SENATE APPROVES RADIO MERGER

UNIFICATION of the Government's radio regulatory activities is expected to be accomplished within the next few months, the first step having already been taken by the Senate in passing a bill transferring the activities and personnel of the radio division of the Department of Commerce to the Federal Radio Commission.

Passed twice in the past by the Senate and once by the House of Representatives, the legislation has always failed of final enactment because of the inclusion of amendments to the radio law which have been the subject of opposition. Accordingly, the measure now before Congress is confined exclusively to the matter of transferring the division, to which there is no objection, both the Secretary of Commerce and the members of the radio commission having repeatedly voiced their approval of the change.

The radio division of the Department of Commerce, established some twenty years ago, has had an eventful history. Originally created to enforce the provisions of the radio act of 1912, requiring certain types of passenger vessels to carry radio equipment, its work within a few years was materially increased by growing amateur interest in the subject. When broadcasting appeared on the scene, still further expansion was necessary and many new and perplexing problems were brought before William D. Terrell, chief of the division, and his associates for solution.

It is due largely to the firm but considerate control exercised over broadcasting stations by Mr. Terrell that the art made the tremendous progress it accomplished in its early years. With all broadcasting stations originally confined to one frequency, it was in the radio division that the first distinction was drawn between those stations originating real programs and those confining their efforts largely to "canned" music, a second frequency being provided for the higher class broadcasters.

Late when the number of broadcasting stations had increased into the hundreds, it was the radio division that again came to the rescue and provided a carefully worked out scheme of frequencies designed to permit a spread over all of what is now the broadcasting range.

It was this situation which gave birth to the radio act of 1927 and the Federal Radio Commission. Since establishment of the commission, the field of the radio division has been narrowed to its original scope of administering those laws relating to the radio installations and operation of ships and inspection work for the radio commission. Operating largely for the benefit of the commission, there has been no reason why the division should be continued as part of the Department of Commerce and its transfer to the radio commission is intended to bring together as much of the Government's regulatory work as is possible under the present law.

PERSONAL PICKUPS

BY GYPSY

Mrs. E. M. C., Portland.—Johnnie Walker (KOIN) is a handsome, modernized Viking, 6 feet 2 inches in height, with sea-blue eyes, blond hair, and a generous mouth that turns up at the corners even when he is not smiling. When he was five years old his father died, leaving his mother to carry on as best she could with six small children, and while other little boys were out playing ball, Johnnie was doing his bit toward defraying household expenses. At thirteen he began of his own volition to study music, and at seventeen had acquired an enviable reputation as an orchestral director in the Northwest. Six years ago he made his radio bow over Station KXL and he has been broadcasting ever since in one capacity or another, for, in addition to being an all round musician, he announces, sings, writes continuity, and produces innumerable programs. He is highly creative, has a world of patience, is loyal to his friends and ideals, and hopes some day to own a country estate, at least two saddle horses and many dogs.

Nellie, Fresno.—Alice Blue is still over in Hilo and says nary a word about coming home. Had the most interesting letter from her recently, and you should see the unique Christmas card we received at the office; a diffused sepia of Alice in Hawaiian costume perched on the limb of a palm tree, strumming a ukulele to a low-hanging moon. Her letter contained a description of a native (luau (feast) she had just witnessed and a list of the queer dishes that were served. "Strangely enough," she finished, "they signed off with regular layer cake and soda pop and no one seemed to suffer any serious consequences."

Gladys, San Francisco.—Jennings Pierce (NBC) is not related to Bob and William Bence. I think perhaps your informant meant Rudy Pierce. Rudy and the Bence's are related through marriage. Mrs. Pierce is the sister of Bob and William. Yes, Bob used to conduct a class in physical culture over KPO, Marie, the little French girl, answers to the name of Marie De Veau. There was a Silhouette of her in the January 20 to 16 issue of Broadcast Weekly. Paul Pitman is now heard from KTAB in "The House of Dreams." Harvey Orr and Urban Hartman have not sung together for some time. Urban, you know, has been living in Los Angeles. Station KPO was officially opened on April 8, 1922, and KDKA, in Pittsburgh, went on the air October 2, 1920.

S. R. F., Oakland.—Peggy Young (KTAB) is 5 feet 2½ inches tall, weighs 114 pounds, has blue eyes and long, curly blond hair which she wears in a piquant bun. She is in her teens, a provocative "Merely Marge" type with a special "line"; misunderstood by her father who, she says, is too much like herself to be entirely agreeable but thoroughly understood by her mother whom she defines as a "perfectly swell person." Peggy is a student at the California School of Fine Arts in San Francisco, lives with her parents in Palo Alto, is "intrigued" by a Phi Gamma Delta, a Sigma Chi. Bing Crosby's singing, and all music wherein the bass is "slapped." She dots her i-s with huge circles, admits being a hedonist; (and blithely adds "Aren't we all?") loves to walk in the rain, wear powder blue, and once illustrated a book for children.

