THE BILLBOARD

Salt Lake City Sayings.

To the Editor of "The Billboard":
Dear Sir: Your paper is read quite extensively in Salt Lake City and as a publicly one of the objects that we are after, a few items from this intermountain region may be acceptable. Salt Lake City has an altitude of 4,200 feet, upon the earth's surface about as far south as Spain, and owing to the close proximity of the Great Salt Lake the atmosphere is not dry and hot but moist and humid, making it one of the most delightful climates in the world—but I am a billposter and not a real estate agent and will confine myself to billposting interests.—Our city is quite up-to-date in this regard. The boards are well patronized and its advantages and benefits are being appreciated and the circle of advertisers is increasing. We have much the same experience that fall to the lot of our more pretentious brethren of the craft with "opposition" legislation of billboards and with moralists and other cranks. The largest and most influential of our local merchants patronize the billboards. The Z. C. M. I. institution, doing a business of $1,000,000 per annum, have just posted 25 28-sheet hand written stands to announce a special sale. Walker Bros. dry goods store, who have one of the largest stores in Utah, have now upon their boards 25 20-sheets posters, printed by "Donaldson" of Cincinnati, and 25 4-sheet bicycle bills. Gardner's Clothing Co., Martin Coal Co., Seigel Clothing Co., New-Mart-Note Shoe Co., Nelson-Lindzen Drug Co., and the Deseret News Co. use our boards continuously all the year round. We paint posters and furnish the local theatrical and commercial community with stands, of which we have a good trade. Distributing and tacking are at a very few chh, in our city. Tacking is very much restricted by local ordinances, advertising cards, etc., to the outskirts of the city. Of this we are not sorry as tacking has always been inferior to bill posting interest. Cheap distributing has been the rule through irresponsible parties rushing into this business. We have been in business since 1883 and we do not know of any with whom we have done business during that time that we cannot refer to for a testimonial or endorsement.

ROBT. L. ANDERSON,
Western Bill Posting Co.,
Salt Lake City, Utah.

Council Bluffs, Ia. Concerns.

May 28, 1900.
To the Editor of "The Billboard":
Dear Sir—I have been very busy all spring, and our little city has never been so completely advertised, and it is spoken of by agents as being a nightmare of advertising. Improvements are being made in all branches of business, though there is no great hurry and bustle of the "boom" order. The Illinois Central R. R., which entered this city the past year, has just completed and thrown open to the public their new depot. A new electric car line, connecting South Omaha, Neb., with Lake Mauama, a suburb summer resort of Council Bluffs, is in course of construction and will soon be completed. The lake opens its summer season, June 15.

My billboards are filled with the following commercial paper: Walter Baker's Coca-Cola's Root Beer, Cudahy's Diamond "C" Soap, Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, Dr.

C. T. SIVALLS.

Pierce's Med. Discovery, Lion Coffee, The Great Rock Island Route, H. & H. Quaker Oats, Great Puff, Golden Leaf, Bull Durham, Old Virginia Chews, Sweet Caporal and Hunting Tobacco, besides other local work. The Cooper Circus, and Prof. Gentry's Dog and Pony Show are booked for the 6th and 7th, and 8th and 9th of June respectively.

Wishing you all success, I am yours,

C. W. NICHOLS.

Morris Towne Writes.

To the Editor of "The Billboard":
Dear Sir:—What is the matter with Southern California? Why nothing. There is Mr. Wilshire, of Los Angeles, Cal., who gets in an interesting item how and then. But where is the rest of them, are they asleep? They surely would have something interesting to tell us through the columns of the "Billboard." There is San Diego, Riverside, San Bernardino and Pasadena, towns of good size. Why don't they let us know how they are getting along? The regular advertiser misses a good thing by not advertising more extensively in So. California. We are surely way ahead of most the country and very prosperous. I have on my boards at present 4 16, 3 8, 3 6, 5 2 and 5 1-sheets; Fontella paper, 1 12, 3 8, and 5 3-sheets; miscellaneous paper from L. A. B. P. Co. Could accommodate much more. My friend Geo. Peters, of Santa Ana, has a good town, 6,000 inhabitants, a fine lot of boards in excellent locations. George is an up-to-date billposter. No advertiser should miss these two towns. Wishing the "Billboard" every success, I remain, yours very truly,

T. M. TOWNE.

Brownsville (Tex.) Beatings.

To the Editor of "The Billboard":

Brownsville, May 24, 1900.
Dear Sir:—Have posted for Sen. Sen. Queen Quality $3 Shoe (local), for Mrs. H. Bollock; Star Tobacco, Continental Tobacco Co., New York City. We have also distributed 3,800 for Dr. Miles Med. Co., Elkhart, Ind.; Matamoros, Mex., and Brownsville, Tex.; Lydia E. Pinkham, Lynn, Mass., 4,800 Brownsville and Corpus Christi; Perrina Drug Co., Columbus, O., 4,800 for Brownsville, Tex., besides receiving inquiries from Washington Institute, of Chicago, Ills. The following shipments are on the way: L. Gerstle & Co., Chattanooga, Tenn., and Boston Med. Institute, Chicago, Ills., and the prospects are good for more business.

Some firms hesitate about sending shipments to this town on account of difficulty in transportation, but now, as there will be a constant line of telephones between this city and Galveston, all shipments will have careful and prompt attention. All our shipments for Corpus Christi are all right; they all go by Arkansas & Texas route.

Tirrell Hustling.

W. C. Tirrell has been a very busy man, since his removal from Lima, getting his new plant into shape and hustling things generally. He writes as follows:

To the Editor of "The Billboard":

May 28, 1900.

Dear Sir:—We have been very busy the past two weeks building new boards, using matched lumber, with cap top and sides and inch moulding which we finish with coat of green paint which makes the board very attractive, and which are being commented on in this city as being very fine, and a great improvement over the old ones. We have just completed a hundred foot board of this description at the junction of the P. & O. and Nickel Plate R. R., and it is one of the best railroad boards to be found anywhere, and a great place for an advertiser to place his paper. We expect to place our plant in shape to give the advertiser the very best of service, as we have always done in the past. Very truly yours,

W. C. TIRRELL & CO.

Waterbury, Conn., Waifs.

To the Editor of "The Billboard":

Dear Sir:—Sells Bros. Circus had a great business in Waterbury. Business men advertised their goods with cloth signs over the elephants.

Childs Cigar is advertised by a man going about. Omega Oil now use the billboard. On the Leards are Hires' Root Beer, Emanuel and the Glister Polish Co., of Hartford, Conn., run a gas or oil automobile, selling evenings. I have refused one job for my county, because handing out advertisements at factory gates is against the law of any town or city in Connecticut, which the advertiser desired me to do. Sometimes it goes, but if it doesn't the fee is from $1 to $25 and costs. I cannot afford to lose that amount and would rather go without the job, for my sake as well as advertiser's.

THE BILLBOARD

Respectfully,

Joplin, Mo. in Line.

To the Editor of "The Billboard":

Dear Sir:—Being a constant reader of "The Billboard," I will say "The Billboard" is a good thing for bill posters and distributors to certain many valuable tips. I am just ready for business and would be glad to get a trial order. I propose to do work right, at reasonable rates. I wish you would give me rates for distributing circulars, addressed letters, etc., and for tacking up signs of different sizes. Any help "The Billboard" can give will be greatly appreciated. I will write later on and tell you how business is increasing. Yours truly,

F. MOORE.

An Opposition Showing.

