50th ANNUAL CONVENTION, A. F. OF L.

THE Golden Jubilee anniversary of American Federation of Labor Convention holding was celebrated in Boston during the first two weeks of October. The surroundings were inspirational. It would be a dull and phlegmatic nature which could not become interested over a visit to such historic shrines. Nevertheless there were handicaps which at first threatened success and experiences well calculated to test the metal of the visiting delegates. Labor was called upon to pitch its tent against an American Legion background. With 75,000 Legionnaires in Boston, with headquarters at the same hotel as the Labor hosts, the latter were for nearly the entire first week overshadowed in the public mind by the World War veterans. With this situation no labor delegate could or would complain as 658,000 American trade unionists entered the war with union cards in their pockets. It was simply unfortunate that both conventions should have fallen upon the same time and place. However, as the Legion convention began to dissolve and the gallant soldier boys retrace their steps homeward, the Labor Convention began to come into its own, and before the official two weeks' sojourn had terminated all realized that the fiftieth annual Labor convention had not met in vain.

Nevertheless and notwithstanding, Boston gave the Labor convention a most cordial welcome. It was a notable opening day in spite of rival attractions. President Herbert Hoover, for the nation; Governor Frank G. Allen, for the Commonwealth of Massachusetts, and Mayor James M. Curley, for the City of Boston, brought messages of felicitation, encouragement and hope.

When the fiftieth annual convention of the American Federation of Labor opened at 10 o'clock on Monday, October 6, the gavel of President William Green brought to order 418 delegates, representing ninety-one international and national unions, four departments, thirty state branches, seventy-six central bodies, thirty-five local trades and federal labor unions and five fraternal delegates.

As a musical and much appreciated incidental to the opening exercises a fine orchestra from Local No. 9, A. F. of M., under the leadership of Brother John L. Murtagh, rendered a program of high-class music.

P. Harry Jennings of the Brotherhood of Teamsters and Chauffeurs, Chairman of the Entertainment Committee, introduced Nathan Sidd, President of the Boston Central Labor Union, a temporary presiding officer.

His Eminence, Cardinal O'Connell, Archbishop of Boston, invoked the Divine blessing.

President James T. Moriarty of the Massachusetts Federation of Labor pointed out that "Boston has more history than any city in the country," and expressed the hope that "more history might be written into the archives of this convention."

Governor Frank G. Allen, of fine appearance and scholarly mien, reviewed the industrial history of Massachusetts and its pioneering innovations in the way of pro-labor legislation and showed his sympathy with present purposes when he said:

In Massachusetts we do not look backward. Our eyes are ever forward. We look to the future with a confident hope that the 48-hour standard will eventually become general throughout the United States, as its benefits to the workers and through them to the industries themselves become more and more apparent.

The oratorical honors of this occasion must be accorded to Mayor James M. Curley. Unhindered by notes, he spoke from the heart. He spoke also as an American when he said:

Golden Jubilee of A. F. of L. Celebrated in Historic Gathering at Historic Boston

By DELEGATE CHAUNCEY A. WEAVER

We are awakening at the spectacle of six hundred Communists in Cleveland attempting to storm the train of the President of the United States. Why? Because they find it difficult to understand why the richest nation in the world, with more money in control of the Federal treasury and the trust companies and the banks and financial institutions of the land than any other nation, is unable to solve an economic problem that would guarantee work for the able-bodied, willing workers of America.

We quote Mayor Curley's concluding paragraph to his fine welcoming address as follows:

problem, the equitable solution of which is necessary if the American Republic is to endure.

The response to these addresses of welcome by President Green was in his best and happiest vein.

President Hoover's Speech

Any organization would expect that the convention day honored by a visit from the President of the United States would be its big day. President Hoover, scheduled for an address before the American Legion convention, accepted the invitation of President Green to address the there the subject matter, creditable in the main, may invariably be found. After listening to his fifteen-minute address, unilluminated by the flash of a smile, unembellished by a single gesture, unvaried by one rising or swelling of the voice, an auditor sees him leave the platform with the impression that the man could kiss ice water without experiencing or imparting one single emotional thrill.

Of course, the daily press carried President Hoover's Labor Convention address in full. We do not need to review the contents here. He spoke in terms of appreciation of the fine co-operation which organized labor had given the government in trying to solve the problems which long periods of depression invariably present, and reiterated the sentiment expressed before the Bankers' Association at Cleveland a few days earlier when he opposed any movement looking to a lowering of the standards of living. This was the sounding of a note of encouragement which should hearten the ranks of labor and cause them to hope for the best in the remaining days of the Hoover administration.

With the committee announcements the first day of the convention was brought to a close and the delegates dispersed to become lost in the surging, milling, rollicking Legionaire multitudes which filled the hotel and swarmed the centrifugal streets of Boston.

