The Short Wave Stations

For the information of those who are exploring the short-wave field, the following list of stations known to be broadcasting between 26.3 and 109.0 meters, is given. The definite wave length used by each station cannot be given as the experiments are being carried on at different frequencies. These frequencies are too high for the ordinary receiver and special instruments must be built in order to receive these stations. Most of the programs in this field are the same as those in the broadcast bands merely being duplicated at high frequencies in order that they may carry farther and reach distant lands. The stations are designated by the initial letter X with a numeral preceding which indicates the radio district in which the station is located.

IF PROPERLY USED RADEX WILL show the wave length set is tuned to—identify stations without announcements—give dial setting for stations never heard—convert dial numbers into frequencies and vice versa.

INSTRUCTIONS

The cut above shows the correct way of using RADEX in order to get the greatest benefit and pleasure. When a station is heard first ascertain its frequency by reference either to the Index by Call Letters or the Index by Locations. Second, turn to the Index by Frequencies and fill in your dial readings in the space opposite that frequency. As additional stations are logged, RADEX will show the relation between your dial progression and that of the frequency in kilocycles.

The Federal Radio Commission is grouping stations in classes according to their frequency of vibration as rated in kilocycles (thousands of cycles). All stations on the same frequency must come in at exactly the same spot on your dials regardless of distance and power. If they do not it is because they are temporarily off their "beat" and it is useless to log them.

By referring to sample chart above it will be seen that even though stations on 670 kilocycles, for instance, have not been logged yet if the dials of that set are placed at 68-67 the set will be tuned for their frequency and if they are on the air and within range of the set, they will be tuned in.

To identify programs received where the call letters are not heard, simply compare your dial readings with the dial numbers already entered in the Index by Frequencies. This will show you the frequency or wave length to which your set is tuned and the power of the stations as shown in the second column and the distance from your home will enable you to tell at a glance what station you are hearing.

Stations of 500 watts power or more are in black face type.