On another page of this issue will be found half-tones of beards owned by C. H. Benedict, of Schenectady, N. Y. The beards are 25 feet long and 20 feet high and are covered with Wallace paper, billed against the Follies-Sells Shows. The photographs of this fine stand were taken May 15.

This showing is certainly a fine example of what can be done, notwithstanding gangs and gang rule. "Windy tooth" Carroll, of Albany, made it his business to see that Mr. Benedict did not obtain the association franchise; and so, disregarding the enmity of the powers that be, Mr. Benedict went ahead, and his will and determination not to let the gangsters down him, has won the day. He has now thirty-four excellent locations, about 2,400 running feet of beards, and is doing a good business. Truly, this is an opposition showing in more ways than one.

C. T. Sivalls.

Mr. C. T. Sivalls, whose portrait appears in this issue, is probably one of the oldest and best known circus agents now living. He commenced the circus business in 1857, as agent for Van Amburg & Co., and, in 1873, joined the Great Eastern Circus. In '75 he became general contracting agent for John O'Riley's Barnum World's Fair. The following year Mr. Sivalls joined the W. W. Cole Circus Menagerie as general contracting agent and remained with the show ten successive years, until it was sold at auction in New Orleans, and Cole became one of the proprietors and general manager of the P. T. Barnum show. Mr. Sivalls joined the Sells Bros. Circus in 1887 and remained with them ten years. He contracted the W. W. Cole Show through Australia the winter of 1880, and contracted the Sells Bros. Show through Australia the winter of 1881. The show left San Francisco in October and returned to San Francisco in June of 1882. For the past two years Mr. Sivalls has been engaged in the bill posting business in Houston, Tex.

Edwin A. Haskell.

Edwin A. Haskell, elected president of the Rocky Mountain Bill Posters' Association, at Denver, May 12, by a unanimous vote, is a resident of Grand Junction, Col., where he has resided for the past eight years. This association comprises Colorado, Utah, Wyoming, Arizona and New Mexico, and Mr. Haskell has declared his intention to endeavor to build up the country bill posters in his territory. He is also manager of the Park Opera House, one of the finest theaters on the Western slope.

Of Mr. Haskell, the St. Paul (Minn.) Daily Globe, December 11, 1887, says: "Edwin A. Haskell, the character actor of the People's Theater company, has had an unusually eventful career, even for a theatrical man. He is by no means a stranger to this city. . . . He was a resident of Minnesota and a student at Barnard's Business College. . . . Mr. Haskell started out in the world to seek fame and fortune at the age of thirteen years, and up to the present time his transitory career has led him from a news butcher on a railway train to the editor of red-hot Dakota frontier papers. . . . He made quite a record as the editor of the Mitchell (Ia.) Capital, and as a wire puller for Southern Dakota. It is said that he established himself in business principally upon cheek and assurance, and he made it well, too. . . . He was a success in starting up sensations, and knew how to cater to the Western mind and trade. As an actor, Haskell's experience has been quite tremendous."

Wanted.

To the Editor of "The Billboard":

Dear Sir:—Vicksburg, Miss., needs a good bill poster badly. The service the present man gives in Vicksburg is not what it ought to be. Of course he puts the paper up as well as he can, but a town the size of Vicksburg needs more and better boards. The State, county and city license for Vicksburg amount to only $7.50, but the ordinances are very strict. A good, hustling man, however, has a good opening at Vicksburg.

H. N. HOLSHAUER.

Letter from Galveston, Tex.

To the Editor of "The Billboard":

Dear Sir: I do not know of any news that would be of interest, but will give you a list of work done for the last thirty days. I have been in business here for the past five years I started in opposition to the bill poster that was here at that time, and in one year and ten months he (Otto A. Yance) sold out to the Galveston Bill Posting Company, who are the Cromwell Theatrical Circuit Company, and we have been in opposition for nearly three years, up to last January, when we came together and made a settlement. Great for Bill Posters.

Kansas City, Mo., June 1—(Special)—One Kansas City interest that is already feeling the influence of the democratic national convention is the bill posting business. The demand for space on local fences is unprecedented. Said Lou Hudson yesterday: "The Kansas City Bill Posting company has ordered a lot of new fences built 10,000 feet of lumber. We simply had to do it. There never was anything like the rush before we are experiencing now. It's mostly eastern advertisers that want to show here. Just one snap him, for instance—it's the Cudahy company—has ordered 1,000 sheets displayed. Each sheet is 25 by 42 inches in size. Then there's one tobacco house that has engaged eighty stands that are to make a triple showing: two twelve-sheet bills and between them a twenty-four forty-eight sheets all told. We have had to turn orders down. The democratic convention is going to be a big thing for us. We have more fences than ever before, but we have not nearly space enough to fill the demand. Increase? O, as I said, we shall build all the new fences we can. And we shall double and triple deck some. We have now only one or two two-story boards. Those are in the business center. We must have more for July 4. We say a national convention is hot stuff."

EDWIN A. HASKELL.

One of Redington's Distributors.

According to Mr. Redington's article, published in "The Billboard," for May 26, some distributors in the big cities "sit behind the safeguard of a city house, with their feet upon their desks, dictating to their stenographer the earnest soliciting letter telling of their most exorbitant rates while their dollar-a-day men are out making the King Bee fifty cents a day profit each." Then again there are others "who refuse to take contract under any consideration and some ask higher rates when the traveler wishes to superintend the work being done for his house."

Why a local distributor should ask higher rates when the traveler wishes to personally inspect the work being done, I cannot understand, as in my experience I have always been pleased to have any one inspect my work at any and all times. As to refusing to do the work at all, when a travelling distributor wishes to superintend the work, I have no opinion to express, as I have never had such an experience, having always employed my own inspectors and personally superintended all work intrusted to me. But the most amusing part of Mr. Redington's letter is the immense profit he seems to think fifty cents per day is off one "dollar-a-day" man. Wonder what he thinks is a fair profit for an employing distributor to make off each man per day? Ten or twenty cents? Surely he never stopped to consider that such a profit off ten men's wages would amount to the immense sum of $500 per day, out of which must come office and telephone rents, livery, fuel and light bills, carfare, postage and advertising, besides one's living expenses. And who would deny that all of these expenses are absolutely necessary to conduct a first-class and up-to-date distributing service? Of course, a local distributor cannot pay his employees $125 per month, as Mr. Behan proudly states he receives from the Dr. Kilmer Co., nor do they have the opportunity of traveling "all over Texas and selling three carloads of 'All over Texas' preparations per day?" Perhaps it is best not, as they might get to telling the same story, which, by the way, would sound like "thirty cents" to me, especially since dollar-a-day hotels seem to be in demand by a certain Kilmer & Co. travelling distributor.

Speaking of distributing for Dr. Kilmer & Co., beg pardon, Mr. Redington, I meant reminds me of a distribution I made for him in this city in the spring of 1897, which, according to Mr. Redington's statement, was very satisfactory to all concerned. However, this was before Mr. Redington entered the Advertising Bureau, Collar-button, etc., business, as I well remember of his writing me afterward that my retaining the business of his house in the future greatly depended on whether I bought a collar-button, distributor's directory, or something of that sort. I told him that while I desired to retain the work of his firm very much, I did not need either of the articles he was trying to sell me at that time. So I guess I will never receive any more work from the Dr. Kilmer & Co. and which I will miss very much, especially as they cover this city every three to five years.