J. D. F., Redwood City.—Jack Delaney (KLX) uses "Washington and Lee Swing" as his theme song.

Mrs. J. S., Sacramento.—Lew Conrad (NBC) began his musical career before he was seven years of age. His sister taught him piano, his father and mother gave him voice instruction, and Frederic Hahn, well-known Philadelphia pedagogue, gave him his first violin lessons. Lew is a combination of French, English and Spanish, was born in Philadelphia in 1906, appeared in vaudeville when he was fourteen years old, and played in the Cleveland Symphony orchestra at eighteen. His hobbies are golf, bridge and motoring; likes all music regardless of its classification, just so long as it is properly interpreted, loves to sing and has a gorgeous sense of humor.

Mrs. K. G., Sacramento.—Al Rinker, formerly of the Rhythm Boys, is now appearing in vaudeville as Bessie Love's accompanist. They say—Charles Hamp's sole exertion these days is gardening, that he made a tremendous fortune while on the air, and intends taking a long, long vacation. Billy Page (NBC) is thirteen years of age. The Coco Cola theme song was written especially for this feature and seems to have no name. Al Pearce (KFRC) gives San Francisco as his birthplace. Dave Marshall may be heard from KHJ. The Boswell Sisters were born in New Orleans. Adele Burian (KYA), Abe Bloom and Mel Peterson (KPO) are all single. Mel is twenty-four years old, weighs 175 pounds, is 5 feet 10 inches tall, has blue eyes and black hair.

Several letters have reached me recently asking "what has become of Jane Green who used to sing over KFRC?" Jane passed away last fall after a very short illness.

Kay, Berkeley.—Cy Trobbe's (KPO) orchestral personnel reads as follows: Walter Gough, Don Barrientos, Fred Baker, Emelio Meriz, and William Schwarzman, violinists; Emil Hahl, viola; Max Reinberg and George Rogovoy, cellists; Louis Previati, bass; Frank Fragale, clarinet; Julius Shanis, oboe and English horn; E. Kuhitschek, bassoon; Lee Barton and Dave Rosebrook, trumpeters; William Stratton, trombone; Joe S. Vogelsang, French horn; Roland Wagner, percussion; Fritz Warnke, piano; George Nyklicek, organist. Bud Shepard is librarian and Lillian Franck acts as Cy's secretary. The broadcasts during which you hear the musicians are listed in the program department under KPO Salon Orchestra; Masters of Music; Aeolian Trio; Snap Shots; Caswell Coffee; Cy Trobbe's Scrap Book; American Wastelands; Tea Timers; Bostonians. Occasionally divers musicians are heard in other programs but the aforementioned are acknowledged as "regulars."

BLUE eyes that brim with mischief, and wit which sparkles, might easily lead you to believe, when you meet Marjorie Primley, that she has just arrived from old Erin.

But Lincoln, Nebraska, was the birthplace of the NBC artist whose eyes and spirit, plus dark curls and dimples, make her one of the most attractive feminine members of the San Francisco staff.

Radio audiences hear her sympathetic mezzo-soprano voice harmonizing with those of Annette Hastings and Imelda Montagne. The three girls are known as the Coquettes of NBC, and all three of them—including Marjorie—live up to their other title.

Marjorie, though born in Nebraska, comes close to being a native daughter of California, so young was she when her parents brought her to San Francisco. From the time she was old enough to sit at a piano keyboard, Marjorie showed such interest in music that she began her education in it at an age when most youngsters are playing with kindergarten blocks.

Before she was out of her 'teens she was offered a job in a music store, demonstrating music in the "professional" department, for other musicians. Because of an almost flawless sense of rhythm and a natural liking for music which appeals to hearers at large, she became a firm adherent of popular music versus the standard sort, but a solid foundation of real music training lies beneath her irresistible manner of singing and playing. She can drift from the latest hot-cha-cha tune, sung to her own dexterous accompaniment, into a performance of one of the classics which astonishes those who think of the Coquettes as three popular songstresses.

It was Marjorie's piano talent which brought her to

MARJORIE PRIMLEY

NBC. She has accompanied singers and played piano solos over most of the stations in San Francisco, at one time or another.

"I always used to hum music, and occasionally even burst into song when surrounded only by trusted friends," Marjorie explains characteristically. "But I never dreamed of singing publicly until the Pepper Maids was originated."

Marjorie was engaged to accompany the Pepper Maids, until someone suggested it would be a good idea for the pianist to join in and swell the music. Almost unconsciously, she began to harmonize, and a rare gift for doing so was recognized. Today it is not an uncommon thing to have a producer hand Marjorie Primley a score she never has seen before and say, "Sing that, Marjorie," and Marjorie instantly supplies much of the vocal harmony for the song.

When the Pepper Maids went off the air, the Coquettes trio was substituted for it, and has been a popular NBC feature ever since.

NELSON CASE, NBC's tall, blond, deep-voiced announcer, has done many things in a lifetime which isn't so very long, thus far.

