A new team in Washington is doing things you should know about.

Exciting things on video tape.
Exciting things with video tape.
Unbelievable things in color tape-to-film transfer. That's part of what now makes Logos Teleproduction Center the kind of place you'd expect to find in NYC or L.A. But it's in the middle of what's happening in Washington.
It's powered by a vital,

with-it new creative and management team. And it brags a monster studio and a pile of production equipment that make Logos Teleproduction Center second to none, on any count, in any market . . . for any kind of commercial or educational, studio or location video production.
Find out about it.

Quick guide to Yearbook sections

Information in this YEARBOOK is divided into homogeneous sections as described in the boxes at right. Here's how to locate a section rapidly:

Extent of Broadcast Editorializing

Over 50% of AM stations, 50% of TV's, and over 55% of FM's are now editorializing, at least occasionally, according to results of a nationwide survey for the BROADCASTING YEARBOOK.

The editorializing survey was obtained from the YEARBOOK questionnaire sent to all radio and TV stations. Here are the results:

	AM	FM	TV
Stations editorializing	1,149	246	213
Stations answering editorializing question	2,232	416	426
Percent editorializing	51.5%	59.1%	50.0%
Percent editorializing daily	10.2%	5.8%	12.4%
Percent editorializing weekly	7.3%	9.1%	7.5%
Percent editorializing occasionally	34.0%	44.2%	30.1%

Only FM stations that are independently programmed are considered in this survey.

You can just call it a

or you can really make it

Which is what NBC is doing—in a particularly big way—this current season.

The "star specials" showcase very special stars, indeed: Julie Andrews, Brigitte Bardot, Jack Benny, Bill Cosby, Bing Crosby, Tennessee Ernie, Mitzi Gaynor, Bob Hope, Elvis Presley, The Supremes, Andy Williams. To drop a few names.

The drama specials concentrate on contemporary, original plays brought alive by players like Michael Caine, Sean Connery, Peter Fonda, Van Heflin, Paul Scofield and Eli Wallach.

And the spectacles are truly spectacular: The Miss America Pageant, the Tournament of Roses, the Orange Bowl Parade, Macy's Thanksgiving Day Parade, the Ice Capades, the Ringling Bros. and Barnum & Bailey Circus, a big ice review with Olympic star Peggy Fleming.

In short, there are Specials and then there are SPECIALS. This season, if it's really out-of-the-ordinary, you're likely to find it on NBC.

NATIONAL BROADCASTING COMPANY

Radio-TV is first news source

Big stories keep breaking all through 1968

but broadcasts keep nation abreast of events

The year of the big broadcasting news stories—that's what you might call 1968.

Not only was it an election year, and an election year in which there were many startling developments, but there was a great deal of other important news.

A Vietnam war may have been routine but President Johnson's withdrawal from the 1968 campaign on March 31, Martin Luther King's assassination on April 4, Robert Kennedy's assassination on June 5 and the Apollo 8 space flight scheduled for Dec. 21 were all far from routine.

And most people got their information about these, as well as all of the other news stories of each day, on radio and television.

Gross news expenses for the three television networks alone will total around the $150 million mark for 1968. And the working budgets of individual stations covering the news in depth might total an equal or greater sum.

Coverage of the Democratic national convention was not only unusually costly and difficult (due partially to the electricians strike in Chicago and the hostility of the Chicago police to all news media) but resulted in a deluge of criticism not only from the Chicago Mayor Richard J. Daley camp but from the many viewers with little sympathy for demonstrators as a class.

Mayor Daley demanded that the networks give him an hour in which to present "Chicago's side of what happened during convention week." The networks refused, but more than 100 TV and a number of radio stations carried the Daley program.

It was with some relief that broadcasters covered the Dec. 2, 1968, report of the National Commission on the Causes and Prevention of Violence that criticized the Chicago police for their methods of maintaining order. Daniel Walker, vice president and general counsel of Montgomery-Ward and Co., Chicago, who put together the report, described it as "police riot" and appeared on television to reaffirm the statements made in his report.

Business generally was good for radio and television during 1968. A BROADCASTING survey showed that increasing billings in radio-TV during the last three quarters of the year more than made up for a somewhat sluggish first quarter. The top-50 radio-TV agencies billed $137 million more in 1968 than they did in 1967. J. Walter Thompson was the biggest broadcast agency again, with a total of $248.6 million in broadcast, $226.4 million of which was in television.

Spot television, always an index of television station prosperity, had a strong third quarter in 1968 and promised to do as well in the final segment of the year. BROADCASTING's eighth annual survey of spot availabilities found 81% of stations reporting a gain over the previous year. Estimates based on Television Bureau of Advertising figures indicated that spot-TV billings for the year might reach $949 million in 1968 as compared with $863 million in 1967.

During the year color became the dominant medium for television with all three networks using it almost exclusively. Almost all stations, even those in the smallest markets, had color capability. In October an estimated 17 million homes, 30% of all television homes, had color sets. Color sets, for the first time, were outselling black-and-white. The Electronics Industries Association reported in mid-October that color set sales for 1968 to that point totalled 4,351,681 color receivers and 4,343,243 black-and-white.

Commercial broadcasters had their problems with government regulation during 1968. The FCC imposed a freeze on applications for new AM radio stations in mid-year with the announcement that it was making a review of AM allocations policies including the question of whether AM and FM should be considered a single radio service. The FCC earlier in the year called for a hearing on a proposal to prevent any company or person from acquiring more than one station, either AM, FM or TV, in a single community. This proposal did not propose immediate divestiture of stations by owners already having AM, FM or TV combinations in one market.

The Justice Department proposed that the FCC should require divestiture of stations owning more than one station of any classification in one market and also came out against common ownership of big newspapers and TV stations.

Biggest broadcasting problems were on Capitol Hill. Democrats planned congressional hearings in connection with civil unrest and particularly the disorders surrounding the Democratic national convention. The question of violence in TV programming, and its potential effects on society, was also explored at length by a presidential commission set up following the assassination of Senator Robert F. Kennedy in June. At year's end this report had not been submitted.

On the good news side of the ledger the U. S. Court of Appeals for the Seventh Circuit in Chicago held that the FCC's much-contested fairness rules were unconstitutional and waived aside the FCC's arguments that broadcasters, since they were regulated, are entitled to less protection under the First Amendment to the Constitution than are newspapers and magazines. In November the U.S. Supreme Court was asked to decide whether this ruling or a contrary opinion by another court in another case was right on this subject.

The President's Task Force on Communications Policy, appointed by President Lyndon B. Johnson in 1967, was winding up its work as 1968 drew to a close but was not expected to suggest basic changes in the broadcasting field. A final draft of the recommendations for TV, reported in BROADCASTING in September, anticipated that community-antenna television would supplement broadcast TV, not supplant it.

Welcome to a greater Chicagoland

Welcome to Weston, Illinois. It's just 30 miles down the road from the heart of Chicago. There, the National Accelerator Laboratory, world's largest nuclear reactor, will be under construction.

