THE YEAR IN REVIEW

BY TRACY STEVENS

THE NETWORKS

The biggest television news of the year was the merger of Viacom and CBS in September, 1999, creating yet another media leviathan. What was to become the largest entertainment merger in history began as a discussion between Sumner Redstone and Mel Karmazin about swapping stations to take advantage of the FCC's new ruling allowing a single company to own two stations in any given market. The stakes quickly escalated and Karmazin offered to buy Viacom. Redstone declined the proposal, suggesting that Viacom buy CBS. With Karmazin's acceptance, the end result was a deal valued at $37 billion in Viacom stock to combine the two companies.

Keeping the Viacom name, the new colossus will encompass the Tiffany Network, Paramount Pictures, MTV, VH-1, Nickelodeon, TNN and other cable networks, several CBS and Viacom owned stations, and Infinity Broadcasting. Adding value to the deal is CBS' recent purchase of King World Productions and Viacom's theme parks, movie theaters, and publisher Simon & Schuster. It remains to be seen how Viacom and CBS will find a way around the FCC's mandate limiting each broadcaster to stations reaching 35% of the U.S. population.

The merger will be completed by mid 2000. Karmazin will become President and COO of Viacom in an employment contract running through 2003, with Redstone retaining his title of Chairman and CEO. Philippe P. Dauman and Thomas E. Dooley, top Viacom executives and longtime advisors to Redstone, will leave the company upon completion of the merger in what looks like another Karmazin coup. They will not, however, leave empty handed. Their severance packages are reportedly in the $300 million range, each.

Karmazin is expected to do for Viacom what he has done for CBS: stringent across the board belt-tightening, top-line sales growth and aggressive acquisitions. The ink had barely dried on the Viacom deal when Karmazin announced his pursuit of Chris Craft Industries, a station group including 50% ownership of UPN. However, as Disney has discovered since merging with ABC in 1995, establishing a successful cross-selling platform can be a daunting task.

In the media masters of the universe contest, the merger bumps Viacom/CBS up to third-largest empire with combined 1998 revenue of $18.9 billion, behind Time Warner whose 1998 revenue was $26.8 billion and Walt Disney at $22.9 billion. Rupert Murdoch's News Corp. comes in fourth with 1998 revenue of $13.9 billion with a great deal of upward potential.

NBC was also in an acquisitive mood this year, announcing in September 1999 that they would buy a 32% stake in Paxson Communications with the right to acquire control in 2002 for an additional $1.2 billion. NBC is unable to buy Paxson's 72 stations outright at present because of the FCC's 35% penetration rule. It is likely that broadcasters will become more persuasive in their lobby against this rule as the business climate continues to favor acquisitions of this type.

Until FCC legislation is changed, NBC plans to exploit the partnership with Paxson at the local level, where profit margins of 50% are the norm. Both NBC and Paxson will profit from their combined sales forces. Paxson, which does not offer any news programming, can pick up NBC's local news coverage and NBC will be able to run their shows in a second time slot on Pax TV adding to Paxson's current line-up of family oriented favorites.

NBC itself has explored mergers in the last year, none of which have come to fruition. USA Networks' Barry Diller came the closest but was unable to close the deal because 43% shareholder Seagram rejected the merger on the basis that it would over-dilute their stock. The network currently stands as the only major broadcaster not part of a multimedia behemoth in an age when broadcast networks are suffering from soaring programming costs and an increasingly fractionalized audience. In the meantime, NBC is shoring up its bottom line and its future with online ventures.

Since launching its MSNBC web partnership with Microsoft in 1996, NBC has added CNBC.com which will likely begin to sell parent company GE Capital's financial products. NBC has linked its Snap.com portal with ValueVision International, a TV-shopping of which NBC owns 40%. With its e-commerce efforts well under way, NBC will launch a publicly traded web stock, NBCi (NBC Internet). NBCi will combine the Snap.com portal as well as other NBC Internet businesses with Xoom.com, a site that gives free Web services in return for the ability to direct-market. The public offering will generate cash that will ultimately allow NBC to become more invested in the internet, a strategy that may save them from being sold by GE or enveloped by another media giant.

Disney and Infoseek's "Go" portal have fueled ABC's foray into the online fray. With multiple channels, ABC provides business, news and sports content to the Go Network, the latter through ESPN. In September, 1999, ABC launched "Sam Donaldson Live" on ABCNews.com. As part of the Webcast, Donaldson reported news and interviewed FCC Chairman Bill Kennard. ABC is obviously hoping to push internet programming as a way of pumping up their ad revenue. Whether the webcasts will become a regular event remains to be seen. We can, however, be sure that the high-concept, low art ad campaign promoting the essential goodness of television will be a fixture at the network.

While ABC's websites may be getting hits, the network's television ratings are less than stellar. For the third year in a row, ABC placed behind NBC and CBS in the battle for viewers. It seems that neither heavy branding nor pervasive, self-consciously hip advertising has helped. Overall, network share has been in a downward spiral, with only a few blue-chip shows emerging in the last two seasons. Even those hits are not garnering the kind of ratings that can significantly boost ad revenue for broadcasters. In the 1998-1999 season, CBS was first, followed by NBC, ABC, FOX and WB, with FOX being the only network that actually boosted its ratings. And while CBS has the top spot, the average age of its viewers, 52, misses the coveted 18-49 demographic by a long shot. Accordingly, CBS is only able to charge about half as much for a 30-second primetime spot as NBC or ABC.

The networks continue to pay top-dollar for programming while searching for ways to develop their own content. In 1998, Disney agreed to pay the NFL $9.2 billion to keep ABC's right to broadcast Monday Night Football, the highest-rated sports program on TV, through the year 2005. In July, 1999, in an effort to reduce programming expenses, Disney combined ABC with Disney's television-production studio in order to slot more shows made by Disney onto ABC's primetime schedule. If successful, Disney could make billions in primetime revenue from successful shows. The plan, however, got off to a rocky start when conflicts arose between Jamie Tarses—ABC's top programmer, Lloyd Braun—the head of Disney's TV studio and Stuart Bloomberg—the head of ABC Entertainment. Tarses, who brought the successful "Dharma & Greg" and "The Practice" to ABC was the loser of the battle leaving many to wonder if ABC will be able to resurrect its primetime ratings without her.

