliant managerial move, Albritton sent Lee to Paris, hoping international recognition would spur U.S. action. The plot initially seemed doomed when the French promoter, thinking he was getting an adult star, balked at putting on a 14-year-old kid. Undaunted, Albritton planted Paris media stories that Lee was a 32-year-old midget, then denied those rumors, stirring up enough controversy to send ticket sales soaring. Her performance was so captivating that she was held over. Then she scorched her way back to the States as an international star. "Sweet Nothings" climbed to No. 4 on the pop-charts. Soon she followed with a pair of No. 1 songs—"I'm Sorry" and "I Want To Be Wanted." She pop-charted 100 times, including three trips (in '60, '61, and '62) for one of those inane novelty Christmas songs that emerged from the spleen of the '60s—"Rockin' Around The Christmas Tree." Her country chart record is equally impressive, though in the last few years she has been conspicuously absent from the rankings she deserves.

Lee is one of the most polished, professional in-person performers I have ever witnessed. She can charm an audience, make them laugh, make them cry, make them love her—with an ease and power that's awe inspiring.

Her Opryland shows should be masterpieces worthy of Broadway—just as most singers should take it as a compliment if it is said that their talent is on a par with Lee's.

NEWSNOTES: Tanya Tucker and producer Jerry Crutchfield recently spent time in the Compass Point Studio, Nassau, the Bahamas, recording her third album for Capitol Records. The first single and title track from her current album, "Love Me Like You Used To," attracted a Grammy nomination for best female country vocal performance.

Larry Boone and veteran producer Ray Baker recently completed Boone's self-titled debut album for PolyGram. Boone contributed four songs to the March release. Other writers included Jimbeau Hinson, Mel Tillis, Dave Gibson, and Tommy Rocco.

The Affordable Art tour: Johnny Cash and Waylon Jennings will be joined by June Carter Cash, Jessi Colter, and a four-piece band on a college concert tour Feb. 21-24.

Mickey Newbury's latest recordings, titled "A Legend In A New Age," have been acquired by Airborne Records. The album, produced by Larry Butler, will include new digitally recorded versions of "American Trilogy," "San Francisco Mabel Joy," and "All My Trials."

Nicolette Larson performed recently at the Paradise Club in Aspen, Colo., where she got a visit from her pal Jimmy Buffett. He proceeded to sit in with the band for the entire show, including the encore duet with Larson titled "Third Rate Romance."

CMA Adds Awards Category For Vocal Event Of The Year

NASHVILLE The Country Music Assn. has added a new category to its annual awards lineup. And in related developments, the group's board of directors has approved an awards-related promotion for its radio-station members and has OK'd the publication of CMA-related song books.

All three actions were taken during the board's meeting here Jan. 6-7. The new awards category—dubbed vocal event of the year—will be open to recorded performances by two or more individuals who work primarily as solo acts. The vocal-duo-of-the-year category, which previously embraced this group of performances, will now be open only to acts that are regularly composed of two people. This adds the number of categories to 12.

In still another related move, the board renamed the instrumental-of-the-year award, which will now be called musician of the year, and agreed to open voting for this honor to the entire CMA membership. Previously, voting for this award was limited to CMA's musician and artist members.

To increase radio's involvement in the annual CMA awards show, the board approved a promotional package for member stations that will include taped promos, discounted hotel rates and air fares, and a brunch and photo/autograph session with artists the day after the awards presentation. A limited

Rosanne,

A lot of people have made such a big deal out of the fact that you didn't know that I wrote "Tennessee Flat Top Box" when you recorded it.

I'm glad you didn't.

It tells me still another nice thing about you. You have always been your own person — even when you were five years old.

You never took me for granted. I think you always loved me almost as much as I love you. If that's possible.

But you had your own dreams, your own goals, your own hopes and cares.

I could never put into words how much it meant to me that you recorded my song.

Your own "My Old Man" is one of my lifes greatest joys, but your success with "Tennessee Flat Top Box" is one of my lifes greatest fulfillments.

GO AHEAD... MAKE OUR YEAR!

In 1988, more than ever, CBS Records Nashville is committed to giving radio the best music ever.

And radio is giving us our best year ever!

Vern Gosdin, "Do You Believe Me Now". His Columbia debut, and his biggest hit ever.

George Jones, "The Bird". The legend continues. Flying high on the charts.

Ricky Skaggs, "(Angel On My Mind) That's Why I'm Walkin'". An American original—back to basics!

Libby Hurley, "You Just Watch Me". The title says it all for this upcoming star.

Shenandoah, "Stop The Rain". A hit that's easy to forecast.

The Shooters, "I Taught Her Everything She Knows About Love". Their surest shot to date.

Rodney Crowell, "It's Such A Small World". Joined by Rosanne Cash! Like you have never before heard him.

Darden Smith, "Little Maggie". Hot new Austin talent, produced by Ray Benson.

The O'Kanes, "One True Love". The perfect way to kick off their second album.

Rosanne Cash, "If You Ever Change Your Mind". Another contender from "King's Record Shop".

Tammy Wynette, "Talk To Myself Again". And singing with The O'Kanes!

Exile, "Feel Like Frolin' Around". Following up their newest.

YOU'VE ALREADY STARTED
SOMETHING! THANKS

"BUGS BUNNY has another hit act on his hands," says MD Bob Kelly, KYKN Salem, Ore., referring to Warner Bros.' newest chart challengers, the McCarters. Their recent appearance on Dolly Parton's ABC variety show, "Dolly," provided a boost with a national showcase for "Timeless And True Love," now charted at No. 34.

"A very tasty arrangement—strong lyrics, good harmonies—they have everything they need to go all the way," says PD Greg Mozingo, WLWI Montgomery, Ala.

ATLANTA loves the new Reba McEntire release, says WKHX MD Johnny Gray. "I'm so glad she has an up-tempo release this time in 'Love Will Find It's Way To You' [MCA]; it sounds great on the air."

"She can do no wrong in Texas," says MD Ken Curtis, KYKX Longview, Texas. "She's definitely country's next superstar." McEntire is charted this week at No. 25.

VINCE GILL IS MAKING WAVES with "Everybody's Sweetheart" (RCA). The song, which Gill wrote, no doubt was inspired by his wife, Janis, one-half of the swinging Sweethearts Of The Rodeo (Columbia). "We're really excited about it—it's one of the best things Vince has ever done," says MD Kelly at KYKN. PD Bob Mitchell, KFRE Fresno, Calif., is getting good early response on it as well. Gill is charted at No. 48.

Mitchell is also highly complimentary of Waylon Jennings' "If Old Hank Could Only See Us Now" (MCA), charted at No. 47. "The fans here have voted him their No. 1 priority artist, and this song has a lot going for it—it's up-tempo, fun, and has a sense of humor. I want to call him up and thank him," Mitchell says.

REGIONAL ACTION: "It could be just the shot the Shooters need," says MD Dave Wright, WPCV Lakeland, Fla., of "I Taught Her Everything She Knows About Love" (Epic), No. 55 this week.

"Unattended Fire" (SOA) is lighting up the phones at WKKQ, Hibbing, Minn., with Razzy Bailey requests. MD Pam Quinn reports a lot of excitement about it: "They love an upbeat song this time of year, and Razzy fits right in."

"It's a timely release," says MD Gary Hightower, KFDI Wichita, Kan., of Pinkard & Bowden's "Satellite Dish" (Warner Bros.). "If enough people will just listen, it could really take off."

2 More Hank Williams Albums Released Polydor Double Albums Conclude 8-Volume Series

NASHVILLE Polydor Records has released the final two volumes in an eight-volume series of Hank Williams records. The series is designed to cover Williams' entire recorded output in chronological order and in the original, undubbed form.

The final two double-record sets are "Let's Turn Back The Years: July 1951-June 1952" and "I Won't Be Home No More: June 1952-September 1952." Williams died Jan. 1, 1953.

Some of the material in the series has never been released before, according to its compilers.

Tim Rogers, PolyGram's manager of catalog development, served as executive producer of the project, working with representatives of Nashville's Country Music Foundation to gather the material and document its history.

Featured on the final two volumes are the "midnight demos" of gospel songs recorded at the Williams boarding house in Montgomery, Ala., demo versions of "House Of Gold" and "Wearin' Out Your Walkin' Shoes," a previously unreleased version of "Ready To Go Home," and an apology from Williams for missing a performance in Baltimore.

number of tickets to the show will also be available to the stations. Participating stations will conduct their own giveaway promotions for the tickets.

The packages will be sent to member stations in June, and tickets will be available on a first-come, first-served basis.

Warner Bros. Music was given permission to publish a group of folios this year in honor of the CMA's 30th anniversary. The folios will contain sheet music with lyrics and photos and biographies of artists. Permission was also given to the Hal Leonard Co. to publish and market a second edition of "The Award Winning Songs Of The Country Music Association." The first edition of this song book was released in 1983.

CMA's remaining 1988 board meetings are scheduled for April 13-17 in Phoenix, Ariz., and July 13-14 in Minneapolis. The 1989 meetings are set for San Diego (January); Jacksonville, Fla. (April); and Munich, West Germany (July).

COUNTRY'S CLARION CALL—THINK GREAT RADIO RATHER THAN GREAT COUNTRY

Dwight Yoakam, right, visits WYNY-FM N.Y. morning man Scott Carpenter before bringing country-rock to the Ritz in Manhattan.

By all accounts, country radio is in a very healthy phase right now. Against the backdrop of country music's supposed "demise" in the mid-'80s, the format has been fired-up by a steady flow of fresh talent from Nashville over the last two years.

Given the current climate of advertiser obsession with 25-54 demographics, country radio's longtime success with adults makes the format well-poised to exploit the maturation of the baby boom that will dominate buying decisions for the next several years.

Increased competition in the radio business in general has forced programmers to think in terms of creating great overall radio rather than great country radio. This is particularly true in the growing number of major markets where just one station or broadcast group carries the country flag.

All of this is not to say that the format is without its woes. The biggest of those is an old foe: the notion often held by media buyers that country listeners are not attractive consumers.

Those observing the format nationally sported big smiles after WYNY New York pulled a 2.7 share in the fall '87 Arbitrons. Country has not performed too well in Gotham since the "Urban Cowboy" boom, and gains made there will hopefully be noticed by the advertising capital of the world, Madison Avenue.

Alabama's Randy Owen (No. 29 right) joins WYAY-FM Atlanta (Y106-FM) air staff for two-day radiothon that raised $540,000 for St. Jude's Children's Research Hospital.

Now celebrating its 30th anniversary, the Country Music Assn. is waging big battle against those negative perceptions, says the group's Ed Benson. But, ultimately, it will be the collective force of individual stations changing the minds of local buyers and national reps.

"The format is in a very good state," says WMZQ-FM Washington PD Bob McNeill, who says that media folk

STATION PROMOS: CASH, CARS, COUPONS—TURKEYS MAKING HAY BY GIVING IT ALL AWAY

As everyone knows, one of the keys to successful programming is a station's ability to come up with new and innovative ways to attract and maintain its listeners. What works best for one country station in terms of giveaways and promotions, however, might be anathema for another.

"We tend to give away lots of cash," says Joan Hayes, promotion director for KIKK Houston. "Five years ago we focused more on prizes, cars, etc., but we found that people wanted cash the most. We also do a lot of listener appreciation-type promotions, like free concerts and other outdoor events."

Hayes says that past concerts sponsored by the station included such top country entertainers as Dwight Yoakam, George Strait, Ronnie Milsap, and T.G. Sheppard, with some shows drawing up to a whopping 30,000 people.

Over the last few years, KIKK has tried to simplify its promotions and has gotten more "single-minded" in its approach, according to program director Jim Robertson. "We tend to do one giveaway at a time, instead of 14 million at once," he says. "A lot of people are starting to do this, particularly with adult-targeted stations."

"We were one of the pioneers of a campaign that we launched last January in cooperation with Southwestern Bell," says Shari Bishop-Rios, promotion director for KRKT AM/FM Albany, Ore. "It's a chance-type promotion. If a listener wins $100, they have the chance to give it back and go for a $1,000, in which the insurance policy costs us $75. If they win and go a third time for $10,000, it costs us $750." One such company that is offering these insurance policies is Dallas-based SCA Promotions.

Bishop-Rios says that in 1987 the station gave away more than $170,000 in cash with the "KASE Coupon" contest. "It's been a great promotion and our books have reflected that," she says. "We were one of the first to go with it, and other stations have since followed suit."

In fact the promotion has been so successful for KASE that "listeners would not let us kill it," says Bishop-Rios. "If we gave it a backseat, listeners would go wild. It's an excellent way to tie advertisers into it and an excellent traffic builder at retail outlets."

Another type of promotion that is becoming popular is insured promotions, whereby stations can buy insurance policies to guarantee listeners' cash prizes. "We're going to start using [that type of promotion] this spring," says Scott St. John, promotion director for KRKT AM/FM Albany, Ore. "It's a chance-type promotion. If a listener wins $100, they have the chance to give it back and go for a $1,000, in which the insurance policy costs us $75. If they win and go a third time for $10,000, it costs us $750." One such company that is offering these insurance policies is Dallas-based SCA Promotions.

The type of promotion that has created the most excitement for WMTZ Augusta, Ga., were two similar seasonal contests that were done in cooperation with Kroger, a regional grocery store chain. "Around Thanksgiving time, we got a list of phone numbers [of predetermined locations], and listeners would have to be there at a certain time and answer 'Z-94 Kroger, gobble, gobble' to win a turkey," says Bill Berry, general manager for the station. "We would give clues over the air to zero in on where the phone would ring; we would use phone booths in malls and other public locations. We did a similar promotion during Christmas, with a ham. In that case they had to answer 'Z-94 Christmas Kroger, oink, oink.'"

Both promotions were so successful that in some cases, "15 to 20 people lined up to answer the phone," he says. "It created a lot of excitement in the area."

Whatever type of promotion the station does, however, the goal is to "try to build audience participation," says Berry. "Our competitor here is 24-years-old and we're only four-years-old. So we've got to build audience participation and average quarter-hour listenership. We've been going up in the books, and it's been things of this nature that's done it."

According to Andy Oatman, promotion director and afternoon-drive personality for KFDI Wichita, Kan., "One thing that's been worked into our promotions over the last year is our country club stickers. We incorporate them into all our promotions. If we're presenting an area show and people have a KFDI sticker on their car, then they have access to parking. That's been done in several instances. That's the thread that runs through most of our promos."

Oatman estimates that the stickers have increased KFDI's signage on cars the past year by 500%. "We gave away thousands of stickers throughout the year," he says. "We've had a few concert tie-ins, and gave away a car as part of the promotions where listeners had to have stickers their cars. We also have sticker-spotters, where we rattle off license plate numbers on the air and give away money."

Oatman says that the overall purpose of the stickers is to build awareness. "We have a high percentage of people that have our stickers. We use them for general promotion and to keep our name out there."

WWWW Detroit also tries to keep its name out in the community. "We've been doing a lot of the trade shows because there's a built-in crowd there and we try to capitalize on that," says Lori Converse, marketing director for the station. "We did seven last year—every market has their own trade shows. We usually get an indoor booth and broadcast live from there; we promote it on-air and have registration giveaways."

"We try to be very visible in the community. At Christmas time, we took an inside-store window at Sears and had a booth that we created into a display with a jock sitting in there, with snow blowing and a Christmas tree. We broadcast during store hours and people we asked to come down and donate gifts for our 'Holiday Crusade For Kids.'" is 25-54-year-old mainstream San Diegans. The only thing that's different about them is that they like country."

New York-based consultant Joel Raab says the late '80s will continue to be good years for country. "If you look at the lists of what's 'in' for 1988, you'll see that the basics and simplicity are in—staying at home, meat and potatoes, family life. And, there's nothing more simple and pure than country music."

On the music side, Raab predicts that the influx of new, and usually younger, country artists will help attract younger listeners to the format, thereby broadening their audiences and building a base of new listeners.

That same influx of artists has complicated things a bit, however. "It's tricky because the new artists do represent the future of the format, but we must be careful to expose them without neglecting the established stars that got the format where it is today. The good news for our established artists is that this return-to-basics lifestyle translates to a demand for a modern form of basic music. So, there's plenty of room for them too."

According to KSON's Shepard, continuance of the format's steady growth will be partially dependent upon continued improvements in recording techniques. "We still need to play catch up a bit in terms of the quality of the music," he says. "The country industry is still lagging behind in the production of CDs, for example."

Now that the process of re-gaining listeners that might have burned out during the "Urban Cowboy" phase is well underway, the format is all the more in need of sound quality on par with that used in other formats. "It's a much more sophisticated life group we're serving," says Shepard. "They're used to good music. They watch 'NBC's Nightly News' and see the quality of jingles and production elements. That's what they're accustomed to."

will be forced to take a more serious look at country in the near future. "You can't walk in and say I'm No. 1 25-54 and get the buy anymore. It's qualitative data. We go in and say that our station has more upper income people than any other station, and they're listening to it."

"The fact is that the country audience is very desirable demographically and psychographically. As one of its goals, each station must set out to convince buyers what the audience is all about."

At KSON San Diego, PD Mike Shepard says, "We were going after the quality aspect of [our demos] long before it was cool, and it's worked. The answer to those who say, 'Aren't all your listeners hicks?' is, 'Are there 300,000 hicks in San Diego?' The answer is no. Our audience

Personics' Custom-Cassette Unit Bows In Calif. Warehouse

BY ROBIN TOLLESON

MOUNTAIN VIEW, Calif. Personics' custom-cassette-making system, which has been in development for nearly four years, made its official debut at a Warehouse store here Jan. 18. (Billboard, Jan. 30).

Inside the store, customers can find a display with a rack of copies of the magazine Music Makers, a full-color publication from Personics that contains a catalog of songs available on the system and some brief features on groups whose music is available.

The main Personics display, about the size of two jukeboxes, features copies of compact disk jackets of available songs in bright colors across the top. The display has two "listening posts" that enable customers to punch in the catalog number of the desired selection. They can then don headphones and listen to a 15-second excerpt from the song.

The display is in the video section of the store, where it has received a lot of attention, says Greg Ballard, Personics' vice president of business activities. "It was completely by coincidence," he says. "They found putting it in the video section was a good idea."

At first, Ballard says, Warehouse customers weren't picking up Music Makers magazine because they assumed it was for sale. Personics quickly ordered stickers announcing the magazines were for free, and that solved the problem. "These are things you don't think of, sitting behind a desk," adds Ballard.

Customers select the songs they want on the tape, write down the catalog numbers and titles on an order form, and take the order form to the cashier. The selections are then entered onto a computer, and the customer checks the printout to make sure the correct songs are going on the tape. Getting a completed tape takes less than five minutes. High-bias TDK tapes are used. Recordings are made directly from CDs, Ballard says.

The Personics system, conceived of in 1983 by company president Charles Garvin, has developed a new hardware system for high-speed-planned-tape transfers. Songs are stored on what looks like a compact disk, although because of the encrypted digital data they do not conform to the Philips standard. Up to 240 disks can be stored in a 'Reaction from the majors is mixed'

Personics unit, which uses a Delta Link retrieval method developed from Dolby's Adaptive Delta Modulation System for satellite broadcasting. The custom-made cassette comes with a personalized label that includes the customer's name, the names of the songs, the songwriters, and the song publishers.

Most of the songs in the current catalog cost $1 each, although some are listed at 75 cents or 85 cents. Ballard says 50-cent songs will be added in March.

So far, most customers seem enthusiastic about the Personics system, according to Ballard and Warehouse staff. A sales clerk at the store says Warehouse was selling about 10 tapes a day during the first week.

