We Present . . .

RADIO, which is the unparalleled Bringer of News and Maker of Music, has yet to reach the stature of the motion picture in the field of drama. We point to the film, "Young Tom Edison," which was reviewed in our week-before-last issue. "Young Tom Edison," the story of a boy who later became great, is in reality much more than a mere tale. In its engaging reels is a message of hope to every puzzled young American. Jobs have been too few these recent years. Young people going into industry or business have searched long and often in vain for work. They have come to wonder if the old days are gone forever and if there is any place in our present American system for newcomers. Speakers on the air have attempted to answer their questions, but that wasn't enough. "Young Tom Edison" shows them. It shows them that young Tom himself had a tough time, too. But that perseverance, pluck and the use of an active, inquiring mind enabled him to become the whole world's benefactor. In the unforgettable words of W. J. Cameron speaking recently on the "Ford Sunday Evening Hour": "Who can encompass in words the works of Edison? He was the Light-Bringer. He was the Bringer of Power. He was the dissolver of Separating Distance. He was the Capturer and Preserver and Reproducer of all that is worthy and beautiful in sound and form and motion. Whenever he pointed his magic wand, wealth, employment, refinement, help sprang up for millions of men." Each of us should see "Young Tom Edison" and then visit later "Edison, the Man," now being made in Hollywood by Spencer Tracy. Both of these pictures are great entertainment, but they are also a much-needed reminder of the unchanging qualities of mind and character on which true greatness is based. —The Editor.

WHEN the clamor of protest against radio's daytime serial dramas waxes loudest — and probably long after it has faded into nothingness—millions of fans will be sitting comfortably back each day to listen to their favorite radio stories.

Plain fact is that this type of broadcast has proved, beyond all question, its attractiveness to a large and highly important part of the radio audience.

A top-ranking serial currently is "Road of Life" and its leading lady is charming Lesley Woods. Listeners know her as Carol Evans Martin, the spoiled, rich society girl who meets and falls in love with Dr. Jim Brent, young doctor-hero of "Road of Life" (heard Monday through Friday on both NBC and CBS).

Lesley Woods, who is also heard in several other dramatic serials, came to radio in 1938 after a successful Broadway engagement with the Theater Guild. Ash-blond, blue-eyed, she is five feet four inches tall, weighs 110 pounds, is one of radio's best-dressed women. Her ambition: To become a famous dramatic director!

FATHER COUGHLIN DIDN'T GO ON THE AIR

A trip behind the scenes to Coughlin's mysterious establishment reveals why he "wouldn't talk" Feb. 4

COUGHLIN OFF AIR; MYSTERY VEILS ABSENCE

(Special to The News)
Detroit, Feb. 4.—The Rev. Charles E. Coughlin, crusading radio priest, bewildered countless thousands of his Sunday listeners today by mysteriously "vanishing" from the air. For the full scheduled hour of his program, listeners heard music interrupted by three dramatically phrased announcements which served only to increase rather than dissipate the puzzlement of the audience.

"Pay no heed to idle rumors . . ." Thus Father Coughlin, above, whetted listeners' curiosity (through his announcer) when he didn't broadcast Feb. 4

By FRANCIS CHASE, JR.

PROMINENTLY posted on the wall of WJR, Detroit's "Good Will" station, is an elaborately framed code of ethics which reads, in part:

. . . We recognize that the radio audience includes persons of all ages and all types of political, social and religious belief. Therefore we will endeavor to prevent the broadcasting of any matter which would commonly be regarded as offensive . . . and exert every effort that no dishonest, fraudulent or dangerous person may gain access to the radio public . . .

Father Coughlin's Sunday talks originate from radio station WJR. In this capacity, WJR, on Sunday, February 4, became the origination point for as weird a piece of radio broadcasting as ever went out over the airwaves (not excepting Orson Welles' "Mars" episode, a purely unintentional pandemonium-raiser). That night, as Coughlin followers were gathered about their radios for the weekly talk, Franklin Mitchell, Coughlin announcer, exhorted them to "call all your friends by telephone and tell them to listen to this program." A musical interlude followed. Then the announcer stepped back to the microphone.

"And now for the first significant announcement: I am instructed to say, 'Father Coughlin will not address you today. No person will address you today over this microphone. I am not authorized to give any explanation.'"

MORE music followed, and then this announcement:

"I am instructed to say: 'Pay no heed to idle rumors which will be circulated this week. Be assured Father Coughlin knows what he is doing. He knows why neither he nor any other person is speaking over this microphone today. Probably events transpiring this week will enlighten you.'"

Very mysterious, very intriguing. When the week had passed, Father

Coughlin returned to the microphone to give an innocuous talk on the annual report of the National Catholic Welfare Conference. He made no mention of the mysterious proceedings of the week before. The next Sunday, he spoke on the meaning of Lent. Still no mention. Only event transpiring which might have had a bearing upon the case was the announcement of the United States Department of Justice that it planned to investigate the Father Coughlin activities. Rumors flew back and forth, the most persistent being that he had planned an attack upon the Justice Department and had been muzzled. Other rumors were that the Catholic Church had so censored his planned talk that he would not give it, as well as that the stations of his network had refused to carry the talk he wanted to make.

All of these reports are false. In an investigation—no less amazing in the many odd twists and facets it developed than the Coughlin radio performance of two weeks before—MOVIE AND RADIO GUIDE learned that, just as the announcer stated, Father Coughlin did know why neither he nor anyone else spoke from that microphone on February 4. What the announcer failed to report was that only Father Coughlin knew why he didn't broadcast as planned. The terse announcements left the general impression that Father Coughlin had been subjected to censorship and created an impression that the radio priest was being martyred by sinister forces. MOVIE AND RADIO GUIDE has learned that Father Coughlin did not speak because Father Coughlin did not want to speak. No force, no pressure was exerted upon him from any source capable of silencing him.

THIS writer arrived in Detroit on February 20, after two subsequent Coughlin broadcasts had failed to so much as mention the odd affair of February 4, for the purpose of learning the real reason behind the failure of Father Coughlin to broadcast that Sunday. He first called at radio station WJR, where he talked with assistant general manager Owen F. Uridge. Leo Fitzpatrick, general manager, was vacationing in Palm Beach, Florida. The writer had barely identified himself and given the purpose of his call when Mr. Uridge said:

"You understand, of course, that we don't originate the program. We just pick it up from the network. We really don't have any connection with Father Coughlin."

"Who does originate the program?" I asked.

"Well, it comes from Royal Oak."

"There's no radio station there. Isn't it true that the program is piped into WJR by telephone and then transmitted to the network?" He didn't answer. "Isn't Franklin Mitchell, the Coughlin announcer, also a WJR staff announcer?"

"Yes, he is. But Mitchell does that work on his own time." There was definitely an air of playing down any connection the station might have with Father Coughlin. I was to find this reviewed by the Church board before they are sent to the radio station. The very fact that the script had been forwarded to the station by Father Coughlin indicates that he was not displeased by any minor alterations—if any—the Church had made in it.

No one at the station would comment on the nature of the canceled talk beyond indicating that there was nothing damaging or of a harmful nature in it. Mr. Uridge then suggested that I call upon a Mr. Gibson, of Aircasters, Inc., the advertising agency which handles the Coughlin broadcasts. I went across the street and saw Mr. Gibson.

"YOU understand," Mr. Gibson made it perfectly clear, "that we have nothing to do with Father Coughlin. We just handle his account like we do any others." I could understand Mr. Gibson's reticence to be connected with Father Coughlin. But a short time before, John L. Spivak, citing their Social Security numbers and information as proof, had identified both Gibson and Stanley G. Boynton, head of the agency, as employes of Coughlin's Social Justice Publishing Company. I wasn't interested in Mr. Gibson or his connections. I simply wanted to know why Father Coughlin didn't broadcast and to pierce the veil of mystery surrounding his actions at that time.

"I wonder if you would get me an appointment with Father Coughlin," I asked. "As his advertising representative, you can appreciate how important it is that Father Coughlin should tell his story direct to the people who listen to him and make his broadcasts possible."

"Father Coughlin won't see anybody," Gibson answered. "He won't even see me." I nominate that as the most unique advertising agency-client relationship in existence.

"Couldn't you call him and try?" I asked.

"I tell you what," Gibson said in perfectly frank contradiction of himself, "I'm going out to see him this morning and I'll try to talk him into seeing you. You call me at one o'clock and I'll let you know how I make out."

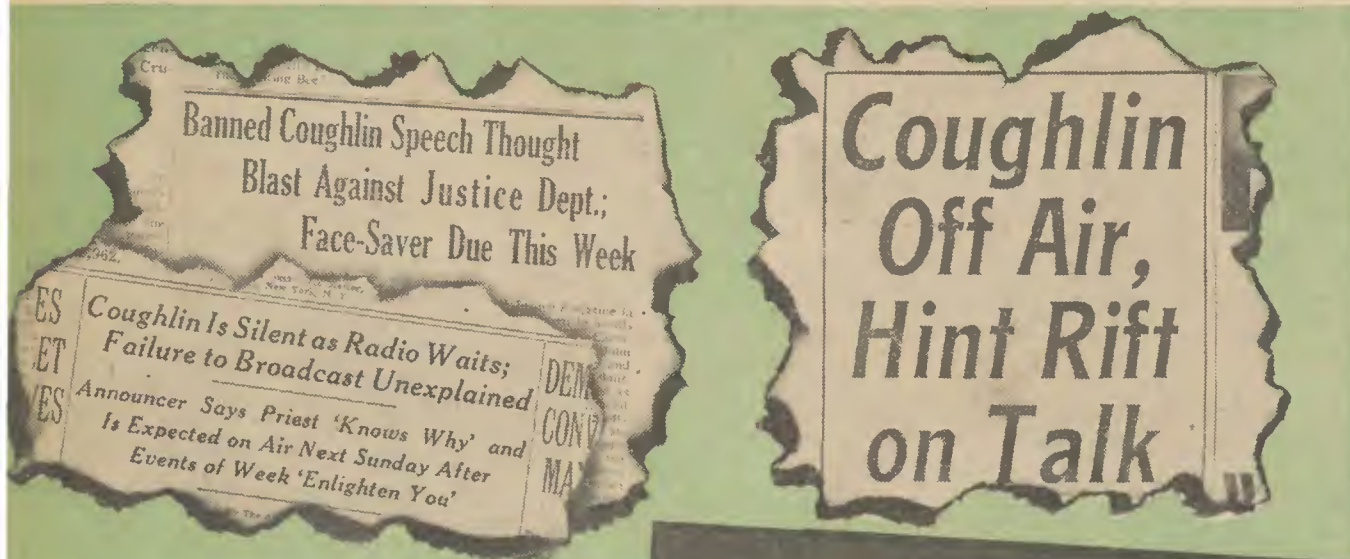

I then asked Mr. Gibson a number of questions about the account, all of which he refused to answer. "We never talk about a client's affairs in this agency," he said. And that, too, seemed very odd to me. Most advertising agencies are hired to talk long and loud about their clients.

Sharply at one o'clock, I called Mr. Gibson. His girl told me that he was in an important conference and couldn't be reached. I insisted and Mr. Gibson finally came to the phone.

"I couldn't get out there this morning, but I called. Now, here's what you do. You get in touch with Miss Rhodes, Father's secretary, and she'll take care of you. I've called her and arranged everything."

I WENT to the Shrine of the Little Flower, fifteen miles out, in Royal Oak. Under the tower—and after considerable searching—I found the offices of the Social Justice Publishing Company. This organization has no connection with the Shrine, Father Coughlin has often asserted. There were no signs directing people to these basement offices. As a matter of fact, they would never be seen by pilgrims to the sacred spot. Its outer office is a heavily barred, almost fortress-like room, and a girl, busy sealing hundreds of newly mimeographed letters, paused long enough to ask me what I wanted. I explained who I was, that Mr. Gibson had sent me to see Miss Rhodes. She then spoke to Miss Rhodes, somewhere behind the impregnable partition, by telephone. Then, turning back to me, she asked: "When did you speak to Mr. Gibson?" I told her about a half-hour before. More phone conversation. Then, "Miss Rhodes is too busy to see you."

"I don't care whether I see Miss Rhodes or not. I came out here to see

Newspapers the following morning screamed with headlines like these. Rumor was rife. Had the Church silenced him? Was it FCC censorship? Newspapers queried, waited for the promised explanation same apologetic reaction later when I called upon the advertising agency which handles Father Coughlin's broadcasts.

I learned from Mr. Uridge that Father Coughlin had submitted his script two days before the broadcast—as was his custom—and that Mr. Fitzpatrick's secretary, in his absence, had read and approved it. Later, on Sunday, Father Coughlin had called for the return of the script. Mr. Uridge then said: "The announcements made on that program were handed to the announcer by Father Coughlin." Mr. Uridge's statements definitely set aside any basis for reports that the Coughlin speech was banned by either WJR or the network. They also show that Father Coughlin was in Detroit on Sunday, February 4, a short time before the program was broadcast.

Mr. Uridge's statements also silence rumors that the Church had censored the talks, for sources close to the chancellery informed me that scripts are

"Father Coughlin knows what he is doing . . ." That is what the announcer had said. But the good Father (shown at a convention of his Union for Social Justice) has not seen fit to impart his knowledge to listeners

WASHINGTON, D. C.—The prohibition of radio broadcasts by aliens within the United States is being strongly considered by the FCC following a study of espionage by the Federal Bureau of Investigation. Present radio law prevents aliens from owning stations, but amendment would limit their radio activities, especially in news broadcasting where propaganda is easily inserted.