To deal with increasing programming costs, CBS added a second "60 Minutes" to its slate in an effort to defray programming costs while NBC is feeding the public a steady diet of investigative journalism, running "Dateline" five nights a week. Even with the NBC glut of self-produced content, the network's spending on "Must See TV" is prohibitive. After the $13 million per episode deal for "ER," NBC is paying $5 million per weeks to Warner Bros. TV to extend "Friends" through 2001-02. Ratings for all but "ER" and "Friends" suggest that "Might See TV" would be more apropos.

In November, CBS closed the deal with the NCAA on a $6 billion, 11 year contract that expands the network's exclusive right to televise the men's NCAA basketball. In addition to television rights, the contract also offers CBS the rights to NCAA basketball content on the internet and merchandising rights for tournament related products, adding value to one of the costliest deals in tv history.

While other television networks are finding it hard to attract and keep viewers, Univision is leaping ahead as the fastest-growing broadcaster in the US. With 88% market share in the lucrative Spanish language market, Univision dwarfs competitor network, Telemundo. Univision currently reaches 80% of Hispanic households in the U.S. with their 13 full-power, 8 low-power and 28 affiliate stations. A further 10% of households are able to view Univision on 940 cable affiliates. They key to their success has been the "Sabado Gigante" variety program and a slew of sudsy telenovelas, supplemented by exclusive shows from Grupo Televisa of Mexico and Venevision in Venezuela. Also a force in cable, Univision's Galavision Spanish-language cable network boasts 10 million subscribers. In 1998, Univision launched a Spanish-language cable shopping program in partnership with the Home Shopping Network

In 1998, in an effort to compete with powerhouse Univision's popular soaps, Telemundo began production of Spanish-language shows based on popular english language programs such as "Charlie's Angels." The strategy did little to boost Telemundo's market share so in 1999, the company reverted back to its prime-time novelas programming.

NEW TECHNOLOGIES

Whence the digital broadcast revolution? HDTV has been touted as the greatest innovation in television since the advent of color. As exciting as the technology is, it comes at a high price, with considerable dissension and skepticism among both experts and consumers. As the networks scramble for viewers, they are also forced to comply with the congressionally mandated switchover date of 2006 for an all-DTV television broadcast era looms ever closer. The FCC is in talks to revise their DTV strategy to release analog frequencies in 2013 instead of 2006.

By mid-1999, over 50 television stations in the U.S. were delivering digital signals. Digital stations serve a wide cross-section of the country from the largest market—New York—to the 90th market—Jackson, MS. By the beginning of 2000, network stations in the top 30 markets will be delivering digital signals reaching over 60% of all television households. Currently, DTV broadcast penetration is 48% in the U.S.

To add to the general melee surrounding the digital revolution, most consumers have no clear understanding of HDTV. Many believe that DVDs are the same as, or compatible with, HDTV, and some new televisions are being hyped as HDTV ready when they are actually SDTV ready, Digital Capable, etc. Currently, there are only 40,000 HDTVs in the U.S. Many consumers who have HDTV sets are unable to receive the high definition broadcasts launched by CBS, Disney, NBC and ABC because of incompatibility with the 8-VSB format. 8-VSB (8 level vestigial sideband) is the RF modulation format utilized by the DTV digital television standard to transmit digital bits over the airwaves to the consumer.

In the meantime, there is still no proven business model for DTV in either HDTV or SDTV formats. HDTV receivers may be too expensive to mass market for the foreseeable future. An HDTV receiver is far removed from our current analog televisions and each receiver must include the following technology: a demodulator, which separates the digital signals from the analog carrier wave on which they are transmitted; a demultiplexer, which separates the audio portion of a transmission from the video portion; an image decoder, which decompresses an encoded video signal; an audio decoder, which does the same for the audio portion of the transmission; and a display processor, which transforms decoded video signals to various display formats. The future of SDTV (basically digital tv with a picture resolution from 1 to 3 times that of NTSC) is under threat from satellite and cable operators, who are converting their customer base to digital services.

While the details of the digital revolution are being worked out, web tv has made some headway. Apple Computer, living up to their "Think Different" trademark, premiered the QuickTime TV network in July, 1999. QuickTime TV is a 24-hour internet delivery system that provides live and recorded sports, sitcoms, news, music, movies, dramas and children's shows. Apple contracted with ABC News, RollingStone.com, Bloomberg, Fox, Disney, HBO, NPR, VH-1, ESPN, BBC and others to deliver content. Program providers will offer live and rebroadcasted content, some specifically produced for QuickTime TV. Much of the programming offers interactive elements that allow for sub-titles, 3-D graphics, e-commerce and other user choices. As a measure of the site's success, in November, Apple added CNN.com, Financial Times, MTV, Nickelodeon, TV Land and tv-radio.com to its lineup. The QuickTime Player comes standard with Macintosh computers and can be downloaded free from Apple's website. Other notable webcasts of the year included "The Drew Carey Show" from ABC and NFL games available to broadband internet subscribers in Austria, The Netherlands and Singapore.

CABLE AND SATELLITE

As most of the networks lament their slipping ratings, basic cable's annual growth has fallen to an average 1.5%, down from 4% in 1990-1995. The annual growth now seems to be tied to new housing starts, whereas previously, laying cable in previously unserved or underserved suburbs and rural communities fueled growth in new subscribers. MSOs have lost much of their momentum to DBS which now reaches 10 million homes nationwide.

The federal regulation of cable rate hikes, in effect since 1992, expired in March. Since the expiration, most MSOs have kept rate increases to 3%-5%, afraid that further regulation will cut into their already dwindling cash flow.

The largest area of cable growth is in digital package sales. Companies like Cox and AT&T are able to deliver attractive service, packed with new cable channels. AT&T (incorporating TCI) now counts 12% of their subscribers as digital customers. AT&T has also implemented an aggressive new campaign to encourage cable consumers to buy premium channels and pay-per-view. Based on the frequent flier mileage concept, the enrolled subscribers earn points for merchandise with each cable product purchase. As a result of the incentives, downgrades from premium services have dropped 19%, upgrades to digital service have increased 19% and disconnects are down 12%.

In addition to digital growth, the telephone and high-speed internet access market has seen significant increases in new subscribers. Some analysts are concerned that the push to sign-up new customers for these lucrative services is further eroding basic cable, long the MSOs bread and butter.

Premium cable networks are continuing to produce lucrative and popular original programming. At the forefront is HBO with "The Sopranos," "Sex and the City" and "Oz." "The Sopranos" received 16 Emmy nominations in 1999, the most for any show. Included in the nods was its nomination for Best Drama—the first time a program not on a traditional network was up for that award. Cable operators claim that innovative original programming from HBO is among the top reasons customers cite for adding premium channels and packages to their basic cable lineup.