He has been a theatre usher, newspaper reporter, radio pianist and singer, and there's a lot of things he hasn't tried yet, he admits, when you find him in a facetious mood—which is practically all the time.

Born in Long Beach, California, Nelson is the son of a well known newspaper editor or Southern California. When Case Senior looked around one day in a picture theatre and found Nelson Junior acting as aisle courier, he was so startled that he gave him a job on his own paper. The budding reporter was sent to write a story on a radio station and telephoned his resignation back to his father, together with the news that he had just been engaged as a piano soloist.

He was obliged to give up that job when the Case family decided it was time for him to go to college. He was graduated from William and Mary College, Virginia, and immediately became an orchestra leader in vaudeville. He returned to California and he and a "small but noisy band" as he calls it, sailed the bounding main aboard a coast-wise steamer. When that engagement ended, Nelson became an announcer at a Southern California radio station, where he remained until NBC brought him to San Francisco.

At William and Mary College, Case met Miss Sarah Lee, auburn-haired descendant of General Robert E. Lee, and also of Ethan Allen. She is Mrs. Case now, and tiny Virginia Lee Case, aged a year and a half, listens excitedly for daddy's voice on the radio. Nelson Case III isn't old enough to pay attention to radios, yet, having just made his entrance on the world-stage recently.

ONE of the voices that month in and month out, upon the occasions of the most beautiful KFRC musical presentations, lends its rich, clear, sparkling quality to the microphone is that of Juanita Tennyson.

For four and one-half years Miss Tennyson has been on the KFRC staff. Only a voice that consistently maintains its freshness and appeal can be a favorite over that length of time. Time provides the test on the radio.

NELSON CASE

"Water Cresses, Who'll Buy My Cresses," was Juanita's first song in public. She was six years old. She was raised in a family of singers, her father and mother having met in the Methodist Church choir in San Francisco. Her three sisters all sing.

She was born just one block away from 1000 Van Ness Avenue, where KFRC is located. Until she was nine years old she was called Nina

JUANITA TENNYSON

Vollison, but at that time her father died and her mother changed her name to Juanita, which means Little John in Spanish, after her father's name, John. She attended Haight Grammar School in Alameda, and Polytechnic High School in San Francisco.

Her first and only sweetheart was her present husband, Doctor Tennyson. She was 16 when she fell in love with him, and she married him two years later. They went to live in San Jose.

Juanita always kept up her vocal studies, singing in church and in recital. With money she earned with her voice she studied in New York under the best instructors. She was asked by the late Thomas Vincent Cator to sing his songs in a concert in Aeolian Hall.

"Needless to say," she says, "I worked with great enthusiasm in learning the songs, and when the night of the concert arrived it proved to be the most joyful experience of my life."

Here is how the Roslyn News of New York reported the concert: "Juanita Tennyson proved a surprise and a delight. She not only has a voice of suave beauty of tone, but is possessed of a fine intelligence, imposing personality, and a warmth of temperament, as well as the dramatic feeling required to give expression to such songs."

With her teaching and radio work, Miss Tennyson has little time for anything else, though she enjoys dancing, card games, and swimming. Her favorite composers are Mozart, Liszt, Schubert, and Puccini. Thais, Traviata, and Tosca are her favorite operas.

. . . RADIO NEWS . . .

CONTROL of radio in the event of another war will be a vastly different problem than that encountered during the World War, and military experts, not only in the United States but in other countries as well, are not unmindful of this fact in carrying out their work of constantly changing strategical plans for military operations to meet changing conditions.

When the United States entered the World War there was, in effect, no radio problem. There was no broadcasting and but little international radio service, and the bulk of radio activity was in the hands of the amateurs. It was, therefore, a simple matter to order the discontinuance of all radio service other than that needed for the prosecution of the war and to enforce compliance with the Government's action.

Today, however, radio occupies a place in our daily life so important as to make doubtful the wisdom of attempting a general cessation even of broadcasting and the present trend of thought is toward control rather than suppression. The industry of the country would be heavily handicapped if international radio communication was stopped, especially in wartime when the cutting of cables could largely isolate the United States from the rest of the world.

Suggestions that all radio stations be made a part of the military system do not meet with favor, except for such stations as might be necessary to handle military traffic, nor is there general approval of plans to close all stations not so needed. While it would be possible to suppress all sending stations, it is pointed out, it would be impracticable to seal receiving sets, while the closing of transmitters would destroy one of the greatest recent developments for the dissemination of information to the public. Operation of stations under supervision of military censors also has objections as a means of meeting the situation.

This, then, it is pointed out, would make necessary the formulation of plans for control of all forms of radio during a war in such a way as not to invalidate their value. Included in such a program probably would be a provision for continued operation of broadcasting activities, the stations to be used when necessary by the Government for the distribution of information as to draft for military service, loans, the building up of morale, etc.

