The Editors of this publication have made every effort to insure accuracy and completeness of the information contained herein; however errors do creep in, and all stations did not answer the questionnaire sent to them, nor were all the questionnaires that were returned to us completely answered. While no one person could be expected to know everything about every station listed herein, every station is known by some persons, somewhere. With this in mind and to improve our accuracy and completeness in future issues, we respectfully ask each of our readers to check the information concerning the stations you know about. If you find the information incomplete or inaccurate, please inform us of the correct information.

NOTICE TO BROADCASTING STATION OPERATORS

The accuracy and completeness of this publication is dependent upon your co-operation in furnishing us with the material contained herein. To the hundreds of you who promptly answered our questionnaire, goes our best appreciation. To those stations who did not complete the questionnaire, may we suggest that you check the information concerning your station. If you find any error, or if the information is not complete, would you please send us the correct information, so that it can be incorporated in our next issue.

This publication was as accurate as possible at the time of publication. We believe that you will find very few, if any errors. Check this publication with any other list of Broadcasting stations. You will find it to be more up to date, and more accurate, with information contained in no other publication of its kind.

How To Receive Distant Stations On Your Receiver

TV STATIONS

Various factors influence the reception of TV Signals. Of prime importance is a good receiver. A good antenna installation will improve reception immensely. A good rotor will increase the signals of stations located in various directions from the receiver. TV Boosters are also a great help in receiving distant stations. With the 4 items mentioned, it is possible to receive consistently good reception of stations located about 100 miles from the receiver. Weak but viewable signals (with snow) are heard from stations regularly up to 200 miles distant. Freak conditions prevail at times in the ionosphere, which cause TV signals to skip, and stations located 1000 miles or more from the receiver are received at these times. The best time to look for these freak signals is during the summer months especially around an hour or two before sunset and even during severe thunderstorms. At times the signals are as strong as local stations and are receivable on a built-in or "rabbit ears" antenna.

FM STATIONS

Since the FM frequencies are located between Channel 6 and 7 of the TV Band, the same conditions as explained above regarding TV freak reception and regular reception applies to FM Stations, except that most educational FM Stations are extremely low powered, and do not carry as far as the regular commercial FM Stations.

AM STATIONS

It has been said that no matter how far away or how low the power of an AM Station, under the proper conditions it can be heard anywhere in the world. That may be stretching it a bit, but we have personally tuned in Australian stations of 2000 watts power on the AM frequencies using a very inexpensive receiver, in a congested area of Indianapolis. Also WIRE, a 5000 watt Indianapolis station has received letters reporting reception of its DX and regular programs from listeners in Australia, which is just about as far away as you can get.

Of prime importance is a good receiver. We prefer a communications type receiver for our distant listening. Such a receiver may be obtained for less than $50.00 at your local Electronics store. It offers good separation of stations, and is powerful enough to bring in stations coast to coast, even with just a small cloth covered wire antenna stretched out on the floor. Most of the newer auto radios are very sensitive and selective. We have picked up good clear signals from Cuba, Mexico, etc, right downtown in Indianapolis. Of course the more expensive Communication Receivers offer better station separation, and are more powerful, have better tone, and offer other features which make them worth the extra expense to the confirmed and experienced DX listener. A location free from interference and a good antenna are a big help in getting distant an unusual stations.

Freak reception is noticeable on the AM Radio stations, but not as pronounced as in FM or TV reception; however there is a definite difference in reception from hour to hour, day to day, and season to season. Winter is the best time of year and generally speaking, a clear, cold night is the very best time of all, since thunderstorms, and lightning cause static.

During daylight hours, your reception is usually limited to stations within 200 -300 miles, depending upon the power of the station. You will note that many stations operate during the daytime only. At about sunset, when these stations are signing off, is a good time to pick up some unusual stations. Here in Indianapolis, we can frequently pick up WVMI, Biloxi, Miss., WDCL, Tarpon Springs, Fla., etc., as they sign off at sunset. It is interesting to stay on one frequency an entire day. During daylight, you will hear a station; then after it signs off, you may hear another station to the west of you sign off 15 minutes later, then another, farther west. During the early evening a Cuban station may come in strong. Later in the evening a station in Canada, followed by a station in Mexico. After midnight, a station on the west coast may be heard clearly after most of the other stations have signed off. Perhaps a Texas or New York station may operate 24 hours a day, and come in about 3 am. Just before daybreak, the eastern stations will begin to come on the air, first a Virginia or Carolina Station, followed 15 minutes later by a Kentucky or Tennessee station and so on until the daytime only station that you hear all day long returns to the air. In a 24 hour period you may hear as many as 20 or 25 stations on the same frequency fairly regularly. Due to freak atmospheric conditions, directional receiving and transmitting antennas, along with various stations testing new equipment (usually between 1 am and 4 am local time) it is possible to receive every station listed in this publication. If you do, though you will be the first one.

Should you desire to follow DX listening as a hobby, (DX is the hobby of receiving distant stations) there are several good DX Clubs which can give you information and hints on the pursuit of the elusive stations, and information on how to receive verifications from the various stations. Write to:

NEW PRODUCTS REVIEW

MODEL RC-103

The Regency Televerter is manufactured by I. D. E. A., Inc.
7900 Pendleton Pike, Indianapolis, Indiana, U. S. A.

We have tested the Regency Televerter for several weeks. The Televerter is easily installed on any TV receiver, by connecting it to the antenna post of the TV set, then reconnecting the antenna to the Televerter. In tests with a "rabbit ears" antenna, and with an attic mounted conical antenna, we noticed no difference in the operation of the TV receiver with the Televerter attached. Local FM stations were tuned in and good reception received at all times. After 3 months operation, the small batteries (the only extra cost item needed) were still in good operating condition.

The only possible criticism of the Televerter is that it requires the entire TV set to be in operation. Electronics experts recommend that the picture tube be darkened by adjusting the controls of the TV set, which makes any wear negligible. The Televerter can be installed by anyone who can operate a screw driver, and the instructions are clear and easily understood; however we felt that it might be well to inform the buyer that it is VERY sharp tuning, and unless the tuning knob is turned extremely s-l-o-w, it is easy to miss the station desired. After you get acquainted with the delicate tuning necessary, it is no difficulty, however. To operate the Televerter, it is necessary to tune your TV set to Channel 3 or 4, according to the frequency of the FM station desired. At our testing station, we receive a strong signal on Channel 4, and a faint picture could be seen on the screen when the Televerter was in operation. However there was no audio interference whatsoever and excellent FM reception was received.

The extremely low price of the Regency Televerter brings the thrilling static-free fidelity of FM radio within the reach of every TV owner. We personally feel that the Regency Televerter could be to FM radio what the Model T Ford was to the Auto age.
