A SERVICE OF THE RADIO CORPORATION OF AMERICA

Swords into Radio Towers

Dr. Lee DeForest, father of the modern broadcasting receiving-set, paused in his work the other day and said, "I don't listen any more. It is all too silly."

Lee DeForest made modern radio possible. Today he is disappointed. Nor does he stand alone. We need look only beyond the Atlantic to see how broadcasting has failed in one of its great missions. For the war gods are roaring their hate through the skies whereas those who labored with radio in its early days envisioned their kilocycles carrying abroad the gospels of the Prince of Peace.

How recently did we believe that men who understood each other would love instead of hate each other, and that broadcasting was the invisible bond that would weld them together!

Plutarch wrote, "Five great enemies of peace inhabit with us—avarice, ambition, envy, anger and pride." Those five great enemies are riding higher today than ever. In their clutch are the broadcasting facilities of dictator-governed countries. Such broadcasts teach only hate and revenge and violence.

We agree with Mr. DeForest that some of our entertainments are silly, and that radio is not the panacea for which we had prayed. But we do not agree that it is wise to stop listening. To stop is to admit defeat. Mr. DeForest did not do that when he was inventing his vacuum tube. Countless experiments were made, ceaselessly repeated, checked and double-checked, despite all failure and discouragement, until finally there emerged the clear, steady glow of triumph.

Broadcasting will be like that, too, Mr. DeForest. It will outlive dictators and tyrants. It will fulfill its destiny among the nations so that . . .

"They shall beat their swords into plowshares, and their spears into pruning-hooks; nation shall not lift up sword against nation, neither shall they learn war any more."—The Bible.

Let men beat their swords into radio towers, and let the skies echo with the friendly and understanding voices of democracy, fraternity, equality. Radio will not be "too silly" then.

Restless Women

Restlessness in a woman is a dangerous thing. Recently we have seen a great many restless women. They become most distressed between the hours of six and ten o'clock any evening, and their squirming coincides almost exactly with the commercial announcements being used on a great many broadcasts.

We hear a dramatization between father, mother, and daughter. Daughter once had horrible pimples, but now they are gone and she has just been elected president of her class and May Queen to boot. What's wrong with that? We simply don't believe it. We don't believe it because the tales are getting taller and taller and told too frequently.

If listeners lose faith, advertising on the air is valueless. So many compliments have been paid by our readers to the programs presented by the Ford Motor Company that we must mention this outstanding series of broadcasts as one of the great good-will programs of our time. Listeners believe what they hear on this broadcast because not once have they been fooled, and not once have they been asked to believe the incredible.

It is well to forget those who remind us of their birthdays. It is sweet pleasure to remember those who themselves forget.

To these, then, the best of good wishes:

October 9—Henry Hunter (Art Jacobson), Lee Wiley, Martha Atwood, Robert Armbruster, Vivian della Chiesa.

October 10—Charles Pickard, Helen Hayes, Johnny Green.

October 11—Robert Ball, Opal Craven, Leo Reisman, Jimmy Donnelly.

October 12—Theodore Webb, Jane Ace.

October 13—Tamara, Irene Rich, Josephine Gibson.

October 14—F. Chase Taylor (Col. Stoopnagle).

October 15—Martha Tibbetts, Lawrence Salerno, Ransom Sherman, Josef Koestner, Robert Trout, Vivian Fridell, Don Bigelow.

HAPPY MADMEN

BY LORRAINE THOMAS

TODAY THE X-RAY OF RADIO IS WORKING A MODERN MIRACLE IN THE LIVES OF AMERICA'S 400,000 MENTALLY ILL

YOU don't say "insane asylum" any more. The polite and proper term is "state institution." But call it what you like, the fact remains that there are 400,000 or more patients in America's 397 homes for the mentally ill. Four hundred thousand men and women, some violently insane, some merely teetering on the thin straight line between sanity and the lack of it—but all of them hopelessly caged, locked up, barred from all but the remotest contact with "the world outside"! Four hundred thousand people living out their lives in rigid routine, living by a clock that has no meaning for them, marking off the endless days on a calendar that has no hope—that's the picture.

BUT perhaps I shouldn't have said that. It used to be true, but things have changed a little. Today time does have some meaning for patients in state institutions. The face of the clock, once so blank and merciless, today is a harbinger of joy. The Mondays and Thursdays and Saturdays on the calendar offer promise of good times to come. For today there is radio—and radio is working a modern-day miracle among the mentally ill of America.

Let me tell you about it. I have just finished interviewing several hundred "mental cases" concerning their radio likes and dislikes, the part radio plays in their shattered and twisted lives. I've visited them in the "homes" that can never be home to them; I've talked with them, argued with them, listened to them—listened endlessly to them. I have found some amazing things.

Before I begin, I must make one thing very clear. I must correct a mistaken idea held by, I dare say, ninety-nine percent of the people in the country: the idea that an insane person always looks and acts insane. Nothing could be farther from the truth. I had to find that out for myself.

You see, I thought that if there was one thing I knew in this world it was a crazy person. I thought asylums were chock-full of pompous floor-walkers, each of whom carried his right arm akimbo, his right hand tucked Napoleonicly in his vest. I thought I'd recognize a madman by the satanic gleam in his eye, his taut, ready-to-spring stance, the demoniacal leer in his laughter. After all, hadn't I seen one? Hadn't I seen a paroled maniac stab and kill a hapless young radio announcer? Hadn't I seen him cut another man's clothing into shreds? Hadn't I heard the savage snarls and threats of the madman as he lay pinioned in ropes for forty-five long minutes while we waited for the police to come and take him away? In my memory and in my nightmares, haven't I seen, and heard, that murder a thousand times since? Certainly I should know a madman when I see one, I thought—but why continue. All my ideas were wrong, and I know better now.

INEVITABLY, a first-time visitor to a state institution remarks, "Why, all these people look perfectly normal to me." And they do, most of them, of course they do. Why not? It is, after all, their minds, not their bodies, that have changed. If this paradoxical fact surprises us onlookers, it bothers the attendants even more. Visitors are forever asking guards and attendants if their work depresses them, makes them morose, morbid. Usually the answer is the same, "You bet—most of the patients are so much like us that we begin to wonder if we aren't a little off balance, too."

The patients are just as amused at each other as people on the "outside." Many times I've seen a patient pointing discreetly at one of his fellows, whispering confidentially, "Don't mind him—he's crazy!" Many of them are amused at the visitor's attempts to be tactful about it all, will joyfully add to his embarrassment by branding themselves unmercifully as crazy. But not all of the patients do it convincingly. One fellow in particular embarrassed me when I was interviewing him about his radio tastes. He was red-headed, Irish, a truck-driver as tough-looking as they come, and a syphilitic dipsomaniac by classification. When I asked him about his favorite programs, he answered caustically, "Oh, we have our own station here—you know, Station NUT—and I'm the principal star." He laughed raucously at his joke—so loudly that I knew it hurt deeply. So bitter was his shame that he turned the joke ruthlessly upon himself lest it occur to someone else first.

BUT I'm not the only one who can be wrong about these mysteriously unbalanced people. Why, even their doctors can be wrong! I had anticipated that the people whom the world classifies as "crazy" might express some sensationally unique taste, like a unanimous admiration for Gracie Allen or Lew Lehr. But the doctors quickly rid me of that idea.

"No," they said, "you won't find any unusual reactions of that kind among the patients. Their tastes, you see, were formulated before they came here, and they listen to the same programs they preferred at home in Podunk. You'll probably find that Amos 'n' Andy, and Major Bowes, and Charlie McCarthy are the favorites here, just as they are on the outside."

Well, they were right, and they were wrong, those doctors. Most of the patients like Gracie Allen, all right—but not because they feel any strange bonds of sympathy or understanding. They think she's nuts, and very, very funny. But the doctors were wrong, too. Very few patients like Amos 'n' Andy, and even fewer like Major Bowes. According to this critical census, Amos 'n' Andy are monotonous, dull, old stuff. As for Major Bowes, he's insincere, he's mean to the amateurs, he's not polite about ringing the gong, and he always says the same old thing in the same old way, "All right, all right."

Of course, there are no hard-and-fast rules about their favorites. Out of the several hundreds of patients I personally interviewed about radio programs, I couldn't say that exactly three hundred voted first place to Bing Crosby, that Wayne King got just 177 votes, or that everybody disliked Major Bowes. You see, here, more than any place in the world, each person is an individual, and each one requires an individual approach. It may be that when you ask a patient a question he will give the answer to the question his doctor asked three days ago; your Crossley survey is left with a blank—but the answer is much more interesting than another vote for Kate Smith.

TAKE Ad Wolgast, for example. A lot of people remember Ad Wolgast, one of the greatest fighters who ever put on a glove, champion of the world back around 1912. In his day, Ad made lots of money and he won lots of fights. He can tell you all about it, and with his face wreathed in smiles, he'll go into details on the slightest provocation. Especially does Ad like to tell about how he won the championship from Joe Rivers. It was the longest bout in history, he reminds you. It lasted forty-nine rounds. Ad Wolgast won—but he lost, too, because he has been punch-drunk ever since. He remembers nothing since. He knows nothing of the World War, nor Lindbergh's flight; he never heard of Hitler or Mussolini or Chamberlain. He can't even remember what he did an hour ago. Until the guards started keeping tabs, Ad used to eat half a dozen breakfasts every morning. He couldn't remember that he'd already eaten. But no one ever has any trouble with Ad. Every day he goes through his "workout"—sparring, shadow-boxing, skipping rope. He never gets into scraps with other patients: he's afraid that he'd hurt them. And he's as happy as the day he won the championship, for in his own mind Ad Wolgast is still champ. What about Fidel La Barba, Tony Canzoneri, Barney Ross? Ad never heard of 'em. And it's the same way about radio programs. He may listen to them all day, enjoying them immensely, all of what there is left of his punch-shocked mind diverted by them, but he can't tell you what a radio is. "Radio?" he'll say. "Never heard of him. Who'd he ever lick?"

TAKE a look at Mrs. Diggs. Mrs. Diggs is a Negro, a man, who considers himself the most beautiful white woman in the world. He says he has letters from President Roosevelt, Will Hayes, Lindbergh and Joe Louis telling him so. What's more, he's the mother of all the white people in the world. "Mrs. Diggs" has other delusions, too. At times he thinks he's Henry Ford, Rockefeller, and Edison rolled into one. He always insists he's the richest person in the world. About radio he was at first a bit dubious, until I pointed to a receiving set. Then he smiled knowingly, and acknowledged, "Oh, yes, the radio. I invented it."

You mightn't think such a delusion could be very dangerous, but that's where you're wrong. One can never tell about such things. There's another patient in this same hospital who had an even more fantastic delusion. This patient knew a lot more about the radio than the cases just quoted. This man was a radio fan. He wrote letters applying for a job to all the Hollywood radio studios, and once he even won an amateur contest. One morning, while listening to KHJ, he heard one of the popular songs of that period, "There's a Ring Around the Moon." To most of us, that song is no more important than any other—but to Mr. Radiofan "There's a Ring Around the Moon" carried a very special and important message. Mr. Radiofan considered himself a uniquely gifted person, and one of his secret talents was putting rings around the moon. Therefore KHJ's broadcast of the song could mean only one thing: they were sending out an SOS to him—KHJ needed him to come down and teach them how to put a ring around the moon. Mr. Radiofan lost no time. He ran up a $27 taxi-bill going from Santa Ana to Los Angeles. Asking the taxi-driver to wait, he went into the studio. Soon talking with the secretary of the man in charge of employment, he asked for his job—the job that was waiting for him. Impatient at the questions he was asked, he suddenly took out a knife, opened it, raised his arm and stared menacingly at the terror-stricken girl. She screamed, an announcer ran into the room—and was stabbed in the throat. Before the maniac was finally overpowered, another bystander's scalp and clothing were in bloody shreds, and the announcer had bled to death. The real tragedy in this story is that the boy's death was so unnecessary: Mr. Radiofan was a paroled patient from a midwestern institution.