I have noticed a number of articles by Mr. Redington and his traveling men regarding the local distributor, in "The Billboard" from time to time, in fact, the employees of Dr. Kilmer & Co. are fast making the house and name notorious by the amount of "rag chewing" done over traveling and local distributors. For my part I have little to say about the traveling distributor, other than that I have seen some very good ones, but a great many were poor ones, just as good ones will always be found.

Some weeks ago, Mr. H. E. Behan, representing the Dr. Kilmer Co., called on me and inquired what terms we could make for the distribution of his advertising matter, which would consist of about enough to cover this city and suburbs, one half the matter being a sample bottle enclosed in the "Old Dakin Bucket" booklet and the other half just the booklet alone. The books could be secured at the door or placed on the knob of about every other house, the package containing the bottle and the book must be put inside the houses not worked with the book alone. For this service, half of it inside of the house, Mr. Behan was willing to pay the sum of $2.00 per thousand straight, just think of it, $2.00 per thousand for the distribution of more than 15,000 of the packages containing the book and bottle, a price which the distribution of the book alone was really worth. And then you wonder that the Dr. Kilmer traveling distributor has so many tales of woe to tell regarding the local distributor. I asked Mr. Behan what I considered a very low price for the service he wanted, $1.00 per thousand, but he refused and said that I surely could make a good profit at $2.00 per thousand, as most of the houses were open in warm weather and that I could have my men just throw the package, book and bottle, inside the house and through an opening. This all sounded well enough to Mr. Behan, but not to me, as I have been "up against such games" before. In fact, it has not been a month since we lost money on Mr. Behan's distribution in Muncie, our local manager, Mr. Pickles, having made the mistake of accepting Mr. Behan's handsome offer of $2.00 per thousand. The weather was bad, help scarce and we came out on the wrong end. When Mr. Behan found that $2.00 was no inducement for this city service, he wanted to use our own wagon and some of our help. This I would not agree to, as we are always in need of our rigs. He thereupon left and later I found that he had employed two young fellows, and accompanying them in a rig, was marking the distribution himself. I noticed the work several times while it was being done and on one occasion called Mr. Behan's attention to the fact that his distributors were carelessly dropping the packages, containing the bottle and book, at the foot of the doors on the steps and porches of the dwellings in the very wealthiest part of the city. Mr. Behan at the time was quietly taking a sun-bath in his rig, standing in a side street, and knew little or nothing of the work of his employees. When I called his attention to the way the work was being done, he said that he was not aware of same and was standing on the cross street, because there was a procession on the main street several blocks away. However, I personally noticed that the work did not improve any throughout the entire distribution.

New, of course, I have nothing whatever against Mr. Behan or Mr. Redington or any one else connected with the Dr. Kilmer Co. and appreciate the fact that these gentlemen have a perfect right to do just as they think best about placing their work. But, I do not think it just the fair thing for them to try to "get back" at the distributor who is honest enough to refuse to do an impossible task to gratify the traveling distributor's wish, fails and naturally does the next best thing, slight the work in some manner or other. My experience has been that a properly paid distributor seldom gives poor service, but gradually down their pay tends to weaken the good service the might otherwise give. But then perhaps my experience does not count, as I have never received $125 per month for traveling all over Texas."

GEO. W. VANSYCKLE.

Carthage, Mo. Concerns.

To the Editor of "The Billboard":

Dear Sir—I see that Street & Smith want I. A. of D. members to distribute for $1.50. They say that they can not afford to pay more, but I. A. of D. men can not afford to distribute for less than $2.00 per 1000. Street & Smith are no better than any other advertiser. I am a member of the I. A. of D., and all advertisers pay me $2.00, and I will not work for Street & Smith, or any other firm, for less than $2.00 per 1000. I can not do honest work for less, and I won't work unless I can make common wages. I. A. of D. members must stick up for their price. We cannot let them "jew" us down to starvation wages for good, honest work. There are plenty of firms willing to pay a good price for honest work.

I have never seen any traveling distributor do as good distributing in this city as I do. They distribute around a few streets near the square, and call it a thorough distributor. A traveling distributor for Dr. Hand Medicine Co., of Philadelphia, came to this city about 18 months ago, and hired boys to distribute the books. One of the boys hid the books. Out of them I found in a railroad cut and under a bridge.

I have been distributing 2,000 books of Syrup Peppermint Co., Monticello, Ill., for local druggists at 2,000 circulars of L. C. McGuire, of St. Louis, Mo., for local druggist. 2,000 books for Dr. A. V. Barnes, St. Joe, Mo., 2,500 for Dr. Miles, Elkhart, Ind.; 2,500 for Dr. Chase Co., Philadelphia, Pa.; 2,000 Feet Ease samples, Allis & Hinest, Jersey, N. Y., 2,000 alumina & Diods, the Humble, N. Y., 2,000 books, Will A. Melton, Cleveland, O., 2,000 books, Providence Institute, Chicago, Ill., 2,000, St. Jacob Institute, Chicago, Ill., 2,000, Patterson Medical Co., Paterson, N. J., 2,000. I expect soon from Phoenix Chemical Co., St. Louis, Mo., I have a contract to distribute in this county 10,000 books for St. Jacob Institute.

We will have County Fair two miles from Parthage, August 7 to 10.

W. A. LOWREY

Kalkaska, Mich., Kicks.

To the Editor of "The Billboard":

Dear Sir—You are probably aware, we have kickers in every line of business. I notice in your issue of May 26 a letter from Street & Smith in regard to distributing, etc. There should be no firm, or firms doing business but should know that if you want good work you have to pay a good, fair price to get it. It is so in every kind of business, and no one should know it better than I, who have lived and been long years building up my trade and profession. Therefore, if Street & Smith would look at things the right way and admit that to live and keep up his plant and business a distributor must give a fair price ($1 per 1000 is not a bit too much), there would not be so much talk on the matter. If they were in the distributing business you may be sure they would see that it could not be done for any less than the above fair and proper price.

Before I close, I will say that Mr. J. M. Lecker, city bill poster of Abilene, Kan., is all right, and, for one, can kick in the same line with him, for I believe exactly as he does. Wishing everybody a successful career, I remain,

Yours truly,
FRED STUART.

As to Knockers.

Many complaints have of late been coming to "The Billboard" in regard to the "knockers" who write anonymous letters to advertisers in an endeavor to hurt the distributor and his business. This practice was at first too trivial a matter to notice, but the thing is now becoming so general that distributors are beginning to realize that something must be done to suppress the low, sneaking, underhand, back-biting "knocker" and his work. "The Billboard," always ready to champion the cause of its readers and their craft, is beginning to realize this also. It is time that a step be put to this anonymous knocking, and "The Billboard" asks any distributor who has suffered in this way, or who has any complaints to make or clues to offer, to let "The Billboard" hear from him.

"AJAX."

Doings.

W. C. Jordan, of Mechanic Falls, Me., has just finished a distribution for Lydia E. Pinkham.

George Kellermann, of Edgewoodville, Ill., has quit the distributing business for the present.

John R. Thompson, of Easton, Md., writes that he is now putting out paper for the American Tobacco Co., Old Virginia Cherokees, and is distributing for the Miles Medical Co.

