Quick guide to sections

Information in this YEARBOOK is divided into homogeneous sections as described in the boxes at right. Here's how to locate a section rapidly:

Hold the YEARBOOK in your left hand. With your right hand bend the book back so that the black markings on the right edges of the pages appear. If you wish to find a page in the A section, for example, place your right thumb over the black bar to the right of the letter A at upper right on this page and rifle through all pages containing a similar black bar in the same position; at the end of the sequence of marking will appear the first page of the A section. The same procedure can be used to find the beginning of any other section, starting with your thumb on the black bar on this page to the right of the letter of the section you wish to locate.

Every Saturday, Walter Cronkite, our number one world watcher, acts as anchorman on "You Are There," a young people's version of the CBS News series which offers "eyewitness" reenactments of historic events.

The new "You Are There" represents a giant step in the direction of venturesome, thought-provoking entertainment that talks up to young people. In addition to anchorman Cronkite, CBS News assigns some of its top correspondents to "cover" such news stories as Paul Revere's ride, the Pony Express, the siege of the Alamo.

The addition of Walter Cronkite and "You Are There" to our Saturday morning schedule is just one of several major innovations with which we're enlarging the scope of children's programming this year.

There's "In the News," a series of miniature newsreels produced especially for children by CBS News.

"In the News" is designed to give young people the whys and wherefores of what's happening in the world. Everything from Mariner 9's trip to Mars to President Nixon's trip to Moscow. And to insure the largest possible audience for "In the News," eight different segments a week are mixed in with our highly popular Saturday morning lineup of entertainment shows. That way millions of kids start learning before they even have a chance to stop laughing.

Youngsters also learn from "The CBS Children's Film Festival." Winner of a George Foster Peabody Award and a Saturday Review Television Award, this Saturday showcase for outstanding children's films from all over the world is hosted by Kukla, Fran and Ollie.

Nor is Saturday the only day of the week that we regularly broadcast innovative educational programming. Long before "Sesame Street," kids were learning their abc's on CBS. Every weekday morning from "Captain Kangaroo." They're still doing it: The Captain is now in his 16th year on CBS. Inimitable as ever!

Programming for minors has always been of major importance to us. That's why we give it our best.

Prospects brighter for broadcasters

Outlook guardedly optimistic, despite the harassments and disappointments industry went through in 1971

To many broadcasters, the less said about the disappointments of 1971, the better. Rather, they prefer to look to concrete indications that 1972 is the year to recapture lost ground.

The optimism that prevailed at the beginning of 1971 was squelched by midyear when the toll of a sluggish economy, loss of cigarette advertising to radio-TV and a heavier Washington regulatory hand was felt on the business side of broadcasting. This was aside from the proliferation of challenges to licensees on the community level.

The expectation of a much improved 1972 is not just wishful thinking. Some of the more respected forecasters offer solid reasons for optimism. This group includes Dr. David M. Blank, economics and research vice president of the CBS Broadcast Group, and Richard P. Doherty, independent economic consultant.

As reported in BROADCASTING at year-end, Mr. Doherty felt that three basic factors will affect advertising volume, both in total and by individual media: "First, some $150 million to $175 million will be spent by political candidates for national, state and local offices with heavy allocations to TV and radio.

"Second, general business will be in a definite recovery stage. All lines of business—local and national—will possess larger sales revenue and, in consequence, will enlarge their advertising budgets. Third, the prevailing governmental price-controls program will definitely curb corporate profits and thereby minimize the expansion in advertising budgets. Because of the prevailing price-control pressure upon net profits and the resultant average corporate need to curb costs—of which advertising is the most determined and administratively controlled item—total advertising will be increased sporadically and moderately."

Dr. Blank, though expecting that the economy will be stronger in 1972, warns that if the government doesn't begin to dispense with its economic controls by spring or summer, "then we'll be in a new ball game and nobody knows where we'll go."

In the meantime, he feels that broadcasting has gone into 1972 with a very good mood and "with a lot of unhappiness behind us."