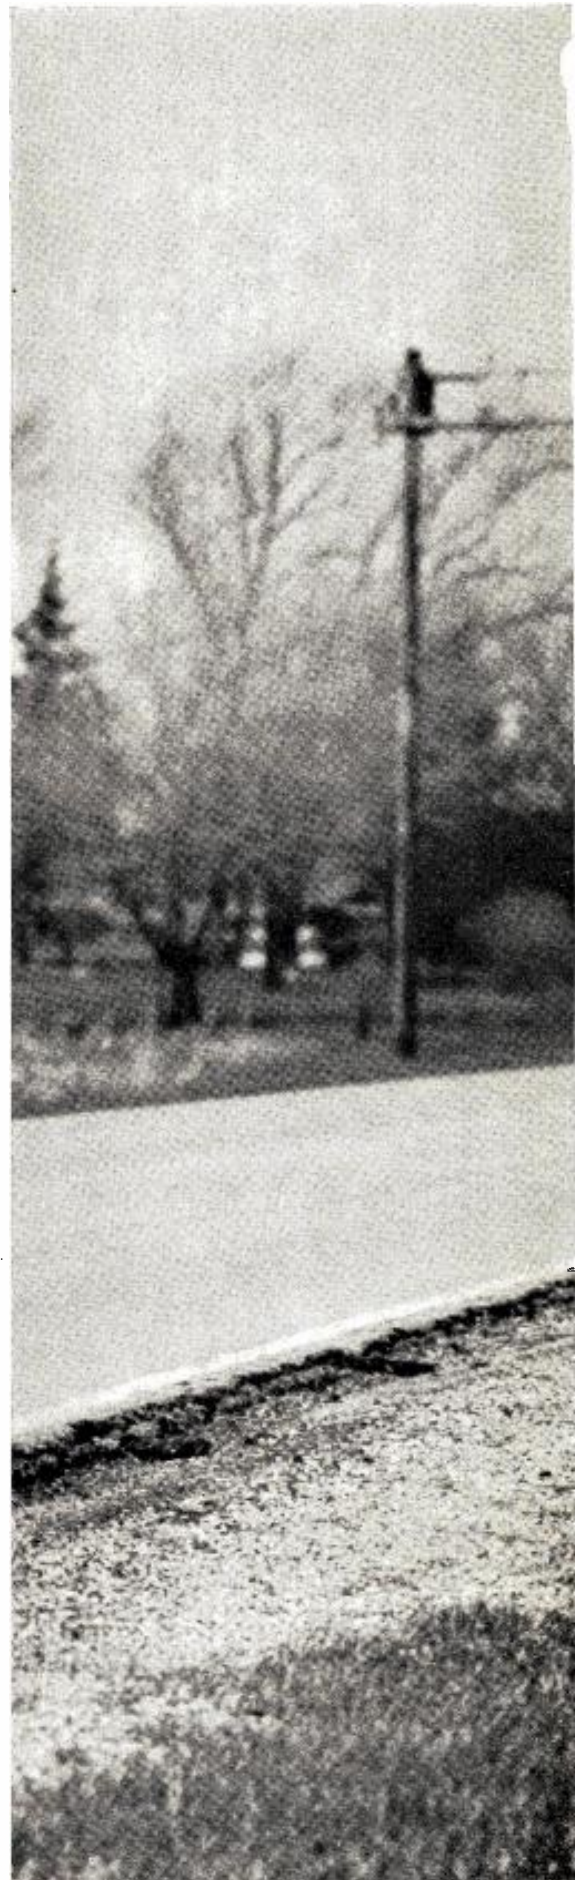

Today a prairie town. Soon one of America's key scientific centers.

The Weston story is another example of Illinois—now in its 150th year—meeting the challenge of today. And preparing for the promise of tomorrow. With Weston, the Chicago area emerges as the nuclear research capital of the world. And it assures an ever bigger and better Chicagoland.

CATV, which started as a means of carrying TV programs into remote areas by cable, expanded rapidly into larger communities and cities during the year. By mid-1968 some 2,000 CATV systems were operating or under construction and were technically able to carry their own programs in addition to those picked up from regular TV stations.

Some broadcasters were afraid that the task force would recommend the so-called "wired-city" concept, in which cable systems would replace regular television. The staff recommendations proposed no basic changes in the existing broadcast structure.

CATV faced numerous problems including that of copyright liability for network and station programs it picked up and carried into CATV subscribers' homes. Copyright owners claimed they should be paid for their works. The U. S. Supreme Court ruled in June that, at least in the case studied, CATV had no copyright liability for programing it retransmitted. In the meantime program producers, broadcasters and CATV interests continued negotiations toward an agreement that might be incorporated in a general copyright law revision bill.

Another basic CATV question was decided when the U. S. Supreme Court held in June that the Communications Act of 1934 gives the FCC broad authority over all interstate communications by wire or radio including communications systems developed after, as well as before, the 1934 law was enacted and specifically including CATV of all kinds.

Communications satellites were another problem confronting broadcasters and the FCC.

One issue, still unresolved, was whether broadcasters should be allowed, as the ABC network in particular insisted, to share in the ownership of a proposed but as yet unauthorized, domestic satellite which would be used instead of existing land lines and microwave facilities to relay network programs to stations. Other proposals included one that satellites be used for international as well as domestic communications. Satellites were in operation over the Atlantic and Pacific oceans, relaying TV programs back and forth between the U.S. and Europe and Japan and frequently to or from South America.

It was thought that a conference of the 63 nations of the International Telecommunications Satellite Consortium (Intelsat), to be held in Washington starting in February 1969, would provide guidelines for solving many of these problems in the course of formulating a permanent treaty on the use of American satellites currently in operation over the Atlantic and the Pacific.

There was more talk than action concerning pay television in 1968. A one-year moratorium on FCC action, called for by the House Commerce Committee when it appeared likely that the commission would approve pay TV, expired in November, but the House group passed another resolution calling for further delay. FCC members challenged the committee's position but did not act immediately on the pending proposal, submitted by a special FCC unit in 1967, that pay TV be approved within broad limitations designed to protect both the operators and the audiences of free television. The only experimental pay-TV operation in the U.S., being conducted on a part-time basis by a broadcast TV station in Hartford, Conn., meanwhile reduced its pay-TV hours during the year from more than 30 a week to 12 (one two-hour motion picture a night, Mondays through Saturdays), explaining that not enough "quality" movies were available to fill the longer periods. The station also disclosed in November that the number of its pay-TV subscribers, once about 7,000, had dropped to about 4,500.

The Corporation for Public Broadcasting (CPB), created by Congress in 1967 to administer grants of federal and private funds for educational television (ETV) program development, was formally incorporated in March, 1968, but did not receive its first federal appropriation until October, and then received only $5 million, or little more than half of $9 million originally authorized by Congress. Frank Pace, a businessman and former secretary of the army and director of the U.S. Budget, was named chairman of the CPB board of directors in February, but late in the year was still seeking a president.

The rapid growth rates of television and radio began to decelerate in 1968 as opportunities for further expansion became more and more limited. With television in operation in more than 100 countries, and radio in more than 200, it appeared likely that the costs of setting up new systems would keep future growth rates at more moderate levels than in the past. The latest official report, compiled by the United States Information Agency in 1964, estimated that 162 million television sets and more than 500 million radio sets were in use throughout the world. Private broadcasting industry sources estimated that the totals had reached 213 million television sets and 595 million radio sets by late 1968.

More than one-third, or about 78 million, of the TV sets were in the U.S. The U.S.S.R. had approximately 25 million, Japan 20.5 million, the United Kingdom 19 million, West Germany 13.5 million, France 10 million, Italy 8.2 million, Canada 6.2 million, Poland

2.5 million and Australia 2.4 million, according to estimates compiled by BROADCASTING magazine and Broadcasting Yearbook in late 1968.

Television stations operating or under construction throughout the world numbered approximately 5,520 in 1968. Western Europe had about 2,000, the Far East 1,300, the U.S. 1,030, Eastern Europe 900, South America 165, and Africa 30.

About 12,250 radio stations were in operation or under construction. Most of these were amplitude modulation (AM) radio stations but the total also included frequency modulation (FM) stations and the relay or booster operations used in many countries to carry radio programing into remote areas. More than half of the 12,250 radio stations, or 6,828, were in the U.S., and more than one-third, or 2,499, of the U.S. total were FM, according to records compiled by BROADCASTING in November 1968. Approximately half of the world's 595 million radio sets, or about 300 million, also were in the U.S., with the rest distributed among the world's countries in proportions ranging from less than one set per 100 population to more than one set for every two persons.

News remained a fundamental concern of television and radio broadcasters throughout the world in 1968, and was one of the most popular forms of programing with viewers and listeners. Use of communications satellites to relay U.S. programs to European countries and Japan was almost commonplace: they were used extensively to carry coverage surrounding such events as the assassinations of the Reverend Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr. in April and Senator Robert F. Kennedy in June; the Republican and Democratic presidential nominating conventions in August, the election of Republican Richard M. Nixon over Democratic Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey in November, and the Apollo 7 manned space flight in October, and they were expected to be put into use again for the planned Apollo 8 manned lunar mission in December and the inauguration of President-elect Nixon in January. To a considerable but somewhat lesser extent satellites were also used to carry coverage of events in Europe and Latin America to the U.S. and other countries, such as the start of the Paris peace talks in May, aimed at ending the Vietnam war; the student riots in Paris later the same month; the Soviet-bloc invasion of Czechoslovakia in August; Pope Paul's visit to Colombia, also in August, and the Summer Olympics in Mexico City in October.