The satellite industry had a balanced year overall. New subscriptions continued at a measured rate and will doubtless be boosted in the coming year by a pending change in legislation allowing satellite companies to provide local station coverage to customers. Until now, consumers who chose DBS had to receive their local stations from either an over-the-air antenna or through basic cable service. Satellite providers should be able to start offering local stations in major markets next year, with service in smaller markets phased in over coming years. On the downside, it was a rough year for satellite launches with several misfires and accidents resulting in losses that will likely be passed along to the consumer.

VIDEO

Blockbuster's status as a Viacom subsidiary is now in doubt. In mid-1999, Viacom sold off about 20% of Blockbuster to the public. It was rumored that they planned to spin-off the rest of the company, which has not come close to justifying its $8 billion purchase price. With its future in doubt, Blockbuster is trying to position itself as a major player in the online video market lead by Reel.com, Netflix.com and Bigstar.com. However, the retooling of its current website which is basically a promotional tool, is some months away. America Online has agreed to invest $30 million in Blockbuster's new online venture.

The U.S.' second largest video retailer, Hollywood Entertainment, beat Blockbuster to the internet punch. In 1998, Hollywood Entertainment paid $90 million for Reel.com, the top online retailer of videos. What Blockbuster and Hollywood Entertainment have in common are plans to shrink store size and focus more on lucrative, low-overhead online video sales and rentals.

The biggest video news is DVD. Digital Video Disks became the fastest growing new media format in history, reaching one million units shipped in 23 months. In 1998, 1.1 million players and 11.8 million disks were sold to consumers. Analysts expect as many as 4 million households to have DVD players by the end of 1999, and as many as 11 million to have them by the end of 2000. The home computer industry will also contribute to DVD sales: it is estimated that there will be 30 million DVD players installed in home computers by the end of 2000. With lower cost, larger screen monitors readily available and higher quality video cards and faster processors becoming the norm, it is likely that consumers who don't yet have home DVD players will watch videos on their PCs.

The video industry is bullish about their ability to compete with Video On Demand and Streaming Video, but it seems inevitable that as the broadcast networks have lost ground to cable and satellite, so too will the video rental market be forever changed by new technologies. All of the technological developments in media at the dawn of the new millennium favor the consumer. It is Corporate America's mandate to find a way to flourish in this newly competitive, exciting environment by expanding their operations to alternate delivery systems and remaining responsive to an increasingly demanding and fragmented consumer base.

CORPORATE HISTORIES OF THE NETWORKS

ABC, INC.

ABC's predecessor, the Radio Corporation of America (RCA) owned two radio networks, the Blue and the Red. In 1941, the FCC decreed that the same company could not own two networks, so RCA incorporated the Blue under the name of American Broadcasting System and established it as an independent subsidiary. RCA then sold this network to Edward J. Noble, and in 1944, the name was changed to the American Broadcasting Company. ABC's first television broadcast was on April 19, 1948 with "On the Corner". Later in the year, ABC scored two "firsts": the live broadcast of an opera (Verdi's "Otello") from the Metropolitan Opera House in New York and a TV documentary, "The Marshall Plan." ABC merged with United Paramount Theatres in 1952. This merger was engineered by Leonard H. Goldenson, then the president of UPT. The new company was called American Broadcasting-Paramount Theatres, Inc. During the 1950's, ABC began to operate at a profit although it had to struggle fiercely to acquire new affiliates. In 1954, ABC made a deal with Walt Disney to acquire a 35% interest in Disneyland and all TV programs produced by Disney. The following year, ABC signed an exclusive rights contract with Warner Bros. for TV programming.

In the Fall of 1962, ABC introduced color programming for the fall season which was expanded in 1966 to include full color broadcasting. In 1965, AB-PT's name was changed to American Broadcasting Companies, Inc. The 1960's also introduced blockbuster theatrical movies to TV with spectacular rating results when "The Bridge on the River Kwai" was viewed (in 1966) by 60 million Americans. In 1967, the ABC evening news was expanded from 15 minutes to a half-hour, and Joey Bishop inaugurated ABC's late-night talk show programming.

In 1972, ABC was able to operate at a profit for the first time in ten years. In the 1976-77 season, ABC took first place in the ratings race for the first time. In 1976, Barbara Walters joined ABC, becoming the first anchorwoman in television history. The mini-series "Roots" appeared on ABC in 1977 and became the highest-rated program of all time. This helped immensely in the ratings race, and credit must go in large part to Fred Silverman who, two years before, had joined the company as president of ABC International. He left in 1978 to go to NBC.

The decade of the Eighties was a turbulent one for the networks as cable and home video began whittling away their audiences. In 1985, ABC agreed to be purchased by Capital Cities Communications. The merged company's name was changed to Capital Cities/ABC, Inc. ABC held second place in the ratings from 1979 to 1983 when it dropped to third position. It was unable to rise from third until 1987-88 when it displaced CBS in second place, primarily because of the World Series and the Superbowl. It remained second in 1988-89 and 1989-90. In the latter season, ABC had the distinction of broadcasting the most talked-about new series of the period, "Twin Peaks," and the highest-rated new series, "America's Funniest Home Videos." Daniel B

Burke replaced Frederick J. Pierce as president and chief operating officer. There were also sweeping reductions in personnel in the interests of economy and streamlining. Budget cuts notwithstanding, Capital Cities/ABC chairman Thomas Murphy pledged ABC would not scrimp on programming.

Profits at the end of 1990 rose about $70 million. Of the three networks, ABC won the ratings battle in news coverage of the war in the Persian Gulf. For two seasons in a row the network could boast having the only new series in the top ten: "America's Funniest People" (1990-91) and "Home Improvement" (1991-92). Capital Cities/ABC is a partner in ESPN, the highly successful cable TV sports channel and two other cable TV services—Arts & Entertainment and Lifetime. ABC was the only network in the 1992-93 season to gain ground, moving into second place behind CBS, from its previous third place standing. During the season, Robert A. Iger became the new network president. The network was the first to sign a deal with a cable operator (in this case Continental Cablevision) allowing its stations to be carried on cable without paying a fee. In 1994, the company signed an affiliation deal with E.W.Scripps Company to switch several of their stations over to ABC.