One sector of broadcasting that was not disappointing in 1971 was spot and network radio. In an appraisal of national advertising expenditures during 1971, Ted Bates & Co., New York, reported that after respective declines of 4% and 11% in 1970, spot radio and network radio climbed an estimated 7% and 9% in 1971.

The agency's study (BROADCASTING, Jan. 10) not unexpectedly reported that all national advertising expenditures slipped an estimated 1% last year. The down trend was even more pronounced in television with network 7% below 1970 and spot off about 8% from the preceding year.

Audience, one of the major selling points of television, continued to rise in 1971 with color sets for the first time estimated to be in more than half (50.1%) of U.S. TV households. At the same time (Oct. 1, 1971), total color-television homes passed the 31-million mark, a gain of 4.8 million since the preceding October.

In the area of programing last year, broadcast journalism continued to grow in stature with its prompt, in-depth reporting of the news. In some instances, this reporting brought repercussions from the highest echelons in Washington, such as congressional efforts to procure outtakes of CBS-TV's controversial Selling of the Pentagon.

Aside from this, television and radio won almost universal acclaim for its coverage of Apollo 14 and 15 moon missions and spot news breaks such as the September uprising at the Attica, N.Y., state prison.

The experts were unstinting in their praise of the extraordinary quality and "awesome" clarity of the color pictures transmitted back from the moon and viewed on home receivers in every continent.

Comedies, western and mysteries continued to be the staples of U.S. TV programing in 1971 with the perennial ratings front-runners such as Guns, Smoke, Bonanza, Marcus Welby, Flip Wilson and Here's Lucy warding off the challenges of a new crop of shows that generally was regarded as under par. Only a second-season holdover from the preceding year, CBS-TV's All in the Family, managed to bluster its way not only into the ranks of the elite but to the top of the Nielsen Fast Nationals by yearend.

The FCC's prime-time access rule, which turned back time to local stations and which went into effect in the fall, lent impetus to the TV syndication business while creating a fundamental change in programing. The rule stipulated that, as of Oct. 1, 1971, TV stations in the top-50 markets be required to take back a half hour each weekday night and an hour on Sundays of prime-time programing formerly supplied by the networks.

The FCC's intent was to increase the diversity of programing sources by making local stations do more of their own programing or to get programs from syndicators or other non-network sources. However, at yearend there were some reservations as to the rule's success.

For one thing, the rule did more than just affect the top-50 markets since the networks felt it was not economically feasible to supply network fare that would not reach the top-50 markets.

For another thing, the FCC permitted a first-year waiver wherein stations were permitted to telecast old movies and re-runs of former network shows in the time slots relinquished by the networks.

Many local stations resorted to this fare plus syndication materials and some purely local news and entertainment shows.

BROADCASTING estimates in November indicated that viewing of the new local programs in the turned-back times was down from the previous year when the networks programed the time periods.

On both the networks and local stations, sports continued to play a major role in programing. Major league baseball received an estimated $40.4 million from radio and TV networks and stations for the right to cover games in 1971. This was $2.6 million more than in 1970, according to BROADCASTING's annual survey. Baseball also worked into more nighttime prime-time spots. Viewing records were shattered last October when the fourth game of the World Series was held at night for the first time, primarily for the benefit of the broadcast audience.

The other major sports—football, basketball, hockey and golf most notably—enjoyed a profitable exchange with radio and television. College and professional football rights in 1971 went to network and local stations for $66.2 million, according to another of BROADCASTING's exclusive special reports. Notable in this survey was the fact that, for the first time in 25 years, the figure for college-game rights dipped slightly to $1.14 million.

Children's programing, usually relegated to quiet and obscure corners in the over-all broadcasting picture, was yanked into prominence by such organizations as Action for Children's Television (ACT). The Boston-based organization seeking program reforms pressed its efforts to have commercials banned from programing intended for children. ACT also plumped for a requirement that stations be compelled to program a minimum of 14 hours a week directed at different age groups. ACT actively campaigned at the FCC and the Federal Trade Commission with no resolution of the problem by yearend. In the meantime, the television networks on their own initiative had unveiled new children's shows in the fall that received much acclaim.