AND yet, tragic as the case of Mr. Radiofan was, there are other patients who have sadder tales to tell. Particularly poignant are the histories of the women in state institutions. They are definitely sensitive, and so resentful or so embarrassed by intruders that I didn't press my interview with many of them. Those few who seemed diverted or pleased by an outsider's interest were particularly gratifying subjects, however. It was the women who repeated to me again and again how much radio meant to inmates of asylums. "It is our only recreation," they told me, over and over again.

The convicted criminal feels his plight keenly—but his situation is much easier to bear than that of the inmate in a state hospital. The convict knows, at least in most cases, that he is being punished for a definite crime, that he knowingly ran the risk of that punishment when he undertook the crime, and that once the debt is paid he will be given his liberty again. The insane person, however, is denied even that slight consolation. He has done nothing wrong, consciously, he has committed no crime, no sin, that he could have avoided. Something over which he had no control has happened to him, something that has made society decide that he must be barred from normal associations, caged up like an animal. It is this feeling that he finds so hard to bear, and it is in helping him to bear it that radio contributes most to his happiness. To escape from the harsh confines of his "home" is usually the most pressing wish of the mental prisoner, and, through radio, he can do just that.

Sometimes the "escape" takes peculiar form. Take the case of Mrs. X, for instance. Mrs. X, a woman in her late forties, was a semi-violent case, subject to periods of wild hysteria and the deepest despair. Ordinarily she appeared to be perfectly normal, and for weeks she might lead an entirely uneventful life. But the least disturbance—a minor quarrel with another patient, for instance—might bring on a fit of violence lasting for days.

MRS. X was just getting back to normal after one of these outbursts when a young doctor suggested that music sometimes had a pronounced calming effect on such patients. The suggestion was taken to Mrs. X's husband, who promptly bought a small receiving-set, had it installed in his wife's room. Mrs. X has had just one violent spell since! And that one outburst came when another inmate mischievously switched off the set in the middle of Mrs. X's favorite program.

I met a patient, a man, who had found almost a complete relief from his illness in radio. A college professor, widely traveled, Dr. H had a consuming interest in international affairs, and more than any other one thing, he resented his inability to keep abreast of the times in the asylum. He was often in trouble with the other patients because he could not overcome the temptation to steal from them every scrap of printed matter he could get his hands on. He once strode into the superintendent's office and announced that he would commit suicide if he was not provided with at least six New York and Chicago papers daily! Tactfully the superintendent, long used to handling irrational demands, suggested that carefully listening to the radio would better serve Dr. H's purpose. Radio broadcasts of the news, he pointed out, were often hours ahead of the daily papers. Today Dr. H never misses a news broadcast.

ONE woman told me how inordinately proud most patients are just to keep track of the date, and how they make a daily ritual of going to the office where the calendars are kept, making circles around the dates to impress the figures upon their memories. But radio has changed all that. And radio does more than keep them orientated as to date and day of the week. The radio newscasts are the only means they have of keeping up with the outside world. Few state institutions provide magazines and newspapers for their inmates. So radio does double duty. The tastes and preferences that the patients formed before they "came in" they maintain. If they liked good music on "the outside" they enjoy it even more now, because they have more leisure in which to appreciate its beauties. They definitely prefer classical music—only the very young inmates admit even a tolerance for jazz. And because radio is their one contact with the world beyond the walls, because so many hours of their day are dependent wholly on radio for entertainment, mental stimulus, news, one must conclude that radio's most attentive, most critical and most appreciative public consists of the 400,000 patients in America's state institutions.

These 400,000 people are perhaps not the happiest people in the world—but insofar as happiness has come to them, radio has brought it.

RADIO GUIDE'S SURVEY OF SANITARIA REVEALS THAT PEOPLE WHO ARE MENTALLY DISTRESSED FAVOR THE FOLLOWING PROGRAMS

Burns and Allen
CBS, Friday, 8:30 p.m. EST
(8:30 p.m. PST)

Gracie Allen was born a continent away from George Burns, destined to be her husband and her partner in scaling the heights of the entertainment world. Gracie's home was in San Francisco, George's in New York, and they met in New Jersey. Gracie had done nearly everything before she made her bow as a comedienne. Convent-raised, she's studied dancing under her father's tutelage, and her first stage appearance was in the Hippodrome Theater in San Francisco, in a dancing-act with her two sisters. Half-way through the routine, Gracie fell, dragging her sisters down with her. The audience roared, but the show had to go on. When the second show went on, Gracie, full of high resolution, went through her part perfectly, didn't slip once. Whereupon the manager canceled the act immediately! Gracie's ridiculous spill, he said, was the best part. Gracie's life has been a long succession of incidents like that. Still the perfect zany, she's on the air over Columbia these Friday nights.

H. V. Kaltenborn
CBS, Sunday, 10:30 p.m. EST

H. V. Kaltenborn, radio commentator who is more than ever in the limelight today as a result of his sparkling, minute-by-minute broadcasts on the European crisis, is universally regarded as just about the best in the business. Discriminating and hard-to-sell newspapermen themselves perk up and take notice when the loudspeaker booms, "Kaltenborn Edits the News." Regularly on the air every Sunday night over the Columbia Broadcasting System, Kaltenborn is famous in radio circles for his ability to grab a handful of scribbled notes and face a microphone at any time and on any notice. Insatiably curious, the happy victim of a wanderlust that took possession of him when he was a boy of fifteen—he fought in the Spanish-American war at eighteen—H. V. Kaltenborn has grooved the world in his travels, knows well whereof he speaks.

Guy Lombardo's Music
CBS, Monday, 10 p.m. EST

Frustration, a punctured dream, lies behind Guy Lombardo's orchestra. For if Papa Lombardo had ever achieved the concert stage for which he longed, the little Lombardos might not have had to sit about the house tra-la-la-ing the scale. But Papa Lombardo's tailoring business kept getting in the way, and art stumbled over it, so his ambitions had to be pushed forward into another generation. The three Lombardo brothers were playing together—Guy the violin, Carmen the flute and Lebert the trumpet—before they were into their teens. Today they're still together, and the Lombardo band takes over the "Lady Esther Serenade" Monday night.

YOUNG HOPEFULS

—Sunday, NBC

Enrico Caruso is dead, and the great candle of commemoration, planned to burn for centuries, stands in the cathedral at Naples monument to his immortality, while his son, struggling for recognition in New York, complains that "everywhere my father's name opens the doors for me—and everywhere my voice closes them." Such is the price of a famous name. Young Caruso would perhaps be better off if he were lost in the anonymity of Smith or Jones. This week, hundreds of the hopeful Smiths and Joneses of the operatic fringe are focusing their attention upon the biggest and best gateway to singing fame—the Metropolitan Auditions program, returning to the air Sunday, October 9. Last season, preliminary auditions were given to 707 aspirants, out of which group sixty were chosen for the broadcasts. Of these only six were heard in the finals. Private auditions are given by Wilfred Pelletier, Metropolitan orchestra conductor, with the auditioning committee, headed by Edward Johnson, general manager of the Met. Yearly at least two contracts are awarded to the winning singers, in addition to cash prizes from the program's sponsor. Winners to date have been Ann Kaskas, contralto; Arthur Carron, tenor; Thomas L. Thomas, baritone; Maxine Stellman, soprano; John Carter, tenor, and Leonard Warren, baritone.

LADY OF VIRGINIA

—Sunday, CBS

Margaret Sullavan can look back proudly on a genealogy stretching far into America's beginnings, for she comes of an old Virginia family, the records of which are studded with famous names. It isn't often that she does—she's too busy looking into the future. Margaret Sullavan always has looked to the future, beginning, if one can believe some admittedly prejudiced sources, at the age of three, when she developed a persistent tendency to regard any group of more than three people as an audience for impromptu recitations. She had taken part in amateur theatricals long before she was ten years old, and when she was a "grown-up" girl in her teens she was a stock-company veteran. There'll be nothing impromptu or amateur, however, in her next scheduled performance, the lead role in this week's presentation by the Silver Theater program. English critics have compared Margaret

RADIO SCHOOL

—Monday, CBS

For the tenth consecutive year, the Columbia Broadcasting Company's "School of the Air" program returns to the networks on Monday, October 10. The radio school, like any other, will be in session every day from Monday through Friday. The program will again enjoy the complete cooperation of the National Education Association in the preparation of its programs, and the NEA's 750,000 membership stands squarely behind it. The program faces no dearth of sponsors among educators. In addition to the NEA, the Progressive Education Association, composed of some 10,000 teachers and administrators, is acting in an advisory capacity along with the National Council of Teachers of English and the American Library Association. General theme of the first five sessions of the radio school will be "Our America," the topic to include a detailed study of the workings of democracy as an institution, here and abroad.

LITTLE GIRL STAR

—Monday, CBS

Deanna Durbin would probably still be a schoolgirl in Winnipeg, Canada, if her father liked cold weather. But he didn't. As far as James Durbin was concerned, the icy Canadian winters were much too much to bear. So he moved, with his wife and two daughters, to California. He found the climate there much more to his liking, was soon comfortably established in the brokerage business. Little Deanna began to sing when she was three, was taking vocal lessons at ten. Her voice was obviously one of great promise, but she and her parents thought of an operatic career rather than one on the screen. In fact, the idea of motion-picture work never entered their heads until one day when a Hollywood actor's agent happened to hear her sing. Within twenty-four hours she was studying under Andres de Seguro, former Metropolitan Opera star, who proclaimed her voice to be one in a million. The rest is history. On Monday of this week Deanna Durbin returns to the air as a guest of the man who first brought her to a microphone, Eddie Cantor. Bobby Breen, another of Cantor's proteges, will be on the show.

GANG'S RETURN

—Monday, NBC

There was a time when Al Pearce's Gang consisted of Al, his brother Cal, and the cow. That was years ago in San Jose when Al was fifteen. In those days the Pearce commodity was milk, not comedy—but it was a superior brand of milk, Al insists. The young Pearces were faced with the problem of supporting their family, and, since one cow was their sole asset, they went into the dairy business. But Al preferred banjo-playing to milk-selling, and he was soon playing with a dance band. He dropped that, finally, for salesmanship, and for the next few years he sold everything from soap to sandpits to people of a dozen different states. Pearce's famous comedy character, "Elmer Blurt," the low-pressure salesman, is a result of his experiences in those years. The path that will bring Al and his Gang back to radio on Monday, October 10, was begun in 1929 over a small California station, and he was a hit from the beginning. When Al faces the microphone on Monday he'll have with him Tizzie Lish, inventor of impossible recipes; Chatterbox Arlene Harris, Carl Hoff with his orchestra, and all the other lads and lassies of the old Gang.