Songs by many top artists, including Michael Jackson and Bruce Springsteen, are not yet available through Personics because CBS labels are not participating in the program. Ballard says WEA and CEMA labels, Enigma, and "at least 10 leading independent labels" have contributed songs to the pool.

"So far, the reaction from the majors has been mixed—some enthusiastic, some just watching," says Ballard. He says Personics has implemented advanced protection systems for recording company and artist compensation and a computerized tracking and registering system that guarantees piracy protection.

The Personics catalog features current material from artists like Stryper, Crowded House, and George Thorogood, but much of the current catalog is made up of oldies by such artists as Wilson Pickett, Aretha Franklin, the Association, and the Beach Boys. Personics has also put together several sample compilations from its heavy metal, r&b, jazz/new age, soul, folk, and blues selections.

Jazz artists represented in the catalog include indie acts Maynard Ferguson and Fattburger. Grapes Of Wrath and Rock & Hyde are among the service's breaking acts.

Ballard says Personics also sells cassette singles from the Capitol labels for $2 each. The cassettes are of 45s that have not been released as cassette singles by CEMA. Like the major's cassette singles, these tapes carry only the single's A- and B-side songs. Ballard says the price may rise when Capitol steps up its cassette single output at its new $2.99 list.

Warehouse is going all out to promote the new product here, giving it a prominent spot on the floor and teaching its employees about the system. And there's a message on the bottom of each sales receipt from the store, reading, "Make your own custom cassettes. See our display."

Following this trial run for the system at the Mountain View Warehouse, Personics will reportedly make a complete evaluation and implement changes before sending the units to different stores across the country in the summer.

Personics' first custom-cassette unit is stationed at a Warehouse store in Mountain View, Calif., a Bay area suburb. Greg Ballard, the company's vice president of business affairs, says Personics will add 200 songs a month to its catalog.

RETAIL TRACK

by Earl Paige

TOWER'S TOWER: A replica of a mountain, perched atop Tower Records' landmark store on Sunset Boulevard in West Los Angeles, is remindful of how a promotion can sometimes get a little out of hand.

The promotion for David Lee Roth's "Skyscraper," which had Roth and models cavorting about the store Jan. 21, drew a crowd of 3,500-10,000—depending on whose estimate you believed—during rush hour to the already-busy neighborhood.

Although passions have cooled since, Howard Zelefsky, a planning administrator for the city, says he wants to encourage retailers to obtain proper permits in advance. He also says the Los Angeles Sheriff's Department was not warned of the promotion in advance, and therefore he is billing Tower $1,000 to help defray the cost of untangling the traffic snarl caused by the promotion. Officials at the sheriff's office say the matter is still under consideration.

A week after the incident, Tower and Roth's agency, Diamond Dave Enterprises, rushed proposals to Zelefsky's office hoping to preserve the display. "We're looking to help them," says Zelefsky.

The "mountain" rises 30 feet from the sidewalk and is constructed of steel and wood scaffolding and mesh with blown foam that was shaped and painted gray. The entire display rests along the corner of the roof above the entrance.

The man-made hilltop was home for traffic-stopping "mountainettes" on three days. During the promotion itself, 25,000 balloons were released. Sound was amplified through 12 speakers. Two FM stations, KLOS and KNAC, participated. "There was even a drum roll" performed live by 25 members of the Univ. of Southern California Marching Band, says Bob Delaney, Tower district manager.

The store, by the way, will once again host the store managers' party during the National Assn. of Recording Merchandisers annual convention March 11-14 at the Century Plaza in Los Angeles. The store hosted NARM's first such event two years ago.

RALEIGH RUSH: Look for the competition to continue heating up in and around Raleigh, N.C. In recent months, Atlanta-based 15-store chain Starship Records bowed four stores at locations along the Since buying Discwasher, we've made only one small change to our corporate structure.

The trend in corporate takeovers, lately, is to buy a company and rebuild everything from management down the line.

At Discwasher, Inc., except for moving our headquarters across the street, our corporate structure has remained intact.

The same management team that led our company to its outstanding growth in sales and profits last year is again running the show. And with planned increases in new product design, distribution, and marketing support, we fully intend to keep on growing.

Ken Thomson
President of Discwasher, Inc.

Our production facilities, both located in the good old U.S.A., our ultra-modern electronic component facility in Laredo, Texas, and our woodworking product facility in Columbia, Missouri, continue to build the kind of technologically superior products that have helped our company clean up in the industry since 1971.

Sure, we could have restructured more than our headquarters, but with a company as solid as ours we saw no need to rock the foundation.

If you want to learn more about our company and products write Discwasher, Inc., Department 2, 4310 Transworld Road, Schiller Park, Illinois 60176. Or call Ed Maty at (312) 678-9600.

CLASSICAL GAS: IT'S BEGINNING TO SELL A LOT LIKE "CHRISTMAS!"

Enigma Makes Major-Label Bid With Jem Deal

BY JEAN ROSENBLUTH

ONCE UPON A TIME two young brothers and a friend started a record importation and distribution operation, Greenworld Records Ltd., with a $100,000 stake. A decade later Greenworld is no longer around, but the company it spawned in 1982, Enigma Records, is earning millions of dollars for William and Wesley Hein (the brothers bought out their partner in 1985). Not content with being a wildly successful indie, Enigma has taken the first steps toward becoming a full-fledged major label by announcing its intent to purchase the New Jersey-based Jem Records distribution network.

For the time being, Enigma's Intima, Syntheticide, Metal Blade, and

GRASS ROUTE

Enigma labels will continue to be distributed by Capitol, while Restless and its other logos will go through the indies. But the impending purchase of Jem is obviously the latest move in the Hein brothers' master plan to make Enigma a major label.

Of course, one could argue that Enigma already is, for all intents and purposes, a major. After all, A&M, Chrysalis, Motown, and I.R.S. are generally considered majors—witness their inclusion under that heading in the much-referred-to Yellow Pages Of Rock—even though they lack their own distribution. But despite double-platinum (Poison, on the Enigma/Capitol imprint), platinum (Stryper), and near-gold (Smithereens) albums last year and a track record that includes the first Ratt, Motley Crue, and Berlin records, Enigma can't get no respect. We're here to give it to them.

More than one indie has gone under because a miasma of Grammys and the top 40 clouded the vision of its leaders. It takes strict adherence to a carefully laid out game plan to keep from sinking in the mainstream, and Enigma has done much more than that: It has stayed afloat in the sea of red ink that swallows many indies, eventually prospering beyond anyone's expectations.

Of course, not every independent label strives for the big time, and thank goodness for that. Where would we be without the SSTs and Rounders of the world? But it is gratifying to see an indie succeed in an arena where a few players have a virtual stranglehold. So congratulations to Enigma on its major-league bid, and good luck. We're looking forward to seeing Game Theory and Wednesday Week go platinum.

Like Mannheim Steamroller's near-Platinum "Christmas" release, which got off to a fast start and then actually increased in annual sales each year, American Gramophone's "Classical Gas" recording is establishing an impressive, and lasting, sales curve.

Twenty years after Mason Williams performed the "original crossover hit" on The Smothers Brothers Show, the new Mannheim Steamroller/Mason Williams version is playing on virtually all radio station formats.

Grammy Winner Joins March Meet's Star-Studded Lineup Hornsby To Perform At NARM Confab

NEW YORK RCA act Bruce Hornsby & the Range is the latest addition to the entertainment lineup for the National Assn. of Recording Merchandisers' 30th anniversary convention, set for March 11-14 at the Century Plaza Hotel in Los Angeles.

The group, which won the best-new-artist award at last year's Grammys, will perform March 14 at the NARM Awards Banquet, which concludes each year's NARM meet. The event pays tribute to recipients of NARM's best-seller awards (Billboard, Feb. 6).

The trade group has already announced that Arista artists Barry Manilow and Kenny G will perform March 12 at the NARM Scholarship Foundation Dinner. And scheduled for the meet's opening night is a music retrospective, "1958-1988: Thirty Great Years," to be hosted by Dick Clark. A concert by MCA act the Jets is set to follow Clark's show. On the morning of March 14, Priority Records' novelty act the California Raisins will make a cameo appearance.

The agenda for this year's meet—including the schedule of awards presentations—has been revamped. At a 9 a.m. ceremony on March 14, winners of the following awards will be announced: the annual advertising awards, two retailer-of-the-year awards, the wholesaler-of-the-year trophy, and some of the best-seller awards.

The remainder of the best-seller awards will be announced at that evening's banquet, prior to Hornsby's performance.

The rest of the convention's schedule has been similarly streamlined, says Pam Cohen, NARM's executive director. In recent years, the trade group has held a long business session on the meet's first morning and product presentations by three of the major-label distributors on each of the next two mornings.

This year the business-session activities and presentations will be spread over three days. Also, the six product presentations will run two a day for three mornings.

Dealers, Manufacturers Upbeat After Strong '87 Wealth Of New Products At NAMM

BY BOBBY NATHAN

ANAHEIM, Calif. Optimism ran high here during the National Assn. of Music Merchants Winter Convention Jan. 15-18, with many pro-audio and musical-instrument manufacturers and dealers saying 1987 had been their best year in a long time.

One of the main reasons business was up is that less restrictive pricing on a number of relatively new technologies is making these products available to greater numbers of people.

One of these areas is wireless microphones. Several firms debuted new, less expensive wireless systems that are head and shoulders above earlier models in terms of clarity, sonic quality, and frequency response.

Shure Bros.' new line of wireless microphones is essentially an updated version of the company's popular SM-58 and SM-87 mics.

Shure claims its new wireless microphones sound as good as hard-wired units. Its new Samson wireless Concert TD Series microphones use dbx noise reduction to eliminate breathing and pumping effects and to give extended frequency response and dynamic range.

Nady showed its 1200 VHF wireless system for hand-held instruments and lavalier transmitters as well as its popular, low-priced 201 single and dual diversity systems.

There was even a wireless MIDI system shown by Gambatte Inc. of Atlanta called MIDI Star, which boasts full MIDI implementation and a range of more than 200 feet.

Digital sampling, too, is a field that has seen drastic improvement in price-performance ratio. A number of hot new samplers were on hand at this show.

Yamaha introduced its TX16W 12-bit, 16-voice, digital-wave-filtering stereo sampler. The unit's internal 1.5-megabyte memory allows on-board storage of 45.15 seconds of sampled sound at a 16.7-kilohertz mono-sampling rate. At 33.3 kHz, the unit can sample up to 16.3 seconds in stereo.

The TX16W features a built-in 3.5-inch disk drive, and up to 32 sampled voices may be spread across the keyboard at one time.

Ensoniq showed its new EPS—Ensoniq Performance Sampler—a 13-bit sampler with over 40 selectable rates. The sampler's most unique feature: It can load from the disk while the player is still playing the unit, making it indeed performance oriented.

Other features include four auto-loop modes, six stage envelopes, 127 possible samples in eight instrument groups, 16- to 20-voice polyphony, and a built-in 8-track polyphonic sequencer with up to 80,000 notes. The firm says it will offer several options, such as memory expansion to over four times the internal memory and an eight-output expander box.

Dynachord introduced an Advanced Digital Sampler, a 16-bit, 16-voice rack-mounted sampler with 2 megabytes of memory for 24 seconds of 44.1 kHz sampling. The unit can be expanded up to 8 megabytes for almost 100 seconds of sampling.

The ADS features true 16-bit phase-locked stereo sampling, 24-bit internal processing, and 20-bit digital filters on all eight outputs. The unit also incorporates a unique feature called Sound Fusion, where eight sounds can be stacked, chorused, flanged, and then fused into one new sample.

The Dynacord also sports an SCSI port for connection to a hard-disk-storage unit.

Eight Good Reasons. The concept of 8 tracks on a quarter-inch tape takes on a whole new meaning with the new Tascam 238 Sincaset. The unit, which made its debut at the recent National Assn. of Music Merchants show in Anaheim, Calif., allows eight tracks to be recorded on a standard audiocassette. It also offers MIDI and SMPTE capability.

AUDIO TRACK

NEW YORK

MISSION MIXED "LOVER FOR LIFE" for CBS at Quad. Donald Robinson produced with Greg Mann at the controls. Also, Maurice Fortune worked on tracks with producer Otis Harley and engineer Pete Lewis. And Carol Lynn Townes recorded "You Keep Running" for PolyGram. Dave O. produced and engineered, while Henry Falco assisted at the board.

At the Black Hole, Mr. X & Mr. Z worked on their 12-inch "Let's Do This." The release, produced and mixed by Lyvio G and P Fine, is scheduled for release this month by G Fine Sounds in the U.S. and by Citi Beat/Beggars Banquet in the U.K.

Calliope Studios had a visit from jazz flautist Bobbi Humphrey, who just completed mixing an album with engineers Bob Power and Shane Faber. Also there, Sam Waymon worked on an album project for PolyGram with Faber at the board.

LOS ANGELES

817-336-5114.

QSC: QSC Audio Products' new MX-2000 power amp offers big bang for the buck. The unit packs a whopping 625-watt-per-channel punch into a 4-ohm load (375 per channel, into 8 ohms), and retails for $1,398. Scheduled for a spring delivery, the MX-2000 occupies three rack spaces and uses a new forced air-cooling system that is user adjustable. For more information, contact 714-645-2540.

TAC: This well-known console manufacturer had several new models on display at NAMM, including the SR9000, intended for touring and sound-reinforcement applications, and new console automation systems, which were demonstrated on the Scorpion series boards. The automation systems are designed to interface with a number of other makers' consoles. For more information, contact TAC in the U.K. at 0602-783306.

Music Software Bows

On the the software side, the most impressive thing to be learned at this winter's NAMM show was that large computer companies like Apple and Atari displayed their wares for the first time.

Although independent software makers have been manufacturing sequencing, composition, and other packages for Apple and Atari hardware for years, neither of these firms had ever come to a NAMM show in force. It seems these firms have finally realized that there is a significant market for them in the music industry.

Both Apple and Atari had booths showing the more popular software such as MIDI Paint, Performer, and other programs. Of all the innovative software shown, nothing was more impressive than a demonstration of Coda Software's Finale, a music-sequencer-scoring program that prints and plays music scores and sheet music for the Macintosh. Finale was demonstrated on a Macintosh II, but the software will work on a Mac Plus or SE as well.

Music is entered via MIDI keyboard or by on-screen entry. Most amazing was the speed at which Finale interpolated what was being played on the MIDI keyboard and displayed on screen.

Other features include cross-staff beaming, custom-page sizing, reverse stemming, complex-time and key signatures, transposition of chord symbols, note clusters, and programmable repeats.

SOUND INVESTMENT

A weekly column spotlighting equipment-related news in the audio and video production, post-production, and duplication industries.

COOL STUFF AT NAMM: There was plenty of neat gear on hand at the recent National Assn. of Music Merchants winter meet in Anaheim, Calif. For a look at some of the items, see the related stories on this page. We're devoting this week's Sound Investment to some of the other equipment shown on the convention floor.

KORG: The Westbury, N.Y.-based company unveiled a number of new products, including digital signal processors, MIDI gear, and keyboards. One practical unit is the KMP-68 MIDI patch bay. It has a total of six MIDI In and eight MIDI Thru ports and can easily handle small to fairly elaborate MIDI setups.

Korg also showed the slickly designed 707 FM digital synthesizer, an expansion of its concept with the DS-8, a synth that made complex FM synthesis far more accessible to those who are less technically inclined. The 707 features a 49-note velocity-sensitive keyboard with aftertouch facility. It also sports two oscillators for each of the eight voices and four operational modes that allow timbral variations. Included are 100 on-board programs; others are available.

Korg also introduced the KEC-42 rack-mountable signal processor. This unit combines four equalizers and two compressors, with single-channel, linked stereo or four-way mono operating modes possible. For more information on these and other new products, call Korg at 516-333-9100.

RAMSA: Panasonic's professional audio division unveiled its latest recording console, the Ramsa WR-T820B. The unit is an eight-buss board designed to incorporate flexible routing and switching functions, allowing up to 48 inputs and eight addressable aux sends. High-speed operational amplifiers are used at critical gain stages, and newly designed faders are incorporated. The board also features full-function LED and VU metering. For details, call 714-895-7200.

AKAI: Akai was showing its line of MIDI programmable effectors, which includes an equalizer, a patchbay, a programmable mix bay, and a programmable note separator. Also on display were Akai professional keyboards, including the new X7000 eight-voice MIDI sampling keyboard. One of the most interesting products Akai displayed was its MPC-60, a Roger Linn-designed MIDI production center featuring an integrated MIDI sequencer and digital drum sampler. Akai can be reached at single "Flirt" at Larrabee. Also, Jesse Johnson's single and 12-inch versions of "So Misunderstood" were mixed by Keith Cohen and Steve Beltran. Brenda K. Starr's single and 12-inch "You Should Be Loving Me" was mixed by Louil Silas Jr. and Cohen.

At Red Zone, composer/producer Joey Carbone recorded and mixed the theme song for the show "Triple Threat" with Denis Degher engineering. Also, the soundtrack for "Two Idiots In Hollywood" was completed with J. Bert Good producing and Steve Shepherd at the board. Degher mixed.

NASHVILLE

PRODUCER BUBBA SMITH was in at Stage III working on a Christian-music album with Buddy Greene for Fortress Records. Engineered by Brent King and assistant Kelly Pribble, the project is tentatively scheduled for release in April. Also, Smith worked on album tracks with Christian folk singer John Mulder. King engineered with Pribble assisting.

Moses Dillard of Loretta Lynn Enterprises was in at Westpark Sound putting finishing touches on a gospel project with artist Gino Speight. Ted Wilson engineered. And, Janet McMahan recorded an educational children's project for a New York-based ad agency. Wilson ran the board. Also, Oak Ridge Boys keyboardist Ron Fairchild was in engineering and producing keyboard overdubs on a project for Williams & Ree, a country comedy duo.

OTHER CITIES

ISLAND RECORDS ARTIST Buckwheat Zydeco recorded tracks at Goodnight Dallas to be used in the upcoming film "My New Car." Several scenes in the film were shot at the Boller room in Dallas Alley and feature live performances by Zydeco. Ruben Ayala ran the board. The tracks were produced by Ted Fox. Also, engineer/producer Kerry Crafton worked on projects with Dallas groups the Daylights and End Over End.

All material for the Audio Track column should be sent to Debbie Holley, Billboard, 49 Music Square W., Fifth Floor, Nashville, Tenn. 37203.

Sequential says its recent acquisition by Yamaha International Corp. has provided the capital needed to begin shipping its Prophet 3000 stereo 16-bit sampler. Prophet 3000 will be able to view hard disks as virtual memory. This means a 40-megabyte hard disk will offer 220 seconds of stereo sampling and a megabyte version will give 550 seconds of stereo sampling.

Sequential also showed the Prophet 3002, a rack module with two spaces available for two hard-disk units. Both 40-megabyte and 100-megabyte versions will be available.

E-mu Systems showed the Emulator III stereo 16-bit sampler, which has already begun shipping. E-mu has also updated its Emax line of samplers with a new Emax SE, or Synthesis Enhanced, unit.

The new operating system provides Spectrum Interpolation Digital Synthesis, which allows the musician to work with a spectrum consisting of 24 harmonics, each with its own level-and-pitch ratio relative to fundamental frequency. A voice can consist of any two synthesized timbres: a timbre and a sampled sound or two sampled sounds.