On the noncommercial side, Children's Television Workshop went into its third season of programing for preschool youngsters with its widely praised Sesame Street. Last fall it introduced a counterpart, The Electric Company, produced by CTW and aimed at helping second, third and fourth graders with reading problems.

One of the bigger adult successes on Public Broadcasting Service was The Great American Dream Machine that helped to bring public-television audiences up to an average of 39 million viewers a week in October 1971. The figure, from Louis Harris & Associates, compares to 33 million a week in October 1970.

Public broadcasting had its bitter moments in 1971 with a still-growing dispute about its structure and funding. At the center of the controversy were PBS and the Corporation for Public Broadcasting, which was created in 1967 as an independent nonprofit organization to promote and finance non-commercial radio and TV. Dependent on Congress for funds, CPB and the media it serves became more deeply involved in controversy during 1971.

A prime critic of public broadcasting during 1971 was the White House Office of Telecommunications Policy (OTP). At a National Association of Educational Broadcasters meeting in Chicago last October, OTP Director Clay T. (Tom) Whitehead charged that public broadcasting had overlooked the goals of the Public Broadcasting Act by seeking a "centralized national network" concept rather than a locally based system which he saw as a goal of the act.

CPB reacted with a memo to the 212 noncommercial stations that it was funding. In it, CPB said that Dr. Whitehead in effect was threatening to oppose permanent financing for CPB until "public broadcasting shows signs of becoming what this administration wants it to be."

In the wake of failure by OTP and CPB to agree on a long-range funding plan, Representative Torbert H. Macdonald (D-Mass.), chairman of the House Communications Subcommittee, introduced a bill in November that resembled some of what the OTP and CPB sought. However, it would give CPB wide discretion in allocating funds to local stations; OTP advocates distribution of this money according to a formula.

Also, provision would be made for base amounts to be provided CPB: $35 million in 1973, $40 million in 1974 and $50 million in each of the next three years. The CPB appropriations could amount to $65 million in 1973 and up to $160 million in 1977, contingent on nonfederal funds under provisions of the Macdonald bill that provide for matching funds.

OTP's Dr. Whitehead was also very much in the news during 1971 insofar as cable television was concerned. The growth of CATV has been held back by the FCC's refusal to allow cable importation of TV-station signals into big cities—a move that has discouraged construction in the sizeable and more profitable markets. New system starts, which numbered about 260 in 1968, declined to less than 100 last year.

The hopes of CATV were buoyed in mid-1971 when the FCC took remedial steps. Under a commission plan, cable operation will be fostered in big markets by allowing importation of distant TV signals to provide, in the 50 top TV markets, programing of all three networks plus that of three independent stations; in markets 51-100, importation of two networks and two independent stations, and in the smaller markets, three networks plus one independent.

The FCC also planned to require that on all future systems built in the top-100 markets, there would be requirement of actual or potential capability of delivering programing on at least 20 channels in the home; additional bandwidth for nonbroadcast services (shopping from home, electronic burglary alarms, etc.); a free noncommercial access channel for use by the public, and channels for educational use and state or local government use.

Some broadcasters, wary of disruption to their present services, filed economic studies with the FCC to support their contention that the plan would have disastrous effects on free-over-the-air broadcasting. However, other broadcasters supported the plan.

The issue of copyright, involving programs that CATV operators pick up from on-air stations, also grew into a sticky problem. Faced with specific disagreement over both the copyright issue and portions of the FCC plan—and hoping to head off prolonged congressional debate over near-term cable regulation—the OTP stepped in to negotiate a compromise agreement. The final version of the compromise was endorsed by FCC Chairman Dean Burch, and in November it was accepted by all three sides—broadcasters, CATV and copyright owners.

The OTP compromise would give a little more protection to the broadcasters than the FCC plan and would also pave the way for congressional action on the copyright issue.

It was hoped that the final form of the plan would be shaped by the FCC by a target date of March 1, 1972.

Long-term cable policy was also a matter of concern in Washington—at the very top, in fact. President Nixon established a blue-ribbon committee on cable policy, comprising three cabinet secretaries and three top White House aides, with OTP as co-ordinator. At year's end, it appeared that the committee was ready to recommend that program supply and transmission be kept separate; that full copyright liability be imposed, with no restrictions on distant signals; that no ban be imposed on broadcaster or newspaper ownership of cable systems; and that certain constraints be imposed to prevent serious harm to the broadcasting industry. A final report is expected by March.