Roosevelt Signs Heidt

HOLLYWOOD, CALIF.—James Roosevelt, head of his new Globe Productions (motion picture company), has concluded a deal with Horace Heidt to make a picture, "Pot o' Gold." Production will start in the fall. At the same time, the "Grand Ol' Opry," long a favorite local program over WSM, Nashville, Tenn., and recently sponsored by a tobacco company over NBC, will also be filmed—by Republic Pictures.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—President Roosevelt has invited the rulers of Great Britain, the Netherlands, Italy, Sweden, Belgium, Norway and Denmark to join him in a world-wide religious convocation in the interests of peace to be held March 16 by radio.

PARIS, FRANCE.—Mystery which has surrounded the fate of Stephen Starzinski, mayor of Warsaw during the German siege, has been lifted by word from Polish diplomatic sources that the former mayor now faces trial by a German court on charges of misappropriating city funds. Mayor Starzinski captured the imagination of the world during the twenty-day siege by his defiant daily broadcasts over the Warsaw radio station as German bombers soared overhead, German shells burst in the street outside.

HOLLYWOOD, CALIF.—When Orson Welles visits the Jack Benny show as guest on March 17, Mary Livingstone will attempt a delicate operation. She will try to transplant the Man from Mars' whiskers to Jack's head, now distinguished by a rapidly receding hairline. On March 24, Benny will return the visit, appear in Orson Welles' production of "June Moon."

St. Louis, Mo.—St. Louis theaters which have promised patrons that, in event their number is called by the "Pot o' Gold" while they are attending a show they will receive two thousand dollars from the theater, have been ordered to discontinue their guarantee offer. The county prosecutor's office has ruled that such an offer constitutes a lottery and is in violation of the Missouri statutes.

Arrested: ASCAP President

PHOENIX, ARIZ.—Gene Buck, president of the American Society of Composers, Authors and Publishers, is free under a $10,000 bond following his arrest at a resort hotel here on a charge of attempted extortion. Mr. Buck was arrested on a Montana warrant, outgrowth of a dispute at Missoula, Montana, over a demand by ASCAP that certain radio stations pay fees for playing music which ASCAP claims to own or control. New York authorities had refused to serve the warrants which named other ASCAP officials as well. Mr. Buck said that he would fight extradition. Shortly after his release, bond was reduced to $750. Buck said that in event the Montana charges were not sustained, he would file a countersuit for false arrest.

Goodman's Homecoming

CHICAGO, ILL.—To Hull House, Chicago's notable social settlement, recently went Benny Goodman, swing bandleader, for a jam session which he sandwiched in between appearances at a local theater, and oldsters there recalled how a youngster, twenty years before, had wandered into the settlement house, joined the free music classes there. Everybody sang, everybody swayed, everybody shouted, "Hurrah, Benny's back!" For that youngster seeking free music lessons was—Benny Goodman.

LOS ANGELES, CALIF.—Three days after her son, the famed Rudy Wiedoeft, whose saxophone playing inspired Rudy Vallee, died, Mrs. Anna E. Wiedoeft, his mother, died also. News of her son's death had been kept from Mrs. Wiedoeft and she died without learning of it.

IN NEW YORK with Wilson Brown

NEW YORK.—Donna Manning, missing since February 13, showed up in her mother's hotel apartment here the morning of February 22 after her father had sent her messages through personal ads in various newspapers of New York. When Donna returned, she wore a wedding ring on her finger and with her was a young man she said was her husband. However, when her mother heard her story and showed her displeasure, Donna changed her story. Newspaper reporters present were put out of the apartment, and when they were again allowed in the wedding ring was gone and both Donna and the "husband" denied they were married. They told a new story—that Donna and her companion had gone to Washington, D. C., to look for work. Donna said she was tired of night-club life. Next day a new twist was given to the whole crazy business when another man, living at Coney Island, said he was Miss Manning's husband; that if Donna had married another man she was a bigamist, and if she hadn't married again, he—her legal husband—would sue for divorce on "obvious grounds."

The Ward Still-aways became proud parents on February 22 when the stork delivered a seven-pound son to them at St. Joseph's Hospital, Chicago. Father is trombonist with Tommy Dorsey's band; mother, Kay Weber, was former vocalist with Dorsey brothers and Bob Crosby . . . For the second time in its present series, the "Tune-Up Time" musical will soon go to Hollywood so that Tony Martin can fulfill his movie assignments.

Donna Damerel (Marge of "Myrt and Marge") is having love trouble in her script, but apparently quite happy outside the studio with Peter Fick, the champ swimmer.

Lowell Thomas Televised

Lowell Thomas becomes the first person to go on television with a sponsor. His oil backer now has been on the visual broadcasts at 6:45 p.m. EST Wednesdays, Thursdays and Fridays. Unusual is the fact that the sponsor pays nothing extra for this visual coverage . . . Incidentally, if you live in or near New York City, and if you own a television set, here is the schedule of telecasts: 3:30 to 4:30, 6:45 to 7:00, and 8:30 to 9:30 p.m. EST on Wednesdays, Thursdays and Fridays; 3:30 to 4:30 and 8:30 to 9:30 p.m. EST on Saturdays and Sundays.

Burgess Meredith of "Pursuit of Happiness" and of the movies "Of Mice and Men," was rushing into a CBS elevator. The door slammed shut. Someone outside yelled, "Wait!" It was too late. A worried operator turned to Meredith to ask: "Who was that?" Meredith gave him the facetious reply, "Nobody. Just Bill Paley." William Paley is only the president of CBS.

$335,000 for the Met

A third of the $1,000,000 goal for the Metropolitan Opera has been raised. Deadline for raising the entire fund is May 31. One gift of $10,000 was cabled all the way from Switzerland. Radio

Repeating the Repeat

New Yorkers are lucky listeners. If they miss one of the big broadcasts, they can usually tune in on a western station a few hours later and catch the repeat show. But just to make it still easier, a lot of shows have repeats right in New York. If you miss Kay

If you miss Glenn Miller's show on CBS, that, too, is aired at another hour on another station via transcriptions. If you miss your favorite daytime serials, they can be heard in repeats most any night on various local stations. And, just to make things still easier, some shows, including "Sherlock Holmes" and "The Lone Ranger," have two broadcasts in New York.

Joe Louis Wants a Script

Fighter Joe Louis sent a letter to his friend, Bill Stern, asking Bill to write some scripts he could use for interviews from the West Coast. Bill has already obliged, writing them, as Joe hoped, "in my own language." To explain, Joe evidently didn't want any polysyllabic words . . . NBC has stopped airing the noon Arlington time signals because the FCC says no time signal that is as much as four one-hundredths of a second off can be broadcast. NBC figured the impulse, after traveling many miles over the full network, was at least that much off . . . What's this about the FCC not permitting personal messages to be broadcast on standard wave-lengths? The NBC broadcast to Admiral Byrd's party at the Antarctic is quite personal. The other night, for instance, Charles Perkins of Louisiana State University read his report-card to his brother. And a mother talked direct to her son, giving him advice . . . Former NBCaster John S. IN HOLLYWOOD

with Evans Plummer

HOLLYWOOD.—Don Ameche, at this writing, is temporarily suspended from his movie studio for refusing to make on loan-out "The Night of January 16." Claudette Colbert first turned down the story. She didn't like it. But nothing happened to Claudette. Our praises to the brave Don for sticking up for what he considers his rights; if the story is bad, he shouldn't be forced to endanger his acting reputation, which now definitely is headed upward . . . Anyway, if worse comes to worst, he is now in a position to wait a long time for a good screen play, since his new radio show alone is paying him $4,500 a week . . . Incidentally, his worries have been several during the past week or two. Honore, his good wife, had to sign into Good Samaritan Hospital for a rest.

Bing Crosby Has Good Excuses

For the third or fourth time, on February 25 Bing Crosby failed again to appear gratis as his managers had promised on Mutual's "Nobody's Children" Sunday show. That's the program that attempts to solve the problem of underprivileged and orphaned youngsters. Those listeners who do not know why will immediately point the finger of scorn at Bing's sincerity in wishing to help Walter White put over this worthy air series. Your reporter felt that same way, too, until he checked on the Groaner and discovered (1) this time Bing was forced to work Sunday at Universal making sound-tracks for his coming picture there; (2) that the first time, he was not advised and the date set conflicted with a golf tournament at which he previously had promised to be host, and (3) another time—and this was hushed plenty so as not to alarm too many people—he was in a hospital for observation of a jumpy appendix. He had spent, that week, six days out of seven in a hospital . . . So, since Bing has promised to make good at the earliest opportunity fate decrees, we'll forgive him, and you must likewise.

Gracie Allen Juggles Planks

Gracie Allen, of the Burns and Allen opus, is well under way with her publicity-grabbing campaign to make President Roosevelt stop at two terms. For if Gracie runs, he will have to be a gentleman, won't he, and retire? That is as rational as most of the answers she gave to interviewing "newspapermen" Jack Mather, Elliott Lewis and Mel Blanc before the Paramount news-reel cameras, product of which you'll soon see. Your reporter watched the zany scene. Asked if she would kiss babies, Gracie said only girl babies; she'd wait till the boy babies grew up! And she intends to do nothing about the deficit, it being very nice now. As for relief, she thinks that milk of magnesia and like products are very good, but she intends to number the alphabetical commissions so that the public can play Screeno . . . Already Gracie is stumping on assorted local stations, and you'll be hearing her 'most anywhere. And on Washington's birthday, in a downpour of rain (yep, in Hollywood), two women on a street corner obtained 864 signatures to petitions for her nomination. The validity might be questioned, however, as each signer was given a package of nuts!

Dr. I. Q. Tricks Your Reporter

Dr. I. Q., the Mars candy-bar quizzer (NBC Mondays), came to town last week to appear at Grauman's Chinese Theater and meet the press. Your reporter must say that many of the press are dumb. Few of the newspapermen invited to his cocktail inquisition could capture the silver dollars offered for answers to trick questions, and the good young "Doc" pinioned your reporter with something or other about to whom did the peacock egg belong—anyhow. There being no eggs from peacocks, only from peahens, your reporter scored a goose-egg!

Don Wilson Turns Film Cowboy

Jack Benny's and Jimmie Fidler's jovial mikeman, Don Wilson, has caught the screen-acting fever from his program's head man and now has been chosen to star as a comic cowboy hero in the making, by Harry Sherman for Paramount release, of "The Roundup," the stage play which toplined Maclyn Arbuckle. The movie studio is searching for a good supporting cast. Now if they'd only let Wilson play "The Lone Ranger," then "Rocheester" could be his Indian, "Tonto"!

Orson Welles Feuds . . . Vallee Modest!

Orson Welles and his sponsor are feuding over the type of material he is to do; sponsor wants light stuff, while the boy genius is sticking out for heavy "draymah." If not settled, Welles will quit after thirteen weeks . . . Rudy Vallee's "Reunion Party" of March 1 came near NOT happening because Rudy was too modest to be the hero of the affair. 'Tis true! Your reporter had to talk fast to keep the party show on the air as scheduled . . . During her CBS broadcast of "It Happened in Hollywood," February 21, Helen Troy pierced her right hand with a clutch pencil; Martha Mears, while the show continued, applied a tourniquet and Miss Troy went through her lines without a hitch! . . . A fine thing, Jimmie! While you are out on the road showing the folk what a grand guy you are and treating them to the sight of a half a dozen of Hollywood's most promising starlets, your own staff has been holding out news on you. For Neil Rau, one of your better secret operatives, became the proud father of a seven-pound boy on February 15.

Donald Dickson refusing to sign an autograph-hunter's folded piece of paper, and explaining he had once signed a check that way for a Chicago confidence man . . . Jack Benny, after playing the fiddle as a broadcast warm-up, passing his hat along the aisles of his studio for coins to turn over to daughter Joanie for her favorite charity . . . Movie old-timers at work at NBC: Frank Mayo, Stuart Holmes, Creighton Hale and Jack Mower.

IN CHICAGO

with Don Moore

CHICAGO.—You probably never heard of "Bub" Burns. He's the elder brother of wealthy comedian Bob Burns, and he's a philosopher who believes in being happy the simple way—without too much money. He has always lived that way. And he has made a little money now and then telling boys' clubs and women's clubs his formula for happiness. But now "Bub" has a boy in college and a girl in high school, and that adds a new factor to the formula. It generally takes some extra money to give youngsters an education, even when they do help themselves.

That explains why "Bub"—outdoor man, free-and-easy philosopher—pulled stakes from his unpretentious home on an island in Puget Sound, Wash., said "so long" temporarily to his wife and children, loaded a plunk-drunk guitar, 300 pounds of original sheet music and a ton of healthy humor and blithe confidence into a slaphappy Buick, and transplanted his philosophy to more fertile soil here at radio's Crossroads. I found him in the modest hotel room, where he sleeps not much more soundly than he did rolled in a sleeping-bag with no ceiling but the sky while he was beating his way across country during recent cold spells.

"Bub" is cut from the same Van Buren Burns pattern as his more famous brother, all right. He's the spit 'n' image of Bob (see picture on this page). He has a strikingly similar voice and a slightly less stagy drawl, the same natural humor, though his is only a supplement to his philosophy, and the same friendly gift of gab. His experience probably outshines his brother's in color. He's an engineering college grad, was in the naval air force, has been legman for a Brooklyn daily and publisher of the Puget Sounder. His past has been packed with such experiences as cruising across several states with his wife (a relative of Joel Chandler Harris and a subscriber to her husband's philosophy) and their baby in a donkey cart, peddling songs for pennies; and honeymooning as government supervisor of a reindeer herd in Alaska amongst an otherwise hundred percent Eskimo population.