There is little doubt, however, that the number of broadcasting stations would be materially cut, with a view to clearing the air as well as to release manpower and material for other war purposes. The reduction of stations could be accomplished without delay, since the emergency powers of the President would permit the suppression of unnecessary stations without permitting any opposition on the part of the operators.

In all probability, there would be a censorship of stations permitted to continue operations. This would be necessary in order that there might not be included in programs any information or material of value to the enemy. That the program broadcast from a powerful station might be an excellent vehicle for the use of spies in sending reports is unquestioned.

Recent experiences in Europe in the use of broadcasting for propaganda purposes in foreign countries also would indicate the wisdom of retaining broadcasting here in the event of war. Powerful stations abroad would have little difficulty in getting their propaganda into the United States where, however, it could be "killed" by starting a domestic station in operation on the same frequency. This has been done in Europe on numerous occasions. The resulting "program" would not be particularly entertaining in most of the area covered, but it would dispose of the enemy signals.

Should the United States become involved in war, amateur operations would be totally banned except, possibly, for a selected group who would be made part of the military establishment and whose stations would be used for the dissemination of orders and information, the greater part of the amateur group being absorbed into the regular military establishment.

The commercial communications services would, of course, continue to operate, especially if our troops were engaged again on foreign soil, but all operations would be under control of the military authorities. The operation of any type of station without authority of the Government would be made a serious offense.

Television and KFRC's Happy-Go-Lucky Gang

TELEVISION threatens to expose the radio artist in all the details of his appearance with a likeness thrown upon the screen of the set owner.

There is one group of radio entertainers, however, which has anticipated that exposure.

AL PEARCE

For nearly three years Al Pearce and his Happy-Go-Lucky Gang over KFRC, San Francisco, and the eleven stations of the Don Lee-Columbia coast network have conducted open house in the KFRC studios. Each day, except Saturday and Sunday, from 2 to 3 o'clock, the huge Studio A has been jammed with spectators, many of whom have come from distant states to see the performances "in the flesh" of the artists.

The studio holds between three and four hundred people, and there is always an overflow of disappointed ones who arrived too late to get seats. These are told to come back on the morrow, earlier.

With all this experience behind them, the gang is fully prepared to cater to the eyes as well as the ears of the radio fan. And their experience with visible audiences, day in and day out, has led them in another direction—towards the stage.

Al Pearce and his gang have pioneered the public appearances of radio stars on a large scale in the West. They have filled auditoriums in all the principal cities of Northern California and in most of the principal cities of the West, including Los Angeles, Seattle, and Tacoma. They play a return engagement in the Los Angeles Shrine Auditorium, seating 7,000 people, in February, and play in the Portland auditorium in March, 1932. Nothing like it has ever been done before in the West. Never have they played to anything less than capacity houses. And their success can only be attributed to the fact that they have learned, by their daily experience, to play to an audience. They provide a show that would please an audience even if they were total strangers to it. They are one and one-half kilocycles ahead of television.

Al Pearce has kept in mind, however, that he is directing an air show primarily. If a studio stunt depends very much upon being seen for its effectiveness the genial Al at the microphone tells the listeners all about it.

The program has grown to be a sort of an institution. At Easter time the artists put on shows and distribute Easter toys they have collected from their friends of the air in the public parks of the cities. Thousands of children attend.

At Christmas time many thousands of toys sent in are distributed to the hospitals for crippled children and the homes of the poor.

Here is how the hour started. Al was assigned to a Saturday morning program about three years ago. Radio wasn't as far advanced in those days, and he was given a piano player and one or two singers to help him fill the hour between 10 and 11 o'clock. Al sings and plays the guitar himself.

One day he received a letter from a fan asking if she could come to the studio and watch the broadcast.

"If you're not a bill collector and think you can stand it, why come right along," replied Al, over the air.

A dozen people came the following Saturday. Al's brother Cal, Norman Neilson, and "Mac" joined the gang, and they moved to a larger studio. And from that it grew to its present importance among radio programs in the West. It has always been completely spontaneous, no program or continuity ever having been arranged beforehand.

Other artists to join the hour later include Tommy Harris, Charlie Carter, Edna O'Keefe, Lord Bilgewater, the comedy Englishman; the Clark Sisters, Edna Fischer, Jeanie Clairmook, Marjorie Lane Truesdale, Cecil Wright, Pedro, Abe Bloom, and Hazel Warner.

MICROPHONE GOSSIP

• • • Followers of radio activities will be pleased to hear that Carl T. Nunan, former publicity director of one of San Francisco's leading radio stations and for the past three years Far Western Manager for the Atwater Kent Foundation's National Radio Audition, has been elevated to the post of President and General Manager of the Civic Opera Comique. The Civic Opera Comique, a non-profit corporation, recently filed its incorporation papers with the Secretary of State in Sacramento, following which Nunan was chosen to head the organization. The purpose of the Civic Opera Comique will be to revive light and comic opera and make possible the employment of the wealth of exceptional musical and histrionic talent to be found in and about San Francisco. Resident talent, both as principals and ensemble members will be used.