HOMEMAKER

—Tuesday, MBS

A combination of the homespun philosophy of a rugged "down-easter" with the culinary virtuosity of a Bangor housewife—that's what Marjorie Mills, famous New England commentator, will try to do with her new "The Girl from Maine" program, scheduled to debut over the Mutual network on October 11. Marjorie Mills has been well loved by New England radio fans since she first went on the air in 1925, has during that time built up a listening audience that piles an average 200,000 letters on her doorstep every year. Her writings have been a feature of the Boston Herald-Traveler since 1916. Many of her fan letters, incidentally, come from businessmen and top-flight executives, despite the fact that her programs are definitely addressed to women. Marjorie Mills

CRISTOBAL COLON —Wednesday, NBC

Cristobal Colon, or Christopher Columbus, the great Genoese navigator who discovered the American continent, led a life that was jam-packed with ups and downs. He knew what it was to reach the peak of affluence and favor under the Spanish sovereigns, and he knew just as well what it was to be clapped in irons, shipped home in disgrace from the continent that might have lain for years unknown and uncolonized had it not been for his foresight and courage. But in poverty or riches, triumph or despair, Christopher Columbus never faltered, and his life has long been an inspiration to lesser men. On Wednesday, October 12—"Columbus Day"—Martin H. Carmody, Supreme Knight of the Knights of Columbus, and a world-renowned authority on the great admiral's life, will address the nation on "Columbus and His Mission" over NBC. Carmody, who has devoted his whole life to the study of Columbus, is expected to trace the history of the man and to outline the story of his mission in its relation to present-day civilization.

MAN WITH A FIDDLE —Thursday, NBC

One can't throw a stone in the street these days without hitting a "hot" saxophonist or clarinetist or trumpeter. Swing-crazy America is producing musicians in those categories faster on practically a mass-production basis. But few of them have the audacity and the skill to "swing" a violin. The outstanding hot violinists in this country can be counted on the fingers of one hand—with one name leading all the rest. That name is Joe Venuti, and Joe Venuti was a jazz violinist long before the word "swing" had a musical meaning. If you've never heard a violin "swung"—even if the idea of "swinging" an instrument so thoroughly grounded in classical tradition shocks you—you've a treat coming. The treat will be available on the Kraft Music Hall program Thursday, October 13, for Joe Venuti himself guest-stars on that date.

MEDICINE MAN —Thursday, CBS

Unhonored and unsung, the man who keeps the corner drug store is nonetheless one of America's every-day heroes. Few people know it, but there is a time in everyone's life

Grand opera was her goal, but radio and movies detoured voice - in - a - million Deanna Durbin when the druggist is the most important person in the world, with life itself resting in his hands. For in spite of the million-and-one current jokes on the subject, the druggist does sell something besides sandwiches, radio sets, assorted hardware and stationery. He does still sell medicine, and medicine is just as important as it ever was. If you've ever looked into the maze of bottles, jars, and boxes that is a druggist's prescription laboratory, you know something of the complexity of the role he plays. If you'd like to know more about the corner druggist who so obligingly stays at work until midnight for your convenience, listen to the "Americans at Work" program on Thursday, October 13, over the Columbia Broadcasting System.

AMBITIOUS —Friday, CBS

Ted Fio-Rito, who comes back to the air as maestro on the new Jack Haley comedy program due to debut Friday, October 14, is one orchestra leader with a mission in life. Fio-Rito's consuming ambition is a musical one, naturally, but it's nonetheless striking. He wants to write a symphony. For years now he has wanted to write a symphony, and still the world hasn't heard it. Literally hundreds of popular songs have come from Fio-Rito's pen, and some of them have been howling successes, but their success does nothing to quiet the artistic urge in their composer. It will have to be a symphony, or nothing, for Ted Fio-Rito. And if he himself never does get around to writing it, he's going to see to it that his small son, who began to take piano lessons at the age of three, carries on the family ambition. This week Ted Fio-Rito's non-symphonic music will provide background for Haley, Lucille Ball, young film comedienne, and Virginia Verrill, vocalist.

COMEDY KING

—Saturday, CBS

An august critic of the drama once admitted that when he entered a theater in which W. C. Fields was playing, he started to laugh at the door. If that's a true estimate of the great Fields' worth—none of his fans will deny it—radio listeners should begin laughing when they twirl their dials to CBS on Saturday, October 15. On that day W. C. Fields will be back on the air from Hollywood, this time for the "Hit Parade" program. And any day that finds Fields on the air is a red-letter day for radio. For Fields is probably the greatest comedian of his type who ever lived. He is also one of the great theorists of the comic art, despite his air of nonchalance and utter boredom. One of the world's foremost jugglers before he began to devote himself exclusively to comedy, Fields has a pronounced flair for the use of "props." His billiard-table routine is one of the classics of comedy, and no one who ever saw the long billiard-cue bend ridiculously out of line in his hands can remember it without a reminiscent stitch in the side. Fields believes that it is much funnier to see something bend than it is to see it break, and so he thinks that pewter is the funniest of all materials with comic possibilities.

"PROTECTION" —Saturday, NBC

There's nothing new under the sun, even in the world of crime. The "protection" racket, so often thought of as being an offshoot of prohibition racketeering, is in reality as old as the race of man. Centuries ago, the robber barons of the Rhine levied "protection" charges on the cargo boats passing beneath the frowning battlements of their castles, and they were by no means the first to practise this particular form of extortion. Admittedly, however, the "protection racket" was raised to new heights—or depths—during prohibition, when it was a necessary adjunct to bootlegging, and, after repeal, it was turned quickly into new and varied channels, some of which are peculiar to America and these times. And now radio authors Victor McGovern and Jock MacGregor have written a play around the subject. The plot revolves around the romance of a pretty girl with a man of great wealth and the efforts of an influential gambler to interfere in his own interest.

THE RADIO PLAYBILL: THIS WEEK—"PRETTY KITTY KELLY"

TO GET an idea of what to expect in the dramatic serial "Pretty Kitty Kelly," take "Grimm's Fairy Tales," "Horatio Alger," the best of S. S. Van Dine's detective stories, one modern Cinderella (with the Irish Easter Rebellion thrown in for good measure), mix well, and you have it! Author Frank Dahm spares no dramatic dynamite or adventure in his script, and frequently even members of the cast wonder what will happen next. One year ago last March, Kitty Kelly, a pretty, golden-haired Irish immigrant girl, landed at Ellis Island, clearing-house gateway to the western world, in New York City harbor. Handicapped by a complete loss of memory, Kitty is wholly at the mercy of a strange fate in a strange country. Her life proves to be one adventurous episode after another. In her short time in America, she has apprehended dozens of criminals. Villains come at a dime a dozen. Mrs.

Megram, the woman who came over on the same boat with Kitty, is dead, and Kitty can't remember who or what she was before her arrival in the United States. But quite obviously a young woman of breeding, she finds friends who aid her in her struggle to live. Recently Kitty has been identified as the long-lost Countess of Glennannan, after a great deal of skullduggery on the part of one Dr. Orbo and the wily Glennannan estate lawyer, Isaac Hamish, who have tried to do her out of both title and property. At the moment, her Irish and English relatives are trying desperately to inveigle her into going back to Ireland to become the leader of her clan. What she will do is still a mystery. "Pretty Kitty Kelly" is heard five days a week, Mondays through Fridays, at 10 a.m. EST over a Columbia network (9 a.m. CST). It is rebroadcast for West Coast listeners at 2 p.m. MST, 1 p.m. PST.

—Walter Seigal

KITTY KELLY (played by Arline Blackburn), twenty-two-year-old Irish lass, was born Easter week of 1916. It is known that Kitty once lived in Liverpool, England, but the only thing that she can remember is the fact that she was at one time an inmate of an orphanage in Dublin. A transplanted Irish rose, Kitty's life is a series of high adventures and thrilling romance from the time she sets foot on American soil. Michael Conway, who started as a cop and ended as an attorney, and Jack Van Orpington, rich young playboy, in whose home Kitty once worked as a maid servant, are rivals for her favors. When Kitty gets a job in Marks' Department store on New York's Fifth Avenue, she meets Bunny Wilson, another girl employe, who becomes her best friend. Now that "Pretty Kitty Kelly's" identity is revealed, a new set of problems confronts her. Kitty Kelly dearly loves her American friends. It is her wish to remain in the United States even though her relatives are urging her to return to Ireland

—De Mirjian

MICHAEL CONWAY (it's Clayton Collyer's role) is twenty-seven, tall, dark and handsome. He was a policeman when Kitty met him, but he's now a promising New York City lawyer with an office of his own. When he finds that Kitty is a countess, he becomes worried at the difference in their social station, for he's in love with her. But being a young man who looks at life and love in a sane way, he's willing to give Kitty up to another if it means happiness for her. Friendship between the two began almost as soon as Kitty landed in America. They met when Kitty was walking along the waterfront wondering how she could get in touch with an inspector on the police force whom she had been told to look up on her arrival in the United States. The inspector turns out to be Michael Conway's father, who is killed just as Kitty finds out where he lives and comes to visit him. In the murder investigation, "Pretty Kitty Kelly" is arrested and held as a suspect, but later it is found that she is innocent

—Ray Lee Jackson

BUNNY WILSON, Kitty's closest friend, lives in the same apartment-building. Born in the tenement district, on lower First Avenue, Bunny is a typical New York City shoppirl, with a level head on her slim shoulders. Though a bit lowbrow, because of her early environment, she has been a good influence on Kitty. Bunny gets a great kick out of visiting Kitty at the ritzy hotel where the Welbys insist that she stay, but she quarrels finally with la-de-da Mrs. Welby. Helen Choate plays this humorous role

—Walter Seigal

KYRON WELBY (played by Bartlett Robinson) is a distant cousin of Kitty's who came to America with his aunt and uncle, Mr. and Mrs. Welby. Seems he was engaged to Kitty in England before she lost her memory, and at present has his eye on her estate and title. He's fond of her in a mild way, but doesn't love her. A thirty-five-year-old playboy, Kyrón's heavily in debt, is not going to let go of Kitty if he can help it, even though her American friends, including Bunny and Mike, show dislike for him

MRS. WELBY, Kyrón's aunt, hastens to America when she learns Kitty's whereabouts. She too has an eye on the heroine's title and estate. A snob of the first order, she resents Kitty's "common" American friends, insists that she return to Ireland, marry Kyrón, and be a lady about it. Ethel Intropidi plays Mrs. Welby

—Ben Pinchot

DENNIS HOEY plays the part of Mr. Welby. A kindly soul, he admires Kitty's American friends, even though he is in favor of her marriage to his nephew Kyrón. A World War veteran who lost an arm, tolerance is the keynote of his life, which makes him a constant source of irritation to his scheming, social-climber wife

—Ben Pinchot

FRANK DAHM, veteran radio script-writer, has scribbled some 700,000 words for "Pretty Kitty Kelly" since the program started on the Columbia network in March, 1937. A graduate from Chicago radio, Dahm is now in New York. He once authored the "Little Orphan Annie" series, is a tireless worker with an unbeatable imagination

A MOTLEY assortment of characters, both good and evil, has been highlighting in the show. There is A. J. Andrews, the blustery banker who is always looking out for his income and who has been mixed up in plot and counter-plot; Inspector Grady, genial Irish police chief, who looks after Kitty's safety; and Grant Thursday, another suitor of Kitty's, who is always at loggerheads with Andrews in financial battles; Slim, the reporter on the Blade (Bunny Wilson's romantic interest), who never misses any excitement. Right now, an international agent is after a mysterious red-lacquer box containing a secret steel formula which Kitty brought to America with her. Kitty, who hasn't yet regained her memory, and to whom the mysterious box means little, is nevertheless innocently involved in the skulduggery surrounding it. The plot thickens. Announcer for the show is Andrew Stanton; director of the opus, Kenneth MacGregor.

PETITE Bidu Sayao, Brazilian soprano of the Metropolitan, is called upon for sentiment and charm at this hour rather than for display of vocal adroitness, although she conquers all three of those departments of song.

In "Lucia" the woes of the heroine start with her first entrance, when she sings her pathetic initial number, "Silence Reigned," expressing limitless love for Edgardo and tragic forebodings of its hopelessness.

