EXPLANATION OF RADIO STATION PROGRAMMING STATEMENT PROGRAM

CRITERIA GOVERNING ACCEPTANCE

The Station Programming statement must reflect current activity and may be detailed and/or specific, as desired.

Stations are requested to use the standard description terms developed for the Programming Description to assure communication between station and buyer of spot time. See accompanying music glossary and analysis of program classifications.

Limit 100 words, excluding percentage. Percentages are not counted in total word count. Standard abbreviations are permitted. Check word count values on back of questionnaire.

Promotional language is prohibited. Program titles and talent identifications are regarded as promotion. Samples of typical promotional language phrasing listed on back of questionnaire.

Descriptions may discuss programming for typical week, day, week parts and/or day parts.

All percentages reported for target audience, program classifications and/or sub-categories should be against a base of time on the air per typical broadcast week.

Programming description may not contain references to coverage, audience, ratings, power, transmitting equipment, costs, etc.—in fact, any statement which does not actually describe that which is placed on the air for broadcast purposes.

Each primary program classification may be listed, detailed and described as to content. Please do not overlap program description between categories.

For example, music and talk description as sub-categories for Air Personalities should not appear again under the primary classification of Music or Talk. Each primary program classification is expected to report a self-contained description.

GENERAL PROCEDURES

1. Submission of Programming Description by stations is voluntary.
2. SRDS will reserve the right to refuse to print any Programming Description which, in its opinion, does not meet the above criteria.
3. A permanent ADVISORY COMMITTEE, comprised of persons knowledgeable within the broadcast industry, will arbitrate differences between SRDS and stations, when such issues arise. Its primary functions are to make judgments on acceptability of entire Programming Descriptions and/or definitions for new terms and phrases submitted by stations.
4. Stations accept the responsibility for revision of their statements as changes occur, to assure they are accurate and current at all times.
5. A Programming statement which no longer reflects accurate description of current station programming will be deleted if not revised by the station. Summary action by SRDS will be taken only if compelled by station's failure to cooperate in the ensuing inquiry. Stations may submit a new statement at any time thereafter.

This category and the trend music category will in many cases overlap since a given trend will have reached a certain popularity. Categories have been constructed to be inclusive, and music which fits into a more specialized category should be placed in that category. For example, there was an Elvis Presley trend; in addition, many of his selections were current hits; however, a more appropriate designation in this case would be "Rock."

Jazz-oriented: popular music whose accompaniment or whose style shows a jazz influence. This category contains primarily vocals (see jazz). Examples include Frank Sinatra, Andy Williams, Nancy Wilson. Instrumental examples include Horst Jankowski, Peter Nero, Jonah Jones.

Country-rock-oriented: popular music whose accompaniment or whose style shows a rock or country influence (see "Rock," "Country and Western"). This category includes mostly vocals. Examples include Connie Francis, Patti Page.

Middle-of-the-Road: popular music whose accompaniment or whose style shows no specific influence to any degree. Examples include Doris Day, Dean Martin, Robert Goulet.

JAZZ: popular music, vocal or instrumental which is characterized by all or most of the following features: (1) syncopated or intricate rhythms; (2) improvisation;* (3) intricate harmonic and melodic activity; (4) virtuostic instrumentalists and vocalists; (5) a form which consists of a statement of a theme, subsequent improvisation around the melody and harmonic patterns, and a return to the initial theme.

Of great interest in a jazz composition is the performer(s) and performance rather than the actual composition. For example, one is generally more interested in Louis Armstrong than in the actual piece being performed. In addition, one is also interested in the improvisations of a performer and his display of virtuosity.

Jazz was and is essentially a developing area of music, and certain phases of its development have become trends and have certain stylistic features which overlap and are present in other styles.

Dixieland: music associated with the early development of jazz containing the features discussed above with very little complexity. Its features also include simple and folk-like melo-

*There are two types of improvisation, and their distinction is a necessity in the understanding of the various categories of jazz. True improvisation is spontaneous, unrehearsed in the ordinary sense, and original in its musical content (melody, harmony, rhythm, timbre of performing instrument, etc.) There are varying degrees of true improvisation judged by the amount of variation from the original musical content and the amount of complexity imposed on the original music ideas. There also exists, pseudo-improvisation which is distinct from true improvisation by all or some of the following features: (1) passages which are copies of earlier true improvisations; (2) passages which are carefully prepared to sound like true improvisations; and (3) passages which do not alter or vary the musical content to any significant degree.

dies and harmonies, an emphasized bass line, regular rhythmic accents usually 4-4 time, and the improvisation of several performers simultaneously. Typical instrumentation includes tuba, banjo, trumpet, clarinet, trombone, and piano. Authentic Dixieland dates as early as 1902 and includes music with such descriptive titles as "Barrelhouse," "New Orleans Jazz," "Traditional." Examples include Joe Oliver, Turk Murphy, Jelly Roll Morton. Modern Dixieland employs more contemporary melodies (sometimes standards) and instrumentation, with the not always obvious feature of pseudo-improvisation. An example is Al Hirt.

Swing: in general jazz music associated with the swing era, dating from the 1930's through the 1940's. This music is usually associated with big bands (e.g., Tommy Dorsey, Glenn Miller) but smaller groups as well (e.g., Benny Goodman). There are many present-day groups playing in the same style (e.g., Ray McKinley, Tex Beneke). Largely intended for dancing, the rhythm remains very simple and regular, and there is a greater emphasis of smoother and more melodic lines. The improvisations are generally conservative, performed by one player at a time, and the overall volume (loudness) of such groups is much less than with Dixieland in general.

Modern Jazz: in general, jazz as it has developed since 1948-49 to the present, although there are examples which date earlier. Increasing attention is paid to the arrangements, intricate melodic lines and harmonic patterns, as well as a concentration of activity centered around the rhythm section consisting of drums, string bass, piano, and/or guitar. There are four sub-divisions of this category.

Mainstream Jazz: jazz in which melodic and harmonic elements are akin to popular standards but with the following additional characteristics: (1) improvisation, (2) more equal balance between the primary activity (melody, instrumentalist, vocalist, etc.) and the accompaniment. Instrumentation varies from small groups to big bands, either with or without vocalist(s).

The term "West Coast Jazz" has often been used to describe this type, although this category includes music which would not generally be considered to be West Coast Jazz. The terms "West Coast Jazz" and its antithesis "East Coast Jazz," were originally coined to distinguish between jazz as performed by "white" musicians (West Coast) and that played by Negro musicians (East Coast), the former supposedly more intellectual and concerned with lyrical melodies and subtle harmonies, the latter supposedly more concerned with a dominating rhythm section, and a forceful manner of playing. Mainstream jazz may be either if its requisites are fulfilled.

The distinction between mainstream jazz and the categories which follow is based upon the lack of certain dominating features present in the others. Examples of mainstream jazz include Gerry Mulligan, Stan Kenton, Dave Brubeck (see Pop Jazz), Oscar Peterson, June Christie, and Bill Evans.

Bop (BeBop): Bop is essentially an offshoot of earlier mainstream jazz and generally associated with developments of early 1950's in which improvisation reached a high degree of complexity. The emphasis was such that often the music consists of nothing more than a set of harmonic progression around which a soloist improvised. In vocal music of this sort, it was frequently the case that the vocalist improvised in the manner of an instrumentalist, using nonsense syllables in the place of words. "Themes" very often consisted of little more than earlier improvisations around some standard song. Examples include Charlie Parker, Sonny Stitt, and Dizzy Gillespie.

Hard Jazz: jazz very much in the style of mainstream with greater emphasis on a strong and driving rhythm section, but with as much emphasis on the soloist and improvisation. The term East Coast is often used to mean Hard Jazz (see above), although the term Hard Jazz is more inclusive. Hard Jazz is often blues oriented. Examples include Horace Silver, Ray Charles (see Rhythm and Blues), Jimmie Smith, and Cannonball Adderly.

Experimental Jazz: jazz of varying characteristics which employs a good deal of experimentation with compositional techniques, and which has either never reached a level to become a phase, or else which is still too new to make such a decision; Third Stream Jazz, such as Kenton's "City of Glass," is an example of the former, and George Russell, an example of the latter, fall into this category.

Popular Jazz: jazz which may be in the style of any of the above, but which has reached a relatively wide public acceptance. The reasons for public acceptance may vary (e.g., in the case of Stan Getz, the Bossa Nova; in the case of Ramsey Lewis, the strong Rock beat). Examples include Dave Brubeck on "Take Five," Vince Guaraldi on "Cast Your Fate to the Wind." This category does not usually include vocalists (see general popular music, jazz-oriented).

FOLK MUSIC: music which is most often in ballad style reflecting trends, culture, and/or beliefs of the common people, or providing social comment. The music is characterized by a simple melody and accompaniment, often a guitar or other strummed instrument. Although this basically implies a solo singer, this category would also include larger ensembles whose arrangement does not destroy the basic simplicity of style. Authentic Folk Music employs folk songs predominantly of anonymous authorship, but songs such as "Scarlet Ribbons" which are in similar style are included also. Examples of performers of Authentic Folk Music include Pete Seeger, Josh White, Theo Bikel. Contemporary Folk Music generally employs more recently composed melodies, modern instrumentation, and arrangements with a greater emphasis on rhythm. Examples of performers of Contemporary Folk Music include the Kingston Trio, Chad Mitchell Trio, New Christy Minstrels.

Folk Rock is primarily contemporary folk music, sometimes authentic folk music, with a very strong Rock influence. The Rhythm is predominant, and the arrangements may include trumpets, trombones, saxophones, violins. Examples include the Mamas and Papas, Sonny and Cher, and some Beatle recordings (e.g., "Norwegian Wood"). Country and Western, Ethnic Folk Songs, and Rhythm and Blues qualify in this category, but because of their special characteristics are placed into separate categories elsewhere.