J. F. Clark, of Conway, Ark., writes that the Woolson Spice Company, of Toledo, O., is sampling and packing in Arkansas, but that traveling distributors are being employed, and that the work is very poorly done.

The Genesee Pure Food Co., of Leroy, N. Y., recently distributed in Mechanic Falls, Lewiston and Auburn, Me. The work is reported as being poorly done, their pamphlets being indiscriminately thrown on the lawns and steps. The distributing was probably done by boys.

Ed. Harter, the popular Huntington, Ind., Fillyester, and manager of the Huntington Opera House, has bought out Ben Miles' distributing business in that place. He has applied for membership in the I. A. of D. and will give much of his attention to pushing his new line of work.

"Whifflets," the charming booklet issued a few years ago by A. M. Jenkinson, of the well-known tobacco firm, has been re-issued in a very handsome form, the typography and binding of the new edition being very much a la Roycroft and well up to the Roycroft standard. "Whifflets" mark a new era of taste in advertising.

Tom A. Hall, late manager of the distributing department for Owens & Varney, has entered into partnership with Mr. William M. Grim, and under the firm name of Hall & Grim they expect to control the distributing business of San Francisco. If hustling and up-to-date methods count for anything the new firm will succeed.

The Boston Medical Institute, of Chicago, complains about the work of Maurice Newcomb, a distributor of Pana, Ill., who, on February 21, under contract, claimed that he was a member of the I. A. of D., although his name does not appear in our May list of members. Newcomb had some of the Institute's books to distribute, which he claimed to have done, and sent in a bill. Not getting the returns the Chicago concern felt justified in expecting, it sent out a tracer after the books, and found that they had not been received by until a month after he had sent in the bill claiming he had done the work. He now claims that he was out of town, and his foreman made a mistake, which is a very weak explanation.

The Sterling Remedy Co., of Indiana Mineral Springs, Ind., is covering the entire country with distributing matter, and always contracts for the best service obtainable.

The other read: "To the memory of James Blank, agent of the — Life Insurance Company, of New York. Motto: 'Security.' It seems that Blank also had no relatives, and the company which he had served for many years charged itself with the duty of marking his grave. The order for the tombstone was given to a local stone cutter, who was furnished with one of the deceased agent's business cards as a guide to the correct spelling of his name. Being a rather thick-headed individual he didn't stop at the name, but copied the entire printed inscription, and nobody had sufficient authority in the premises to order him to do a new job. Thus have we two monuments dedicated to the 'Wisdom' and 'Ignorance' of poor mortal man."

The International Association of Distributors.

The Executive Committee has decided that the place of meeting for our next Convention be changed to Detroit, Mich., also date to August 7, 8 and 9, 1900.

All Advertisers and Advertising Agents are cordially invited to attend.

We trust that every member of the Association will make a special effort to be present.

IN NEW YORK.

The managing editor of "The Billboard" took a trip to New York the past week, for the purpose of renewing old acquaintances and obtaining a closer, more familiar and accurate view of the rather odd conditions which are dominating and disturbing nearly all the out-door advertising interests of the country, under the clever manipulation and bossism of the few wise ones of the Eastern metropolis. First of all, it is quite interesting to note that he found absolutely nothing to controvert the opinions already expressed upon this subject in former issues, but he did manage to strengthen his convictions and foreknowledge by abundant additional information, which will be presented to our readers from time to time in these columns. He is also in a position to state that the alleged protective company shuns considerably in magnitude and dimensions in importance under microscopic inspection. The condition of the company, at present, may be literally described as being "at sea," while the peculiar local New York bill posting situation, in spite of its surface serenity, is, to use the words of Samuel Pratt, "somewhat of a fog." When asked for his opinions in regard to these two abysmal topics, Adams Gude smiled in his peculiar amorous fashion, and declared he was having more fun than a fat man taking in a burlesque performance. He did confess, however, that Pratt was mainly instrumental in indirectly pointing out to him the wisdom of his way when he canceled his proposed midsummer trip to the Paris Exposition. On the other hand, Pratt seems to take the situation as seriously and phlegmatically as a jaded debauchee swallowing a morning glass of apertif. Stahlrodt's resolution is practically as indefinable as ever, but he still affects the same old-time determination, assiduity and caution, coldness.

IN A QUANDARY

Many of the large advertisers of the country are in a perfect quandary in regard to the purposes and principles of the new Protective Company, and, as a result, are assuming an antagonistic attitude towards the project. If bill posters are inclined to doubt this statement, then let them peruse the following letter from one of the biggest and best-known commercial firms, that is and for years has been, a regular patron of the billboards. This letter, which is published verbatim, was addressed to one of the most prominent officials of the Associated Bill Posters. It reads as follows:

"I am in receipt of a notice of the Associated Bill Posters' Protective Company, of New York, dated the 18th inst., forwarding a pamphlet, showing the lists of members in this new device, the principle reason for whose existence really appears to be to increase the price of the service to the advertiser. If it would not be telling tales out of school, I wish you would give me a few pointers as to just what the association is for. The tendency among the bill posters seems to be so strong in the line of increasing the cost of this form of advertising, that it has now reached a stage where it is getting a very serious matter to figure on very much of this class of work. When towns like Erie, Pa., begin to charge 12 cents per sheet, it means running into money very fast. The advantages the Association claim they will extend to the advertiser seem to me to be purely imaginary, as there has been no trouble in getting good service from the towns covered, and the great difficulty has been heretofore in getting some one to support the advertiser in his just demands on the 'small fry' in the little towns and cities. If you have any news that you can tell me that will be of value, please do so."

They Say —

That the Atlantic City meeting will afford many surprises, the exploitation of which at the present time is deemed imprudent.

That Pete Mylius, of A. Van Beuren & Co., is the undisputed king of all the real live, active and successful scholars who direct their efforts for bill posting exclusively.

That the American Bill Posting Co. of Brooklyn, can claim the distinction of possessing the most handsome offices and the cleanest shops and stables of any plant in America.

That a meeting of the directors of the new Protective company was held in New York on May 21. The purpose of this meeting was an endeavor to settle Stahlrodt's opposition to the meeting at Rochester.

That when Frank Fitch was selected for the position of general manager of the Protective company an attempt was made to engage his services by the month, instead of annually. Just think this over.

That the eventual shifting of the white elephant official cigar to Fitch's management is more than probable. Fitch ought to be able to put it on a paying basis, but can he make it newsworthy and interesting? That will tell.

That many of Campbell's actions of the past few months are very puzzling to the Eastern gangsters. He will try for the presidency at Atlantic City, it is claimed, but his withdrawal or defeat is admitted on all sides.

That at a recent meeting of the directors of the Associated Bill Posters, Toddy Safford was represented in a most bumbling manner, and literally stamped down. In fact, it was even a worse slap in the face than he received at the Detroit meeting six years ago.

There has heretofore been some hesitation among advertisers over sending shipments to Brownsville, Tex., because of the uncertainty of the transportation facilities. A new line of schooners between Galveston and Brownsville has lately been established, however, and no more trouble in forwarding will now be experienced.

That if Sam Pratt, that bright and clever "Brownie," should finally succeed in tossing the New York Bill Posting Company into the air, with the assistance of Association bluffs, the first man to personally congratulate him will be genial and generous O. Jay. But in order to accomplish his ends, Sam should be warned that it is first necessary to purchase a new pack of cards and permit a new deal.