Tuesday, October 7, the Labor convention was in session one hour. Eighty thousand Legionnaires, in all kinds of uniforms, with bands without number and drum corps galore, were scheduled for a parade which was to begin at 10 o'clock in the forenoon and continue until after night-fall. In this atmosphere of civic and patriotic pandemonium all convention deliberations would be necessarily farcical and an early adjournment was again taken.

The Clouds of Depression

The Boston convention convened with a keen sense of responsibility. The clouds of depression, not only of national, but of international import, could not be shunted or ignored. The thought of 3,000,000 men out of work could not fail to be a most sobering influence upon any body of representative men. They realized that workers are losing faith in platitudes; that banking house bulletins of optimism are deficient in nourishment, and that rents and grocery bills and necessary wearing apparel are essential substantialities if the family circle is to be maintained.

Therefore, the delegates listened with almost painful intensity to the series of resolutions demanding that immediate steps be taken by the government and private agencies to relieve destitution and want by providing work before winter comes.

The resolutions call upon President Hoover to take the lead in a national program of relief work and see that state and local branches of the Federation should at once start action by calling on governors, mayors and other heads of government agencies, as well as heads of private enterprises, for an immediate beginning of construction and other work.

President Green made a vigorous protest against the suggestion of the "dole" system in this country. He analyzed the situations, both in Great Britain and in America, and pointed out that such a system would prove anything but satisfying here. He said the American worker wanted not charity but a job. And the convention appeared to be of similar mind.

THEATRES REALIZE "LIFE" IS ESSENTIAL, "VARIETY" REPORTS

Mechanistic Houses Remind Patrons of Morgue, Manager Tells Interviewer—Other Executives See Light.

AMERICAN FEDERATION OF MUSICIANS' ADVERTISING BEARS FRUIT

Views Expressed by Showmen Today Echo Words of Warning Uttered by President Weber Two Years Ago.

Theatres throughout the country have been embarrassed by public disapproval of the cold atmosphere prevailing when the all-sound policy is pursued, VARIETY'S Chicago correspondent has discovered in interviewing managers.

Opinions of managers today are strangely reminiscent of predictions made by the American Federation of Musicians in the newspapers more than two years ago. Even the language used recalls interviews given by President Weber in the early days of Canned Music. For instance:

"As one manager stated (to VARIETY'S correspondent)—'Many people have told me that they don't like to come to picture theatres any more because the place reminds either of a morgue or funeral chapel.'"

That sounds as though the American Federation of Musicians' advertising campaign was bearing fruit and at last penetrating even to theatre executives. We didn't suggest the "morgue" reminder, but we did say that lifeless theatres were little more than museums.

"For even the big circuit houses," the correspondent writes, "have finally noticed that people had lost the idea that the theatre was a glamorous place; and they have finally realized that the aura of glamour was essential to the wellbeing of the theatre. * * * Some managers are of the opinion that vaudeville is due for its comeback primarily because the theatres must come to life. Show business, they state, depends on the theatre and the theatre must have lights and flesh and some signs of life. The present deadness and flat darkness must eventually, they believe, be relieved by the return of humanness."

These discoveries of VARIETY, a trade paper which regards the box office as the mainspring of show business, bear out the facts as far as musicians are concerned. It goes without saying that music is the chief source of glamorous atmosphere in the theatre, and the disposition of managers to turn from "all-sound" to orchestras has become more marked as the months have gone by.

The public has responded surprisingly to pleas for the preservation of the musical art, contained in American Federation of Musicians' advertisements. And in consequence, many theatres have restored orchestras. The movement back to Living Music would have been of greater volume, perhaps, if current business depression had not involved conditions. It is good to know that theatre executives are convinced that music and life are "essential to the theatre's wellbeing."

Lloyd George is the authority for the statement that every two and a half years in the last century they have had industrial depression in Great Britain. In America we have had one every seven years, and we have shortly got to make our choice between the adoption of a dole system that will sap the initiative and the character and the pioneer experience that has ever been evidenced in the American people or an economic system that will provide work and the wages for those in need of work and wages. It is a great task. It must feel good, after fifty years of fighting, to realize you have reached that stage in the fight where the justice of your cause has received the recognition that will ultimately mean united support in the solving of this great economic Labor convention also. Three o'clock on the opening day afternoon was the hour set for the national Chief Executive. He arrived on time, surrounded by the usual retinue. Mrs. Hoover accompanied him.

It was a fine stage setting and favorable atmosphere for a notable utterance. So far as looking for oratorical fire from President Hoover is concerned, you might as well expect pyrotechnics from an obelisk. It is not in the man. We say this in no spirit of disparagement of the President. Nature did not cast him in the oratorical mold. One must turn to the printed page to know what he said and

ON THE JOB!