• • • Myrt, of "Myrt and Marge," has received from a west coast admirer a memento of ten years ago.

The fan, after hearing Myrt during her five-a-week series over the Columbia network, mailed in a vaudeville program of 1921 from a San Francisco theater then featuring Jack Lait's "The Sixth Reel." The feminine lead was listed as Myrtle Vail, the same Myrtle Vail who now writes and plays the lead in "Myrt and Marge."

• • • Virginia Gardiner, NBC dramatic actress, has rejected an offer to appear in the forthcoming George Gershwin musical satire. She prefers to remain in radio.

• • • Lawrence Tibbett, Metropolitan Opera Company baritone, has become the first active Metropolitan star ever to contract for a continuous series of performances before the microphone, appearing weekly on the Voice of Firestone programs (NBC). No opera singer since Caruso has won such unqualified success in a variety of fields as Tibbett. He has starred in concert, musical comedy, talking pictures, phonograph recordings, and now in radio. Sixty-three stations, extending from Maine to Honolulu, carry Tibbett's voice each Monday night. These are divided into two groups, with a special second production of the program being given for western listeners three hours after the eastern broadcast.

• • • Reginald Sharland, the Honorable Archie of the Frank Watanabe skits featured nightly over KNX at 7 o'clock, like most Britishers, has the most amazing facility of keeping his friends in constant state of "jitters." A recent eye infection has made it temporarily difficult for him to see properly. His friend, Ivan Lebedef, prominent motion picture actor, also has impaired eyesight. The friends of these two popular artists were alarmed the other day to learn that the favorite pastime of this pair is to get into Lebedef's high-powered automobile and pull the throttle wide open. "Just to spite the beastly eyes, y'know," grinned Reg mischievously.

• • • One of Count von Luckner's first acts after his return to the United States after the war was to return the flag of an American ship which had been seized by the Germans to the craft's owner. The banner belonged to the S. S. "Pass of the Balmaha," which the "Sea Devil" converted into his famous "Sea Adler," whose activities he is recounting over Columbia weekly.

• • • Some radio stations "play" records, some "keep" them, some "make" them, and some "break" them. Ralph Brunton's popular 100-watter, better known as KJBS, covers all four of these classes. According to the records "kept" during 1931, figures show that the station played 104,832 phonograph records. The number of records broken or purposely destroyed on account of slight scratches amounted to 2,589, most of which were sent to the hospitals and public institutions for the amusement of the inmates.

• • • KTM has a brand-new amplifier system. The frequency response ranges from 40 to 8,000 cycles, whereas it had previously been between 40 and 4,500. The Pacific Telephone Company installed a special set of cables from the studio in Los Angeles to the power house at Santa Monica for the installation.

• • • Bennie Walker, editor of NBC's Woman's Magazine of the Air, loves to cook—but only as a hobby. The difference between real cooks and hobbyists, Bennie's wife explains, is that real cooks wash the dishes afterward.

• • • You've heard of the chap who fell out of a rug and sprained his ankle? Well, Caltanna Christoph, KFRC soprano, tried to better that record by tumbling down two short little steps and bruising herself up so thoroughly she had to be away from the station for about a month. She returned to the programs on the Golden State Blue Monday Jamboree of January 11.

• • • The depression is not on for Martha Vaughn, beautiful KNX soprano. Radio stars, no matter how much in demand, do not make a practice of cancelling radio engagements. But Martha has been so busy making pictures for RKO of late that on more than one occasion her followers have been disappointed when she was forced to telephone at the last minute to say that she could not appear.

• • • More than twenty-five hundred men aspiring to be radio announcers talked before microphones in auditions at the National Broadcasting Company's New York studios during the last two years, but only ten were hired. With few exceptions, all the applicants stammered or "whistled" on encountering the first sentence in the test script prepared by Patrick J. Kelly, supervisor of announcers, who tried each of the twenty-five hundred voices: "The seething sea ceaseth and thus the seething sea sufficeth us."

• • • B. A. Rolfe, NBC orchestra leader, has returned to New York, ending a tour which carried him and Mrs. Rolfe to Honolulu. The voyage to the Pacific, Rolfe's first vacation in six years of broadcasting, was taken upon the orders of his physician.

In his suite at the St. Regis Hotel, Rolfe appeared in perfect health as he welcomed the men who have played under his direction for years.

Rolfe told friends that he had given no attention to future plans and would have nothing definite to announce until after conferring with NBC executives. He did state, however, that he has been studying the dance-music demands of radio listeners he has met and finds that slow music by orchestras composed predominantly of stringed instruments is gaining favor rapidly.

• • • Buddy Rogers has deserted the screen to organize and conduct his own orchestra and sing over National Broadcasting Company networks, according to a recent announcement.