But "Bub" doesn't have much cash. He says he never wants more money than his family needs and he can find a good way to give away. "Bub" says he'll pick up enough to help give his kids an education, then settle down to the simple life again. I believe him. I think he'll do all right in radio. He does have something that's spontaneous combustion for a show like the "National Barn Dance," for instance. He told me there has been an empty place here that should be filled. I'd like to see an experimental SUSTAINING drama series on the order of "Columbia Workshop" and "Oboler's Plays" set up here. We have an abundance of acting talent. Such a series would give the artists chances they don't get in the serials, and it would provide another dramatic program blood kin to radio's peculiar medium. Ginger Jones' Dog Entertains

The party for the second birthday of Great Dane Lady Kirbina, staged by her mistress, Ginger Jones (Alice of "Helen Trent"), was a howling success. There were three dozen people guests and a dozen or so canines, including Queenie, fire-department mascot, who came to scoff and remained to play, as guest of honor. Ted Weems' Son Seriously Ill

It looks as if illness is trying to "Beat the Band." At this writing the child's condition was still serious . . . "Red" Ingle has been battling this winter's uncommonly treacherous flu epidemic, and Perry Como has been wrestling with a cold . . . The band's songstress, Marvel Maxwell, has been commuting to Fort Wayne, Ind., where her mother is stricken with pneumonia . . . The "Pot o' Gold" Runs Into Trouble

Introducing Mr. Cornelius C. Dumont of Albany, New York. This picture was taken at his home on January 9 just after he missed "Pot o' Gold's" $1,000 phone call

This is where Mr. Dumont now lives and answers to phone number 8-3451. Trouble started when "Pot o' Gold" called his old number, which is now the Geiers'!

NOW, let's look at the case of Cornelius C. Dumont, 841 Western Avenue, Albany, N. Y., whose telephone number is 8-3451. Remember that number and address because, until May 22, 1939, Mr. Dumont lived at 7 Elberon Place and his telephone number then was 4-6097. Also it is well to remember that on or about December 1, 1939, a new telephone directory had been issued for Albany, a directory in which Mr. Dumont's new address and telephone number were listed and which listed, also, his old telephone number opposite the name of Frank J. Geier, to whom it had been assigned after Mr. Dumont had moved his residence.

On the evening of January 9, 1940, the "Pot o' Gold," broadcasting from Hollywood, California, proceeded in its usual style with the spinning of the huge selector-wheel, and the consecutive spins of the wheel resulted in the selection of the name of Cornelius C. Dumont and the number 4-6097, in Albany. That, you remember, was Mr. Dumont's old number, Frank Geier's new number. A phone call was put in, station-to-station, to the number, and when no one answered the call it was announced that Mr. Dumont had failed to answer and that he would get a money order for a hundred dollars instead of the thousand he would have received had he been at home.

But Mr. Dumont was at home. According to witnesses, he had been there all evening awaiting just such a call if it should come through. At about the correct time for the winner to be selected, his telephone rang and a woman said, "Mr. Dumont, you've won the 'Pot o' Gold.'" Mr. Dumont was naturally elated.

At the residence of the Frank J. Geiers, no one was home at broadcast time, and if the number 4-6097 rang, it naturally went unanswered.

But in the apartment of Mr. Dumont, the first feeling of joy at the terse announcement of his good fortune was beginning to be pricked. His telephone rang constantly and people from all parts of the city were expressing their regrets that he wasn't at home when the lucky call was put through. Gradually it began to dawn upon Mr. Dumont that something was wrong. He decided to call NBC in New York and find out what it was all about.

Talking with Skeets Miller, night program manager of NBC in New York, he learned that the call had gone unanswered, that there was no woman on the program and that his call must have been from a listener who had called of her own free will to tell him of his supposed good fortune. That conversation ended in anger for Mr. Dumont, and a few minutes later Miss Dorothy Krause, reporter of an Albany newspaper, called at his home and, with his permission, put in another call to Mr. Miller. Mr. Miller told her that "Pot o' Gold" had called "8-3451," Dumont's present number. Dumont, at home the whole time, denied this call, and later Herbert Campbell, city editor of Miss Krause's paper, made a confirming call to Miller, in which Miller said the same thing. Two days later, on January 11, the New York Telephone Company, Albany division, officially established that the number actually called was 4-6097. Mr. Miller, hearing the name of Dumont, had probably looked up his number in a new telephone book, whereas the book used in making the selection in Hollywood was an old one.

At any rate, the problem boils itself down to this: Was "Pot o' Gold" calling Cornelius C. Dumont, or was the program calling the phone number, Albany 4-6097? If the program was calling Dumont, then the wrong telephone number was given the operator. If the program was calling the number, then it was actually calling the residence of Frank J. Geier, and instead of sending its consolation prize of one hundred dollars to Dumont, as was done, the money order should have been sent to Geier.

The Geiers, talking to a MOVIE AND RADIO GUIDE writer, admitted that they were away from home at the time of the call and said that they planned to make no claims upon the program. Mr. Dumont, on the other hand, feels that he has complied with every condition set up by the program to qualify for facts which he claims are proved by mention of Dumont's name on the air and the fact that the prize of one hundred dollars was sent Dumont.

On the other hand, spokesmen for the sponsors of "Pot o' Gold" hold that (1) the "Pot o' Gold" does not call individuals but telephone numbers, a fact which is proved, they say, by the placing of station-to-station calls only. In event the phone is not answered, the consolation money is sent to the name opposite that number in the phone book used, and this was precisely what was done in this case. (2) They also maintain that, because the books must be split up and rebound into volumes of equal size to give everyone a more equal opportunity to win, some time will naturally elapse between the issue of a new telephone directory and its use on this program. (3) The program also maintains that, inasmuch as this is an outright gift, neither Mr. Dumont nor others have any cause for complaint.

And that is where the Dumont matter stands today—an angry welter of charges and counter-charges, of claims and counter-claims which grow more confusing as time passes. It might have been even more confusing if Mr. Geier had happened to be home that night to answer the call and, afterwards, learned that the thousand-dollar money order had been sent not to him but to a Mr. Cornelius C. Dumont, of whom he'd never heard. —Lorraine Thomas.

An open letter addressed to the sponsor of "Pot o' Gold" introduced this series in the February 23 issue of MOVIE AND RADIO GUIDE. In it a number of questions were put to the makers of Tums, specific answers were requested. Next week Tums' reply will be published in full. Read Tums' answers to the questions all America has been asking.

"Pot o' Gold" may be heard Tuesday over an NBC network at:

the gift; that any errors committed were errors on the part of those who conduct the program. Immediately he placed the whole matter in the hands of DeGraff and Foy, Albany law-firm, and DeGraff informed MOVIE AND RADIO GUIDE that every opportunity would be given the program to straighten the matter out before action would be taken.

DE GRAFF bases his client's claims to the thousand dollars upon (1) the alleged negligence of the program in using an outdated phone book, (2) the fact that Dumont was at home awaiting the call, if it had come, and had otherwise complied with the requirements, (3) that an actual binding contract had been made because—in return for the chance to win the money—his client, Dumont, had remained at home, and (4) that it was the intention of the program to award the money to Dumont,

Dear MOVIE AND RADIO GUIDE: I have never seen a picture of Bob Crosby. Would appreciate your printing one.—Mrs. S. E. Sullivan, Salina, Kansas

No fault of the fan mags is it that Mrs. Sullivan has never seen Crosby's handsome face in print. The maestro of radio's popular Dixieland Band (heard Saturday, NBC) is always extra good copy.—ED.

Dear MOVIE AND RADIO GUIDE: Will you please give us a picture of the girl who plays Lucy Jackson in "Woman of Courage"?—Mary Jane Hall, Jackson, Mich.

At eighteen, Joan Tetzl, the young lady in whom Miss Hall is interested, is one of radio's busier actresses. She is heard as Sylvia Field in "When a Girl Marries" (CBS, Mon. through Fri.), as well as in "Woman of Courage" (CBS serial drama). had screen test recently.—ED.

Dear MOVIE AND RADIO GUIDE: I'm a "Ma Perkins" fan and want to get acquainted—at least through pictures—with the whole cast. One I've missed is Cheer Brentson. Please make me happy by running a recent photograph of her.—Grace Worthingham, Waterloo, Iowa.

Here is Cheer Brentson, one of the prettiest actresses in radio. She is Greta, the Swedish maid, in "Ma Perkins" (NBC, Mon. through Fri.). Cheer hails from Salina, Kansas, attended the University of Cincinnati. Five feet four inches tall, weighing 110 pounds, she has titian hair, blue-green eyes. Her most unusual talent: Expert performances of tribal Chipewa Indian dances. Her favorite recreations: Swimming, volley-ball, dancing, reading.—ED.

RADIO CITY MUSIC HALL OF THE AIR, NBC. Erno Rapee, conductor; Jan

a truly great composer of symphony. (Even today musical authorities are divided as to the merits of his ten works in that form.)

However, there can be no question of the eminent worth of his two vocal cycles, "Song of the Earth" and "Songs of a Wanderer," the latter programmed at this hour. Mahler composed the set when he was twenty-four, and had just ended an unsuccessful love-affair with a soprano at the Cassel Opera, of which he was conductor. He wrote the poetical texts himself, and is the one "driven forth by the blue eyes of his love," and who finds consolation in the beauty and friendliness of nature. The words and music are of simple, folk-tune character, but the orchestration is prodigally rich.

Mahler said of the cycle: "It is dedicated to her. She does not know them. But they can tell her only what she already knows. Their burden is a man who has found only sadness in love goes forth into the world a wanderer."

Mahler conducted at the Metropolitan Opera 1907-09 and thereafter for two years directed the New York Philharmonic.

THE NEW YORK PHILHARMONIC ORCHESTRA, CBS. John Barbirolli, conductor; Robert Casadesus, pianist. Overture to "The Flying Dutchman" (Wagner), the Orchestra; "Coronation" Concerto (Mozart), Robert Casadesus and Orchestra; "Tragic" Symphony (Schubert), the Orchestra.

The "Coronation" is the last but one of Mozart's piano concertos, and was composed in the same year that brought forth his greatest three symphonies, in E flat, G minor, and C major ("Jupiter").

Lovely, graceful and spirited music, the concerto ranks with the best of the many he wrote for the piano, or, as it was called at the time, the clavichord.

Casadesus, French pianist of note, is an admittedly authoritative interpreter of Mozart, for whom he seems to have especial qualifications in the way of clear and delicate touch, pure tone and unusually rippling technique of finger.

Schubert's fourth symphony in C minor, created when he was nineteen (1816), was given its title "Tragic" by the composer himself. It has been surmised by commentators that in these pages he lamented his poverty—he had just been refused a teaching position that would have paid him $100 a year. The most famous movement of the four in this symphony is the second, a soulful song in which the youthful genius already shows himself a coming master.

How Do You Do, Mr. Beethoven?

By Leonard Lieblich

HAVE just finished reading a New York newspaper interview given by Egon Petri, the renowned Netherlands pianist—he hates to be called Dutch—who is touring America this season.

Mr. Petri objects to what he calls "too much music appreciation" (which he differentiates from "appreciation of good music") on the part of Americans as taught in the schools and lectured about on the radio. "Americans should stop insisting on hearing stories about music," he says, "and start making music itself and develop their ears." He thinks furthermore that it is of no importance to know what the composers ate for breakfast, what kind of trousers they wore, why Beethoven wrote the "Moonlight" Sonata, what Mozart said to his wife when he began his "Jupiter" Symphony, and that Brahms was fond of sauerkraut.

Such scolding of Americans is not entirely deserved, for all the intimate stories about European composers originated over there, became matters of public gossip and then finally crossed the seas to us. Also, the same tales are incorporated by nearly all the European authors in their biographies of the eminent musicians; even the sincere and deeply scholastic Sir George Grove has them in his five-volume (with an added American supplement) latest edition of his famous "Dictionary of Music and Musicians."

IT IS difficult to understand why knowledge of the personalities and idiosyncracies of the composers (even acquaintance with what they ate and wore) interferes with the understanding and enjoyment of their music. Often, in fact, new admirers are gained, who, hitherto frightened off by that bugaboo word "classical," look sympathetically into the matter of the masterworks after they learn that their creators did not dwell in the clouds, but were very human persons who walked the earth, and lived much in the manner of their fellows.

It has not been easy to bring the average American close to the best music, but it was largely done through common-sense critical writing, plain radio talks and wide departures from the method of earlier reviewers in this country, who treated good music as a mysterious and exclusive heritage of the inner brotherhood in the temple of the sacrosanct.

Everybody should know why Beethoven wrote the "Moonlight" Sonata (the story most believed is not true). It was composed in Beethoven's thirty-second year (1802) when he was hopelessly in love with young Countess Guicciardi, and the sonata is dedicated to her. If one be able to surround the composition with this correct romantic background, is not the music the more understandable and enjoyable?

I might say in conclusion that personally I should greatly like to know what Mozart said to his Missus when he started his "Jupiter" Symphony. Wouldn't you? Or do you agree with Mr. Petri, that one's sole approach to composers should be through their music?

Musician of the Week

(Ezio Pinza)

By V. Vidal

EZIO PINZA is what rapturous high-school girls usually refer to as a smoothie. Sitting in his low-slung Lincoln roadster, with his hat pulled down over wavy pepper-and-salt hair, and a cigarette held at exactly the right angle, he would make any self-respecting city slicker turn green with envy.