ROCK (ROCK AND ROLL): popular music, usually vocal and with a vocal line described as having lyrics of the non-ballad type, employing a great deal of repetition of words, especially those of percussive nature (e.g., Rock, blue, etc.), and with little or no attention paid to grammatical correctness. The music itself is characterized by strong driving rhythms, fragmentary melodic lines, and with little attention paid to refined arrangements or tone quality. In addition, the usual instrumentation includes electronically amplified instruments (electric guitar, electric bass, etc.), a wind instrument (often tenor saxophone), and drums. Especially prominent are the numerous effects employed in the recordings—many electronically produced (echo). Hard Rock and Pop Rock are subcategories, the distinction between the two being a matter of degree. The overall sound of the former is generally more coarse and spontaneous (unrehearsed), and it is not unusual to find screaming and shouting on the part of the performers. Pop Rock employs the same basic sound, but often instrumentation includes trumpets, violins, etc., and tends toward a more polished performance for a wider audience (e.g., Twist, Go-go, etc.).

Progressive Rock: also called Art Rock or New Rock. A type of popular music in which the integration or influence of different styles is not so characteristic as the actual presence of diverse styles usually simultaneously, and in nearly "pure" form. These different styles would include, for example, jazz, rhythm-blues, orchestral music, ethnic music (e.g., Indian), electronic music, and church music. Very often the pieces are sectional, each section shifting to a different mood, tempo, or style. This is in contradistinction to popular music which is predominantly one style but shows the influence of other styles such as in Jazz-Rock or Folk Rock.

The rhythms and rhythm section sound employed in this music are most usually derived from other rock types, hence the term "rock." In many cases, however, examples can be found which have an extremely remote connection to other rock types.

Examples would include Richard Harris' "Mac-Arthur Park," Mason Williams' "Classical Gas," and also most selections of artists such as Simon and Garfunkle, The Fool, Blood, Sweat and Tears, and the Beatles.

RHYTHM AND BLUES: a ballad type song originated by the American Negro, and in this sense, folk in content. Often considered to be a type of Rock, because of the strong rhythmic pulse and the general lack of polish, but the distinction lies in its content. Modern Rhythm and Blues often employs large ensembles and vocal background. Examples include Ray Charles and Lou Rawles. There is a close relationship between Rhythm and Blues and Jazz, featuring singers who concentrate on blues type songs. The presence of other characteristics usually determine which category is appropriate. For example, Joe Williams, a singer of blues type songs, primarily sings with jazz accompaniment (Count Basie), and most probably his records would fall into the jazz category.

COUNTRY AND WESTERN: a general category of music which is often characterized by a particular timbre including instruments such as bass, banjo, violin (solo), plus vocalist or vocal groups. The melodies and harmonies are simple and straightforward. The performances often incorporate regional characteristics either in subject matter (in this sense folk-like) or in instrumentation or vocal quality.

Country Music: music of the peoples of rural areas although there are degrees according to the amount of urbanization. Often connected with and suitable for country dancing. In this category fall Hillbilly, Grand Ole Opry, Mountain Music, and Blues Grass Music, this distinction lying in the degree of urbanization and the presence of particular regional characteristics.

It is again pointed out that certain songs and performances are actually authentic folk music and the selection of categories must be made on the basis of dominating features. For example, most of Burl Ives' songs would be authentic folk as opposed to country.

Modern Country Music: Music retaining many of the predominant features of Country Music in general but which incorporates the current techniques of instrumentation and arranging. Different from General Popular Music, Country-Rock oriented in the degree of influence from Country music in general.

Western: Western music is literally music in the style of the ballad written about western subject matter. To a large extent this definition will encompass many authentic folk songs. The performance relies heavily on strummed instruments, often electrically amplified. It is not unusual to find amplified Hawaiian guitars and ukuleles in these performances.

Semi-Classic (Light): refers either to (a) a serious composition which has become very well known to the general public because of its especially appealing or attractive nature, e.g., Debussy's "Claire de Lune," Rachmaninoff's Piano Concerto No. 2, etc.; (b) a style in which a particular piece, of either serious or popular origin, is set. Usually an arrangement in this style introduces certain performance techniques (runs, florid arpeggios, etc.) or orchestrations, particularly a rather full texture, which are traditionally associated with serious music.

Serious Music: music which is considered as being written especially for its esthetic value as perceived through performance or listening, in contrast to that which is essentially written for entertainment and/or to accompany another activity. Other terms used to describe serious music include "classical," "good," "high-brow," "art," and "long-hair."

Grouping by historical era

PRE-BAROQUE MUSIC: used here to include serious occidental music written before about 1600. Stylistic terms include Gregorian chant, Middle Ages, Romanesque, Gothic, and Renaissance. Palestrina and Machaut are representative composers.

BAROQUE MUSIC: serious music of the period c. 1600-1750. Representative composers include Monteverdi, Vivaldi, Handel, and J. S. Bach.

CLASSIC MUSIC: generally, serious music written c. 1750-1830, and especially including the Viennese composers, Mozart, Haydn, early Beethoven, and Schubert. The term "classic" should not be confused with the less specific "classical," used to describe all serious music regardless of the historical style. The term "classical" is best avoided entirely.

ROMANTIC MUSIC: generally, serious music written c. 1820-1900, especially including the works of Berlioz, Mendelssohn, Schuman, Chopin, Liszt, Wagner, Brahms, Tchaikowsky, and Mahler. It may also be applied to such Impressionist composers as Debussy and Ravel. The term is often used to describe popular music whose text deals with love, etc. The latter application to "romantic mood" music should be avoided.

MODERN (SERIOUS) MUSIC: commonly used to include serious music written since c. 1910. Well-known composers include Stravinsky, Bartok, Schoenberg, Hindemith, and Barber. The term "contemporary" is also frequently used.

Classification by type of composition

SOLO OR CHAMBER FORMS: types of music most frequently played by solo instruments or small instrumental ensembles; used here to refer to serious music exclusively. Among the most common specific names for such music are: Sonata, Minuet, Rondo, Suite, Prelude, Fugue, Toccata, Nocturne, Rhapsody, Theme and Variations, Etude, plus such dance names as Polonaise, Mazurka, etc.

CONCERTO: a composition, usually in three movements or sections, for a solo player and orchestra. Pieces of this type date from the Baroque era to the present. (Occasionally, the title is applied to quite different performance media such as Concerto for Orchestra, Organ Concerto, etc.)

GENERAL ORCHESTRAL MUSIC: includes all serious music played by orchestras, especially, symphonies, ballet, and symphonic poems.

SYMPHONY: a composition for orchestra, usually in four movements or sections. True symphonies date from the Classic period to the present, although such terms as "sinfonia" are encountered in earlier orchestral music.

BALLET: literally, the theatrical performance of a dancing group with costumes and scenery, to the accompaniment of music, but without singing or spoken word. As used here, the term applies particularly to the music which accompanies such performance. Usually, this music is composed for orchestra and consists of numerous separate pieces, e.g., "The Nutcracker Suite." The majority of the well-known ballets have been written since 1800.

SYMPHONIC POEM: also known as the Tone Poem; this is a name given to a type of orchestral music which is distinguished by its association with a poetic or descriptive idea, e.g., "Don Quixote," "The Pines of Rome," etc. Most symphonic poems are from the latter half of the Romantic period.

INCIDENTAL MUSIC: instrumental music designed to be performed during a play. Properly speaking, the term does not include the music which is played before or between acts (overture, entr'acte), although it now generally includes all music associated with a play, e.g., Mendelssohn's "A Midsummer Night's Dream."

SUITE: a collection of separate pieces designed to be played in succession as a single work, similar to the various movements of a symphony or sonata. The term has specific reference to a type of instrumental form common in the Baroque era, but is often used to refer to a free succession of movements of different types, frequently derived from incidental music (Grieg's "Peer Gynt Suite") or from ballet (Tchaikovsky's "Nutcracker Suite").

OPERA: a drama, either tragic or comic, sung (usually) throughout, with appropriate scenery and acting, to the accompaniment of an orchestra.

OPERETTA: literally, a short opera; the term is commonly used to describe a theatrical piece of relatively light and often sentimental character in simple and popular style, containing spoken dialogue, music, dancing, etc. Johann Strauss, Jr. (Die Fledermaus) and Arthur Sullivan in collaboration with W. S. Gilbert ("The Mikado"), are among the best known writers of this form.

ORATORIO: a large-scale work for voices and orchestra, based on text of religious or contemplative character and intended for concert hall or church performance, i.e., without acting or scenery. Compositions of a similar character but based on a scriptural or liturgical text (Mass, Requiem, Passion) are usually not included under the category of oratorio.

CANTATA: a composite form, especially in the Baroque era, consisting of vocal solos, duets, choruses, etc., accompanied by instruments. The text may be secular or sacred; the latter differs from the oratorio in its smaller dimensions and (usually) less narrative and continuous character of the text.

SONG: a short composition for solo voice, usually but not necessarily accompanied, based on a poetic text, and (usually) composed so that the music enhances the text rather than overshadows it; often called by the term "Art Song." Lied: a song on the German vernacular especially from the 19th century.

ARIA: an elaborate solo song (occasionally for two solo voices, i.e., duet) with instrumental accompaniment. The aria may be a single piece, or be extracted from a composite form such as opera or oratorio. It differs from the song or Lied in that it is usually of greater length, non-strophic, and emphasizes purely musical design and expression, often at the expense of the text.

RECITATIVE: a vocal style designed to imitate and to emphasize the natural inflections of speech, usually accompanied by a small group of instruments. The recitative rarely occurs as a separate piece; instead, it is usually found before an aria, duet, etc. of an opera or cantata.

MOTET: usually an accompanied choral composition based on a Latin sacred text. The term also applies to similar settings of secular texts, or to settings for soloists rather than chorus. Also, some motets call for instrumental accompaniment.

MADRIGAL: a composition for unaccompanied voices, usually one to a part, using a secular text and most often employing imitative counterpoint.

ANTHEM: a choral composition written to English words from sacred sources; it holds a position in Anglican and Protestant churches similar to that of the motet in Roman rites; usually, the anthem is accompanied, preferably by the organ, and may include parts for solo singers.

CHORALE: the hymn tunes of the German Protestant Church; the term is also applied to a style characterized by the various parts (usually four) moving together as chords, i.e., hymn style.

Ethnic Music: the music of a particular race or nation which incorporates the characteristics of that race or nation in language, melodic and harmonic style, instrumentation, rhythms, and customs.