Challenges to station license renewals dramatically multiplied last year and in an increasing number of instances the groups sought to take over the licenses and operate the stations themselves. The change came as much from the courts as from the FCC. In 1966 and three years later, a federal appeals court had sustained the right of local blacks to challenge the license renewal of a station in Jackson, Miss., on the grounds that the station had ignored black interests.

High mark in the proliferation of these challenges was reached in November 1971 with the filing of 18 petitions against 17 stations in California alone.

The FCC, which had opened the door to challenges with its 1969 decision by awarding the license of WHDH-TV Boston to a competing applicant, tried to alter this policy by holding that, on license renewals, competing applications for a license could not be accepted if the present operator could prove that he had performed substantial service in the operation of his station. However, the U.S. district court knocked that out when it ruled in 1971 that such a course would unconstitutionally deny a hearing to qualified applicants.

The commercial structure of broadcasting felt tremors last year in two major court decisions. In one, the court said that broadcasters who sell time for commercials may not, as a matter of policy, refuse to sell time for the broadcast of opinion on controversial issues. To fearful broadcasters that opened the possibility of the airwaves being flooded with all sorts of opinion, possibly more than could be accommodated in the air time available. However, the court ruling did call on the FCC and broadcasters to develop workable guidelines.

The second crucial decision affecting commercial broadcasting was a court ruling that automobile and gasoline spots raise a controversial issue of public importance in relation to ecology, just as cigarette commercials were held to do in relation to health in earlier years. Accordingly, it was decreed that the fairness doctrine required that reply time, as in the case of cigarette advertising, be made available to those who feel gasolines and automobiles were contributing to pollution of the environment. Broadcasters, viewing this, became apprehensive as to how far this line of reasoning might go since there are relatively few services and products advertised on the air that do not have critics.

The 'Broadcasting' Guide to Spot Planning

The broadcast planning process, as practiced by national advertisers, consists of four steps: (1) determining the advertising value of local markets; (2) calculating the delivery of national media in these local markets; (3) locating the markets where national advertising weight is insufficient; (4) estimating the cost of the spot advertising required to bring "underweight" local markets into proper balance with their advertising value.

The following data, augmented by specific brand information, is all the spot planner needs to complete this process. The sources, as noted in the separate tables, are the American Research Bureau, Beltsville, Md.; the A. C. Nielsen Co., Chicago, and The Katz Agency, station representative, New York. The material has been prepared for publication by Carl Ally Inc., New York. In sequence, here are the sections of this guide:

1. The Television Markets. These are markets as defined by ARB as areas of dominant influence (ADI), shown in alphabetical order. Listings contain individual county television-home counts, population data for the market, and capsule listings of the stations serving each market. See also Map of The Television Markets on pages 46-47.

2. The Markets Ranked by Size. These show the distribution of TV homes and population by television market (ADI). Page 37.

3. Product Usage in TV Markets. These figures isolate for individual markets the consumption of 9 major product categories and supermarket sales. These are for use in assigning "advertising value" to each market. Page 39.

4. How TV Network Delivery Varies by Market. Local-market audiences reached by each network during prime time. This data is presented to show markets where TV network delivery is low and requires spot support. Page 42.

5. TV Markets by Nielsen Territory. A size ranking of markets within Nielsen Retail Index territory. For use in determining the number of spot markets needed to obtain a given level of territory coverage. Page 48.

6. TV Markets Matched with Sales Areas. The distribution of each TV market's households by Nielsen Retail Index county-size categories. For use in determining the weight delivered to a given county-size classification by a list of spot markets. Page 49.

7. TV Costs per Gross Rating Point. This is a planner's short cut, adapted from the Katz "1971 Spot TV Cost Summary . . .", for computing the cost of television schedules. Page 54.

8. Radio Budget Estimator. This is a planner's short cut, adapted from the Katz "Spot Radio Budget Estimator #14," for computing the cost of radio schedules. Page 52.