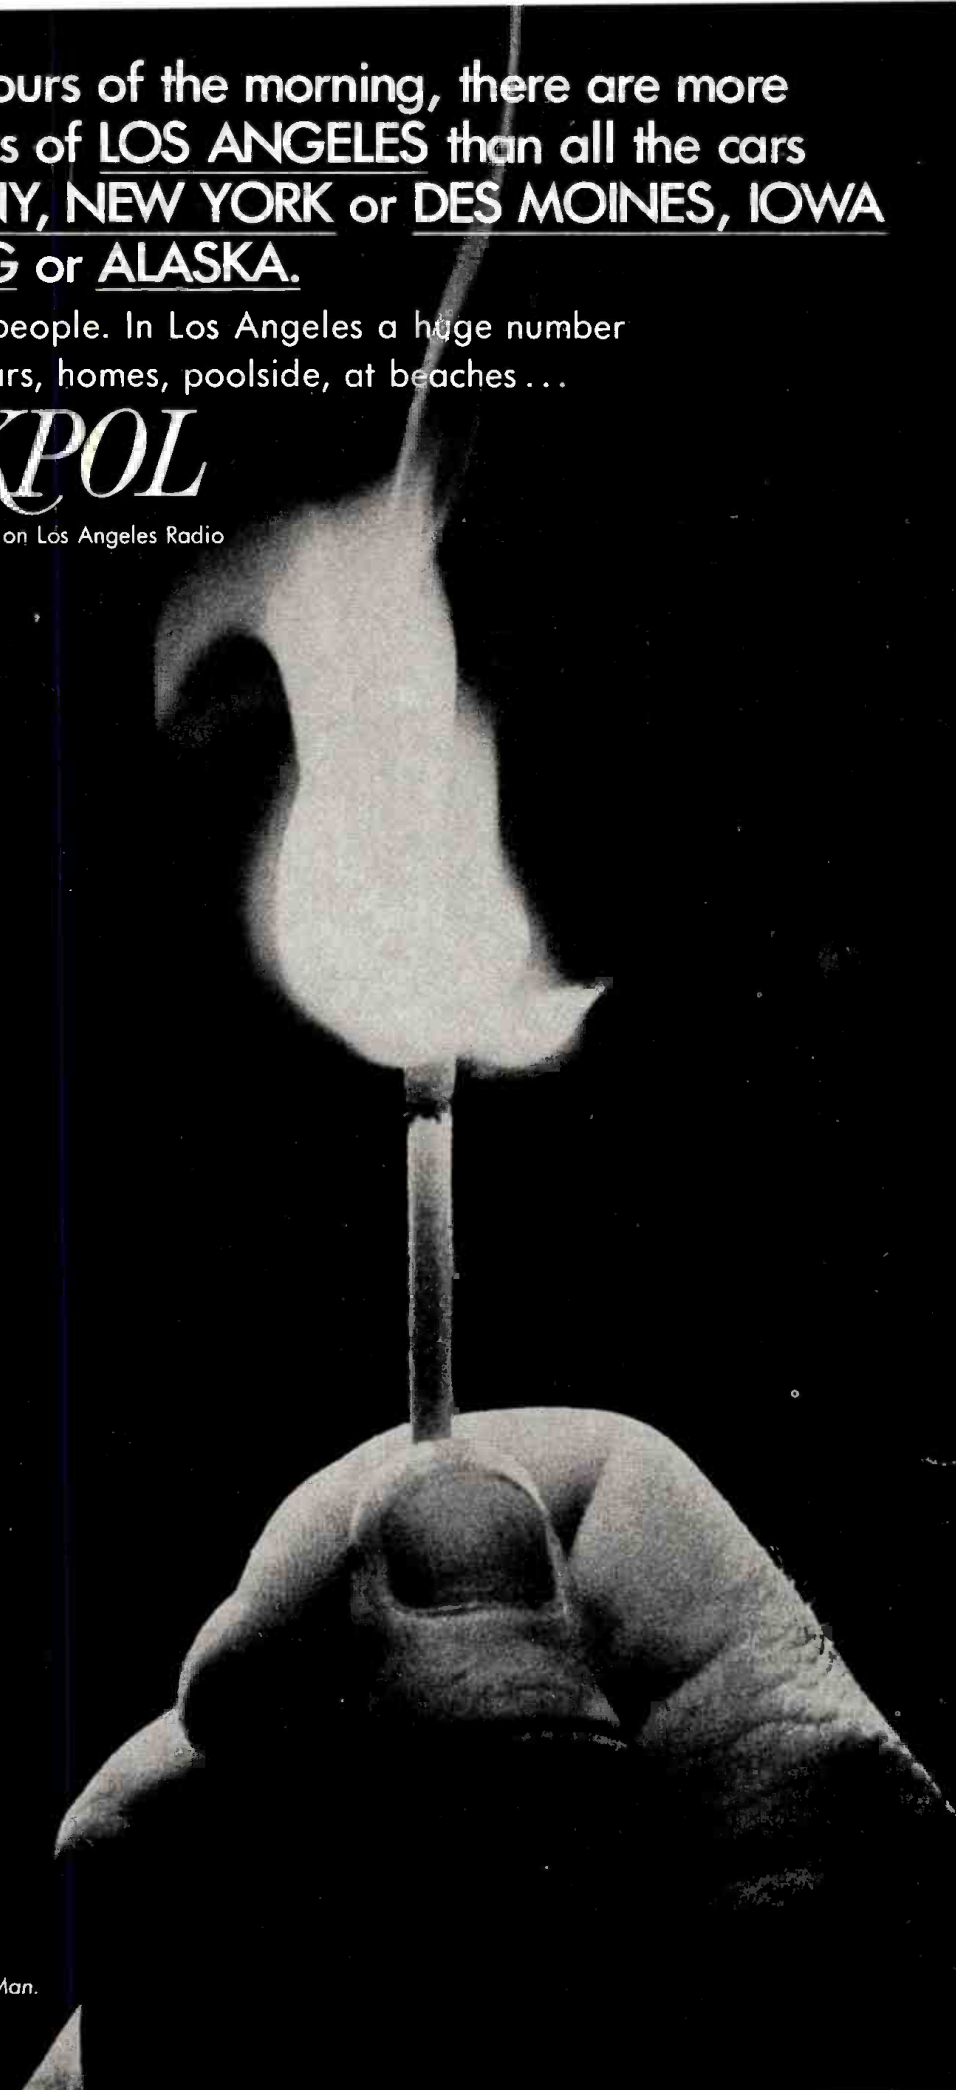

In entertainment, westerns, mysteries and comedies produced and shown in the U.S. remained among the most popular fare in most of the major television countries, but increasingly these nations were developing their own "TV cultures" using more and more locally produced programs. In Japan, for instance, there were fewer U.S. programs among the top-rated shows, and according to a study by the A. C. Nielsen Co. of Chicago, program preferences not only followed nationalistic lines but also differed between the country's leading cities, with Tokyo viewers preferring "rather sophisticated fare, with a heavy emphasis on news [and] serious drama," while Osaka audiences were inclined more toward "entertainment, comedy and participation programs."

In some areas, increase in local production was less a matter of preference than of necessity; Latin American broadcasters in particular said they were turning more to local production—and to other countries—because U.S. television's emphasis on theatrical motion pictures and special programming had reduced the supply of TV series that Latin Americans prefer to movies and specials.

U.S. programs remained best-sellers in other nations around the world, but the foreign market for such programming was, in the opinion of some producers, shrinking. As the TV systems of other nations grew and became more nationalistic, they used fewer imported programs. In addition, some countries, such as Canada, Japan and the United Kingdom had firm quotas on program imports. Even so, aided considerably by an easing of tensions between U.S. distributors and Australian broadcasters over program prices, foreign sales of U.S. programs in 1968 were expected by BROADCASTING to reach $80 million to $85 million, a new record. Among the best-selling U.S. programs in foreign markets, according to BROADCASTING, were Bonanza, a western; Bewitched, a fantasy comedy; Perry Mason, a detective series, and 20th Century, a public-affairs program. All four were being seen in 60 to 80 foreign countries. Other U.S. programs popular in overseas markets included Wide World of Sports, Voyage to the Bottom of the Sea, Lost in Space, Peyton Place, Man From U.N.C.L.E., Daktari, Flipper and a series of specials presented in the U.S. by the National Geographic Society.

For U.S. audiences, the three TV networks were spending close to $260 million for the production of regularly scheduled nighttime programs for the 1968-69 season. This estimate, by BROADCASTING, represented an increase of $20 million over 1967-68 production costs. The total did not include network commitments for the production of some 235 "specials" that would preempt the weekly series with presentations on subjects as diverse as "Man and the Uni-

YOU'LL SELL SPOT TV EVEN BETTER THIS SEASON

HERE'S WHY—

Successful television stations don't just sell time. They sell advertising opportunities . . . the kind clearly illustrated in the new ARB Television Market Reports for 1968-69.

■ Product Usage by Area of Dominant Influence will help you show advertisers of thirteen major product classes where opportunities exist in your market and on your station to direct their messages at heaviest use. You'll be able to say, "Here's how much of your type of product is used by television owning families in my market's Area of Dominant Influence." "Here's how that compares with 150 other television market ADI's." "Here are the time periods on my station which deliver the greatest percentage of use."