Casio showed the FZ-10M, a rack-mountable version of its popular FZ-1 16-bit sampler. The standard unit comes with two megabytes of memory, eight-voice polyphony, and eight mono outputs. The sample time is 29.1 seconds at a 36K sample rate.

Digital synthesizers continue to come down in price while offering more for the money. In the world of synthesizers, Roland introduced the D-10, D-20, and D-110 LA synthesizers.

The D-10 has a five-octave keyboard, built-in rhythm composer with 30 PCM percussion sounds, and digital reverb. The D-20 includes all the features of the D-10 plus a 16,000-note, 8-track sequencer and a built-in 3.5-inch disk drive.

There is also an optional PG-10 programmer available for both the D-10 and D-20. The D-110 is a one-space rack-mountable synthesizer module similar to the MT-32 tone generator. The unit features multitimbral operation on up to eight channels in addition to rhythm. The unit also features six assignable outputs and a digital reverb.

Yamaha introduced a DX11 FM digital synthesizer, which is essentially a TX81Z with a keyboard tacked on. Yamaha also introduced the TX1P 16-voice MIDI piano-tone generator with five sampled keyboard sounds, including acoustic and electric pianos, harpsichord, and vibes.

Oberheim showed its Matrix 1000 one-rack space, six-voice polyphonic synthesizer module with 800 sounds stored in ROM and 200 sounds in RAM for a total of 1,000 patches available. Other features include a MIDI mono mode and total compatibility to the Matrix 6 and 6R synthesizers.

In the sequencer corner, Roland had its MC300, the low-priced version of the ever-popular MC500. The MC300 is virtually identical in function and operation to the MC500 and is compatible with the MRB500 bulk librarian and the MRP500 performance package.

Roland also introduced an MC500 MKII, an upgraded version of the MC500 sequencer compatible with all existing MC500 software packages and files. The MC500 MKII has four times the internal RAM memory, allowing up to a 100,000-note capacity. Older MC500s can be upgraded with a soon-to-be-released turbo 500 software package.

Akai introduced its ASQ10, a 16-track MIDI sequencer with 60,000-note capacity, 99 sequences, 9 tracks per sequence, 20 songs, 999 bars per sequence with real- and step-time entry, and four assignable MIDI outputs. The unit is essentially the sequencer section of the new Akai/Linn MPC60. It features extensive help functions displayed on its 320-character back-lighted LCD and syncs via SMPTE, MIDI time code, MIDI song pointer, FSK, and clock.

Korg introduced the M1 and Q1 music-workstation-concept instruments.

The M1 features built-in 16-bit PCM-ROM sounds that include acoustic and synthesized sounds. The M1 was intended to be the master keyboard for programming Korg's new Q1 MIDI sequencer. The M1 also includes a 61-note-velocity keyboard with multitimbral MIDI features, stereo outputs, built-in drum and percussion sounds, and four built-in digital-effects modules.

The complementary Q1 is a 16-track SMPTE-based sequencer with two MIDI-in and two MIDI-out ports, with a built-in 3.5-inch disk drive. The unit also features an optional SCSI interface and optional CRT-display board.

The author is co-owner of Unique Recording in New York City, a studio that garnered several 1986 Grammys for its work on mixing Steve Winwood's "Back In The High Life."

New At NAMM. Although Eventide's H3000 Ultra-Harmonizer debuted at the 1987 AES, the recent NAMM meet in Anaheim, Calif., marked the unit's first showing at the musical-instrument industry's biannual extravaganza. According to the company, with the H3000 Eventide has "literally reinvented the Harmonizer." Features include stereo pitch change, diatonic pitch change, full MIDI implementation, and high-end signal-processing capabilities.

Latin Notas

by Carlos Agudelo

“AMAR O MORIR,” Danny Rivera’s Grammy-nominated album, is a collection of passionately recorded romantic tunes, so typically romantic, in fact, that if it weren’t for Rivera’s forceful vocals they could very well have ended up where many other tunes that glorify or decry love end up nowadays—on record-store shelves, gathering dust.

Rivera, a Grammy nominee for two years in a row, has the ability to infuse his material with his special personality, largely through the use of soft beginnings that inevitably build into crescendos. Most of the songs on this album start softly and build with such intensity that they nearly explode in a flurry of high tones and crowded orchestrations.

This is the quintessential album of romantic ballads, thanks to Rivera’s voice. The title song is the album’s best, a beautiful tune that shows Rivera’s great style and powerful and well-balanced voice as he sings that the only alternative to love is death.

The album was produced, directed, and arranged by Ricardo Eddie and Rudy for DNA Records. Each of those two also composed one song, and both participated in other aspects of the production, singing the choruses and playing instruments on some of the tunes.

Radio Centro Cadena Nacional’s radio stations are playing a 7-inch promo single of “Todo Mi Amor Eres Tu,” the Spanish-language version of Michael Jackson’s “I Just Can’t Stop Loving You.” Jackson sings the song himself; Ruben Blades translated the lyrics into Spanish.

The tune was brought from México by Raul Alarcón Sr., Radio Centro’s chairman. WSKQ New York played it first, despite the objections of CBS, which wanted to delay its release. Now the song is also being played in Miami and Los Angeles. Tony Campo, WSKQ program director, says response to the song has been great.

According to a CBS spokesperson, the idea for the Spanish-language version of the song was Jackson’s. The single is being given away to customers who buy the English-language version of Jackson’s “Bad” album in Argentina, Mexico, Venezuela, Chile, Peru, Colombia, and Costa Rica, where the album has been supported with a heavy promotional campaign.

The people in charge at CBS don’t seem to know when the single will be released officially in the U.S., whether Jackson plans to record more of his songs in Spanish, or any other details about the project. Efforts to reach Jackson were utterly unsuccessful.

WTHM “Ritmo 98” is a new Spanish-broadcasting FM station that began operations in Miami during the last week of January.

Carlos Grillone, the station’s program director, says his intention is to give the outlet a very contemporary format, with “splashes of crossover,” including progressive Latin jazz, instrumentals, and pop ballads. Some of the artists whose songs he says will appear on the station are Cal Tjader, Santana, Paul Jones, Cabo Frio, Mongo Santamaria, and Lee Ritenour.

Grillone says that so far, his main problem has been the lack of support from record companies, which he says have yet to acknowledge the station’s existence. For those interested, the address is 2960 Coral Way, Miami, Fla. 33145.

KBOM-FM Santa Fe, N.M., has increased its power to 100,000 watts, according to Margarita Vigil, the station’s young program director. The station’s format is composed of 75% ballads, 10% tropical-cumbia, 10% Tex-Mex, and 5% ranchera music.

Artist Performances Lend Excitement To Event

Miami Radio Station Hosts Latin Awards

BY CARLOS AGUDELO

MIAMI The parade of awards ceremonies in the Latin music field began in earnest Jan. 26 with the first Super Q 108 Awards, sponsored by local Spanish-broadcasting station WQBA-FM. The ceremonies lasted for more than four hours and included appearances by scores of artists, who represented most major record labels and genres of Latin music.

The show was another chapter in the long and hard-fought battle for Miami’s Hispanic audience between the two main Spanish-language FM outlets here. WQBA’s rival, WCMQ “FM 92,” will hold its own awards ceremony, Aplauso 92, in March.

The Super Q ceremony was not without its drawbacks. Maria Cristina Villanueva, the station’s program director and the architect of the awards show, acknowledges that there were lessons to be learned for next year. Among her goals: improving stage production, including sound and videoclips; cutting costs, which went past the $100,000 mark, according to Villanueva; and limiting the length of the show by condensing the more than 30 awards categories.

Still, the show was a vibrant spectacle, paying ample tribute to the musical variety of this city, recognized as the center of the Latin music industry in the U.S.

The awards were given in four categories: romantic ballads, pop and Rican salsa singer who mixes pop and Afro-Caribbean music. In the merengue dancing category—recognized as a very important genre—the big winners were Group 4.40 and its leader, Juan Luis Guerra, and the veteran Johnny Ventura.

Lunna, from Puerto Rico, won the Revelation award as best new artist in the romantic ballad category; Franco and Lisa Lopez tied for best new artist in the pop ballad category; Santiago was the best new artist in the pop dancing music category; while Group 4.40 was chosen as the best new merengue group.

Special awards were given to El Gran Combo from Puerto Rico, Miami Sound Machine, Juan Gabriel, Tommy Olivencia, and Marisela Verena, among others.

The show closed with a sizzling performance by Rocio Jurado, who was presented with an honorary singer-of-the-decade award.

Other top moments included performances by the Venezuelan singer Franco De Vita; Lunna’s rendition of her song “Si Vivir Contigo”; and Braulio’s interpretation of “In Bancarrota,” one of the most popular songs of 1987.

The show was another chapter in the battle for listeners between two Miami stations ballads, pop dancing music, and merengue dancing music. Among the winners in the romantic ballad category were Braulio, chosen as the best male vocalist; the Mexican trio Pandora, best group; and Braulio’s “Lo Bello Y Lo Prohibido,” best album.

In the pop ballad category, the Spanish trio Mecano was chosen as the best group, and Chayanne was named best male vocalist. In the genre of pop dancing, the big winner was Eddie Santiago, the Puer-

Classical KEEPING SCORE

by Is Horowitz

CAPRICCIO RECORDS has trimmed the basic dealer price of compact disks by 10% to $9.99, which is a sign of the increasingly competitive market. The firm's M Master CD midline series, now numbering some 60 titles, has also been reduced in dealer cost to just under $6. As for digital audiotape cassettes, Capriccio is selling them to dealers at $19.40 each, anticipating a consumer price of about $28.

Capriccio sales executive Jerome Stine says the label currently has 45 DAT titles on the market, with sales satisfactory considering the paucity of playback units in the marketplace. Much of the action comes from hardware entrepreneurs anxious for software to demonstrate their equipment. There just isn't much else available.

In many cases, says Stine, his label is now issuing new titles simultaneously on CD and DAT. That's the case with two new packages just out, a pair of Tchaikovsky orchestral suites with Neville Marriner conducting the Stuttgart Radio Symphony and a Chopin program including Piano Concerto No. 1 played by Stanislav Bunin. The Bunin performances are live takes taped during the 1985 Chopin Contest in Warsaw, Poland. Prize-winner Bunin has since been signed by Deutsche Grammophon, which issued a pair of Bunin CDs this past December.

In March, says Stine, Capriccio will resume its series of CDs presenting the music of Karl Phillip Emanuel Bach with another five disks. That will bring the number on the market to 13. Lots of K.P.E. Bach. And on the matter of DAT, Stine says other labels, including a number of majors, have contacted Capriccio recently to probe its experience with the new format. Packaging and duplication procedures are of major interest to them, he reports.

PASSING NOTES: The Cleveland Quartet, which celebrates its 20th anniversary this season, will perform in the Soviet Union in September, part of a month long European tour... The Takacs String Quartet, whose recordings of the Bartok Quartets on Hungariton have won plaudits, are now recording for London. Haydn is first on its recording agenda. Also planned are works by Dohnanyi, in whose Piano Quintet the Takacs will be partnered by Andras Schiff.

Mstislav Rostropovich serves as president of the First World Cello Congress, to be held this spring at the Univ. of Maryland. As many as 200 cellists are expected to perform in a mass-ensemble concert in closing ceremonies at Constitution Hall in Washington, D.C., June 11. Bernard Greenhouse, former cellist of the Beaux Arts Trio, is artistic adviser. Nancy Reagan is honorary chairwoman.

Competitive Capriccio cuts dealer prices on CDs, DATs

Station manager Ceci Sommers of WQED Pittsburgh, Pa., says the station's format is being streamlined to attract younger listeners, with greater emphasis placed on popular classics and new record releases. Billboards scattered around Pittsburgh now call attention to the station with such slogans as "Spend the night on Bald Mountain" and "Ride with the Valkyries." For WQED, now marking its 15th year on the air, Classical Underground literally means music performed in the city's subway, a public-service venture it has launched with municipal and industry support.

Ensembles honored by ASCAP for "adventurous programming" of works written since 1945 include ALEA III of Boston, the Kronos Quartet of San Francisco, and the Da Capo Players and the Chamber Music Society of Lincoln Center, both of New York. Awards were presented by Chamber Music America Jan. 18 during the association's national conference in Los Angeles.

RCA's Victrola, London's Weekend Classics Series Are First Classical Labels Prepare Budget CD Lines

BY IS HOROWITZ

NEW YORK Two major classical labels, RCA Red Seal and London Records, are preparing early entries into the budget-compact-disk arena, paving the way for more general adoption of discrete three-tier pricing.

Philips Records has disclosed that it is ready to debut a budget line in March (Billboard, Jan. 23), and Deutsche Grammophon is expected to move into the new price line later this spring. Similar moves are reported to be under discussion at CBS and Angel. A number of small labels have already entered the budget field.

RCA budget CDs will carry the Victrola logo, one of the company's most venerable. Twenty disks will be released in March, says Red Seal president Michael Emmerson, with three or four additional releases of 20 each expected during the year.

While pricing has not yet been fixed, Emmerson says Victrola CDs will be marketed at prices competitive with budget CDs released by other majors. This would place them in the under-$5 category to dealers. Philips and London have pegged their base dealer price at $4.50, as will DG, their sister label at PolyGram Classics.

For the most part, Victrola CDs will be straight LP transfers of earlier LP productions, although in some cases they will have added repertoire to increase playing time. Many of the recordings are of relatively recent vintage and were digitally recorded.

In some cases, the disks will be stepped down from higher-price categories. An example is the Sibelius Violin Concerto performed by Dylana Jenson, with Eugene Ormandy as conductor.

Among other conductors represented in the line are Eduardo Mata, Erich Leinsdorf, Leopold Stokowski, Charles Munch, and Arthur Fiedler.

"We're seeking to establish the line as a repertoire label, aiming at committed classical music lovers rather than pop converts," says Emmerson.

London's CD budget line will be known as Weekend Classics, according to Lynne Hoffman-Engel, label vice president. The line will be patterned largely after the cassette line of the same name introduced last summer, although in some cases playing times will be extended with additional titles.

In addition to concept disks of related short pieces, the line will also hold complete major works. The first release of 12 titles, due in April, will include, for instance, a Dvorak Ninth Symphony conducted by István Kertész coupled with Smetana's "Die Moldau." Other conductors featured include Hans Schmidt-Isserstedt, Neville Marriner, and Karl Münchinger. Three releases are planned for this year.

Public Radio Panel Set

NEW YORK Public radio stations hope to establish a better dialog with major classical labels, says Ruth Dreier, music director of WNYC New York, who is chairing a panel discussion on record company relations at the upcoming conference of the Assn. of Music Personnel in Public Radio.

Participating in that panel discussion on Feb. 20 at the Westin Hotel in Boston will be Bonnie Barrett of CBS, Susan Mann of Philips, Peter Elliot of RCA, René Goiffon of Harmonia Mundi, and Amelia Haygood of Delos, says Dreier. Expected to join them on the dais are representatives from Nonesuch, Qualiton, and Northeastern.

Public radio programmers are anxious to air accessible works that are not entrenched too deeply in the standard rut, says Dreier. Too little of such material comes from the majors, she says.

Other panels will take up programming trends, including the influence of new age music, and a review of the controversy over digital audiotape and Copycode, CBS' anti-duping technology. The confab runs from Feb. 17 through breakfast Feb. 21.

Labels, Pubs Push Pan-European Crossover Trend

BY KEN TERRY

CANNES As European radio and music video channels develop and as Continental record production grows more sophisticated, the number of European artists breaking across national boundaries continues to increase, according to participants in the recently wrapped MIDEM. This burgeoning phenomenon is now having an effect on international music publishers, who are looking intently for acts with Pan-European crossover potential.

"You see a development whereby European music is crossing borders," observes John Brands, managing director of MCA Music U.K. and head of the publisher's European operations. "It doesn't matter whether a record is made in Germany, France, Italy, or the U.K. for it to be successful in every European territory. By being in all those territories, we feel we have a shot at producing a record that could be successful all over Europe."

Similarly, Martin Bandier, vice chairman of SBK Entertainment, which generated a very high profile at MIDEM, declares, "Our whole philosophy is to break acts across Europe and worldwide." Toward that end, he notes, attendees from SBK's U.S. and international companies devoted four or five hours a day during the music fair to group listening sessions.

Bandier cites Jennifer Rush, a U.S. artist who records in West Germany, and Italian act Spagna as examples of artists who have had hits all across western Europe. Brands points to the recent successes of Spagna (which sings in English), rock group Europe, France's Desireless ("Voyage, Voyage"), and Vanessa Paradis ("Joe Le Taxi") as evidence of Pan-European market potential. "There's definitely a trend there," he says.

Teldec product manager Peter Bruhning also believes that the European markets are becoming more similar and that crossover is growing. "If an artist is going to be big in Italy," he says, "he can be big in Germany, too. So it makes sense to license all over Europe."

Nevertheless, he points out, the Pan-European trend "goes in waves. A couple of years ago, Italian disco was very popular in Germany and, to some extent, in the U.K." Current crossover hits, likewise, tend to be dance records rather than ballads, he notes. Partly for that reason, U.S. hip-hop, house, and dance-oriented r&b releases (like Joyce Sims' "Come Into My Life") are increasingly popular in Europe.

Jorg Fischer, publishing manager for the Munich-based Global Music Group, one of Germany's largest indie publishers, contends that not only dance records but also hard rock and certain kinds of ballads can be broken in multiple European territories. For instance, Rush's "The Power Of Love" and Paradis' more recent "Joe Le Taxi," both ballads, sold across Europe; the Paradis hit, he adds, shows "the recent influence of French music in Germany." Heavy metal groups like Scorpion and Accept are also accepted everywhere.

At the same time, says Fischer, more German producers and publishers are creating English-language product that can cross borders more easily than records cut in native tongues. German-language product, on the other hand, is usually limited to Germany, Austria, Switzerland, the Benelux countries, and Holland.

MCA's Brands also cites rising production quality as a basis for the Pan-European movement. French and German producers, he asserts, have picked up a lot of the Anglo-American sounds, partly in order to break into the U.S. market. "In the process of doing that, they made original sounds and began having success with them," he says.

Bandier of SBK feels that MTV Europe is having an impact by playing French, German, and other countries' videos all over the Continent. "With the continual growth of MTV and other video channels," he maintains, "you're going to see a real Pan-European market."

Fischer agrees that recent expansion of European media, especially videoclip outlets, is aiding Continental publishers and labels. Besides the satellite-carried Sky Channel and MTV Europe, local video outlets all over Europe are showing national and international clips. A German outlet, RTL-Plus 1, recently switched from pay cable to over-the-air broadcasting, which should broaden its audience.

According to Brands, most European radio stations are still largely oriented to local repertoire, but their programmers are aware of what's going on in other territories as well. He also notes that London's Capitol Radio is broadcasting European chart hits for the first time, albeit in a limited day-part.

While labels in continental Europe still look to the U.K. indies for viable English-language product, notes Bruhning, they're now also paying attention to other European territories. In addition, points out Stuart Watson, VP of international for MCA Records, "It isn't necessary [for a U.S. act] to break in England to have hits in Europe anymore." For example, he observes, Tiffany broke in Germany, Holland, and Scandinavia before her record was released in the U.K.; Pebbles, isn't out in England yet; and Breakfast Club happened in Europe but not in the U.K.

This new route to success, plus the Pan-European trend, accounts for MCA Music's recent decision to add a Hamburg, West Germany, office to its branches in the U.K., France, and Australia. "It makes it easier to do U.S. deals for those [European] territories, because [managers] can talk to our people there," states Brands. "Our income was steadily growing in Germany, and it made sense to start making an investment in those [German-speaking] territories."