The Television Markets

Here, listed alphabetically, are the 207 ADI TV markets which constitute the United States. According to ARB's formula, each county in the U.S. is exclusively assigned to a single market, based upon dominant coverage of the county by the stations originating in the market. Market data shows the stations, their cities of license, channel numbers and network affiliation. (Networks in parenthesis indicate secondary affiliations). Also shown are the counties composing the market and their television household count. Population data included is total for the market.

The Markets Ranked by Size

Here are the television markets of the U.S. ranked in descending order by the number of television homes they contain. Also shown are the numbers of women, men, teenagers and children in each market and the percentage of the total U.S. population each represents.

Lacking sales data, these population distributions are a rough and ready guide to the sales potential of TV markets for commodity products. All data is from American Research Bureau, Beltsville, Md. and represents the ARB TV household and population estimates for the 1971-72 season.

Product Usage in TV Markets

Spot planning takes into account the varying demand for various products in different markets. The table below presents local-market product usage rates as an index of the national average of that product's usage. The resulting number pinpoints the markets that offer the greatest per-household opportunity for sale of specific products.

For example, the New York index for beer consumption is 121. That indicates that the average New York household consumes 21% more beer than the national average.

These indices provide a means of weighting individual markets when allocating spot dollars. If on a straight population basis New York would receive 9.7% of a national beer's total advertising weight, the index of 115 would boost New York's share to 21% more advertising weight than population alone would indicate.

The following table provides product-usage indexes for 9 categories of products and supermarket expenditures in 207 television markets ranked in descending order of size. Usage data relates to American Research Bureau ADI market areas and was tabulated from the Feb.-March 1971 sweep.

How Network Delivery Varies by Market

Which markets need spot support, and how much money should be spent, by market, are questions of vital concern to both the national advertiser and the local station. This table provides the audience data critical to these decisions—the local-market performance of network TV average prime-time programs.

National advertisers use spot television to increase network advertising weight in specific markets to achieve a predetermined level. These market goals are derived from the advertising budget and the market's share of the brand's projected sales. Thus, a spot schedule is usually indicated where a market has an unusually high brand-sales potential, or where the network weight delivered for the brand is below the national average used in planning, or both.

The first factor, market brand potential, varies by product and is difficult to generalize. The second factor, local-market network audiences, must be generalized because planning is based upon next season's anticipated network performance.

The prevalence of network "package" buys, which tend to deliver average audience levels, supports the use of average data.

The following tabulation, chosen especially for the BROADCASTING Yearbook, shows the American Research Bureau's Areas of Dominant Influence (ADI) in terms of percent of the total number of U.S. TV households. Also given, in like percentage terms, are the network audiences in each ADI market during prime-time hours. It is this market audience figure, when compared to the market's share of population, that indicates whether the network commitment will perform above or below the national plan average in that market.

For example, the New York market contains 9.73% of total U.S. TV households. The New York audience attracted by the average CBS prime-time program is 7.38% of the total national audience the average CBS prime-time program attracts. This is the starting point for creating the spot-market list and allocating spot dollars.

Radio billings 1935-1970

Figures for the years 1935 through 1967 are net time sales by stations and networks after all frequency and promotional discounts but before deduction of commissions to agencies and representatives. Figures for 1968 and 1969 were computed under a new formula and represent total amounts paid by advertisers for the use of broadcast facilities. They include commissions paid to advertising agencies and representatives and payments for broadcast time and programs, materials, facilities and services supplied by broadcast stations and networks in connection with the sale of time.

ARB 1971-72 U.S. Television Market ADI's

The Area of Dominant Influence is a geographic market design which defines each market exclusive of another based on measurable viewing patterns. As the name implies, ADI is an area that consists of all counties in which the home-market stations receive a preponderance of viewing. Each county in the United States (excluding Alaska) is allocated exclusively to only one ADI.* There is no overlap.

This map of ADI television markets is designed especially to serve as a reference point for media studies and planning in conjunction with the audience estimates published in ARB's Television Market Reports.