This category of music will include all types of music. Specifically ethnic music will probably fall either into a general popular category or into a folk category.

Religious Music: a general term applied to any music which, by nature of its text, deals with religious subjects, usually the Christian faith. By extension, the term is also used to non-vocal music with similar meditative, musical characteristics, instrumental arrangements of vocal religious music, or music played by instruments characteristic of churches, (i.e., organ or carillon). Religious music may be either church music or non-church music.

Sacred Music: generally, a music of a devotional or religious nature; this term is used especially for religious music of a serious type, e.g., Mass, motet, etc., as opposed to that of a more popular appeal, e.g., gospel song or spiritual.

Gospel song: a composition for either solo voice or ensemble which emphasizes a personal religious experience, hence, a song written from a "manward" point of view to, rather than about, Jesus or God. Stylistically, such music is usually either in smooth, close harmony in a moderately slow tempo (inspirational) or a rather vigorous hand-clapping rhythm (southern style); often the congregation participates freely.

Spiritual: a religious folk-song of the kind originated by the American Negro during slavery days; also, the style of such songs. Spirituals may be either solo or ensemble, accompanied or unaccompanied.

Novelty: a category which includes all music (though primarily popular) which is distinguished from the specific category of composition because of unusual performance qualities. Generally, pieces in this category create a musically humorous effect, e.g., Jonathan and Darlene Edwards, Mrs. Miller, etc.

PERFORMANCE MEDIA INSTRUMENTAL

Electronic instruments: modern instruments which are capable of producing an infinite number of sounds and are especially useful for creating sounds not available through traditional means. Electronic music is a 20th century development; it may include traditional sounds, e.g., Concerto for Tape Recorder and Orchestra. Electronic instruments usually do not include such instruments as organ or electronic piano, whose sound is merely imitative.

Chamber ensemble: an instrumental combination ranging from two to about 25 players; typical groups include trios, string quartets and quintets, and groups as large as the chamber orchestra, the latter usually including only one player to a part. Chamber music, the repertoire of such groups, is limited to serious music.

String orchestra: an ensemble of string instruments ranging in size from about 15 to "101" players; the literature ranges from early Baroque music up to and including arrangements of popular music, the latter usually characterized by lush, full sounds. Besides members of the violin and viol families, string orchestras may include piano, harp or various solo wind or brass instruments.

Symphony orchestra: a large ensemble of instruments (as distinct from the "chamber" or "small" orchestra) consisting of about 60 to 100 players which are divided into four groups: strings, wood winds, brass, and percussion. The repertoire may include Baroque music, though generally begins with Classic music and continues to the present.

Military band: a moderately large ensemble composed primarily of brass and percussion instruments, which, however, may also include piccolos, saxophones, bagpipes, and other instruments suited to outdoor playing.

Symphonic band: a large ensemble composed of wood winds, brasses, and percussion instruments, and often including also string bass, piano, or harp. The original repertoire dates from the 19th century, and arrangements include earlier music as well as popular music. The term "concert band" is often used to refer to this ensemble.

Dance band: usually, an ensemble which usually performs popular music and ranges in size from about 10 to 20 players. It is composed mainly of wood wind and brass instruments, plus piano, bass, and percussion. Often, a few violins are added, e.g., Lawrence Welk, which do not alter the basic characteristic sound.

Big band: a term used to mean an ensemble similar to a dance band, which, however, emphasizes the performance of jazz for listening.

Combo: a term, an abbreviation of "combination," meaning a small group, 2 to about 7 players, which usually includes percussion (rhythm), bass, and/or piano, plus a solo wind and/or brass instrument, especially saxophone and trumpet. Contemporary combos may include more unusual instruments such as flute or oboe. The repertoire is essentially popular in nature, as distinct from chamber music.

VOCAL

Chorus: a large (usually more than 12) body of singers who perform in ensembles usually with several singers assigned to each part. The term includes "choir," traditionally a chorus associated with a particular church. Choral music ranges from the very earliest Pre-Baroque to the present day, and includes serious music, both sacred and secular, as well as popular music.

A cappella: choral singing without instrumental accompaniment, especially typical of Pre-Baroque music.

"Vocal group": a small ensemble of singers, usually only one performer to a part, which performs primarily popular music. Such groups would include the Swingle Singers and Four Freshmen as well as barbershop quartets.

SRDS Spot Radio Coded Contract Regulations

Coded Format for Spot Radio

A code program designed to make it easier to estimate and buy Spot Radio

Regulations, operating policies and procedures common to the greater number of radio stations have been arranged in code form for efficiency in usage by advertising agency personnel and to extend to every radio station the opportunity of listing all of the standard provisions that apply in the handling of national accounts.

The station rate policies and practices represented by code numbers and letters have been selected based on uniformity and frequency of appearance in station listings. Provisions not readily adaptable to the coding procedure and those not appearing in sufficient frequency to warrant codes are retained in station listings.

The SRDS Radio Coded Contract Regulations guarantee that every standard regulation can be quickly identified by number and letter. Regulations have been grouped insofar as possible under related headings. The numbers and letters in each group will come to be associated with their respective headings (such as code 61 under Continuing Discounts).

Numbered codes based on the numbers and letters encircled by station officials appear in each radio station listing under the listing segment number "5: GENERAL ADVERTISING." Note following example:

5. GENERAL ADVERTISING See coded regulations,
General: 1b, 3a, 3d, 4a, 5, 6b, 7b, 8.

Explanation of Radio Media Identification Code

(Developed with the cooperation of the Advertising Data Processing Association)

1. The primary code will contain 11 digits. This seems to be the minimum number possible to classify adequately each vehicle within its medium, properly identify it, provide for expansion, provide for identification of parts, and incorporate a check digit. The 11 digits will have these functions:

Digit 1—Media class (TV, Radio, Newspaper, etc.).

Digits 2, 3, 4—Media subclass (Representatives, Networks, etc.) and/or broad geographic (State, etc.) code.

Digits 5, 6, 7, 8—Sequence code to identify specific unit in class or subclass and allow for expansion.

Digit 9—Check digit.

Digits 10, 11—Identification of specific vehicle parts, such as regional editions, split runs, package rates, combinations. For newspapers, we could identify editions, other rate opportunities such as local supplements, comics, inserts, classified, zone editions. How far down we go depends on interest and need.

Radio Stations will be arranged alphabetically by city within state. Other media parts will be treated within the decimal system (digits 10 and 11).

2. The system is simple and easy to understand.
3. It reflects agency operation and media department needs.
4. It offers long life. Allowances have been made for all known contingencies.
5. It can be easily maintained by SRDS at minimal cost.
6. It offers flexibility and is collapsible.
7. Automatically, it offers a printed, current master list of record since media identification codes are printed in each SRDS issue, changed as frequently as changes occur at no increase in subscription cost. Duplicate sets of cards are available to anyone and will be offered at a fair and reasonable price yet to be determined. Tape will not be possible until SRDS equipment is installed. Alpha sequencing can be arranged.
8. Every media buying opportunity can and will be coded. Whether assigned a primary code or a secondary code depends on the media's presentation in SRDS.
9. If needed, identification and coding of specific rate structures is easily possible.
10. Adequate provision for spacing is present to accommodate new media and changes in title.
11. There will be no need to discard old numbers for those who require these for historical information. Codes can be maintained for the five-year minimum specified.
12. Representatives are fully classified within the primary codes, as are direct sales organizations. Overlapping sales organizations with representatives requires further study.
13. Unique classification analysis is possible for all media vehicles within a media class. Any selective variable can easily be accommodated.

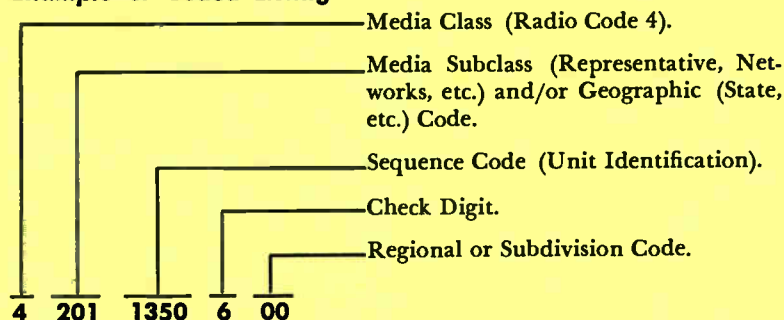

GENERAL COMMENT

1. Codes and code service will be made generally available to anyone. No restrictions will be placed on their use or availability.
2. Users of coding service will be expected to assume cost of any requested service requiring out-of-pocket expense for SRDS. This would include master list, bulletin service, duplicate cards, etc. Primary codes will appear in SRDS routinely. No additional charge is contemplated for subscribers because of it.
3. In our present thinking, SRDS would not assign new primary codes for new media until these new media are listed within the service. To fill the void for those agencies who are involved with media not presently listed, it will be necessary for each such agency to submit to SRDS, for primary coding, the media vehicle name. When received, these media vehicles will be assigned a primary code identification number which will be entered into the master system. These new codes would be distributed through bulletins when no restrictions are set forth.

4. A bulletin service will be created and offered to any interested organization on a fair subscription basis. Subscription price will be related to SRDS costs. Bulletin service will be maintained on a frequency consistent with need.

Example of Coded Listing

Radio Media Class is #4.

000 Representatives (alpha).

100 Regional Radio Networks and Groups (alpha).

201-252 Radio Stations and State Networks. (2) followed by two digit state code. Okinawa, Guam and the Virgin Islands are coded as #55 in the second group of digits.

NOTE: Sequencing; adequate space will be provided between listings for future expansion.

Explanation of SRDS Consumer Market Data

SRDS Consumer Market data reflect the economic status for all states, counties, cities and metropolitan statistical areas. Population and households are estimated as of January 1, 1969. Consumer Spendable Income and retail sales, in total and by store types, are for the year ending December 31, 1968. New farm population data are as of January 1, 1969 and gross farm income estimates for the calendar year 1968.

Market data may be reproduced without charge or written permission, but must carry the customary credit line: "Source: SRDS Consumer Market Data, January 1, 1969.