Since only English-speaking records normally have an impact on Anglo territories, he continues, MCA Music will try to pair Continental writers with U.S. and U.K. writers wherever possible. But he stresses that hit records can now be produced anywhere in Europe.

Brands adds that U.K. talent is still approached differently than Continental acts. England produces many international stars, he notes, "which affects the [publishing] deals." In contrast, a publisher can make "more sensible" deals for Continental artist/songwriters. This is yet another reason, he emphasizes, for MCA to expand vigorously in Europe.

Labels Lambasted On Front-Line CD Pricing Panelists Urge Cuts, Blast Record Industry's 'Greed'

BY NICK ROBERTSHAW

CANNES Speakers at a recent MIDEM forum here united to condemn what one called the "sheer greed" of the record industry for refusing to significantly cut front-line compact disk prices.

"Dealers want a price point that makes the market explode, say [$18] maximum," said Steve Smith, head of Tower Records' European retail operation, at a Jan. 27 technology session sponsored by Music Week magazine. "Look at the way sell-through video took off at that sort of price, with sales per title going from 1,000 to 10,000 almost overnight," said Smith.

"There's obviously a declining market out there. The content is boring, and we're recycling pop for the 15th time. As a result, every third CD that Tower sells is a classical one. I don't know why the industry doesn't bring prices down. I think it's greed; I really don't see any other explanation," he said.

Asked why the U.K. retail sector has not fought for lower prices, Smith said, "It's not my job to force those guys to do what's right. In the U.S., the retailers and the industry talk to each other at [the National Assn. of Recording Merchandisers convention], but that doesn't happen in the U.K. We do try to remind the record companies what the public thinks. We invite them to come down and bag records for an hour. That way they would learn more than they do at 100 seminars."

facturing prices have reached rock bottom, and he predicted that many plants will go to the wall or be taken over this year or next. "Our own prices have come down by 50%-60% in the last year, but there hasn't been an appropriate reduction at retail," Lee said. "The dealer prices simply haven't come down."

The record industry also came under attack for its attitude on digital audiotape. Audio consultant Nick Hopewell-Smith said the labels' reluctance to accept DAT has "encouraged a gulf between the hardware and software businesses that may be very hard to repair."

"Historically, the record industry's downs have been caused by software, and the ups by hardware," Hopewell-Smith added.

That the conventional audiocassette has proven more convenient than the LP doesn't necessarily mean that DAT will have the same effect on the CD, Hopewell-Smith said. Even in the long term, he said, DAT is unlikely to be more than a high-end alternative to analog cassettes.

Defending the industry, Charly Records' deputy managing director Bob Fisher conceded that current CD prices are unattractive to consumers, but he argued that all major labels must agree on a price cut to ensure that the reductions don't result in chaos. And Peter Jamieson, chairman of BMG Records U.K., said that while there have been some "alarmist, panic reactions" to DAT, the record industry's concerns about DAT and home taping are justified.

On the issue of compact disk video, several speakers called the delayed launch of the format a classic case of how to confuse the public. But PolyGram music video chief Geoff Kempin said the system has great potential, he promised that PolyGram will make a definite statement March 15 on its CDV launch date.

Italian TV Magnate Battles IFPI Group

BY VITTORIO CASTELLI

MILAN, Italy Television magnate Silvio Berlusconi's Italian Uno channel is continuing to broadcast music tapes and videoclips in defiance of notification by the Italian IFPI group that the station no longer has the right to use AFI-controlled material.

The IFPI group, known as the Associazione dei Fonografici Italiani, and representatives of Fininvest, the holding company for the three channels owned by Berlusconi, were supposed to meet just before Christmas to discuss renewal of the contract regulating record-company videos and backing tapes. At the last minute, Fininvest broke off the talks, saying AFI's financial terms were unacceptable. The contract expired Dec. 31.

AFI president Guido Rignano says members of the AFI delegation have operated in good faith, even making themselves available for discussions during the holiday season.

At the same time, AFI was negotiating with RAI, the Italian state broadcasting service, on the same issue. AFI effectively held a gun to RAI's head by threatening to withdraw support from the top-rated RAI TV show, "The San Remo Festival."

AFI and RAI subsequently reached an agreement, although the full financial implications of the deal have yet to be announced.

AFI's disagreements with the Italian Uno channel, however, have proved more difficult to work out. The last contract between Fininvest and AFI was signed three years ago. Before that, there was no formal agreement between the two because the record industry gave its product to broadcasters for free.

Under the rolling contract signed with AFI three years ago, Fininvest last year paid out some $1.3 million for tape usage. But AFI has come up with a new formula for calculating royalties, under which Fininvest would have to pay $4.2 million this year, $5.1 million in 1989, and $5.9 million in 1990.

Both sides seem to be preparing for a long battle, which would be nothing new for Fininvest. Berlusconi, who is known here as "La Sua Emittenza," or "His Transmittence," once overcame an Italian law against nationally broadcast private TV networks by biking tapes around the country to his local stations for simultaneous transmission.

DAT Hardware Ownership, Music Rental Covered EEC Paper Studies Copyright Issues

BY NICK ROBERTSHAW

CANNES The European Economic Community's forthcoming green paper on copyright protection includes a proposal for licenses for professional digital audiotape equipment, a technical solution to home taping, and a new rental right to control compact disk hire.

Publication of the document has been postponed indefinitely, reportedly because of fears that the current draft is overly favorable to the interests of the record industry. But at a Jan. 25-26 MIDEM seminar here for show business lawyers, Dutch attorney Cees Van Rij revealed some of the report's contents.

On the subject of home-taping royalties, Van Rij said EEC officials believe that with the advent of digital audiotape, levy systems may no longer be the most appropriate solution to the problem of private copying, although many European countries now operate such systems. Instead, the EEC is believed to be edging toward support for a technical solution, such as Copycode, backed by a possible licensing system for the right to possess professional, high-speed DAT hardware.

On record rental, the paper proposes a new rental right. This would be not simply a right of remuneration, but a right to authorize or refuse such a use of prerecorded material. The green paper also proposes simplifying search-and-seizure procedures to combat piracy and establishing a worldwide register of films to curb counterfeiting.

Dutch attorney Eduard Engels and West German attorney Gunther Poll reported on what they called major defeats for the record industry on the rental issue. In Holland, a test case brought by rights organization STEMRA against the Free Record rental outlet had failed on the issue of exhaustion of rights.

STEMRA argued that the first-sale doctrine should not be applied and that every act of rental constitutes a new publication of the work rented, requiring fresh permission from the copyright owner. In what Engels described as a "devastating decision," however, the Dutch court ruled that the process of "making public" is complete once a work has been put on the market and that subsequent rentals do not count as additional instances of "making public."

Poll reported a similar judgment by the West German Supreme Court, which upheld the first-sale doctrine. That verdict was less controversial, because West German copyright law grants a right of remuneration, he said, but this was of little comfort to the record industry, which was less interested in remuneration than in controlling the uses of compact disks.

scribed as steady rather than sensational. But Aldo Pozzoli is confident they will increase as Italian record companies' commitments with overseas CD suppliers expire.

"We have a tradition of fast and punctual delivery with our graphic product, and we intend to maintain that tradition in this new area," he says. "Additionally, as paper printers we can supply the finished product ourselves. Finally, we believe we are the first in Europe to offer the possibility of printing the CD disks themselves in four colors instead of the customary one or two."

Two additional CD plants are expected in Italy this year. One is privately owned and the other is a joint venture between PDO and the state-run STET company.

Italy Gets First CD Plant

BY VITTORIO CASTELLI

MILAN Italy's first compact-disk-manufacturing plant is expected to start production this month in Inzago, a few miles outside Milan. Pozzoli CD is an offshoot of the Grafica Pozzoli record-sleeve-printing concern.

Says company president Aldo Pozzoli: "We have been looking to diversify and expand our operation to include record pressing, and we naturally chose CD rather than vinyl. Although we believe strongly in CD, the Italian compact disk market is not particularly large or fast growing, so we are starting with a modest capacity of about 1.5 million units a year."

Pozzoli CD employs only 10 staff people, and initial orders are de-rock groups from Finland, Russia's northern neighbor.

While the U.S.S.R.'s licensing pacts are similar to such agreements in other countries, there is a strict limit on how much product the export-import agency can pay advances for. "We have a budget which we can spend for buying licenses around the world," Avksentjev explained. Thus, for example, the agency might decide to base its offer for a title on 5,000 units or on 15,000 units for a more popular title. These numbers indicate that the Soviet market for Western pop repertoire is still very limited.

That limit, however, seems related to the country's lack of hard currency, rather than absence of mass appeal. On Tass' new pop chart, for example, a Deep Purple album recently jumped to No. 5 from No. 14. (The No. 1 record is by the late Russian singer Vladimir Vyssotsky.)

The director of Melodiya, Valeri V. Soukhorado, who was also at MIDEM, said he bases his decisions about which records will sell in the Soviet Union partly on the Tass hit parade. In the West, that would be perfectly normal; but seeking feedback from the public on consumer goods seems to be a fairly new concept in the Soviet Union.

In another departure from past practice, the Soviets are considering ways to plug Western firms directly into record distribution in the U.S.S.R. "We're discussing the possibility of a joint venture company giving Western labels direct access to the Soviet market," said Soukhorado. Asked whether this means that any salable title could be brought in, the Melodiya chief replied, "We're not trying to bar music [from entering the Soviet Union]. It's the money question."

Meanwhile, the Soviets, who sported a large booth and a nine-person delegation at MIDEM, are also seeking foreign distribution for their own product. Avksentjev noted that at MIDEM, the export-import agency discussed with BMG/Ariola the possibility of BMG distributing Melodiya's catalog and new recordings worldwide. Talks were also held with Melodiya's Australian partner, he said, and orders were received from many other countries; in Italy, for instance, the record company will have to choose an exclusive licensee from among several interested parties.

Overall, said Avksentjev, the Soviet delegation made more progress than expected at MIDEM. "We weren't prepared for such good results."

As part of its international thrust, Melodiya is producing music video clips for some of its pop acts and will try to have them shown in the West (Billboard, Feb. 6). It has also approved an English-language recording by Russian rock band Autograph with an American producer, due out later this year, and is contributing funding for an upcoming album to be recorded in New York by Boris Grebenshikov, leader of Aquarium.

Finally, Melodiya introduced its classical compact disk catalog at MIDEM. Manufactured in England by Disctronics, the 55 CD titles are available for sale abroad, but not in the U.S.S.R., noted Avksentjev. He said the Soviet Union is just starting to make CD players. When the hardware is available, he added, his country will build its own CD plant as well.

Praxis Board Resigns After Competitor Cinram Takeover

BY KIRK LaPOINTE

OTTAWA The board of directors of Praxis Technologies Inc. has resigned following a takeover of effective control by one of its compact-disk-manufacturing competitors (Billboard, Feb. 6).

Cinram chief Isidore Philosophie has assumed control of Praxis as its president and a new Cinram-appointed board has been installed following completion of a deal in which the 36% share of Praxis' common shares owned by Armadale Enterprises Ltd. and related shareholders was purchased at 40 cents a share.

Additionally, Cinram has disclosed that it has written agreements with shareholders representing another 30% of Praxis' common shares, although the pot was sweetened to allow those shareholders to sell, also at 40 cents a share.

Meanwhile, more financial details have emerged regarding the difficult straits Praxis has been in. New quarterly financial figures indicate ever-growing losses, even though Praxis sold one of its two Toronto-area buildings in an effort to raise funds to keep it afloat.

In the three-month period ending Dec. 31, Praxis showed a net loss before extraordinary items of $1.66 million, compared to $782,000 in the same period in 1986. An extraordinary loss of $185,000 was realized on the $1.9 million sale of the building, the proceeds of which were applied to its bank debt.

Sales in the three months totalled $674,000, down from the $838,000 of a year earlier. Sales for the six months ending Dec. 31 were $1.43 million compared to $968,000 in the six months ending Dec. 31, 1986, an indication that relatively flourishing early fall business still had little effect on the deleterious condition of the Toronto-area CD manufacturer, the first one to set up shop in Canada.

It remains unclear exactly what Cinram, the country's largest supplier of recordings, will do with the Praxis operation. Clients, however, are noticeably relieved that their CD supply will not be disrupted. "This is a godsend," says one record executive, who asked not to be named.

The $1.36-million Canadian deal effectively ended the involvement of the Sifton family in the CD business. The influential communications-industry family had seen CD as a logical expansion of its empire when it began operations in September 1985 as one of the first CD plants on the continent. It ran into some problems with delivery but seemed to have most of them solved when the CD market happened into an oversupply situation.

Layoffs and firings ensued at the plant and joint ventures were being sought by late 1987 to sustain Praxis. Now, however, the Cinram takeover leaves only Americ Disc Inc. as a Canadian competitor.

Junos Moved To March '89 Fall '88 TV Competition Too Stiff

OTTAWA Although they are known as the annual Juno music awards, the Junos won't be annual again this year. Just as the awards were skipped once before this decade so they could be moved from late spring to late fall, they will be skipped again in 1988 so they can be held in March 1989.

The Canadian Academy of Recording Arts and Sciences says the change is intended to maintain high television ratings for the awards show. When shown in late November or early December, the show often competed with high-profile TV events like miniseries. Although ratings remained healthy, CARAS chief Peter Steinmetz says the March slot better suits the Junos.

Steinmetz says the O'Keefe Centre here is available for the Junos only in mid-November this year. That falls smack in the middle of the TV-ratings sweeps, when even a glitzy program like the Junos faces stiff competition for viewers. Given the expense of the show and the fact that it usually ranks as the most-watched Canadian-awards programs, CARAS is reluctant to pit it against a major U.S. program.

The exact date of the awards show will be March 12, a Sunday night instead of the customary Monday. Nomination eligibility will be extended to accommodate the change. As a result, the next Junos will reflect the year in music more closely than it would have without the change, since the eligibility period will coincide approximately with the 1988 calendar year.

MUCHMUSIC APPEAL DENIED

in licensing MuchMusic for basic cable, even though the music video service was established in 1983 as a pay-only service.

In a related decision, the cabinet said that MuchMusic's French-language equivalent, MusiquePlus, may be subject to a similar appeal in the fall.

Since MusiquePlus' license does not become effective until Sept. 1, the cabinet decided it could not en-tain appeals of the licensing decision until that time.

MusiquePlus has been operating on cable as part of the MuchMusic operation without a formal license. The Nov. 30 decision gave it a license and approved a partnership of CHUM Ltd., the original owners, with the Radiomutuel broadcast chain in Quebec.

Saluting The Stars

Randy Travis outshines the rest with four awards—favorite male country vocalist; favorite country album, "Always And Forever"; and favorite country single and favorite country video, both for "Forever And Ever, Amen."

Japanese, German, U.K. Rates Boost U.S. Exports Importers Bemoan Declining Dollar

BY MARK MEHLER

NEW YORK The currency exchange rate giveth and taketh away. In the fourth quarter of 1987, the steep decline of the dollar against the Japanese yen, the German mark, and the British pound gave a giant boost to U.S. music exporters and took whatever life there was out of the import market.

From Oct. 1 to Jan. 4, the dollar fell a whopping 19% against the yen, 16% against the mark, and 15% against the pound.

"That may have created panic in international financial markets, but it was a big shot in the arm to us," says Tom Laskey, a spokesman for Win Records and Video of Elmhurst, N.Y., one of the largest U.S. exporters of oldie 45s, 12-inch singles, and other independent-label product. Laskey says the dollar's decline is primarily responsible for a 30% hike in export sales in the fourth quarter over the comparable 1986 period. He declines to provide figures on export revenues, however.

In addition to spurring orders from existing customers, adds the Win spokesman, the currency situation brought a flood of calls from new buyers. "These are people in Europe and Japan who saw the prices get so low that they couldn't resist getting into the market," he says.

Frank Pipitone, vice president of Berklay Air Services Corp., a freight forwarder that does about 50% of its business with U.S. music exporters, says he has witnessed "at least a 30%-40% increase in orders shipped" during the past four months.

"Some independent distributors who had been shipping two or three boxes [a month] of 50 pounds to 100 pounds each are now shipping seven or eight boxes at 200 pounds to 300 pounds each," says Pipitone, who believes the collapse of the dollar is at least partly responsible for "a lot of new music-export companies sprouting up" in the New York area.

"Speaking as an American, I don't feel especially good about it," offers Darryl Ohrt, vice president of CD One-Stop in Bethel, Conn. "But from the perspective of our international department, we hope the dollar keeps going the way it has been." CD One-Stop, which exports only compact disks, saw its international business rise at least 30% in the fourth quarter compared with the third quarter of 1987. Ohrt says Japan and every maior European importing country shared in the currency-exchange bonanza.

The view from the other side is less ecstatic. Earl Martis, manager of Tower Records' import division, says worldwide financial events finally nailed the lid on the Japanese import business.

"From the last three months of 1986 to the same period in 1987, I'd say we cut our overseas purchases by 85%," says Martis. "Right now we're operating at a minimal level."

The Tower buyer notes, however, that in the case of Japanese imports, declining demand preceded the decline of the dollar. Two other factors—the advent of CDs, which negated the perceived Japanese edge in LP quality, and the licensing of Japanese product by major U.S. labels—helped reduce independent import volume.

Martis says the exchange rate has not severely affected sales of European imports, adding perhaps a couple of dollars to the U.S. sale price. "Demand is not particularly sensitive to price," he concludes, "but when a Japanese import LP is sale priced at $16.99 to $19.99 and CDs at a minimum $26.99, there isn't much reason for us to keep buying."

MCA Inc. Shows Mixed Income Results For 1987

NEW YORK MCA Inc. reports higher operating income and revenue but lower net income for the 12 months ended Dec. 31.

Revenues for 1987 were $2.59 billion, compared with $2.44 billion in 1986. Operating income was $228.4 million, up from $208.3 million in the previous 12-month period.

Net income, however, fell 9% to $137.3 million, or $1.82 a share, from $150.9 million, or $1.97 a share, in 1986.

Low Wasserman, chairman of the diversified communications company, says the music entertainment group posted record revenues and operating income for the year. The group's revenues, which include fees for domestic distribution of home video products, were $477.5 million in 1987, an increase over $386.2 million in 1986. Operating income for the music group was $40.9 million, up from $33.8 million in 1986.

Other groups posting record revenues and operating profit for the year are the Home Video and Universal Studios Tour operations. The Toy Products operation experienced a $36.4 million operating loss for the year, after a $27.6 million operating profit in 1986. That group's loss, coupled with increased interest expenses, resulted in the overall drop in net income, Wasserman says.

In the fourth quarter of 1987, MCA Inc. posted higher net income, operating income, and revenues. The 1987 fourth-quarter net was $21.8 million, or 30 cents a share, compared with $17.3 million, or 23 cents a share. Operating income for the three months was $43.6 million, up from $10.2 million. Revenues rose from $642.4 million in the 1986 period to $674.4 million.

Wasserman says improved Filmed Entertainment results were primarily responsible for the fourth-quarter earnings rise.

The music entertainment group had higher revenues in the quarter—$145.9 million, compared with $138.9 million in the 1986 period—but experienced a decline in operating income, from $15.8 million in 1986 to $13 million last year.

Co. Seeks $$ For Magazine Vid Shows

BY EARL PAIGE

LOS ANGELES A Colorado firm is hoping that rising interest in multimedia approaches to home entertainment will negate a moribund market for new issues and bring $2.5 million in an initial penny-stock offering.