The following telegram was received by the President's office and should prove of interest to the entire membership of the American Federation of Musicians:

Vancouver, B. C., Symphony Society gave its first orchestral concert in Orpheum Theatre this (Sunday) afternoon for 1930-31 season. Orchestra composed of 72 local professional musicians conducted by Allard D. Rigger of Los Angeles. Theatre filled mostly by members subscribing for all concerts, no tickets being sold today (Sunday). Enthusiasm intense. This is British Columbia's answer whether its citizens want real music or robot substitute. Society managed by well-known local citizens acting in harmonious conjunction with local musicians' union.

"MASTER METAL MOUTHPIECES"
 FOR SAXOPHONES

Why the Master? We call them the "MASTER MOUTHPIECES" because: With them and through them a player can do everything better than with any other mouthpiece on the market. They are made of one piece and being seamless provide a solid foundation for the vibrations to radiate from. They are absolutely sanitary. The teeth rest on a hard rubber inlay exclusive in our mouthpieces, eliminating the germ carrying glued-on soft rubber patch. A new style, single screw ligature assures an even pressure acting directly on the reed.

Labor Will Press Its Wage Plan

THE recent A. F. of L. convention in Boston indicates Labor's determination to press its high-wage principle.

A quarter of a century ago the A. F. of L. convention at Norfolk declared that low wages do not shorten business depressions; they have a contrary effect. This declaration was made when low wages were supposed to reduce costs and high wages were considered an additional tax on the people.

The Norfolk declaration was elaborated at the Atlantic City convention and is now emphasized at Boston.

Labor's rejection of the low-wage economists' theory and popular acceptance of a new outlook is one of the most significant reversals of our economic history. The new viewpoint—that living standards must continually go upward—was favored by President Hoover in his address to the Boston convention.

Workers must understand the two theories that are opposite as the poles.

It is impossible to accept labor's position and at the same time be satisfied with what today is known as "a living wage."

If wages are based on sheer necessities the doctrine of "contented" workers is logical. If wages are based on labor's new wage doctrine the "contented" laborer is replaced by workers who insist on more equitable divisions of created wealth.

This question reaches into every activity of life.

If a worker is contented in the factory he is contented in every activity of life. He protests against no injustice.

The effect of labor's wage philosophy is not confined within factory walls. It reaches into every avenue of life because of the effect that intelligent dissatisfaction has on man's spiritual powers.

Labor's wage philosophy leads to greater diffusion of wealth, fewer depressions, and the development of independent, intelligent, aggressive workers.

The low-wage policy centralizes wealth and fosters a dependent spirit among workers.

There is inspiration and certainty in labor's position.

Every element of autocracy and stand-patism is found in the old theory.

Unemployment Is Not Inevitable!

EVIDENCE accumulates that the industrial managers of the world are not accepting unemployment, and unemployment crises, as an inevitable part of industrial life.

The "stabilization of employment" is a subject which is now receiving attention in many quarters, ranging from the railroads with their co-operative shop relations and the General Electric Company, to the great dock managements of four great European cities.

Even in China, the Ministry of Agriculture and Mining and the Ministry of Industry, Commerce and Labor are jointly organizing a special committee to work out basic measures of relief.

Last February the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad and Shop Craft Federation No. 30 had signed an agreement looking toward this end, by reducing the weekly hours of labor instead of reducing the number of workers.

In April the convention of the Railway Employees' Department of the American Federation of Labor adopted a program which it recommended to the various units as a basis for negotiations and subsequent agreements looking toward the reduction of weekly hours, the limitation of apprentices, vacations with pay, establishment of "minimum force," construction work in railroad shops and maintenance reserve.

In June the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad took further steps, reducing the weekly hours, and arranging layoffs with a view to stabilizing the employment for those on the company's payroll.

In March of this year the Governor of New York appointed a representative committee to consider the matter. This committee has made a preliminary report, which has been published by the State Industrial Commissioners, showing that 306 employers in that State had already in operation methods for stabilization of their employment rolls. And this committee made further recommendations, among which the first recited is of great importance. It reads:

"That the idea of a steady year-round work be so incorporated in business men's thinking as to become of outstanding importance in the employer's everyday planning and action."

The committee also emphasized the planning of State and municipal constructional activities with reference to the conditions of employment generally, for the purpose of stabilization of the general field of labor.

From Europe comes a report on four great city ports, Hamburg, Liverpool, Rotterdam and Antwerp, giving the details of organization and operation, in anticipation of the recurring periods of unemployment which occur at those centers of commercial activity from time to time.

Europe has paid more attention to these problems than America, and their unemployment provisions are based upon previous experiences of their organized labor and co-operative movements.

The classification of "permanent," "reserve" and "casual" workers, and the registration of those employed is quite clearly worked out in the Hamburg plan. Employers at that point even pay the wages through the offices of the union organizations. The system has the effect of guaranteeing employment to the regular workers, and securing the supply of skilled men at all times in proportion to the requirements of the industry.

These are signs that show an awakening and they are hopeful. Always organized labor has led the thinking, as it does today. Unemployment does not "have to be."