That the present condition of bill posting affairs in New York City is in reality the funniest commercial comedy that has ever been produced in Manhattan Isle, and as a consequence D. J. Gude has been laughing so much the past few months that he is in actual danger of reducing his weight, and has only succeeded in stopping the threatened banting by copious draughts of Wurzburger and other flesh-forming foods.

The Rock Island Passenger department has adopted billboard advertising. The department has had several full-sheet posters lithographed in colors, representing the Rock Island, Colorado, flyer, going at full speed. These posters are about ten by fifteen feet, and have been sent to all the principal cities in the United States for display on billboards. The posters can be seen for many blocks and attract considerable attention.

That Sam W. Hoke, the New York solicitor, who is the possessor of such a big bankroll that he flashes a portion of it to his name, was a chance visitor in Chicago on Monday, May 21, while the Pratt-Hager "comedy mystery" was on the boards at the Leland Hotel. Hoke always did have a rather shik, accidental way of bobbing up opportunely. It was this characteristic of the can't-be-tossed "Dollar Mark" that caused Ed Stahlrodt so much worry and sleeplessness in bygone days, for Hoke's eyes are always wide open.

That Gude really feels grateful to the "gang." The whole bunch "towed him down" about five years ago—wouldn't take paper from him and didn't want to let him live. He didn't have fifty wall leases of his own at that time, and was dead anxious to hustle for bill posting exclusively. To-day he has over 3,000 leaseholds in Greater New York alone, with paint and electric light signs that absolutely dominate the town. He does a considerably larger local business on his own plant than either the New York or Van Beuren concerns. It is just about a toss-up between the rival bill posting plants for supremacy. The New York plant is believed to have the best of it on location, but what is the difference a few boards for one or the other, more or less. According to reports, both firms conceive that the O. J. Gude Company is bigger than either one of themselves.

A prominent bill poster in the far West writes to the editor of "The Billboard" as follows: "While I deplore the fact that The Billboard is not thoroughly in harmony with the views of a few leading officials of the Associated Bill Posters, I must confess that your publication performs an excellent service for the State of the United States in acting as a check upon the otherwise fanatical天然 of the House of Representatives."

Guess Again.

Sam — The Bill and its issue of May 12, my argument that it is bad in favor of new paper signs can be far more effectively utilized for the billboards.

"Such a instance as the great effectiveness in winter days when everyone leaves his cozy fireside and newspaper to stand out in the snowstorms to read the matter on the billboards of the Printers Ink that affords of newspaper advertising in reply.

Now really that is a very clever answer and a point well taken and The Billboard hopes sincerely hopes that Printers Ink has indulged in a nice private Little Chuck even the own wit and wisdom. Sure as fire flies and newspapers go hand in hand. But Printers Ink must remember that in the case out of ten that some newspaper starts that same day fire and while the newspaper ad is doing its fatal death up the face the same old bill board is in the same old place with its bright cheerful message that he who runs now read and that he who reads may run and buy.

Statesman's Ideas Indicted.

In the issue of May 26, "The Billboard" reprinted from "The Advertising World," of Columbus, Ohio, a well written and clever half column on "Poster Publicity," contributed to that paper by Charles W. Statesman, of Peru, Ind. Mr. Statesman has been a frequent contributor to "The Billboard," and his work has never been questioned, but the reprint in "The Billboard" of his article on "Poster Publicity" has raised a hue and cry. John O'Callahan, the advertising expert of Philadelphia, has accused Mr. Statesman of that great literary crime, plagiarism, and he writes to the editor of "The Billboard" accusing Mr. Statesman of stealing another man's ideas. He has also written to Mr. Statesman, and he thinks that Justice demands the publication of the letter. Mr. O'Callahan's letter to Mr. Statesman is therefore printed here, and is as follows:

Chas. W. Statesman, Esq., Peru, Ind.

Dear Sir: In a recent issue of "The Billboard" appears an article supposedly written by you and culled from the columns of "Advertising World." I never like to cast an unjust suspicion on any man or make a charge of "Plagiarism" unless I am certain of my claim. I have been, at times, guilty of "unconscious absorption" myself, but never to the extent of more than a few words. But when a man deliberately and with "malice aforethought," lays in wait to throttle an original genius I most certainly go out looking for him with a complaint. When a man seeks originality with a club of self-aggrandizement, when he steals an article word for word, and you dare not deny it. Show me more than one line of original material and you can have my check for a hundred. Show me one, just one, mind you, original thought, and I will stake you for a thousand. A man that will intentionally steal catchy phrases and not give credit to the creator is indeed a "small, cheap guy." The genius, the foresight, and the wisdom, you, by some strange chance possess, could well be spread on a silver three-cent piece, and it would take a powerful magnifying glass to find it at that. Your thin transparent originality could be discovered by a school boy without advice from his elders, and what you knew of common courtesy would look scant if cited in two-pica letters on a 'N.Y.' The next time you "Just sit down and take pen in hand to convey a few thoughts" be more particular about who the subject is going to circulate. Your original Article would look well in some publication circulating in your own narrow imagination but it looks mighty small in "The Billboard" which, if I mistake not, reaches some readers who have common ordinary intellect and come with a memory. Come let's sit the secret! How ever did you do it?" J. O'

Here and There.

The Terre Haute Brewing Company has ordered 10,000 whole sheets.

Galveston Brewing Company, Galveston, Tex., have ordered 10,000 two-sheet posters.

Carlstadt Medicine Company, Evansville, Ind., have reordered 3,000 of their liver cure eight-sheets.

The Lincoln Proprietary Company of Fort Wayne, Ind., continues an extensive campaign of the bill boards.

B. M. Buckmeister of Wahpeton, N. Dak., has sold his bill posting business to R. W. Beatty, of the same place.

New billboards have been constructed at Pacific Brook, Mich., on Hamber Avenue, and decorated with posters for the Ringling Bros. circus.

An Advertisers' League has been organized at Dallas, Tex., for the protection of merchants against fake advertising schemes.

The Fall Festival of Cincinnati will be held in every town within a distance of 100 miles of Cincinnati. Manager E. T. Ziegler wants to bear from every bill poster within this territory.

The Monte Carlo (Alta Street) Fair and Review intends to bill the entire South by its bill posters should communicate with M. C. E. Morris, chairman of the advertising committee.

A new baking powder company was incorporated under the laws of New York May 2 which may develop into a notable bill board advertiser. Its name is the Atlanta Baking Powder Company of Rochester, the capital stock being $100,000.

The case against George Smith an employee of George M. Leibig, of Grand Rapids, charged by other wells with having a bill board on West Bridge street was adjourned. In effect it is that the other day by a result of both sides uniting.

The Newark Bill Posting Company, the Elizabeth Bill Posting Company and the Plainfield Bill Posting Company, of which New Jersey combination Sam Pratt is president, have issued one of the neatest and most compact folders that has yet come to the notice of "The Billboard." One of its features is a map showing the towns and giving the population in the Newark, Plainfield and Elizabeth districts. The folder is veritably a dandy.

Tent Shows.

The Treasurer.