He is, however, a friendly, unassuming soul, with nothing more menacing about him than a tendency to drive his car at a speed calculated to make raving maniacs out of quiet pedestrians. Milestones in his life are when he can set a new speed record and when he is able to play a part in opera without a beard. As a basso he is usually cast as the villain, and he has been plotting and pursuing from the depths of a lot of false whiskers for a little over twenty years now.

However, early in Pinza's career, he realized that nobody, and particularly bassos, ever got anywhere just sitting around looking handsome. By dint of hard, determined work, he transformed himself from a routine singer to the leading basso of the world. He started with a naturally fine voice and good musicianship. He acquired a plastic understanding of acting and a rigorous training in the art of make-up. When he first appeared at the Metropolitan some fifteen years ago, fresh from La Scala in Milan, he created no sensation. Today, his name in the cast of an opera means a sold-out house. Like the great Chaliapin, he has become a top-notch singing actor, and in his performance of Boris in "Boris Godunoff" has proved to the satisfaction of all critics his right to inherit Chaliapin's crown.

PINZA leads a quiet sort of life. Night-clubs do not seem him often, and cafe society means nothing in his life. He keeps acquiring bigger and better cars, and has become Americanized to the point of being able to recognize any make of car at a glance. Italy is still very close to his heart, and he has not yet become an American citizen, although America runs a close second in his affections. He is sincere enough in saying that his love of his own country might prevent his being wholeheartedly the good citizen of another. So he compromises by spending most of his time over here.

French pianist Robert Casadesus will be guest soloist with the "New York Philharmonic" Sunday, CBS

Rethberg, Sayao, Pinza in "Marriage of Figaro"

This Week's Opera

Saturday, March 9, the Metropolitan Opera Company will present Mozart's "Le Nozze di Figaro" ("The Marriage of Figaro") on NBC at 1:45 p.m. EST, 12:45 p.m. CST, 11:45 a.m. MST, 10:45 a.m. PST.

THE CAST:

Count Almaviva John Brownlee (baritone)
 Countess Almaviva Elisabeth Rethberg (soprano)
 Susanna Bidu Sayao (soprano)
 Figaro Ezio Pinza (bass)
 Cherubino .. Jarmila Novotna (soprano)

soon being rid of the Count's attentions. Dr. Bartolo, the physician, is told by Marcellina, the old housekeeper, that Figaro has jilted her and they plan revenge. Cherubino, the page, airs his troubles, which include dismissal because he loves Barbarina, the gardener's daughter. The Count appears, Susanna hides Cherubino, the master makes his usual advances to the maid, and, interrupted by the entrance of Basilio, is himself hidden by Susanna. Finally both the hiders are discovered and the act ends in comic confusion.

Hilarious comedy is the treat in store for Metropolitan listeners with the broadcast of Mozart's "Marriage of Figaro" Saturday, NBC. Above in a scene from opera are (l. to r.) Elisabeth Rethberg, John Brownlee, Ezio Pinza

Marcellina Irra Petina (contralto)
 Basilio Alessio de Paolis (tenor)
 Don Curzio Giordano Paltrinieri (tenor)
 Bartolo Virgilio Lazzari (basso)
 Antonio Louis D'Angelo (baritone)
 Barbarina Marita Farrell (soprano)
 Conductor: Ettore Panizza

Next (Act II) the apartment of the Countess, who retains the dismissed Cherubino in order to use him for the unmasking of her philandering husband. The Countess and Susanna dress Cherubino in girl's clothes and he jumps through the window when the Count comes unexpectedly. Figaro always his suspicions.

"NEVER was anything more complete than the triumph of Mozart and his 'Nozze di Figaro,'" wrote Michael Kelly in his published "Reminiscences" of the first performance of that opera at Vienna in 1786. Kelly (1762-1826), an Irish tenor born in Dublin, was the original Basilio and Don Curzio of that opera. And well was the triumph merited, for it has continued ever since.

Lorenzo Da Ponte (also librettist of "Don Giovanni") adapted his text for "Figaro" from a comedy by Beaumarchais, which was then the rage of Paris. Mozart composed the music in a few months with his usual rapidity.

Following the bubbling overture (which has practically nothing of the material of the rest of the score) the opera opens with a scene in a room of Count Almaviva's castle at Seville, in the seventeenth century. Preparations are on for the wedding of pert and pretty Susanna, a serving-maid, and the barber Figaro. She declares her joy at

In Act III, Susanna has a rendezvous with Almaviva, at her mistress' suggestion, in order to untangle the marital difficulties. The Count remains obdurate until it is discovered that Figaro is actually Marcellina's son, and so could not possibly marry her. However, the Countess and Susanna change clothes in order to confuse the Count still further and the ruse is so successful that Figaro becomes wildly jealous.

The last act, uproariously farcical, continues the various mix-ups, with Figaro getting plenty of cuffings from the Count, until the latter realizes that he has been both duped and punished by the Countess. The pair are reconciled and the marriage of Figaro to Susanna is approved.

Musical highlights of the opera are Cherubino's opening song and Figaro's solo, both in the first act; Cherubino's great aria "Voi che sapete," Act II, and Susanna's "Deh vieni" in the last act.

Background for Listening

Sunday, March 10

Pilgrimage of Poetry, NBC.

Ted Malone originates this week's pilgrimage broadcast from the Greenfield, Indiana, birthplace of America's "poet of the common people," James Whitcomb Riley, whose poems for and about children rank with those of Eugene Field and Robert Louis Stevenson. Here we have an outstanding example of a writer who did not attempt to reach the trained intellect but was satisfied to touch the heart of the mass of the people. Among his most beloved works we find The Old Swimmin' Hole, An Old Sweetheart of Mine, Rhymes of Childhood and Raggedy Man. His poems are characterized by both humor and pathos and by their sympathy with the simple phases of life.

The World Is Yours, NBC.

In this world of noise, thunder is a sissy . . . The real villain of noise is the automobile . . . The corner of Sixth Avenue and 34th Street in New York City is the noisiest corner so far discovered in the world . . . Under the common law of England freedom from noises is essential to the full enjoyment of a dwelling-house . . . People used to sleeping in the hubbub of town cannot court slumber in the quietness of the country. So we could go, on and on, in our search for interesting facts about noises. "The World Is Yours" this week devotes one-half hour to the subject—dramatizing the strides that have been made in eliminating noise, showing what scientists are doing to conquer excessive, offensive and startling sounds—in an episode titled "Conquest of Noise."

Adventure in Reading, NBC.

For our adventure in reading this week Helen Walpole takes us on one of her enjoyable radio visits into the life of a lovable, generous Englishman, William Makepeace Thackeray. To this man we are most indebted for his vivid picturizations of middle nineteenth-century conditions in England. His widely read Vanity Fair, which began in monthly installments in 1847, established him as a first-rank English novelist; and his The Newcomes (1855)—in which his stepfather, it is said, was the original of Thackeray's famous character, Colonel Newcome—is considered in many circles to be his masterpiece. As a topic for Walpole treatment, he has so many excellent qualities to make this an unusually interesting program.

Cavalcade of America, NBC.

If there ever was an instance in American history that had all the plot potentialities of a grand American opera, it was the tragedy of the man who twice saved and once betrayed the nation. This man was the American military officer Benedict Arnold, whose tragic life proved the ill-wisdom of betraying one's allegiance to his native land. This week's "Cavalcade" dramatization will follow an unbiased path, tracing the circumstances and reason for the action which has pursued and damned this unfortunate early American figure down the ages.

(This ballot may be pasted on a penny post-card)

AS THE 1940 Star of Stars Poll moves into its ninth week, all indications point to an even greater influx of ballots than in previous years! But speaking of previous polls, thousands of fans who have been voting each week may have wondered why tabulations of standings have not been published from week to week as usual. The explanation is simply that when this was done, many voters complained—and justly—that publication of standings might give stars and programs temporarily out in front an unfair advantage and influence the final results. While the original purpose in doing this was solely to stimulate greater interest, fairness and impartiality are first considerations. For that reason, no results were printed early in the contest, and this week —the ninth in an eleven-week series—marks the first publication of such tabulations. See page 57 for official standings.

On that page you see only indications of how the voting is going as of the last ballots counted. How do the leaders square up with your choices? Whether they're ahead or behind, now is the time to push your candidates. The ballot on this page and two more in succeeding issues will decide who will be listeners' 1940 Star of Stars—who will be their favorite actors, comedians, singers, announcers, etc. There is only one way to make your favorites victorious—and that is to vote—vote every week!

So don't delay in sending in your ballot. Just paste it, completely filled in, to a penny post-card and mail today!

Johnny GOT HIS GUN

An epic of the terrors of peace—after war. Arch Oboler stages it Saturday

Jimmy Cagney (pictured in "Fighting 69th") stars in Oboler's anti-war drama Sat., NBC

IF YOU'RE the ostrich type—you know, the type who buries his head in the sand at the first sign of danger or trouble and keeps it there until the storm-clouds have blown over . . . or struck—you won't want to tune your radio to Arch Oboler's play this Saturday night. It's an ugly, sordid piece—"Johnny Got His Gun"—and it'll have no pantywaist handling from Oboler or from James Cagney, who'll star in it. It'll make your stomach roll over and over. It'll keep you on the edge of your chair, and when it's all over and you try to dismiss it with a snap of the fingers or a toss of the head, you'll keep on remembering it. You'll always remember it.

That's why "Johnny Got His Gun" should be required listening for every man, woman and child old enough to understand its implications. Stripping war of every vestige of romance and glory, this gripping drama bares it for the horrible and gruesome business war really is, and it isn't done in the broad generalities of politicians taking an anti-war stand to garner votes nor in the impassioned pleas of statesmen with axes to grind or isms to promote. No, here is Joe Bonham, a simple American boy, who tells his story. Slowly, in dots and dashes made by the thumping of his head against his bed in a veterans' hospital, he talks. It's the only way he can talk and it took him years to find it. It's the only way you could talk, too, if your mouth and your nose and ears and legs and arms had been shot away in a war you didn't know anything about and cared less.

"Johnny Got His Gun" was written by Dalton Trumbo last year after he visited a veterans' hospital. "I found horrors there that the average man in the street had long forgotten," he said. "I thought that if all those youngsters with fire in their veins and all the politicians and warmongers who shout about saving Democracy would visit these places and see the real fruits of war, then there wouldn't be any more war. Here war ceases to be a matter of battles won and people conquered and becomes a matter of what can—and does—happen to the 'you' and the 'me' who fight those battles. Since people don't visit veterans' hospitals any more, I tried to bring the hospitals home to them."

His book is a living, breathing biography of a man who lies among the living dead. He has made the pitiful wreckage of Joe's body and life come vividly alive, and the lasting impressions he made upon his readers' minds was testimony to the success of his effort. And yet he felt that somehow he had failed; that the message he had for the world was going to only a few of the millions he wanted to reach. How could he bring Joe Bonham to the millions of other Joe Bonhams.

Radio was the answer. One Saturday night he heard a broadcast of an Arch Oboler play. "I'd like that man to do the dramatization of my book," he thought. "As a matter of fact, had he set his mind to it he might have written it." Both Oboler and Trumbo deal with the inner consciousness of characters, use the technique known as the "stream of consciousness" technique, in which the inner thoughts of characters are presented. Also, Oboler was something of a crusader against war, and in several broadcasts had written drama which bitterly condemned war and dictatorial policies of government which, he felt, made for war.

AT ALMOST the same time Oboler—who is one of the most daring and original writers yet developed by radio—had read "Johnny Got His Gun," and the idea of dramatizing it strongly appealed to him. A call to Trumbo readily brought the author's permission, and he set to work to recapture, for his listeners everywhere, the bitter plea for peace and good-will contained in the book.

This far along, NBC then started searching for a star capable of handling the difficult part. Their search led them to the New York stage, to the ranks of radio actors, and to Hollywood, where officials found Jimmy Cagney working in a picture, "The Fighting 69th." Tough-skinned but tender and sensitive inside, Cagney was the man for the part, they felt, and negotiations led to his engagement.

Cagney will play the part of Joe Bonham, an American boy who might have lived next door to you or me. If we'd kept out of the last war, Joe probably would have been one of those listeners who'd tune in his radio to this play next Saturday, and when it was over he'd say to his wife, Kareen: "That's not for us, Kareen. We have our work and our family and we're happy. War's not for us." Only Joe doesn't have any ears now, so how could he listen to a radio? And he couldn't talk because his mouth has been shot away, along with his nose and ears and arms and legs—shot away in one violent explosion in a shell-hole of France. That's why Kareen is still his sweetheart—in dreams—and not his wife. He didn't want to go to war. He and Kareen were about to be married and he didn't have a quarrel with anyone. But the draft got him. That's why he's lying now in this ward among the living dead, one of them. He's a prisoner. He's a prisoner within the confines of his own body. There, locked in from all others because he cannot talk, cannot smell, cannot see or hear anyone, he lies in his silence for days, months, years. Then suddenly he hits upon a way to release himself from this prison. He'd use the Morse code, which he had learned as a child. He'd thump his head against the bed—dot-dash-dot—until they answered.

Only, the nurse doesn't understand what he's trying to do. She believes he is in pain, gives him morphine. Each time, when the sedative wears off, he tries again—dot-dash-dot—S-O-S. Days pass, months pass, and he knows now that getting someone to understand him, someone to whom he can talk, is the most important thing in his life. And at last a relief nurse does understand what he's trying to do, listens. This time he is understood.