Labor Queries - - - -

Questions and Answers on Labor: What It Has Done; Where It Stands on Problems of the Day; Its Aim and Program; Who's Who in the Ranks of the Organized Tollers, etc., etc.

Q.—What is the remedy for the issuance of injunctions in labor disputes?

A.—Answering this question, the American Federation of Labor says: "The election of representatives to public office, state and national, who have definitely declared that they are opposed to the abuse of injunctions in labor disputes and favor legislation to correct these abuses. The appointment or election of enlightened liberal lawyers to our various courts so that laws enacted to regulate the use of injunctions shall be enforced as intended."

Q.—Who is Bunji Suzuki?

A.—President of the Japanese General Federation of Labor. He has sometimes been called the "Samuel Gompers of Japan."

Q.—What emergency measures are recommended by the American Federation of Labor to meet the unemployment problem?

A.—The Federation's latest monthly survey of business says: "All possible assistance should be marshalled to meet this problem in a constructive way. Public construction work should be hastened and public relief provided where necessary; employers can help substantially by making every effort to provide work for a few more wage-earners; and private families can have repair work, painting and cleaning done now."

Q.—Who is the consulting engineer of the Railway Employes' Department, American Federation of Labor?

A.—O. S. Beyer.

Q.—What is the oldest machinists' local union in the United States?

A.—San Francisco Lodge No. 68, International Union of Machinists, claims this honor. The lodge was formed in 1885.

Q.—Is there any national agreement between trade unions and employers providing for the five-day week?

A.—Yes. Such an agreement for sprinkle-fitters was recently signed by the United Association of Plumbers and Steam Fitters of the United States and Canada and the National Automatic Sprinkler Association providing for a five-day week and a wage increase.

Out Beyond the Surf--

Where thought, unhampered by necessity or trepidation, sometimes penetrates to truth. Here, where the shallows throw no spray, let us ponder and enjoy the lessons of the art and the work and play of life.

At last the question of the age of the American Federation of Labor has been cleared up.

The fiftieth anniversary will occur in November, 1931. No fiftieth birthday until next year.

And ever so many had thought it was this year.

But next year is Jubilee Year.

This is the decision of the executive council, as reported to the Boston convention.

A lot of argument could be produced, but to what avail?

Next year is Jubilee Year. So be it. Get on your mark! Get set!

Let's go!

Goals galore can be set forth. This year there were 112 new unions organized in the South. Next year there ought to be 500.

A million new members ought to be secured.

Tear loose!

Rattle the rafters.

Keep secretaries busy making out new cards. Keep rosters bulging.

Impress employers with a new feeling that trade unionism means something permanent, valuable, insistent, purposeful, American.

The 1931 convention ought to be a Show of Shows for labor. It ought to be a hummer—a Jubilee Convention, with everything that is implied by the word Jubilee!

Let's go!

Perhaps 1930 wasn't a good year for a Jubilee anyway.

It has been a year of hard knocks—depression, unemployment, more than its quota of injunctions.

But bad as it was it saw a trade union spirit that was unconquerable, that set the stage for Jubilee Year.

It saw wages held, membership gained, more solidarity, more of that spirit that put Lexington and Concord and Bunker Hill into history.

With 1930 and its battle to build on, what limit is there to the record to be made in the year to come?

There's no limit.

Steam up. Fires burning. Flags flying.

Let's go!

Toward the Shorter Work-Day

THE American Federation of Labor has been talking about the shorter work-day and work-week. It has come out flatly for the five-day week. It did not set up the five-hour day as an immediate and definite goal.

But the Federation convention did boldly mark out a policy that must lead to drastic action toward reducing the number of hours in the work-day.

The Executive Council is given the task of making a profound study of the question, reporting to the next convention. This is progress.

Every shortening of the hours of work thus far achieved has been through organized labor. It will continue so. But, whereas in earlier years human health and welfare was the main driving cause, today the machine has come into the situation to add a new and powerful argument for reduction of hours.

The Executive Council has before it a big job. Unemployment tells us something must be done. To do the adequate thing is labor's job. To act with wisdom is as necessary as to act effectively.

Remedy the Injunction Evil

EACH month sees a better understanding of the injunction evil. Each month recruits join the army of those fighting the menace to liberty. Each month more trade unionists are aroused.

President Green of the American Federation of Labor declares the injunction is labor's paramount issue. He does not overstate the case.

The injunction destroys human freedom and whatever destroys human freedom in any degree will broaden its field of destruction unless it is itself destroyed.

Every reactionary power is aligned against labor in this fight. But labor is on the side of progress. Labor stands on the ground allowed by the Minute Men. Candidates for Congress may not like this issue—but there it is, made not by labor, but by tyrannical judges. Freedom must triumph!

Keep an eye on candidates. Some primaries have been held, but final elections are yet to come.

Find out whether candidates are for or against the use of the injunction in industrial disputes.

