PURPOSE. Antique Radio Classified is published for people involved in the radio collecting hobby. Its purpose is to stimulate growth of the hobby through the buying, selling and trading of radios and related items, and to provide a monthly forum for the interchange of ideas and information.

CONTACTING ANTIQUE RADIO CLASSIFIED.

All correspondence should be sent to:

A.R.C., P.O. Box 2, Carlisle, MA 01741.

Send only UPS, Federal, etc. items to 498 Cross St.

Telephone: (508) 371-0512; Fax: (508) 371-7129

Please no classified ads by telephone; thanks.

Your ads, renewals, letters, etc. can be handled faster and more efficiently if (1) each is on a separate piece of paper, and (2) your name, address and SUB# is written on each. Unfortunately, A.R.C. is not staffed to answer letters with questions about antique radios or requests for advice. However, A.R.C. does solicit letters of interest to its readers and publishes them as space permits. A.R.C. assumes that permission is given to edit and to publish all correspondence and articles received unless otherwise indicated.

GUARANTEE. You may cancel your subscription at any time and receive a pro rata refund for issues not yet mailed. If errors to ads are made by A.R.C., upon request a free correction will be run in the next available issue.

PAYMENT. Please send in full payment with your order or ad. A.R.C. does not carry accounts; all subscriptions, ads, etc. must be prepaid. Pay in U.S. funds. Checks drawn on a U.S. bank, money orders, VISA or MasterCard ($10.00 min.) are preferred. Make check out to "A.R.C." U.S. stamps or cash are OK for small amounts. Canadian payers may send a Canadian check in U.S. funds, but please add $1.00 (U.S.) for bank charges. Subscriptions will be prorated to amount sent if amount is incorrect.

CHANGE OF ADDRESS. Please notify us 4 weeks in advance of a change of address. Send both your new and old address, and include your SUB# and effective date of your new address. Temporary address changes can be made also.

SUBMISSION OF MATERIAL. Antique Radio Classified welcomes and solicits information that pertains or relates to radio history or collecting. This may include articles, book reviews, photos, information on upcoming radio events, meetings, antique radio organizations, radio auctions and price reports, sources of old radio and restoration supplies, and other related and interesting material. All material submitted should be neat and verified for accuracy. Unless prior arrangements are made, all submitted materials may be edited, become the property of Antique Radio Classified and will not be returned.

MAILING OF ISSUES. U.S. subscribers can receive A.R.C. by First or Second Class mail (Second Class is the way most magazines are mailed). The mailing of First Class copies is staggered over one to four days with faraway copies mailed before local copies. Non-U.S. copies are mailed on the first day. Second Class copies are mailed on the last day. Mailing dates change each month, but mailing is usually completed by the 26th of the month. First Class copies usually are received by the fifth of the month; copies by Second Class mail, by the tenth.

ETHICS. No person involved in the production of A.R.C. is to act on any information in the magazine until the day after local copies are mailed.

DISCLAIMER. The publisher is not responsible for any buying and selling transactions incurred, or for any other use of the contents of this publication.

Antique Radio Classified subscription rates, frequency of publication, content, policies, size and ad details, and rates are subject to change at any time by A.R.C.

DISPLAY AND BUSINESS CARD ADS - DETAILS AND RATES

The deadline is the first of the month for display and business card ad artwork, payment and repeat requests.

Advertising is accepted only for early items related to radio, communication, etc. All items must be described fairly; reproductions, reprints and not-original items must be so identified. Advertisers agree to respond promptly to inquiries and orders, and to resolve problems promptly if the buyer is not satisfied.

All advertising must be prepaid; see "Payment" paragraph above. Late ads will be run only if space and time permit. Since artwork is reduced to 63% in the printing process, originals must be the artwork size listed below. Do not send in artwork on art board or send negatives. Ads should be typeset or typed neatly with a carbon ribbon, black printing on white. No reverse type if A.R.C. is to make up the ad. If you want us to prepare your ad, include the one-time cost below for A.R.C. to make up the ad.

Photos should be at an 85 line screen; otherwise, add $8.00 per photo for screening. (Do not cut or trim photos or glue photos to artwork; submit separately.)

If you are confused by these requirements and terms,

Page	ARTWORK SIZE (SEND IN THIS SIZE)		As Printed (size in magazine)		Cost for 1-month	Cost for 3-months	Cost for 6-months	One-time Cost for A.R.C. to make up Ad. (if requested)

please contact A.R.C. before beginning to prepare your ad. We will be happy to advise you on your ad ideas, estimate how much the ad will cost, recommend an ad size, etc.

We assume that advertisers want all ads which are submitted to run without delay; therefore, we will run the ad and bill for any additional work required for the ad to meet these specifications. A late ad will be run beginning with the next month. "Tear sheets" will be sent only for 1/2 and full page ads, and if requested when the ad is submitted.

Business card ads are limited to one per advertiser. The 3-month rates represent about a 10% discount, the 6-month rates, 20%. Placement requests for display ads: add 15% but call first. Clubs: write for discount policy.

EDITOR'S COMMENTS

Our cover and the lead article feature Marconi and his early wireless equipment and communication companies. Mike Adams reports on the restoration of the Marshall, California, (near San Francisco) Marconi station as a state historic park. For the grand opening, an extensive collection of early and rare equipment was on display. Mike complemented the article with excellent photos. Will Jensby and Jim Kreuzer contributed additional information for the early equipment pictured.

In Homebrewing, Ron Ramirez focuses on the more affordable and available items for the collector, describing factors to consider when looking at home brew sets. Many of these sets are beautifully crafted and sometimes cannot be differentiated from factory-made sets. We invite other articles on old or recently constructed home brews.

Ron Lawrence describes the completion of a project many of us envy — constructing a room solely for display of one's radio collection. Perhaps his report will inspire others to pull their spread-out collections, often in rented garages, together into a unified display.

Radar reaches the pages of A.R.C. this month as Allan Weiner covers the World War II APS-4 airborne radar system in his collection. With a growing interest in vintage military equipment, this topic now has its own banner.