Brighter moments come with Lehmann's cheery "Cuckoo" and the lilt-ing measures of "Estrellita."

It is always good to encounter Grieg songs, sincere in emotion, gracious in melody and expertly factored for voice and piano. He enjoys renewed vogue with singers since Kirsten Flagstad has been programming his music.

The March of Music

A Weekly Preview Edited by Leonard Liebling

"... An ampler Ether, a diviner Air ..."—Wordsworth

Welcome, Toscanini!

ONE might write reams about the significance of Toscanini's imminent return to American radio, and again, very few words would answer the same purpose. The mere mention of his name tells its own story and brings to mind all his amazing career, his position in the musical world, and particularly his vital achievements with the orchestra which NBC formed for the maestro's own directorship.

This Saturday sees him again on the air, and the Music Editor of RADIO GUIDE shares the pleasurable anticipation of its readers, but also faces the prospect of begging Toscanini all season to reveal his programs in time for publication in this department, and imploring him not to change them after the announcements have gone to the printer. But what to do about it if the eminent one has not reformed his former habits? Genius has its exactions and ordinary mortals must put up with them. It remains for us to be content with what Toscanini gives, irrespective of the manner of giving. We may be sure that his concerts promise sublime interpretations and immeasurable thrills. So we might say to him, paraphrasing Admiral Dewey at Manila Bay: "We are listening, Toscanini! Conduct when ready!"

More of Hofmann

Another musical giant, Josef Hofmann, furnishes news of momentous interest today. Hard on the heels of our last-week story about the Curtis Institute of Music comes the announcement that Hofmann has resigned as musical director of that renowned school. His reason is that the duties were arduous and required him to devote much time which he felt should go to his piano and his concert tours. Now that the difficulty has been solved, there are certain to be more radio appearances of the popular virtuoso whose admirers long felt that his personal art was at least as important as his contributions as a pedagogue. Hofmann's tenure of office at the Curtis brought about its present proud standing, and he leaves the school a high standard to follow and preserve.

Hofmann's hobby is mechanics, and he has a perfectly appointed workshop both in his winter and summer homes. Telling me of his latest step, he writes: "Now I shall have time to do justice both to the keyboard and my tools."

Incidentally, RADIO GUIDE inadvertently said last week that Hofmann is director of the Curtis String Quartet, a title and activity not belonging to him.

nique (still basically dominant) and wrote the first virtuoso music for the stringed instrument.

About seventy years after the passing of Corelli, Nicolo Paganini (1782-1840) came into life, destined to carry violin art to its highest estate. Many experts claim that no one ever has surpassed his mastery with fingers and bow. He became the idol of all Europe, and his concert triumphs exceeded even those of his greatest successors, down to Kreisler, Heifetz, Elman and Menuhin.

Paganini had real gifts as a composer, and his D Major concerto remains an important part of the violin repertoire. Schumann, Brahms and Liszt thought so much of Paganini's themes that they made piano pieces of them, the most popular of those examples being Liszt's "Campanella."

THE celebrated dramatic aria "Divinities of the Styx" is Gluck in the full flower of his genius, writing with a breadth and power that impressed even the later ruler of opera, Wagner.

Strangely enough, the biographies of Christopher Willibald Gluck, Chevalier of the Order of the Golden Spur (and music teacher of Marie Antoinette) are not read nearly as widely as those of the other classical kings. His life was one long adventure, full of action, strife, disappointments and ultimate triumph, when he wrote his masterpieces that created the most vital reforms in the history of opera.

GRIEG'S "Solweig's Air," "The Swan" and "A Dream" rank with the loveliest of enduring art-songs.

Crooks gets my vote of thanks for reviving the last-named, full of heart-throbs and soaring melody that rises to intense and glorious climax.

Effective operatic tenor that he is, Crooks makes a bow to the lyrical stage with the passionate "Tosca" aria, sung by the hero of that work immediately before he faces the firing-squad. "Mother of Mine" is a sentimental enough ballad but rather wastes the art of Richard Crooks. All that can be done—and should be done—for such numbers is to deliver them simply and feelingly, with no vocal sophistication whatsoever, a feat accessible to many radio performers who are not stars of the Metropolitan and of the recital platform.

PROOF comes again that not all the youthful talent is confined to the prominent music schools of the Atlantic seaboard. One of the oldest American centers of such activity is the Cincinnati Conservatory, which has sent out innumerable pupils who today occupy leading places in the profession.

Brahms' deeply felt and appealingly lyrical trio stands as the most serious note of the present concert, but that work sounded, the rest of the proceedings invite the mind and ear with less exactitude.

Particularly the piano pieces of the twentieth century (except the Chopin group) make eloquently colorful bids. Nicholas Medtner, Russian, has composed a number of expressive "Fairy Tales" and performed some of them at recitals in America several years ago.

Autumnal Radio Music Offers Varied Charms

NO MATTER what the rest of autumn's crops, rich or poor, the musical harvest is a generous one this year for followers of the microphone. If most of the dialers have not hitherto been won to the blandishments of Orpheus and Euterpe, now is the moment to seek their spell. Some of them still imagine that art-music is a mystic something utterly beyond them because of lack of early training or contact; a cult of the intelligentsia; a fad of the wealthy; a defense mechanism to aid pretenders to culture.

There might have been reason for such beliefs in America twenty-five years ago, when musical art was in truth a luxury of the moneyed and a medium serving to display the erudition of professional critics. The latter made their pronouncements the more remote by couching them in a technical jargon intelligible only to the initiated of the inner brotherhood.

Radio democratized music by bringing it into every American home. People found out that Bach, Beethoven, Brahms, Wagner and the other masters did not leave to the world a series of tonal puzzles but bequeathed instead a legacy of living beauty, accessible to every receptive mind and heart. One has only to listen in order to enjoy and learn, and faithful devotion to the loudspeaker makes one at first a music-lover and finally a connoisseur. Let me list a few of the current attractions which will bring about that desirable end.

MUSIC APPRECIATION HOUR

FRIDAY, OCTOBER 14
2 p.m. EST (1 CST, 12 noon MST, 11 a.m. PST), NBC.

For those ready to become converts, and willing to start at the bottom of the ladder, as it were, there is the invaluable course directed by America's prime musical educator, venerable Dr. Walter Damrosch. He is supposed to address his series primarily to children and young people, but we all know that his many million auditors include a large percentage of adults who do not disdain elementary instruction.

Damrosch's two half-hours of Music Appreciation will commence on October 14, with programs called "My Musical Family" and "Nature in Music." During the first, Dr. Damrosch will introduce various members of his orchestra and describe the instruments they play. Illustrative numbers are the scherzo from Glazounov's fifth symphony, Mendelssohn's "Spinning Song," "Chinese Dance" from Tchaikowsky's "Nutcracker Suite," Grainger's arrangement of the "Londonderry Air," march from Wagner's "Tannhaeuser." The second half-hour offers "Garden of Live Flowers" from Deems Taylor's "Looking Glass Suite," the thunderstorm music from Beethoven's "Pastorale" symphony, "Snow is Dancing" from Debussy's "Children's Corner," excerpts from "Fingal's Cave" overture by Mendelssohn, and the "Magic Fire Music" from "Die Walkuere" by Wagner. Follow Dr. Damrosch through his courses this winter and you never again will have reason to think you are denied the revelations of great music.

METROPOLITAN AUDITIONS OF THE AIR

SUNDAY, OCTOBER 9
5 p.m. EST (4 CST, 3 MST, 2 PST), NBC.

Inner workings of the great opera house in New York reveal themselves in the series of the Metropolitan Auditions of the Air, which shows how some of the young talent of that institution is acquired through competitive tests that give opportunity to gifted and ambitious singers who aspire to high places in the lyrical world. These public auditions have won wide recognition and now are part of the regular traditions of the Metropolitan.

In this year's Metropolitan Auditions of the Air each program will have two or three singers. In addition, the plans include the introduction of famous operatic personalities and short interviews with the men and women of the executive staff.

At the first audition, the youthful aspirants are Anna Malefant, Canadian contralto who studied in Paris and Naples; baritone Mark Harrell of Texas, who is also a violinist and has appeared publicly here and in Europe; and the Illinois soprano, Margaret Carlisle, experienced in grand and light opera in various countries and one of the vocal successes of the St. Louis Municipal Opera. By no means miss the second of the broadcasts, in which Giovanni Martinelli is to do some edifying speaking.

NEW YORK.—Since the last column was written, your reporter spent two days in Chicago. On the train coming back were a couple of people you have heard on the air at one time or another, George Burns and Gracie Allen, who were going to New York to start their new air series for Chesterfield. Gracie seems to have put on a great deal of poundage since I saw her last, but of course I was diplomatic enough not to mention it at the time. With them were their adopted children—Sandra, who is now four years old, and Ronnie, who is three. George and Gracie left California a few days ahead of the kids because they had to stop off at Kansas City to make a personal appearance at the Jubilesta. The nurse brought the children in from California to Chicago and their train arrived in the Windy City exactly one hour after their mama and papa got in.

In the dining-car, Willie Burns, George's brother, was feeding Sandra while George was trying to get Ronnie to eat his tomatoes and mashed potatoes. Brother Willie was also having a time trying to convince Ronnie it wasn't proper to put his elbows on the table. During the dinner, George and I talked of many things and ended up with the popular discussion of the day—the European situation. Your reporter stated that if war did come, he hoped America would stay out of it. Mr. Burns didn't agree, he thought we should join in, and I couldn't help wonder if he would feel the same way if Ronnie were nineteen or twenty years old instead of three.

Which reminds me of the new quiz program, "Battle of the Sexes," with Frank Crumit and Julia Sanderson, which got under way a couple of Tuesday nights ago. They planned on using effects of a real battle with the sound of guns, and firing-squads for the men and women who didn't answer the questions correctly. Just before the initial program hit the air, emcee and referee Alan Kent discovered the script called for announcer Jack Costello to scream out "The War Is On!" immediately after his opening announcement. This was deleted when it was realized that some listeners might confuse it with the European situation and might think war had actually been declared.

While in Chicago I went over to the station to greet a radio star who was arriving in the Windy City. Photographers were on hand and asked him to pose. He agreed, but stipulated there was to be only one picture taken. I couldn't help wonder how disappointed he probably would have been if there weren't any photographers on hand, and what he would have given a few years back when he was traveling the vaudeville circuits to have his picture taken by the news photogs when he arrived in town. They seem to forget so quickly.

Al Jolson is coming to New York for six broadcasts in the East beginning October 25. CBS has given the ax to several of their sustaining artists and announcers. Hollace Shaw is no longer with the net and neither is word-spieler Charles Arlington. Two years ago Bob Gibson was an usher in a CBS playhouse. He's back working at the same theater each Sunday, but now he is a singer on the new Ben Bernie program. Weeks ago your reporter stated here that he would be happy about the whole thing if the loud Stroud Twins were taken off the Sunday night coffee program. Many readers wrote in expressing the same opinion. However, there is an exception to almost every case. One, Jo Jo McHenry, writes: "Since C & S are replacing the exceedingly funny Stroud Twins with a loud-mouthed vulgarian who never said a funny thing in her life, I hope you'll be happy about the whole thing." But definitely, Jo Jo, and we are all entitled to our opinions, even though you were the only one that didn't agree with our sentiments.

Last week announcers were being auditioned at CBS for a new program sponsored by a bread-maker. The officials who were listening to the voices agreed that one particular announcer had just the voice they wanted for their show, but they couldn't hire him because his cheeks were a bit shallow, and inasmuch as the program would be put on for a studio audience, they didn't think he'd make a good testimonial for their bread. Only ingenious minds could make such decisions, but maybe I'm wrong.