The man who is for the injunction in such cases is against labor.

The injunction issue looms above all others. Let no injunction candidate escape condemnation at the polls.

22 Times "KING" Alto Saxophone!

Better Construction The New-VOLL-TRUE-Model 22 Changes-22 Improvements

complete new Construction
22 Decided Improvements:
All these changes were made to give you a better instrument. This Saxophone is different: we have put into it all the good qualities players have asked for.

- ### IMPROVEMENTS BY NUMBER
- No. 1. Specially designed bowl for fullness of tone and ease of playing.
 - No. 2. Wide and long top opening allows the reed to vibrate easier. Upper tones very easy to play.
 - No. 3. Built to fit mouth naturally. Mouthpiece made of the very best hard rubber obtainable. With this material and these three improvements, it will surprise you how fast and easy you can execute on your saxophone.
 - No. 4. Octave socket moved to conform with bowl of mouthpiece which is essential to the quality of tone and ease of playing in the upper register.
 - No. 5. The bore and shape of the mouth pipe controls all tones. Small end designed for upper register. No difficulty in playing upper tones. Balance of bore starts with concave and gradually increases to body size at lower end. Result obtained is a full middle register with extra volume in lower.
 - No. 6-7-8-9-10. Moved on body to conform with octave socket and mouthpiece.
 - No. 11-12. Changed in size and moved on body to conform with bore at small end of the mouth pipe.
 - No. 13. Moved on body to harmonize with low B natural.
 - No. 14-15. Size changed and moved on body to equalize the five different ways of fingering. The pitch and quality of this tone played with the three different fingers of the right hand, is equal to the left hand fingering.
 - No. 16-17. Moved on body to conform with octave socket in mouth pipe for fullness of tone. The quality of this tone is unsurpassable.
 - No. 18-19-20-21-22. All are changed in size and moved on body to conform with concave and bore of mouth pipe, obtaining great volume and richness of tone.

"O Fairest Flower! No Sooner Blown but Blasted!"

GOOD MUSIC in our country has grown to a glorious blossoming. American orchestras, American musicians now rank with the finest in the world. Shall we continue to nurture and cherish this beautiful flower, or shall we let it dwindle and die under blighting Canned Music poured out by mechanical Robots?

Which do you prefer for the money you pay at the theatre box office? The stirring performance of Living Music played and felt by flesh-and-blood musicians, or a strident din from the throat of a piece of machinery? Shall it be glamor or clamor?

Millions of men and women who love real music are demanding that it shall not be blighted . . . demanding that they shall not be deprived of enjoyment to which they're entitled. These millions are giving force to their demands by enrolling in the Music Defense League. You can swell this chorus of protest by mailing this coupon today. Do it!

American Federation of Musicians
1440 Broadway, New York, N. Y.

Gentlemen: Without further obligation on my part, please enroll my name in the Music Defense League, as one who is opposed to the elimination of Living Music from the Theatre.

LABORGRAMS

North Carolina has more than 20,000 cases of pellagra, a disease that results only from lack of proper food. It is an economic disease," says the doctors. Meanwhile employers continue paying the wages that make for pellagra and in addition to that continue discharging workers.

One large Southern employer pays off in envelopes advising the workers to deposit their savings in the bank. One envelope contained less than $9 for 100 hours of work. Yea, deposit your savings! And for the love of Mike, stay away from unions! So sayeth the boss.

One newspaper that two months ago continuously raved about how the high cost of living soon would be is now printing daily articles to show how much cheaper everything is today. Great is the prophetic ability of profit-haunting newspapers.

Fiftieth Annual Convention

ment situation comes the issue of unemployment insurance and old age pensions. The resolution most directly raising the issue was introduced by Delegate Florence Curtis Hanson of the American Federation of Teachers. The proposal was to make the insurance a charge on industry in the same way as workmen's compensation for accidents; contributions to be received not less than 40 per cent of their prevailing weekly wage, with 10 per cent additional for a wife and 5 per cent for each child up to two—insurance to be paid not more than 26 weeks each year; administration to be in the hands of the State Department of Labor.

As views are so far from being clearly definite, the farthest the committee was willing to go was to recommend to the National Executive Council a thorough study during the coming year and see if some tangible plans could be formulated by the date of the next annual convention.

The Eternal Prohibition Issue

Resolutions were offered for repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment and for modification of the Volstead Act so as to permit the manufacture of beer, and for the repeal of the Volstead Act altogether.

It was expected the debate over these questions would be extended. There was only brief discussion. The Resolutions Committee refused to recommend repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment, but did recommend modification of the statute to permit the manufacture and sale of 2.75 per cent beer.

Shorter Work Days

A universal five-day week for the wage-earners of the country was unanimously approved by the Boston Labor convention. The proposal for the five-hour day or any further shortening of the work-day or work-week than at present was referred to the Executive Council for immediate study and recommendations to the 1931 convention. The eight-hour day for fire-fighters for this country and Canada was endorsed, as was the Saturday half-holiday for federal employees.