Additional comments are printed this month about the RCA BP-10 prototype, featured in the December 1990 A.R.C. Also, this issue includes an expanded four-page Photo Review with crystal sets, a spy set, an early meter, a unique inlaid-wood cathedral, as well as portables and consoles.

Advertising Policy. A.R.C. is the publication "for buyers and sellers of old radios and related items," as the cover states. Since subscriber fees support the free classified ads, adherence to this policy is important. It is easy to decide to decline ads for get-rich-working-at-home-schemes, low-cost-loans, etc., but ads for items such as telegraph insulators, electro-medical equipment, early phonographs, electric motors, electric cars, electric wristwatches and clocks, etc. are not so clearcut with respect to our policy.

I consider as radio-related the following: telegraph, telephone, television, light bulbs (related to vacuum tubes), early phonographs (these were often combined with radios, and later ones used tubes), electro-medical apparatus (early apparatus used wireless components), etc. But items where electricity is the only association will no longer be accepted — such as electric motors, watches, fans, cars, etc. Currently-running ads not adhering to this policy will be phased out when they expire.

Also a key to relevance is the word "early"; please — no ads for modern equipment like VCRs, satellite TVs, etc. The only place in ads where non-radio-related items are acceptable is in trades, and the radio item should be mentioned first.

Anonymous Letters. When we receive an unsigned letter, it usually is trashed. Even if it contains some good points, we will not publish it. Since I can't correspond with an anonymous writer, interesting points may go unpublished. Feel free to write and request that your letter not be published, and I will honor that desire. But if you don't sign it, it goes in the trash, often unread.

Club Events. Meets are great places to get together with other collectors, get a feel for prices, and learn about collecting and specific sets. You get a chance to see hundreds of sets in the flea markets. Additionally, most major meets have equipment contests which are displays of outstanding examples of radios, in unusually good condition, often documented with catalogs, manuals, etc.

A few multi-day meets not to be missed, if you are nearby, are the July Extravaganza '91 in Michigan, the August Radiofest '91 in Illinois (probably the second-largest meet in the U. S.), and the September Antique Wireless Association Conference in New York State — the largest meet.

Apologies to those who might have looked for me at the Antique Radio Club of America meet in Maryland, but last minute problems kept me away. See you at the coming meets in New Hampshire, Illinois and New York.

Happy collecting.

ON THE COVER

The illustration on the cover this month is from the April 1913 Marconigraph, an early monthly publication for wireless operators. The operator is shown with an early Marconi multiple tuner on his desk and a transmitting spark coil on his right. This is the type of equipment that was typical on early shipboard installations and at land stations. Our June 1987 issue featured the restoration of a multiple tuner including a full-color cover photo.

This month's article by Mike Adams reporting on the grand opening of the Marconi State Historic Park shows a number of early wireless pieces including Marconi's first transmitter through equipment used in 1917.

Marconi State Park Grand Opening

BY MIKE ADAMS

Mike Adams, a regular contributor to A.R.C., presents a pictorial essay on the Marconi Conference Center and State Historic Park in Marshall, California. Reporting on the Park's dedication, Mike has melded biographical anecdotes about Marconi with pictures of the Marshall wireless receiving site, of Marconi and his daughter Gioia, and of numerous examples of Marconi equipment and artifacts on exhibit.

Thanks to James Kreuzer and Will Jensby for the descriptions of the Marconi equipment shown. (Editor)

"The State of California is committed to preserving the history of wireless in the West." That fact was echoed many times by dozens of politicians and radio historians at the September 1990 dedication of the Marconi Conference Center and State Historic Park in Marshall, California.

Located north of San Francisco in Western Marin County, the tiny town of Marshall was the site of an early West Coast receiving station constructed in 1914 by the Marconi Wireless Company of America. Further down the coast in Bolinas, the transmitting station was built. Known as KPH, the Marshall/Bolinas stations served shipping on the Pacific until 1939.

MARCONI THE INVENTOR

Born in Bologna, Italy, on April 25, 1874, Guglielmo Marconi was the second son of a well-to-do Italian farmer and his much younger Irish wife. As a self-taught experimenter, young Marconi had been influenced by the ideas of Hertz and the theories of Maxwell.

In 1895, at the age of twenty-one, Marconi transmitted a crude spark signal a distance of two miles to his brother Alfonso. The age of wireless was born. The following year, the young inventor moved to England and established the first radio communications company in July of 1897.

Within a few years, Marconi's station in Poldhu, England, was ready to send the first transatlantic wireless message to the United States. However, the message ended up being received in Canada. After a storm had blown down his antennas at Wellfleet, on Cape Cod, Massachusetts, Marconi went to the newly constructed receiving station at St John's, Newfoundland. There, he finally heard the weak signal — the letter "S" — sent out from the transmitting facility in England. The date was December 12, 1901.

MARCONI THE INDUSTRIALIST

Marconi was an inventor who had the business acumen to put his ideas into practical use. According to his daughter Gioia Marconi Braga, pictured at the dedication in Figure 4, "There is no doubt as to how my father intended his invention to be used. Since the very beginning of his experimentations in the early 1890s, and on throughout his lifelong pursuit of creating and developing a system of communication capable of operating with reliability from any point on earth, Marconi recognized that wireless communication would prove of tremendous value to all forms of maritime operations. 'Safety at sea' was, for him, the primary application of his system, with general communication a close second."

In 1899, Marconi came to the United States to conduct experiments in ship-to-shore communication using yachts entered in the America's Cup races. During the next two busy years, he conducted successful wireless experiments for the Navy, invented new wireless technology, prepared stations on both sides of the Atlantic for his transatlantic experiments and formed the Marconi Wireless Telegraph Company of America.

Figure 5. The Marconi Magnetic Detector was less sensitive than a Carborundum or crystal detector but was more rugged and therefore desirable for shipboard use. Because of this, it continued to be used long after more sensitive detectors were developed. This is a very rare piece in the collector market today.

Figure 4. Gioia Marconi Braga, Marconi's daughter, who presided over the Park's grand opening on September 8, 1990.

By 1906, American Marconi operated four land stations, as well as four shipboard installations, and employed twenty-five people. Hired as office boy was David Sarnoff.