• • • Ed Shapiro and Bert Shefter, who make up the two-piano team which accompanies Vaughn de Leath on Columbia, were once rival music teachers in Philadelphia. Each began taking the other's pupils, and in order to avoid unnecessary competition they combined. This worked so well that they also decided on a two-piano partnership. They wanted to specialize in classical renditions, but found a greater audience in interpretation of popular music and so concentrated on that field, came to New York, and were featured in the musical comedy "Rio Rita."

• • • Here's a good one: On Monday morning, January 11, at 5 o'clock, Jennison Parker routed Meredith Willson, KFRC's musical director, out of bed to read him some new lyrics he had written to "What'll Gonna Heppen Now," one of the songs in the operetta for that night's Jamboree. The funny part of it was Meredith wasn't asleep; he was thinking up some finishing touches for the show's music. Arabian Nights was the third show the boys have written together.

• • • Mel LeMon, chief engineer of KMTR, KMPC and KMCS, was born in Ft. Leavenworth, Kansas, thirty years ago. LeMon has light hair, weighs 185 pounds, and is 6 feet 2 inches tall.

Besides having the reputation of being one of the best radio engineers, he plays the banjo. LeMon was wireless operator in the U. S. Navy during the World War, a graduate of the University of Southern California, varsity letterman U. S. C. football team for two years, originator and member of the original Packard Six Orchestra. Assisted in the installation of radio stations KMIC (now KMCS) and KGFJ. Studio manager and chief announcer of KTM and KTAB. Announcer at KMTR and now employed in the capacity of Chief Engineer of three radio stations.

CRITIQUE OF THE WEEK

By DYAL TURNER

WITH safety-first week an' kindness-to-animals week an' all those wouldn't it be a swell idea to have a courtesy-to-radio-fans week? Or maybe, radio-fans-grievance week? No, that last isn't so hot. No use burdenin' the taxpayers with extra padded cells for program directors. But say—if you would like a tip from one who gets aroun' with all classes o' fans—listen: You'd save yourselves a lotta friends by givin' the listenin' posters a li'l explanation once in a while. It's not so childish as you may think. Radio comin' right thru' the front door, so to speak, anybody callin' himself a fan likes to know the whys an' wherefores o' things. For example, a program is established. A guy gets all set to hear a fav'rite. Said fav'rite doesn't show up. A sub comes along. Guy Fan won't accept 'im. Not without a legitimate excuse or reason. More he thinks about it, madder he gets, an' eventually concentrates on the station exec. Takes 'im a while to come outa his grouch an' sometimes he hates the station so he won't go near it for months. Now you boys 're clever enough to think up some nifty excuses. Wouldn't it be worth the trouble if for no other than givin' the sub a break?

When I'm in the dumps I like to tune to Colonel Stoopsnagle on CBS. He has a method for loosenin' laugh muscles. Amelia can't stand 'im. Calls his stuff utterances of a depraved mind. But I listen jus' the same. "Sticks an' stones may break my bones, but bitter words"—Ennyhow Stoopsnagle's muddled nonsense makes a hit with me. Guess my intellect is often a source o' disappointment to mine beloved.

Wonder what our European friends thought o' the Columbia program that went a-callin' 'cross the sea on January 11? Betcha anything you wanna bet they didn't recognize more 'n' two features as music. Wouldn't blame 'em, either. Betcha 'nother thing—they 're thoroughly convinced ladies are extinct in America.

Hero an' Zero on KTAB are gonna give harmony teams a run for their money or I'm a digger-injun.

With such programs as NBC's Arcola, there's no excuse for ignorance. The broadcast covers everything anybody could wish for in the way of musical history and its greatest exponents. It's what I'd call education served on a golden platter. Beautiful. Inspirational.

'Melia used to think all sopranos oughta be muzzled, but since I got her to listen to Rita Lane on KPO she's sorta changin' her mind. Miss Lane has a smooth, natural voice. No cute gurgles. No jello-quivers. She makes tawdry ditties into artistic selections. Gives a feelin' o' space and sanity.

Whatta man, Richfield Reporter. Night after night, skyrocket enthusiasm. How he c'n keep up with four advertisin' talks in fifteen minutes an' not go nertz, is a mystery to me. I say, Mr. Advertiser, aren't you layin' it on too thick? Seems to me you'll kill the goose that fills the gas tank.

Well, for cryin' out loud! If Chesterfield hasn't copped Lucky's stuff bodily? If they hadda go an pattern after a competitor, why in thunder did they copy the worst features?

KGO dealt out a neat li'l novelty a coupla weeks ago on bridge with an international flavor. Funny thing, Amelia was throwin' a party that night. Everybody ate up the stunt. Everybody including myself. It was a kick, no kiddin'. Say, KGO, couldn't you think up one for poker hounds?

The A. Capello choir an' Fisk University Jubilee Singers did a magnificent job on Sunday, January 10. Came thru' CBS. The way "Sweet Chariot" was put over made me ye'n for the days when a guy could call up a station an' ask for a second helpin' o' the same, an' get it.