■ Nine columns of Target Audience Values will pinpoint those availabilities best suited to particular advertiser objectives . . . give you sales direction to those clients for which your audience offers the best advertising opportunities. The weighting of three viewer age groups into one meaningful estimate has been revised upward this year. Now, you'll be offering target audiences at lower cost per thousands . . . in a range more comparable to other demographics and more acceptable to time buyers with maximum limitations.

■ Consumer Units — an ARB innovation — is an estimate of housewife viewers PLUS all members of her family, whether or not these family members are viewing. You can show advertisers which time periods on your station reach not only more housewives, but more housewives with higher purchasing potential for family products. There are many more new-season features to complement the host of helpful ARB audience estimates with which you're already familiar . . . all designed to convert advertising opportunities into sales opportunities for you. If you haven't already discovered them, ask your ARB representative for a prototype "Yourtown Report". Or, use the coupon below.

verse," "How Life Begins," "Pogo," "A Midsummer Night's Dream," "Heidi" and the Olympic Games. Nor did the total include some 200 specials being planned by independent producers and group station owners, many of them as ambitious—and as costly—as some of the network specials.

The national concern over "violence," which developed after the assassinations of Dr. King and Senator Kennedy, had a deep effect on programing. Network and independent producers spent a hectic summer revising scripts and in many instances re-shooting scenes and re-scheduling entire programs already on film in an effort to reduce the number of killings, fights and other forms of violence depicted in the TV season that started in September. The effect on the next year's programing appeared likely to be even more profound. A survey by BROADCASTING in October found some 65 new programs under development for the 1969-70 season, virtually none of which relied on plot lines requiring the use of force to resolve conflicts. Only two of the 65, for instance, were Westerns, a form in which violence is almost inherent. Rather, BROADCASTING found, family-situation and comedy programs were coming back into dominance again, along with variety programs and other light entertainment. The growing public concern with racial and social problems also was reflected on television and radio as more and more programs were directed to the problems of black people, the ghettos, schools and the urban crisis generally.

1969 promises more CATV

Some 3.5 million homes already cable connected; income may reach $1 billion within next decade

Champagne corks have long since stopped popping for the CATV industry this year, but the clutter of empty bottles lying in Boston hotel rooms, early last summer bore silent witness to probably the most significant month in cable regulatory history.

Within three weeks last June most of the legal clouds that had been providing a damper on a burgeoning industry dissipated before the U.S. Supreme Court and the FCC. And the industry slowly began to pick up steam again—new money began flowing back into the cable marketplace, big city franchises received renewed interest, more cable companies went public to garner new cash for new projects and acquisitions, and cable technology and cable's promises for new services in the home began to be realized.

And the prospects for 1969 seem brighter than ever. According to Robert H. Beisswenger, president of major CATV manufacturer Jerrold Corp., "CATV stands at the threshold of an era of truly widespread growth." An estimated $300 million in subscription revenues are forecast for 1969 with an anticipated jump in income during the next decade of $1 billion.

What delegates to the June National Cable Television Association convention in Boston heard about the state of their industry delineates the remarkable growth of a 20-year-old industry that had its origins in a hilltop antenna service providing one, two, or three signals at most to subscribers willing to pay up to $150 initially and $10 to $15 a month for the privilege of receiving clear television signals.

The cost of cable subscription has decreased in the intervening years with the onset of new technology. More channels with more programing; 12 to 20 channels are now available in many communities, and subscribers have crawled on the CATV bandwagon in ever increasing numbers—fully 6.4% of the nation's TV homes (56,374,100) are said to be hooked up to the cable.

The prospects of continued CATV growth were considered dim early in 1968, principally because of a number of important pending cases that would influence the direction cable might take. In large part the real CATV story of 1968 is how it came of age and how it lost its status as a "regulatory stepchild of the FCC." Because of the two U.S. Supreme Court decisions affecting commission jurisdiction over CATV and CATV copyright liability, and the commission's decision affecting what role the telephone company will play in that industry, CATV appears headed for accelerated growth in 1969.

The first major court test before the high court stemmed from an FCC order, prompted by a petition of local television stations, restricting the expansion of three CATV systems in the San Diego area pending the outcome of an FCC hearing on the importation of Los Angeles television signals. The gut issue of the case was whether the FCC had the authority to regulate CATV systems.

That authority, which the commission had assumed in 1966 when it promulgated its Second Report and Order, was brought into question in a lower appellate court order. The commission took the matter to the Supreme Court and won its point. The high court affirmed the legality of the commission's stay order as well as its general jurisdiction in the CATV field.

In an opinion written for the court by Justice John M. Harlan (there were no dissents) it was stated that the Communications Act cannot be construed restrictively: "Nothing in the language . . . or in the act's history or purposes, limits the commission's authority to those activities and forms of communication that are specifically described by the act's other provisions . . ."

What powers of federal control that opinion imposed on other forms of communication has not yet been determined. But according to some observers the decision has opened the door to regulation of existing increments of the communications system that have so far escaped such control, such as the broadcasting networks.

CATV industry spokesmen put on a brave front at the news. It was variously felt that the decision was less extensive than some legislation affecting cable that had been introduced and that the industry could "live with it." Private opinion was that the decision was inevitable.

What proved to be anything but inevitable was the second high court opinion a week later that—of all things—stated CATV systems do not incur liability when they pick up and retransmit copyrighted programming. At that CATV industry sources didn't try to hide their ebullience regarding the future of their industry, and thus the sound of popping champagne corks was heard at NCTA convention headquarters in Boston.

The case on which the court acted involved the copyright-infringement suit that United Artists brought against Fortnightly Corp. as a result of the pickup and retransmission of UA-controlled programs by systems Fortnightly then owned in Fairmont and Clarksburg, both West Virginia. The court held that the copyright act does not give a copyright holder control over all uses of his material—it merely lists certain rights that are made exclusive to the holder. Anyone using the work within the scope of those rights infringes those rights, the court said.

The court's key finding was that CATV systems—in the program-distribution process—were more akin to viewers than to broadcasters. "One [the broadcaster] is treated as active performer; the other [the viewer], as passive beneficiary. When CATV is considered in this framework," the court said, "we conclude that it falls on the viewer's side of the line. Essentially, a CATV system no more than enhances the viewer's capacity to receive the broadcaster's signals. . . ."

Although the decision was generally conceded to be a resounding victory for the CATV industry, there were those communications attorneys who felt that the opinion was limited to the kind of system involved in the case—nonmicrowave-fed operations that do not originate programming. After the decision CBS promptly announced it would pursue its four-year-old suit against Teleprompter Corp. which would test the copyright liability of those several Teleprompter systems in New York and Pennsylvania that use microwave to relay signals and originate programming.

What the high court decision signified to the FCC, particularly in view of the earlier opinion on commission jurisdiction over CATV, was that the agency was going to have to do more, rather than less, towards cable regulation.

It was generally acknowledged that the commission had counted on the court to lighten its regulatory burden. It was felt that, if CATV systems were held liable for copyright payments, the systems would be forced to compete on more equal terms with stations and that, as a result, the commission's need to afford broadcasters economic protection against cable competition would be reduced. In addition some sources indicated that stations' rights to exclusive use of copyrighted material would be protected to a greater degree than that provided by the commission's nonduplication rules.

But the commission now was faced with increased regulatory responsibility. And it was nearly six months after that decision before the agency—beset by financial burdens, taxed manpower, backlogs of petitions for hearing and cumbersome proceedings under old cable rules—moved toward a definitive approach to CATV regulation. How its proposed new rules are effected in coming months raises the largest question for the CATV industry.

There were other top-level CATV sources which indicated that although the court's decision appears to provide blanket exemption for the industry, CATV leaders would still have to sit down at the bargaining table to thrash out with the copyright interests some form of compromise on the issue. Copyright payments on local originations would be "inevitable," it was felt, and better the private parties seek some resolution than Congress which is still faced with basic revision of copyright law. Accordingly, the NCTA leadership cautioned its membership in Boston to expect continued long, hard bargaining sessions over the matter.

During the NCTA convention delegates had an opportunity to mull over two significant FCC decisions rendered that week affecting the industry. One, providing good news, unequivocally put the regulatory arm on telephone companies engaged in building channel facilities to serve CATV systems. The other, providing more distressing implications, held that UHF stations need not provide positive proof of potential damage in order to obtain commission protection from CATV systems.