By 1909, public confidence in wireless was high after operator Jack Binns used it to save 1600 lives from the sinking SS Republic. The Radio Act of 1910 gave government legitimacy to commercial wireless, and by 1912, American Marconi had 55 land and 440 marine stations.

By 1919, wireless had proved itself in both war and peace, and later that same year, Radio Corporation of America — RCA — bought a majority stock interest in American Marconi as postwar concern over the company's control by foreign investors increased. By January 1930, Sarnoff was the president of RCA.

MARCONI WIRELESS ON DISPLAY

On September 8, 1990, nearly a century after the first transatlantic wireless message, hundreds of people, most of whom had never heard of Marconi let alone wireless, could view in Marshall, California, one of the largest displays of Marconi artifacts ever assembled.

Housed in the original receiving room, the grand opening display was designed by Jim Weldon and Will Jensby of the Perham Foundation of the Foothill Electronics Museum, in cooperation with the California Historical Radio Society (CHRS). Many local collectors allowed their rare Marconi equipment to be displayed for the two-day event when the Marconi Conference Center and State Historic Park opened. Some of these rare items are shown in Figures Figures 5, 6 and 7 show the rare Marconi Magnetic Detector, invented in 1902. This was an alternate to the coherer as a detector in 1904. It is a very rare piece.

A pre-World War I Marconi station might have included the items shown in Figures 8, 9 and 10 — a 1908 spark coil transmitter, a high-speed recorder and inker and a 1910 United Wireless Type D tuner.

Much Marconi wireless was developed for the Navy and the Coast Guard during World War I, 1914-1918, including the Models 106 and 106D tuners shown in Figure 8. Marconi ten-inch Spark Coil. Similar spark coils were used in the early 1900s as ship-board transmitters and after 1912 as emergency transmitters. A tuning helix and 600-meter loading coil was used with this particular spark coil, made in 1908.

GOVERNMENT DOES A GOOD DEED

It makes you feel good when government commits itself to radio history, especially when it takes the form of a permanent display in a public facility. In fact, lining every walkway of the park

A Carborundum detector (seen at the rear) was included with an internal battery and tap switches to control the bias voltage. This particular set is about five percent larger than other existing Type D tuners and may be the de Forest version that preceded United Wireless. This 1910 version is part of the Perham collection, now at the Foothill Museum.

The 1915 version of the 106 receiver contained both a crystal and a Carborundum detector. The 106 was built in large quantities for shipboard use in World War I. Later versions, the 106-B and the 106-C, were built by General Electric for RCA.

and on the walls of every room in the Marconi Center, hundreds of historic photos and text remind Park patrons of Marconi's contributions.

And when the ribbon finally had been cut at the dedication ceremony by Marconi's daughter Gioia, and the usual grandiloquent speeches were over, one theme emerged: We owe much of our communications and radio and television history to Marconi. We can also thank him for providing us with the technical basis of a rewarding hobby.

The equipment in the display was put together by museum board member Will Jensby who

HOMEBREWING

Collecting Homemade Sets of the 1920s A Find for the Creative Collector

BY RON RAMIREZ

Ron Ramirez is a long-term and frequent contributor to A.R.C. This month he reminds us that, in the 1920s, it was very common for tinkerers to build their own sets. Thus, in their own humble way, home brews have become an important part of radio history.

Who knows, perhaps once you read this article, you will place home brews a couple of notches higher up on your own wish list of collectible radios! (Editor)

In the never-ending search for old radio treasures, as we go from auction to flea market to yard sale in search of that elusive Federal, Grebe, Atwater Kent breadboard, Philco cathedral or Fada Catalin, there is one category of old radio that seems to be shunned by some collectors — the homemade radio of the 1920s. I know one collector who wouldn't touch a homemade set with a ten-foot pole, as the saying goes; he says they are worth nothing.

Well, although home brews may not be worth nearly as much as a Federal 61 or a Philco 90, homemade sets are interesting. They come in many shapes and sizes, and after all, in spite of their often ugly looks, they do make up an important part of radio history.

POPULARITY OF KIT SETS

For just a moment, let us go back to the early 1920s. To the general public, radio is a relatively new plaything. Companies offering radios, radio parts and accessories are springing up everywhere, it seems. Ready-made sets are available from some manufacturers, while others offer their sets in kit form. Magazines and newspapers publish different radio circuits for the experimenter. Our experimenter (John Doe) could have bought a ready-made radio set, but he was — like this writer — a man who liked to tinker and build things himself. Or perhaps he could build a set for less than he could buy one. This was often true; in 1924, a Freshman Masterpiece could be bought, already put together, for $60, or in kit form for $17.50.

Some radio kits were complete; for others, the builder had to acquire a Bakelite front panel on his own, have it drilled and etched, and come up with his own cabinet. Still other homemade sets

were built from scratch, using parts acquired from different sources and thrown together, more or less. John Doe may have wanted to build a set that looked like a store-bought one, or maybe he just wanted a radio that worked, regardless of how it looked.

EXAMINING THE SURVIVORS

Today, we find both nicely made vintage homemade sets as well as others that were constructed only with regard to function, not appearance. Let us now look at five different homemade sets from the 1920s, and notice the different ways they were put together.

As we can see in Figure 1, good looks were not the priority of the builder of this one-tube set. This early receiver features a variocoupler, variable condenser, grid leak and potentiometer. The components look as if they were thrown together in haphazard fashion; notice the binding posts all over the front panel, not all of which are marked.

Figure 2 shows the back view of the set shown in Figure 1. This set is not as attractive as a Philco cathedral, but it is still an important part of radio history.

The extremely large (its size compares with a Federal 61) five-tube set in Figure 3 includes a variocoupler, variometer, two variable condensers and four rheostats. It has five large white porcelain UV tube sockets, which are mounted behind each of the five round holes at the top front of the set. Notice also the grid leak mounted in front and the cable coming out of the front which terminates in a phone plug. This phone plug apparently plugs into any of the four phone jacks on the front panel. Binding posts — in back for antenna, ground, and battery connections — are crudely marked with white paint.