All hail to the man who can heal all ourills,
When salary day comes with a package of ills;
Who sits in the wagon and opens his wallet,
Rakes in all the wealth and hands each one
a ticket;
Who's who of us all but looked anxious for Sunday?
And thought of the call that awaited us
Monday?
May he never again take such desperate chances.
As he took once before in the wilds of Arkansas,
When against some one's impudence loud he protested,
And swore at the guy, and of course was arrested;
Swear never at all never swear to be true
To the sway of a woman, this world wanders through,
As full of contentment, of joy and of peace,
As you heretofore found with your little unise.
May you live, and your portrait hang high in Fame's gallery,
And heaven preserve you to pay us our salary,
And when at the end of this life, and its season,
You account for its stewardship, may you have reason
To hold up your head and stand firm and erect,
And the manager, God, find your books "all correct."
We wish you ten thousand returns of the day
You commenced in the wagon the first of last
May,
And wherever we go, or where fortune may call,
You have the good wishes and thanks of us
all. JOSEPH A. GULICK (1877).

His Mighty Molar Extracted.

City of Mexico, June 1.—(Special to Special to Orrin Bros' big elephant, Columbus, has been successfully operated on for a toothache. For over twenty years Columbus has been with the show, and there is not a child in the State of Mexico who does not know Columbus. The elephant man with the show never had the least trouble with Columbus. Consequently, when he reported to the owners that there was something the matter with Columbus the owners of the circus were surprised. They went to his quarters and found Columbus sitting back on his haunches swinging his monster head from side to side. His trunk was swinging around like a huge pendulum. Every now and then he would bellow as if in great pain. The elephant keeper or the owners had no idea what ailed the even-tempered Columbus, who had now become rather ugly. Several veterinarians were called in and examined Columbus, but they were unable to tell what ailed him. It was finally discovered, however, that the elephant's gum was terribly swollen, and Mrs. Fabbri and Patchek, the well-known veterinarians, determined that a tooth was decaying at the root, and that an operation was necessary. Columbus was chained, and his trunk was strapped up and held tight by a rope around his back. Then the doctors went to work.

The gum was soaked with cocaine, and a three-quarter-inch auger was brought into use. A spot several inches from the gum was selected and a hole was started. Boring through solid ivory is no easy work, and each doctor took his turn at the instrument. Every now and then work would be suspended, as Columbus would be getting nervous. More cocaine was injected around the spot, and the work of drilling through the big tooth was resumed. For nearly two hours the surgeons worked, and finally the hole was completed. This done, they rested for a while, and then the real work was begun. A small iron rod was run through the hole, the ends protruding about four inches on either end. An inch rope, heavily soaked and smeared with tar, was then tied to each end of the iron bar. The rope was then wound or wrapped around the tusk, the tusk preventing it from slipping. While all this was going on the cocaine was being applied. When all the preliminaries had been completed, the tarred rope was run through a pulley. It was then carried out and attached to the traces of four big horses. When everything was in readiness the doctors and attendants ret red to a safe distance. The other attendants were armed with elephant hooks, and not a few had Winchesters, as there was no telling how Columbus was going to take the real thing. Finally the word was given, and the driver whipped up his horses. As soon as they began to pull, the elephant began to bellow. He tried to release himself by bracing his front feet against the stakes. This was just what was wanted. Another crack at the horses, and amid the terrible bellowing, out came the big tooth. A profuse hemorrhage and a great deal of matter from the ulceration followed. But the extraction was a relief, and Columbus, after a few bellows, became quiet. The surgeons then washed out the cavity with a strong solution of cocaine, and then dressed it with a solution of perchloride of iron to stop the hemorrhage.

Circus Preferred.

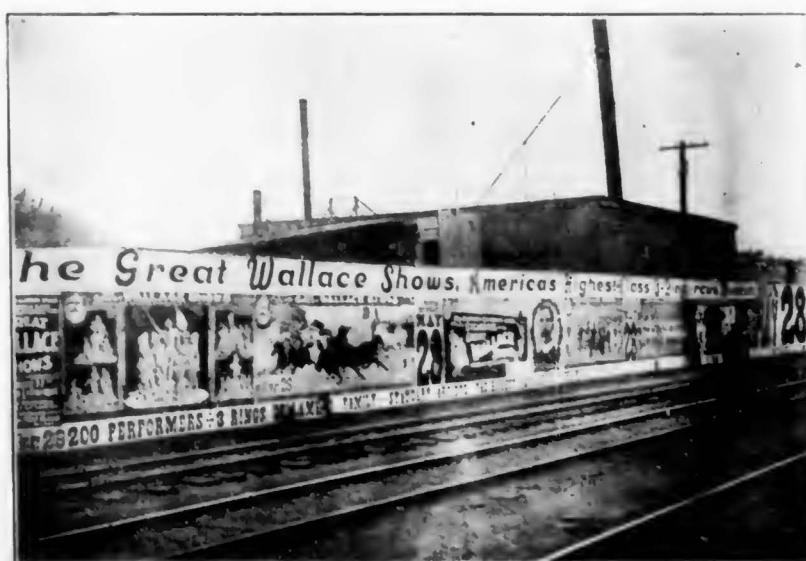

Cleveland, Ohio, June 2.—(Special)—A lively discussion took place in the Council Chamber, a day or two ago, over the ordinance to tax circuses and Wild West shows $250 a day. Mayor Farely said:

"Cleveland is getting to be a big town. There are many kids in this town who like to go to a circus. I like to go myself and smell the sawdust; it reminds me of the time when I was a boy. You want to look at this thing in a liberal manner. The country boy brings in his best girl. He buys her soda water and many things. He comes to town to cut a swath, and he isn't afraid to spend his money. He isn't like the fellow who comes to town to attend a church gathering—the fellow who comes with a clean shirt on and $2 in his pocket, and never changes either until after he leaves town."

Very True.

Dear Sir—The "Billboard" is the tented show folk's favorite and a pronounced success. Long live "The Billboard!" You have the exclamation of our entire show crew. A word for "The Billboard." Without hesitating I can cheerfully say that the weekly "Billboard" is the brightest amusement edition of any amusement publication offered the show people. It is free from those long-winded, padded articles from barn storming tramps, whose notices always appear weekly in other publications of a like nature. I will say these articles are not of the worst kind, and all the reliable show people are very tired of reading them. If they want to tell people that they have added another length of seats to their caravans, why not buy seven or eight more cross-lined sheet lithos and a few hundred more programs, and not try and tell that kind of "junk" to people who know the r every move and their caliber.

Bowery). It would seem that his prospects are good.

H. W. Link, the well-known circus agent, is at liberty. Any show wanting a good, reliable agent that knows the business from the ground up, will do well to communicate with H. W. at his present stand, which is room 4, 44 University Place, New York City.

Clem Kerr, press agent and treasurer of the W. H. Harras Nickel Plate Shows, writes that his circus has not only turned people away in two places without a sheet of paper up, as recorded in a recent issue of "The Billboard," but "on account of no available space," has done so on numerous other occasions this season. Clem is proud of this unique record, and he certainly has every right to be.

Rice's Dog and Pony Show is one of the special features for the season of the Great Oriental Carnival Company. They are now en route from winter quarters to Cleveland, O., where the carnival season opens June 4, under the management of Mr. John G. Scorer. Prof. Rice has added many new features to his show, and his improved methods of training and acts should please the ladies and children.

