Thousands of changes will be noted in this issue, when compared to our Issue No. 2. Hundreds of new stations have come on the air, other hundreds have changed their power, frequency, call letters, network affiliation, etc. There are now about 7,000 Stations listed herein.

Due to popular demand, we have expanded this publication with two new features that we have never seen in any other publication of this type. Hundreds of letters have been received in the past, complimenting us on the completeness and accuracy of "Jones - Listings". Now with the addition of FM stations being listed by frequency, showing the Effective Radiated Power of each station; FM DXing should be much more interesting. Of course in a medium as recently developed as FM radio, changes are quite frequent. We have not attempted to indicate power changes, so you will find that at the time of going to press some of the FM stations will be operating with a different power than that shown, as the power shown is that for which the station has a construction permit for, while they may operate for several months at the old power, while building their new transmitter. As FM DXers know, the height of the antenna also influences the reception of FM.

Our second new "first time known" feature, is the new completely integrated Alphabetical Listing By Call Letters, which lists AM, FM and TV stations in one big list. All other lists we have seen lists each group separately. We believe that many uses for such an integrated list will be found by those interested in broadcasting. We have also included for our first time the frequency and channel for each station in the Alphabetical Call Letter Listings.

In our previous listings we indicated that we would publish quarterly, however demand has indicated that a good annual issue would be much better received. We also indicated that we would consider including a list of Short Wave Stations. Due to unsettled World conditions and language problems, along with time problems, plus the fact that we are not personally active in Short Wave Listening, although we do enjoy listening at times, we have decided to leave the Short Wave Stations to such publications as indicated on page 20.

We are always interested in the comments of our readers and read each letter with delight. We appreciate the confidence our readers have demonstrated, by patiently waiting for this issue. Even though a delay of over a year was experienced, those who asked for refunds were very few, and most of them wished to be notified when we finally achieved publication. Since this is now a once a year publication, we have credited all monies to each subscription account, and will refund any excess or apply it on the next issue, as you notify us. As most of you know, there has been no profit in this venture, there may be some day--there would be if just twice as many bought the publication. It is definitely a labor of love, and the reward in feel that a job has been well done is almost as good as a profit, so please remember that we appreciate the kind words that you send us also the kind words you say about us to others.

How To Receive Distant Stations On Your Receiver

TV STATIONS

Various factors influence the reception of TV Signals. Of prime importance is a good receiver. A good antenna installation will improve reception immensely. A good rotator will increase the signals of stations located in various directions from the receiver. TV Boosters are also a great help in receiving distant stations. With the 4 items mentioned, it is possible to receive consistently good reception of stations located about 100 miles from the receiver. Weak but viewable signals (with snow) are heard from stations regularly up to 200 miles distant. Freak conditions prevail at times in the ionosphere, which cause TV signals to skip, and stations located 1000 miles or more from the receiver are received at these times. The best time to look for these freak signals is during the summer months especially around an hour or two before sunset and even during severe thunderstorms. At times the signals are as strong as local stations and are receivable on a built-in or "rabbit ears" antenna.

FM STATIONS

Since the FM frequencies are located between Channel 6 and 7 of the TV Band, the same conditions as explained above regarding TV freak reception and regular reception applies to FM Stations, except that most educational FM Stations are extremely low powered, and do not carry as far as the regular commercial FM Stations.

AM STATIONS

It has been said that no matter how far away or how low the power of an AM Station, under the proper conditions it can be heard anywhere in the world. That may be stretching it a bit, but we have personally tuned in Australian stations of 2000 watts power on the AM frequencies using a very inexpensive receiver, in a congested area of Indianapolis. Also WIRE, a 5000 watt Indianapolis station has received letters reporting reception of its DX and regular programs from listeners in Australia, which is just about as far away as you can get.

Of prime importance is a good receiver. We prefer a communications type receiver for our distant listening. Such a receiver may be obtained for less than $50.00 at your local Electronics store. It offers good separation of stations, and is powerful enough to bring in stations coast to coast, even with just a small cloth covered wire antenna stretched out on the floor. Most of the newer auto radios are very sensitive and selective. We have picked up good clear signals from Cuba, Mexico, etc, right downtown in Indianapolis. Of course the more expensive Communication Receivers offer better station separation, and are more powerful, have better tone, and offer other features which make them worth the extra expense to the confirmed and experienced DX listener. A location free from interference and a good antenna are a big help in getting distant an unusual stations.

Freak reception is noticeable on the AM Radio stations, but not as pronounced as in FM or TV reception; however there is a definite difference in reception from hour to hour, day to day, and season to season. Winter is the best time of year and generally speaking, a clear, cold night is the very best time of all, since thunderstorms, and lightning cause static.

During daylight hours, your reception is usually limited to stations within 200 -300 miles, depending upon the power of the station. You will note that many stations operate during the daytime only. At about sunset, when these stations are signing off, is a good time to pick up some unusual stations. Here in Indianapolis, we can frequently pick up WVMI, Biloxi, Miss., WDCL, Tarpon Springs, Fla., etc. as they sign off at sunset. It is interesting to stay on one frequency an entire day. During daylight, you will hear a station, then after it signs off, you may hear another station to the west of you sign off 15 minutes later, then another, farther west. During the early evening a Cuban station may come in strong. Later in the evening a station in Canada, followed by a station in Mexico. After midnight, a station on the west coast may be heard clearly after most of the other stations have signed off. Perhaps a Texas or New York station may operate 24 hours a day, and come in about 3 am. Just before daybreak, the eastern stations will begin to come on the air, first a Virginia or Carolina Station, followed 15 minutes later by a Kentucky or Tennessee station and so on until the daytime only station that you hear all day long returns to the air. In a 24 hour period you may hear as many as 20 or 25 stations on the same frequency fairly regularly. Due to freak atmospheric conditions, directional receiving and transmitting antennas, along with various stations testing new equipment (usually between 1 am and 4 am local time) it is possible to receive every station listed in this publication. If you do, though you will be the first one.

Should you desire to follow DX listening as a hobby, (DX is the hobby of receiving distant stations) there are several good DX Clubs which can give you information and hints on the pursuit of the elusive stations, and information on how to receive verifications from the various stations. Write to:

Newark News Radio Club

AM Radio MAP BOOK

106 pages of Two-color Maps
8 1/2" x 11" (Twice the size of this page)

A separate map for each frequency
540 Kc to 1600 Kc -- 106 maps
Showing the location and power used daytime and nights, for every station on each frequency in USA, Canada, Cuba, Mexico
etc. In Fact every station listed In "Jones North American AM-FM Radio-TV Station Listings".

So up-to-date that it shows the construction permits and approved changes, many of which will not be in operation until after the publication date.

A MUST for DXers. Use colored pencils to shade in the stations you have received, using different colors for stations received during daytime, sunrise, sunset, nights, or on DX or Test programs after midnight. Ready in time for the 1961 winter DX season.

(If you can't wait 'till then, see ad on page 94)

RADIO ENGINEERS will find them useful for locating new facilities and frequency searching!

COMPARES WITH MAP BOOKS SELLING FOR OVER $100.00!!!
(Maps do not show station coverage or pattern, but do show location and relative power of each station)
(After all 250 watt stations have been heard world wide)

PLUS 4 extra pages of maps, printed in light color, for your own use, as suggested on page 94, this publication.