A large copper sheet covers the entire back side of the front panel, except for the five round holes in the panel where the tubes are mounted. There is screen wire mounted in back of the front panel which covers these holes, allowing the set user to see whether the tubes are illuminated. The copper sheet was installed in the set to reduce hand capacity while tuning, a problem in some early sets. [The hand capacity effect is caused by bringing the hand or other part of the human body near an insufficiently shielded tuned circuit, causing the resonant frequency, the frequency to which our set is tuned, of the circuit to change. The hand capacity problem would be overcome eventually, with improved receiver design.]

home-built, five-tube, three-dial TRF (tuned radio frequency) set, built not just for function but to look store-bought as well. Antenna, ground, and battery connections are made inside the radio with Fahnestock clips. Phone jacks are provided on the front panel so that the user may listen on headphones after the detector or first audio stage, or use either headphones or a loudspeaker after the second audio stage. It uses square buss wire for point-to-point connections inside the set and still has four of its original brass-base, tip-top tubes — one of which is burned out, unfortunately. Tubes used are four Type 201-As and one UV-200 as a detector. The set's layout is professional looking; overall, it's one of the nicest looking homemade sets that I have seen.

The four-tube set in Figure 5 apparently used Type UX-199s, as it still had two of these type tubes in it when I bought it, along with the broken-off base of a third. Though a good looking set on the outside, the point-to-point wiring inside is sloppier than the set in Figure 4. The set appears to be regenerative with an RF (radio frequency) amplifier stage and two stages of audio amplification. I cannot say for sure because the grid leak is missing and some of the wires are not connected to anything, a condition indicating that components have been removed. As with the TRF set in Figure 4, Fahnestock clips were used to hook up antenna, ground, and batteries inside the set. But down through the years, the pencil markings have rubbed off above most of the clips. [Each clip had been indicated in pencil as to what hooked to it.]

The final set for this article, shown in Figure 6, is a two-tube regenerative receiver. When I first acquired the set, I thought that its actual age might be questionable, as its tuner and tickler controls, antenna and ground binding posts, phones and speaker jacks are all labeled with small stick-on labels that look only a few years old, not several decades old. (You can see these small stickers in the photo.) Additionally, the set has plastic wires which come through a hole in the rear of the set. There is another sticker beside this hole, identifying each wire.

Upon closer inspection, however, I have come to the conclusion that the set is, apparently, an authentic 1920s homemade set. It uses square buss wire for most point-to-point connections. The solder on its joints looks old. All but one of its parts are 1920s vintage. There is a Bakelite panel inside the set toward the back, with binding posts which are labeled for battery connections. The antenna and ground were originally connected to two of these binding posts on the back of the set as well. An interesting feature of this set is the tuning knob (the large knob on the left), which is a vernier knob. Other than the non-original stickers, the only flaw in the set is the cracked front Bakelite panel; the crack is nearly invisible in the photo.

This set is a classic example of a radio which has been modified by a previous owner. I mentioned the stickers and the fact that the original antenna and ground connections had been moved from inside the set to the front panel. Additionally, the PH. (phones) jack in the lower center of the front panel is not original; it is a modern, open-circuit, 1/4-inch jack. This jack and the antenna and ground binding posts on the front panel were hooked into the set using skinny, more modern looking, insulated wire. The cabinet also has small, square, felt pads glued to the bottom; this also looks like a more recent job.

RETAINING ANTIQUE RADIO APPEARANCE

Jim Fred, who wrote the "Antique Radio Corner" in the former Elementary Electronics magazine (which column, by the way, got me interested in antique radio), has dealt with this issue in the past; more recently, Richard Foster has touched on it with his list of "don't's" here in A.R.C. I think this bears repeating, so bear with me while I repeat it: DON'T change or modify a piece of antique radio apparatus! When you add different knobs, binding posts, jacks, or anything to a set that it did not have originally, you are destroying the historical value of the radio. I know that the sets you own are yours, and you have the right to do whatever you wish with them or to them. But please remember, after all, radios are not just expensive playthings — they are historical items!

When repairing a set, you should keep the same thing in mind. You may have to hide modern electrolytic capacitors under the chassis, but you don't have to throw away the Bakelite blocks in a Philco; they can be rebuilt! In many (but not all) cases, if your set doesn't have its original knobs, you can usually get reproduction knobs, or at least knobs that look as if they are from the correct era. You don't have to settle for modern black knobs.

Well, enough editorializing for now and back to the business at hand. I hope you enjoyed looking at these examples of homemade radios. The next time you're out hunting for additions to your collection, why not add at least one homemade set. They are different for sure, and as we stated at the beginning of this article — they are a part of radio history!

(Ron Ramirez, 811 Maple St., Providence, KY 42450)

At age fourteen, Ron Ramirez began to build a varied collection of 1920s battery sets, cathedrals, tombstones, and consoles. He is now concentrating on repairing Philco radios made between 1928 and 1937. Ron would like to hear from anyone interested in forming an antique radio club in his area.

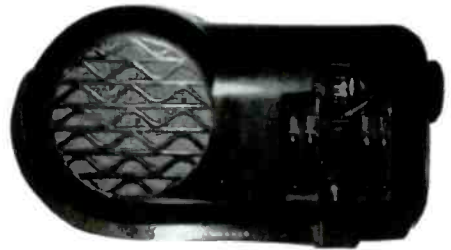

PHOTO REVIEW

This column presents in pictorial form many of the more unusual radios, speakers, tubes, advertising, and other radio-related items (covering the years 1900-1950s) from our readers' collections. The photos are meant to help increase awareness of what's available in the radio collecting hobby. Send in any size photos from your collection. Photos must be sharp in detail, contain a single item, and preferably have a light-colored background. A short description must be included with each submitted item. Please note that receipt of photos is not acknowledged, publishing is not guaranteed, and photos are not returned.