It was pointed out that more than 500,000 workers are now enjoying the five-day week of forty hours. The committee turned down a resolution seeking a "nation-wide laying down of tools" for one day as a demonstration for the five-day week when other educational means are at hand and when such a movement would be taken advantage of by other elements with which the Labor Federation is not in harmony.

Old-Age Pensions

The report of the committee dealing with this subject was in effect that old-age pensions do not mitigate the displacement of workers in the industries when they are not eligible for pensions until they reach the age of 65 years. It recommends that the Executive Council investigate the problem and place the facts before the public, so that men and women grown old may at least be relegated to less hazardous and speed-up tasks, instead of being thrown out of employment altogether.

Convention Location Fight

One of the hottest fights of the session developed over the selection of a city for holding the 1931 convention. Columbus, Ohio; Salt Lake City, Utah, and Vancouver, British Columbia, were named for the balloting.

The debate had not proceeded far before the liquor issue was lugged in. One faction indulged in broad innuendoes that the opposition favored the Canadian city for the reason desired liquid refreshments would be more easily obtainable.

Others denounced the Canadian proposal in view of the fact that less than 5 per cent of Federation members resided in Canada and that money and effort should be expended for convention promotion in the United States, with special eye to improvement of conditions in the South. The outcome of the balloting, however, was overwhelmingly in favor of the far northwest Canadian city, which showed the following final: Vancouver, 24,390 votes; Columbus, 4,057 votes; Salt Lake City, 54 votes.

Labor Injunctions

Some of the ablest speeches delivered were upon the general subject of the issuance of injunctions in Labor affairs. There are two bills now before the United States Congress designed to curb what Labor regards as an unwarranted use of the power of courts of equity—an issue which has reached sufficient magnitude to

Old Officers Re-elected

President William Green, Secretary Frank Morrison, Treasurer Martin F. Ryan, and seven of the eight vice-presidents were re-elected. The new man on the vice-presidential list is G. M. Bugniet, who takes the place of the late James P. Noonan.

Joseph P. Ryan, President of the Longshoremen's Union, and Joseph V. Moreschi, General President of the Hod Carriers', Building and Common Laborers' Union, were elected Fraternal Delegates to the British Trades Congress.

Charles J. Case, of the Wood, Wire and Lathers' Union, was elected Fraternal Delegate to the Canadian Trades and Labor Congress.

BOSTON CONVENTION BRIEFS

Never has a national labor convention been honored with a more imposing array of "distinguished guests." All brought messages of good will. Many of these were men who had known the biting experiences of poverty and the hardship that poverty entails, but in spite of these handicaps had arisen to positions of power and influence. They had not, however, forgotten the rock from whence they were hewn. The following list will disclose the caliber and standing of the speaking list:

President Herbert C. Hoover.
Governor Frank C. Allen of Massachusetts.
Mayor James M. Curley of Boston.
Hon. Patrick J. Hurley, Secretary of War.
Hon. Jas. J. Davis, Secretary of Labor.
Hon. J. Hanford McNider, Minister to Canada.
Mayor Frank Murphy of Detroit.
Rabbi L. Israel, Commissioner of Social Justice.
Rev. W. J. McGuire, President St. Victor's College.
United States Senator Robert F. Wagner of New York.
Rev. Chas. S. McFarlane, General Secretary Federal Council of Churches.
Rev. Charles N. Lathrop, D. D., Social Service, Episcopal Church.
United States Senator David I. Walsh of Massachusetts.

The Honorable James J. Davis, Secretary of Labor in President Hoover's cabinet, and nominee for United States Senator from the State of Pennsylvania, was a visitor again this year and delivered a characteristically earnest address. His theme was in a large degree an endeavor to show what the national administration has tried to do in relieving the industrial depression which is the uppermost topic in the public mind. He pointed out how useless it is to decry the innovation of the machine. The world is feverishly awaiting every product that inventive genius can bring forth. The problem of the hour is to know how to adjust human needs and human desires to changed conditions which are the inexorable incidents of an entirely new day. As an evidence of what the national government is trying to do, Secretary Davis pointed out that from the recent conference of business, industrial, labor and agricultural leaders has come a public and private construction program involving expenditure of seven billion dollars—amounting to $160,000,000 more than was experienced in boom times.

The convention heard with unfeigned pleasure Mr. Frank Murphy, the new mayor of Detroit. Much has been reported about industrial depression in Detroit. Mayor Murphy described the get-together program which had rallied all classes of civic leaders. An intensive organization plan for the registration of those out of employment was outlined. The dole system was denounced. Connecting the man with the job is made the principal business. Mayor Murphy impressed his hearers as a man of great constructive ability and one for whom Michigan may open a wider range of public service in the not-far-distant future.