Maybe Dyal's Wrong

In your issue for the week of January 10-16 I read Dyal Turner's remarks about Miss Edna O'Keefe's acting. I wish to remark at this point that Miss O'Keefe not only will act but that she can act.

I am an enthusiastic Happy Go Lucky and Jamboree fan, have been for a long time, and I never tire of Miss O'Keefe's acting or singing.

My only hope is that Dyal Turner never gets his wish about Miss O'Keefe.

Tell Miss O'Keefe to keep it up and don't let a bunch of critics discourage her. She stacks ace-high with me and I am willing to bet ten to one that the same is true with the majority of her radio audience.

More About Luckies

All this fuss about B. A. Rolfe and his orchestra has consumed much space, yet got us nowhere. I think most correspondents have missed the greatest complaint the fans could make, and their best ammunition remains unused. To my mind, the real trouble with Lucky Strike Hour is the nauseating advertising. This has been somewhat lessened in recent weeks, and has served to make their programs more enjoyable. Radio programs are (or should be) an invitation to good will rather than a sales talk, and I truly believe the simple mention of the sponsor's name, with, perhaps, a brief discussion of the merits of their process at the half-hour period would be a real stroke of "salesmanship" on their part. Their "phony" (sounding) testimonials get them nowhere, unless it be a very small minority who worship at the shrine of any public personage.

Let us have B. A. Rolfe with his music that is not only typically American but delightfully different from the sickeningly sweet "moaning" orchestras which now flood the air—his music that is virile and red-blooded. With his orchestra let us keep Walter Winchell and his interesting gossip. And bring back Edward Forbeson—a red-blooded announcer. And that will be a perfect hour!

In closing, how many Broadcast readers would like Bing Crosby at 8:15 rather than 8? And do they miss "Around the Samovar" and Ann Leaf?

We'll bet Broadcast will get these for us, if—IF—enough of us write, for Broadcast is the best little radio weekly in the world!

Alexander C., Sacramento, Jan. 11

Appreciates "Broadcast"

May I send along my word of appreciation for your very fine magazine, especially the detailed, accurate programs. The newspapers in our town seem to be unable to print a correct program. BROADCAST WEEKLY is in constant use every day in our home. We enjoy every department, and we do like your radio broadcast on Monday evenings. With all our family's best wishes for your future success, I am,

How About Dyal?

Those who are sincerely interested in the perfecting of radio programs owe a real debt of gratitude to Dyal Turner and his pertinent page, "Critique of the Week." There may be those who disagree with him, but it is my belief (after some investigation) that they are far in the minority.

With his remarks in the BROADCAST WEEKLY (January 3 to 9), regarding the raucous, unmusical efforts of Zizz Black and Mort Harris, he acts as spokesman for many of us. The only thing to be said in their behalf is that they are properly named—"Disturbers of the Air." Their advent on the ether might have been accepted with less displeasure had it not deprived us of two valued programs—"Fuller Paint" and the "N. B. C. Drama Hour."

The Wishing Well Murder

By CARLTON E. MORSE

NBC Dramatic Artist

DID I ever tell you about the Wishing Well murder?" asked Bill Hogan, of no one in particular, when activities had quieted in the Plant Room after a hectic session with the transcontinental lines. The radio station for which Hogan was technical expert was always having hectic times with its eastern lines. Once straightened out everyone heaved a sigh and relaxed gratefully.

"The Wishing Well murder," continued Hogan, "got this station mixed up in one of the dangedest thrillers—" he broke off.

down upon the court, and it is with the fourth floor that the tale deals entirely. There were four apartments involved, one on each of the four sides of the court. Hogan paused.

"See here," he said, "this is really Kirk Arnold's story. It has to be! He was so

John Quillen was found murdered in the Wishing Well Court four stories below me.

"I was called in with the police as soon as our station was involved and got just about everything first hand."

It appeared that the Wishing Well was a tiny fountain affair in the center of a small grassy court some twenty or thirty feet square, about which was built the Greyling Apartments. The first floor was taken up entirely with garages and trunk rooms. None of the second floor apartments looked out onto the court. The third floor apartments did look down upon the Wishing Well, but are of no importance to this tale, as will be shortly disclosed. The fourth and top floor apartment windows likewise gazed closely involved, it can't be told except through his lips. You see he occupied one of the four apartments.

So I'm going to let him tell what occurred in his own way." Hogan puffed furiously on his cigar seeking to obliterate himself in clouds of billowy, effervescent smoke.

"I, Kirk Arnold, am a bachelor nearing my fiftieth year. When I removed myself and my belongings to the Greyling Apartments I did so with studied intent to take myself entirely out of the world of people. If I am a misogamist who is there to accuse me? My personal experience with mankind has not been a happy one. The sag in my cheeks and the grey in my hair were come by through years of humiliation and agony, forced upon me by my fellow beings.

"I had been living alone quietly and with increasing contentment in my new quarters when one, John Quillen, was found murdered in the Wishing Well Court, four stories below me. There was a knife through his heart. More than that his body was crushed and mangled as though broken on a rack.