MOTOROLA PORTABLE - The handle on this Motorola Model 55BIU receiver is actually its "Roto-Tenna" which swivels for reception. The brown wicker-style case encloses a five-tube chassis manufactured in the mid-1950s. (Bob Moore - Lakewood, CO)

STEWART-WARNER MODEL 07-5B - Note the unusual dial configuration on this seven-tube, 1939 set. Thanks to my father-in-law, John Sartori, for discovering it in a junk shop. (Dave & Terry Masterson - Cheshire, CT)

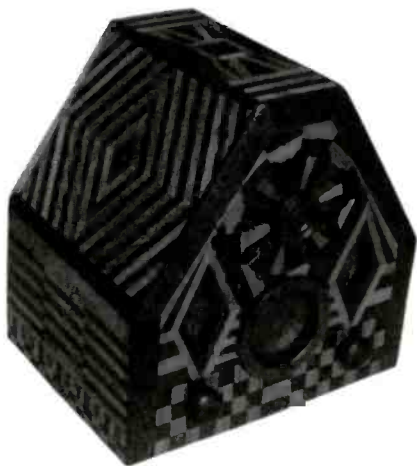

R. K. RADIO LABORATORY RADIOKEG - An unusual novelty radio made in 1934, this keg is made of oak with copper barrel straps. The speaker and a small copper spigot are on the rear of the set. (David & Terry Masterson - Cheshire, CT)

ZENITH MODEL 9S262 - This classic Zenith console of 1939 vintage appears to be in excellent condition. It was found in a local antique shop. The set has three bands, AM/SW, motorized tuning with "Magic Eye" and shutter dial. (John Neuman - San Marcos, CA)

CUSTOM CATHEDRAL WITH TRUETONE CHASSIS - This beautifully handcrafted cabinet is made of solid walnut and birch. It was constructed in the early 1950s and originally came from the Adirondack region of New York State. It holds a postwar Truetone chassis. (Walter Buffington - Willimantic, CT)

PHILIPS MODEL 470A - I took a picture of this English radio while viewing an exhibition of World War II memorabilia at the City Museum in Split, Yugoslavia. This 1938 AC Superheterodyne, with SW MW-LW was manufactured by Philips Lamps, Ltd. The following was inscribed on the top of the cabinet: INV BR 93BII. (Vince T. Migliore - Santa Rosa, CA)

EDISON BELL CRYSTAL SET - This rare set was manufactured by Edison Bell Ltd. in 1923. The crystal detector is illuminated from below by a small bulb. The Government Post Office (GPO) Registration is No. 615. (Erwin Macho - Vienna, Austria)

ATWATER KENT MODEL 70 - The heavy Model 70 Type L chassis slides into this ornate lowboy cabinet. This eight-tube TRF set, produced in 1929, was found at a local swap meet. (John Neuman - San Marcos, CA)

PATHÉ CATHEDRAL - Although this AM set carries no model number, it appears from the tube types that it was manufactured in the early 1930s. The eight-tube complement is as follows: 1-58, 1-24, 2-35, 1-56, 2-47, 1-80. (Joseph E. Kwoka - Delran, NJ)

K&D AM-METER - This ammeter of simple design was listed in the Manhattan Electric Supply Co. catalog of 1904. The catalog described the unit as a "measuring instrument, made for practical and accurate use." Although the list price was $3, a discount sheet that came with the catalog showed a price of $1.80. (Lester P. Rayner - Scottsdale, AZ)

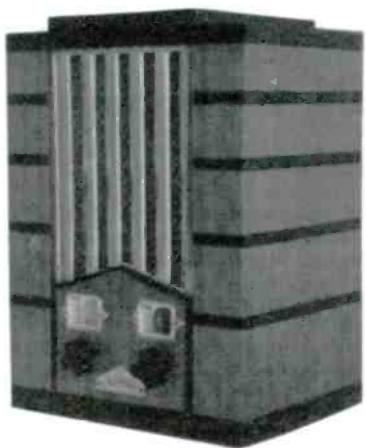

KARDONSTRIP - This 1925-26 five-tube TRF receiver was made in New York City by the Kardon Radio Corp. Manufacturer Peter Kardon designed and patented the novel "strip" wiring method, consisting of bronze strips eyeleted to the Bakelite sub-panel, which also served as tube socket connections. This battery set retailed for $35 with production cost at $7 to $10 each. I would like to know of the cabinet manufacturer, as this cabinet was also used by Leutz and others. (Mike Parker - Portland, OR)

AMERICAN BOSCH MODEL 48 - This 1929 console has been fully restored to its original finish and condition. The mechanics are well designed and in perfect working condition. The sound quality is excellent for the age of the radio. (Bob Piekarz - La Grange Park, IL)

MAJESTIC MODEL 59 - This five-tube receiver was manufactured in 1933. The stylish cabinet has several arresting features, beginning with the use of natural wood and ebony trim. Also, note the cross-shaped knobs, recessed escutcheons and vertical aluminum speaker grille bars. (Alexandria Nelson - Albuquerque, NM)

MASTAVOX CRYSTAL RADIO - This crystal set was manufactured by the Master Radio Manufacturing Co. Tuning is from 250-600 meters. The socket behind the detector is for a loading coil. (Erwin Macho - Vienna, Austria)

STEWART-WARNER MODEL 95-514 - This late 1930s Art Deco set is in original condition. The cabinet is black and chrome, accentuated with chrome trim. Note the words, "magic keyboard" directly below the push buttons. (Mike Adams - Scotts Valley, CA)

CIA SPY SET - This post-World War II unit included a separate receiver, power supply and transmitter. (Bill Coolahan - Cedar Rapids, IA)

AMERICAN BOSCH MODEL 604 A2 - This five-tube radio was manufactured in 1935. The cabinet is of 3/4-inch solid walnut with a wooden back. (Walter Worth - Wollaston, MA)

Building A Dream Display Room

BY C. R. "RON" LAWRENCE

1990 marks my twentieth year of collecting radios. My interest was sparked during my junior year in high school by a magazine article in the July 1969 issue of Popular Electronics called "Whatever Happened to Atwater Kent?" I was in my first year of high school electronics at the time and was fascinated.

About this same time, my mother got me interested in going to flea markets. It didn't take long until I ran across an Atwater Kent radio. It was a Model 20 with tubes and headphones, and I bought it for the then fantastic sum of $10.

To quote a local newspaper columnist who wrote about my radio collecting hobby, "From innocent beginnings do dark obsessions grow." Since then, my collection has grown to number almost 500 radios, plus speakers, horns, tubes, and magazines.