DEFINITIONS, ESTIMATING PROCEDURES AND SOURCES

Population

All population estimates are as of January 1, 1969 and include all population (civilian, institutional, and military) in the United States. This is the definition used in the 1960 Census of Population. Population figures are shown in thousands, with one decimal. In other words, where SRDS population estimate is 60.1, the figure is actually 60,100.

The sources of data used to prepare the SRDS population estimates include the 1960 Census of Population.

Households

The SRDS definition of a household is identical with that used by the Bureau of the Census; namely, that a household is synonymous with an occupied dwelling unit. It consists of one or a number of persons living together under the same roof.

The January 1, 1969 household estimates were obtained using procedures similar to the population procedures keyed to the official 1960 government housing reports. Population data were also a basic part of the estimating procedures. These figures are expressed in thousands with two decimals. Where the household estimate is 10.33, for example, the figure is actually 10,330.

Consumer Spendable Income

The total or aggregate Consumer Spendable Income for each region, state, metropolitan statistical area, county, and city is similar to the Department of Commerce term "disposable personal income," which is income remaining to persons after deduction of personal tax and non-tax payments to the federal and state governments. (For the complete and very detailed statement regarding this definition, see the Statistical Supplement, Survey of Current Business.)

Each major component of state income was separately estimated and added to obtain projections of total income. Wages and salaries, for example, were estimated by using rates of change in "covered" wages as indicators. The other components were estimated using similar procedures.

Consumer Spendable Income Per Household

This is an arithmetic average obtained by dividing Consumer Spendable Income in the specified unit by the number of Households.

Family Income Distribution

The Family Income Distribution series is an expression of the distribution of families by percentages within each of five income classes. Each family's income is defined as the combined Consumer Spendable Income of all members of the family.

A family is defined as a group whose members are related by blood, marriage, or adoption, residing in the same household. Consequently, a household may contain one or more families.

Statistics of Family Income Distribution from the 1960 Census of Population were used as the base for these estimates. Adjustments for conceptual differences were made with information provided by the Department of Commerce and with tax payment statistics. Updating was accomplished in much the same manner as the updating of our Consumer Spendable Income.

NOTE: The income class intervals for 1968 shown in this issue are 3000 to 4999, 5000 to 7999, 8000 to 9999, 10000 to 14999 and 15000 and over. The sum of the five income classes subtracted from 100% will give the 0 to 2999 class interval.

Retail Sales

SRDS' definition of the term "retail sales" is the same as that used by the U. S. Department of Commerce. It represents all sales and receipts of all retail establishments. Retail establishments are primarily engaged in selling merchandise for personal, household, or farm consumption. Sales include total receipts from customers after deductions or refunds or allowances for merchandise returned by the customer.

The Department of Commerce monthly estimates of total retail sales, individual state sales-tax data, bank debits, and population; and the 1963 Census of Retail Trade served as the basic data for computing the retail sales estimates.

Many states now report sales-tax data. Much care is exercised in using these taxes because of differences and changes in rates since 1958, variety of types of store and merchandise items taxed, and the difference between states in providing data at county and place levels. Monthly and quarterly sales-tax data are used as indices of change. Twelve-month totals are computed and the ratio of each total to the previous year's total is used as the basis for updating the figures. In other states, bank debits and other data are used as the indices of change.

A dagger (†) placed after a county name signifies that the county contains a military installation. Data referring to total retail sales and sales by store type in these areas do not include sales made by commissaries, exchanges and eating places operated for military personnel by the U. S. Department of Defense. (SOURCE: 1963 Census of Business-Retail Trade.)

Retail Sales Per Household

This is a derived figure; Total Retail Sales were divided by the estimated households for the specified unit. It should be noted that a relatively high level of retail sales per household does not necessarily imply high consumption per household. If the city, metro area and/or county attracts trade from a wide area, the retail sales per household would be relatively high due to shopping habits of people living outside the city, metro area and/or county.

Store Types

The sales of seven major store types are reported for all regions, states, counties, cities, and Standard and Additional Standard Metropolitan Statistical Areas. It is important to note that both SRDS and the Bureau of the Census report sales by store type, not by commodity type. For example, foodstore sales consist of all sales made in food stores. They include food sales and also the sales of non-food items. Other stores may sell food items, too, but these sales are reported in their store type — General Merchandise, Drug, etc. SRDS provides estimates for all places for the following store types:

Food Stores: This group includes those retail establishments which are primarily engaged in selling food for home preparation and consumption.

Drug Stores: These stores are classified on the basis of their usual trade designation rather than the merchandise lines carried.

General Merchandise Stores: This group includes department stores, variety stores, and general stores.

Apparel Stores: Included in this group are stores primarily engaged in selling clothing, shoes, hats, underwear, and related articles for personal wear and adornment.

Home Furnishing Stores: This is comparable to the "furniture, furnishing and appliance group" classification of the Census and includes stores selling goods used for furnishing the home.

Automotive Stores: Store types covered are motor vehicle dealers, tire, battery and accessory dealers, motorcycle dealers, aircraft dealers (for private use only), boat dealers, passenger automobile trailer dealers, and related automobile product dealers.

Service Stations: Establishments primarily selling gasoline and other automotive petroleum products.

The sum of the sales of the seven major store groups will not add to the total retail sales for any particular area, because other store classifications are not shown.

Passenger Cars

Passenger Car data were collected from the various State Departments of Motor Vehicles. The reports specify passenger car registrations as of a specific date. All passenger car estimates are as of January 1, 1969. The majority of states reported County breakdowns. However, where only total State data were available, the county figures were pro-rated with statistical formulae.

Farm Data

The Newspaper, Spot Radio and Spot Television books provide county, state, regional and U. S. estimates of Farm Population (January 1, 1969) and Gross Farm Income for 1968. SRDS Consumer Magazine and Farm Publication Rates and Data and Spot Radio Rates and Data carry additional farm market data—Farm Population, Farm Households, Gross Farm Income, Gross Income per Farm, Farm Live Stock Income, Farm Poultry Income, Farm Crops Income, Total Farms, Farm Income by Select Commodity Groups, Total Commercial Farms Producing Sales over $2,500 (1964), Land Crop Harvested (1964), Total Farm Tractors (1964).

These data are the latest available from the Department of Agriculture. Farm mergers, consolidations and changes in ownership make it impractical to up-date the figures on a yearly basis. These data therefore are included in SRDS tabulations as a matter of convenience or reference for buyers of media. More detailed data are available from the U. S. Department of Agriculture.

Farm Population: Estimates are as of January 1, 1969 and include all persons residing on farms.

There has been a change in the basic definition of farm population as developed by the Census Bureau. This revised definition reflects a substantial decline in the number of people reported residing on farms. The rural population is subdivided into the rural-farm population, which comprises all rural residents living on farms, and the rural-nonfarm population, which comprises the remaining rural population. In the 1960 Census, the farm population consists of persons living in rural territory on places of 10 or more acres from which sales of farm products amounted to $50 or more in 1959 or on places of less than 10 acres from which sales of farm products amounted to $250 or more in 1959.

Gross Farm Income: This includes all cash receipts from farm marketings, income in kind (value of items grown and consumed on the farm) and government payments. Expenses and taxes have not been deducted from the gross figures.

MARKET AREAS INCLUDED

Cities

All places reported (cities, villages, boroughs) are estimated as of January 1, 1969. Cities which cross county lines are listed in the county that has the larger share of the city's population.

Cities which are shown as multiple or combined city markets are listed with the first city in the combination. When these cities are in more than one county the combination is listed in each of the applicable counties.

Counties

All counties shown in the 1960 Census of Population are included as determined by the Bureau of Census.

In order that users may compile state summaries by adding all counties within the state, data for independent cities (those which are not included in any county) have been added to their adjoining counties. Baltimore and St. Louis are independent cities and their data are added to their respective counties. The state of Virginia has 38 cities in this category.

Standard Metropolitan Statistical Areas

SRDS reports ALL Standard Metropolitan Statistical Areas as determined by the Bureau of the Budget. SRDS Consumer Market staff has also developed Additional Standard Metropolitan Statistical Areas based upon similar criteria as used by the Bureau of the Budget.

The definitions and titles of standard metropolitan statistical areas are established by the Bureau of the Budget with the advice of the Federal Committee on Standard Metropolitan Statistical Areas. This Committee is composed of representatives of the major statistical agencies of the Federal Government.

CRITERIA FOLLOWED IN ESTABLISHING STANDARD METROPOLITAN STATISTICAL AREAS

The definition of an individual standard metropolitan statistical area involves two considerations; first, a city or cities of specified population to constitute the central city and to identify the county in which it is located as the central county; and, second, economic and social relationships with contiguous counties which are metropolitan in character, so that the periphery of the specific metropolitan area may be determined. Standard metropolitan statistical areas may cross State lines, if this is necessary in order to include qualified contiguous counties.

Population Criteria

1. Each standard metropolitan statistical area must include at least:

- (a) One city with 50,000 or more inhabitants, or
- (b) Two cities having contiguous boundaries and constituting, for general economic and social purposes, a single community with a combined population of at least 50,000, the smaller of which must have a population of at least 15,000.

2. If two or more adjacent counties each have a city of 50,000 inhabitants or more (or twin cities under 1 (b)) and the cities are within 20 miles of each other (city limits to city limits), they will be included in the same area unless there is definite evidence that the two cities are not economically and socially integrated.

Criteria of Metropolitan Character

The criteria of metropolitan character relate primarily to the attributes of the county as a place of work or as a home for a concentration of nonagricultural workers. Specifically, these criteria are:

3. At least 75% of the labor force of the county must be in the nonagricultural labor force.

4. In addition to criterion 3, the county must meet at least one of the following conditions:

- (a) It must have 50% or more of its population living in contiguous minor civil divisions with a density of at least 150 persons per square mile, in an unbroken chain of minor civil divisions with such density radiating from a central city in the area.
- (b) The number of nonagricultural workers employed in the county must equal at least 10% of the number of nonagricultural workers employed in the county containing the largest city in the area, or be the place of employment of 10,000 nonagricultural workers.
- (c) The nonagricultural labor force living in the county must equal at least 10% of the number of the nonagricultural labor force living in the county containing the largest city in the area, or be the place of residence of a nonagricultural labor force of 10,000.