The big event of 1995 was the $19 billion acquisition of Capital Cities/ABC by the Walt Disney Company, said to be the second largest corporate takeover in history. In 1997, Ted Harbert resigned as entertainment chairman of ABC after 20 years with the network. At the end of the 1996-97 season, "Roseanne", one of ABC's sitcom staples, was discontinued after nine years on the air. The producers of ABC's "Home Improvement" sued the program's distributor, Walt Disney, alleging that a $3 million per episode renewal was in essence a sweetheart deal benefiting Disney. A lawsuit against the ABC news program Prime Time Live by the supermarket chain Food Lion for trespass, fraud and breach of fiduciary duty was decided in favor of the supermarket by a North Carolina jury. Producers for the evening news magazine were hired undercover as clerks by the chain in order to expose the sales of spoiled food and unsanitary food handling practices by Food Lion, which did not dispute the findings of the investigative report, but instead claimed that the practice of sending in undercover reporters constituted fraud.

ABC's ratings soared when it broke the news in January 1998, that sex-allegations were made by intern Monica Lewinsky involving President Clinton. Apparently continuing a trend started by the O.J. Simpson trial & elevated by the death of Princess Diana in September 1997, news proved very successful in attracting viewers. Despite its brief victory in the ratings war, the network was scheduled to go through a complete transformation for the 1998-99 season, after losing its number two slot among 18-49 year olds, to Fox. For the new season, the network was to introduce remakes of old shows such as "The Mary Tyler Moore Show" and "Fantasy Island," have "Sports Night" for male viewers, and air about 20 made for tv movies and miniseries.

ABC finished third in the 1998-1999 ratings war, in spite of their relentless self-promotion and critical acclaim for new shows like "Sports Night." With the 1999 departure of the embattled Jamie Tarses, it remains to be seen whether ABC's next programmer is able to resurrect the network's ratings. ABC's only blue-chip program is Monday Night Football for which Disney paid the NFL $9.2 billion through the year 2005. In July, 1999, in an effort to reduce programming expenses, Disney combined ABC with Disney's television-production studio in order to slot more shows made by Disney onto ABC's prime-time schedule.

CBS (COLUMBIA BROADCASTING SYSTEM, INC.)

CBS began in 1927 as a radio network with 16 stations, United Independent Broadcasters, Inc., founded by Arthur Judson, a concert tour manager and backed by Louis Sterling, president of the Columbia Phonograph Company. Later other investors were invited in, the most prominent of whom was William S. Paley. On September 26, 1928, at the age of 27, Paley became president of the firm whose name was changed to the Columbia Broadcasting System. Paley introduced many innovations to radio broadcasting, the most significant of which was the signing of an agreement in 1931 with Paramount Pictures whereby film stars were heard on radio for the first time. This laid the groundwork for the CBS policy in television from the outset to feature shows built around stars (Ed Sullivan, Lucille Ball, Arthur Godfrey, Jack Benny, Burns & Allen, Garry Moore, etc.).

CBS was in TV as early as 1931 when it began regularly scheduled TV programming over experimental station W2XAB in New York City. In 1941, CBS began weekly broadcasts of black-and-white TV programming over WCBS-TV in New York. By 1948, it had 30 affiliated stations.

In 1951, CBS broadcast the first live coast-to-coast TV transmission between New York and San Francisco. 1951 was also the year that Bill Gordon designed the CBS Eye which was destined to become one of the most famous logos in the world.

In 1952, CBS opened Television City in Hollywood—the industry's first self-contained TV production facility. "Playhouse 90" made its debut in 1956, but the big event of the decade was the 1951 debut of "I Love Lucy", a series regarded as the progenitor of the situation-comedy. In the field of soap operas, CBS was both leader and winner, virtually monopolizing that market from 1951 to 1956. In 1951, it introduced "Search for Tomorrow," which was to become the longest-running show in that genre. This was followed by "Love of Life" (1951) and "The Guiding Light" (1952), both overnight hits.

In the late '50s and through the 60's and 70's, CBS reigned as king of prime time ratings, maintaining its long-running lead with such successes as "Gunsmoke" (1957), "The Defenders" (1961), "The Beverly Hillbillies" (1962), "All in the Family" (1972) and "Dallas" (1978). Also helping was "60 Minutes" the news-oriented show which, by 1995, had remained in the Top Ten prime time shows for 18 consecutive seasons.

CBS began the turbulent Eighties with a new president, Thomas Wyman (replacing John D. Backe).

In 1985, Ted Turner made an unfriendly bid for CBS, forcing the network to buy up 21% of its own stock to thwart the takeover. Laurence A. Tisch, a former theatre chain executive, had become the major stockholder in CBS when, in 1986, he instigated sweeping changes in the interests of cost-cutting and efficiency. 700 jobs were eliminated at the CBS Broadcast Group. Tisch also removed Wyman as president, named himself chief executive officer and induced founder William Paley to return to active duty as acting chairman of the board. It was quite a jolt to the company when, in 1985-86, it slipped to second place and stayed there through the following season. In 1987-88, CBS came in third for the first time in TV history. In 1988, Tisch shuffled executive ranks again, naming Howard Stringer, previously president of CBS News, president of the Broadcasting Group. The network's new management team sought to devise a strategy to pull the network out of its decline in the prime-time ratings. Jeff Sagansky, former head of Tri-Star Pictures, was brought in as president of the entertainment division in 1990.

Starting in 1991-92, CBS became the number one network for three years in a row based on the success of such shows as "60 Minutes" (the number one show for both '91-'92 and '92-'93), "Murphy Brown," "Murder She Wrote," and "Northern Exposure." CBS was hit hard by Fox's 1994 purchase of twelve stations from New World Communications, losing eight affiliates.

However, the following summer, Westinghouse Electric Corp. acquired the final independent network for $5.4 billion creating the largest collection of tv and radio stations in America. The 1994-95 season was a low point for the network as it plunged from number one to number three. By season's end, CBS had the dubious distinction of being the first of the three majors to fall into 4th place, coming in below Fox for the last week before the debut of the 1995-96 season. In late 1995, the venerable news program "60 Minutes" and CBS came under fire for refusing to air a controversial segment on the tobacco industry. Critics of CBS alleged that the network capitulated to the threat of legal action, rather than actual litigation. During this season the network placed third again. In 1997 CBS station group president Peter Lund was replaced by CBS radio president, Mel Karmazin.