As many of you may also have found, having a collection of this size can cause quite a problem of logistics. Just what do you do with all this stuff? For the first six years this wasn't much of a problem, since I had only eight or ten radios in all. But then in 1976, everything changed.

First, I discovered the Antique Wireless Association and other collectors. Then my wife and I moved from a rented duplex to our first house. When we moved in, I took over a small paneled den as the place to display my radios and put my desk and radio shack. In the years between 1976 and 1988, I managed to fill this room completely. In addition, I had radios in the living room, den, and most of a spare bedroom.

Finally, enough was enough. We had completely run out of room and decided it was time to find another house. After many months of searching for a house big enough for the three of us — my wife, myself, and the radio collection — we finally found our dream house. Not only did it have everything we ever wanted — lots of square footage, style, and land — but it also had a two-car garage on the first floor.

Even before we moved in, I started designing the renovation of the 21' x 22' garage. The project started about three months after we moved in. With the able assistance of my retired father, I took down the sixteen-foot garage door and built a wall in its place. Then we installed an insulated

In December of 1989, our local group of AWA (Antique Wireless Association) members decided to host the 1990 AWA/SE Regional Conference in Monroe, North Carolina, on March 23 and 24. Everyone agreed that it would be a great idea to have an open house here on Friday night of the meet. But first, I had to get the new display room done.

Our local group gets together for breakfast on the first Saturday of the month and then goes together to the local flea market — the same flea market where I bought my first Atwater Kent twenty years ago. At breakfast that first Saturday in January, my friends and collecting buddies — Ernie Hite, Robert Lozier, and Ted Miller — told me they would be happy to help with the room. We started the next Saturday and worked every Saturday, as well as many evenings and Sundays, for the next nine weeks.

The garage had two entrances, one giving direct access from the outside, and one leading from the garage into the house. Since I did not want an outside door opening directly into the display room, we built a small "buffer" room. In doing this, the outside door now serves as an entrance to the new room, with a second door leading into the display area. Though not much bigger than a large closet, this room works fine as a place to have a workbench, plus adding a greater sense of security for my collection.

Ever since I started collecting I had dreamed about having an area specially designed for display, rather than fitting everything into a room intended for some other purpose.

For years, whenever I visited a museum, I had looked at how the artifacts were displayed, especially the lighting and background colors. Many museums have display cases built into a wall. As a result, I decided to try to build display cases into my room — something that worked out well.

While framing this room, we built into the wall a box approximately four feet by six feet by ten inches deep using clear yellow pine 2 x 10s. The overall size was determined by the fact that I have a source for sheets of plate glass that would work well for sliding doors.

After the framing, it was time for the wiring to be installed. Since there never seem to be enough electrical outlets, I went all out and installed an outlet every three feet on three walls, making a total of twenty. I'll never forget one Sunday afternoon watching my mother and father, both over seventy years young, fishing #12 power cable through the wall studs from box to box.

All of the outlets, with the exception of one, are through a master power switch. In this way, I never have to worry about leaving anything turned on when I leave. In addition, we ran a ten conductor cable to each of three boxes mounted six feet high to allow for playing music through speakers and horns.

After the wiring was completed came the most difficult part — hanging drywall. One of the things I particularly liked about the room, was its ten foot high ceiling, but it required us to use twelve foot long Sheetrock. To my four regular helpers I added my best friend from work, Mark Cleary. With six workers, five of whom had never hung any Sheetrock, we managed to get all of it up in one day. It's not perfect, but most of the walls are covered with radios anyway.

Now we are getting to the fun part. After taping and finishing the Sheetrock, it was time to paint. Thinking back to my visits to museums, and especially Ralph Williams' museum at Orient, New York, I decided to go with all white walls and shelves and a neutral gray short pile carpet. The idea was to make the room as neutral as possible so that you would see radios and not room.

Over the years, I have been using shelving that has vertical standards that mount to the wall and shelf brackets that hook into slots. I had quite a few of these from the other house and had bought as many as I could afford on sale. I had enough standards to place one on every wall stud on forty feet of wall.

Since the shelving hardware had come from many sources, it was not all the same finish. To match the flat white walls, I gave all the metal parts two coats of zinc chromate primer and then two coats of flat white spray paint, the same flat white paint that was used on the walls. My wife Belinda did most of the painting, with help from anyone who wasn't doing something else.

I had decided early on to use both fluorescent and track lighting in the room. We built an eight-foot-square light box that was then mounted to the ceiling. On each of three sides of the box we mounted a two-tube, eight-foot fixture. A baffle board blocked the light so that all of it was directed to the walls. Inside the box we placed another eight-foot fixture that was hidden behind diffuser panels to light the center of the room.

Track lighting lit the transistor radio collection and the photo wall. We mounted a four-foot fluorescent fixture in the top of the wall display case behind a baffle. Glass shelves in the display case allowed light to pass through.

By then it was the second weekend of March. Just two weeks until the open house! Now the real fun could begin. The collection had been in storage for two years, but I had not stopped collecting. When I started moving radios into the room, there were a lot more of them than I remembered. I had several nice surprises on finding things that I had forgotten I owned.

I had intentionally left the center of the room empty so that there would be space for a sitting area. It was important to have a place to sit down, enjoy the room, and talk with friends. We arranged a Queen Anne camel back sofa that my wife had found several years ago and a rocking chair that had belonged to her grandmother. I hoped someday to find a nice chairside Zenith to go beside the couch.

Finally, the 23rd of March arrived. Maybe now I could get some rest. But, I was up until 2 A.M. the morning before the meet putting the finishing touches on the room.

The first day of the meet was great! I had to leave the meet site a little early so that I could help my wife finish getting ready for the open house that evening. I also had to move into the display room the nice Zenith chairside that I had picked up at the meet that afternoon!

This room would not exist if it had not been for the help of lots of friends and family. I owe these people much more than I'll ever be able to repay. I would like to dedicate this article to the following people: Ted Miller, Robert Lozier, Ernie Hite, Mark Cleary, my mother and father, Tomsie and Clarence Lawrence, and my wife Belinda, to thank her for all her help and for putting up with all this through the years.