The following are with the Ed. F. Davis Shows: The three La Rue Brothers, Welcome and Forepaugh, Bernard Orton, Moore and Gilmore Family, the Asbys, and Mabel Hall, with her mane horse "King." Robert Emmons has a good animal act with his two steers, a burro, a pony, a mule and a high-strung horse. The show has been refitted this season, and everything is new; the stock is in elegant condition also. Owing to rain, snow and cold weather playing in opposition, the show's business at first was nothing to brag of, but since leaving Kalamazoo matters have taken a different turn, and now everything points to a very successful season.

J. W. Harpstrite is contemplating a tour of the San Juan Country of Colorado and the San Peat Valley of Utah under canvas the coming July and August. The top will be a 50 with a 20, the interior arranged to produce standard dramas in that section of the mining country where there are no theatres, making three-day and week stands. He will have two cars to transport the Show. J. K. Vetter, who has been with Mr. Harpstrite the past two years, has been looking over the country the past few weeks and reports that it is in better condition than for some time. The Campbell Bro's Circus has been doing that section the past two weeks to a big business, and as the people are always hungry for amusement two or three companies will do well. At this writing the companies touring that section are: The Nashville Students (Rosco & Holland's), Redick's Black Crook, Noble's Dramatic Co., and Campbell's Bro's Circus. "The Billboard" has already made a hit through that country, and the showmen are beginning to look for it every Saturday. They find it contains more Tent Show news than any other paper published.

Beating Its Way.

A show which goes under the name of Buchanan Bros' Circus, is reported to be doing people for all it can, and bill posters and others are warned to be careful about taking the show's business. Several reports have come in telling of people who have had the worst of the deal with Buchanan Bros., and the latest is from Pella, Ia., where the bill poster who did the show's work was unable to make connections with the show's cash box. In fact, the show would not pay out a cent to any one, and when it left there was weeping and wailing and gnashing of teeth. There are several shows on the road which seem to make a business of this kind of thing, and Buchanan Bros' Circus is one of them.

THE BILLBOARD.

Booming the Festival.

Much the most interesting and enthusiastic meeting of the Cincinnati Fall Festival Directors was held at the rooms in the Gibson once last Friday. There was not a single member of the Executive Board absent, and Chairman Braunstein, Vice President Fleischmann, Manager Ziegler and the whole retinue of officers down to the most unimportant member had something interesting to offer. There were reports from all the committees, in everything now begins to show a spirit of concentration. The great festival is just 3 days off, and with everything in its present shape, the matter of arranging the program and the various details will not probably be a very difficult problem. Mayor-elect Fleischmann was particularly enthusiastic. He noted that he had received letters from people of other cities congratulating him and the association in general on the possibilities for the fall. There was considerable said and done concerning the exhibition features. This is to be illustrative character and its features will be extremely unique and original in many ways. Mr. Fleischmann brought the official notice of the meeting yesterday of the action of the P. S. In giving the association the use of the canal. It was also determined that a Committee on Mechanical and Practical features of the exhibition had been letting grass grow under its feet. The report of the Committee on Attractions was deferred until the meeting of next Friday night, when there will be something definite underlined. John Rettig, the well-known designer of Cincinnati spectacles, presented at the meeting a proposition to put on a Biblical spectacle, using the great Music Hall stage. All the various points will be taken in consideration, and if the expenditure should warrant it, not only this, but other spectacles will be utilized. It is thought, however, that a great number of extremely unique and original ideas already in preparation will supply all up the allotted ten days, taken in conjunction with all the other features. Manager Ziegler has received some communications from different parties all over the country relative to attractions. The fame of the coming festival has spread to the great theatrical centers of Europe. Sam Haller, who is Manager Ziegler's right-hand man, "has been in Europe, and is back in this country arranging dates for the great Paris attraction called "A Trip to Paris." It is a possibility that this may be seen in Cincinnati during the coming festival.

The baseball feature of the festival is a "rowing." Tickets are selling well. The owners of the Cincinnati Baseball Park are doing everything in their power to get the grounds ready for the game Saturday, June 9. The grand stand will have to be replaced, and it is possible this will be done, but in event it is found impracticable, the gymnasium grounds may be substituted. Manager Crane of the Business Men's Club baseball contingent, has his forces well in hand, and there will be no trouble about that ature of the contest.

The buttons are also going well. The first issued was 5,000. At the next meeting an additional 5,000 will be ordered. It is found that there is $30,000 in bank and something like $17,000 in sight, and no wholesalers or manufacturers have yet been approached. This is considered exceedingly encouraging by the directors. Additional subscriptions reported yesterday were as follows: Donaldson Lithographing Co., $1,000; Eddie Baylis, $500; Standard Oil Company, $500; Enquirer Job Printing Co., $250; Henegan & Co., $250; Russell & Morgan, $500; Strobridge Lithographing Co., $100. A contract for 5,000 single sheets was given to both the Donaldson Lithographing Co. and the Strobridge Lithographing Co. This is for preliminary work.

Manager Ziegler received communications from 200 cities relative to posting and advertising, and this feature of the publicity part of the festival will be well attended to. A meeting of the Finance Committee will be held this evening at 8 o'clock at the Gibson house headquarters. There have been a number of requests received for space. In response to the invitation of the committee I have their envelopes printed on the back with the announcement of the festival, something like 200 envelopes have been printed, representing concern high in the business community.

The Fall Festival paper is now being arranged for and designed. The festival will be filled extensively and liberally, and no expense will be spared in this respect.

St. Louis Bill Reported.

Washington, May 28 (Special)—Chairman Lawrence, of the Committee on the St. Louis Exposition Commemorating the Louisiana Purchase, to-day filed a report without recommendation, but giving an extended summary of details and purposes of the bill, which tables on the extent of Government participation in expositions up to date. The original bill virtually pledged this congress to appropriate hereafter $5,000,000, upon condition that $10,000,000 shall be raised by the local authorities, State and city. The report states that the substitute so changes the appropriation that instead of committing this congress on the appropriation of the specific sum of $5,000,000 or any other specific sum, it fixes that amount as the maximum that may be appropriated, leaving it entirely within the discretion of congress to say what amount shall be appropriated hereafter.

By this change, the opportunity to use the pledge of congress to influence the local elections on the question of authorizing bonds for the commission is removed.

The Messrs. Corliss of Michigan, Steele of Indiana and Sherman of New York also file their views, saying that pending action by the voters of the State of Missouri and city of St. Louis upon the pending constitutional amendment for a bond issue, it will be impossible to determine whether they will be able to assume their necessary obligations.

Formed at Last.

The Association of Vaudeville Managers of the United States, which has been under discussion for some time, has been formed. The articles of confederation were signed at the Hoffman House in New York City May 31. The officers of the association are: President, Benjamin F. Keith, of Boston; vice president, George Middleton, of St. Louis; general secretary, Plimpton B. Chase, of Washington; treasurer, Louis C. Behman, of Brooklyn; assistant treasurer, Charles E. Kohl, of Chicago; Eastern board of managers, Edward F. Albee, of New York; Louis C. Behman, of Brooklyn; George E. Lathrop, of Boston; F. F. Proctor, of New York, and Michael Shea, of Buffalo. Western board of managers, Charles E. Kohl, John D. Hopkins and John J. Murdoch, of Chicago; Morris Meyerhoff, Jr., of San Francisco, and M. C. Anderson, of Cincinnati. John F. Cronan, of Boston, has been retained as counsel. The object of the association is the regulation of certain conditions which have grown to such proportions.

portions during the last two or three years as to threaten seriously the prosperity of the entire business. It also aims to make possible the booking of a more compact route for performers, obviating the heavy outlay for transportation now made necessary by the independent bookings of each circuit. To effect this, central booking agencies will be established as soon as possible in New York and Chicago. The association will in no sense be a trust.