Then, after years of silence, what can he say? He'd found a means of coming back, a little way, into the world of the living, but what was there to say? In his silence he thought of many things he'd say, but now that he was able to talk there was nothing to say. He was like Lazarus, he thought. No, he was like Christ—a messiah of the battlefields, for he did have something to say. He would say, "As I am now, so shall you be." He'd go out into the world and he'd say that to everyone he met, shoving his twisted, agony-wrought body in front of them so that they could see it. He was . . . The Future. He was a picture of what all men would look like if war came again. So, they wouldn't let him out. They'd keep him here in the hospital forever because if men could look upon him, listen to him and understand that he was their picture when war came again, there'd be no more war. And because those in high places had plans for another war, he must stay, always, hidden from the living, whom he might warn.

STARK, harrowing realism in its most naked form is "Johnny Got His Gun." It will do much to prevent our entry into other wars if we'll listen instead of burying our heads in the sand, for what Joe Bonham has to say to you and to me and the thousands of other Joe Bonhams of America and to their sweethearts and wives and mothers makes war the sordid, horrible thing war is and will be, and strips it, without mercy, of the white banners, bands and catch-phrases with which the politicians and generals invariably disguise it.

—Howard Long.

a Bargain at $400,000

When war broke last fall, Elmer Davis reluctantly dropped novel-writing to pinch-hit for CBS commentator Kaltenborn, is pictured here in first tense days. Today he has 10,000,000 fans, a sky-rocketing Crossley rating

IT COSTS the Columbia Broadcasting System $400,000 a year to present Elmer Davis in his nightly five-minute news summaries at 8:55 p.m., EST. That doesn't include the commentator's salary or any of the physical expenses incident to putting the program on the air. Four hundred thousand dollars is just the amount of money the network must refund to sponsors for amputating five minutes off the tail end of their shows. All of which makes Elmer Davis the highest-priced talent on any air—$1,100 in refunds every five minutes. The logical deduction is that CBS regards Elmer as well worth losing a fortune over.

If anyone had told the fifty-year-old Mr. Davis a year or so ago that he'd ever have a high circulation plus a high Crossley, he would have cut out starches and doubled his life insurance. Now, after five months of feverish radio, the former New York Times editorial writer knows that a Crossley rating of 24.8 and a circulation among ten million news-mad listeners is nothing to be alarmed about. It simply means that the man with the Hoosier accent now interrupts more dinners with his thrice-weekly broadcasts over WABC and halts more bridge games nightly than any other news commentator on the air. These are reasons enough to excavate beneath the voice and find the man.

On the kind of day last August that makes tears run off dry ice and wars commence in Europe, the chief of CBS' special-events department, Paul White, called Elmer Davis at his summer home in Mystic, Connecticut, and asked him to pinch-hit for H. V. Kaltenborn, who was investigating conditions first-hand across the ocean.

"I'm sorry," said Mr. Davis. "But I'm already behind on a novel I was supposed to deliver to the Saturday Evening Post last week."

"But, Elmer," pleaded Paul White, "Germany is about to attack Poland. This is a time for history, not fiction. Come down and get in the thick of a real plot. Anyway, we're in a tough spot now with H. V. away and so much news in need of interpretation."

It was probably the "tough spot" that appealed to Elmer Davis. He had always labored fee-free for noble causes. He had devoted long hours to the American Friends of Czechoslovakia, the Authors' League, and the American-Yugoslav Society. With his congenital soft spot for "tough spots," Elmer came down, unlimbered and pitched into the greatest news scramble in radio history.

SIX years before, Mr. Davis had learned some simple WABC's about the business by broadcasting local returns on election night in New York City. His rube accent and unexcitable manner evoked no favorable comment whatsoever. After one night's work, he went back to free-lance writing for Harper's, Collier's, and the Saturday Evening Post, to whom he sold an aggregate of 127 fiction stories. But in the intervening six years something had happened to radio audiences. They had lost interest in velvet voices and dulcet diction. They cared more for what speakers said than the way they delivered. When Elmer Davis came back he had just the homey, down-to-earth manner needed in a moment of crisis. His seedy voice provided a constant reminder that America was three thousand miles away from Europe's danger-zones. The country was ready for a man who talked through his nose. Elmer Davis, with an Oxford brain and an Indiana twang that reeked of neutrality, responded to a great national need.

For broadcasts heard throughout the greater part of the United States—on his CBS spot—Elmer Davis makes no attempt to interpret the news as do Raymond Gram Swing, Kaltenborn and other commentators. His program is listed as a news summary and that is exactly what Davis—with his splendid newspaper background—makes it. The secret of his success lies in his ability to compress so much news into so short a period and with such painstaking impartiality that his integrity has never been questioned.

This he credits equally to his Hoosier childhood, his education and his news training. Surely his news work on New York journals accounts in a large measure for his ability to say so much in so few words. As a matter of fact, that is the essence of good news writing and no one has ever accused Davis of not being a good news writer. His education, on the other hand, gives him a polish and finesse (not apparent on the surface in his sometimes blunt reports) which have done much to earn him his current high Crossley rating. His Hoosier boyhood has given him an American sense of values which he is unable to live down, if he wanted to, and which endears him to his so-called "customers."

Elmer is lots handsomer than his voice and much more suave than most Elmers. To be quite political, his face is a blend of the kindest characteristics of Cordell Hull and Paul V. McNutt. Six feet tall, dignified of bearing, his face is the kind painters and sculptors call beautiful. He has a thin, sensitive mouth, graying hair, limpid brown eyes shaded by an enormous clump of overhanging eyebrows, and a fine, slightly aquiline nose that would have done credit to Catullus and Horace, whose poems he reads in the original Latin. A scholarly looking pair of black horn-rimmed spectacles helps Elmer—everybody around CBS calls him Elmer—prepare and read his 8:55 p.m. EST summary. The five-minute show is the only one for which he prepares a script, that being a sure-fire way of squeezing all the news into the small time capsule. Elmer ad-libs the earlier fifteen-minute broadcast over WABC in pure Kaltenborn tradition.

By this time his associates realize that Elmer invariably wears a somber black bow tie. Intimates realize that he owns only one. His twenty-year-old son, Robert Lloyd, a student at the University of Chicago, sent him a four-in-hand as a Christmas experiment. Dad is keeping it in reserve for funerals. The fact that Elmer Davis has worn spats and carried a cane for over thirty years year at Queens College, Oxford, Elmer sat on a bench with young Christopher Morley in Manhattan's old City Hall Park and flipped a coin to decide which way both should go in search of jobs. Elmer Davis flipped "heads," which meant tackling the New York Times. By elimination Morley was left with the New York Evening Post. Davis got his job with the Times, and the editor who hired him swears the lad was wearing a flecked gray-tweed suit. In 1924, when he gave up a fine job as editorial writer to his brilliant friend, Simeon Strunsky, he was still wearing what appeared to be the same ensemble. Two years ago, in Europe on assignment for Harper's, he was sighted on Trafalgar Square, the Place de la Concorde, and near the Acropolis by old acquaintances for whom "Elmer" and "gray tweed" were synonyms learned at Oxford. So when you hear Elmer Davis, you don't need television to see his mottled suit and his black bow tie. Twice he has broadcast in his only change—white tie and tails. That was when his great musical passion, Wagner's "Goetterdaemmerung," was playing at the Metropolitan Opera. Richard Wagner is the only man who, in the memory of all his acquaintances, has ever made Elmer Davis switch colors.

NOW that the former novelist and essayist is sharing full commentator responsibilities with Kaltenborn, you might logically think he has a private office and secretary. He has neither. Elmer works in shirt-sleeves on a corner of Kaltenborn's desk. When H. V. pops in they sit opposite each other, chin about the news, stick red and white pins into Finland and formulate broad policies to avoid voicing conflicting views on the air. When Davis comes in around 3:00 each afternoon, he immediately dives for the pile of newspapers on the desk. Not, however, to read the headlines or digest the European flashes. His destination is the second section, where he plunges heart and soul into the bridge columns. Bridge, in these whirlwind times, is Elmer's sole diversion and "only sport." Although he could probably rival John Kieran at quoting classical poetry, his favorite saying, according to his own admission, is "Double six no trump." He belongs to the Century Club and the Columbia University Faculty Club, which offer daily workouts at bridge.

The Indiana sage endeared himself right off the bat to Bob Trout (who, after Hitler, he names as his favorite radio personality) and to all his fellow workers in the CBS newsroom by his habit of uncorking a hilarious story every day, sometimes even before he uncorks his hat. Elmer's inimitable limericks, released at the rate of one a day, keep the whole seventeenth floor amused. Executives intersperse office conferences with repetitions of Elmer Davis' latest—"There was a young girl from Murmansk, who had a, etc., etc." His subtle sense of humor often seeps out over the air. There was the time, for example, when a news dispatch from Belgium spoke of the "semi-relaxed" atmosphere prevailing there. In his broadcast that night Elmer Davis asked rhetorically whether this report of semi-relaxed conditions came from official Belgian semi-circles. He's not likely to recite any of his limericks on the air unless his worst fear—that of going suddenly insane in front of the microphone—comes true. "I have a neurotic conviction," he says, "that some day I will go insane at the mike and begin spouting treason, blasphemy and libel." Many of his rivals, incidentally, who would not admit a similar conviction, show a more marked tendency.

In a time when thinking is organized into gangs, Davis prides himself on belonging to none. Fuel for his mind comes from an inexhaustible knowledge of ancient history and from the Bible, which he regards as the greatest book ever written. He can write in French, German and Latin, and reads modern Greek. Once when a friend happened upon him in the cold shadow of a Doric column in Athens, Elmer Davis was absorbed in a Greek book called "Mpuffalo Mpill" (Buffalo Bill). In ancient history he demonstrates his independence of thinking by choosing the Emperor Gallienus as one of his favorite characters. Gibbon, the great historian, described Gallienus as an "idler and a debauchee." Davis says "he was a damn good Roman Emperor."

WITH all his learning, Elmer Davis knows absolutely nothing about himself. He prefaced my interview by saying, "I have no interest in myself." Nearly everything in this article comes from the writer's personal observations and from comments from Mr. Davis' friends and colleagues. His consuming aim—to avoid any affectation which might brand him as distinguished—has wrought a man of complete humility and self-belittlement. He prides himself on an accent that still smacks of the Hogan Crick that runs through his native town of Aurora, Indiana. An Oxford overtone was his for the taking. The "customers," as Elmer calls his listeners, know him as probably the only commentator who never says "Good evening" or "Good night." It is in the avoidance of these identifying mannerisms, his strict adherence to his job of giving as much news in as short a time as possible, that Elmer Davis remains true to his employer, to himself and to the "customers."

Elmer Davis may be heard on CBS nightly in five-minute broadcasts at:
EST 8:55 p.m. — CST 7:55 p.m.
MST 6:55 p.m. — PST 5:55 p.m.
Also on station WABC in fifteen-minute news summaries on Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays at:
EST 6:30 p.m.

CBS gladly pays $400,000 yearly in refunds to sponsors in order to clear five minutes nightly for Davis' war news. With CBS newsman Mat Gordan he is seen below, typically modest, without affectation might strike some as a spiffy affectation. But the spats, worn purely to keep his ankles warm, are taken off and hung up on hat-racks indoors. The cane is a remnant of his early journalistic days when New York Times reporters sported sticks to distinguish themselves from Herald men, who wore coats with Persian lamb collars.

Elmer Davis, with an Indiana twang and an Oxford brain, keeps news-mad men sane

No one has ever seen Elmer in any but a light-gray tweed suit with black flecks. It is impossible to determine whether he possesses only the one outfit or a whole closetful of identical ones. This idiosyncrasy extends as far back as a day in 1913 when, freshly returned from a Rhodes Scholarship

ON THE BANDWAGON

Your band reporter turns up with romance rumors, record reviews and news of your favorite melody men

Band of the Week is Sammy Kaye's Swing and Sway organization (heard Mon., NBC). Names of members are given below

FROM the flood of swing bands which inundated the country in 1937 and 1938 emerged an orchestra which incorporated the term "swing" in a catchy title but struck musical oil with a saccharine, danceable brand of rhythm. It's "Swing and Sway with Sammy Kaye," now gracing the Monday night Sensation NBC program, recording for Victor and airemoting from New York's Hotel Commodore. It was while a student at Ohio University that Sammy formed the nucleus for his present band which lines up: Jimmy Brown, Pittsburgh, Andy Russett, Ellsworth, Pa., George Brandon, Cleveland, Charley Wilson, Altoona, Pa., saxophones; Clyde Burke, Detroit, and Ralph Flannagan, Lorain, Ohio, pianos; Tommy Ryan, Newport, Ky., guitar; Ernie Rudisill, Altoona, Pa., drums; Howard Workman, Detroit, bass; Dale Cornell, St. Mary's, W. Va., and Lloyd Gilliom, Bluffton, Ind., trumpets; Bob Negron, New York, and Frank O'Blake, Cleveland, trombones. Brown, Wilson, Burke and Ryan handle the vocals, Ryan singing the introductory song titles which highlight the band's style. Wilson, Rudisill, Brandon, O'Blake, Russett and Flannagan were charter members of the band. In addition to "singing song titles," the Kaye band is distinguished by a sugary saxophone tone quality, crisp trumpet backgrounds and snap-rhythm, as illustrated in what Sammy considers his best recording, the currently popular ballad number, "South of the Border." For its danceability and perseverance in hitting the top with a sweet band in face of a swing craze, your correspondent names Sammy Kaye's orchestra—the MOVIE AND RADIO GUIDE Band of the Week.