5. In New England, the city and town are administratively more important than the county, and data are compiled locally for such minor civil divisions. Here, towns and cities are the units used in defining standard metropolitan statistical areas. In New England, because smaller units are used and more restricted areas result, a population density criterion of at least 100 persons per square mile is used as the measure of metropolitan character.

Criteria of Integration

The criteria of integration relate primarily to the extent of economic and social communication between the outlying counties and central county.

6. A county is regarded as integrated with the county or counties containing the central cities of the area if either of the following criteria is met:

- (a) If 15% of the workers living in the county work in the county or counties containing central cities of the area, or
- (b) If 25% of those working in the county live in the county or counties containing central cities of the area.

Only where data for criteria 6 (a) and 6 (b) are not conclusive are other related types of information used as necessary. This information includes such items as newspaper circulation reports prepared by the Audit Bureau of Circulation, analysis of charge accounts in retail stores of central cities to determine the extent of their use by residents of the contiguous county, delivery service practices of retail stores in central cities, official traffic counts, the extent of public transportation facilities in operation between central cities and communities in the contiguous county, and the extent to which local planning groups and other civic organizations operate jointly.

Area Titles

7. The following general guide lines are used for determining titles for standard metropolitan statistical areas:

- (a) The name of the standard metropolitan statistical area is that of the largest city.
- (b) The addition of up to two city names may be made in the area title, on the basis and in the order of the following criteria:

- (1) The additional city or cities have at least 250,000 inhabitants.
- (2) The additional city or cities have a population of one-third or more of that of the largest city and a minimum population of 25,000, except that both city names are used in those instances where cities qualify under criterion 1 (b).

(c) In addition to city names, the area titles will contain the name of the State or States included in the area.

In the regular ranking tables, the New England Standard Metropolitan Statistical Areas are ranked on town and not county definitions. However, since some users have indicated a preference for New England Metropolitan Statistical Areas built along county lines, these data are shown following the official township Metro Area ranking. The New England Metropolitan Areas are reported in the state sections, both on the official Bureau of the Budget definition and on the county concept.

The ranking tables enable buyers to measure, compare and/or combine the marketing data of the Standard Metropolitan Statistical Areas which represent the major concentrations of population.

Standard Metropolitan Statistical Areas are listed in the State-County-City section. Each follows the corporate city data.

SRDS Additional Standard Metropolitan Statistical Areas

Because of the rigid structure of the Government's requirements for SMSA designation, many markets, which are, in fact, "metropolitan in character" do not qualify under the Government's criteria. There are many factors other than central city population size (the main government requirement) which reflect the urbanization of a market. One of these is the Total Retail Sales of the central city.

Therefore, SRDS designates "Additional SMSA's" which, in our opinion, are "metropolitan in character," and meet either one of the two following requirements:

1. The central city has 45,000 or more inhabitants, as estimated by SRDS
- OR
2. The central city has 40,000 or more inhabitants, and Total Retail Sales volume which SRDS feels justifies metropolitan status.

In its current "Additional SMSA" designations, the Total Retail Sales volume bench mark was $100 million.

Both Standard Metropolitan Statistical Areas and Additional Standard Metropolitan Statistical Areas are integrated in the ranking tables and state tables.

Ranking Tables

To show the relationship of each of these areas, ranking tables have been provided on the following:

1. Population
2. Households
3. Consumer Spendable Income
4. Consumer Spendable Income per Household
5. Total Retail Sales
6. Retail Sales per Household
7. Food Store Sales
8. Drug Store Sales
9. General Merchandise Store Sales

10. Apparel Store Sales
11. Home Furnishing Store Sales
12. Automotive Store Sales
13. Service Station Sales
14. Number of Passenger Cars

Territories

Estimates for population, households, retail sales (including the seven major store types) and passenger cars were supplied by the Economic Development Administration, Commonwealth of Puerto Rico.

All the information included for Puerto Rico refers to fiscal year 1968. The estimates of retail sales were developed using the 1963 Census of Business—Retail Trade as the base. The other estimates were based on information published in the 1968 edition of the "Economic Report to the Governor," prepared by the Puerto Rico Planning Board.

STATE MEDIA MAPS

At the beginning of each state section, a state media map shows state and county lines and daily media cities. The cities have symbols indicating their

TOTAL U.S.

SRDS population estimates as well as indications for daily newspaper, operating commercial radio station, and/or TV station. Media symbols are kept current on either the map or in a special listing with the appropriate state tables. If space is available, the listing will be adjacent to the map, otherwise it will follow the Consumer Market data.

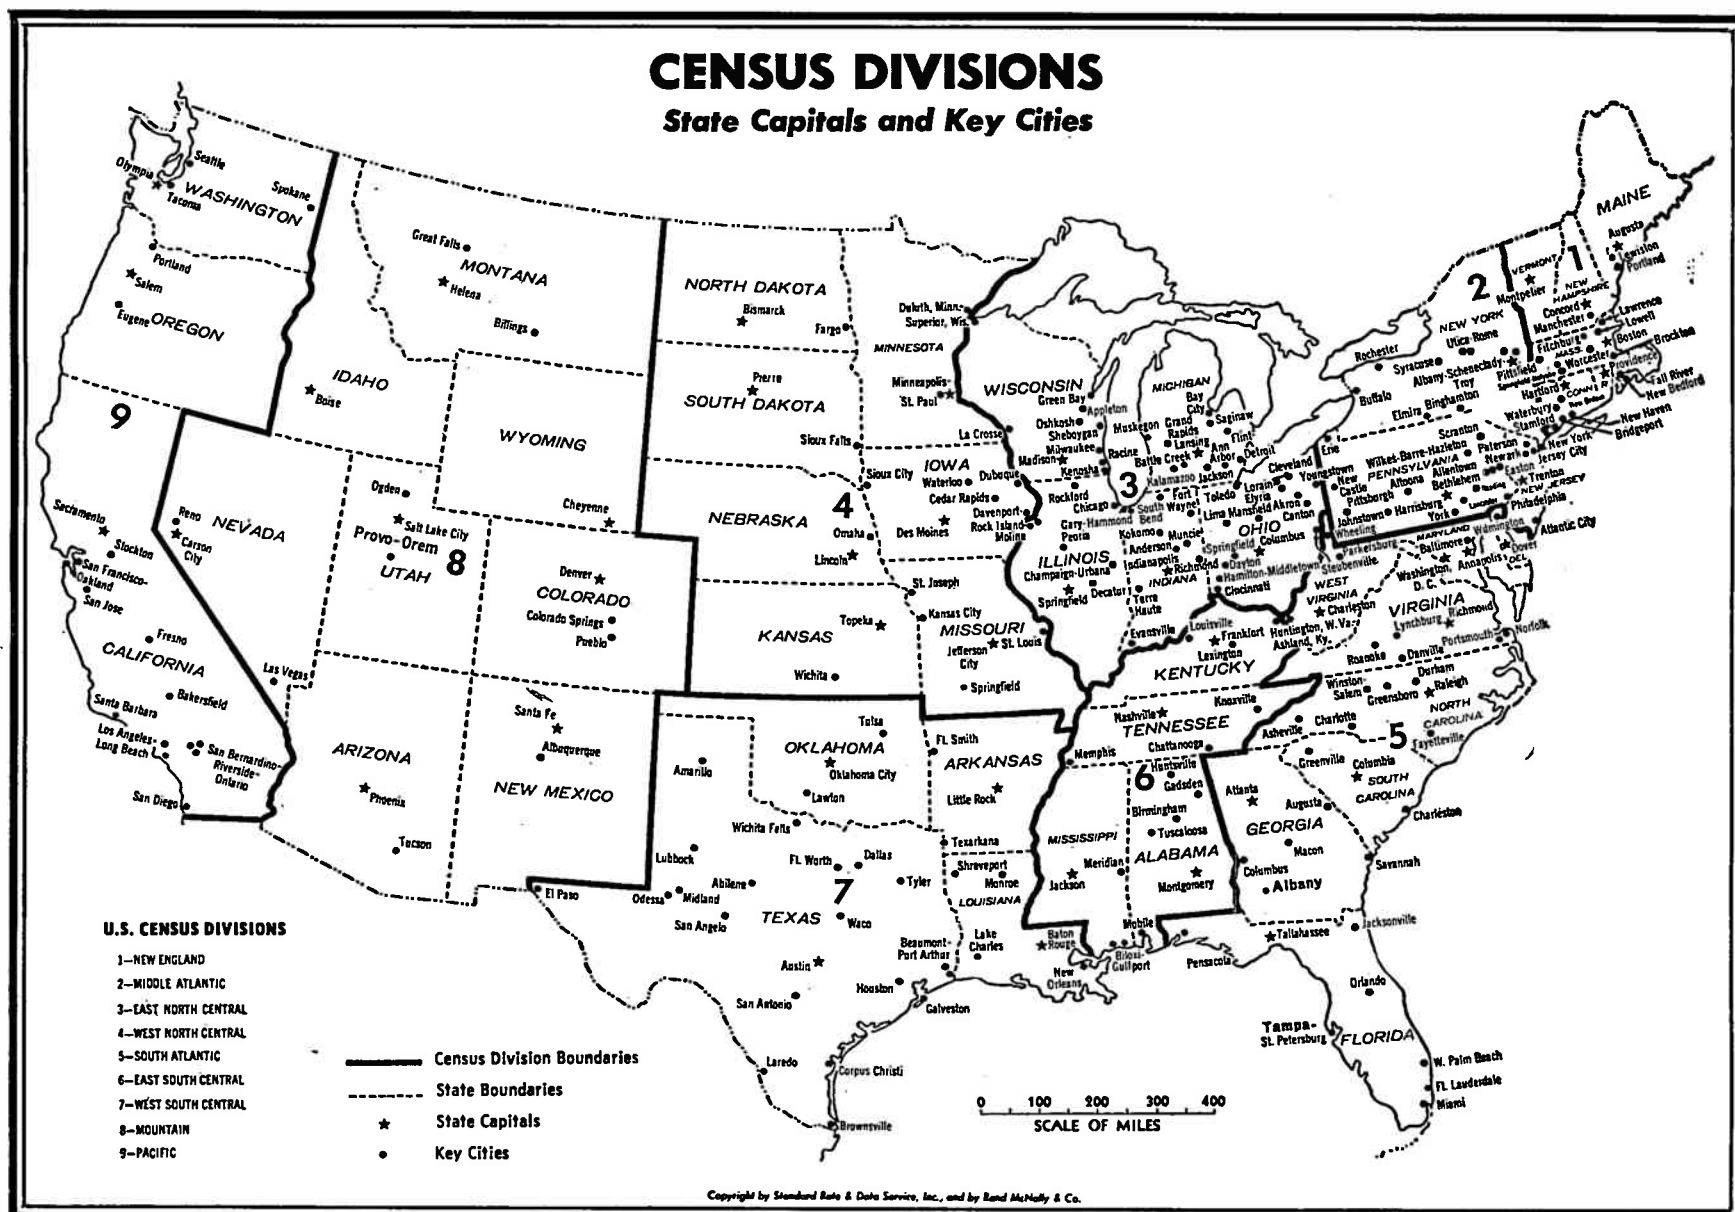

These maps have been made especially for the SRDS books and are copyrighted by Standard Rate & Data Service, Inc., and Rand McNally & Co. Written permission to reproduce any of the maps must be secured from SRDS.