Original ADI allocations were based on a 1965 ARB county-by-county study of television circulation. Viewing data were obtained, using the diary method, from approximately 250,000 television households. From these viewing data ARB prepared estimates of the total viewing hours in each county for an average week and the percentage of the estimated total viewing hours of each station for which viewing was reported. Using these figures ARB made its original ADI allocations. ARB has updated its county-by-county viewing data and estimates a number of times; the most recent update is based on data from the May and November 1970, and February/March 1971 surveys. Based on these updated estimates ARB has made its ADI allocations for the 1971-72 broadcast year.

The ground rules for the ADI allocations are relatively simple. Once the estimated total viewing hours for a county, and the percentage of such estimated total for each station, are known, ARB sums the station percentage by market of origin. The market of origin having the largest total percentage is deemed by ARB to be the "dominant influence" in the county under consideration, and thus that county is allocated for ADI purposes to that market of origin. In certain cases, an additional analysis, based on share of viewing hours in averaged fringe time periods, is performed.

There are exceptions to the general rule described above: 1) ARB reserves the right to exercise its judgement in the case of counties with unusual physical features or peculiar marketing considerations; and 2) A metro county or the home county of a station having no metro rating or the home county of a satellite station is not assigned to the ADI of another market unless the average of the percentages of viewing hours of the stations in the other market is at least 10% greater than the sum of the percentages of viewing hours of the station in the metro or home county under consideration.

Where a county is divided by ARB into more than one sampling unit, each unit is analyzed, for ADI purposes, as if it were a county and is assigned to an ADI on the basis of the rules described above.*

Key to Symbols Used: Double-headed arrow indicates a county which is non-contiguous to the ADI market of which it is a part.

A broken line around all or a portion of a county identifies the supplementary market areas which consist of station home counties assigned to the ADI of another market.

TV Markets by Nielsen Territory

Nielsen Retail Index territory groupings are another standard way of reporting sales data. The following table ranks TV markets within each Nielsen territory. This provides a yardstick for determining the number of spot markets needed to achieve a given coverage of a territory. For example, if the national media are not delivering sufficient advertising weight in New England, the planner will find that three TV markets (Boston, Hartford and Providence) contain more than 80% of the New England territory households. Or, he can use the table to get a better idea of how and what TV markets are needed to cover all of New England. Data is from a special Nielsen Station Index tabulation based upon a September 1971 estimate.

TV Markets Matched with Sales Areas

Advertiser sales data is reported by sales district, region and county size. Media planning uses the TV market as its basic unit. Often these different pieces do not fit together well. The table below deals with the problem of reconciling county-size reporting with television-market definitions.

Counties are placed in different categories according to complicated formulas that take into account population, contiguity, density of population and other factors. The "A" counties are the 25 major metropolitan areas; "B" counties contain the next largest group of cities; "C" counties contain the smaller towns; "D" counties are largely rural.

County-size sales data shows where a brand has its greatest strength, whether it is a big-city, urban, or rural brand. Since geographic flexibility is one of the strengths of spot broadcasting, county-size statistics are important inputs for spot planning. For example, if Brand X has an above-average A-market sales potential (and national media typically under-deliver in these bigger markets) major-market spot might be recommended to supplement the national effort. Here is where the problem of "fit" occurs.

Market definitions are television markets (DMA's or Designated Market Areas, very similar in definition to ARB's Area of Dominant Influence [ADI].) and each market comprises counties that fall into different county-size groupings. A case in point: The top-20 DMA's are all A-county markets. Yet nearly 20% of their populations live in non-A counties. So the media planner using spot to increase A-county impression-weight cannot assume that the spot dollars spent in A markets are all contributing to this goal. The following tabulations from A. C. Nielsen Co. show the distribution of DMA television households by county size for each DMA market and in incremental groups of 10 markets.

Radio Budget Estimator

The following tables, provided by The Katz Agency, New York, in their "Spot Radio Budget Estimator #14," are for rough estimating of spot-radio costs. Katz emphasizes they are not intended to take the place of station rate cards. All costs are based on rates published by Standard Rate and Data Service for December 1970. Costs were computed to the nearest cent, but final figures were rounded to the nearest dollar. In AM-FM combinations, AM-only rates were used where available; AM-FM rates were used where no AM-only rates were available. Lowest applicable costs were used. The following daypart definitions apply: morning traffic, 6-10 a.m.; daytime, 10 a.m.-3 p.m.; afternoon traffic, 3-7 p.m.; evening, 7 p.m.-midnight. Where more than one rate level was available within any daypart, the rate applicable to the most time within the daypart was used.