More RCA BP-10 Updates

CONTRIBUTED BY JIM BERG, ALAN DOUGLAS, ROBERT PERLSTEIN
AND MICHAEL SCHIFFER

In the December 1990 issue of A.R.C., Kurt Nauck wrote about a 1939 RCA portable prototype. We encouraged readers to share additional information on the resulting production model, the BP-10, and published comments from two of our readers in March 1991. Here, four more readers provide additional information regarding this popular early portable. (Editor)

Michael Schiffer submitted the following on the BP-10, drawn mostly from his book The Portable Radio in American Life, which should appear in October 1991.

During 1939, portable radios revived with vigor after their long depression slumber. Appreciating that interest in portables might be more than a passing fad, RCA assigned a team of engineers to design a new family of battery tubes that would be appropriate for "personal" portables. The new tubes were quickly developed and announced to the trade in an Electronics article of November 1939. And so the first miniature tubes were born. To accompany these tubes in personal portables, parts suppliers crafted other down-sized components, including tuning capacitors, IF transformers, and speakers.

Nearly all radio manufacturers set up design teams to work on personal portable radios that exploited the new tubes and components. RCA, of course, came up with the BP-10. Apparently, however, Sonora's Candid model made it to market in April 1940, just days ahead of the BP-10. Within months, personal portables, made in camera-style cabinets, were released by many set makers.

The BP-10, which sold for $20, was a very successful product. Tens of thousands were sold rapidly in New York City, a test market for RCA. Some dealers offered Christmas layaway and dollar-a-week installment plans. The robust, leather carrying case cost an additional $6.50, but in some promotions the case was supplied free with the radio. The BP-10 was manufactured until home radio production was shut down in April 1942 by the U.S. Government. The BP-10 is the most common prewar personal portable that survives.

(Michael Schiffer, University of Arizona, Build- ing 30, Tucson, AZ 85721)

Kurt Nauck, the author of the December 1990 article, forwarded a letter from Jim Berg who has a BP-10 dated Feb. 18, 1941, with Serial Number D-017732. Jim's set has a label in back which states: "Important — The B battery in this set is new and may be obtainable only from dealers selling this receiver. For an extended trip, we suggest an extra B battery — Eveready 467 or its equal — be purchased. Since the B battery has approximately ten times the life of the A flashlight-type battery, do not discard it until a new A battery Eveready #950 or its equal has been tried."

The B battery in the set has a label copyright date of 1939. The battery states, "The new and radically different construction used in this portable radio battery makes it last much longer than any other battery of equal size."

(Jim Berg, 2648 W. Arkansas Ave., Denver, CO 80219)

Alan Douglas forwarded us the following information: RCA's files in Indianapolis show that the BP-10 was announced on July 3, 1940, and cost $20. In 1940-41, 200,842 BP-10s were produced and in 1941-42, 9,042. RCA claimed that the BP-10 was the first set to use miniature tubes, as well as the first to use an elliptical speaker. (Dr. Ed Taylor culled this information for Alan from RCA's files.)

The cover of Radio Retailing for August 1940 features "Personal Portables" by RCA, Automatic, Emerson, Sonora, Majestic, and Philco, but RCA ads in Radio Retailing do not mention the BP-10 until December 1940. However, the BP-10 was advertised in July 1940 in other publications.

(Alan Douglas, Box 225, Pocasset, MA 02559)

Robert Perlstein provides a related user's tip pertaining to the RCA BP-10 and other 1-volt tube, portable, pocket radios using 67 1/2-volt batteries. Bob has devised a relatively inexpensive replacement for the B battery, resulting in regular service from his BP-10. His solution follows:

One problem these days is the price of the B battery. #467 67 1/2-volt B batteries are hitting $15, so I've sought other methods to come up with portable 67 1/2 volts. I have found that eight standard 9-volt zinc carbon batteries, wired to provide 72 volts, fit and work perfectly in the BP-10. I use the cheapest Radio Shack versions bound together with cardboard. They seem to provide better than fifty hours of service.

I have a question to pose to readers of A.R.C.: Was a 1-volt tube "pocket portable" similar to the RCA BP-10, also covering shortwave, ever manufactured and sold to the general public?

VINTAGE MILITARY EQUIPMENT

The APS-4 Radar System

BY ALLAN H. WEINER

Collecting World War II radar equipment is a bit out-of-the-ordinary but is very rewarding. In 1940, the technology of radar was in its infancy. By 1943, in three short years, equipment was built that could search, detect, and track enemy targets. Radio detection and ranging had come of age.

Many say that radar, more than any single development, helped win World War II. At the very least, thousands of lives were saved, and the war was shortened by this system of seeing through darkness, rain, and fog. To this day radar scans our skies, helping to direct air traffic, watching for storms, and guarding our nation.

The APS-4 radar system, as shown in Figure 1, was a search and homing radar system introduced in 1943. Designed and built by Western Electric, it was very compact by electronic standards of the time. Even to this day, it is a marvel of engineering.

The APS-4 receiver/transmitter (RT unit) was constructed to hang from an aircraft's bomb rack and was used on many light bombers and patrol planes. In fact, the RT unit with its covers on looked very much like a bomb. Since radar equipment was very secret during the war, the entire unit could be "dropped" by the plane if it went down in enemy territory.

The RT unit was hooked to a control box, as shown in Figure 2, and the display was a three-inch scope. The small twelve-inch dish antenna, shown in Figures 1 and 2, scanned from side to side and was tiltable in elevation. The pilot could tell bearing and range and then home in on the target.

The 3 cm. transmitter used a Western Electric Type 725A magnetron tube and developed 75 kilowatts of peak power. The system has a 100-mile range. To keep the weight down, 115 volts AC at 800 cycles were used, resulting in smaller power transformers. The construction was Class 1 Grade A.

I obtained much of this equipment when I was a high school student making frequent visits to the surplus mecca on Canal Street in New York City. Much of this fine old gear is long gone, along with the great surplus dealers on Canal Street. If you manage to come across any World War II vintage radar equipment, marvel at the sophistication for its time. The equipment was all made with vacuum tubes and relays, and it worked!

Allan has been interested in radio broadcasting since he was twelve, and started collecting radio and military equipment when he was thirteen. Presently he is an engineer at ABC television and is involved with shortwave broadcaster Radio New York International.