All Dates Fixed.

The dates for the poultry show, races and horse show, all features of the Southern Interstate Fair, have now been fixed, as follows: Poultry show, Oct. 12 to 14; races, Oct. 17 to 25; horse show, Oct. 23 to 27. These features of the fair will be given as much attention as the many others, and it is intended that they shall be high-class in every particular. The Southern Interstate Fair takes place at Atlanta, Ga., Oct. 10 to 27.

Celebrated Together.

The anniversary of the birth of Nathan Hale will be celebrated June 6 by the Connecticut society, Sons of the Revolution, the exercises to take place at East Haddam, where the Nathan Hale school-house is. This is to be transferred to the Connecticut society by the New York society, and ex-Governor Morgan G. Bulkeley has presented to the society eight acres of land about the school-house. This is to be known as Nathan Hale park. On the same day East Haddam will celebrate the 200th anniversary of its separation from the town of Haddam, and an interesting programme has been prepared.

A fair association has been organized at Danville, Ky., with a capital of $7,500. The association will buy the old Danville Fair Grounds and give a fair the first week in August.

Geo. D. Benson.

Perhaps one of the most pronounced successes of the last few seasons in entertainments, was the free Street Fair and Carnival just closed at Richmond, Va. The crowds were immense, the entertainment was perfect and the finances came out way ahead. The Carnival association are a unit in giving all credit for this grand success to the veteran Street Fair and Carnival conductor, G. D. Benson, of Laporte, Ind., who was the director-general of the affair. Secretary Eichelerger, in speaking of the wonderful success and of Benson's great powers of mind and body, said: "We thought Benson a little high in his prices when he was called upon first, but after numerous telegrams to cities where he had worked, we concluded he was the man we wanted, regardless of price, and engaged him. Really, his price makes no difference to the city contemplating a Fair, as he will save them and make them many times the amount of any salary however high." Mr. Benson has had many years experience in entertaining, in fact is known as the father of Street Fairs and Carnivals, and has a long record of perfect Fairs, held in all parts of the country.

Notes.

The Island Park summer resort at Dehaven, O., opens July 1 for the season.

Dishkosh, Wis., will have a Fourth of July celebration. Albert Dalton is in charge.

L. N. O'Dell will make the balloon ascensions at the Sheridan (Wyo.) Mid-Summer Carnival.

Shoshone, Wyo., will have a mid-summer carnival July 3, 4 and 5. Bert Coffeen is manager.

The Burlington County Fair will be held at affair. Heretofore the first day (July 3) has been devoted strictly to business; this year, however, the big tri-county meet will be held on both days.

Bellows Falls, Vt., will spend $1,000 on its Fourth of July celebration. Good prizes will be offered and the horribles and antiques will be on in force. Dr. J. S. Hill is chairman of the committee, and Thomas Shaughnessy, secretary. C. J. O'Neill will have charge of the advertising.

Col. W. H. Fremont, manager of Cove Springs Park, Frankfort, Ky., was in "Hillbilly" earlier June 1. He is hustling the town for further orders, and Frankfort will have a big Fourth of July celebration this year. Keep your eye on the Colonel; there's always doing when he's around.

Caledonia, N. Y., will have a big day June 13, when the new soldiers' monument, in that town, will be unveiled. Addresses will be made by Governor Roosevelt, Colonel N. P. Pond, department state commander G. A. R., James S. Graham and Consul O. F. Williams. Sherman D. Richardson will read an original poem.

Garland, Me., is making preparations for an elaborate celebration, to occur some time in August, in observance of the one hundredth anniversary of its settlement. The general committee in charge of the program and other arrangements is composed of Lynden Oak, Dr. F. A. T. Emerson, J. T. Fogg, Miss Ellen M. Haskell and others, the chairman being J. M. Oak.

The Lake View Cycle Club, composed of leading young men of Merrill, Wis., will celebrate the Fourth by holding their second annual Gymkhana and bicycle race meet. They gave a most successful meet last year, at which over $200 in prizes was given, and to assure a good attendance this year, they have decided to increase their prize list. Entry blanks will be furnished and all queries cheerfully answered by L. J. Bruce, corresponding secretary.

The Fourth of July parade of Lowell, Mass., will be quite elaborate. The following prizes are offered: Antique and horrible parade, four prizes—For the most antique and horrible feature presented by not less than 25 men, three prizes as follows: First, $200; second, $150; third, $100, for the organization turning out the largest number of men; $50 Veteran Firemen's parade—Prizes for best appearing companies with hand-tubs, due consideration being given to the number of men in line: First, $150, second, $100, third, $75. The offer for firemen is considered one which will attract a large gathering of out-of-town companies. Major Charles S. Proctor will be chief marshal.

One-Legged Bicyclist's Slide to Safety, or—

Kilpatrick's Feat in Lagoon Park, Cincinnati
Which Makes the Spectators Gasp, then Howl.

Just before the show closes at Lagoon Park, in Cincinnati, a man wearing a red coat, white trousers, red stockings and cap emerges from the Club House riding an ordinary bicycle. To those in the audience who are not acquainted with what he intends to do, his appearance suggests nothing, but the bow of the rider becomes eloquent and most attractive to the audience when they discover that only one leg serves to propel the wheel, as the other is missing, having been amputated close to the hip.

The bicyclist is Charles E. Kilpatrick, a well-known trick rider. As Kilpatrick jumps from his wheel, an attendant hastens up the staircase with it, the performer follows more slowly, leaning on a crutch.

"He surely cannot intend to ride down those stairs!" a thousand people think or say simultaneously. "There is no protection for him. Why the lamest swerve would place his wheel beyond control, and that would mean sudden death."

Except for the music, all noise and conversation ceases as the red-clad figure mounts, stopping here and there to test the firmness of a guy rope or to scrutinize a step. Vigilance is the price of safety here, and Kilpatrick's sharp eye seems to pass in review every detail of the stairs. He carefully brushes away a bit of dirt, or descends a few steps to see if he has overbalanced a splinter or anything else dangerous before he reaches the top he looks down and then up, holding the latter attitude fully a minute. The music dies and the audience shifts uneasily.

"I can not look at him," hundreds of women murmur, and the blood leaves hundreds of faces white, nervous men involuntarily shade their features with trembling hands. Now Kilpatrick is only a tiny fleck of red, just below the roof where a narrow platform hangs.

"Ready! Go!" rings out, and the red-coated figure darts into plain view. There is a gasp from myriad throats, the handkerchiefs fall unconsciously, and thousands on thousands of figures bend forward to a rigid attitude of expectancy. Like an artery cut, with a white sheet torn across, the scarlet coat leaps downward. For the early part of the voyage Kilpatrick pedals until the machine gets away from him. The rest is a coast, and the most reckless ever seen, but the nerve of the rider carries him through, and the wheel darts into the arena at a frightful speed to the rapturous howling applause of the audience, and especially of that portion which vowed it "could not watch it," but did, nevertheless, and marveled how it happened. As the pace lessens, Kilpatrick dismounts, his wheel is seized and carried off by an attendant, and the rider acknowledges the applause.