RANK-GROUP CUMULATIVE TOTAL COSTS PER MINUTE ANNOUNCEMENT

Based on 12 per week for 13 weeks for the four* highest-cost stations (and the average thereof) in each daypart:

*Or less, subject to availability of stations in each market and daypart.

TV Market Costs Per Area Gross Rating Point

For advertisers that use gross rating points as the measurement of spot-TV media weight, a useful estimating short cut is the cost-per-rating-point guide. These figures permit the rapid calculation of the budget required to buy any number of gross rating points in market lists of varying depth.

For example, Katz estimates the cost of one early-news ADI rating point (:30) in the top-10 markets at $595. A weekly 50-GRP schedule would cost $29,750 ($595 × 50) per week for as many weeks as scheduled. The costs reported below are planning averages and tend to be high. They should provide adequate margin for estimating budgets in 1972.

These figures are from The Katz Agency's 1970 "Spot Television Cost Summary." Costs are based on five per week, pre-emptible rates for the second most expensive station in each market. This guide is based on American Research Bureau ADI ratings, February-March 1970 reports.

The Radio and Television Audiences

Radio and television were in more U.S. homes than ever before as 1972 approached.

■ Television.—A total of 62.1 million homes, or 95.8% of all U.S. homes (excluding Alaska and Hawaii), were TV-equipped as of September 1971, according to the A. C. Nielsen Co. The American Research Bureau estimated the total would be 60,775,000 homes (excluding Alaska) as of January 1971.

■ Color TV.—Homes equipped with color TV sets totaled 31.0 million, or 50.1% of all TV homes, as of Oct. 1, 1971, according to estimates by NBC.

■ Radio.—The Radio Advertising Bureau estimated that

62.6 million U.S. homes, or about 98.6%, were radio-equipped in 1971.

■ Radio Sets.—The number of working-order radio sets in the U.S. totaled 336.0 million in 1971, according to estimates by the Radio Advertising Bureau. RAB estimated that 240.6 million of these were home and personal radio sets and 95.4 million were out-of-home receivers. The total represented a 4.6% gain over the 320.7 million estimated for 1971.

■ Viewing and Listening.—The extent to which radio and television sets were used is indicated in numerous ways in the tables that follow. The television figures were furnished by the Nielsen company and its Nielsen Television Index (NTI). The radio data came from RAB, NBC and other sources as noted

Cumulative Audiences: Radio and TV

Cumulative reach of radio is compared with that of television in the following figures from NBC Radio's 1965 Cumulative Radio Audience Method (CRAM) study, made public in 1966. Although the study was conducted primarily to test new research methodology, NBC said it considered these estimates "approximate" but "conservative" benchmarks.

* TV percentages based on a special Nielsen Television Index tabulation covering in-home viewing only, adjusted to reflect (1) all U.S. individuals 18 years of age and over from both TV and non-TV households, and (2) April TV set usage patterns. NBC's CRAM report said this radio-TV comparison "does not imply that television and radio are equal in impact or effectiveness" but "does suggest that radio's broad reach makes the medium an ideal choice for backing up television advertising."

Minutes of TV Viewing and Radio Listening by TV Viewers

Amount of time that adult viewers (over 18 years of age) spend daily with the broadcast media, by day part and for the day as a whole, is shown in the following tables. In each case the viewers are classified in five groups according to how much time they spend with TV, from the 20% who watch most (at top) in descending order to the 20% who watch least (bottom). TV dominates 6 p.m. to midnight period, but radio has an edge in all other day parts, with the biggest advantage among lighter viewing groups. Data, the most recent available in this form, was prepared for Radio Advertising Bureau by R. H. Bruskin Associates, independent research firm, based on nationwide interviewing conducted in July 1964.

