Note: Dollar volume figures represent total considerations reported for all transactions, with the exception of minority-interest transfers in which control of the licensee did not change hands. All sales have been approved by the FCC. Also, prior to 1978, a combined AM-FM facility was counted as one station in computing the total number of stations traded.

*Prior to 1971 figures represent total number of deals involving both radio and television stations. Beginning in 1971, when the FCC's "one-to-a-customer" rule, prohibiting the sale of co-located TV and radio stations, became effective, figures represent the total number of separately located TV and radio stations that were sold in packages.

Television Marketplace

The ADI Market Atlas

The Area of Dominant Influence is a geographic market design that defines each television market exclusive of the others, based on measurable viewing patterns. Each market's ADI consists of all counties in which the home market stations receive a preponderance of viewing, and every county in the U.S. (excluding Hawaii and Alaska) is allocated exclusively to only one ADI—there is no overlap. The total of all ADI's represents the total television households in the U.S.

The ADI is a standard market definition. As a television buying tool it is a geographic and demographic means for maximum efficiency. As a station tool it has applications for sales, programing and promotion planning.

Following, in alphabetical order, are Arbitron Television's 210 ADI markets for 1982-83, with coverage maps for each; and county-by-county breakouts of TV households. Other data include the market's stations, and their cities of license, channel numbers and network affiliations.

Coverage maps show total survey areas in white, the ADI's themselves in light crosshatching, and Arbitron Metro Rating Areas in heavier crosshatching. The survey areas consist of all counties in which the home market stations are viewed to any significant extent, including via cable. The Metro Areas, usually conform to the U.S. Census Standard Metropolitan Statistical Areas.

Supplementary markets do not meet Arbitron's criteria for having an ADI of their own; they are listed in this atlas next to the ADI of which they are a part.

A complete list of the supplementary markets appears on page C-133 and a cross-reference list for cities in a multi-city ADI on C-198.

Supplementary markets

The following supplementary markets have no ADI. Reports for these non-ADI markets may be produced in the November, February and/or May surveys. Data on each market is listed in the surrounding atlas adjacent to the ADI in which it falls. TV household estimates for supplementary markets are nonadditive, since these markets are composed of counties which are a part of other markets' ADI's.

TV Markets by Nielsen Marketing Research Territory

Nielsen Marketing Research territory groupings are another standard way of reporting sales data. The following table ranks TV markets within each Nielsen Territory. This provides a yardstick for determining the number of spot markets needed to achieve a given coverage of a territory. For example, if the national media are not delivering sufficient advertising weight in New England, the planner will find that three TV markets

(Boston, Hartford and Providence) contain almost 80% of the New England territory households. Or, he can use the table to get a better idea of how and what TV markets are needed to cover all of New England. Data is from special Nielsen Station Index tabulation based on a January 1983 estimate.

How Network Delivery Varies by Market

National advertisers use spot television to increase network advertising weight in specific markets to achieve a predetermined level. These market goals are derived from the advertising budget and the market's share of the brand's projected sales. Thus, a spot schedule is usually indicated where a market has an unusually high brand-sales potential, or where the network weight delivered for the brand is below the national average used in planning, or both.

The first factor, market brand potential, varies by product and is difficult to generalize. The second factor, local-market network audiences, must be generalized because planning is based upon next season's anticipated network performance. The prevalence of network "package" buys, which tend to deliver average audience levels, supports the use of average data.

The following tabulation, chosen especially for the Broadcasting/Cablecasting Yearbook, shows Arbitron Television's Areas of Dominant Influence (ADI) in terms of percent of the total number of U.S. TV households. Also given, in like percentage terms, are the network audiences in each ADI market during prime-time hours. It is this market audience figure, when compared to the market's share of population, that indicates whether the network commitment will perform above or below the national plan average in that market.

The figures are based on Arbitron Television's May 1982 Network Program Group Analysis.