Video Publishing Ventures, which is offering 50 million units at 5 cents each, aims to convince publishers to fund production of 30-minute video versions of consumer magazines, initially for broadcast on cable television.

The prospectus, however, hints at multimedia possibilities. Heading the year-old Video Publishing is John Fitzgerald, also the sole shareholder of Tunnelvision Satellite Entertainment Network, an Englewood, Colo., firm that rents space to Video Publishing. Tunnelvision operates a video production facility, Vision Teleproductions, and has two subsidiaries in the development stage—video label ViewPoint Video and audio label Broken Records.

In addition to the usual speculative risks accompanying a penny-stock issue, a further caveat is included in this case—a first-time underwriter, USA Capital Management Group of Las Vegas.

The offering document points to a number of video versions of popular consumer magazines. Some are extended broadcasts, such as "National Geographic Explorer," a two-hour show aired by cable superstation WTBS.

Also cited is "American Baby," aired once weekly on cable station CBN and four times a week by Tempo Television. Tulsa, Okla.-based Tempo will distribute Video Publishing's shows under a joint agreement.

Elements of the Video Publishing offering include units consisting of two shares of common and two warrants to purchase one share at 4 cents for a period of 18 months. The escrow-protected portion of the mini/maxi is 30 million units, or $1.5 million. Dilution is stated at .0185 cents, or 74%.

Uses of the proceeds for the 18-month period are specified as follows in both mini and maxi cases: officers' salaries, $144,000; office and production lease, $132,000; administrative personnel, $81,000; overhead, $36,700; equipment security deposit, $130,000; loan payment, $140,000; and lease payments, $247,500. Variances between the mini and maxi are seen in reserves for additional equipment ($51,500 vs. $600,000), advertising and marketing ($150,000 vs. $250,000), convention expense ($50,000 vs. $100,000), and celebrity hosts ($100,000 vs. $150,000). General working capital is stated at $121,500 for the maximum only.

Fitzgerald, the chairman and president, will have 75 million shares. His background, in addition to heading Tunnelvision since 1983, includes a two-year stint at KSFE-TV in Sante Fe, N.M., and two years as president of a Las Vegas television production firm.

Jon Ackelson, senior vice president, treasurer, and company co-founder (7.5 million shares), joined Tunnelvision a year ago. For the previous eight years, he was an independent producer, director, and writer.

Robert Himber, executive vice president/secretary (1.5 million shares), also joined Tunnelvision a year ago. His background includes six years as an editor of a Boulder, Colo., publishing house.

Primerica Income Reported '87 Corp. Figures Down From '86

NEW YORK Primerica Corp., the financial services firm and majority owner of the Musicland Group, reports net income of $198.6 million, or $3.35 a share, in the year ended Dec. 31, compared with $229.7 million, or $3.82 a share, in 1986.

The 1987 figure includes a net gain of $15.8 million, or 30 cents a share, from nonrecurring items, one of which is the public offering of Musicland Group common stock. The 1986 figure included a net gain of $45.1 million, or 82 cents a share, from nonrecurring items and $47.7 million, or 87 cents a share, from the discontinuation of the company's packaging business.

Consolidated revenues last year were $3.76 billion, up from $2.89 billion in 1986.

Chairman and chief executive Gerald Tsai Jr. says most of Primerica's businesses performed well in 1987, although mutual fund and mortgage banking income declined as a result of the turmoil in the equity and bond markets. He says strong compact disk sales, new store openings, and cost-control programs boosted Musicland Group's operating income 46% in 1987.

POP

MEGADETH

So Far, So Good . . . So What!
 PRODUCERS: Dave Mustaine, Paul Lani
 Capitol C1-48148

Metal's chart onslaught continues with this sequel to last year's auspicious debut, "Peace Sells . . . But Who's Buying?" Speed metal whizzes are in hot form on album's eight cuts; ex-Metallica fret-basher Mustaine leads the troops with fast-fingered soloing and potent vocals. Cover of "Anarchy In The U.K." features special guest Steve Jones. Even without airplay, this one should score with the headbangers.

STACEY Q

Hard Machine
 PRODUCER: Jon St. James
 Atlantic 81802

After "Two Of Hearts" and its carbon copy, "We Connect," who would have thought she had this wonderfully varied album in her? First single, "Don't Make A Fool Of Yourself," has a slinky r&b feel encased in a more standard dance track; "Favorite Things" recalls the girl groups of the '60s; and "Another Chance" is a winning ballad. Solid album should forever quell the question "Stacey who?"

T BONE BURNETT

The Talking Animals
 PRODUCERS: David Rhodes, T Bone Burnett
 Columbia C 40792

Burnett's records often aren't taken as seriously as they should be because he's best known as a producer (Marshall Crenshaw and Elvis Costello, among others). But with the heavyweight lineup on this one—Bono, Ruben Blades, Tonio K, Peter Case, Tony Levin, Cait O'Riordan—radio will have to pay attention. "The Wild Truth," "Dance, Dance, Dance," and "Purple Heart" are killers.

TED NUGENT

 PRODUCERS: Various
 Atlantic 81812

If you can't lick 'em . . . maybe you should give up: Madman once again tries too hard to make an impact. Clichés and bad taste run rampant here—one song is titled "The Harder They Come (The Harder I Get)." "Can't Live With 'Em" is the best of the lot, sounding vaguely like the Amboy Dukes; "That's The Story Of Love," written with Jon Bon Jovi and Richie Sambora, might also get play. Not likely to bust the Nuge back into the big time.

RECOMMENDED

NOISEWORKS

PRODUCER: Mark Optiz
 Columbia BFC 44138

From the land of Oz comes Noiseworks, which, judging from the cover art of its debut and what's laid down in the grooves, is seeking to position itself as the next INXS. One problem: INXS is still around and bigger than ever. There should be room enough on the radio for "Take Me Back" and "No Lies," however; both went top 10 Down Under.

FREHLEY'S COMET

Live + 1
 PRODUCERS: Ace Frehley, John Regan, Tod Howarth, Scott Mabuchi
 Megaforce/Atlantic 81826

Specially priced five-song EP is live except for one new studio track, "Words Are Not Enough," which alone is worth the cost. The concert cuts kick it, too, especially cover of Kiss' "Rocket Ride." Worth the ride; Frehley's definitely back in the groove.

SANCTUARY

Refuge Denied
 Epic BFE 40920

Shrieking melodrama of Warrel Dane's vocals gives character to the identikit metal of these lead-handed bangers. Still, involvement of Mustaine (who contributes lead guitar on a ludicrous cover of Jefferson Airplane's "White Rabbit") will stir cult sales among genre enthusiasts.

WAX U.K.

American English
 PRODUCERS: Christopher Neil, Andrew Gold, Graham Gouldman
 RCA 6770-R

Bizarre yet tuneful project teams journeyman writer/singer Gold and ex-10cc ace Gouldman. Synthed-up pop collection boasts several attractively quirky numbers, not the least of which is recent MTV Hip Clip of the Week "Bridge To Your Heart." A record that could sneak up and surprise retailers.

ROBYN HITCHCOCK & THE EGYPTIANS

Globe Of Frogs
 PRODUCERS: Hitchcock, Metcalfe, Windsor & Collier
 A&M SP 5182

Reigning English loony Hitchcock arrives at A&M after critically lauded albums for Relativity and Slash. The Egyptians' pixilated brand of twisted pop has remained a cult phenom so far, but this disk could break beyond the devoted. "Balloon Man" is first single, but programmers shouldn't ignore delightful "Flesh Number One," tucked away on side two.

TONIO K.

Notes From The Lost Civilization
 PRODUCERS: David Miner, Tonio K.
 A&M SP 763

Singer/songwriter's fourth sortie may be his finest and sharpest work so far. K. gets support from T Bone Burnett, Peter Case, Booker T. Jones, and Jim Keltner, among others. Biting songs are first rate, with lovely "Without Love" the track that should win immediate nods from programmers.

RYUICHI SAKAMOTO

 PRODUCER: Bill Laswell, Ryuichi Sakamoto
 Epic BFE 40994

Keyboardist Sakamoto, most recently heard on "The Last Emperor" soundtrack, turns in an intriguing studio job that comfortably melds funk, rock, and Eastern elements. Incredible cast of sessioners includes Iggy Pop (who contributes a solo vocal), Bootsy Collins, Tony Williams, Sly Dunbar, David Van Tieghem, Eddie Martinez, and Emmett Chapman.

SLAMMIN' WATUSIS

PRODUCER: Jay O'Rourke
 Epic BFE 44044

Brazen Chicago quintet plows through a debut chock-a-block with thrashing, engagingly obnoxious punk-style songs. O'Rourke, of the Insiders, lends a sure production hand. "Won't Sell Out," lead-off track, is an abrasive anthem of intransigence that will chalk up alternative radio spins.

NRBQ

God Bless Us All
 PRODUCERS: Terry Adams, Joey Spaminato, Bill Scheniman
 Rounder 3108

The New Rhythm & Blues Quartet's first live album in its 20-year career is a doozy, capturing the joyful spirit of the group and its faithful followers. Best-known track here is "Shake, Rattle & Roll"; best tracks are cover of Billy Stewart's "Sitting In The Park" and NRBQ's own "Me And The Boys" and "Crazy Like A Fox."

MAHLATHINI

The Lion Of Soweto
 PRODUCER: C.B. Matiwane
 Earthworks/Virgin 90867

SPOTLIGHT

Blow Up Your Video
 PRODUCERS: Harry Vanda & George Young
 Atlantic 81828

High-voltage rock from Aussie mainstays is, as ever, long on melody and short on annoying metal heavy-handedness. First single, "Heatseeker," should get a warm reception, but there are plenty of more powerful punches here, like "That's The Way I Wanna Rock N Roll" and "Ruff Stuff." And yes, despite album's title, there is a video for "Heatseeker."

NEW AND NOTEWORTHY

JOHN BRANNEN

Mystery Street
 PRODUCER: David Malloy
 Apache/Capitol D1-71650

Rocking singer/writer could notch a hit for brand-new Apache label. Single "Desolation Angel," currently grabbing airplay, exemplifies Brannen's style: raw vocals reminiscent at times of Springsteen, hard guitar interplay (courtesy of Kenny Greenberg and Warner Hodges), street-oriented themes. Classy debut could offer up other radio hits. Brannen is one to watch.

Simon "Mahlathini" Nkabinde is a gruff-voiced South African-township singer whose style might be likened to that of blues singer Howlin' Wolf. Crackling collection of classic mbaqanga from the '70s will be of interest to those turned on to the style by Paul Simon's "Graceland."

BRENDA RUSSELL

Get Here
 PRODUCERS: Stanley Clarke, Andre Fischer, Brenda Russell
 A&M SP 5178

With multifaceted females so dominant these days, Russell's return should garner her renewed recognition. Anything but business-as-usual, her rhythms and rhymes are uncommonly distinctive. "Gravity" should be a curtain-raiser, with "Make My Day" the follow-up, but overall artistry of package makes singling out chart tracks difficult.

VARIOUS ARTISTS

Best Of House Music
 PRODUCERS: Various
 Profile PRO-1248

Though an obvious attempt has been made to prevent this two-record set from sounding homogeneous—each side has a different identity, from "diva" to "jack 'till you drop"—the whole bass-heavy thing is hard to listen to in one sitting. Still, album is a fine chronicle of a vibrant club scene. Includes Moonfou's classic

"Shut Up," Hercules' deliciously erotic "7 Ways."

THE FIT

Just Havin' Fun
 A&M SP 5183

Title tune is one of those singles that sticks in your mind like gum under a desk, but the classy duo of Gentry and singer Vince Ebo has a follow-up in "Stand Up," likely to keep the Fit in chart condition.

VARIOUS ARTISTS

Sleeping Bag's Greatest Mixers Collection II
 PRODUCERS: Various
 Sleeping Bag TLX-42012

HINDSIGHT

Several cuts, when considered individually, have merit, but album as a whole lacks focus. For instance: Swaying cover of Boz Scaggs' "Lowdown" sounds great, but what's it doing on the same record as the politically pedantic "Small Change"? Debuting U.K. duo should stick to the inspirational r&b groove it rides on first single, "Stand Up."

DARRYL DUNCAN

Heaven
 PRODUCER: Darryl Duncan
 Motown 6237

One-man funk disposal grinds up James Brown for the late '80s and comes up with the single—"James Brown." "Phone #," "Bestfriend/Girlfriend" and "My Dream" are also worth a try.

RECOMMENDED

RANDY HOWARD

Randy Howard
 PRODUCER: Nelson Larkin
 Atlantic America 90679

Howard makes an impressive label debut with a 12-cut package, eight of which he wrote or co-wrote. His vocals have a Waylon Jennings gruffness but are delivered with greater energy. Instrumentation is appropriately country inflected and spare. Best cuts: "A Month Of Somedays," "There's No Way To Fight A Memory," "She's History."

JAZZ

JOHN ABERCROMBIE

Getting There
 PRODUCER: Lee Townshend
 ECM 833 494

AIRTO MOREIRA, FLORA PURIM & JOE FARRELL

Three-Way Mirror
 PRODUCERS: J. Tamblin Henderson Jr., Airtto Moreira
 Reference Recordings RR-24

Considering the several noteworthy albums the late Farrell made with Moreira and/or Purim, it is appropriate that he recorded this, his last session, with the husband-and-wife team. Digital session, taped in 1985, is a worthy tribute to the reedman.

RECOMMENDED

GAMALON

PRODUCER: Ted Reinhardt
 Amherst AMH 93318

The indie label that introduced Spyro Gyra to the world thinks it has struck fusion pay dirt again with this ensemble. Sturdy debut is loaded with pop and rock hooks that could fetch airplay from nonjazz stations. Spyro keyboardist Tom Schuman guests on two tracks.

THE JACK SHELDON QUINTET

Hollywood Heroes
 PRODUCER: Jack Sheldon
 Concord Jazz CJ-339

Well-done pro session by trumpeter Sheldon should appeal to fans who enjoy his "persuasive, at times clever" vocalizing, as liners indicate. Those who don't will doubtless enjoy his trumpet and Ray Sherman's piano, if nothing else.

ALPHONSE MOUZON

Early Spring
 PRODUCER: Alphonse Mouzon
 Optimism OP-6002

Mouzon drums and works a battery of synthesizers on this unassuming but well-played program of fusion pieces. Pianist Jeff Daniel stands out among a notable group of sidemen that includes Ernie Watts, Brandon Fields, and Ronnie Laws.

CLASSICAL

BETHOVEN OR BUST

Don Dorsey
 Telarc CD-80153

Dorsey is one of the more inventive synthesists, blending good taste with imaginative use of the tone colors his battery of "instruments" permits. In addition to the "Moonlight" sonata complete and movements from two other piano sonatas, there is a selection of shorter pieces and only occasionally an overt burst of sonic fireworks to spur attention. A strong crossover follow-up to last year's "Bachbusters" smash.

RECOMMENDED

Boston Symphony Orchestra, Ozawa
 Deutsche Grammophon 423 268

Ozawa directs a masterful performance of the colorful score, abetted by full-range sound that takes advantage of dynamic-contrast opportunities. Booklet holds detailed description of the action of the ballet in addition to an informative discussion of its place in the Prokofiev canon.

SPOTLIGHT: Predicted to hit top 10 on Billboard's Top Pop Albums chart or to earn platinum certification.

NEW & NOTEWORTHY: Highlights new and developing acts worthy of attention and other releases of special interest.

PICKS: Releases predicted to hit the top half of the chart in the format listed.

NEW TRADE POLICY

trade balance.

The plan as it developed was also viewed by some as an administration response to—and an attempt to defuse—Congress' giant trade bill that was passed last session. One insider says Singapore was added to the list "for unrevealed diplomatic reasons."

"Singapore has been a great success," says Berman. "Through GSP, we were able to make great strides. Singapore has tightened up its copyright laws, and it had been removed from last year's National Trade Estimate Report on Foreign Trade Barriers." He added that the EPC recommendation to withdraw GSP privileges "unwittingly punishes Singapore for its progress and success."

RIAA figures indicate that before Singapore enacted its new copyright law in April, intellectual-property-piracy profits had been $350 million a year.

The EPC recommendation took place despite heavy lobbying by U.S. copyright industries. Withdrawal of the special privileges will take place Jan. 1, 1989. Reagan is expected to approve the EPC action.

Music Week Events Planned Gotham Greets Grammys

NEW YORK The week beginning Feb. 28 has been proclaimed Music Week by New York Mayor Edward Koch, with a number of festivities planned to welcome the return of the Grammy Awards here.

Corporate sponsors, including Pepsi Cola, Michelob, and Benson & Hedges, are participating in the week's events, which feature a Feb. 29 party for National Academy of Recording Arts & Sciences officials at Gracie Mansion and a March 1 bash for 5,000 industryites at the Palladium.

The most unusual event planned by NARAS—in cooperation with the city and underwriters Pepsi Cola and the Pepsi Cola Bottling Co. of New York—is the Grammys in the Schools program, which will see such well-known NARAS members as Lou Reed and Tito Puente giving music industry workshops at area high schools. In addition, small groups of high school students will be given the chance to visit local recording and postproduction studios.

Among the facilities planning to participate are Master Sound Astoria, Giant Sound, VCA Teletronics, Trackworks, and Joyce-Rae Studios. MTV and VH-1 will also lead student groups through their production setups.

"This whole program is the result of a five-year-long lobbying effort to convince Pierre Cossette Productions and NARAS to give New York a second chance at the Grammys," says Susan Gwertzman, an attorney serving as one of the coordinator's of the events.

"Once we convinced them to try it here again, we decided to roll out the red carpet for everyone involved." Gwertzman says she and her associates have raised more than $100,000 in cash, in addition to corporate grants, for the events.

DEATHS

Godfrey H. Dickey, 64, Jan. 6 in Pacific Palisades, Calif. Dickey was an executive in record distribution and home video wholesaling for nearly 40 years. He was vice president and/or sales manager of such operations as Mutual Distributing in Boston, Cleve Disk Distributing in Cleveland, and Recona/CC Stone in San Francisco, all three of which were distribution points for operations run by Lee Hartstone. In 1962, he moved to Los Angeles and set up a branch of London Records, serving as vice president/general manager. He rejoined Hartstone in 1978 as vice president of Integrity Entertainment Corp., where he pioneered the introduction of home video warehousing for the retail chain. He played jazz guitar the patent on the anticopying process, but also the patent that describes the ways to defeat the process. The company also claims that in 1987, the Patent Office rejected a protest filed by one of the defendants, Showtime Video Ventures, which maintained that prior technology invalidated the Macrovision patent.

Home video companies that use the Macrovision technology include CBS/Fox, Warner, Disney, MCA, HBO, MGM/UA, and Media Home Entertainment. The process is also used by such industrial clients as General Motors and Eastman-Kodak. The Cupertino, Calif.-based company estimates that more than 60 million cassettes from 400 companies have been encoded with Macrovision. The technology is also widely used in Europe.

CANADA CHAIN APOLOGIZES board, Dec. 26).

Soon after, A&A unleashed an unprecedented public assault on the price increases, which it said would result in a $2 markup at retail on leading CBS releases. A&A even asked its customers to write the federal government and complain about what it called an unjustified rip-off.

In its apology, issued to publications with a request for prominent play, A&A notes that the CBS price increase was its first in three years and represents a rate of increase "significantly less than the rate of inflation for the same period." What's more, A&A says, the increase was not specifically aimed at deterring exports.