Hourly Trends in Viewing, Listening

HOUR-BY-HOUR variations in television and radio audience sizes are shown in these tables. The TV figures, from Nielsen's NTI data for March-April 1971, show the television audience in terms of percentage of homes tuned in per average minute of each hour, Monday through Sunday. The radio figures, compiled for RAB by Sindlinger & Co. in a 1964 study, represent the percentage of all adults who listen to radio, also hour by hour.

Television billings 1948-1970

Figures for the years 1949 through 1967 are net time sales by stations and networks after all frequency and promotional discounts but before deduction of commissions to agencies and representatives. Figures for 1968 and 1969 were computed under a new formula and represent total amounts paid by advertisers for the use of broadcast facilities. They include commissions paid to advertising agencies and representatives and payments for broadcast time and programs, materials, facilities and services supplied by broadcast stations and networks in connection with the sale of time.

by stations." Hence figures for that first year of financial reporting are not comparable with time sales in ensuing years.

How To Get In On A Great Performance.

On the road

If you're going to take your show on the road, you'll get a great performance from the "touring pros"—the crews and mobile-unit facilities of the Hughes Television Network. We've logged more hours on location than anyone else in the business. And you know, great performance comes from experience.

In sports

When it comes to performance in the field of sports, we outscore everyone. The Hughes Sports Network telecasts more hours of sports programming than anyone in the industry. As a matter of fact, we created the concept of the tailored, regional network to carry many of these events. That's why more stations and sponsors are coming to Hughes each year for real performance at reasonable cost.

In prime time

Now it's possible for an advertiser to give a performance in prime time on a national network without going to Tom, Dick or Harry. We've done it for people like Xerox, Faberge and Alcoa with prime time entertainment and documentary specials by giving them their own networks. And stations seem to like the alternative that this kind of network participation has to offer.

HOUSTON'S NEW TV SPECTACULAR: KPRC.

The same award-winning broadcasters who brought television to Houston, who were first in the market with video tape recording capability, and who introduced color to a million waiting Texans, now present their greatest spectacular.

A three-level, 86,000 square foot broadcasting center with over 41,000 square feet devoted to TV production.

Three scientifically designed, acoustically correct production studios, interconnected by a single master control, so production can go on in any of the three studios independent of any of the others, or in all three studios simultaneously working as one.

We'll offer eight color cameras, six VTR machines, electronic tape editing, slow motion, and a crew of technicians, engineers, and production experts.

Our TV spectacular will be ready for air play early in 1972. Don't miss it.

TV Allocations, State, City

Note: UHF and VHF TV allocations have been made by the FCC to the following cities. A plus or minus after a channel indicates that a station occupying the channel must operate with its carrier frequencies offset 10 kilocycles above or below, respectively, the normal carrier frequencies. The offset indicators are not shown for UHF assignments, which were the subject of a rulemaking adopted June 4, 1965. The designators were to be added in a later order, but had not been published by time the Yearbook went to press. Meanwhile, the appropriate designators are shown on construction permits and licenses issued for UHF stations.

Asterisks (*) indicate channels reserved for noncommercial use. 1) Following the decision in Doc 18261 (amendment of rules regarding geographic reallocation of channels 14-20 to land mobile radio in the 25 largest urbanized areas of the U.S.) channels so indicated will not be available for use until further action by the FCC. 2) This channel is not available for Elgin, Ill., unless FCC determines it is not needed at Joliet, Ill. 3) This channel is not available for Asbury Park, N.J., unless FCC determines it is not needed at New Brunswick, N.J. (As of Oct. 15, 1971)

ASCAP can supply you with over 3 million songs.

Those not given to excesses and impatience, will find, however, that a discerning selection suited to their program policy, from among the works of ASCAP's 19,000 members, provides the most judicious solution. (Since you can't play a judicious solution, it will also, of course, provide the music you selected.)

And what a repertoire to select from! From Bach to Country. Or even a combination of both, such as, "Bach Home Again In Indiana." From Western to Jazz. From Pop to Musical Theatre. From Symphonies to Solos. From "Peter and the Wolf" to "Peter and the Paul and Mary. From ASCAP to you. From this moment on—you and I babe.

(How you play them all in one program is another matter.)