Some days the flood of convention oratory almost amounted to an inundation.

When she wishes to do so Boston can make a London fog look as transparent as a morning sunbeam.

Boston is so invested with and surrounded by historic and patriotic shrines that no matter in which direction you travel from the Hub center you reach them. For years I had wanted to visit the old Daniel Webster farm at Marshfield—forty miles south of Boston. On a late afternoon, with President B. C. McSheehy of Local 126, at the wheel, and National Treasurer H. E. Brenton as special guide, Delegates Bagley, Fetterman and myself were taken to the spot where the great expounder and defender of the Federal Constitution, when official duties would permit, loved to stroll over his broad acres, carry ears of corn to the fat cattle which were his pride, and wander down toward the ocean shore and, looking out over the foam-capped breakers, exclaim: "The sea, the sea!" We saw the two elm trees which Webster planted with his own hands—naming one "Edward" and the other "Julia"—in memory of two idolized children who had passed away. The Webster residence burned several years ago, but Massachusetts has erected a very fair replica of the former home on the very spot where the other was destroyed; and inside the lady caretaker kindly showed us the chairs on which he sat, the tables where he wrote and many household treasures he cherished until his death in 1852. One quarter of a mile to the rear of the home is the grave of the statesman who was bitterly denounced for his March 7th, 1850, speech as an inopportune disposition to compromise the rapidly expanding issue of human freedom. Webster knew that the time had not arrived for armed conflict and time vindicated the clearness of his vision. Had civil war have been proclaimed in 1850 instead of more than a decade later the annals of American history would have recorded a different story. The grave is surrounded by an iron fence and marked by a plain headstone with no inscription save the illustrious name—"Daniel Webster."

Massachusetts is a firm believer in good roads—an element which intensifies one's belief in Massachusetts.

Even the weather was so fine as to suggest the union label.

New England doubtless has her natural charm at most any period of the year. In October she wears a garb of transcendent beauty. On a Saturday, when there was no convention session, we left in the early morning, in the custody of the faithful McSheehy, for an automobile drive to Portland, Maine, a distance of 100 miles. The paved roads were a constant incentive to speed. The breaking waves of the adjacent ocean were dashing as high as in the days when they inspired the Felicia D. Heman's pen. The trees, in flaming and vari-colored vesture, appeared like gaily-costumed personages, ready for the opening festivities of a masquerade ball. Amid such surroundings we felt the spirit of rhapsody. On many a farm we beheld typical Maud Mullers raking a second crop of new-mown hay. Giant yellow pumpkins reflected a golden sheen. Orchards fairly groaned with rosy-cheeked apples. Delegate Bagley, long-time inhabitant of a Utopian fruitland on the Pacific coast, could not resist the purchase of a hatfull or two to carry back to his home city. Portland, which claims to be a summer resort in winter and a winter resort in summer, we found to be a most delightful spot. From the top floor of the Hotel Eastland we looked out over a large stretch of the Atlantic and had a view over New England, which reached to the White Mountains of New Hampshire. We saw the house in which Henry Wadsworth Longfellow was born—whose poems in later years were to make him the much loved poet of childhood—not only in America, but in foreign lands as well. Portland is well worth inspection by all New England tourist visitors. The return journey, which witnessed a fiery red sun set, followed by the silver pathway which the harvest moon reflected upon the waters, brought us to the end of a perfect day.

The American Federation of Labor believes in practicing what it preaches and, therefore, confined its deliberations to a five-day week.

Among A. F. of M. members who dropped in on the Boston Labor Convention and who greeted our Labor delegation were: Brothers Joseph Jackson of Local 372 of Lawrence, James C. Magee, Local 661, of Atlantic City; Vincent Castonovo and H. B. Brown of Local 99, of Providence; (do you remember "Brownie," a regular convention delegate of years ago?); Joe Winkler, Local 10, of Chicago; President Thomas A. Finnigan, Secretary H. P. Liehr and James T. Kenney of Local 9, of Boston; C. R. Johns of Local 67, of Moline, and Wm. A. Smith of Local 535, of Boston.

Delegate W. Ralph Fetterman of Local 463, of Lincoln, made careful note of everything seen and heard and started for home with a heavy grist of new ideas, which he will doubtless present as food for thought on part of the great Midwest Conference, of which he is the untiring promoter and press agent.

Boston has been in the throes of a joyous yet dignified celebration for a goodly portion of the current year. The occasion was the Tercentenary observance of the founding of the Massachusetts Bay Colonies in 1630. Visitors from every state in the American union and from all parts of the world have wended their way to the many shrines of this historic commonwealth, to linger for a brief period where men with a longing for freedom, and a vision as to where it might be found, lighted their campfires, laid new and broad foundations and then proceeded to build "even better than they knew." Although the Boston Labor convention came near the close of this celebration period, the delegates thereto found no cooling in the fervor of welcome. The Boston people extended a glad hand and treated all comers with a courtesy which could not fail to create pleasing and lasting memories for all visitors. May her civic altars be kept aflame with patriotic fires in all the years to come—as a continuing example to the nation and to all the world!