Behind the Podium

Larry Clinton introduced a new vocal discovery to the ether when he opened Chicago's Sherman House March 8 . . . An eighteen-year-old New Orleans beauty, the gal remains professionally unnamed at this writing . . . Her real handle is Helen Englert . . . Universal Pictures reported dickering with Swing King Benny Goodman for a choice spot in a new Deanna Durbin flicker . . . Gypsy Markoff, Bessarabian gypsy princess now choraling at New York's Waldorf-Astoria, slated to take over a vocal role with Harold Stern's orchestra . . . It's an April 4 return to the air for Eddy Duchin from Gotham's Plaza Hotel . . . Romance mystery of greatest longevity in the band business remains: Are Kay Kyser and Gimmy Simms secretly married? . . . If Elmo Tanner, the Ted Weems whistler, wants a quick $10,000, he'll have to stop whistling for it . . . That's the valuation placed on his whistling in an insurance policy taken with Lloyd's of London.

The Theme's the Thing

Purely coincidental is the fact that Maestro Jack Teagarden, who recently filed a petition in bankruptcy, uses as a theme "I've Got a Right to Sing the Blues" . . . That Maestro Bunny Berigan, of whom we don't hear much any more in a bandway, themes "I Can't Get Started" . . . And that Bob Chester's theme, "Sunburst," is published by the Sun Music Publishing Company.

Maestro Rhyme-O Contest

This is your last chance to enter MOVIE AND RADIO GUIDE'S Maestro Rhyme-O

Contest, open to any person residing in the United States or Canada excepting employees of MOVIE AND RADIO GUIDE. All you have to do is write a simple rhyme of not more than ten words about your favorite orchestra-leader on an ordinary sheet of writing-paper and, along with the name of your favorite popular recording, submit in the mail to "On the Bandwagon," MOVIE AND RADIO GUIDE, 551 Fifth Avenue, New York City. Entries must be postmarked not later than midnight March 10, 1940. The twenty contestants whose rhymes are judged to be most original will receive an individual prize of their favorite recording, personally autographed by their favorite bandleader. Following are a few sample rhymes:

"Oil your bearing and dance to Fred Waring"

"Take a dance flight with Horace Heidt"

"Boop - boop - a - doopa with Gene Krupa"

In the Doghouse

If Al Donahue, society swing-batoneer, never previously believed in the old adage, "It Never Rains But It Pours," he's a firm disciple now. While making a tour of one-night stands with his band recently, Al drove four thousand miles in three weeks without a mishap and without arriving late for one job. Back in New York the other day he left his office and got into his car for the twenty-three-mile drive to his home in Manhasset, L. I. En route he got two flats, received a ticket, and finally arrived home—an hour late for dinner.

Buddy Rogers and the Mrs. (Mary Pickford) will fly to Cuba for a short vacation March 10 in Buddy's own four-place Fairchild plane, "The American Ace," named after a tune air-minded Rogers penned in salute to the corps of young American college students now undergoing government air-training.

Ford Leary, the Larry Clinton vocalist of "Shadrack" fame, disproves our contention that boy vocalists must have glamour to be a hit, with the arrival of his FIFTH child, a little girl. Ford, like most men, had anticipated a boy and prenatally selected "Denis" as an appropriate name. The boys in the band have suggested "Denise" as a fitting substitute.

Ogled at Openings

At the Tommy Dorsey Meadowbrook shindig: Maxene Andrews (of the trio) and Manager Lou Levy hand-holding . . . Cinemastar Marie Wilson giggling at the gags of Jack Egan, cherub-faced T. Dorsey publicist . . . Will Osborne and vocalist Dickie Rogers beaming over their first royalty check for "Between 18th and 19th on Chestnut Street" . . . Maestri Dorsey, Jack Denny, Reggie Childs and Les Brown posing for a group picture.

At the Will Bradley Famous Door debut—number one jitterbug, Betty Hutton, with her mama . . . Les Soeurs Andrews, without Mama 'n' Papa . . . Ex-maestro and arranger, Will Hudson, beating his foot to the Bradley rhythm on the bar's brass rail . . . Tunemsmith Teddy Powell, writing down the names of some top-flight musicians he wants for his new band . . . Director Raoul Walsh trying to out-blast the brass section in calling a waiter.

"HAWAII CALLS"

HIDDEN away among more spectacular program listings are two of the most delightful and entertaining half-hour broadcasts on the air, Honolulu's contribution to American network fare, namely, "Hawaii Calls," for MBS, Saturdays from 8:30 to 9:00 p.m. EST and the "Voice of Hawaii," for NBC, Sundays from 8:30 to 9:00 p.m. EST. With the opening words, "This is Hawaii, Magic Isles of the Pacific," you are whisked away to a land of tropical enchantment where the soft strumming of steel guitars blends with the sound of native voices chanting the lovely, haunting melodies of Hawaii. In the background one can just hear the gentle booming of the surf as the blue-green foam-tipped whitecaps pound onto the beach at Waikiki. Then the tempo changes. It's the hula. Swarthy and alluring maidens of the isles, their grass skirts swishing to and fro, weave and sway as this ancient ceremonial dance is executed with graceful abandon. The gaiety of vacationing mainlanders frolicking on the beach or chatting on verandas of the Royal Hawaiian is captured and radiated by the roaming announcer. And all the while, a silhouette against the horizon, romantic Diamond Head casts a tranquil shadow over the dreamy scene. "Aloha" comes all too soon as we take our leave of Hawaii.

EUROPE'S SHORT-WAVE VOICES: OLR4A (11.84), Prague, Bohemia, is still on the air and may be heard after 7 p.m. EST any evening that reception from Europe is particularly favorable. . . "Paris Mondial," Paris, France, is now broadcasting to North America daily from 11:30 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. EST on a new frequency of 15.13 mcs. An interesting English program feature entitled "Today in Paris" may be heard at 11:33 a.m. EST. The English announcer that reads the program resume is Howard Claney, a former NBC announcer. . . Germany is flooding the air with new short-wave stations. DJW (9.65) is now broadcasting to Latin America from 4:45 p.m. EST on, simultaneously with DJN (9.54). OJ1 (7.29) signs off at 5:30 p.m. EST after radiating a propaganda talk in English. At 6:15 p.m. EST, DXM (7.27) comes on the air and puts on a similar talk in English. OXJ (7.24) is heard occasionally near 8 p.m. EST. The mysterious station on approximately 10.04 mcs, which identified itself as "Radio Poderad," now uses the call OZB, and gives the location as Prague, Germany. It operates daily from 2:30 to 3:30 p.m. EST, with a news bulletin in English at 2:50 p.m. EST. . . Osmond Callan of Readville, Mass.,

Before the advent of short-wave radio, program pick-ups from Hawaii were impossible, but now RCA's powerful commercial transmitters at Kahuku provide facilities for bringing us these broadcasts from the isles. Hawaii unfortunately has no regular short-wave broadcasting station (the F. C. C. turned thumbs down on an application for such a station), so these commercial transmitters, whose primary function is to provide telephone links between the mainland, Hawaii and the Philippine Islands, are pressed into temporary use each week for bringing these programs to us.

To tune in Hawaii direct, try for KHE (17.97) or KQH (14.92). Occasionally, but not often, relays are made over KIO (11.68) or KKH (7.52). Short-wave reception from Hawaii is often very good and is certainly better than that afforded by a poor network outlet.

Here is one important thing for short-wave listeners to remember: Short-wave transmitters, such as these at Kahuku, Hawaii, are not broadcast stations but are engaged primarily in commercial telephone service. Our Federal laws can not prevent listeners from tuning in these stations but they do say you must not repeat anything heard over such stations. Under these conditions reception reports are not welcome and seldom are answered.

writes that the anti-Nazi "Deutscher Freiheitssender" is now being heard every afternoon from 3 to 3:30 p.m. EST on a frequency of 10.07 mcs. Talks, which are entirely in German, have been giving considerable attention to the destruction of the Catholic church in Poland. Signal strength is good but the quality is extremely poor and sounds like the short-wave broadcasts one used to hear several years ago with a high noise level and a "tinny" voice. The hum of the mobile generator—which, with the outlaw transmitter, is mounted in a truck—can be distinctly heard.

GENERAL NOTES: KC4USA, amateur transmitter aboard Admiral Byrd's snow-cruiser, somewhere in Antarctica, was heard recently at 11:25 p.m. EST—not on its published frequency of 14.15 but at the high-frequency edge of the 20-meter amateur band, on 14.39 mcs. . . Roger Legge of Binghamton, N. Y., has received a radiogram from the Radio Club of Mozambique to the effect that transmissions for North America are now being made daily from 7 to 8 a.m. EST over CR7BG (15.285). Signals do not become audible in North America until about 7:45 a.m. EST.

Do rumors become facts as Alice Faye plans to divorce Tony Martin?

CLEAR ALL WIRES

Here is last-minute news from the entertainment capitals of the world

Don Ameche uncorks a mind of his own, is suspended by his studio!

FAYE-MARTIN DIVORCE —HOW WILL IT END?

AFTER a two-and-one-half-year effort to convince Hollywood (and themselves) their marriage was a happy one, Tony Martin and Alice Faye have given up at last and soon will go their separate ways.

Or will they?

On February 22, Alice made the announcement in Hollywood that she would seek her freedom on the grounds of incompatibility. She said:

"This sort of marriage is neither happy, nor decent, nor proper. We are married and still not married."

Miss Faye was, of course, referring to the demands of their mutual professional careers, which have forced Tony and Alice to remain apart for all but three months of the last eighteen. Alice's decision to seek a divorce was arrived at following a long-distance telephone talk with Tony, who was in Miami Beach, Florida.

On the debit side of the ledger there are those continuous divorce rumors, Hollywood gabble to the effect that Alice's popularity with fans was greater than Tony's, causing him to be unhappy at playing the role of "hubby" to a glamorous woman.

On the credit side of the ledger, there are Alice's airplane trips to New York to see Tony each time gossip had them tiffing, or on the verge of a separation. There is the house that Alice built (which later burned down) in an attempt to give the marriage solidity. Most ironic of all is the visit she made to see a Chicago lawyer about the red tape involved in adopting a child, hoping that might be the bond that would keep this marriage from going on the rocks. Hollywood immediately jumped to the conclusion she was considering a divorce, and nasty rumors resulted.

THERE are three items which have been overlooked. One is the impetus Tony recently had given his career through his own ability; another is the fact that he'll be in Hollywood for six weeks beginning April 8 as the singing star of the Andre Kostelanetz radio show. The third is, Alice herself, following the divorce announcement, hid in Binnie Barnes' home in Brentwood to evade questions.

Discussing marriage and divorce is much easier and more sane in a dressing-room, or across a luncheon or dinner table, than it is across a continent. A reconciliation may take place. Don't be too surprised if it does.

"Strange Cargo"

(A Review)

Cast: Clark Gable, Joan Crawford, Peter Lorre, Ian Hunter, Paul Lukas, J. Edward Bromberg, Albert Dekker, Eduardo Cianelli, John Arledge, Sara Haden, etc. An M-G-M production; produced by Joseph Mankiewicz, who produced "Fury," "Shopworn Angel," "Huckleberry Finn," etc. Directed by Frank Borzage, who directed "Seventh Heaven," "A Farewell to Arms," "Disputed Passage," etc. From the book, "Not Too Narrow, Not Too Deep."

Seen before the regular press preview held in Hollywood on February 28, "Strange Cargo" is such an outstanding film that Movie and Radio Guide feels itself compelled to rush this review into print in this space, usually reserved for the most important happenings of the week in the entire world of entertainment.

The teaming of Clark Gable and Joan Crawford again after several years, the bold clashing of physical forces, a subtly interwoven theme of regeneration—and smash performances by Gable and Crawford, and Ian Hunter as a mystic—will make "Strange Cargo" one of the most talked-about pictures of the year.

Made from the book, "Not Too Narrow, Not Too Deep," the film concerns the escape of eight desperadoes from a penal colony. They travel through impenetrable jungle, all but two of them finding splendid, repentant death before the trip is ended. Gable, toughest of all, and Joan Crawford, his companion-by-force, are the last to yield to their better selves. In their finding of a spiritual love for each other comes an awe-inspiring climax as effective as a bolt of lightning and as sudden as a crash of thunder.

For jungle sequences the company went to Pico, California; Pismo Beach was the setting for the tropical beach scenes. Rumors about Gable and Crawford feuding during the film are false, because not even such a director as Borzage could have achieved the magnificence of "Strange Cargo" without whole-hearted cooperation of the actors.

(Because Movie and Radio Guide's reviewer was the very first to see this picture, it is impossible to include the usual review feature, "What They Thought of It.")

AMECHE'S REBELLION UPSETS STUDIO PLANS

EASY-GOING, good-natured Don Ameche, who has to tie a string around his finger to remind himself to say "no" to anybody about anything, recently tossed the biggest Hollywood bombshell since Martin Dies' blast at the motion-picture industry when he refused to report to Paramount for a role in "The Night of January 16th," to which he had been committed by his own studio, 20th Century-Fox.

Don read the script, didn't like his role, and simply refused to play it. 20th Century-Fox immediately suspended him, so he went to Palm Springs to sit it out in the sunshine.