"Even with this price increase, the retail price of CBS products in Canada remains lower than the equivalent retail price of similar product in comparable foreign markets," the release says.

Neither A&A nor CBS would comment on why the apology was made or why publications were being asked to treat it as a retraction.

Pindoff Sales, a distributor that openly exports product, says the CBS move runs contrary to the best interests of Canada because the revenue from export allows Pindoff to employ a number of people. Other retailers have publicly complained that the price increase makes CBS' material the highest priced in their stores, although there is no indication that it has dampened consumer or retail demand.

CBS Canada has denied that the move came as a result of pressure from its parent company, but it has conceded that it was concerned there might one day be complaints from abroad that too much product was finding its way into foreign markets.

Even with the move, however, retailers and subdistributors have been able to qualify for considerable discounts and allowances, somewhat blunting the impact of the increase.

A&A now sets the price increase at 75 cents for wholesale and $2 for retail, and the company says it regrets any implication that the $2 increase may be at wholesale alone. No publication has apparently carried that implication.

A&A says the aggregate increase amounts to only 6%, not 12% as stated in its earlier news release.

CROSSOVER PROGRAMMERS SEE STRENGTH IN FORMAT

New Orleans. In the last few months, pure crossovers have cropped up in Tucson, Ariz.; San Jose, Calif.; Richmond, Va.; and Charleston, S.C.

Some programmers do say that dance music could be approaching a burnout phase, while others proudly proclaim that dance will never die. In any event, they say crossover represents a highly evolved version of disco radio that covers a far broader musical spectrum and reaches a much wider audience.

"Disco is not a bad word around here," says WPOW "Power 96" Miami PD Bill Tanner. "Some of our competitors try to take shots at us by calling us the disco station, and I want to send them a check. Thanks for the advertising! But like any form of music that goes into a craze phase, there is a danger that people will OD on dance music. It's the American society's binge-purge syndrome."

"The big difference is that all disco music was so similar—the thump, thump and shimmering strings," Tanner continues. "Today, we have a type of dance music that embodies many different sounds. Our station is very ballad intensive, and that is done precisely to give relief to what could be an otherwise dead dull, repetitive format."

"There's a misconception out there that we're riding this crest of dance music, and that if it dies, so will we," Tanner adds. "The only reason we play so much dance music is because it's wildly popular in Miami. We play a variety of music—like Bon Jovi's 'Never Say Goodbye'—but it's the dance music that differentiates us from the mainstream top 40s here. Our 'Power' image does not mean dance, it means we play whatever's popular."

"I don't see dance burning out," says Jerry Clifton, a San Diego-based consultant who has been instrumental in the development of crossover and has watched radio cycles for more than 20 years. "I also don't think disco ever burned out. It was just that a lot of stations jumped on something that wasn't happening in a full-fledged way. Disco radio was never something done by people who really knew what was going on."

Clifton is a proponent of intense localization in programming, a factor cited frequently as another key to why crossover radio won't meet with disco's fate.

"I've heard the 'dance music is overexposed' comments, and I've read some predictions that dance music may come upon hard times as rock resurges," says Rick Cummings, vice president of programming for Emmis Broadcasting, which owns leading crossovers WQHT and KPWR. "But I don't believe any of it. Madonna's last album certainly hasn't suffered any backlash."

Emmis' New York and Los Angeles outlets "are really top 40 stations that fit their marketplaces," he says. "They're playing the hits in their markets, and I think they'll be able to do that for the next 10 years."

Cummings says the ethnic compositions of New York and Los Angeles provide particularly fertile ground for crossover success. In both markets, Hispanics represent a huge listening base, as they do in other crossover markets. At the same time, WPGC Washington, D.C., and WQUE New Orleans have proven crossover's strength in cities with fewer Hispanics.

Some feel that dance music hasn't even come close to being overexposed. Ron Resnick, executive vice president for the successful independent dance label Sleeping Bag/Fresh, says radio has yet to fully exploit the dance scene. "If you go into clubs and see what people are actually dancing to and what's becoming popular there, you'll see there's a much broader range of music that never translates onto the radio. As a rule, most of the hotter dance product is on indie labels, and in general we have a tougher time getting airplay."

At least one adult contemporary programmer is keeping an eye on the possibility of dance music burning out. KKHT Houston PD Chuck Crane is watching local top 40s KKBQ and KRBE do battle with a heavy arsenal of urban-flavored dance music during the day, even though straight urban outlet KMJQ still beats both in 12-plus ratings.

Crane says it "seems logical" that the teen appeal of dance music may cause his top 40 competitors to turn away from it. "I think they'll find it increasingly difficult to get money on those demos, and they'll want to start broadening their demos," he says. "As relief, they may turn to some of the adult-appeal records that we've had the luxury of playing all on our own up to now."

VIRGIN RECORDS EXPANDS IN U.S.

top five. Upon its rerelease in England, it rapidly hit the top five there and paved the way for the even larger success of its follow-up, "China In Your Hand."

"The interesting accounting issues are that the monies are earned by the parent corporation," says Ayeroff. Though that corporation has planned for short-term losses due to the establishment of a U.S. operation, he adds, "If we get a huge hit—if we get a Whitesnake—we won't lose money. Something like T'Pau, which sells 1.5 million, 2 million copies when it hits in America—that can wipe out a whole year's loss because [the parent corporation] wouldn't have that, otherwise."

"It's the kind of symbiosis that we expect to see as a company on a worldwide basis," says Ayeroff.

Another aspect of Virgin's U.S. beachhead—that of acquiring U.S. talent—has already paid off, with product already released by Warren Zevon, Roy Orbison, and Pretty Poison, and efforts due this year from new U.S. signings Mark Isham, Camper Van Beethoven, Gary Taylor, New Romance Crew, Paula Abdul, Arto Lindsay's Ambitious Lovers, Syd Straw, Dusty Hill, and more.

This year will also see new Virgin product from established artists Winwood ("I couldn't be more excited about what I've heard," says Harris) and Richards ("One of the most important signings I think anyone's done in a long time," says Ayeroff). The prospect of those releases clearly cheers both Harris and Ayeroff, who spent a significant portion of 1987 working solely with new artists.

"Last year was the toughest it gets," says Harris. "The second year—as we start to get follow-up records from the groups that we had hits with in the first year and we get some of our established artists to release records—the company takes a jump."

Also jumping will be the sheer number of Virgin releases—largely due to a broadening base of specialized labels.

Already established is Virgin Movie Music, a soundtrack label that has so far released film music from "The Last Emperor," "Walker," "The Sicilian," "Gothic," and more; introduced this month will be the Venture label, which Ayeroff terms "a jazz label, an eclectic label, an art label" and likens to Elektra's Nonesuch. Venture artists include Lester Bowie's Brass Fantasy, Hans Joachim Roedelius, the Durutti Column, and Bill Laswell.

The Earthworks label, introduced in January, will focus on "third-world, ethnic things," says Harris. "It's NPR heaven," adds Ayeroff. Product already released includes Mahlatini's "The Lion Of Soweto" and a compilation album entitled "Thunder Before Dawn: The Indestructible Beat Of Soweto, Vol. 2."

Virgin Classics, a new classical label, will be launched in May, says Harris, initially with 10 albums—all of which will be pressed in and imported from the U.K. At least 50 classical titles will be released by year's end, he adds.

With the launch of its new home video division, Virgin Video Music, and its constant release of catalog product by such artists as Mike Oldfield, Simple Minds, Orchestral Maneuvres In The Dark, and China Crisis, Virgin Records is clearly—and consciously—in a growth phase.

"Take a look at the business section of any newspaper," says Ayeroff. "America is a good place for Europe to invest in right now. It's cheap to gear up, it's cheap to purchase, because right now the pound is so powerful. It's a good time for Europeans to come to America. It's a very good time in the general frame of Virgin's overall view of the world."

Virgin began its U.S. operations here last year with a staff of roughly 35. Harris and Ayeroff now estimate that number has more than doubled. In 1987, a black music division was established and scored a large hit with new act Deja; Earthworks, Venture, Virgin Movie Music, and Virgin Classics have been or will soon be introduced; and the company itself is expanding its own headquarters.

"I think if we could be criticized," says Ayeroff, "people could say, 'They have a large roster.'"

"We have a huge company that we're representing in the U.S. that we're part of," Ayeroff continues. "I think a lot of people assumed that we would be a small company. We can't be."

HOT 100 SINGLES SPOTLIGHT

A weekly look behind the Hot 100 with Michael Ellis.

THE TOP OF THE chart is unusually quiet, as Tiffany's "Could've Been" (MCA) stays at No. 1 by a solid margin. It is still No. 1 in both sales and airplay, although it is losing points. "Seasons Change" by Exposé (Arista) and "I Want To Be Your Man" by Roger (Reprise) both gain points in sales and airplay, but not enough for a bullet in either case. Even though these top three are not bulleted, one of them will probably be No. 1 next week because the records below them, several with bullets, are far behind in total points. In a strange twist, the current Nos. 2 and 3 moved up two places each without a bullet, but "Say You Will" by Foreigner (Atlantic) holds at No. 8 with a bullet even though it has well over the point gain required.

MICHAEL JACKSON WINS the Power Pick/Airplay with "The Man In The Mirror" (Epic), the fourth single from "Bad." It jumps to No. 36 and is on 195 pop reporting stations in its second week, with early top 20 reports from 14 outlets, including KTFM San Antonio, Texas (No. 14), Kiss-108 Boston (No. 18), Power 99.7 Atlanta (jumping 17-12), WTYX Jackson, Miss. (32-19), and WMMS Cleveland (36-19).

SEVERAL NEW ARTISTS ARE making an impressive showing with singles from their debut albums. Pebbles moves up strongly to No. 50 with "Girlfriend" (MCA). The record is already top 10 at six reporting stations, making moves of 6-3 at KMEL San Francisco; 10-4 at KBOS and 7-4 at KMGX, both Fresno, Calif.; and 16-9 at KZZP Phoenix, Ariz. At KZZP, PD Guy Zapoleon says "Girlfriend" has been top 10 in requests for six weeks, is top five in female 18-24 callout, and is beginning to spread older. "I Want Her" by Keith Sweat (Vintertainment), at No. 34 with a bullet, is top 10 at three of the four Hot 100 platinum reporters: KIIS-FM Los Angeles (14-10), Z-100 New York (9-7), and Power 95 New York (8-6). "Out Of The Blue" by Debbie Gibson (Atlantic), last week's Power Pick/Airplay, is the runner-up for the same award this week and looks especially strong at KWK St. Louis (17-9) and B-97 New Orleans (20-13). Terence Trent D'Arby is moving up steadily with "Wishing Well" (Columbia), including jumps of 18-12 at Kiss-108 Boston; 17-15 at WKSS Hartford, Conn.; 24-20 at KCPX Salt Lake City; and 16-14 at Q-106 San Diego.

QUICK CUTS: Also having solid weeks at radio but caught in a competitive area of the chart are "Never Knew Love Like This" by Alexander O'Neal Featuring Cherrelle (Tabu), which moves only three places to No. 59 despite 19 adds and an early jump of 22-17 at I-94 Honolulu, and "Angel" by Aerosmith (Geffen), which moves only four places to No. 54 despite 18 adds. . . . Indiana rocker Henry Lee Summer has his first Hot 100 single with "I Wish I Had A Girl" (CBS Associated), entering at No. 90.

DIVERSITY AND ISSUES SPARK MIDEM CONFAB

World music publishing was also going through big changes during MIDEM, but most of the action was occurring beneath the surface and away from MIDEM's Palais des Festivals. International affiliates of the new Warner-Chappell combine met in Cannes, and some important executive changes were announced in the wake of the departures of many key Chappell staffers. The U.K. Monopolies and Mergers Commission approved the merger of the world's two largest publishing firms during MIDEM, but at press time the deal was still on hold in West Germany.

Meanwhile, top executives of the next biggest publishers, SBK Entertainment, MCA Music, and EMI Music, raised their profiles in Cannes. Both Leeds Levy of MCA and Martin Bandier of SBK claim that they received numerous inquiries from lawyers for Warner-Chappell writers who were interested in switching their publishing affiliations.

According to Brigitta Lembke, VP of European operations for SBK, songwriters feel that Warner-

Chappell has become "too big and unwieldy" and are also concerned about staff changes at the firm. Her counterpart at MCA, John Brands, says Warner-Chappell has become a "monolithic operation" that can't offer the level of service provided by smaller companies. Warner-Chappell executives did not return Billboard's phone calls at MIDEM.

Two of the three new major-label-publishing subsidiaries, CBS and BMG, also sent key executives—Harvey Shapiro and Nicholas Firth, respectively—to MIDEM. MCA's Levy says he welcomes the competition, which "makes everyone better" by providing new outlets for writing talent.

Overall, however, Levy, who visited MIDEM last month for the first time in seven years, says, "It's a different MIDEM. There's been a consolidation of the business—fewer major publishers and no major record companies are here."

Commenting on the growing internationalization of the music business, Levy observes that all major English-language publishers are owned by Americans or Britons, whereas four of the six major label complexes are now in European or Japanese hands. In his view, this means that record companies are no longer going to be as preoccupied with U.S. and U.K. talent as they have been. Sony won't push Japanese acts all over the world, he says, "but they won't neglect them." Similarly, a European-based label won't neglect French acts. "They want to maximize all markets," he states.

Besides publishing, the main focus of MIDEM for the past decade has been independent record labels. Yet, while the fair continues to be the main crossroads for these firms and a vital jumping-off point for new talent, fewer licensing deals were announced at MIDEM than in the past. Meanwhile, joint stands were taken by many small labels from particular cities or countries. (There were also several national publishing stands.)

The rise in the number of group stands, especially for U.S. indies, may have been related to the expense of exhibiting at MIDEM. With the U.S. dollar worth only half the number of French francs that it bought a few years ago, booths this year ranged in price from $2,000 for a small kiosk to about $12,000 for the joint Nashville-Memphis stand.

Nevertheless, the number of U.S. companies that trekked to Cannes this year actually increased, to 245 from 232 in 1987. Overall, the number of companies attending MIDEM jumped from 1,624 to 1,905, of which 1,499 were in the pop music area, 146 in the classical field, and 260 in radio.

The overall number of attendees, however, dipped to 7,480 from 7,602 last year.

While exhibit space was sold out, the number of companies attending MIDEM without a stand increased by 187 to 986. In the Palais itself, the emphasis was very much on music publishing and service enterprises—legal, accounting, copyright, promotion, marketing, and, of course, CD manufacturing—an activity that, according to Hans Gout, has now provided the world with 30% more capacity than it actually needs. There were 26 CD manufacturing companies represented at MIDEM.

Outside of the galas and the wall-to-wall music videos on television monitors, there was extraordinarily little music to be heard in the Palais des Festivals. If people were touting demos, they were doing it with unusual discretion.

Many attendees complained about the concert galas, which tended to be poorly produced and badly paced, with most artists singing or lip-syncing to backing tracks. MIDEM's new co-managing directors, Bob Bingham and Xavier Roy, say they want to improve the galas' production and sign more major stars next year. While they say they're willing to invest more money in the concerts, they're also hoping to secure better TV deals and broadcast them worldwide. (This year, the gala tapes will be shown only in Spain, Portugal, Russia, and Hungary, although a West German TV network might take them, according to Bingham and Roy.)

producers can no longer license German repertoire from STEMRA but must go directly to GEMA. Equally, German producers seeking to use Dutch repertoire must license it direct from STEMRA.

Central accounting (or licensing) is the subject of widespread debate in Europe because it is seen as seriously impairing the prestige and financial well-being of local mechanical groups that would no longer be accounting directly for mechanical royalties generated in their territories.

Erich Schulze, president and general manager of GEMA, was due to be in Cannes to take part in a panel on central accounting, organized in the context of the 10th annual meeting of the International Federation of Popular Music Publishers, but illness prevented his appearance. The audience learned of Schulze's action through GEMA director Fritz Driese, who was deputized to read a statement from the president.

It was also revealed that Schulze has sent a copy of the central licensing contract between STEMRA and PolyGram to the European Economic Community headquarters in Brussels, claiming that it discriminates unfairly against other Common Market countries.

This bitter development in the central licensing debate represents a major headache for BIEM president Jean-Loup Tournier, whose executive committee is about to give formal approval to GEMA's return to BIEM. After expressing initial opposition to the idea of central accounting on the grounds that it could seriously disadvantage STEMRA's sister societies in Europe, Tournier has become more reconciled to the principle. But the GEMA move has made the prospect of an early consensus among European societies and publishers extremely remote.

Apart from objecting in principle to the STEMRA-PolyGram deal, arguing that it conflicts with licensing deals made between U.S. and German publishers where there is a manufacturing clause, GEMA also charges that STEMRA is not equipped to deal efficiently with the collection and distribution of mechanical rights paid by PolyGram on its German-pressed repertoire.

Bob Montgomery, managing director of the British Mechanical Copyright Protection Society, said that the solution to the problem is the establishment of a single licensing authority for Europe.

He pointed out that Anglo-American repertoire represents the economic base of the European collection societies and noted that the publishers of Anglo-American repertoire receive 80% of their mechanical income from the EEC countries.

"The main fear is that central accounting will interfere with the existing collection and accounting system and result in higher charges," Montgomery said. "The publishers don't accept that the record companies should call all the shots in this area."

BIEM's Tournier agreed that the concept of a central licensing system was logical and has the approval of EEC. "We must examine the possibilities—but we must also recognize that the present system works well."

Tournier pointed out that thanks to BIEM, Europe has a higher mechanical royalty rate than anywhere else, and he noted that the Harry Fox Office has become an associate member of the bureau.

He urged the need for harmonization of mechanical rights payments throughout Europe "so that we have the same economic basis in all countries." He also urged British publishers to join BIEM: "Otherwise, with the statutory license now abolished in the U.K., they may find themselves in difficulties."

Ger Willemsen, head of STEMRA, noted with approval the comments of Montgomery and Tournier in favor of central licensing but would make no comment on GEMA's suspension of the reciprocal agreement "until I have spoken with my legal advisers."

He said that there was no general agreement that mechanical royalties collected where records are pressed should be paid in the countries of sale. "As EEC countries progress towards the goal of becoming one market, record companies have been centralizing their pressing operations—and this leads automatically to centralized licensing and centralized accounting. But this process cannot be monopolized by one society," Willemsen said.

He argued that central accounting is nothing new and that it had existed in GEMA when the only compact-disk-pressing plant in Europe was the PolyGram plant in Hanover, West Germany.

Tournier recalled that he had told

Schulze that GEMA's practice of collecting mechanicals from records pressed in Hanover and shipped abroad could not continue because this was against the doctrine of payment in the country of sale.

"BIEM must find a solution to this problem, and I am confident that one can eventually be found," Tournier said.

CONVENTION CAPSULES

ISLAND CAME to the Jan. 25-29 MIDEM in force and used the event to hold presentations for licensees from 15 countries. Three new labels—Antilles, 4th & B'way, and Mango—received their official international launches, as did the new Island Music International publishing arm headed by Ton Smits, formerly of Inter-song. Said Island U.K. chairman Tom Hayes: "Last year we launched U2's 'Joshua Tree' here. MIDEM represents a great opportunity for a company like Island to coordinate its international campaigns."

SONET ACQUIRED exclusive Scandinavian representation of Canada's Attic Records in a deal signed at MIDEM by chairman Dag Haeggqvist and Attic president Alexander Mair. Further deals were announced with the indies Fever, Cyprus, and Enigma, which has embarked on a major European expansion program... A first MIDEM appearance by leading U.K. independent Rough Trade testified to the company's increasingly global outlook. A network of licensees for the newly launched Rough Trade International is planned, and an East Coast office is being opened.