One of the most hilarious rehearsals I have ever attended is that of "Grand Central Station," which I went up to see at CBS the other day. That's because two of the actors who appear regularly in the dramatic sketches are Teddy Bergman and Agnes Moorehead, both of them comedians as well as dramatic actors. It seems Teddy and Agnes can't help clowning before the mike. Rehearsals begin calmly enough, with the cast sitting around a table in the studio running through their lines, under the direction of producer Hyman Brown. Brown explains the different characters to them, changes a word here and there as they go over the script, and then goes into the control-booth for rehearsal before the mikes. That's when the fun begins. The day I was up at rehearsal, Teddy and Agnes had the rest of the cast convulsed with laughter at their antics. Teddy was pretending to be a great temperamental star—of the Hollywood variety—and refusing to go on until Helen Claire, another of the show's actresses, took off her hat. Her feather tickled his nose as they stood in front of the microphone, he said. But after all the kidding was over, the cast got down to work and put on a grand performance.

They're all seasoned radio actors—not only Bergman and Moorehead, but Eric Rolfe and his pretty young wife, Ruth Warrick. Eric and Ruth, as you may remember, were married practically between broadcast and rebroadcast last spring. Eric was announcing for Boake Carter at the time. He's also on "Joyce Jordan, Girl Interne" now, and Ruth does television work as well as script-shows. The two of them had just come back from a visit to Kansas City, Ruth's home town, where Eric shook so many hands of friends and relatives that he said he felt like the President. Ruth was pretty well known out in Kansas City, having been "Miss Jubilesta"—the prettiest girl in town—in 1937. The real intellectual of "Grand Central Station" is pretty blonde Helen Claire. She's the possessor of a Phi Beta Kappa key and an M. A. from Columbia University.

AIRIALTO LOWDOWN

BY MARTIN LEWIS

Even though it's getting chillier these days, all the boys in the band, including Hal Kemp, were in shirt-sleeves when I went up to watch their rehearsal the other day. The lady of the hour at that rehearsal was little Patty Starr, six-year-old daughter of singer Judy Starr, who was with her mother for a short while before going down south to school. Patty looks exactly like her tiny mother. In fact, many people mistake them for sisters. Judy, of course, is under five feet, and looks about sixteen years old. At a rest in rehearsal, most of the band crowded around Patty, who took all the attention quite calmly. Kemp came up and showed her several pictures of his own little daughter, who is about Patty's age, snapshots he had taken himself. When rehearsals began again, Patty remained very quiet, sitting by her mother.

The evening Vox Pop is on the air, NBC is flooded with phone calls from out-of-towners wanting to know where the program will originate that night. The information is never given out, as they want to prevent a jam. If you're in the city early enough on a Saturday night and want to find them, you can be sure they'll be at either the lobbies in Radio City, the McAlpine Hotel, the New Yorker, or the Barbizon Plaza.

Before Major Bowes went on the air the other Thursday night, he called a lady's name and asked if she was in the audience. A very much surprised woman jumped to her feet, wondering how the Major knew she was present. Bowes asked the woman if she had lost anything. She looked in her bag and shrieked, "Yes, my travelers checks!" After identifying herself, the checks were returned. She had dropped them in a cafe near the CBS Playhouse, and the smart manager figured the owner was going to the Bowes broadcast because he found them about fifteen minutes before program time, and he sent the checks over to the studio.

HOLLYWOOD.—War!!! . . . Distaught artists, many with relatives abroad, listening intently to bulletins . . . Networks are doing their greatest job yet in spreading last-minute uncensored news to Americans . . . But not to German citizens whose one-sided receivers are designed by law to pick up only Hitler's version . . . Program directors holding their stop-watches and heads for fear their brain-children will be interrupted by more right-of-way demanding war flashes . . . Plums to H. V. Kaltenborn, outstanding ace commentator of the hour . . . Plums to MBS and NBC, too, for their complete coverage of developments . . . Scene at CBS studios here during wee small hours: Edward G. Robinson, native of Roumania, and Tiny Ruffner in the center of a large group listening to the latest bulletins and discussing what they mean. One of the most concerned is Jean Sablon, French crooning importation, still on the army reserve list. Sablon only recently brought his mother here from Paris for a visit . . . Now he may return it—too soon for his mother.

"Jack," your reporter asked Mr. Benny during rehearsals for his Jell-O show, "when is your wedding anniversary?"—not that I am going to send you anything." "Let's see," the comedian replied, "Mary and I were married twelve years last January 12." Not distrusting him, I asked Mary Livingstone as a double check. She was positive. "Jack and I were married January 14, 1927" . . . Personally, I think they're both wrong. I'm betting on January 12, 1927 . . . Jack told the troubles he was having trying to keep Bill Morrow, one of his scripting team, from putting hospital gags into the Jell-O episodes. Morrow vacationed under a scalpel, so he wanted Jack to use a few lines like "They charged me $100 an inch," "The opening was a great success," and "They didn't give me ether: they just read me a Fred Allen script."

Rom-Antics: Martha Raye is now Mrs. Dave Rose, wife of her pianist-arranger. A quiet ceremony on October 2 tied the knot . . . Bob (Bing's youngest brother) Crosby's new wife, married September 22, was Miss Jane Audrey Kuhn, of Seattle . . . Louise Campbell, actress, left here last week on a motor trip to Chicago, where late in the month of October she will wed Horace MacMahon, the well-known screen and radio actor.

Yep, California has a climate—and a flock of cold infections that are hard to shake. Bill Hay, A&A announcer, missed his first show in years on September 23 as the result of laryngitis (and was he glad he wasn't extolling that certain mouthwash). Three days later a throat infection kept Nan Grey, of "Those We Love," off the air. Cold sufferer last week also was Virginia Verrill, shortly to rejoin Jack Haley with a cast-newcomer, Lucille Ball, the screen comedienne, who, it develops, is Ginny's third cousin.

A bad throat likewise has been troubling Al Jolson for several weeks. So bothersome was it last week that he employed a stand-in, Cliff (Grandpa Sneed) Arquette, to go through his show's rehearsals. Stand-ins, well known and regularly used by the motion-picture industry, are becoming common nowadays in the radio studios. Norma Shearer, too busy to give the required time to rehearsals on the occasion of her recent "Good News" appearance, had one. Constance Bennett, on her recent Pepsodent show guest-spot, was so occupied in making her next "Topper" picture that she also required a stand-in radio actress to read the Bennett lines when she could not be present. The stand-ins, of course, are not employed in the actual broadcasts.

Not to be outdone by one Bing Crosby, motion-picture star drawn from Radioland, Morton Downey is up 'n' at 'em. Mort, so the story goes, may soon give Bing some screen competition as crooning Lothario in Walter Wanger's coming picture, "Winter Carnival" . . . And not to be outdone by tenor Downey, father of five, Mr. B. Crosby, with the assistance of Mrs. Dixie Lee Crosby, is enlarging his four-place nursery to make room for a fifth heir expected next year . . . Downey, according to reports from Texas, is also drilling for oil there in partnership with Tommy Dorsey. The oil (if they strike it) will be equally allocated to Downey's hair and Dorsey's trombone.

Backstage Stuff: Bachelor Edgar Bergen, much interested in studio audience at September 25 Chase & Sanborn hour, stepped down into auditoriums to chat with two clean-cut youngsters—utter strangers to him—and thrill them to the heights . . . Alice Faye allegedly is sporting a pair of $2,500 jeweled stockings, but not to rehearsals—as far as your reporter could see . . . Ribber Vince Barnett just about fixed Victor Young right at a recent Hollywood Hotel rehearsal. Young returned to his podium to find that Barnett had "fired" his musicians—and they believed him, too. Several were walking out. Same show's airings regularly brings a box of flowers for Frances Langford from two Hollywood high-school girls, rabid Langford fans. It's been going on more than a year . . . Jerry Colonna would have you know that his magnificent handle-bar mustache is no idle whim; it took him twelve years to cultivate.

Your reporter blushes to recount a visit to Shep Fields, playing at the Los Angeles Biltmore, and an interesting conversation engaged in with him. "When," I asked, "are you to be featured on the Fitch Bandwagon?" Shep Fields merely replied, "Yesterday."

Norris (Abner) Goff's 201-pound marlin catch has started an Izaak Walton tourney between him and his partner Chet (Lum) Lauck, Harriet Lauck, and Don and Honore Ameche. Latter foursome is devoting each Thursday afternoon to deep-sea fishing in the hopes of topping Abner . . . Incidentally, last Saturday afternoon at the Vine Street Derby looked like children's day. There at one booth unconcernedly sat Ronnie and Donnie Ameche with their mother, while in the adjoining booth were Shirley Temple and her parents. Shirley, you might like to know, was modestly putting away a chicken sandwich and a glass of milk.

Amos 'n' Andy turned out a special five-minute record week before last to be played over Station WMBG, in Richmond, Virginia, home town of Freeman (Amos) Gosden, when the broadcaster, in answer to the appeal of citizens, was added to the NBC net for the "home town boys" program. The record contained a greeting to Gosden's friends. The citizens responded by decorating the streets, having the mayor and governor make speeches . . . It was in Richmond that the theatrical bug first bit Amos. As a youth he entered an amateur high-diving contest sponsored by Annette Kellerman but didn't win. Next he volunteered to help magician Thurston pull rabbits out of a hat and was more successful. The hat DID contain rabbits.

"One Man's Family" increases in size; its babies grow up and are heard. Some day its oldsters will pass on . . . All of which is but reflection on the addition of Hank, 6-year-old son of Hazel and Bill, to the cast of regulars. Hank is played by Bobbie Larson, a Los Angeles kindergarten pupil who has played parts in pictures but never before on the radio. He can't read well yet; must memorize his lines. Hank, or Bobbie, was selected from a group of over a score of young boys by author Carleton Morse as most typical of the character he has in mind. And now Morse is busy selecting a little girl to voice the role of Claudia's baby.

Doesn't Nelson Eddy sing your favorite tunes? He tries to, he assures me. If he doesn't, it's your fault. Every listener's request is carefully tabulated by the big blond baritone's secretary. Then Eddy makes up his weekly radio program to include the numbers for which the most requests have been received. The requests, he says, sometimes run into the thousands and the tabulation is a job in itself. No number will be repeated until several weeks have elapsed.

And now for our own quiz teaser: What noted New York radactress is about to be in the middle of another mess of unfavorable publicity if she doesn't patch it up but quickly with her Hollywood hiding-out hubby?

Laugh, Clown, Laugh

CHICAGO.—We've all heard of Pagliacci, who went on with the show though his heart was breaking. Well, here's a true-life tale of a comedian who went on with the show even though his home was practically swept away in that recent East Coast hurricane. The Sunday morning after the eastern disaster I went up to Billy House's apartment (Billy, you know, is the star comedian of the "Laugh Liner" program) to get some material for an interview. I found his wife frantically packing to catch a train—their house in Matapoisset, Massachusetts, was right in the center of the hurricane's path. They could get no word to the stricken area by telephone, and although "hams" had reached the area it seems that due to power failure the East Coast hams couldn't reply. Mrs. House took the Pennsylvania railroad to New York on Sunday afternoon. Billy went through rehearsals and the broadcast (I'll tell you more about the broadcast later on in the column) not knowing whether he was homeless or not. Monday morning he finally received word from his wife. The house and surrounding property was damaged to the extent of $50,000. Billy had a seawall in front of the house, which was swept away; but if he hadn't had that wall, the whole house would have gone. Monday, Billy flew east to inspect the damage personally, and as this is written he is still in the East. If you noticed a Pagliacci touch on the "Laugh Liner" broadcast of September 25 you'll know that Billy was trying to bring a smile to the audience while in his heart he was wondering about the havoc that had occurred to the home he had built after a lifetime in show business.