U. S. MAPS

A map showing U. S. Census Regions, States, and Key Cities is provided at the beginning of the U. S. Summary section.

REVISION LOG

From time to time new bench marks become available which make it expedient to revise the estimates. Whenever such changes are made from month to month, explanations are shown on the revision log page.

State, Standard Metropolitan Statistical Areas (SMSA's), county and city estimates are developed exclusively by Market Data division of SRDS.

Revision Log

Monthly, Market Data and Map Changes

SRDS CONSUMER MARKET DATA

Featured in this publication are new SRDS Consumer Market data estimates. Population and Number of Households estimates are shown as of January 1, 1969. Consumer Spendable Income and Retail Sales Volume are reported for the period January 1, 1968 to January 1, 1969.

SRDS CONSUMER MARKET DATA REVISIONS

Monthly publication of SRDS market statistics and media/market maps makes it possible to show current market information, reflecting significant changes as they occur. Changes in market data and maps are governed chiefly by release of certified periodic reports of the Bureau of the Census, Washington, D. C., and new data from other bureaus and local agencies.

PUERTO RICO

Estimates for Puerto Rico were supplied to SRDS by the Economic Development Administration, Commonwealth of Puerto Rico. SRDS plans to include annual updated information upon receipt from the Economic Development Administration. See "Explanation of SRDS Consumer Market Data" for details.

NEW ADDITIONAL SMSA's DESIGNATED BY SRDS

Because of the rigid structure of the Government's requirements for SMSA designation, many markets, which are, in fact, "metropolitan in character" do not qualify under the Government's criteria. There are many factors other than central city population size (the main government requirement) which reflect the urbanization of a market. One of these is the Total Retail Sales of the central city.

Therefore, SRDS designates "Additional SMSA's" which, in our opinion, are "metropolitan in character," and meet either one of the two following requirements:

1. The central city has 45,000 or more inhabitants, as estimated by SRDS
- OR
2. The central city has 40,000 or more inhabitants, and Total Retail Sales volume which SRDS feels justifies metropolitan status.

The actual volume of Total Retail Sales is a "moving requirement," utilizing the effective wage and salaries, U. S. Retail Sales Growth, and other economic factors—hence, the actual figure may change from year to year.

In its current "Additional SMSA" designations, the Total Retail Sales volume bench mark was $100 million.

The new SMSA's, listed below, have been integrated in the ranking tables and state tables in this issue.

Explanation of SRDS Consumer Market Farm Data

Farm Population

All estimates of farm population are as of January 1, 1969 and include all persons residing on farms. The sources of data used to prepare SRDS farm population estimates include basic reports prepared by the Bureau of the Census and the Department of Agriculture.

There has been a change in the basic definition of farm population as developed by the Census Bureau. This revised definition reflects a substantial decline in the number of people reported residing on farms. The rural population is subdivided into the rural-farm population, which comprises all rural residents living on farms, and the rural-nonfarm population, which comprises the remaining rural population. In the 1960 Census, the farm population consists of persons living in rural territory on places of 10 or more acres from which sales of farm products amounted to $50 or more in 1959 or on places of less than 10 acres from which sales of farm products amounted to $250 or more in 1959.

Farm Households

The SRDS definition is identical to that used by the Bureau of the Census, namely, that a household is synonymous with an occupied dwelling unit. It consists of one or a number of persons living together under the same roof.

The January 1, 1969 farm household estimates were obtained by using Census "bench marks" and allowing for growth as reflected by a variety of government reports.

Total Farms

The definition of total farms is the same as shown in the 1959 Census of Agriculture and the 1960 Census of Population: namely, places in rural territory which have 10 or more acres from which sales of farm products amounted to $50 or more in 1959 or on places of less than 10 acres from which sales of farm products amounted to $250 or more in 1959.

For 1959, the decrease in the number of farms as compared with all prior censuses resulted partly from the change in farm definition. The fact that sales of agricultural products in 1959 were used resulted in the exclusion of some places that would have qualified as farms had the value of agricultural products alone been considered. The increase in the acreage minimum also had an effect.

The change in farm definition made in 1950 and again in 1959 had no appreciable effect on the totals for livestock or crops because the places affected by the change ordinarily accounted for less than 1 percent of the totals for a given county or state.

For more details concerning this definition, see "General Social and Economic Characteristics," PC(1)-C series, prepared by the Department of Census.

Farm Income

Gross Farm Income (1968) includes cash receipts from farm marketings, income in kind (value of items grown and consumed on the farm) and government payments. No expenses or taxes are deducted from the figure. Gross Income per Farm is the arithmetic mean obtained by dividing the Gross Farm Income (1968) by the Number of Farms (1968).

State, Standard Metropolitan Statistical Areas (SMSA's), county and city estimates are developed exclusively by Market Data division of SRDS.

U. S. TOTAL NEGRO POPULATION 1-1-69 — 22,755,200

EXPLANATION OF SRDS SPANISH POPULATION DATA

Beginning this year SRDS is reporting estimates for Spanish Population in selected areas of the United States. These data reflect Spanish speaking population of both first and succeeding generations, whose origin is chiefly from three areas:

1) Mexico; 2) Puerto Rico; 3) Cuba. The Mexicans emigrating mainly to New Mexico, Arizona, Colorado, Texas and Southern California; the Puerto Ricans to New York and the Cubans to Florida and Louisiana. There has been, in addition, a significant migration from Latin America (Central and South America & adjacent islands) and countries of Europe and Africa, where Spanish is spoken. These peoples have also been accounted for in our enumeration.

These estimates reflect population for metros, total metros, counties, and total counties — for eight states where the Spanish speaking segment composes a significant share of the total population. All areas listed are SMSA areas, with the exception of Modesto, CA; Santa Rosa, CA; and Longview, Texas. These three cities are SRDS additional metropolitan areas, but are listed because of their contribution to the total Spanish population.

All official SMSA metro areas are listed for the five Southwestern states. For New York, Florida and Louisiana, adequate information was not available, and so we were somewhat limited in these States as to the number of counties we could incorporate into our enumeration.

SRDS would like to recognize the following organizations for aiding us in the production of these statistics:

1) Department of Commerce; 2) Catholic Cuban Center of New Orleans; 3) Department of Justice, Immigration and Naturalization Service; 4) J. Walter Thompson Company; 5) First Research Corporation; and 6) The Amigo Spanish Group. In addition, we would like to extend our thanks to the various state and local government agencies that aided us, the Chambers of Commerce of cooperating cities and numerous radio stations which so actively and generously gave us their cooperation.

ARBACS-ARB's ACCOUNT CONTROL SYSTEM

Your Mountain

Makes a Molehill Out of _____ of Paperwork

SRDS

state
sections

Time savings of from forty to fifty percent in clerical work loads have been reported by current agency users of ARB's newest area of service to the advertising industry . . . ARBACS.

It's a media account control system designed for any size agency. And, it brings computer speed and accuracy to your most complex "housekeeping" problems.

Your staff makes simple entries on pre-printed worksheets. From there, ARBACS draws upon computer capabilities to store, calculate in microseconds, retrieve and print information that is critical and timely for effective control of all media activity.

1. Media placement is simplified and hastened with computer preparation of buy orders . . . even formal contracts.
2. Budget control is maximized as the current status of "expenditures versus budget" is readily available by media, by market.
3. Media payments are streamlined as "actual performance" entries are matched with "as ordered" specifications. Appropriate discounts are calculated for payment totals. The system even assumes the task of writing the checks.

4. Flexibility is maintained with the capability to determine quickly the results of rate adjustments or short rate penalties from potential changes in campaign plans.
5. Documentation is provided for performance status and client billing through regularly prepared summary reports of each activity. Interim reports can be made available overnight if needed.

ARB sets up the program. Furnishes the experts. Trains the agency staff. And, gives continuing advice and counsel. Service is now being offered to agencies in New York, in addition to Chicago, San Francisco, and Los Angeles.

Isn't it time you freed your agency from the growing mountain of paperwork which may be draining your profit? Call Frank Crane, 212-586-7733, or your ARB account executive about ARBACS—the mountain mover.

Radio Household Data

NOTE: County-by-county estimates of Radio Household Data no longer appear in SRDS. With the advent and wide-spread use of the transistor, Radio Household Penetration has reached at least 95% with little variation on a county-by-county basis. There is no way at present to estimate transistor radio ownership — thus SRDS believes further publication of Radio Household Data is meaningless.

Radio Household Data

NOTE: County-by-county estimates of Radio Household Data no longer appear in SRDS. With the advent and wide-spread use of the transistor, Radio Household Penetration has reached at least 95% with little variation on a county-by-county basis. There is no way at present to estimate transistor radio ownership — thus SRDS believes further publication of Radio Household Data is meaningless.