Continuing the unpleasant trend of the last several years, CBS continued to lose viewers in all the age groups but the 60+. In the middle of 1998, Mel Karmazin made public the restructuring of CBS. Because of the network's failure to turn a profit, the radio and billboard companies which account for 60% of CBS' profits, were to be transferred into Infinity, thereby making the TV operations easier to sell, if need be. Infinity Broadcasting was sold by Karmazin to CBS in 1996 after trying to buy the Eye's radio stations himself. Two years later, the company is several times its former size, and it will have the cash to grow even more as a result of the CBS deal. Although the CBS president denied considering a TV sale, others have admitted that the sale has not been ruled out. Because of the network's questionable future, president & CEO of CBS TV, Leslie Moonves, was pressured to deliver successful primetime programming for the 1998-99 season. With the end of expensive shows such as "Cybill" and "Murphy Brown," Karmazin announced that the fall's lineup was considerably less costly than the previous year's. And, with shows such as "King of Queens" and "L.A. Docs" scheduled for the fall, analysts foresaw the possible resurrection of CBS.

In 1999, CBS merged with Viacom. Viacom paid $37 billion in stock for the network, making the combined company the third largest media group in the U.S. Mel Karmazin will become the President & COO of Viacom under Chairman, Sumner Redstone.

CBS came in first in the 1998-99 ratings war, but still has a viewing demographic older than the 18-49 year old group prized by advertisers. Many of its new shows, however, should attract a younger audience. CBS renewed its contract for men's NCAA basketball, securing the lucrative franchise through 2013.

FOX BROADCASTING COMPANY

Fox Broadcasting, a subsidiary of Rupert Murdoch's News Company and owner of Twentieth Century-Fox, began broadcasting with the late night "Late Show with Joan Rivers" on October 9, 1986. The next year, on April 5, 1987, the fledgling network began prime-time broadcasts on Sunday nights only. The initial line-up consisted of "Married With Children" and "The Tracey Ullman Show", which featured animated interludes of a dysfunctional cartoon family named the Simpsons. Three new shows were added in the following weeks, including "21 Jump Street", which helped launch the career of actor Johnny Depp. In July of that year, Fox launched a Saturday night prime time line up. From 1989 to 1993, the network steadily added programming and expanded its prime time coverage to a full seven nights a week. Originally the network aimed its programming at a young urban demographic. Particular attention was given to African-American oriented programming, with comedy series such as "Roc", "Martin", "Living Single" and "In Living Color" (a weekly comedy-variety show which showcased not only the talents of Keenan Ivory Wayans and his brother Damon Wayans, but also comedian Jim Carrey). The youth market was provided with its first soap opera with "Beverly Hills 90210", and its successful spin-off "Melrose Place". Fox consistently programmed "risky" shows, even in the face of boycotts, most notably aimed at "Married With Children" and "Beverly Hills 90210". The network, feeling strong about its programming, slotted "The Simpsons" against NBC's top-rated sitcom "The Cosby Show" in 1991.

The network was also actively pursuing sports programming. In 1993, Fox won the rights to NFL football for four years, including the rights to 1997's Super Bowl XXXI. In 1994, Fox acquired the rights to broadcast NHL hockey and in 1995, Fox signed an agreement with Major League Baseball to broadcast weekly games, the 1996, 1998 and 2000 World Series, and 1997 and 1999 All Star Games.

1994 saw the creation of FX Networks. In June, FX, a general entertainment basic cable network was launched, featuring marquee sports events, series and films. In October, fXM (Movies From Fox) was initiated to show Twentieth Century Fox films unedited and commercial free.

Also in 1994, Fox premiered "The X-Files", a fiction series dedicated to exploring the bizarre, the unusual and the paranormal, all with a slant aimed at conspiracy buffs. It took a season to achieve ratings success, but "The X-Files" has become one of the most popular series on Fox and is fast becoming the most imitated series on television. All of these programming decisions and experiments have paid off. In the 1994-95 broadcast season Nielsen ratings, Fox finished ahead of pioneer network CBS. Fox beat CBS yet again in November 1995. On October 7, 1996, Fox launched the new Fox News Channel on cable.

With the appointment of Richard Cronin as president and CEO of the Fox Kids Broadcast network and Fox Family Channel, Fox will be targeting young viewers with "quirky" programs. In its effort to increase its viewership by attracting young people, Fox hopes to also increase the number of older adults, watching along with the children. For the 1998-99 season, Fox moved up its primetime slot on the Fox Family channel, to begin at 6:00 p.m. instead of 8:00 p.m., and introduced four new dramas and two comedies, catering to the age group Fox is relying on to push its ratings up.

Fox continues to be the only network showing any real growth and continued its youth oriented programming—the recipe for its past success—in the 1999-2000 season. But with the X-Files in its last season and several shows being dropped from its primetime lineup, the mid-season replacement will have to be attractive in order for Fox to hold at fourth place.

NBC, INC.

NBC was an outgrowth of Radio Corp. of America, General Electric and Westinghouse. These three companies jointly launched a network in 1926 with 31 stations; 25 in a network called Red and 6 in a network called Blue. A year later, it was forced to sell the Blue network to ABC, keeping for itself the one known as Red. Television began for NBC in 1928, when on April 4, it acquired from the Federal Communications Commission a permit to operate an experimental station, W2XBS. Actual transmission from the Empire State Building did not begin until October 30, 1931. Eight years later, the network began broadcasting on a regular basis, beginning with the opening of the New York World's Fair on April 30, 1939.

NBC became a TV network on January 12, 1940, when two stations, WNBC-TV, New York, and WRGB-TV, Schenectady, New York, carried the first network programming. In June, 1941, the FCC granted NBC the first commercial TV license and a month later it had four advertisers signed up. After World War II, NBC scored two big "firsts." On June 19, 1946, Gillette became the first advertiser to sponsor a TV network show, the Joe Louis-Billy Conn boxing match. That same year, Bristol-Myers became the first sponsor of a network TV series, "Geographically Speaking." NBC can also claim to be the first to introduce coast-to-coast network TV coverage. On September 4, 1951, when the U.S.—Japanese peace treaty was signed in San Francisco, NBC cameras were on hand. In 1952, NBC pioneered early morning programming when it introduced "The Today Show." NBC can also claim the first regularly scheduled network color series "The Marriage," launched in 1954. That same year it achieved the first west-to-east TV transmission with the telecast of the Tournament of Roses Parade in color.

At the start of the 1965-66 season, NBC declared it was the "only all-color network." In 1968, NBC introduced new forms of TV programming with "The Name of the Game," a series that incorporated feature-film elements into a 90-minute show. This then spawned the "NBC Mystery Movie."