We Attend a Rehearsal

Probably the most "Hollywoodish" of all Chicago studio-audience shows is this Laugh Liner program, broadcast every Sunday evening from the sponsor's flood-lighted building which houses Columbia's studios. In the first place, it's a big show; in fact, it's the biggest commercial show on the air today in point of stations, a total of 112 outlets carrying the program, including stations in Canada and Honolulu. Then, although it's an old Hollywood custom to have a preview of broadcasts, the Laugh Liner is the only show in Chicago that boasts a preview. In a couple of ways the Laugh Liner is like the Kraft Music Hall. Like K. M. H., the Laugh Liner has a chorus which supports the singing star—in this case blondish Jack Fulton. And, like the Kraft Music Hall, the rehearsals are very informal. In fact, there never is a complete dress rehearsal of the Laugh Liner. Instead, the band and vocalists do their stuff and then the comedy clique read their lines separately. This is done to preserve an air of informality. And then the band, hearing the gags for the first time during the broadcast, is more apt to burst out in hearty guffaws. Let's drop in on this Sunday afternoon. It is a few minutes after two and rehearsal is already under way. But Sunday's "going over" of the show is no novelty to the Laugh Liner crew, for on Thursday the cast and band get together for their initial rehearsal. Friday a preview is held in Columbia's main studios before a specially invited audience. So when we drop in a few minutes after two the ensuing Laugh Liner antics are "old stuff" to the cast. While the band tunes up, their leader, bespectacled Carl Hohengarten, with sleeves rolled up, is readying his music. Up in the glass-encased control-room, Bob Hafter, the producer, gives Carl the cue to start the band into one of their numbers. Then handsome Jack Fulton steps to the mike and warbles "There's a Far Away Look in Your Eyes." And I noticed the glee club's feminine trio—who are, incidentally, the attractive and well-known Doring Sisters, though they receive no billing on the program—did have something of a "far-away look" as they and all the other choristers ably supported Fulton. Rehearsals go on till 2:40, when Hafter announces a recess. Everybody goes out into the hall to gossip or perhaps take a smoke. At three o'clock, producer Hafter blows a whistle and everybody treks back to the stage. Now Billy House, 300-pound comedian, and other cast member also go "on stage." One thing that impressed me particularly, by the way, was the vigorous gum-chewing displayed by everybody on the Laugh Liner. It's really a picnic to watch all the jaws moving up and down in time to the music. But getting back to rehearsal: For a twenty-minute period the cast and band work together getting their cues, but still the script remains unread in its entirety. Finally, the bandmen are "cleared off" the stage and all copy—both script and commercials with red-headed announcer Tommy Bartlett handling the latter—is then gone through. Meanwhile only ten or so seats of the couple hundred in the studio are occupied. Sitting in the almost empty studio are the two gag-writers, Howard Snyder and Hugh Wedlock, who came to Chicago from Hollywood, where they wrote the Jack Oakie show last year. They listen closely to the script. It seems odd to hear gaglines being given with no laughs, inasmuch as there's no studio audience. At four o'clock the rehearsal is over. Hafter, House and the gagmen retire to a near-by restaurant, where over "coffee and" they make final revisions of the script, cutting a little here and adding a bit there. About five o'clock everybody files on-stage, and at the same time the studio audience begins to trickle in. At 5:29 there's a full house, and a few seconds after 5:30 Bob Hafter lets his hand down, which is the signal for the CBS Laugh Liner, radio's largest commercial program, to go on the air.

The Burns Bunch Invades Chicago

Just to give you an idea of RADIO GUIDE's extensive coverage when a radio star passes through the Windy City: On the Friday morning when Burns and Allen arrived in town from the Kansas City Jubilesta, Marty Lewis, RADIO GUIDE reporter in New York, who was in Chicago for a couple of days, was on hand to greet them. At 1:00 p.m. yours truly was at the Northwestern station. George Burns, sans Gracie, who remained at her Blackstone Hotel room, as she was all tuckered out, was at the station to greet his two youngsters, Sandra and Ronnie, aged four and three, who were arriving from Hollywood. George wears glasses, but he took them off when photographers snapped their cameras. Both youngsters are blond and wore becoming light-blue suits. They were escorted from Hollywood by Georgie's brother, Bill, who is also the comedian's manager. Both youngsters were adopted from Evanston's famous Cradle, where many radio, stage and screen stars have adopted children.

Chicagoans See Facsimile

Dropped in at Chicago's internationally famous department store, Marshall Field & Co., to attend their fourth annual radio show. Crowds attend this exhibit, for something sensationally new in radio is being demonstrated in Chicago. It's facsimile! (It's pronounced fak-sim-i-lee.) I had seen facsimile last February when I attended a convention of broadcasting-station owners in Washington, D. C. What is this latest radio invention of which some newspapers are fearful lest it put them out of business? Facsimile is a process whereby printed matter in a broadcasting studio can be reproduced in your home. Unlike television, where you see an image immediately and where there is no permanent record of a program once the broadcast is over, it takes twenty minutes for material the size of a page of typing paper to be reproduced by facsimile. I think facsimile broadcasting is the transitory stage between radio and television. What is the present value of facsimile? I doubt if people living in metropolitan cities will find facsimile of any use to them at the present time. However, I do think people living in rural districts and in lonely parts of the country who do not get newspapers for a couple of days after they've printed will find facsimile immensely helpful. For instance, let us say you live on a farm far from any city publishing a daily paper. You go to bed about midnight and leave your combination facsimile-radio on. Five hours later you have a complete tabloid-size newspaper—news, pictures, comics, advertisements and all. That would certainly be a boon to residents of rural areas, but people living in metropolitan areas receive last-minute news in printed form shortly after it happens anyway. Two stations in Chicago area—the Chicago Tribune's WGN and independently owned WIND—have been granted experimental licenses for facsimile broadcasting. Will facsimile ever take the place of newspapers? I doubt it.

AMERICAN WOMEN DO IT BETTER

—International

Pearl Buck, Pulitzer-prize winner for her novel "The Good Earth," who will speak over CBS Tuesday

SINCE 1800, when men of England were still leading unruly wives to market with ropes around their necks and selling them for a three-pence and up, American women have been forging slowly but surely ahead.

Victor Hugo, the great French novelist, once said: "Men have sight; women insight." The American woman has coupled that insight to the far-sighted vision of American men and put it to practical use. The life-work of such outstanding women as Susan B. Osgood, Margaret Fuller, Ida M. Tarbell, and Jane Addams proves it.

While the women of European nations have progressed by inches through the centuries, American women have leaped ahead by miles in the past twenty years. Before the World War they were numbered in the thousands in business. Today they are two million strong in every field of endeavor.

The week beginning October 11 will mark a significant milestone in the successful progress of American women in business. Arranged by the National Federation of Business and Professional Women, this week will be noted throughout the country as "National Business Women's Week."

On Tuesday, October 11, Pearl Buck, Jane Todd, and Dorothy Dunbar Bromley, three outstanding American women, will broadcast over CBS from 3 to 3:30 p.m. from the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel in New York City. Around them at the luncheon tables will be a representative group of American business and professional women.

When Pearl Buck, author and Pulitzer-prize winner for her novel, "The Good Earth," speaks, she will represent thousands of women who make their living by writing. Jane Todd, member of the New York State Assembly, will represent civic-minded women in every city and hamlet in the nation; and Dorothy Dunbar Bromley, forthright woman progressive and fearless columnist on the New York Evening Post, will be talking for all those courageous women who have dared to give sane, healthy answers to tabooed questions that have nagged their sex for ages.

Mrs. Bromley has come a long way from the squeamish pink-and-lavender days of the Gay Nineties. A deep thinker, her point of view is often controversial, but she puts it across without trimming her sails or pulling her punches. Today her books on birth-control are recognized as standard works.

Leaving the luncheon table broadcast, let us look at some other American women who have earned their place in the sun beside the American man. With the idea in mind that the children of today become the citizens of tomorrow, Mrs. Anne Hummert pioneered on child psychology for the radio. One of the foremost behind-the-scenes personalities in woman's newest field, Mrs. Hummert, working with her husband, Frank Hummert, directs and supervises over forty air programs. When she heard stories of children being reduced to nervous hysteria by blood-and-thunder radio melodrama, listened to mothers complain that their small sons were glorifying and imitating the gangster heroes of the air, she set out to remedy it. First thing Mrs. Hummert did was to consult a child-psychologist on the subject. Out of that grew children's radio programs that were character-building as well as fascinating entertainment.

Working solely along the line that the hand that rocks the cradle is the hand that rules the world, Mrs. William Bradley Walrath, with a home and family of her own to look after, employed her spare time in finding babies for childless couples. Her penetrating insight into a great human need resulted in Evanston's (Illinois) famous "Cradle."

At the top in the field of merchandising is Mrs. Hortense McQuarrie Odlum, head of Bonwit Teller, one of the oldest and finest stores in New York City. In 1936, Mrs. Odlum, the first woman to head a huge retail establishment, was selected to represent

LISTENING TO LEARN

Current Events . . .

Sundays

The Reviewing Stand. 11:15-11:30 a.m., MBS. For the person who wishes to use Sunday morning leisure to keep abreast of important issues, this is an ideal program. Authorities on current problems discuss outstanding events in the news; for example, in a recent broadcast two Northwestern University professors analyzed the LaFollette revolt.

University of Chicago Round Table Discussion. 12:30-1 p.m., NBC. Lively treatment of timely topics characterizes this half-hour. Experts and prominent figures in both national and international affairs can be depended upon to give both sides of subjects of grave import and momentous public concern in a straightforward, uncensored discussion of the questions involved. Last Sunday Roosevelt's Secretary of Agriculture, Henry A. Wallace, defended the economics of the New Deal against the arguments of two professors.

Europe Calling. 1:30-1:45 p.m., CBS. Experts witness significant affairs abroad and are brought to the microphone in foreign capitals to give accounts of and tell their reactions to what they have seen. The noted psychologist, Sigmund Freud, was heard in this series from Evian, France.

Headlines and By-Lines. 10:30-11 p.m., CBS. This is the idea program for the busy listener. In a half-hour H. V. Kaltenborn, dean of commentators, paints the background of each week's news from abroad. Ralph Edwards, Washington correspondent, gives the latest slant on national affairs from Washington, D. C., and Gilbert Seldes, brilliant author and critic, diverges from the political and economic to talk of the arts.

Mondays

National Radio Forum. 10:30-11 p.m., NBC. On this program the men who make our laws in Washington, D. C., come to the microphone. For the person who wishes to keep posted on legislative measures that are before Congress, this program has no equal.

Tuesdays

The State of the Nation. 10:45-11 p.m., NBC. Firm in the belief that a man cannot report on conditions throughout the country and the attitude of the people in various sections by sitting in Washington, Jay Franklin, veteran correspondent, hopped into his car and proceeded to tour the nation from Coast to Coast, contacting the people direct and studying conditions in all important industrial and agricultural regions enroute. What he is seeing and learning is told on each Tuesday and Friday night for the duration of his automobile trip across the northern part of the country to the Pacific Coast, and return to New York by a southern route.

Fridays

George R. Holmes. 6:30-6:45 p.m., NBC. Direct from Washington, D. C., where news is made, the chief of the Washington bureau of the International News Service describes the latest developments in the nation's capital.

The State of the Nation. 10:45-11 p.m., NBC. See Tuesday.

This page, presenting a classified list of educational programs, will be a monthly feature of Radio Guide. Here is learning made easy. Listen and be both entertained and enlightened.