GLOBAL RECORDS of West Germany signed Tina Charles to a worldwide contract, in the face of stiff competition from other labels. Charles, who has had chart success in Europe, will record new material this month for 1988 release.

BRITISH RADIO entrepreneur Piccadilly Productions acquired the 20-part Budweiser-sponsored "Motown Story" from Lu-Don Enterprises for U.K. broadcast in the spring and possible European sales... Mike Appleton, long-serving BBC-TV rock producer and architect of the U.K. Live Aid broadcast, appeared at Cannes in his new role as managing director of the proposed all-instrumental satellite music station The Landscape Channel, due on air in the fall, with a Japanese launch planned for 1989. The channel has offered free reception equipment to labels that supply records and plans a "shopping-by-telephone" service for all titles broadcast.

IF YOU CAN'T beat them, join them. French efforts to break the Anglophone stranglehold have taken a new turn with the establishment of English Language Music Service, or ELMS, which translates Gallic lyrics into English and provides demos of the results... CD manufacturer Nimbus and U.K. picture-disk specialist Baktabak jointly launched "The Beatles Conquer America," claimed as Britain's first commercially available picture CD. The four-color, half-hour disk features DJ Murray the K's interviews with the band during its 1964 U.S. visit.

FRENCH COMPANY DISC demonstrated a CD/cassette-vending machine, the Disc-Tributor. The machine holds up to 320 units and offers 20 title selections. Prototypes will be in use in Parisian record stores this month... Rondor president Lance Freed announced the appointment of Halit Uman, formerly general manager of Warner Bros. Music France, to managing director of Rondor's French operation. Jean Davoust, who was head of Warner's French publishing subsidiary, becomes managing director of SBK Songs France. The duties of Marcos Kilzer, head of SBK Brazil, have been expanded to include all of Latin America.

ACCORDING TO MCA Music president Leeds Levy, the publisher paired Willie Nile with producer Rick Chertoff and Parthenon Huxley with producer David Kahn; both acts have recently been signed by CBS, he says. A third MCA Music-sponsored artist, Mary Lee Kortis, is also going into the studio with Kahn but hasn't yet been signed to a label... Charly Records' unexpected success with Nina Simone's "My Baby Just Cares For Me" shows no sign of abating. Deals for Greece and Israel were announced, and negotiations are under way for a U.S. release. The 30-year-old recording has sold more than 1 million units in Europe.

N.Y. CLUB LAW

musicians by the following night.

One well-known Manhattan jazz and r&b night spot, Mikell's—which had been cited by the city for violating the cabaret law and was briefly closed down in 1986—brought in a jazz-rock sextet on the night of Jan. 29 and held what it described as a victory party. Some unlicensed rooms that had been exceeding the three-musician limit—and, as the manager of one rock club put it, “staying one step ahead of the law”—went public, advertising the presence of four-piece and larger bands.

There are approximately 150 licensed cabarets in New York, although not all of them are currently presenting live music. There are no definitive figures available on the number of unlicensed clubs presenting music, but according to some estimates there may be as many as 1,500.

In principle, Saxe's ruling means there are no limits on the number of musicians any of these establishments can book at one time, although fire regulations may be a factor in restricting these numbers.

A lawsuit challenging the three-musician limit and the restriction on types of instruments was filed in 1986 by Local 802 of the American Federation of Musicians and three jazz artists: singer Carol Cass, vibraphonist Warren Chiasson, and trumpeter Mark Morganelli. In his ruling, Saxe noted that the provision had been particularly damaging to jazz musicians but that it had unfairly denied musicians in all genres of their First Amendment right to freedom of expression.

“At least hundreds more” musicians will be able to find steady work as a result of the ruling, according to Judy West of Local 802. Echoing Saxe's words, she notes that many styles of music that require ensembles of more than three pieces, including bluegrass and Dixieland jazz, may experience a resurgence “if this [ruling] is let alone.”

In September, City Councilman Stanley Michels introduced legislation that would amend the cabaret law and eliminate the three-musician limit in venues that seat fewer than 200 people and don't allow dancing. Although that restriction has now been declared unconstitutional, the musicians' union says it still plans to “push ahead rapidly” with its drive to get Michels' legislation passed.

“We want [the lifting of the limit] on the books,” explains Local 802's West. “We feel it's better if the city can agree to this change rather than be ordered to go along with it.”

New York is the only major city in the U.S. that has ever had restrictions on the number and type of musicians allowed to play at live dates.

New York officials had maintained that the restrictions were necessary for reasons of noise and traffic control. In its motion to dismiss the suit, the city had argued that if more than three instruments were allowed in unlicensed clubs, “congestion from pedestrian and automotive traffic could result in the diminution of the quality of life” in the neighborhoods where those clubs are located. Saxe found “no evidence to justify [this] assertion.”

So far, there's been no official comment on whether the city plans to appeal the decision. One attorney for the city, Gabriel Taussig, while declining to say whether there would be an appeal, says that the cabaret policy had already been under review.

THE CURE HOT HOT HOT!!!

1987:

- "Why Can't I Be You?" and "Just Like Heaven" score at radio
- Kiss Me, Kiss Me, Kiss Me and Standing on a Beach (The Singles) top 1.5 million LP sales
- The home video, Staring at the Sea (The Images), sells over 35,000, heading for platinum

1988:

- The Cure in Orange, a new concert home video, released on Elektra Entertainment (February 25)
- Four Cure catalog albums—Boys Don't Cry, Seventeen Seconds, Faith and Pornography—available for the first time on Elektra.
- And the new single is "Hot Hot Hot!!!" available on cassette single, cassette maxi-single, 7" and 12".

VIDEO SUPPLIERS REJOICE OVER JANUARY SALES

the rental market thus far, with industry estimates of their unit volume, are "Predator," CBS/Fox Home Video, 360,000 units; "RoboCop," Orion Home Video, 340,000; "Dagnet," MCA Home Video, 280,000; and "La Bamba," RCA/Columbia Pictures Home Video, 275,000.

"January was a phenomenal month for home video," says Al Rubin, vice president of marketing and sales for Vestron Video. "But it really wasn't surprising, and it certainly wasn't an accident."

"Also, I don't think it necessarily proves anything," continues Rubin. "January has always been an aberration. You have all those new VCRs that people got for Christmas, so traffic [in a video store] is higher by definition. That's why you see all the huge films from the summer released in January."

Even if January is traditionally a video retailer's busiest month, the high demand for the titles released this January created what many are calling the most profitable month in the history of home video. According to video watchdog group Alexander & Associates, rental activity was up by more than 20% during the first three weeks of January, with a total of 250 million transactions recorded.

Orion estimates that each of the top six releases will be rented 75 times at an average price of $2.50 per rental turn for a combined gross volume of more than $400 million. The company estimates that retail profits will total in excess of $42 million.

Suppliers stress that the dramatic increase in unit sales is not simply a matter of releasing films that did well at the box office. The success of the January releases is closely tied to marketing efforts that saw an unprecedented amount of television advertising and some unique campaigns: Vestron teamed with Nestle to promote "Dirty Dancing"; CBS/Fox initially shipped "Predator" as a discount-priced two-pack; and Orion launched a $3 million promotion that offered dealers a chance to appear in an upcoming film.

Suppliers say their push to increase unit volume was also an effort to remedy the so-called depth-of-copy problem that has dogged the industry. As VCR penetration has climbed steadily, unit volume on major hits priced for the rental market has been stubbornly stuck at the 250,000-unit mark. While the problem has cut into the bottom line of suppliers, it has also discouraged consumers looking for a hit title.

"Depth of copy is still a problem," says HBO's Kessler, "but as we saw with the release of 'Back To School,' an extensive TV advertising campaign will drive consumers into the store. Retailers have to respond by ordering more units so that consumers don't walk away unhappy."

"We call it the pissed-off factor," says Jerilyn Kessel, a managing director for Alexander & Associates. "A consumer looks for a specific title, he can't find it, and he gets pissed off. What we saw in January were people making multiple rentals, and if they didn't get their first choice they were probably very happy with the second choice."

LIEBERMAN ACQUIRES IVE

and video product."

Lieberman/IVE's move to acquire the Vista Organization is a sequel of sorts. In December, IVE offered to purchase Vista Home Video for $38 million in short-term notes.

The proposed price tag for the parent company is considerably higher: Lieberman/IVE is offering 1.7 million shares of common stock and $30 million worth of new Series C preferred stock for whole ownership of the Vista Organization.

Lieberman's common shares were moving over the counter at $14.75 at the close of trading on Feb. 1. Thus, the common shares offered in the Vista deal are worth approximately $25.5 million. The total worth of the Lieberman/IVE offer would be in excess of $55 million.

In addition to Vista Home Video, a specialist in the release of such B home video products as its current "The Howling III," Lieberman/IVE would acquire the assets of New Century/Vista Film Co., the theatrical production and distribution firm.

Of Vista's future position in the increasingly convoluted Lieberman/IVE infrastructure, Menendez will only say, "We need to decide what role [Vista] will play. We are studying the operation, and hopefully it can stay in place. I don't make quick judgments, and I will need to make a determination on this."

S-VHS PROGRAMS AVAILABLE TO CONSUMERS

the hardware universe grows substantially.

Bryan estimates that by Christmas, 20%-30% of all videocassette recorders being purchased will be S-VHS. Currently, he says the number of S-VHS hardware units in the U.S. is about 100,000. The decks cost more than $1,000 each; S-VHS camcorders list at $1,500-$1,800.

Super Source's first task, says Bryan, is to reach hardware dealers of S-VHS machines with demonstration tapes that feature clips from distributed product and a toll-free telephone number for the company.

Scott Burnett, sales chief of Diner-Allied, says the S-VHS tapes cost an average of $10-$15 higher than their VHS counterparts. He attributes this to the higher costs of the tape itself and of the duplicating equipment.

Packaging, says Bryan, will feature a S-VHS sticker, and if the title has a special audiotrack, that will also be flagged.

"River Song," an award-winning 1987 environmental film about the Grand Canyon, is narrated by Richard Chamberlain. "Impact Zone" is a 55-minute program on wind surfing and wave sailing in Hawaii.

CASH BIDS OFFERED FOR MUSICLAND

Primerica has been rumored to be ready to sell its majority stake in the specialty entertainment retailer to focus on its growing financial services business (Billboard, Jan. 16). Last June, the Greenwich, Conn., firm, formerly known as American Can, acquired the brokerage house Smith Barney Inc. for $750 million and has since been moving to divest itself of nonrelated activities in timberland, packaging, and mail marketing.

Financial analysts have speculated that at a price of $35 to $40 a share—the stock traded as high as $34.88 before the Oct. 19 crash—Primerica chief executive Gerald Tsai Jr. would be willing to part with Musicland. Based on projected 1988 earnings of $2.50 a share, a $35 buyout represents a forward multiple of 14, in line with the recent tender for the West Coast Wherehouse Entertainment chain, say analysts. At $35 a share, the value of Primerica's stake in Musicland would be nearly $329 million. Last year, Musicland reported net income of $22.6 million on sales of $510 million.

Speculation about Sears' interest in Musicland centers on Alfred Goldstein, who had overseen American Can's specialty retailing operations before returning to Sears to head its newly formed specialty merchandising unit (Billboard, Jan. 17, 1987). A Sears spokesman in Chicago declined to comment on any possible interest in Musicland.

A spokesman at W.H. Smith in England similarly declined comment on the Musicland situation. Sources say, however, that the company has been exploring possible acquisitions of U.S. music retailers over the past few months. The collapse of the dollar against the pound is seen as one major reason for this heightened interest.

A spokesman at Virgin in the U.K., another company rumored to be in the running for Musicland, denied any interest in the chain. The spokesman said Virgin officials had been informed of the availability of Musicland by a stockbroker in New York but had declined to make a bid.

Analysts here mention one other possibility—a leveraged buyout by Musicland management. Given the retailer's strong financial performance—Musicland earnings were up 71% to $2.05 a share last year—and relative lack of debt, there would seem to be ample availability of LBO financing, analysts say.

Assistance in preparing this story was provided by Geoff Mayfield in New York and Peter Jones in London.

Issues Debentures To Cinema West Stars To Go Refinances

LOS ANGELES Stars To Go here, the financially troubled convenience-store racker, has entered into a financial restructuring agreement involving as much as 80% of its outstanding common stock.

Describing the plan as long term, Stars To Go says it will issue to Cinema West Entertainment Inc. a seven-year junior debenture amounting to $15 million with an option for another $5 million, which "could bring [Cinema West's] equity position to 80% of common stock outstanding on a fully diluted basis," according to a release from the firm. Officers could not be reached at press time.

Cinema West is an investment firm here headed by Checci & Associates.

Recent financial problems related to Stars To Go's rapid growth and debt structuring surfaced toward the year's end, when the firm sought deferments on $20 million in senior debt (Billboard, Dec. 5).

WCI LABELS HIT ISGRO WITH $17 MIL FRAUD SUIT

est development in Isgro's ongoing legal wrangles with record companies that he has represented as an independent promoter.

On April 30, 1986, Isgro filed a $25-million-plus antitrust suit against most of the major labels—CBS was the notable exception—following their abrupt termination of indie promotion activities. Several labels—RCA, Capitol, Motown, PolyGram, and Chrysalis—have settled out of court with Isgro.

Isgro's antitrust case—the remaining defendants are MCA Records, A&M Records, and the four WCI-owned labels—is scheduled to come to trial April 28.

Isgro's attorney, Steve Cannata, says of the WCI suit: "We just think it's a posture by the defendants where they feel the best defense is a good offense. It is my understanding that they tried to introduce the same claims into our antitrust suit in December. They were prevented from doing so [by the court]."

According to the WCI labels' suit, in or about 1982 Isgro "devised and embarked upon a plan and a scheme to deceive plaintiffs and/or obtain from plaintiffs substantial amounts of money by false promises or statements." Specifically, the suit charges Isgro and his associates with billing the WCI labels "for services not actually rendered and/or for services rendered in violation of the terms and provisions" of Isgro's agreements with the labels.

The WCI charges are introduced by an in-depth explanation of how independent promoters seek to have radio stations report airplay for songs to the trade magazine Radio & Records. The suit is accompanied by contracts between Isgro's firms and the WCI labels. The first exhibit—a July 1, 1983, agreement with Warner Bros. Records—provides a specific breakdown of bonus payments to be made to Isgro on procurement of adds at R&R "parallel" reporting stations, classified as P1, P2, and P3. The fees are listed as $1,500 for a P1, $750 for a P2, and $500 for a P3.

The suit claims that an Isgro subcontractor paid personnel at unspecified radio stations at least $103,050 in 1983; $224,800 in 1984; and $194,800 in 1985.

According to the suit, the WCI labels were "ignorant of the falsity of ... representations on the part of Isgro Enterprises until September and October 1987."

For his part, Isgro refers to charges that he attempted to defraud the labels as being "absolute nonsense." He adds, "When I've sent services-rendered bills to them, their executives reviewed those bills and paid those bills. That alone is an admission of the fact they understood and accept responsibility that the service was done."

Noting that other label defendants in his antitrust suit have made out-of-court settlements, Isgro says, "That must say something, doesn't it? For the remaining [defendants], I'm prepared to support my allegations. I at least give MCA and A&M credit that they're prepared to defend their position—I respect that. But I have no respect for Warner Bros. All this is a delaying tactic. So, let's go—let's let a judge and jury decide."

JANUARY RIAA CERTIFICATIONS

for EWF and Joel, two of Columbia Records' longest-running star attractions.

Elton John's "Live In Australia With The Melbourne Symphony Orchestra"—which wobbled on the charts until the top 10 success of "Candle In The Wind" made it a bona fide hit—was certified gold in January. It's John's third gold album, following "11-17-70" and "Here And There."

Three other albums—besides "Faith" and "Characters"—were certified gold and platinum simultaneously in January: Madonna's "You Can Dance," Dokken's "Back For The Attack," and George Harrison's "Cloud Nine." This is Harrison's first gold album since 1979, and it's the first certified-platinum album of his solo career—though such early '70s albums as "All Things Must Pass" and "Living In The Material World" doubtless sold enough to qualify.

The top five success of INXS' "Kick" album—which was certified platinum in December—has rubbed off on two of the Australian group's catalog titles. The band's 1985 release, "Listen Like Thieves," went platinum, while 1983's "Shabooh Shoobah" went gold.

Those weren't the only catalog albums to earn January certifications. Tom Petty & the Heartbreakers' self-titled 1977 debut album finally went gold, more than 10 years after its release. Squeeze's "Singles—45's And Under" also went gold, more than six years after its release.

Three albums by rap acts went gold in January: Salt-N-Pepa's "Hot, Cool And Vicious," Whodini's "Open Sesame," and "Dana Dane With Fame."

Enigma Records landed its second platinum album in less than nine months with Stryper's "To Hell With The Devil." The Los Angeles-based label got its first taste of platinum in April with Poison's "Look What The Cat Dragged In."

And I.R.S. Records landed its sec-

Here's the complete list of January certifications:

MULTIPLATINUM ALBUMS

"Whitesnake," Geffen/Warner Bros., 5 million.

Def Leppard, "Hysteria," Mercury/PolyGram, 3 million.

ASCAP RESTORES BALANCE

his group because of the change. Weiss calls the ASCAP board's decision "technically correct," but he adds, "To suddenly pull the rug out from under writers is unfair."

ASCAP contends it has received few letters of complaint on the board's action, indicating the matter is of "almost no interest" to writer members, a spokesman says.

The issue can be seen, however, in the context of the highly competitive relationship between ASCAP and BMI, its chief competitor in the U.S. Both organizations are aggressively pursuing writer and publisher membership, and any decision that appears—on the surface at least—to diminish the income potential of a writer or publisher is likely to be called to the attention of prospective members.

In recent years, BMI has taken flak for its so-called bonus-payment system, which would deny extra payments to BMI-cleared songs if a writer switched from BMI to another rights group. BMI has delayed implementation of this new policy.

The ASCAP board's action is designed to restore the traditional 50/50 royalty split between writers and publishers by addressing an imbalance in the per-credit value given to writers and publishers.

Within the publisher group, but not within the writer group, the total number of credits has included credits earned by domestic publishers on works in which the writer's credits are claimed by a foreign society.

Using 1985 figures and a net amount of $135.6 million to be divided among publishers and writers, the old method called for a per-credit value of $2.7225 for writers and $2.3621 for publishers. Under the revised method, the writer credit is reduced to $2.534, while the publisher credit value is increased to $2.524.

It has been suggested that the publisher or publishers who pushed for this change got quick, positive results from the board by not pressing for retroactive payments.

The imbalance has become aggravated by the increasingly successful amount of foreign copyright works released here, starting with the punk/new wave invasion of the '70s.

GRAHAM NAMED IN BAY AREA ANTITRUST SUIT

According to the suit, San Jose Box, a 30-year-old ticket service, has had a 10-year relationship with BASS, which, with Ticketron, is one of two computerized ticketing services in the Bay area. Early in 1986, BASS, which operates more than 80 licensed ticket centers in the Bay area (including those in Tower and Warehouse retail outlets), began utilizing the computer software of national service Ticketmaster.

The suit, which alleges that "Ticketmaster has substantial control over BASS, and they appear to be operating in some respects as a joint company," also claims that "BASS/Ticketmaster possess and control over 50% of [the Bay-area ticket] market."