In 1972, NBC broke new ground again when it introduced "The Tomorrow Show" shown from 1:00 a.m. to 2:00 a.m. This was a talk program and it demonstrated that in the early hours of the morning something more than re-runs and old movies could be shown. In 1974, another late-night show called "Weekend" was begun. The 1976 NBC telecast of "Gone with the Wind" drew the largest audience to that date for an entertainment program. In 1978, "Holocaust" attracted 107 million viewers and won 21 major awards. Such programs helped NBC in the ratings, but in 1976-77 it fell to third place, where it stayed until 1983-84.

Along with the other networks, NBC moved into a period of turmoil during the decade of the Eighties, fighting off rising costs and competition from cable TV and home video. In 1986, General Electric Corporation purchased RCA (NBC's parent) for $6.28 billion; GE, it will be remembered, helped launch the radio network in 1926 which led to the development of NBC-TV. This brought personnel changes led by the replacement of Grant A. Tinker as NBC chief executive officer by Robert Wright, although Wright was not given Tinker's chairman title, that being taken by John F. Welch of GE. Instead, Wright was named president as well as chief executive officer. Along with its competition, NBC started cutting staff and budgets in 1986. In 1984-85, NBC edged up to second place, and the following year it was ranked number one in prime-time viewing for the first time in the three decades of Nielsen ratings.

NBC held on to its first place standing for the following five seasons, through 1990-91. Long-time hit series in the five-year period included "The Golden Girls," "Cheers," and "The Cosby Show." Despite the network's number one standing, figures showed a steady decline in viewers. In May of 1991, Brandon Tartikoff, credited with pulling the network up from third place 11 years earlier, departed from NBC to become head of Paramount Pictures. When "The Cosby Show" ran its final first run episode on April 30, 1992, it became NBC's highest-rated series finale episode ever. The 1992 Summer Olympics also gave the network its widest ratings margin of all time. The 1994-95 season found NBC on top with its popular sitcom "Seinfeld" and the two most highly rated new series, "ER" and "Friends", both placing in the top ten. During the 1995-96 season, NBC was again ranked the number one network, with four of its Thursday night shows ranking in the overall top five. In the summer of 1996, NBC, in association with software giant Microsoft, launched a 24 hour cable and Internet news channel.

In October 1997 the networks adopted an updated "voluntary" ratings system that uses the letters S, V, D, L, SV, which stand for sex, violence, suggestive dialogue, strong language and non-comedic fantasy violence in addition to the age rating. Only NBC and Black Entertainment Television refused to use the new system. Despite pressure from the White House, Congress and advocacy groups, the network had said that the ratings tread on its First Amendment right, and that there was no public outcry for the new system.

With its star show "Seinfeld" going off the air, NBC was faced in 1999 with the seemingly impossible task of finding a replacement. The network did manage to keep "ER" its other highly successful show, albeit at a draining cost of $13 million per episode. Keeping in line with the demand for news television, NBC's Dateline showed 6 1/2 hrs. of programming about Princess Diana and her fatal accident.

In mid-1999, NBC had to ante up again to keep a hit show. The contract for "Friends" was renewed through 2002 at a cost of approximately $5 million per episode. In spite of NBC's attempts to rally after the loss of Seinfeld, the network slipped to second place behind CBS in 1999. Ratings for the new primetime shows do not look promising and it may take another hit of hte magnitude of "Seinfeld" to bring "Must See TV" back into American homes.

PAX TV

August 31st, 1998 marked the debut of PAX TV, the nation's seventh and newest broadcast network committed to airing family-friendly programming that includes original live-action series, daily entertainment and information shows, children's programming, as well as popular movies and off-network shows with proven audience appeal. PAX TV is a wholly-owned service of Paxson Communications Corp., a broadcasting company whose principal business is the ownership and operation of the largest broadcast television station group in the United States. Paxson Communications Corp. was an outgrowth of Paxson Broadcasting founded in 1991 by Lowell W. "Bud" Paxson, the co-founder and past president of the Home Shopping Network, Inc., who had been involved in the radio and electronic retailing business for nearly 40 years. Paxson Broadcasting, a Florida-based radio group, initially purchased four radio stations in the fourth quarter of 1991-AM/FM combos in Jacksonville and Tampa. Over the course of several years, the Company assembled a substantial statewide radio broadcasting group, and as a result of agreements it had in place on radio stations prior to 1993's FCC rule change permitting radio duopolies, the Company was among the first to exercise its options and expand its duopoly holdings.

By 1994, the company sought to replicate in television its success in radio. Paxson looked to acquire two types of television properties: underperforming, undermanaged network affiliates and independent stations in major markets which broadcast long-form paid programming. In April 1994, the company purchased the equipment and acquired an option to buy its first television property, an independent TV station in Miami. Paxson took his company public in November 1994, through a reverse merger with the American Network Group, Inc., and subsequently moved the new company, Paxson Communications Corp. to the American Stock Exchange. By December of that same year, Paxson had owned or operated four stations, airing a variety of infomercial and long form programming which by January 1995, became known as the Infomail TV Network ("IN TV"). By purchasing independent television stations, entering into time brokerage agreements, affiliating with stations and extending its broadcast reach on cable via "must carry" requirements, Paxson created a national television broadcasting distribution infrastructure providing long form programming.

In March 1997, the Supreme Court upheld the "must carry" legislation, and as a result, all of the company's broadcast stations were suddenly viable as a network and would remain accessible to cable television audiences. In June 1997, the company sold its entire radio interest to Clear Channel Communications in a tax-advantaged transaction, and also during that month, acquired The Travel Channel of which it in turn sold an interest to Discovery Communications, Inc. later that year.

The company announced in November 1997 that it would launch the seventh broadcast television network, at that time branded as PAX NET, on August 31st the following year. The network would feature off-network runs of popular shows including the CBS hit series, "Touched By An Angel," "Dr. Quinn, Medicine Woman," and "Diagnosis Murder," in addition to a number of original programs and theatrical and made-for-television movies.

Between the November announcement of PAX NET and August 31st launch of PAX TV, the company acquired additional television stations and expanded its distribution through cable agreements. The company also added popular off-network and original shows, and hired a number of executives and hundreds of new employees. In May 1998, the company announced the appointment of former CBS president, Jeff Sagansky, to the post of president & CEO and the election of William E. Simon, Jr. to the position of vice chairman for Paxson Communications Corp. Paxson also announced that the Simon family would make an equity investment in the company, and one month later, announced the completion of its offering of $275 million of Preferred Stock.

With PAX TV maintaining positive ratings, Paxson Communications Corp. will continue to focus on enhancing the distribution of its network and the quality of PAX TV's programming.