Times given are EST. For CST subtract 1 hour; MST, 2 hours; PST, 3 hours. Recommendations based on cultural values

Drama . . .

Sundays

Shakespeare's England. 1-1:30 p.m., NBC. For faithful followers of the great bard's work, this series offers an excellent opportunity to get acquainted with England as it was in his day. A recognized authority, understanding Shakespeare as a human being influenced by the political and economic conditions of his era, depicts the actual life and times that are reflected in his works.

Mercury Theater. 8-9 p.m., CBS. Though only 23, Orson Welles is an accomplished actor, producer and director. In this series, with the aid of the Mercury Theater Company, he has introduced a new technique in presenting the broadcast dramatization. Fields of literature heretofore untouched by radio are explored. Unique dramatizations already treated include Bram Stoker's eerie "Dracula," Robert Louis Stevenson's "Treasure Island," and Dickens' "A Tale of Two Cities."

Thursdays

Columbia Workshop. 10-10:30 p.m., CBS. Anything can happen in this veteran experimental series, for here Columbia tests the latest broadcasting techniques, tries new and revolutionary approaches to dramatic presentation in an effort to widen the scope of the art. For example, in one play recently presented the main character was distinguished only by the wail of his trumpet, in another the year's outstanding performances and contributions of newspapermen were dramatized.

Fridays

The Nation's Playhouse. 11:30 p.m.-12 mid., MBS. This is a wise choice for the listener who likes to combine the practical with the entertaining. The flexible fields of biography and history are treated with authenticity in enjoyable dramatization. For example, the life of Edgar Allan Poe, the battle of Waterloo, and the history of aviation have been handled admirably in this series.

Saturdays

Original Plays. 8:30-9 p.m., NBC. For lovers of light comedy, simple intrigue and dramatic romance, the works of contemporary authors presented in this series are ideal. As the title indicates, the plays are written expressly for radio treatment.

Science . . .

Sundays

The World Is Yours. 4:30-5 p.m., NBC. Visitors at museums always leave with numerous questions in their minds that have been stimulated by their observations. An effort to answer some of these questions is made by the U. S. Office of Education in this weekly series of dramatizations of the historical facts that make the background of the arts and sciences, based on the exhibits in the Smithsonian Institution.

Mondays

National Farm and Home Hour. 12:30-1:30 p.m., NBC. The man who tries to keep abreast of the many-fold applications of science to farming will find this series indispensable. Here is the well-balanced combination of farm news and informational talks. This program is heard daily except Sundays at this time.

Science in the News. 6-6:15 p.m., NBC. These programs are designed for those who are interested in the latest developments of science but cannot understand the technical language usually used to describe the advances and complex applications of scientific work.

Science on the March. 7:45-8 p.m., NBC. The "whys," "hows" and "wherefores" attending recent discoveries in the various fields of science find their answers in this weekly quarter-hour. The procedure finds a leading scientist answering questions put by a person representative of the inquiring public. The disturbing effects of goldenrod and similar plants were treated in a recent broadcast.

Fridays

Exploring Space. 5:15-5:30 p.m., CBS. Planets and satellites have long been a mystery to the average man. Many are interested, however, and for them this series supplies the answers.

Saturdays

Men Against Death. 9-9:30 p.m., CBS. Dramatizing science's fight against a multitude of scourges, this series is made to order for the leisure of the person who would like to learn of man's momentous sacrifices in the interest of humanity. The accounts from which these dramatizations are built are taken from the writings of Paul de Kruif.

Thought-Comment . . .

Sundays

The Farmer Takes the Mike. 2:30-3 p.m., CBS. If you wonder how the farmer feels about the "ups" and "downs" of daily life, this half-hour will supply the answer. Each week Columbia invades the center of a farming area and brings to the microphone men and women—farm-owners, helpers and tenants—who discuss their reactions to a variety of personal and social problems.

The People's Platform. 7-7:30 p.m., CBS. Convinced that the vital force contained in public opinion takes shape in the informal discussions of the dinner-table, Columbia has created just that atmosphere to present this series of actual dinner-table conversation between typical citizens chosen from all walks of life. Solutions to social and political problems are sought through the exchange of ideas between the housewife, the expert, the layman.

Mondays

Between the Bookends. 3:45-4 p.m., NBC. For the listener who can afford to devote fifteen minutes in the afternoon pleasantly and profitably on the wide scope of subjects found between any set of bookends. For the poetry-lover one listener-contribution is read each day.

Tuesdays

Let's Talk It Over. 2:15-2:30 p.m., NBC. Ladies are treated to their own quarter-hour twice weekly. Comments on cultural subjects are presented by distinguished educators, writers, musicians and nationally prominent people. Marshall Field III, the Duchess d'Ayen, fashion authority, and Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt, in this series have offered enlightening contributions touching many diverse subjects.

Between the Bookends. 3:45-4 p.m., NBC. See Monday.

Of Men and Books. 4:45-5 p.m., CBS. This is a "must" for the book-lover. Professor Frederick's reviews of contemporary books and comments about their authors have the keen understanding of a man who not only reads books but writes them as well. From one to three books are reviewed on each broadcast and occasionally a prominent writer is enticed to the microphone.

Wednesdays

Between the Bookends. 3:45-4 p.m., NBC. See Monday.

Thursdays

Let's Talk It Over. 2:15-2:30 p.m., NBC. See Tuesday.

Between the Bookends. 3:45-4 p.m., NBC. See Monday.

Americans at Work. 10:30-11 p.m., CBS. Workmen busy at their jobs in tunnels, laboratories, ranches, filling-stations and shops throughout the country come within the range of Columbia's microphone for this weekly half-hour. This program offers unduplicated possibilities for those who are curious to know just what goes on in other pastures.

Fridays

Between the Bookends. 3:45-4 p.m., NBC. See Monday.

NEXT WEEK

NEXT WEEK "Listening to Learn" will bring you an intimate description of Dr. Max Jordan and his work. Here you will read of a man who, in addition to being an expert commentator and shrewd diplomat, has also distinguished himself by making clever arrangements for broadcasts from strategic points in Europe's bubbling maelstrom, broadcasts that bring you first-hand accounts of HISTORY IN THE MAKING.

Limited to one page, we were unable to include all classifications in this section. Those that are missing will be found in a continuation of this feature in "Listening to Learn" NEXT WEEK.

WAVE Your HAIR AT HOME with "JACKEY" Wave Setter

New amazing device gives you professional wave in 5 minutes—also re-sets your permanent. Jackey does for you, mechanically, exactly what the beauty operator does with her fingers and a comb, when she gives you a finger wave. It took her 6 months to learn it, you can do it instantly by placing "Jackey" on your hair and merely pushing your thumb and forefinger together. It automatically draws any type of wave, void of amateurish look—best suited to your personality—saves $13.50 to $26.00 a year on beauty bill. Uses no heat; no electricity; no dangerous chemicals. Made of sturdy comb-like material, lasts many years. Light as a feather, a child can handle it. Costs only $1.00. Just send $1.00 for "Jackey" postpaid. Or send your name and address and we'll ship C.O.D. Pay postman $1.00 plus charges on arrival. Guaranteed as advertised in Good Housekeeping. If not delighted we insist you return it within 10 days for your dollar back. Order today.

For 21-Years Gets REAL RELIEF From ASTHMA ATTACKS

What Mrs. Bean said in 1916
"I have derived great benefit from Nacor after suffering for seventeen years from asthma paroxysms. I coughed most of the time and could not rest night or day."
"When I began taking Nacor I could hardly walk across the room, but before I had taken one bottle I could do most of my housework. I recommend it to all sufferers." Mrs. Mary Bean, Nashua, Iowa (December 8, 1916).

and in 1937
"I am not bothered with asthma paroxysms. Thanks to Nacor." Mrs. Mary Bean, Nashua, Ia. (March 22, 1937).

Don't Hesitate About Feminine Hygiene

Use a modern method

Why add to the problems of life by worrying about old-fashioned or embarrassing methods of feminine hygiene? If you doubt the effectiveness of your method, or if you consider it messy, greasy, and hateful, here is news that you will welcome.

Thousands of happy, enlightened women now enjoy a method that is modern, effective—kills germs—and, equally important—dainty!

ZONITORS ARE GREASELESS

Zonitors offer a new kind of suppository that is small, snow-white and GREASELESS! While easy to apply and completely removable with water, Zonitors maintain long, effective antiseptic contact. No mixing. No clumsy apparatus. Odorless—and an ideal deodorant.

Zonitors make use of the world-famous Zonite antiseptic principle favored because of its antiseptic power and freedom from "burn" danger to delicate tissues.

RECORDS OF THE WEEK

A new department reviewing the recordings of your radio favorites

IN RECENT months, all of the record companies have been popping out with special albums of ten-inch records on various types of foreign music, such as the tango, the rumba, Hungarian-Gypsy, Vienna waltzes, and so forth. Most popular seems to be tangos, two albums by Columbia being the top-notch offering in this field. They are all imported recordings, made by orchestras from Argentina and Europe, giving both the native tango and the continental tango, all in very authentic style. The selections are not the most obvious in the field and the albums cost $5. The Victor album is ditto, while the Decca tango album was made in America by Pancho and his orchestra, giving an Americanized reading on the music, and offers ten of the most familiar of all tangos. ($2.25.)

Vienna Waltzes also take the spotlight, with the Victor company offering an imported selection of Viennese music of authentic colorings, two medleys by Marek Weber, and some other waltzes (none of them the usual Strauss-Lehar-Waldteufel vintage), and one record of German tales and dialogs, all spoken in German. This Victor album sells for $5.

Decca has three waltz albums—one featuring Strauss, another Lehar and Kalman, and the third, just released, of music by Waldteufel. They are all recorded in America by Harry Horlick and his orchestra, with the most familiar of tunes included and done in a straight, flat style. ($2.25 each.)

There are two rumba albums to be had, both imported and very authentic—the Columbia, featuring the Lecuona Cuban Boys and the Orquesta Antobal ($5.00), and the Victor, featuring numerous real Cuban orchestras doing little-known and typical melodies. ($5.)

Decca offers Music of Hawaii in an album featuring Bing Crosby, Harry Owens, Ted Fio-Rito, and Ray Kinney orchestras, all somewhat Americanized. ($2.50.) Decca also announces for the near future a salon-music album, by Harry Horlick's orchestra, of the most hackneyed of all salon tunes: Toselli's Serenade, Dark Eyes, Melody in F by Rubinstein, and the like; also a Stephen Foster album of his most familiar music, featuring Frank Luther and the Lyn Murry Quartet.

Other ten-inch record albums of this ilk include the throbbing Melodias Hungarias-Gitanos, which we have already reviewed in these columns (Victor), an album of Jewish music on Victor which should be out very soon, the Bessie Smith album of old Negro blues on Columbia, the Andre Kostelanetz album on Brunswick, and the famous Bix Beiderbecke Memorial album of work by that eminent trumpeter when he was in his heyday.

Popular:

You Never Know, title tune from the Broadway show by Cole Porter, and another hit from the show, At Long Last Love, both receive the Glen Gray orchestral treatment, the Kenny Sergeant vocal treatment, Kenny sounding a little affected in the latter. (Decca 2010.)

Simple and Sweet describes exactly the way Paul Martin and his soothing music handle the tune by that name in their bow on wax. Martin developed his saccharine style at NBC in San Francisco and it got favorable comment from Coast to Coast. (Bluebird-7798.)