"Moreover, the little figure of Pan that had stood on the edge of the Well gazing all day at his reflection in the water, was broken off. This could mean but one thing. The body of John Quillen had been hurled from an upper window. It had hurtled down upon the jolly little Pan, ending forever his conceited pastime, an occurrence I sincerely regretted, as his attitude of puckish self-satisfaction greatly amused me.

"Violent death is a shocking business. Even more shocking when it comes close to you, which John Quillen's death most certainly did inasmuch as the body could have struck the Wishing Well only had it been hurled from one of the four top apartments.

"That meant that one of my three neighbors was a murderer. The moment I heard of the tragedy I knew that I should be visited by officers of the law and so I composed myself in deep thought, trying to discover something about one of them that would provide a clue, supposing they already had none.

"In the apartment directly across from me lived an elderly man and his son. From what I had been able to see of them across the court they were quiet, decent men. The elder spent nearly all his time with his books. The younger I judged to be an architect, he always being occupied in the evenings with his drawing board, T-square and ruler.

"The apartment on my left, which was at the rear of the building, was inhabited by a young married couple. They had money! They wouldn't have to live in the Greyling, but it seemed peculiar that he was almost continually in unprepossessing working attire. On several occasions I had met them on the street, he always near to shabbiness in contrast to his wife's smart gowns and hats. Their darkened windows at nights led me to surmise that they were out a great deal.

"The third apartment, the one at my right and at the front of the building was occupied by two young women. I never had looked favorably on this combination. True, both had the air of gentle breeding, but there was a sophistication that annoyed me. There was seldom an evening passed which did not bring in one or two gentlemen. I say 'gentlemen' with full cognizance of the meaning of the word. And mind you, never in all my short stay had I observed anything unpleasant or out of the way.

"Little enough in all to offer the police. At what hour Quillen had been flung down upon my little Pan I could not say. I had been in all evening and until my hour of retiring, approximately ten, I had seen and heard nothing to indicate so violent a situation as Quillen's death presupposed.

"As I sat musing there came to my ears across the way the strains of radio music. I sat up with a start. There it was! There was something for the police to work on!

"Last evening there had been a mystery-murder on the air. I grew rigid as I saw the possibilities. A mystery-murder, and the victim of the drama had been thrown to his death from a high window.

"I don't have a radio myself. I abominate the human voice. Some kinds of music I like, but the hue and cry raised by innumerable announcers, actors and others of their ilk, does not compensate for the little pleasure music would bring. But my neighbors all about me have radios and run them incessantly. Thank Heaven I am able to close myself away from them with little difficulty or annoyance.

"However, last evening I had had my court windows open and had heard bits of the mystery drama. It wasn't difficult in that all three sets were tuned to the same station. What didn't come to me from one reached me from the second and third.

"But there it was. Someone of my neighbors had quite certainly heard the drama and on the inspiration of what he had heard dispatched his enemy in a similar manner. No one apparently knew John Quillen, nor from what corner of the world he had come to meet his fate. He was neatly dressed, but there were no marks of identification save for a single plain card upon which was printed his name.

CORNER SIXTH & NORMANDIE
LOS ANGELES

"As I had anticipated the police finally came to me. There were two of them and with them a lean, long-legged individual with gray twinkling eyes, who was introduced to me as Mr. Hogan, a radio technician. Quite frankly I told them everything. Everything as I have told it to you. When I recalled the radio incident and pointed out how closely it was linked to the actual crime I noted the officers exchanging quick glances while Hogan's eyebrows shot up in startled interest.

"I had struck home. Anxious to do what I could to aid I again reviewed every detail. And then in my intense concentration I did something I would have given my entire fortune to have undone. I had a window box at my living room window. In it I had planted sweetpeas, and to make them climb I had placed several laths in the box and had nailed them to the top of the window. During my eager conversation I had unthinkingly arisen and after a step or two up and down the room had gone to the window and grasping a lath in either hand peered down to the court below.

"How long I had stood so I hardly know, but suddenly rough hands grasped me from behind, and in a trice I was in handcuffs, arrested for the murder of John Quillen."

Hogan grinned. "Kirk Arnold did it all right. When he went to the window and grabbed hold of those laths he unconsciously fell into the pose of a convict in his cell. It was so startling that for a moment the officers and I sat stunned. Then they grabbed him. They traced his record and found that he'd been released ten years before after serving a term for murder. Through him they also traced John Quillen, who wasn't Quillen at all, but an old acquaintance who was blackmailing him. Arnold had tried to hide, but when the fellow traced him to the Greyling, Arnold killed him in desperation. He planted the John Quillen card on him to throw the police off the track."

But what part had radio played?

"Why Arnold had gotten his idea of getting rid of the body from our mystery play by listening in on his neighbor's sets," Hogan mused. "And he almost got away with it. Would have, I think, had he not trumped his own ace."