In 1999, NBC bought a 32% stake in Paxson's stations, with an option to acquire control in 2002 for an additional $1.2 billion. Paxson stations, currently without any news programming, will likely carry NBC news as well as NBC programming in secondary timeslots.

RECENT PAX TV PROGRAMS

1998-99: Little Men, Flipper: The New Adventures, Neon Rider, It's a Miracle.

1999-00: Chicken Soup for the Soul, Little Men.

PUBLIC BROADCASTING SERVICE

In 1948, the FCC stopped issuing new television station licenses. American educators, fearful of the impact of unrestricted commercial broadcasting, pushed for the Commission to hold open channel slots for non-commercial, educational television broadcasts. In 1952, when the FCC freeze was lifted, 242 channels were reserved for educational television. America's first non-commercial educational television station was KUHT in Houston, started in 1953. By 1962, 75 educational stations were broadcasting around the country. As these stations shared roughly the same programming interests, a loose distribution network evolved, allowing locally-produced programs like "Children's Corner" to be circulated among these stations. Most of the programming was produced on a shoestring budget. In 1962, the federal government authorized $32 million in matching funds for the construction of new educational television broadcasting facilities. In 1967, a blue ribbon panel urged local and state governments to increase their financial support of "public television" and recommended that the federal government participate in the production of programming. To this end, the first Public Broadcasting Act was enacted. This law also created the Corporation for Public Broadcasting, a non-profit "steward" of the public funds committed to public broadcasting, and, not incidentally, a barrier against government interference in programming decisions.

In 1969, the Public Broadcasting Service's charter was signed, with its main intent the establishment of a nation-wide program distribution service. 1969 saw the premiere of an hour long, daily children's variety show, named "Sesame Street", which targeted pre-schoolers with fast-paced educational programming and featured live performers, cartoons and Muppets developed exclusively for the show by Jim Henson.

In 1970, PBS' first year as a "network", its programming included series as widely varied as "Washington Week in Review", "Civilisation", "The French Chef" and "Soul!" By 1973, PBS had more than 1 million individual subscribers. PBS and its member stations were responsible for bringing to U.S. audiences critically acclaimed BBC programming under the flag of "Masterpiece Theatre", which included such classics of television as "Upstairs Downstairs" and "I, Claudius". In 1976, PBS began broadcasting closed-captioned programming for the hearing impaired. In 1978, PBS became the first American network to distribute its programs by satellite.

Although some portion of PBS and its member stations' budgets are provided by federal and state government funding and corporate gifts, PBS and its member stations have continued to rely upon the contributions of individual viewers to stay afloat. In the late 1980's and early 1990's, PBS and the CPB suffered an enormous amount of criticism by government officials for an alleged "liberal" bias, and later in the 90's, for not being "self sufficient". Although a notable few PBS series have achieved some financial success in other areas (primarily children's programming in the home video and product licensing fields), it is important to note that the production of most of the all-important local educational and public affairs programming never breaks even. In the face of continuing cuts in government funding, PBS programmers have accepted what may have been inevitable, the inclusion of commercial sponsorship (and actual commercials) in programming.

In the wake of the government threat of fund cuts, PBS increased its effort to achieve financial independence. In 1997, PBS president Ervin Duggan announced that the network would use its recognizable brand to market products and services, such as educational videos and distance learning programs. With this approach as well as using the internet to sell its products and investing in new programming, PBS had a total revenue for the 1997 fiscal year of $239 million; $15 million more than its target.

PBS got caught in a scandal in 1999 involving the sharing of its donor lists with partisan political groups. The GOP complained about the practice, which primarily involved list sharing with the Democratic Party. PBS admitted that it called into question the independence and impartiality of the public network.

UPN (UNITED PARAMOUNT NETWORKS)

UPN began broadcasting on January 16, 1995 as a joint venture between United Television/Chris Craft Industries, Inc. and Paramount Television/ Viacom Inc. The fledgling network's first official hit was the newest entry in the long-lived Star Trek franchise, "Star Trek: Voyager." Paramount TV executive Lucy Salhany was named president of the network. UPN currently broadcasts two nights of prime-time programming weekly, a Saturday afternoon movie, and plans to add an afternoon children's programming block. In the 1995-96 season, UPN debuted 8 new prime time series. Lucy Salhany, president and CEO of the fledgling UPN network, announced that she would not renew her contract when it expired in September of 1997.

Led by the newly appointed CEO, Dean Valentine, UPN's management team had the difficult task of giving the sagging network a face-lift. Not unlike the other networks, UPN had to struggle to keep its viewers in 1998.

The network's audience, consisting largely of black viewers, was angered when in an effort to attract a broad Middle American audience, UPN cancelled most of the shows that appealed to black viewers. And, in what seemed like a second slap, the network premiered the sitcom "The Secret Diary of Desmond Pfeiffer," despite protests from black activists claiming that the show trivialized slavery. As explained by Mr. Valentine, it appeared that UPN's problem was with its specific programming, which does not attract the female or suburban viewer.

The 1999-2000 lineup features several sitcoms designed to appeal to black viewers, balanced by the WWF and a couple of one hour, action shows. It seems that the Network still has not found its programming niche and is struggling to identify and expand its core audience.

WARNER BROTHERS TELEVISION

In the 1950's when other studios were setting their eyes on television, Jack Warner was not interested in doing the same. But in 1955, the television network ABC managed to make a deal with Warner and create the studio's first pact. The agreement entailed a Tuesday night one-hour drama program on ABC, called "Warner Brothers Presents." Three rotating series were featured: "King's Row," "Casablanca," and the TV Western that lasted for eight seasons, "Cheyenne." "Maverick" starring James Garner, was introduced in 1957. The western proved popular with both viewers and critics, finishing sixth in the 1958-59 season ratings and being awarded the Best Western Series for the 1958-59 season, giving Warner Bros. TV its first Emmy award.

Although WB produced and created its share of shows in the 1960s, such as "Room for One More" (the first situation comedy produced by the studio), "The Bugs Bunny Show" (TV's first animated series), and "The F.B.I." (WB's most popular primetime show of the late 1960s), TV production began drying up. With the appointment in 1969 of Gerald Leider as president of WB TV, the studio went through a revival with such shows as "Alice," "Kung Fu," and "The Dukes of Hazzard." The studio also acquired the rights to "Chico and the Man" and "Welcome Back, Kotter" already successful sitcoms, and the dramatic miniseries depicting the lives of African slaves, "Roots."