What the cable industry saw in the latter decision, which affected those San Diego CATV systems involved in the case ruled upon by the Supreme Court, was an ominous threat against sale of time on cable. The commission said that systems that originate advertising material would not be permitted to carry any television station broadcast signal.

The ban on commercials, the commission said, was to protect UHF's against the "adverse effect of CATV competition for available advertisers." It added that "a test of the viability and effect of such CATV origination (i.e., without commercials) is most desirable and, based on the results of the test, we would be in a position to formulate the most appropriate policy on recommendations to the Congress."

In that case the commission had also opened the door to program origination by the CATV systems, saying that programming may be originated without restriction, subject only to the rules that it may adopt. But it was apparent that the commission had applied the commercial ban on the particular merits of the San Diego case, because within two months it voted not to bar a Greensboro, N.C., system from accepting paid advertising.

In the telephone company decision the commission held that Section 214 of the Communications Act, which requires common carriers to seek its permission before building or extending lines of service, applied to telephone companies' leaseback arrangements with CATV systems. Companies that had provided facilities without permission were told they were in violation of the law and commission rules. And the commission issued cease and desist orders to bring the companies into compliance.

The response from the CATV industry was immediate and joyful. The order, which filled what CATV spokesmen called a regulatory void, meant that CATV systems with complaints against telephone-company activities in CATV had, at last, a government forum in which to air them.

More significantly that decision was seen as imposing reins on telephone company activities in cable, particularly when the companies provided facilities to serve affiliated or subsidiary entities—as General and United do—in the CATV field.

At the heart of the matter is the developing competition between cable operators and telephone companies with the awareness among the cable operators and telephone companies that the cable industry eventually can do more than relay television signals into the home. Telephone companies have viewed with alarm the prospect of a second line of communications extending into the home, particularly when that line may serve in the not-too-distant future as an exotic home-communications center.

Despite these apparent regulatory pluses CATV still faces, particularly in 1969, tougher regulations proposed by the commission in December 1968, a Congress that has been struggling with copyright revision for 13 years and a report considered favorable to the cable industry issued by the President's Task Force on Communications Policy, which may or may not get the ear of the new President.

The commission last August began what was termed a weighty appraisal of the cable industry by hearing staff presentations from so-called "hard" and "soft" liners on cable regulation. At issue was whether the industry was going to move into the "big time" along with commercial broadcasters or subsist as a service business supplementary to broadcasting. In December the commission proposed a major revamping of its top-100 TV market rule that is certain to find little favor with CATV interests in hearings before the commission in January 1969.

The rule, a product of the 1966 Second Report and Order, has served to saddle the commission's CATV task force in the succeeding two years with a virtually insurmountable workload of floods of requests by cable operators for waivers of that rule. It provides that no cable company in the top-100 markets may import a TV signal from a station whose grade B contour does not cover the community being served by the cable system.

It is felt by many CATV observers that if the industry is to "really get moving" and realize its potential, then the rule must be modified or scrapped. Fully 90% of the population and subsequent subscriber revenues, it's estimated, reside in those top-100 markets.

But the commission specifically adopted the rule to protect UHF stations emerging in those markets from CATV competition. And this nurturing of UHF, which has its genesis in the failure of the service in the 1950's and the FCC-backed all-channel receiver legislation, has served to compound the complex problems of finding a place for cable in the regulatory scheme. According to some knowledgeable observers outside the broadcasting industry UHF is at best only a partial solution to the problems of program diversity and community self-expression—problems, it is felt, that CATV is better equipped to resolve.

With the new rules now under consideration cable systems within 35 miles of a major city in any of the top-100 markets would be required to obtain permission of distant stations whose signals they want to import. In effect, the commission would require those systems to deal with copyright owners, and its

Economics of a CATV system

(Projections of profit realization over three-year period for a hypothetical CATV system were made by research firm Drexel Harriman Ripley to indicate to the investment community the "financial attractiveness of CATV operation." The figures below are projected for a 12-channel system with service potential of 10,000 TV homes [about 30,000 to 40,000 viewers] along 100 miles of cable outlay.)

FIRST YEAR

100 miles of cable at $4,000/mi.	$400,000
Head end equipment	75,000
Legal fees, promotional and other costs	85,000
Total operating costs	$560,000

SECOND YEAR

Revenues (3,500 subscribers at $63 each)*	$220,000
Operating Costs	124,000
Operating Profit	$ 96,000
Depreciation and Amortization (10 yr. write off-straight line)	56,000
Interest (on $400,000 at 7-1/2%)	30,000
Pretax Income	$ 10,000
Taxes (obviated by tax loss carryforwards)
Net Income	$ 10,000
Cash Flow (normal accounting basis)	$ 66,000

*Includes hookup fee and multi-outlet charges.

Depreciation is accelerated for tax purposes.

THIRD YEAR

Revenues (5,500 subscribers at $63.50)	$350,000
Operating Costs	160,000
Operating Profit	$190,000
Depreciation and Amortization*	60,000
Interest	23,000
Pretax Income	$107,000
Taxes (obviated by tax loss carryforwards)
Net Income	$107,000
Cash Flow (normal accounting basis)	$167,000

*Increased by additions to plant

Reduced by payments on principal.

(According to Drexel Harriman Ripley the third year projected cash flow of $167,000 indicates that at that rate of growth the system cost will be recouped in less than four years time. "Cable systems can reasonably be expected to become profitable in the third year of operation," the firm concluded.)

action would put the systems, it said, on the same basis as television stations that have to bargain in the market place for their programming. The new rule would eliminate the "unfair competition" that exists, the commission said.

In addition the commission has proposed that, for the first time, stations below the top 100 would be protected by limiting the signals that CATV's may import. Systems within 35 miles of a station would be required to carry as many distant signals as necessary to provide three full network services, and the programs of one independent and any educational stations. Additional signals could be carried only if retransmission consent of the originating stations is obtained.

The commission would also require program origination (the question of originating commercials has been left open) as a means of furthering its policy of "achieving a multiplicity of local outlets." But it has not yet made up its mind whether to impose strictures such as the fairness doctrine, the equal-time law and rules relating to sponsorship identification on CATV's.

How the rules are to be effected and what changes may be incorporated in them shape up as the major battle for CATVers in 1969.

Congress continues to wrestle with copyright revision that would for the first time cover CATV liability. Attempts by the copyright office to pry loose a major revision bill from the Senate Copyright Subcommittee for passage during the 90th session last year failed. And the prospects for some measure of revision to emerge during the 91st session in 1969 appear dim.

Nevertheless Senator John L. McClellan (D-Ark), copyright subcommittee chairman, asked the various combatants last November to stake out their preliminary positions for negotiations, looking toward development of legislative language acceptable to all parties. Not surprisingly the positions taken by NCTA, the National Association of Broadcasters, Association of Maximum Service Telecasters, the various copyright owners and other participants showed them to be about as far apart as they had been throughout 1968.

The cable industry suggested it would agree to pay both for local and for distant signals, but would seek removal of "distant signal" controls proposed by the legislation. It recommended a compulsory license for relaying unaltered broadcast signals, involving a statutory flat fee paid to a single collection point, based on a percentage of gross, and a provision honoring blackouts of sports events, all coupled with no restrictions on origination or use of noncopyrighted material.

The broadcasters, copyright owners and film producers have variously recommended that certain modifications of the 1968 legislation be made that would, in effect, impose controls over the cable industry with particular emphasis on matters relating to adequately served areas and exclusivity of the broadcast product, controls which CATV has found unacceptable.

Regardless of the victory the cable industry sustained in the Supreme Court it continued to express a desire to meet with its copyright opponents across the bargaining table because of what it feared most: a potential freeze of cable expansion in the top-100 markets. Such a freeze, should it be imposed, would hurt the copyright proprietors as well, it was argued. And unless both sides thrashed out their differences in the marketplace, "the FCC or Congress [would be] obliged to do it for us," one cable negotiator said.

Ad hoc broadcast and CATV groups met throughout 1968 in an effort to reach some sort of compromise, but whether an agreement was reached or how close the parties have come to a settlement was never publicly revealed. On the basis of the letters to Senator McClellan last November the parties seemed as far apart as ever.

The cable industry also found much to cheer about, and perhaps some things to worry about, in a report submitted by the President's Task Force on Communications Policy in December. The report envisaged no changes in the present broadcasting structure, but it did look to cable installations to provide a diversity of services that it said broadcasting cannot supply.

What found favor most with the task force was CATV's ability to provide an abundance of channels at low per-channel cost which could be used more successfully than either UHF or pay TV as a vehicle for local community expression.