Garden of the Moon. Another debut on records is celebrated on Victor by Skinnay Ennis and his band. Ennis, unlike most deserters from their old bosses, goes forth with the blessing and management of Hal Kemp, with whom he used to sing in his jittery way. On this title song, and on the other side, The Girl Friend of the Whirling Dervish, it is Ennis all the way. (Victor-26047.)

Solution to Puzzle Given Last Week

the outstanding business executive on the big-ten list of most progressive American women.

Youngest of the ten in this selected group was Margaret Bourke-White, who, at the age of thirty-three, is a photographer with an international reputation for making unusual industrial studies. Mrs. White created the first large permanent photo-mural for National Broadcasting studios in Rockefeller Center, New York. In addition to her own work as a photographer, she is associate editor of "Fortune" magazine and photographer for "Life."

On the stage, and more recently in the movies, women have always been in the foreground as actors, but it remained for Frances Marion to take the honor of being the highest-paid scenario-writer of the screen. Author of over two hundred original motion pictures, Miss Marion won the Academy Award for "The Big House" in 1930, and again in 1932 for "The Champ."

The often-repeated statement that women in business are trying to ape men, becoming masculine, can hardly be given credence when one considers the number of successful business women who are also good wives and mothers. The truth of the matter is many went into business solely to support themselves and their children when their husbands died and left them without funds.

One such woman was Alice Foote MacDougall. Left with some thirty-odd dollars to her name and a family to rear, Mrs. MacDougall started making coffee and waffles in a hole-in-the-wall shop in New York City. That small beginning grew into a chain of restaurants famous for good food and excellent service. In addition, this enterprising woman wrote several books, including one on cooking.

Turning to the realm of music, Fannie Charles Dillon, daughter of California's famous Judge Dillon, is employing her time outside of teaching hours in Los Angeles schools to write music. To date she has twenty-five compositions for piano and voice to her credit.

In the "Who's Who Among American Women" for 1937-38, which lists close to eight thousand names, all professions and branches of business are represented. The names of these women stand at the top, and their incomes range from thousands to millions. Among the high government women officials are listed Frances Perkins, U. S. Commissioner of Labor, and Josephine Roche, Assistant Secretary of the U. S. Treasury since 1934. But back of them is the great army of 1,992,000 working women who each in some way has contributed to the building of the organization of the National Federation of Business and Professional Women.

In a normal year, the American woman spends $52,000,000,000—read it again—fifty-two billions. Of the nation's private wealth, 70 percent is in her hands; of savings deposits, 60 percent is in women's names. Life insurance company records reveal that 80 percent of the beneficiaries on their policies are women. At the present time, 60 percent of American Telephone and Telegraph stock, and 40 percent of General Electric, Wrigley Gum and General Foods—to name just a few—are owned by women.

This world's problems will never again be man's or woman's alone, but must remain forever theirs, jointly. This is a twosome planet on which we live, and American women working shoulder to shoulder with American men is the way of progress.

Wednesday's broadcasts, titled "Lives Between the Lines," will be literature features presented in collaboration with the National Council of Teachers of English and the American Library Association. They will include dramatizations of American literature and a series of guest speakers invited from the ranks of outstanding writers of this country. The program will point out how literature can be used to increase understanding of other human beings, an essential to a successful democracy.

 Dramatizations, in chronological order, will trace the growth and development of the Nation's school system, starting with establishment of the very first school in the new world. They will also include a picture of the changing ideas in teaching and the evolution of the present modern methods of education. Belmont Farley, director of public relations of the NEA, is narrator.

OLD BOOKS WANTED

We pay big cash prices for thousands of different titles. We bought over 7,500 books in past twenty-one months, paying as high as $500 for a single book. For example, we will pay you cash for the following books as described in our price list:

Pilgrim's Progress	$4,000.00
Adventures of Tom Sawyer	200.00
Old Swimmin' Hole	75.00
Black Beauty	100.00
Treasure Island	50.00
Scarlet Letter	35.00
Venus and Adonis	5,000.00
Leaves of Grass	250.00
Snow-Bound	45.00
Uncle Tom's Cabin	100.00
Ben Hur	50.00
Last of the Mohicans	50.00
Moby Dick	100.00
Little Women	25.00
McGuffey Primer	100.00
Tamerlane & Other Poems	5,000.00

These are but a few of the many thousands of books we want. DON'T SEND BOOKS until you have checked our latest list giving full information. Don't delay—a single old school book, story book, bible, poetry, history, travel, almanacs, newspapers, letters, etc., may bring you $25, $50, $100, $500 or even $5,000 each for certain books. Better investigate NOW! Send 10c to the American Book Mart, 140 S. Dearborn St., Dept. 7801, Chicago, and we will send you latest list of old books we want to buy and cash prices we will pay.

NEW PROGRAMS

Al Pearce (Grape-Nuts), along with all of his gang, can be heard starting a new series of programs Monday, October 10, at 7 p.m. CST.

American School of the Air. This above-the-average educational program, which is used in schoolrooms as part of the grade-school curriculum, enters its tenth consecutive year of broadcasting. The program can be heard Mondays thru Fridays at 1:30 p.m. CST.

Arturo Toscanini, who returns to the air Saturday, October 15, will be heard again in a series of concerts directing the NBC Symphony Orchestra. Toscanini, conductor extraordinary, can be heard at 9 p.m. CST.

Carson Robison's Buckaroos (Musterole), hillbillies deluxe, bring their music into your home starting Monday, October 10, at 7 p.m. CST.

Court of Human Relations (Vad-sco Sales Corporation), one of radio's pioneer human-interest programs, which dramatizes stories that are authentically taken from real life, will return to the air Sunday, October 9, at 3:30 p.m. CST.

Hobby Lobby (Fels Naptha) was signed for a new series of programs to be heard on Wednesdays at 7:30 p.m. CST.

Jack Haley (Wonder Bread and Hostess Cake), after a summer lay-off, returns to the air with Ted Fio-Rito's orchestra Friday, October 14, at 6:30 p.m. CST.

Metropolitan Opera Auditions of the Air (Sherwin-Williams Company), the program that gives lesser-known singers a chance to reach the goal that all singers strive for, the Metropolitan Opera Company, returns to the air Sunday, October 9, at 4 p.m. CST.

Music Appreciation Hour, conducted by Dr. Walter Dam-rosch, a program of the heavier type of music that is sometimes used as a supplement in the classrooms in the study of music appreciation, can be heard on Fridays at 1 p.m. CST.

CLOSINGS

Robert L. Ripley (Post Bran Flakes) left the air after the last broadcast Monday, October 3. It is not known, as we go to press, whether he will return to the air in the near future with a new program.

PROGRAM CHANGES

Guy Lombardo's orchestra (Lady Esther) replaces Wayne King on the latter's Monday and Friday night spots. Guy Lombardo can be heard Mondays at 9 p.m. CST and Fridays at 9 p.m. CST. However, due to the President's speech in connection with the program "Mobilization For Human Needs" on Friday night, Guy will be heard the following week.

Short-wave programs of American stations are shown along with the regular listings beginning on page 24. These are indicated, for example, by (sw-11.87) in parentheses following a program listing. This means that on 11.87 megacycles the same program may also be heard over an American short-wave station. Please note that foreign stations do not always adhere precisely to their announced program schedules.

On Short Waves

Edited by Chas. A. Morrison

President, International DX'ers Alliance

Times given are EST. For CST subtract 1 hour; MST, 2 hours; PST, 3 hours

IF WAR comes (and we fervently hope it will not), short-wave radio is destined to play a very important role.

Ultra-high-frequency transmitters, highly efficient over a limited radius but inaudible at any distance, will be used extensively for directing military maneuvers, for warning civilians of air raids and for short-range intercommunication between military units.

Silent aircraft loaded with the most powerful and destructive bombs ever known will rise from the ground to an invisible height of 25,000 or 30,000 feet, follow a predetermined course, hover over a supplies depot, munitions dump or enemy airport, discharge its load of death, and return to its airbase all without a human being aboard, its intricate operations directed entirely by a mechanical robot, in turn controlled by skilled mathematicians, engineers and scientists behind the lines.

Every army unit will carry its own portable, or mobile, short-wave transmitter, which will be in constant touch with headquarters and which will at the same time forestall any chance of a division being isolated and ambushed.

Planes and cars crossing invisible frontiers will suddenly stop, their motors rendered useless by a powerful hidden short-wave beam.

Powerful base transmitters, which can operate on many different frequencies and equipped with devices for scrambling speech, are located at secret locations in bomb-proof chambers far below the surface of the ground and are now ready for instant use by several European countries. Germany is reported to have a 200,000-watt underground transmitter with a vertical aerial which rises out of the earth like a periscope of a submarine approaching the surface, and a few minutes later disappears into the ground with silent and deadly efficiency.

And then, of course, there will be the present powerful government short-wave stations which will diffuse propaganda, all-important for preserving the morale of its own people and at the same time undermining the morale of its enemies.

Carrier waves loaded with dramatic and dangerous messages will suddenly be blotted out by loud and mysterious noises, superimposed by radio stations of the enemy forces.

No one attempts to disguise the fact that if war comes it will be a terrible conflict of swift and efficient machines, directed by, operated by, or in contact with all-important base short-wave transmitters controlled by a staff of highly skilled radio-scientists.

Events in Europe are happening with such startling swiftness that many short-wave stations are breaking into their regular programs with last-minute flashes, as well as unscheduled interviews, on-spot commentaries and word pictures. Best European reception in the late afternoons and early evenings is now being afforded by the following stations: GSP (15.31) or GSD (11.75) of Daventry, England; DJB (15.2), or DJD (11.77) of Zeesen, Germany; TPB7 (11.885) of Essarts, France; 2R04 (11.81), of Rome, Italy; OLR5A (15.23), OLR5B (15.32), or OLR4A (11.84), of Prague, Czechoslovakia; RKI (15.08), and RAN (9.6) of Moscow, U. S. S. R.

SHORT-WAVE SHORTS: Latest news from Loyalist headquarters in Madrid, Spain, are now being heard daily over EAQ (9.855), from 7:30 to 4:05 a.m., 3:45 to 4:05 p.m., 7:30 to 8 p.m. and 8:45 to 9:10 p.m. EST. TGWB, the new 1,000-watt short-wave transmitter at Guatemala City, Guatemala, is now relaying TGW and TGWA daily on 6.498 megs. . . . Winnipeg, Canada, Stations CJRO (6.147) and CJRX (11.72) are operating only on Saturday evenings at present. . . . A tip for American radio manufacturers: In the recent British radio show "Radiolympia," all-wave receivers were exhibited with push-button tuning that automatically selected the middle of the 16-, 19-, 25-, 31- or 49-meter bands, from which point novices could more easily locate any particular station.

One of Daventry's most popular sports announcers, Thomas Woodroffe, shows how the BBC's new "lip-microphone" makes it possible to give commentaries while an expert at hand passes on extra facts, details

Look at the magic number puzzle. You see that it has 5 squares which are blank. That's where the fun starts. Numbers 1-3-7-9 have already been placed in their correct positions, but see if you can place the numbers 2-4-5-6-8 in the blank squares so that they will add up to 15 in any direction up or down, sideways or diagonally. It's loads of fun. Try it now. If you can get the numbers into their right places, fill in the coupon below and mail it quick! It's not as easy as you may think, but keep trying and you may solve the puzzle. Remember, you do not send one single penny with the coupon. You risk no money at all, only a postage stamp to mail your answer and according to our amazing plan of merchandising, which your answer brings, you get the wonderful opportunity to win $2,500.00 all cash, if prompt. Remember that $1,250.00 cash prize for promptness if declared first prize winner. All you need do now is just fill in the blank squares so they will add up to 15. Mail the coupon with the numbers and get the wonderful opportunity to win $2,500.00 all cash.