The route back from that Saturday visit to Portland led through Biddeford—the home of that grand old down easterner, Brother C. W. Purcell—known to scores of A. F. of M. convention attendants. Of course, we made it a point to call on him. He was somewhat astounded to discover who it was knocking at the door, but soon recovered and gave us a cordial greeting. Brother Purcell will be 79 years old on the last day of November, but it is a pleasure to report that his health is better; that he is in general circulation about his home city, and still able to entertain his friends with his quaint comment on general affairs. We all assured him that we would be looking for him at the Chattanooga convention next June.

Committee assignments of members of the A. F. of M. delegation to the A. F. of L. convention made by President Green were as follows: Joseph N. Weber, chairman of Committee on Local and Federated Bodies; Chauncey A. Weaver, secretary of the Committee on Labels; Edward Canavan, member of Committee on Industrial relations; C. L. Bagley, member of Committee on Adjustments; J. W. Parks, member of Committee on Organization.

Lobsters are boiled alive. Where has the humane society been all these years?

"Distinguished guest" is a somewhat expansive term.

The profiteering buzzard is not a popular bird in enlightened labor circles.

"We are living in a most extraordinary age."—Daniel Webster at Bunker Hill Monument, June 17, 1825.

Having heard some wonderful cornet solos by Walter Smith over the radio last season, I was hoping to hear him at closer range in Boston. Through the gracious auspices of Brother Albert Glicher I was permitted to attend the dedication of the new Columbus Playground on Sunday afternoon, where Smith conducted a fine band of sixty-five pieces. The dedicatory program, however, consisting of speeches, vocal and instrumental music, made it quite unlikely to expect a cornet solo, and in that particular I was disappointed. The occasion itself was one of those colorful events which leave a lasting picture in the memory. Brother Glicher, by the way, is a fine French horn player. Aside from this work he is on the office staff of National Treasurer H. E. Brenton.

An interesting feature of the American Federation of Labor convention was the American Legion convention.

This is the season of the year when the office-seekers become wonderfully interested in the welfare of the laboring man.

President Hoover's commission on law enforcement is reported to be divided over the question of prohibition. Prohibition would seem to be the great common divisor of the American republic.

Gloucester has a wonderful fish industry. If inventive genius could only devise some method of utilizing the fish smell which envelops the town what untold millions of money might be made!

To the writer of this convention story fell the honor of nominating Joseph N. Weber for the office of seventh vice-president of the American Federation of Labor. He did so in the following words:

MR. PRESIDENT: It is an axiom of all forms of American government, whether political, industrial or social, that one good term deserves another. When, a year ago, we had the honor, in behalf of the American Federation of Musicians, to nominate the Eighth Vice-President of the American Federation of Labor, we invited this organization to no doubtful experiment. We knew our man. That year has now passed. The chapter written in part of an open book to which the careful scrutiny of the Trades Union movement is respectfully commended. There are no blank pages. Upon each leaf may be found the stainless record of unswerving fidelity to the cause you committed to his hands. In the calm light of these credentials we find justification in asking your support of the candidate we are once more proud to name—Joseph N. Weber of New York.

The death of the late James P. Noonan changed the relative standing of the vice-presidents and raised Mr. Weber from eighth to seventh place.

At the time of the convention we found Massachusetts to be passing through an exceedingly dry period. Of course, we refer to the weather.

An entertaining episode, staged for the labor delegates just outside the hotel where the convention was in session on Wednesday of the second week, was rather spoiled in its larger effects because of inefficient advance notice. Some seventy-five or a hundred "Reds" undertook a demonstration—the chief slogan of which was: "Down with the American Federation of Labor." Very soon after the first curtain-raiser the Boston police began to appear. Then the free-for-all began. The "Reds" turned on the police in savage fashion. Bluecoat reinforcements soon helped to litter the street with a fine assortment of bruised if not broken heads. Eight of the more aggressive were dumped into patrol wagons and carted off to jail. This "Red" demonstration was one of the most flattering tributes the labor convention enjoyed during the entire two weeks' sojourn.

TRUMPETS

THE richness and clarity of this new trumpet tone and the easy action of these famous instruments have made them the choice of this popular band leader and other equally prominent figures in the band and orchestral world.

Every moving part of these Vega Instruments is made with such micrometer accuracy and tested under such rigid conditions that they meet every requirement for speed and the finest tonal performance.

Whenever you hear unusually fine trumpet playing the chances are that the instrument is a Vega. There is such a wide range of models that every player can find one that will more than meet his requirements.

Please send me complete information and prices on the various models of Vega Trumpets. Also tell me the name of the nearest dealers so that I may examine one of these.