Immediately following the blow-up, the Hollywood grapevine and trade papers, which cover news of interest to motion-picture producers, began to hint that Paramount might possibly seek legal redress against 20th Century-Fox for Ameche's action. Paramount, it was said, figured their loss at about $50,000, and had legal minds at work on the situation. If such an action should be begun, there is no precedent for it. Involved would be not only the possible loss suffered by the studio to which a player was to have been loaned, but the question of just where an actor's rights begin and end in the matter of whether or not he chooses to play roles to which his home studio has committed him on other lots.

DON'S trip to the Paramount lot allegedly was to have been in exchange for Paramount's allowing 20th Century-Fox to use two of their players, Fred MacMurray and Ray Milland. Also, there's talk that 20th Century-Fox is desirous of borrowing "Rochester," who also is a Paramount contractee, for a role.

So Ameche's walkout on "The Night of January 16th" is more than a player's refusal to do a role assigned to him. He has applied the match to a stack of plans-on-paper for both Paramount and Fox. His action may do more than bring strained relations between the two studios involved. His decision to say "no"—and mean it—may force entire Hollywood to revise and re-evaluate the star-exchange system in use by every major studio.

For a fellow who finds it as hard to refuse anybody anything as Ameche does, the whole situation must be somewhat disconcerting—even if he feels he is in the right.

GINGER ROGERS and JOEL McCREA—All that hullabaloo about Ginger Rogers turning brunette was for RKO's "The Primrose Path," in which she'll soon be seen with Joel McCrea.

Interesting, too, is announcement that Ronald Colman has signed to co-star with Miss Rogers in "Change Your Luck," based on the play "Bonne Chance," scheduled for 1940-41 release

ELLEN DREW—Some idea of what her studio (Paramount) thinks of the abilities of Ellen Drew may be gathered from the fact she's been cast in three pictures in a row—none of which has been released

MOVIE and RADIO GUIDE AWARD FOR DISTINGUISHED ACTING

As Judged by

Jimmie Fidler

BECAUSE MOVIE AND RADIO GUIDE believes that exceptional work in any field of endeavor should be publicly recognized and acclaimed, and because top performances in motion pictures represent greater effort and plain hard work than achievement in any other calling in the world, this publication is inaugurating with this issue the first MOVIE AND RADIO GUIDE AWARD FOR DISTINGUISHED ACTING.

Winners of these awards will be chosen monthly by radio's ace Hollywood news commentator, Jimmie Fidler, whose critical judgment is conceded to be Hollywood's most expert. Each month Jimmie Fidler will select what he considers the outstanding performance of the month by a man and a woman. He will pay tribute to the players turning in those performances on his broadcast, and the award will be made through MOVIE AND RADIO GUIDE.

Winners for February:

Best performance by a man:
Spencer Tracy as Major Robert Rogers in "Northwest Passage."

Mickey Rooney as Young Tom Edison in "Young Tom Edison."

Best performance by a woman:
Carole Lombard as Anne Lee in "Vigil in the Night."

As announced on his broadcast of March 5, Fidler is making a double selection because of difficulty in choosing between the performances of Tracy and Rooney. He says:

"If I am going to favor either, it is Spencer Tracy. I say this because Rooney had the benefit of his fine story ('Young Tom Edison'), with situations built on heart-tugs and laughs. Mickey does a swell job. But Tracy's effectiveness is built entirely upon himself. The story ('Northwest Passage') isn't as strong and the situations are mostly just fair. But he stands out because his interpretation of a fine leader of a group of rangers is so strong that he doesn't leave you any doubt but that he is a pioneer of strength himself. Without a lot of he-mannish gestures or big talk, he puts over the fact that Major Rogers is a man who would never die.

"The award for the woman goes to Carole Lombard for her work in 'Vigil in the Night' because of the simplicity with which she played a very difficult role. She might easily have spoiled this part by 'acting' all over the screen, and that might have been understandable in view of those slapstick pictures she did in which she could 'ham' to her heart's content. But in

'Vigil in the Night' she gives a subdued, compelling performance."

It is on the basis of Jimmie Fidler's interpretations of the most distinguished performances of the month that MOVIE AND RADIO GUIDE is happy to present the MOVIE AND RADIO GUIDE AWARD FOR DISTINGUISHED ACTING to:
Carole Lombard.

Spencer Tracy and Mickey Rooney. With these awards goes the appreciation of the editors of this publication for the parts they played in making motion pictures better entertainment.

Jimmie Fidler will broadcast his MOVIE AND RADIO GUIDE AWARD selections on the first Tuesday of each month. Pictures of the actors and actresses, together with Fidler's reasons for their selection, will be found in MOVIE AND RADIO GUIDE, on sale throughout the nation the next day.

CAROLE LOMBARD

Since making "Vigil in the Night" for RKO Pictures, Miss Lombard has signed a new contract with the same company, will make three more RKO pictures in 1940. First is "Mr. and Mrs."

SPENCER TRACY

Tracy's next is "Edison, the Man," which will be a sequel to "Young Tom Edison." He is under a term contract to Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer

MICKEY ROONEY

After the dramatic "Young Tom Edison," Rooney will appear in a musical and more "Hardy" films, of course. He's contracted to M-G-M

"THE MAN WHO CAME TO DINNER" opening (Feb. 12) brought out film notables. L. to r.: Mr. and Mrs. Walter Connolly, the Stuart Erwins

CESAR ROMERO, with his "Cisco Kid" haircut, took Joan Crawford to watch Alexander Woollcott act in "The Man Who Came to Dinner"

THIS WEEK in Hollywood

Kaufman-Hart refuse offer of $300,000 for "The Man Who Came to Dinner"; Bette Davis toys with the idea of doing a Broadway play

JOAN CRAWFORD on St. Valentine's Day received a diamond and ruby heart pendant, reportedly from Franchot Tone, four days after she had caught the bride's bouquet at a wedding. But the auspicious signs for renewed romance in Joan's life may not be believed: With her career again on a brilliant upswing, she is treasuring her freedom, guarding against serious and interfering attachments.

WANT AD OF THE WEEK: A reindeer with personality for "Northwest Mounted Police." Must have glamour and photogenic qualities. Apply C. B. DeMille, Paramount Studios.

INDICATIONS are that Charlie Chaplin is gambling his entire fortune on his picture lampooning dictators. In his usual Chaplinesque style, production is leisurely and story values are so elastic that added scenes are inserted as ideas occur. Chaplin's market, which has always been worldwide, will be considerably restricted in view of his scenario material. It's a gamble—but right now laughter can have as important an effect on world history as destroyers and long-range guns. Chaplin may find that his millions have served humanity better than he planned.

ALICE FAYE, TYRONE POWER AND DON AMECHE is the most famous gagster combination in Hollywood. When the three are together in a picture, the entire company settles back, awaits and frequently helps the perpetrator in framing the gags. In "Lillian Russell," Tyrone is absent, but

WHEN GEORGE S. KAUFMAN, who with Moss Hart wrote the popular stage play, "The Man Who Came to Dinner," passed through Chicago on his way from Hollywood to New York recently, he made the assertion that all offers for the film rights to the production would be turned down.

Unless the writers change their minds, that means that the reported bid of $300,000—the largest price ever offered for a play—has been rejected.

Why they won't sell: Kaufman and Hart want to make the play into a picture themselves.

Queried concerning the reports he had been offered a job as an actor as a result of temporarily taking over the title role in the Los Angeles presentation of "The Man Who Came to Dinner" when Alexander Woollcott was taken ill shortly after the opening, said Mr. Kaufman:

"They'd pay me more to keep me off the screen than to have me on it!"

"MR. HARRY CHIN," alias Joe E. Brown, made his first public appearance (Feb. 15) at Santa Anita after car crash injuries lends his aid impartially to Alice and Don in planning gags. Latest was when Alice walked across a room for a pick-up shot, which means only a flash on the screen to tie up important action. To Alice's chagrin, a storm of applause greeted her, flowers rained on her from the cat-walks. To all intents and purposes, she had just finished the greatest acting-scene of the year. She evened scores with Don by hiding his shoes, while Director Irving Cummings, in the know, stormed and the crew made under-breath comments about the carelessness of high-priced stars. Don went to work in bedroom slippers, discovered his shoes when they touched his shoulders. They were being let down from the cat-walk at the end of a stout rope. Scores to date: Even.

BETTE DAVIS, it's rumored, may do a play on Broadway. Numerous Hollywood stars have the hankering, few satisfy it, because good plays are hard to find. With all the facilities the studios have for finding and buying good story material, it's an occasion for celebration when an outstanding literary property is discovered. The difficulties encountered by ambitious stars in finding suitable material for theater appearances is best indicated by the fact: Fredric March, Paul Muni and John Garfield are the only ones who returned to Broadway successfully in recent years.

WHAT WILL BE the outcome of Jimmy Roosevelt's latest motion-picture idea? Some months ago he organized Globe Pictures Corporation to make feature pictures. His first picture, now ready for the cameras, is a remake of the thriller, "The Bat." His second production will be an original story, "The Pot o' Gold." Now Jimmy has signed a deal to make films for nickel-in-the-slot machines which will be installed in drug stores, cafes, hotel lobbies, etc. The machines will show films which run from two and a half to three minutes. The question: Is that going into competition with yourself? Some of the older heads in the business seem to think it is.

LORETTA YOUNG'S request on Columbia's "The Doctor Takes a Wife" set that her picture name be changed from LESLIE Cameron to JUNE Cameron was finally granted. The three handsome suits she was to wear were promptly initialed J. C. The reason, not temperament: When Loretta finishes the picture the suits will go to an old school friend whose initials are J. C.

LAUGH OF THE WEEK: The Chicago theater owner who ran off the pictures of the Joe Louis-Arturo Godoy fight to see what they were like and was so highly amused at the idea of Godoy kissing Louis, he advertised: "See the most romantic ring battle in history!"

FRED ASTAIRE AND GEORGE MURPHY last week toasted their ten-year-old friendship; remembered the days when Fred and sister Adele danced in London in "The Gay Divorcee," with George and his wife, Julie Johnson, as their dancing competition in the London-staged "Good News." Recalling their after-theater get-togethers, Fred and Julie and George toasted absent Adele on this anniversary of their meeting. Toasted, too, "Broadway Melody," in which they both star. In England: Adele, married to a titled Britisher, tried to telephone Hollywood, failed because of government restrictions.

WHILE VIVIEN LEIGH is busily knitting helmets for the beleaguered Finns and finishing "Waterloo Bridge," she and Laurence Olivier are planning their theater tour with "Romeo and Juliet." Questioned in Hollywood: The wisdom of testing love with concentrated rehearsals, one-night stands.

TWO MAIDS from two famous Hollywood households met at market the other day. One was strutting because her employers were in the news with details of their last fight. The other, employed by Ronald Colman and Benita Hume, mourned: "Nothing ever happens at our house. Mr. Colman is so happy and Miss Hume is a perfect wife. Don't seem likely as if we're ever going to get in the papers."

SHELVED COMPLETELY is "The Great Commandment," an independently produced film, which so impressed Darryl Zanuck that he bought it lock, stock and barrel. Salvaged is the story which deals with Biblical times but is paralleled by modern conditions. In the role of the idealistic young Roman who is saved from death by Christ, will be Tyrone Power, who is showing the youngsters what real acting is. At the directing helm will be Irving Pichel, who came to Hollywood a decade ago as a director but was much too good an actor to get a real and consistent directing chance.

The HAPPY WORRIER

Temperamental and moody, but one of the best actors in the world—Spencer Tracy!

"SPENCE" takes his friends and his job seriously; he sticks to his pals, and has given up polo at the request of his studio

AT DUSK one day, shortly after the United States entered the first World War, a chunky, serious-eyed boy stood before the desk of a recruiting officer and said:

"I want to join the Marines, sir."

Unfortunately, his voice broke in the middle of the sentence, stripping him instantly of his assumed adulthood, revealing him for the kid he was.

Seventeen-year-old Spencer Tracy stumbled out into the night, his patriotic zeal thwarted by rejection for service. He retrieved the school-books he had hidden under an old shed, went home to supper. He might have lied about his age, but a whole phalanx of Colonial forebears shook spiritual fingers at him and the truth of his youth was forced out of him as with a pump. But it is this very passion for truth, for reality, for undramatized fact which has likely made him the actor he is today.

In all Hollywood, his is the most authentic genius currently, for it depends on no artifice, no subterfuge, no carefully conceived and finely developed bag of acting tricks. Unconsciously, he has translated the man he is into the roles he projects.

His knowledge of acting at no time interferes with his portrayals. If there is such a thing as a standard of normalcy, Tracy achieves it. He has faults which he admits; virtues which he is reluctant to confess. In him are blended the virility and impatience of the male, the sensitivity of the artist, the humility and impersonality and restlessness and conflict which stamp the doers in every field of knowledge and achievement.

Tracy is not a back-slapper. He is too remote for that. Nor is he addicted to the Hollywood custom of calling every chance feminine acquaintance "honey" or "darling." To him that would smack of emotional charlatanism.

He likes to keep people at arm's length, with the result that his small circle of friends is just that, rather than a hail-fellow-well-met mob of acquaintances. He shies away from new contacts, and makes them only with reluctance when studio policy or necessity forces them on him.

In all his casual relationships he is impersonal, but to his family and his few selected friends, among whom are numbered Frank Whitbeck, advertising manager of M-G-M, Walt Disney, Walter Brennan, he gives a loyalty unswerving, unbreakable, unassailable.

Spencer Tracy is a chronic worrier. From the moment a picture is planned he is busy creating mental hazards for himself and sees imperfection and calamity in every scene. While the "Northwest Passage" company was on location in Utah, every man-jack gained weight. Tracy lost twelve pounds. It was as "Major Robert Rogers" in that picture that Tracy was seen on the cover of last week's issue of MOVIE AND RADIO GUIDE. The studio sent for Louise, his wife, hoping that she might find some means to encourage his appetite, reduce his tension.