In 1988 WB acquired Lorimar Television absorbing the series "Dallas," "Knots Landing," "Falcon Crest," "Full House," "I'll Fly Away" and others. By 1989, Lorimar Television & Warner Bros. TV represented the biggest supplier of primetime TV programming to the networks. With the start of a new decade, the Warner Bros. studio appeared to be in good shape. But, the end of the Financial Interest rules, which limited the broadcast networks' ownership in programming and their ability to also produce, put WB in a less than perfect position as supplier. With the fear of falling victim to the networks, newly empowered by the FCC decision, WB began considering a network of its own. The first effort resulted in PTEN, which presented series as a syndicated block offered to stations. In January 1995 and in partnership with Tribune Broadcasting, the WB network took off.

The budding network will be reaching 90% of the country in the 1998-99 season, with five nights of primetime programming. While CBS and ABC have lost audience members in the 18-49 demographic group, and Fox and NBC have experienced only slight growth, WB has continued on its upward swing and increased its viewership by this (most desirable) demographic group, by 60%.

- 1997-98: Dawson's Creek.
- 1998-99: Felicity, The Army Show.

YEAR IN REVIEW

BY NIMRA HANIF

Britain's plans to go digital with television continued to have teething problems this year. Despite an aggressive marketing campaign, digital companies have not been able to inform the British public exactly what this digital revolution is about let alone persuade them to convert their visual systems. To date only about 6% of British households have made the switch.

Earlier this year, digital companies came up with the strategy of giving away free hardware to customers who would then only need to pay subscription charges for the channels they were watching. But the price war that commenced between Sky and Ondigital still ended up with customers having to reach into their pockets to get a real choice of programmes. Ondigital gave away free set top boxes and decoders and scrapped their 20 pound installation charge while Sky continued to charge a 40 pound fee for installation of their free hardware. But Ondigital had the disadvantage of fewer channels and no Sky Sports 2 in addition to the condition that the set top box would have to be returned to the company if the subscription was cancelled.

In effect there were no freebies for those who wanted to watch free to air channels like BBC, ITV and Channel Four in a digital format. Such customers would have to dish out 400 pounds.

Even so, those in the broadcasting business are optimistic. They envision a media revolution in which home television will become highly interactive with viewers being able to shop, bank and e-mail using their television sets in addition to their personal computers.

When Culture Secretary Chris Smith announced that he was hoping for the switch over from analogue to digital between 2006 and 2010, it got the industry thinking that the government was setting a target for digital infiltration in the market. But consumer associations saw the situation in a different way. They felt that the government was being pressured by the heavy investors in digital to rush the public into buying digital televisions. They argue that the target set by the government and the industry does not meet the affordability test because by 2010 the number of television sets owned by an average British home would have increased from three to four and switching the analogue off would make at least three-quarters of the television sets redundant.

A study done by dotECON and published by the BBC showed another aspect of the obstacles confronting the digital switchover – it shed light on the fact that only 55 percent of viewers are interested in the offerings of pay TV such as sports, movies and reruns. This would explain why any kind of pay television reaches a plateau in Britain. So, for digital television to succeed, it would have to make its programming more varied to appeal to a wider audience. Which is perhaps why, despite falling ratings and tough competition, BBC is still the model for other terrestrial and cable channels.

This year Barry Norman, BBC 1's erstwhile film critic went over to Sky but despite a multiplied income he was watched only by 100,000 viewers, almost twenty times less than the audience he had enjoyed at the BBC. BBC lost its foremost sports personality Des Lynam to ITV but its premiere of a computer animated science programme "Walking with Dinosaurs" was watched by 18.9 million people.

Despite assumptions on the part of broadcasters that sex sells, it is diehard, gritty, soaps like EastEnders, Coronation Street and Emmerdale which still top the charts week after week. Another genre which seems to succeed time after time is that of the quiz show. This year's winner was Chris Tarrant's, "Who Wants To Be A Millionaire?" on ITV which made him the most watched television star in Britain..

ITV's decision to scrap their flagship news programme News at Ten left them in a quandary on what to replace it with. However, the most fascinating success story of British television was the triumph of the Bond films retrospective which was screened this summer on ITV and attracted a much larger audience than several Hollywood blockbusters being shown at the same time on other channels. Perhaps this is an indication of how insular the British audience can be despite a steady diet of American films and television.

Founded in 1991, the ITC was created by Parliament under the terms of the Broadcasting Act 1990 to license and regulate all commercially-funded television in the United Kingdom, whether delivered terrestrially (i.e. ITV, Channel 4 and Channel 5) or by cable or satellite, public teletext and certain other text and data services. CANADIAN YEAR IN REVIEW

BY DEBORAH TIFFIN

The total revenue of the broadcasting industry for 1998, including radio and television, public and noncommercial stations, was $4.1 billion. Total expenses, which include programming, administration, depreciation and interest, was $3.99 billion. Of those figures, commercial television broadcasters had a total revenue of $1.8 billion, and total expenses of $1.7 billion.

Available statistics for 1997 show the private television stations with a revenue of $1.71 billion, specialty services with $589 million in revenue, and Pay TV and Pay Per View with $127 million. The television sector of the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation (CBC) showed a revenue of $361 million for that same year. The net income in the television industry after taxes was 5%.

There are 90 private television stations in Canada, which employ 7,801 people, with salaries totaling $484.5 million. The CBC owns 22 television stations -- 14 English and 8 French. Total CBC employees number 10,565, costing the public broadcaster $631.2 million in salaries. There are 43 specialty channels, which employ 2,172 people for a total of $115.1 million. There are 11 Pay TV and Pay Per View stations, which employ 203 people for $12.6 million. In 1996-97 there were only 21 specialty channels.

In 1997, 98.7% of Canadian households had colour television sets -- 5.4 million or 47.1% had one television, and 6 million or 51.5% had two or more. Ontario led the provinces with 4.18 million colour TVs, followed by Quebec with 3.04 million sets.

It is estimated that in the total population of Canada, the average amount of time spent watching television is 22.7 hours per week. Women aged 60 and over watched the most -- 36.1 hours per week -- followed by men 60 and over at 32.2 hours. Women 50 to 59 years old were third with 28.5 hours, followed by women 35 to 49 with 23.5 hours per week. Men aged 50 to 59 watched 23.3 hours, while women 24 to 34 watched 23 hours. The average viewing time of all teens (male and female) 12 to 17 years old was 16.9 hours per week, and all children 2 to 11 years old watched on average 17.9 hours.