But the report would exact a pound of flesh for such local service by requiring, among other things, that copyright liability be imposed on all CATV except for the carriage of purely local TV signals and full liability for the use of distant signals. The task force implied that the FCC should loosen some restrictions on CATV to permit cable TV greater growth, but that it should also look into cross-ownership of CATV and broadcasting in the same market and consolidated multi-media ownership involving CATV on a national scale.

The fate of the report is contingent upon the desires of President-elect Nixon to follow-up or carry forward in 1969 the work of the commission.

These current legislative and regulatory uncertainties, however, have not served to cool CATV as a "hot" item in the marketplace. As one knowledgeable industry source correctly speculated last summer once the ground rules were established by the courts, more investors, who to that point had been leary about getting into the cable marketplace for want of some specific rules, would soon be putting money into the media.

One such example is an independent study prepared by Drexel Harriman Ripley Inc., a Philadelphia-based institutional research firm, after the two high court and two FCC decisions last summer, and released in November, that waxed enthusiastically about the prospects for future investment in the cable industry. Terming the industry "a powerful new force in communications" the firm said CATV challenged present institutions by effecting in time a subordinate communications for the telephone in the home, affecting broadcasting and network programming, changing politics, and, "if advertising is permitted," changing retailing.

"The key to the growth rate of cable communications is the legislative and regulatory climate," the firm said. "Regardless of the climate, CATV, we believe, is an inexorable force. It is a service that the public wants, needs, and in time demands." The prospects of CATV as a viable investment "should not be overlooked," it said.

What the firm found principally attractive about CATV was the ability of an average system to generate a profit in a relatively short period of time. Cable systems, it claimed, can reasonably be expected to become profitable in the third year of operation. And should they be sold, based on 55% of market saturation, they would probably realize each a value of about $1.8 million or about three times their costs, and many times the equity investment.

This valuation, the firm claimed, reflects in part "the great stability of CATV subscriber revenues." With the trend toward more second and third set households, more programming to fill more channels, the apparent need for converters, and the assorted home-communications center uses of cable that have been predicted, the firm maintained that CATV systems "will be worth much more than is reflected by the current yardsticks of system value."

The research firm took note of what proved to be a keynote at the NCTA convention last summer: local program origination or "cablecasting."

The potential of local-affairs origination "are limited only by budgets and the enterprise and imagination of the system management," the firm said, as it ticked off a host of viewable items, such as local athletic events, county fairs, political debates and rallies, fund raising drives, church programs, graduation ceremonies, school board meetings, city council sessions, and public hearings.

Greater availability of low-cost channels on cable might encourage a "proliferation of artistic talent and an increase in the number of syndicating organizations," the firm claimed. A CATV network might evolve based on the exchange of tapes and films between cable operators or the interconnection of CATV systems, and "conceivably, the role of the network broadcaster as we know it today, may be altered," the firm contended.

Cablecasting could also change the political structure of the country, it was claimed, by providing low-cost exposure for local candidates who ordinarily might not be able to afford the high cost of commercial television advertising. In practice during the 1968 political campaign CATV was used on a nationwide basis by the three major candidates for the Presidency. The project was initiated by NCTA which urged the candidates to use the free services of cable television. NCTA reported, at the end of the campaign, that 415 systems in 45 states, representing 4.5 million viewers, had carried campaign material for Richard Nixon and that 350 systems in 44 states, representing 3.5 million viewers, had carried Hubert Humphrey tapes or films. George Wallace had supplied material to a smaller number of systems.

Of a more futuristic nature the firm could foresee the use of CATV as a fire or burglary alarm system for the home, as a tool for market research, as a shopping or banking service from the home, a copying device wherein a facsimile or "hard copy" of any document could be displayed on the home TV screen, a home newspaper and a mail reception device.

But some of those so-called future uses were much in evidence during 1968. And CATV operators were urged in Boston to get on the bandwagon.

In Olean, N.Y., a closed-circuit TV surveillance system, under the control of the city's police department, was set up by the local CATV to monitor Olean's main business district 24 hours a day. In California a marketing firm tested a computerized device that reportedly provided 100% read-out as to what and when cable subscribers are viewing.

Subscribers to the Valley Vision Cable Television in Placerville, Calif., received via CATV a televised local daily newspaper. And in Colorado Springs, a cable system was being installed with two-way communication facilities in preparation for the day when that CATV will offer extra services for computers, facsimile newspapers and data retrieval.

CATV technology in 1968 also saw the emergence of the amplitude modulated link (AML), promoted by Teleprompter and the Hughes Aircraft Corp. The FCC sanctioned a commercial test of this method of transmission in New York City, which substitutes a microwave radio beam for the cable, at a super-high frequency of 18 gc. Teleprompter had also asked the FCC for permission to try AML in several Oregon communities.

Although its proponents had hoped for a nationwide allocation of those frequencies for short-haul microwave use, it was suggested that AML, envisaged as a low-cost complement to the cable in high density areas, would have at least a five-year lease on life, and it was noted "the way technology is blooming in this industry, five years becomes virtually a lifetime."

Cable television franchises in major market cities continued to be hotly contested in 1968. Jacksonville, Fla., was but one scene where major multiple-CATV-owners Teleprompter and Continental CATV of Florida Inc., a subsidiary of Vikoa, vied for a 20-year permit with bidding among the five applicants reaching as high as $1.1 million payment to the city and a revenue kickback of 10%.

Stock market activity indicated renewed interest in CATV as several major cable companies felt the urge to go public in 1958. American TV & Communications, Denver; TV Communications Corp.; Cox Cable Communications Inc.; Cypress Communications Corp., and Columbia Cable Systems Inc. all made public offerings. And H&B American became the largest cable corporation in 1968 with its acquisition of number three ranked Jack Kent Cooke Inc., boosting its total subscribers to over 200,000.

THE RADIO AND TELEVISION AUDIENCES

Radio and television were in more U. S. homes than ever before as 1968 approached.

■ Television.—A total of 57.5 million homes, or 96.9% of all U. S. homes (excluding Alaska and Hawaii), were TV-equipped as of September 1968, according to the A. C. Nielsen Co. The American Research Bureau estimated the total would be 57,522,300 homes (excluding Alaska) as of August 1969.

■ Color TV.—Homes equipped with color TV sets totaled 17,450,000 as of Oct. 1, 1968, a gain of 41% in 12 months, according to estimates by NBC.

■ Radio.—The Radio Advertising Bureau estimated that 58.5 million U. S. homes, or about 98.6%, were radio-equipped in 1968.

■ Radio Sets.—The number of working-order radio sets in the U. S. would be 300 million as of Jan. 1, 1969, according to preliminary industry estimates. The estimates anticipated this distribution: 216 million in homes, 74 million in automobiles, 10 million in public places. The new total would represent a gain of 33 million, or 12%, over the 267 million estimated for Jan. 1, 1968.

■ Viewing and Listening.—The extent to which radio and television sets were used is indicated in numerous ways in the tables that follow. The television figures were furnished by the Nielsen company and its Nielsen Television Index (NTI). The radio data came from RAB, NBC and other sources as noted.

WHO WATCHES WHEN?—The composition of the television audience during the average minute — morning, afternoon and evening — is reflected in the above table.

Figures are for January 1967. The number of homes using TV is a percentage of all U. S. TV homes. Source: NTI National Audience Composition report.

CUMULATIVE AUDIENCES: RADIO AND TV

Cumulative reach of radio is compared with that of television in the following figures from NBC Radio's 1965 Cumulative Radio Audience Method (CRAM) study, made public in 1966. Although the study was conducted primarily to test new research methodology, NBC said it considered these estimates "approximate" but "conservative" benchmarks.

Number (and %) of Different U.S. Adults Reached (18 Years of Age and Over)

	In One Day	In Seven Days
Radio	92,100,000 (75.1%)	111,000,000 (90.5%)
Television *	80,900,000 (65.9%)	106,500,000 (86.8%)

* TV percentages based on a special Nielsen Television Index tabulation covering in-home viewing only, adjusted to reflect (1) all U. S. individuals 18 years of age and over from both TV and non-TV households, and (2) April TV set usage patterns. NBC's CRAM report said this radio-TV comparison "does not imply that television and radio are equal in impact or effectiveness" but "does suggest that radio's broad reach makes the medium an ideal choice for backing up television advertising."