Radio Household Data

NOTE: County-by-county estimates of Radio Household Data no longer appear in SRDS. With the advent and wide-spread use of the transistor, Radio Household Penetration has reached at least 95% with little variation on a county-by-county basis. There is no way at present to estimate transistor radio ownership — thus SRDS believes further publication of Radio Household Data is meaningless.

Radio Household Data

NOTE: County-by-county estimates of Radio Household Data no longer appear in SRDS. With the advent and wide-spread use of the transistor, Radio Household Penetration has reached at least 95% with little variation on a county-by-county basis. There is no way at present to estimate transistor radio ownership — thus SRDS believes further publication of Radio Household Data is meaningless.

Radio Household Data

NOTE: County-by-county estimates of Radio Household Data no longer appear in SRDS. With the advent and wide-spread use of the transistor, Radio Household Penetration has reached at least 95% with little variation on a county-by-county basis. There is no way at present to estimate transistor radio ownership — thus SRDS believes further publication of Radio Household Data is meaningless.

Can
 a van line
 move with today's kind of music?

They'd better. Because the people who listen to that kind of music are the decision-making executives and brand-choosing young marrieds of today. The people who do most of the moving. KHJ plays nothing but today's kind of music. And it's made us No. 1 with the 18 to 49 group* (And we have been for the past three years.) What's more, our share of this fast-moving, need-everything crowd keeps growing. So get that rubber on the road. In L.A. it's KHJ that delivers.

KCBS Newsradio 74 in San Francisco has Long Listeners

Listeners listening to KCBS Newsradio listen longer. According to ARB April/May 1969 data, KCBS News is being listened to longer on the average than any other regularly scheduled programming in the market during combined drive time (6-10 AM and 3-7 PM, Monday-Friday). It adds up to an average total weekday tune-in of 4 hours and 22 minutes per person—when it counts most. So, when our ubiquitous news staff (backed by CBS news-at-large) sets out to prepare and present the news, we know well what length listeners will listen. For further information on what makes KCBS Newsradio the Bay Area's leading station for news and for listeners (who listen longer) call your KCBS or CBS Radio Spot Sales Representative.

Radio Household Data

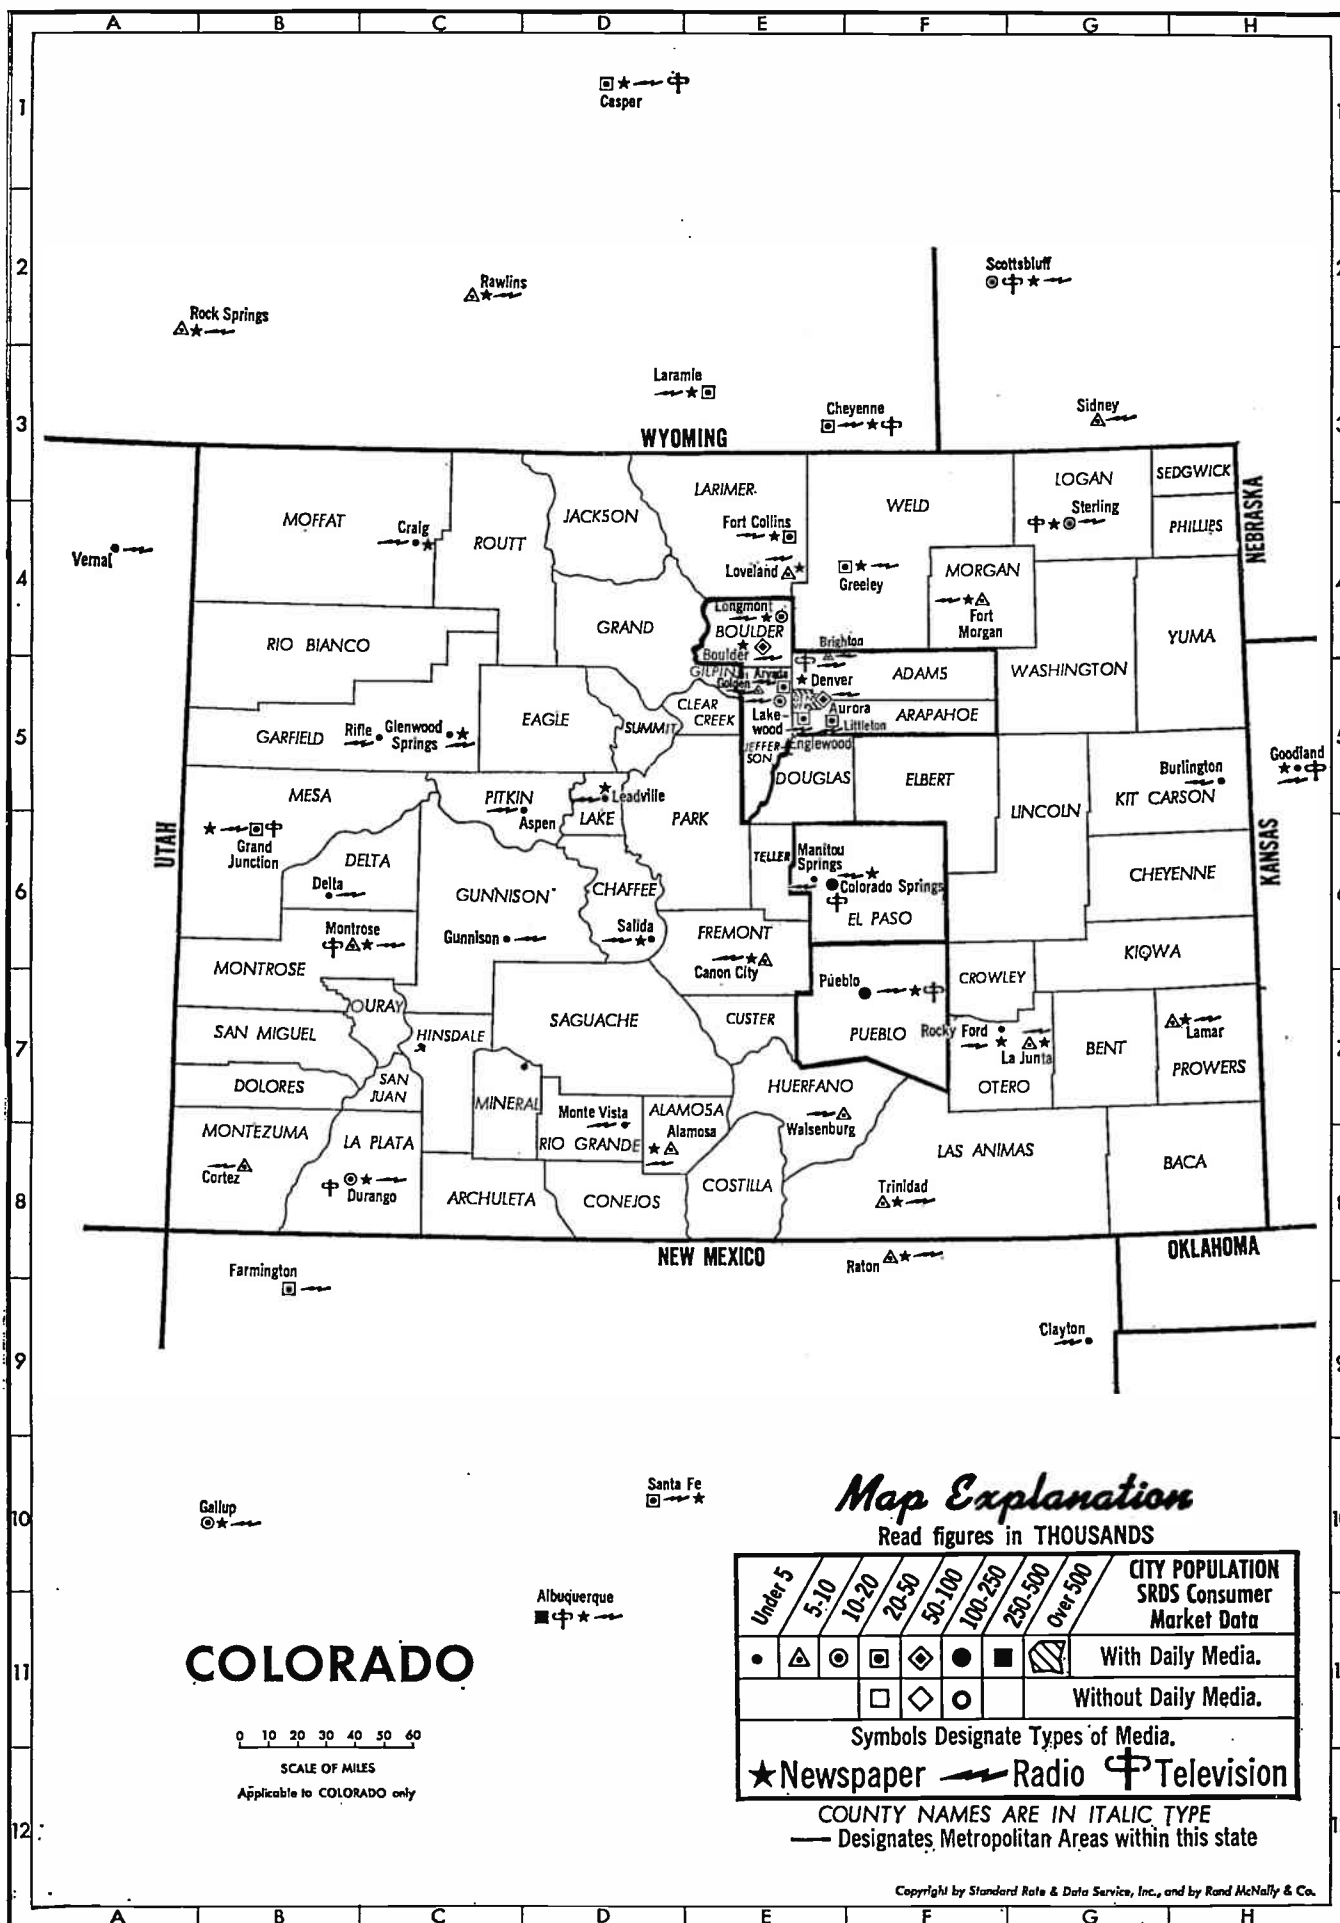

NOTE: County-by-county estimates of Radio Household Data no longer appear in SRDS. With the advent and wide-spread use of the transistor, Radio Household Penetration has reached at least 95% with little variation on a county-by-county basis. There is no way at present to estimate transistor radio ownership — thus SRDS believes further publication of Radio Household Data is meaningless.