RADIOFEST has established itself as one of the premier antique radio meets in the country. This year will be no exception, as RADIOFEST 1991 is again held at the Holiday Inn Holidome and Convention Center in Elgin, Illinois, one of the finest convention facilities in the state. Please plan to attend and join us in an opportunity to add to your collection, view exhibits, sell and bid in the auctions, participate in the contest or buy and sell at antique radio's #1 flea market. Again, we welcome the AWA as co-host, joining us for our 10th anniversary RADIOFEST.

If you have any questions or comments, contact any of the RADIOFEST 1991 committee:

THE HALLICRAFTERS STORY

1933 — 1975

by Max de Henseler

HB9RS

Looking back to the past is often a symbol of decline. But at a time when American radio manufacturers have almost completely disappeared from the amateur radio world market, the mind seeks refuge in a glorious past.

Collectors have developed a deep nostalgia for the 'good old days', when the brand names of American manufacturers were household words for the amateur radio world community. The sky was the limit, and the conquest of the skywaves by "riding" or "defying" them was the "challenge" of the Hallicrafters.

This historical review was undertaken from an amateur radio and collector's point of view, and, accordingly, it covers the range of communications equipment that was used by amateur radio operators, mainly short wave communications receivers, main transmitters and transceivers. It is not intended to cover the whole production of the Hallicrafters Co., and dozens of models have intentionally been left out.

CLASSIFIED ADVERTISING POLICY

ONE FREE 20-WORD AD for subscribers in each issue; additional words are 15¢ each. See details below. Classified ads must be received (not just postmarked!) by NOON on the ad deadline. Late ads are held for the following issue. Please enclose correct payment with all ads. Stamps or cash are OK for small amounts. (Canadian and other foreign advertisers, please see "Payment" on page two for methods.) "Free words" cannot be accumulated from month to month; free words must be requested when ad is submitted.

Please write each ad on a separate sheet of paper, especially when included with other A.R.C. correspondence. Include SUB# with ad. Ads may be sent in advance; but, write each ad on a separate piece of paper and indicate the month (or successive two months) you want the ad to run.

Please write legibly and use both capital and small letters. Do not use dashes between words. Some numbers and letters can look alike, for example 1, l and I (the number one, the capital i and the small L.) Write the following characters clearly (especially in model numbers): 1, l and I; 0, O, o, Q and D; r and n; 6, b and G; V, U, u, v and Y; A and R; 5, S and s; 2, Z and z. We try to correct spelling errors, so when using an uncommon word or manufacturer which looks similar to a common word or manufacturer, note it so that we do not "correct" it. Editor's comments are in [brackets].

Advertising is accepted only for early items related to radio, communication, etc. All items must be described fairly; reproductions, reprints and not-original items must be identified as such. Advertisers agree to respond promptly to inquiries and orders, and to resolve problems promptly if the buyer is not satisfied.

Publisher reserves the right to edit ads without notification to the advertiser and to reject ads for any reason. Publisher is not responsible for errors due to illegibly written ads or for any other reason. Since club activities receive free advertising on the Coming Radio Events page, the free 20 words may not be used for club activity ads. See inside front cover for additional information.

CLASSIFIED AD DETAILS

Deadline: NOON – 10th of the month!

Classified ads must have a standard heading such as WANTED, FOR SALE, FOR TRADE, FOR SALE/TRADE, SERVICES, MESSAGE, HELP, AUCTION, MEET, etc. This heading is the only bold or all-capitalized words allowed in the ad. Capitalize only manufacturer names, model names, etc. Wanted and For Sale ads are mixed together to encourage the reading of all ads, including the Wanted ads. This standard ad format makes scanning the ads easier.

Before writing your ad, please look over the ads in a recent issue of A.R.C., and try to write your ad in the same style. Full name and address is required in all classified ads; we will add it if you forget.

To encourage varied content of the ads, the same classified ad may be run only once per issue and for only two consecutive months. (To run an ad longer, use a boxed classified or display ad.)

Classified Ad Rates per Month

Subscribers:

First 20 words: FREE

15¢ per word for extra words over 20 plus

10¢ per word for a shaded ad (count all words including free words).

* Subscribers may take 20 free words on only one ad each month.

Non-Subscribers:

30¢ per word plus

10¢ per word for shaded ad.

Please do not forget to send in the extra 15¢ per word when your classified ad runs over the free 20 words; your payment will be appreciated, and it will help to keep A.R.C. healthy.

BOXED CLASSIFIED AD DETAILS

Deadline: 5th of the month!

Boxed classified ads can run unchanged for three months or more. No words are free. Ads may be shaded and may include bold and all-capitalized words freely. The ad need not begin with For Sale, etc. Minimum run is 3 months, prepaid.

Boxed Classified Ad Rates per Month

Nonshaded ads:

25¢ per word for all words,* none free, plus

10¢ per word for each bold word plus

10¢ per word for each all-caps word.

Shaded Ads (All words are bold at no charge):

35¢ per word for all words* plus

10¢ per word for each all-caps word.

Non-Subscribers:

Add 20¢ per word to above costs.

*Three words can be bold-all-caps at no extra charge.

Deadline: 5th of the month for classified and boxed classified ads with drawings or photos!

Drawings and photos are encouraged as the response to your ad is much larger and the reader knows better what you want or are selling. Send in your drawing or photograph, and A.R.C. will reproduce it or enlarge it as needed.

$8.00 per month for each photo or drawing

(If ad is canceled, this amount cannot always be refunded.)

CHANGES & CANCELATIONS

Please check your ads carefully before sending them in. Once ads are received, it is not always possible to refund the amount sent, pull the ad or make changes.

IMPORTANT — COUNTING WORDS — IMPORTANT

The standard headings: WANTED, FOR SALE, etc., count as one word each time used in an ad. Name, address and (one) telephone number, count as 6 words, regardless of length. Ham call letters and business name can be included in the 6 words and do not count extra. Full name and address is required in all classified ads – it does not cost extra! Each additional word, abbreviation, model number or number group, extra telephone numbers, etc. count as one word. Hyphenated words count as two words.