MINUTES OF TV VIEWING AND RADIO LISTENING BY TV VIEWERS

Amount of time that adult viewers (over 18 years of age) spend daily with the broadcast media, by day part and for the day as a whole, is shown in the following tables. In each case the viewers are classified in five groups according to how much time they spend with TV, from the 20% who watch most (at top) in descending order to the 20% who watch least (bottom). TV dominates the 6 p.m. to midnight period, but radio has an edge in all other day parts, with the biggest advantage among lighter viewing groups. Data, the most recent available in this form, was prepared for Radio Advertising Bureau by R. H. Bruskin Associates, independent research firm, based on nationwide interviewing conducted in July 1964.

VIEWING PER HOME PER DAY. The time the average TV home spends watching television each day is depicted in the table above, which not only shows the daily average over the full week but also breaks down the daily average by day part and days of the week. Data is NTI January, 1968.

HOUR-BY-HOUR variations in television and radio audience sizes are shown in these tables. The TV figures, from Nielsen's NTI data for March-April 1968, show the television audience in terms of percentage of homes tuned in per average minute of each hour, Monday through Sunday. The radio figures, compiled for RAB by Sindlinger & Co. in a 1964 study, represent the percentage of all adults who listen to radio, also hour by hour.

BUILDING 15-5, CAMDEN, NEW JERSEY

The Most Trusted Name in Electronics

Just Mention Our Name In

The name is NBC International. In countries from Aden to Zambia (and 88 other regions) it stands for the foremost organization in global television.

Mention NBC International, and you're talking about a program service that distributes the world's leading entertainment series and documentary specials to more than 300 stations. Adventure and comedy favorites like "Bonanza," "I Spy," "Get Smart!" and "T.H.E. Cat." Such highly-acclaimed documentary features as "The Age of Kennedy," "Michelangelo: The Last Giant" and "The Reformation."

You're also talking about management services that were instrumental in the setting up of new TV installations in places like Vietnam, Argentina, Saudi Arabia, Nigeria and Australia — providing technical and managerial help until local staffs were ready to take over.

Mention NBC International, and you've named the organization leading the world into color television. From its association with the NBC Television Network—the world's first full-color network—NBC International is in the best position by far to satisfy the mushrooming world demand for color programming. An outstanding program service, an unequalled technical service... all this and color, too. Clearly, when you talk global television, the first name to mention is NBC International.

PLACE: CALIFORNIA'S SOUTHERN SAN JOAQUIN VALLEY TIME: YESTERDAY • TODAY • TOMORROW

* There's more to Dominance than a powerful signal (1,760,000 watts from 7600' Mount Breckenridge) and fantastic program acceptance (for information consult your rating service). For example, KERO-TV has served the rich and growing Southern San Joaquin Valley for 15 years. It is considered the Valley's foremost news source—opinion maker. It has experienced management, the largest mobile fleet, the most popular local broadcast personalities, etc. In short, KERO-TV is local television at its best, respected and enjoyed by the vast community it influences. And that makes it AN EFFECTIVE WAY FOR YOU TO ADVERTISE . . .

Dial (714) 262-2421 and ask about KOGO's new Playroom.

We can play any game you want, inside or out, with our new Production Center.

KOGO's Broadcast City is one of the nation's finest facilities and the expansion of our production capability provides national and regional clients and agencies, flexibility and services not heretofore available in San Diego.

The Production Center has two sound stages, each completely enclosed with cycloramas, central lighting flexibility including Century lighting boards, Chroma-key, and other special effects. outdoor stages and a 20' turntable. Other equipment includes five color and three monochrome cameras, one 16 to 1 and five 10 to 1 varitol lenses.

For location assignments, KOGO provides San Diego's first fully equipped color TV remote unit. The air-conditioned mobile unit is equipped with full special effects capability, slide projector, audio cartridge playback machines, Ampex 1200A Video Tape recorder, and a portable generator. As many as three RCA TK43 color cameras can be utilized.

If you're interested in commercials, programs, industrial presentations, training films or sporting events, KOGO's Production Center can solve your problem faster and more economically.

Call us and ask for the Manager of the Production Center. Or write: Manager, KOGO PRODUCTION CENTER Box 628 San Diego, Calif. 92112

You'll be glad you did.

One of the nation's newest and most dynamic conglomerates has been formed in Dixie! Gray Communications combines the vast facilities of three television stations that cover the big, rich Southern markets of Albany, Georgia . . . Panama City, Florida . . . Monroe, Louisiana . . . and El Dorado, Arkansas . . . with the ever-expanding Gray Communications Cablevision Company, and one of the South's best known newspapers, The Albany Herald.

this is Gray Communications

Although Gray Communications is new, the scope of its conception and the reach of its facilities already combine to create a communications system that serves areas totaling thousands of square miles.

If you have something to sell down South in the dynamic Gray markets . . . sell it better. Contact your representative and Gray Communications with confidence!

This is Indianapolis...

One of America's "most frequently used" test markets

And why not? Indianapolis meets every requirement as the ideal test market.

It is centrally located. Its economy is singularly diversified and balanced. Its population, ethnically, is closely representative of the nation's.

And, of particular significance to advertisers, it offers an uncommonly broad choice of media, with no infiltration by media from surrounding areas.

Also of particular significance to advertisers, our WFBM Stations cover this market best. In fact, we cover the entire Mid-Indiana market best, with, among other things, the largest basic NBC service.

All of which leads to a suggestion: If you'd like your share of the three billion dollars spent annually in this rich market . . . put us to the test!

WE SERVE THREE MARKETS IN ONE...

AND HAVE THE NUMBERS TO PROVE IT!

1. POPULATION:

FLINT — SAGINAW — BAY CITY is among the nation's fastest growing markets: 309,600 TV homes in WNEM-TV's area of dominant influence. 454,800 TV homes in TV-5's TOTAL MARKET.

2. INCOME-RETAIL SALES:

According to Sales Management, consumer spendable income in WNEM-TV's coverage area totals $2,990,115.00. Annual retail sales total $1,821,417.00.

3. COVERAGE:

WNEM-TV reaches more people who make and spend more money than all three market newspapers combined.

4. VIEWING:

ARB (Feb-Mar 1968) and NSI (June 1968) show WNEM-TV delivering more homes than competitive stations in early morning, mid-morning, early afternoon, late afternoon and late evening.

5. SERVICE:

WNEM-TV serves this important Michigan market with studios in both Flint and Saginaw-Bay City.

DISTINCTIVELY DETROIT

AMBASSADOR BRIDGE. Symbolic of international goodwill, the flags of the United States and Canada stand side by side midway across the mighty span that links Detroit and Windsor, Ontario. Opened in 1929, the Ambassador Bridge accommodates more than 7 million people and 3¼ million vehicles annually.

Just as Detroiters regard this border landmark as distinctive of Detroit, so they have regarded The WWJ Stations as distinctively Detroit for 48 years. Why? Because of programming that reflects the city's own interest in local news, sports, entertainment, public affairs, and community service. And, because of WWJ's home-ownership by The Detroit News. When you ask a Detroiters which radio and TV stations are distinctively Detroit, he'll instinctively tell you "WWJ."

ONLY KSTP-TV DELIVERS

90 minutes of early evening information programming in the Twin Cities

Anchored by veteran newsman Bob Ryan, the KSTP NEWS 5 O'CLOCK REPORT appears live and in color, Monday through Friday. Concentrating on in-depth coverage of special interest areas such as medicine, science, arts, law and more, each subject is covered by a specialist in that field such as Brooks Henderson on business news and Jane Johnston on women's activities.

The Huntley-Brinkley Report follows immediately with national and international events leading into the KSTP NEWS 6 O'CLOCK REPORT of latest developments in News, Weather and Sports with the experienced crew of Ryan, Johnny Morris and Al Tighe.

The result of this extended, flexible format is a new concept in significant television communication—another example of KSTP-TV's leadership in the news field over the last 20 years.

Growth picture in Charlotte, the action city

Biggest story of the past and current year is the quality of Charlotte's industrial expansion. It continues to be one of explosive growth in the more sophisticated fields of manufacturing and research.

Here is some of the action. Westinghouse's new $65-million plant for production of nuclear turbines. General Time's new facility for manufacture of delicate precision parts (750 highly skilled employees). General Tire's new $18-million plant with 22 acres under one roof. Armstrong's new $15-million plant on a 40-acre site. Corporate names shown and many others are participating in the multimillion-dollar picture of this city's expanding economy.

There is big business for you in the Charlotte market. And it is getting bigger. Bigger than most in the South. Biggest in the Carolinas. Let us tell you how WSOC-TV can do the big job for you here.

They deserve to know
truth!

In today's fast-paced world . . . where the gap between continents and their ideologies is shrunken by global communications . . . the need for truth emerges greater than ever. People want to know! And, in Houston, KPRC News provides them the facts with the first word in news all the time. Consistently honored by its peers for excellence in broadcast journalism, KPRC and KPRC-TV have won more major news awards than all other Houston stations combined. Truthfully . . . Houston's top news station!