Radio Household Data

NOTE: County-by-county estimates of Radio Household Data no longer appear in SRDS. With the advent and wide-spread use of the transistor, Radio Household Penetration has reached at least 95% with little variation on a county-by-county basis. There is no way at present to estimate transistor radio ownership — thus SRDS believes further publication of Radio Household Data is meaningless.

Radio Household Data

NOTE: County-by-county estimates of Radio Household Data no longer appear in SRDS. With the advent and wide-spread use of the transistor, Radio Household Penetration has reached at least 95% with little variation on a county-by-county basis. There is no way at present to estimate transistor radio ownership — thus SRDS believes further publication of Radio Household Data is meaningless.

Radio Household Data

NOTE: County-by-county estimates of Radio Household Data no longer appear in SRDS. With the ardent and wide-spread use of the transistor, Radio Household Penetration has reached at least 95% with little variation on a county-by-county basis. There is no way at present to estimate transistor radio ownership — thus SRDS believes further publication of Radio Household Data is meaningless.

Radio Household Data

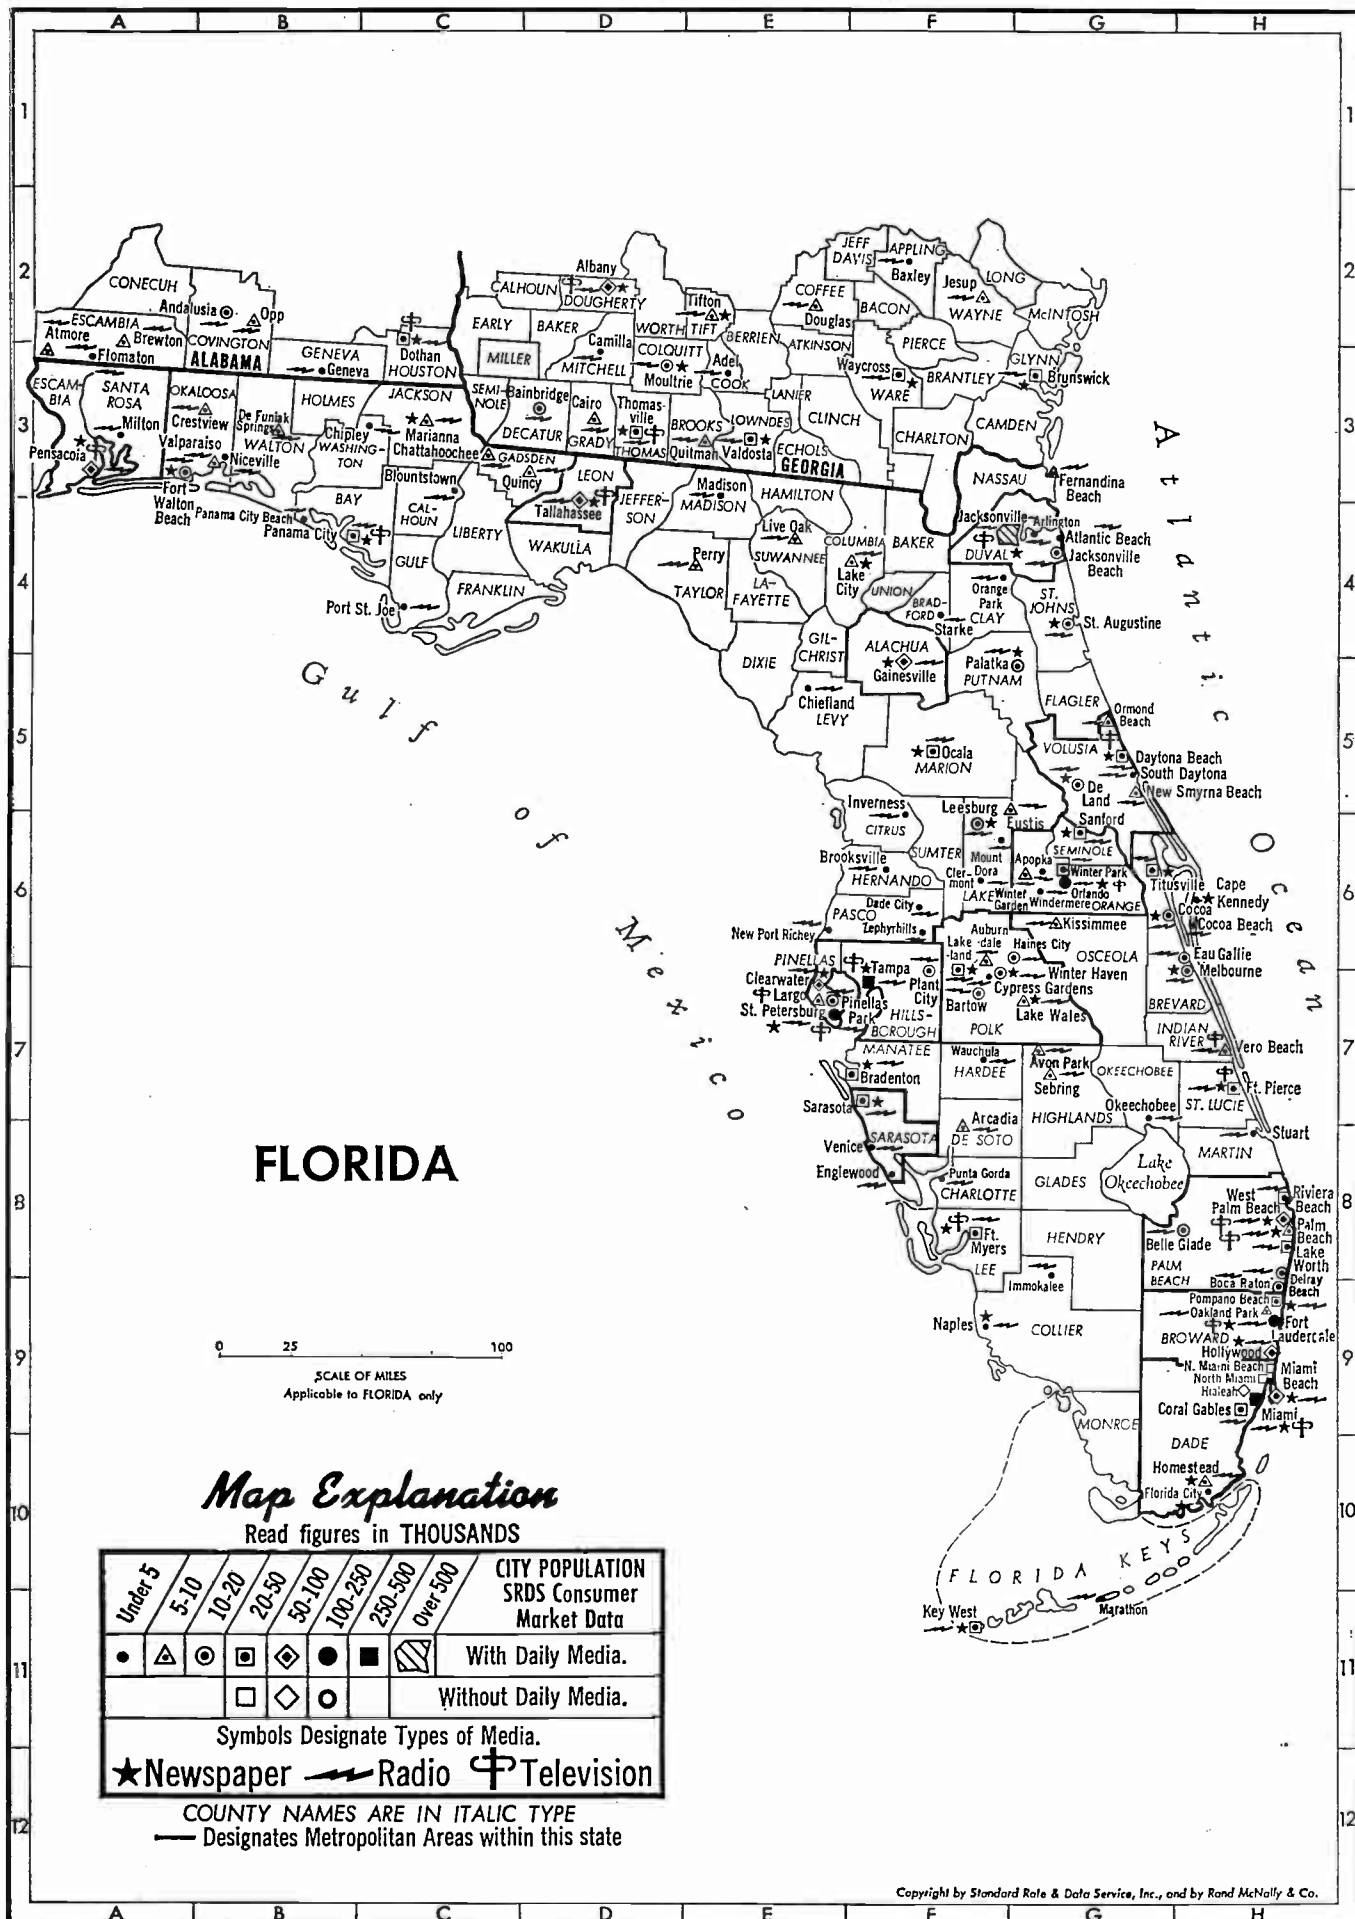

NOTE: County-by-county estimates of Radio Household Data no longer appear in SRDS. With the advent and wide-spread use of the transistor, Radio Household Penetration has reached at least 95% with little variation on a county-by-county basis. There is no way at present to estimate transistor radio ownership — thus SRDS believes further publication of Radio Household Data is meaningless.