San Jose Box's action calls Graham's companies "the largest and dominant entertainment promoter in the San Francisco Bay area ... with control of as much as 70% or more of [the area's rock and contemporary music] concerts." The suit also states that Graham has been given the exclusive right to promote certain acts' shows in the area.

The suit further alleges that the principals of Graham and BASS are limited partners in the Shoreline, one of the area's premier concert venues, and that BASS is "the exclusive ticketing service for all the Bill Graham companies events, including those at the Shoreline Amphitheatre."

The major impetus for the San Jose Box suit appears to be BASS' demand, made in early 1986, that its retail ticket centers sign contracts requiring them to make BASS their exclusive computerized ticket service.

"In early 1987, San Jose Box signed the contract under the economic duress and business compulsion that it would be unable to obtain tickets to major upcoming events exclusively available on BASS," the suit says.

The conflict came to a head on May 3, when BASS disconnected its computer equipment at San Jose Box as customers lined up outside to purchase tickets for an upcoming Bon Jovi concert promoted by Graham at the Shoreline.

"BASS subsequently told San Jose Box that it had terminated San Jose Box because it had refused to charge the service charge agreed to and fixed by BASS, the Bill Graham companies, and Shoreline Amphitheatre companies," the suit states.

A deposition by San Jose Box president Joan Gordon says that a letter from David Mendelsohn of BASS received on May 6 states that "BASS equipment would be reconnected only if San Jose Box agreed to abide by price-fixing agreements BASS had with promoters or not sell the tickets at all."

The suit concludes, "By denying [San Jose Box] and other ticket companies direct access to tickets at the venues they control, BASS and Ticketmaster can raise the service charges they receive and deny the public access to tickets from other ticket companies with different or lower service charges."

These and other wide-ranging charges of collusion, monopolizing, and price fixing in the Bay-area market made by San Jose Box are being rebuffed by the defendants.

"We think that these are the fairest ticket distribution situations, and we beg to differ with the suit," says Roger Clark, director of marketing for Bill Graham Presents. "We stand behind our relationship with BASS/Ticketmaster."

Arthur Shartsis, an attorney for BASS, calls the suit the result of "a festering dispute" with San Jose Box and "the culmination of a long dialog that wasn't going anywhere."

Shartsis claims that San Jose Box has refused to comply with a six-tickets-per-customer limit mandated by

GRP Sets Deal To Market JVC Label In U.S., Canada

BY IRV LIGHTMAN

NEW YORK GRP Records' decade-old association with Japan's JVC Ltd. has evolved into a North American distribution arrangement with JVC Records.

Under the slogan "World Class Music," initial JVC product, in many ways a comfortable fit with GRP's own line of jazz-oriented albums, starts flowing Feb. 22 with seven releases, including a sampler. A release schedule calls for some 15 albums a year, in compact disk and cassette configurations only.

JVC has no plans to offer digital audiotape product, a move in line with JVC's decision not to market such product in Japan. The Japanese delay in the release of DAT, it's understood, is keyed to problems associated with retail rental activity, which is legal for audio product in Japan under a system of payment to copyright owners. As previously announced, GRP is readying a DAT release schedule in the U.S. and other markets this spring, although it will bypass its distributor, MCA, in making DATs available. In Canada, GRP distributor PolyGram will sell JVC's product.

The official launch of the long-term deal (Billboard, Jan. 30) was heralded at a press reception Feb. 3 at New York's Clinton Studios, where Larry Rosen, GRP co-owner with Dave Grusin; Bud Katzel, GRP senior VP of sales and marketing; and Noboru Takayama, president of JVC label parent Victor Music Industries revealed release schedules and marketing plans.

Katzel said a wide-ranging campaign would be initiated to create a strong identity for JVC product here.

The fete was also attended by JVC artist Oscar Castro-Neves, the Brazilian guitarist, who performed two numbers.

Castro-Neves is among the artists featured in the debut release. The others are vibraphonist Gary Burton & the Berklee All-Stars; saxophonist Malta, whose release "High Pressure" has reportedly sold 300,000 copies in Japan; flautist Masami Nakagawa; bassist Yoshio "Chin" Suzuki; and pianist Mashahiro Sayama.

Since going independent in 1983, GRP Records has been marketed in Japan by JVC. But GRP-JVC ties go back another five years to when label co-founders Rosen and Grusin's production company at the time made recordings that were released in Japan by Victor Musical Industries Inc., JVC Records' parent division. In addition, JVC Ltd. and GRP presented a 10-city U.S. tour of GRP artists in 1985, an event that led to a live album. GRP acts are also featured in the long-running JVC Jazz Festival. Ties exist on the hardware end as well, with GRP supplying DAT samplers to JVC for inclusion in DAT recorders sold abroad.

INSIDE TRACK

TAPE HIKE: At press time, Billboard learned that WEA will raise the list price on its cassette singles 50 cents to $2.49, effective Feb. 15. Branch managers are informing accounts via letters dated Feb. 5. The new wholesale cost will be $1.25. WEA cassette singles released before Feb. 15 will remain at a $1.99 list with a $1 wholesale cost. The only major still holding onto the $1.99 tag for cassette singles is A&M, but David Steffen, senior vice president of sales and marketing, acknowledges that with the rest of the pack at higher prices, it, too, is "considering" a hike.

HBO VIDEO CEO Frank O'Connell has resigned his post to become president of Reebok Brands. Curt Viebranz, a former Time Inc. and HBO executive, is returning to the company as president of HBO Video. Viebranz had been an executive vice president for the marketing information company SAMI/Burke Inc. O'Connell served as CEO of HBO Video for two years.

HEAT ON "EXPRESS" STOPS: Bruce Springsteen's upcoming Tunnel Of Love Express tour is definitely a hot topic of discussion among several leading national concert promoters, who are enraged by the 95%-5% deals reportedly being requested in favor of the artist. Still, that does not seem to be stopping some promoters from agreeing to present the Boss in concert. Says Barry Bell of Springsteen's booking agency, Gotham-based Premier Talent, "We never say what Bruce gets—that's between Bruce and the promoter." Initial dates and venues on the tour are Feb. 25, 28, 29, Centrum, Worcester, Mass.; March 3-4, Bean Smith Auditorium, Chapel Hill, N.C.; March 8-9, Spectrum, Philadelphia, Pa.; March 13-14, Richfield Coliseum, Cleveland; March 16-17, Rosemont Horizon, Chicago; March 22, 27, Omni, Atlanta; March 26, Rupp Arena, Lexington, Ky.; March 28-29, Joe Louis Arena, Detroit; April 1-2, Nassau Coliseum, Uniondale, N.Y.; and April 4-5, Capitol Center, Landover, Md. On Feb. 16, Columbia Records markets Springsteen's new singles, "One Step Up" and "Roulette."

MICHAEL JACKSON is making his first live appearance on television since 1983 by joining the performers on the New York-based 30th annual Grammy Awards Show March 2. He'll sing "Man In The Mirror," the new single from his "Bad" album, which has four Grammy nominations, including one for album of the year. Jackson last performed live on TV in "Motown: Yesterday, Today, Forever" . . . Speaking of past, present, and future, the music and performing arts unit of B'nai B'rith addresses the music of yesterday, today, and tomorrow at its regular monthly meeting Monday (8) at Sutton Place Synagogue in Manhattan starting at 6 p.m. The panel, moderated by Ed Cramer, consists of Milt Gabler, Juggy Gayles, and Lou Levy . . . Sal Ingeme celebrates his 30th year with Columbia Records, a fact Track hears won't be ignored by promo chief Marc Benesch at the label's upcoming promo meeting in Miami.

WITH CBS' ANTICOPY CHIP for digital audiotape recorders still being debated, along comes Leonard Kahn, a developer of one of the AM stereo systems still in use, with an alternative. Although he confesses it's "strictly paper-patent stuff," he's ready with a name: Stop-Cop.

HAIR-RAISING EVENT: Mike Bone, Chrysalis label president, shaved his head recently, thus fulfilling a promise that he would do so if and when sales of the Sinead O'Connor album hit the 50,000 mark. Another label exec, said to be in a&r, has promised to join Bone and O'Connor and shave her head, too, if the album's sales hit 100,000 units . . . Ed Rosenblatt, president of Geffen Records, hosted a private dinner party for key label executives at his home. The reason? A platinum certification for Aerosmith's latest album. The group also attended.

A NIGHT AT THE 'OPERA': PolyGram Records

purchased 200 seats for a Feb. 1 performance of the hottest ticket on Broadway, "Phantom Of The Opera," which is represented on the Polydor label with a U.K.-cast recording featuring Michael Crawford and Sarah Brightman, both of whom are also in the U.S. production. Before the show, the label hosted a black-tie cocktail reception at the Metropolitan Opera House's Grand Tier Restaurant for invited guests, including a number of key retailers and wholesalers, all of whom were eager to be photographed with composer Andrew Lloyd Webber.

CYPRESS RECORDS has created a "Critic's Choice" album of catalog and upcoming performances that will be cross promoted with Luxman, a manufacturer of upscale audio hardware. The album will contain a brochure from Luxman detailing special contests and such. The compilation album, in all configurations and at regular prices, contains sessions from five albums, including performances by David Pomeranz, John Stewart, Jennifer Warnes, Jesse Colin Young, and Tower Of Power.

BEATLEMANIA—THE CORRECTION: Capitol Records informs Track that the two "Past Masters" collections by the Beatles scheduled for spring release will not be issued on LP and cassette, as the label's release stated, but as a compact-disk-only item.

JOE SMITH, the industry's favorite MC, has been selected as man of the year by the Music Industry Chapter of the City of Hope and will receive the charity group's Spirit Of Life award at the annual banquet on July 14 at the Century Plaza Hotel in Los Angeles. The Capitol Industries-EMI Inc. president/CEO will join previous industry honorees Herb Alpert, Jerry Moss, Irving Azoff, Quincy Jones, Johnny Mathis, Mo Ostin, and Bill Graham. Funds raised from this year's banquet will go toward the establishment of the Joe Smith Research Fellowship at the City of Hope National Pilot Medical Center and Beckman Research Institute. But a major question arises: With Smith as the honoree, who will handle his traditional chores as the banquet's roastermaster general? . . . Publicist Dick Gersh has started teaching a class on public relations at New York Univ. Classes are being held each Thursday through May.

MORE MUSIC: CD-only label Rykodisc says it will break the 74-minute barrier and release the industry's first 80-minute CD—a compilation of material by Mission Of Burma, the now-defunct Boston band. The street date is Feb. 15 . . . MCA will become the first label to issue a three-song cassette single. The title will be "I Saw Him Standing There," the Beatles song covered by Tiffany. The two other songs don't appear on her album or on any previous single's B side. The concept of a three-song tape at a $2.99 list was recently suggested—then abandoned—by Arista. MCA's Tiffany tape, however, will be priced at $2.49, the same tag placed on its two-song cassette singles. Feb. 29 is the release date.

THE NEW AGE RAGE already has two radio consultants well set to feed it, and now it has its own trade group—the New Age Music Assn. Its founders are new age concert promoter David Bucksner and PR veteran David Henderson. NAMA's goals are to further new age's move into the mainstream by promoting the genre and to serve as a clearinghouse of info on new age artists, concerts, radio stations, etc. The membership fee is $50, and more info can be had by calling Bucksner at 816-221-6620 or Henderson at 303-850-7513.

THOSE OLDIES BUT "TINY'S": Rhino Records, which has packaged licensed hits from the past on everything from vinyl LPs to 10-inch 78 rpm disks, will launch a series of oldies on 3-inch CDs April 16. The L.A.-based label will initially issue 20 3-inch titles featuring four top hits by such artists as the Beach Boys, Fats Domino, Little Richard, and the Everly Brothers. The CD will be packaged in a new 4-by-12-inch anti-theft blister pack designed by Ultra Pack Inc. and Rhino's Brian Schuman. Marketing support will include a promotional video for retailer education, a buy-five-get-one-free coupon, and giveaways on oldies stations in 10 major markets.

EXIT: Track hears that Wherehouse Entertainment chairman Lou Kwiker has been informing vendors that his chain has quit the National Assn. of Recording Merchandisers.

Doc McGhee Pleads Guilty To Drug-Smuggling Charges

NEW YORK Doc McGhee, whose McGhee Entertainment company manages the careers of Bon Jovi and Motley Crue, pled guilty in a federal court here Jan. 19 to illegally importing 40,000 pounds of marijuana, worth $9 million, into the U.S. The charge carries a maximum sentence of five years in jail or a fine of $15,000 or both. McGhee is scheduled to be sentenced April 4 in U.S. District Court for the Eastern District of North Carolina.

The 21-count indictment (McGhee is named in two counts) alleges that the manager, along with several others, smuggled the drug into Morehead City, N.C., on a shrimp-boat in November 1982 with the intent of distributing it.

As part of the plea agreement reached, the government will not oppose McGhee's motion to have the possession-with-intent-to-sell count dismissed. Had McGhee been convicted of that charge, he could have been sentenced to an additional 15 years or fined another $125,000 or both. Also, the government has agreed not to prosecute McGhee for criminal tax violations.

A source close to the investigation says McGhee was implicated in the case in early 1987 after the leaders of a major drug ring operating out of Michigan and Florida were arrested and indicated their willingness to testify against him. The indictment was handed down April 29.

McGhee, along with his McGhee Entertainment partner Doug Thaler, was recently named personal manager of the year in Pollstar magazine's 1987 Readers Poll Awards. According to the trade journal Amusement Business, Bon Jovi had the second-highest-grossing tour of the year, while Motley Crue's tour pulled the 10th-highest take. In addition, Bon Jovi's "Slippery When Wet" was named Billboard's top pop album of 1987, selling 5 million copies (it had already moved 3 million in 1986). Motley Crue's "Girls, Girls, Girls" has sold 2 million units since its release earlier this year.

McGhee's office said that it would have no comment on the matter until after the sentencing. Neither the U.S. District Attorney prosecuting the case nor McGhee's lawyers could be reached for comment.

FRANKLY, SCARLETT, I THINK I'M GO-GO

If You Can't Hear This Duo, You Don't Know What's Happenin'!

SCARLETT & BLACK ARE nothing of the sort; rather, they're white, blond and English. As if that weren't confusing enough, their names are really Robin Hild (he's the boy) and Sue West (she's the girl). Boy Robin has long, flowing locks, while girl Sue wears her platinum hair in what was once known as a "butch." Go figure.

So which one is Scarlett? "We'd rather not say," answers Hild, owner of one of the purest-pop-for-now-people voices to come down the pike since George Michael (S&B were discovered by Mark Dean, discoverer of Wham!). "We'd prefer to maintain a sort of mystique." Fair enough, Robin, but you haven't heard the last of this sort of questioning. When radio hears Scarlett & Black's debut single, "You Don't Know," radio is gonna play the bejeezus out of it, and radio will then receive a deluge of what's known in the trade as "female phones," which translates to "megasmash." In time, S&B's label, Virgin, will determine that a second single is called for, and Virgin will come high and hard with "Let Yourself Go Go," and the entire under-25 world will then ask, "Which one's Scarlett?" All of this is virtually inevitable.

The eponymous album from which these two future hits are drawn was deftly produced by a comer named Paul Fox, who earned his studio stripes as the protege of hit- [Cont. on 188]

BALAAAM AND THE ANGEL

'Everyone's listening to speed metal at the moment, and everyone's buying Harley Davidsons. We've got the T-shirts!'

[Cont. from 66] risks with it, but there weren't that many people who seemed to understand what we were trying to do."

That problem will surely be corrected with the release of the English trio's artfully thunderous new LP, Live Free or Die. It's rare for an album as bold and uncompromising as this slab o' wax to contain a surefire hit single, but one listen to "The Things You Do to Me," with its classic cranking guitars and streamlined '90s groove, should be enough to hook any self-respecting rock & roller — just as it's guaranteed to blow the wimps into the next county.

In this video age, of course, material and musicianship aren't always enough — but Balaam and the Angel have nothing to worry about on that score. These three guys have something that doesn't grow on trees — hair! Mountains of it. Without a doubt, this band has the best rock & roll hair since the early days of David Lee Roth.

In time, the fans will forget the fact that Balaam was discovered by the Cult and come to accept this powerhouse band on its own defiant terms. You read it here first. ■

ZIGGY SEES STARDUST

Everybody's talking about 19-year-old Ziggy Marley and his three siblings, the Melody Makers. "I want to give people something to meditate on and take to heart," Ziggy says earnestly. "I also want to entertain and make them feel good!"

Inspired by the astounding work of their father, the late Bob Marley, Ziggy, his sisters Sharon and Cedella and brother Steven formed the group nine years ago. The Melody Makers' sunrise performance at Reggae Sunsplash last August and most recently at the NAACP Awards convinced those in the know that Ziggy is the most exciting thing to happen to reggae since his father began to set forth the sacred texts of this captivating idiom during the '60s. What's most exciting about this charismatic young artist, though, is that he has all the tools to take reggae far beyond mere cult status — at long last. Ziggy Marley isn't simply a gifted reggae artist, he's the first rock star of the '90s.

That's certainly the impression one gets from listening to his group's first album for Virgin Records, Conscious Party, due in March and produced by Tina Weymouth & Chris Frantz (Talking Heads, Tom Tom Club). This LP is positively jammed with hits, starting with the pumping single "Tomorrow's People." Talk about breaking down barriers: "Tomorrow's People" is something altogether new, a record that exists beyond categories — beyond black, beyond white, beyond reggae. It's that special, and it's going to happen BIG.

VIRGIN

YOU'D EXPECT A GROUP LED BY THE son of legendary English producer Mickey Most (Donovan, the Jeff Beck Group) to have some pop smarts. But who could have predicted that this baby band would score three consecutive top five records in England? Johnny Hates Jazz have begun '88 with an even bigger bang, as their debut LP entered the Brit charts at #1. So how can they possibly top that amazing start? Simple: by pulling off a similar coup in the U.S. "Shattered Dreams," is likely to start the ball rolling in grand fashion; it's a crisp midtempo tune that eschews the cliches of contemporary technopop in favor of classic pop virtues: melody, mood and momentum. This is the kind of record that will help make pop credible again.

Speaking of credible, there is much to enjoy on Hindsight's musically mesmerizing debut work — dance music hasn't sounded this smart since the heyday of Chic. Highlights of Days Like This range from the rock-steady funk anthem "Stand Up" (an ideal choice for the first single) to a buoyant and haunting remake of the Boz Scaggs classic "Lowdown." Throughout this provocative work, Defoe and partner Camelle Hinds demonstrate their mastery of the groove — and they lay it down with uncanny finesse.

NOTABLE NEWS

"China In Your Hand," the huge British hit by T'Pau (the biggest record of '87 in the U.K., #1 for five weeks) is finally being released in the U.S. The smash cut is a rerecording of a song from T'Pau's self-titled debut LP, which is now quadruple platinum in Europe. Interestingly, the English-based group scored their initial breakthrough in the U.S., notching a top five hit out of the box with "Heart and Soul"; the record's sudden stateside success prompting Virgin U.K. to re-release it in England, where it also went top five, priming the pump for "China In Your Hand." The rest is chart history. But will history repeat itself in America? The answer can be found in the grooves of this proven smash... Another chart-topping English band, Cutting Crew, is up for a Grammy in the Best New Artist category... And, while we're on the subject of rerecordings, Warren Zevon, that most eloquent of rock & rollers, has recut "Reconsider Me" (arguably the most beautiful — and accessible — song he has yet penned), with the help of, among others, Don Henley. The song was penned for the Excitable Boy's critically acclaimed Virgin debut, Sentimental Hygiene.