Our Finch Won't Eat Crow...

Finch is Houston's sly old bird. He programs KTRK-TV. And he's got plenty to crow about. Like our Late News which delivers 30% more homes than a year ago.

In the daytime, his "Dialing For Dollars" doubled the rating and share in the time period and increased Homes and Women more than 150%.

Now he's scheduled "Run For Your Life" in the afternoon at 4:00 PM. It inherits an 11 rating and a 36 share in the time period. Finch says it'll fly.

Check our movies. They fly too. Last spring our Friday Late Movie soared our rating in the time period 500% and our women 600%. That's not hard to swallow.

Howard. That's our Finch. And he doesn't lay eggs. If your nest needs feathering, call your Blair man.

WHEELING STEUBENVILLE

CENTRAL SEVEN

Elegant design and 20,000 bricks are "out front" inviting passersby into the brand new WTRF-TV and WTRF-FM communication center. This ultra-modern glass and brick structure houses 24,000 square feet of studios, production facilities and the newest color TV and FM stereo equipment atop an underground parking garage. Sixty-one full time and talented employees are "about your business" at new CENTRAL SEVEN (and enthusiastically welcome the opportunity to handle more). Drop in to see CENTRAL SEVEN and help WTRF-TV celebrate its fifteenth anniversary of serving the Wheeling-Steubenville Market from the heart of downtown Wheeling, hub of the rich and busy industrial upper Ohio River Valley.

TV Allocations, State, City

Note: UHF and VHF TV allocations have been made by the FCC to the following cities. A plus or minus after a channel indicates that a station occupying the channel must operate with its carrier frequencies offset 10 kilocycles above or below, respectively, the normal carrier frequencies. The offset indicators are not shown for UHF assignments, which were the subject of a rulemaking adopted June 4, 1965. The designators were to be added in a later order, but had not been published by time the Yearbook went to press. Meanwhile, the appropriate designators are shown on construction permits and licenses issued for UHF stations.

Asterisks (*) indicate channels reserved for noncommercial use. (As of Oct. 1, 1968)

INTERNATIONAL

The country-by-country information presented below is compiled from various authoritative sources, both official and unofficial. Every effort was made to provide information as up-to-date as possible, but information derived from official government reports, in particular, sometimes tends to be delayed. For the most part, however, the information below is based on reports of the situation as it existed in the first half of 1968.

Aden

One TV station, government-controlled and commercial, serves 15,000 TV sets. South Arabian Television Service, Box 1264, Aden.

Argentina

About 32 TV stations are operating. Government, which operates one of four stations in Buenos Aires, licenses channels on one-to-a-customer basis and does not permit simultaneous networking, although stations outside Buenos Aires may buy and present recordings of programs after their Buenos Aires presentation.

Australia

Broadcasting is under dual system, with government operating noncommercial stations and other entities commercial. Commercial radio stations reported at about 110, noncommercial radio at 69. In TV, 43 were operating commercially, while government (Australian Broadcasting Commission) had 39 noncommercial stations in operation. Receiver licenses, required by government, as of June 1968 numbered 487-248 for radio, 426,780 for TV and 2,519,392, for radio-TV combinations. Governing body is Australian Broadcasting Control Board (373 Elizabeth St., Melbourne, C.I. Victoria), headed by Miles Wright, chairman.

TV service includes one government, noncommercial station and one to three commercial stations in 33 areas. Commercial stations follow general U. S. format, selling up to six minutes each hour plus station-break time. Spot messages range from I.D. to one-minute; and sponsored programs range from five-minute news to 15, 30 and 60 minute shows. Co-sponsorship permitted in series or as half-sponsorship with spots available.

Four major TV networks: Australian Television Network, National Television Network, Independent Television System and noncommercial Australian Broadcasting Commission.

CONTINENTAL'S TYPE 317C

Within 18 months following its introduction, Continental had sold 13 Type 317C transmitters. Here's why:

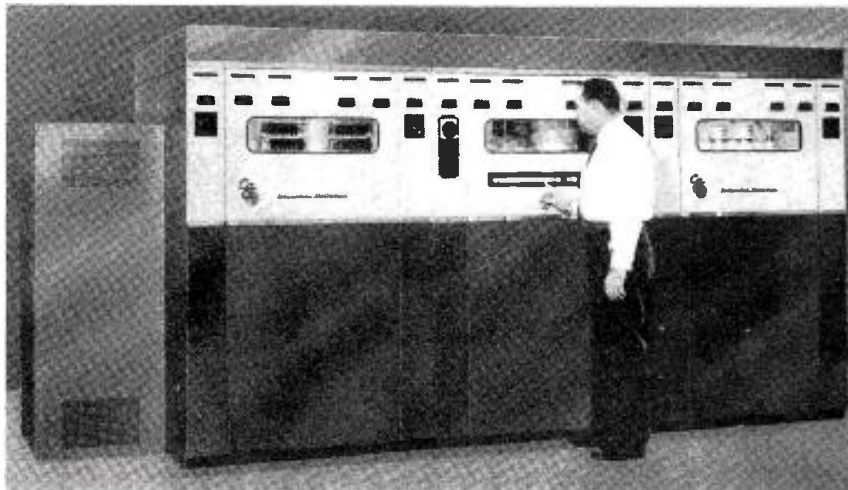

OVERALL EFFICIENCY:
62% or better

PLATE EFFICIENCY:
80% or better

POWER CONSUMPTION:
82 kw @ 0 modulation
92 kw @ 30% modulation
120 kw @ 100% modulation

SELF-CONTAINED: compact design assures minimum installation cost. The 317C uses only 62 sq. ft. of total floor space. Blower is contained within transmitter cabinet. One neat package for the world's most efficient 50 kw AM broadcast transmitter.

THE WORLD'S MOST EFFICIENT 50KW AM BROADCAST TRANSMITTER!

OTHER CONTINENTAL BROADCAST TRANSMITTERS range in power from 5,000 watts to 1,000,000 watts.

CONTINENTAL'S PROLOG - AUTOMATIC PROGRAMMING & LOGGING AS EASY AS TYPING UP YOUR STATION LOG!

Prolog uses your station log to provide any degree or combination of unattended, automatic or manual-live operation desired. Your log can be prepared on any standard electric typewriter, or you can use any of the auto-typing, IBM punch-card and similar equipment in use today. PROLOG uses your established programming format; nothing changes unless you want to change it. That's PROLOG: simple and flexible!

Nothing's beyond your reach on Mutual Radio (Especially the Mutual Tween-agers!

They're between 18 and 49—the heaviest spenders!)

Teen-agers are a great audience—if you sell lollipops. Middle-agers are great, too ...for rocking-chair manufacturers.

But Mutual concentrates on the Tween-agers. They're between 18 and 49, with young, large and growing-larger families. With growing-larger needs. And growing-larger incomes to spend. The Tween-agers are your bread-and-butter audience. And Mutual gives you a larger percentage of Tween-agers in its vast audience than any other network.* If you want to reach listeners at the prime age for spending, reach the Mutual Tween-agers!

DON'T get caught short without the most popular records.
DON'T worry as to whether your shipments will come in on time.
DON'T be afraid of being overlooked or unnoticed by the big record companies.
DON'T fret about having to call a multitude of companies in order to get complete best-seller representation.
DON'T waste time separating the "hot" material from the also-rans.
DO CONSIDER YOUR AUDIENCE and CONSIDER THE "SOURCE" RECORD SOURCE INTERNATIONAL the unique sampling service, provides you with record shipments from a central source. It enables you to make a choice of repertoire from single records to Easy Listening, Pop Country, Jazz, Broadway Shows and other album material.
It includes material chosen by the famous Billboard Music Review Staff . . .
potent chart material, from all labels and gets you the merchandise when your audience wants to hear it!
It puts you, no matter what your size, right out in front with programming material that builds audiences and keeps them.
DON'T take chances on not having the right material at the right time.

Beeline® Country...awfully big in Family Income

... and BEELINE RADIO is a proven way to reach this important market.

Over 900,000 households live in the 43 counties covered by Beeline radio. Their effective buying income per household is over $8,600 which adds up to $7.8 billion for the entire area. Talk to the family through Beeline Radio. You will also be reaching the farm family — a market whose combined farm income is greater than any one of 45 states — $2 billion. So speak through the four Beeline stations; nearly 3 million people will be listening. Beeline Radio holds the attention of California's Inland Valley and Western Nevada.