THERE is nothing grandstand about Tracy. To him grandstanding is being a ham actor with all its implications. He has the wit and capacity to laugh at himself. His favorite way of excusing himself to set-visitors in order to go before the cameras is to say: "Pardon me while I go and ham it up."

Tracy has a mental and physical sensitivity which does two things: It permits him to sense the hidden qualities of a character he is playing and to brilliantly translate them on the screen. When he is playing a historical figure like Stanley or Rogers or Edison, he reads every scrap available on the personage—even material which is in no way related to the role. By a type of osmosis, he possesses himself of those imperceptible characteristics which make of his roles unforgettable portraits instead of speed-artist sketches.

Secondly—this sensitivity makes him too aware of small distractions, of small discomforts, of the irritating little things which are part and parcel of picture-making. Hardships, real ones, he takes in his stride.

At the end of a difficult day, during which he has been curt and surly to everyone on the set, he makes the rounds, apologizes handsomely for his short temper and for his outbursts.

In the past few years, as his stature as an actor has increased, Tracy has grown up a lot. Formerly he would rage at unpleasant publicity, at uncomplimentary items. He would tolerate neither reasoning nor explaining. Today he takes such episodes as a matter of course, dismisses them as a necessary part of the very public profession of acting.

He has a sense of humor of the type which will keep him spinning fantastic yarns, engaging in horseplay, participating in priceless comedy routines if he is among cronies who give as good as they get. Then he is fast and funny.

The most significant influence in his life has been the memory of Will Rogers. The philosophies, the precepts, the sound humanity and kindness of the Oklahoma Sage have had a steadying effect on Tracy. Like Will Rogers, he shies away from the blatantly phony, is ever on a still-hunt for basic truth.

He dislikes being regimented. He has given a fortune to his church, but resents being set down on lists for certain charities for stated sums. Spence will never have a chance to become inflated with his importance. His small daughter, Susie, is a perfect ego-deflater with her occasional query—"Daddy, do they pay you for making pictures?" Or "Daddy, don't tell me you got paid for being on the radio with Bette Davis?" Her evident confusion at the ways of the picture-

YOUNG TOM EDISON LIVES AGAIN

World-premiered at Port Huron, Mich., "Young Tom Edison" is another Mickey Rooney triumph!

ON SATURDAY, February 10, the little city of Port Huron, Michigan, paid tribute to the memory of its most famous son, Inventor Thomas A. Edison, on the occasion of the ninety-third anniversary of his birth. That same day, it welcomed Mickey Rooney, the nation's number one box-office attraction, a whole trainload of national and state celebrities—and later was the scene of the world premiere of Mickey's latest picture, "Young Tom Edison."

The event was a two-day celebration, with nearly every Port Huronite dressed in costumes from the 1850's and 60's for the occasion. The most dramatic moment occurred when an old wood-burning train, of the type on which Edison worked as a "candy butcher," wheezed in from Detroit with Mickey Rooney, Edsel Ford, Governor Luren Dickenson, Louis B. Mayer and over a hundred other famous personalities and newspapermen aboard.

At a luncheon held later in honor of Thomas A. Edison, speakers included Governor Dickenson, Premier Mitchell Hepburn of Ontario, Canada; Mrs. Minna M. Edison Hughes, wife of the famous inventor; Louis B. Mayer of M-G-M, and Mickey Rooney.

While the Port Huron luncheon was in progress, members of the "We Knew Thomas Alva Edison" club held a meeting and luncheon at the Astor Hotel, New York City. At 2:30 p.m. a message was sent from this luncheon to Port Huron by Charles Edison, son of the late inventor, and was received over the old telegraph apparatus actually used by Thomas A. Edison himself.

At 5:30 Mrs. Edison Hughes turned on a beacon light which will serve as a memorial to the inventor.

Not because of this colorful launching, however, nor because "Young Tom Edison" is something new in picture-making, the first of two pictures based on one man's life (Spencer Tracy will star in the sequel, "Edison, the Man"), but simply because the picture is universal entertainment—MOVIE AND RADIO GUIDE selects "Young Tom Edison" as its "Picture of the Week"!

TRIUMPH—His misunderstood boyhood at an end, Tom leaves Port Huron for his new post as a telegraph operator, his reward for saving a train from being wrecked. "Young Tom Edison" ends on this note

LICKING—Because he conducted experiments in a baggage car, Tom got his ears boxed. This caused the real Edison to become deaf later in life

BROTHER and SISTER — Virginia Weidler's role of Tannie is second only to Mickey's in the picture. They are the best of pals and always fight each other's battles

RESCUE—Young Tom saves the station-master's child from being run over. Edison himself actually saved a child's life

HERO—Tom prevents a train wreck by warning his sister in Morse code on a train whistle that a bridge had been washed out. Climax of the film, the warning really was sent out by Thomas Edison

"YOUNG Tom Edison" is an unusual picture. It is unique because it deviates so little from the boyhood adventures of Thomas A. Edison, the famous inventor, and is jam-packed with drama, suspense, color and humor, nonetheless. Mickey Rooney, star of the film, is enough like Edison, according to those who knew Tom as a youngster, to play his role with no make-up except to change the ordinary way in which he parts his hair and to wear clothes which would have been fashionable in the 1860's. Casting in other roles is not as accurate in physical appearance, but Virginia Weidler, who plays "Tannie Edison," Tom's sister, is an admirable foil for Rooney's performance as the addle-brained Young Tom. Academy Award winner Fay Bainter as "Nancy Edison," Tom's mother, and George Bancroft as "Samuel Edison," his father, give accurate representations of the Edison family. The casting of Bobby Jordan, one of the "Dead End Kids," as "Joe Dingle," a storekeeper's son who bullies Young Tom, answers the question of what would happen if Mickey and one of the "Dead End Kids" were cast in the same picture. Victor Kilian plays the role of Joe's father.

IN THE filming of "Young Tom Edison," Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer has knit together the legends which have grown up around the boyhood of Edison. Young Tom attempts to help his sister Tannie with a geography recitation by tapping out the names of the states to her in Morse code during class; he mixes nitroglycerin on a train without knowing it and throws the passengers into a panic; he steals a mirror to be used as a light-reflector while a doctor operates upon his mother—and through it all is thought to be a little bit "addled." Months were spent in research before the picture was begun, and every detail is authentic. Port Huron, Edison's boyhood home, was reconstructed in twenty-three buildings spread over twenty acres of land as a set for much of the picture's action. For make-up, actual portraits of the characters portrayed were used as guides. Rooney did the rescue of the station-master's child without a double, enjoyed the encounter with Bobby Jordan as a good workout. It was for his Young Tom that he shared honors with Spencer Tracy (as Major Rogers in "Northwest Passage"), tying for the first MOVIE AND RADIO GUIDE AWARD FOR DISTINGUISHED ACTING, as selected by Jimmie Fidler (see Page 23).

EDISON FAMILY—(left to right) Virginia Weidler as "Tannie," George Bancroft (rear) as "Samuel Edison," Fay Bainter (seated) as "Nancy Edison," and Mickey Rooney as "Young Tom." Make-up on all four was done from portraits of the Edison family, and those who knew them say the likenesses are astonishingly accurate

PRACTICAL JOKER—Young Tom (center), abetted by his sister, sells the town bully, Joe Dingle (played by Bobby Jordan), the idea he can fly if he'll take a Seidlitz powder. Joe falls for the gag and becomes uncomfortably ill. In real life Edison did the same thing, and it's one of the favorite stories told about him yet today

"WOMEN WITHOUT NAMES"—Unpretentiously produced, this prison film starring Ellen Drew and Robert Paige is strong in action and really dramatic situations

THIS WEEK on the SCREEN

Booth Tarkington's "Seventeen" on the screen is solid entertainment; "Women Without Names" has plenty of thrills!

"Road to Singapore" with Crosby and Hope is a laugh a minute; Beery's "The Man From Dakota" is action-packed!

"THE MAN FROM DAKOTA"—This is Civil War melodrama, with Wallace Beery, Dolores Del Rio and John Howard. Not quite as exciting as some Beery pictures, it nevertheless will prove an evening of good entertainment, especially for those who like the veteran swashbuckling Beery

"SEVENTEEN"—Jackie Cooper and Virginia Field, last seen together in "What a Life," breathe reality into the immortal Tarkington story. Well written and well acted, the film will be amusing to youngsters, has a pleasant nostalgic appeal for those who are grown up

"Seventeen"

Cast: Jackie Cooper, Betty Field, Otto Kruger, Ann Shoemaker, Norma Nelson, Betty Moran, Thomas Ross, Peter (Lind) Hayes, etc. A Paramount picture produced by Stuart Walker; directed by Louis King; screen play by Agnes C. Johnson and Stuart Palmer, from the story by Booth Tarkington.

FOR everyone who was ever seventeen and can still remember the joys and the heartbreaks, the first loves, first facing of a world that—while not all rosy and gay—still was a pleasant enough world, here is a motion picture that will thrill you with its vivid recollection and stir deep yearnings within you. Nor does it lose an iota of its rich humor, its keen understanding of juvenile problems in the deft streamlining it has undergone in Hollywood.

As a story of a boy who is at that odd age when he is accepted neither as a boy nor yet as a man; it provides Jackie Cooper and Betty Field (last seen in "What A Life") with an excellent vehicle for acting-talent which far exceeds the expectations of their years. Jackie, incidentally, is only seventeen.

When Tarkington's tale of pranks and puppy love was first printed, Stuart Walker, close friend and confidant of the author, adapted it for its successful stage run. It is more than coincidence that this same Mr. Walker, now a Paramount producer, should have drawn the "Seventeen" assignment. The result is a modernization of the classic strictly in tone with the original. But coincidence went even farther than this. Location-men set out to find the Los Angeles house which most closely resembled the house described by Tarkington for use in the picture. The house they selected belonged to sisters Claude and Margaret Kyle, former neighbors of Tarkington in Indianapolis. Juvenile slang of yesteryear has been replaced with today's vernacular; serenades under windows have given way to jitterbug sessions in the new "Seventeen." But under its dress, under its make-up, you get the feeling that what Tarkington wrote into "Seventeen" fourteen years ago is as true today as it was yesterday; and that it will be true tomorrow. "Seventeen" should be required movie fare for all parents and for general movie fans—it's grand entertainment.

"Women Without Names"

Cast: Ellen Drew, Robert Paige, Judith Barrett, John Miljan, Fay Helm, John McGuire, Louise Beavers, James Seay, Esther Dale, Marjorie Main. A Paramount picture, produced by Eugene Zukor; directed by Robert Florey, screen play by William Lipman and Horace McCoy, based on a play by Ernest Booth.

"WOMEN WITHOUT NAMES" is a shining example of what imaginative treatment and intelligent production can do to convert a B picture into grade A entertainment. At the same time, Paramount again demonstrates that first-rate entertainment can be provided by youngsters when given the proper break and deft direction.

The story—that of a boy and a girl involved in a murder on their wedding night and, despite their innocence, convicted of the crime—is not new. But new twists and delicate writing lends it a charm that will make you remember it long after the so-called epics have faded from your memory.

Dramatic photography highlights the gripping moments that fill this picture, imparting a sense of realism which is never permitted to grow harsh or out of hand. Crisp dialog and perfect casting—casting in which each character fits his part like a kid glove—are its marks of distinction. Here is a picture which, unheralded, will provide for all movie fans entertainment of a sparkling quality.

WHAT THEY THOUGHT OF IT: Daily Variety: ". . . It will give wide satisfaction . . ." Hollywood Reporter: ". . . A top-notch picture which will be received well wherever it is shown . . ." Variety: ". . . Will serve its purpose . . ."

"Road to Singapore"

Cast: Bing Crosby, Dorothy Lamour, Bob Hope, Charles Coburn, Judith Barrett, Anthony Quinn, Jerry Colonna. A Paramount picture, produced by Harlan Thompson; directed by Victor Schertzinger. Screen play by Don Hartman and Frank Butler; original story by Harry Hervey.

AFTER a series of heavy—although very fine—pictures, audiences will be delighted with this fast-moving laughfest pairing Bing Crosby and Bob Hope for the first time, with Dorothy Lamour as the heart interest. Bing and Bob prove perfect foils for each other as they portray a pair of fugitives in hiding on a tropical isle from matrimonially minded women. A giggle-rousing climax is reached when Bing, quite by accident and through ignorance of the isle's customs, is almost married to a native belle.

This mile-a-minute laugh-getter was born on a Hollywood golf course where Bing and Bob, about to tee off, saw producer Harlan Thompson and Victor Schertzinger waiting, invited them to make it a foursome. By the time they'd made the round, director and producer were suffering from pains caused by excessive laughter and had decided to make a picture with the pair. This is it.

Dorothy Lamour was a natural for the feminine part, the script calling for a sultry girl who could sing, dance and wear a sarong to good advantage. From the two hundred natives hired as extras, Dotty learned, however, that what she had been proudly wearing as a sarong is in reality a sinjang. A sarong covers both legs, a sinjang permits one leg to protrude. In order not to set the film in any particular site, the producers took a dash of Samoa, a touch of Fiji, a bit of Bali and a smattering of Java, threw them all together at Baldwin Lake, near Santa Anita, and started shooting. In Bing's near-wedding scene, principals and extras ate six hundred turkeys and chickens in twelve retakes.

But the result was well worth the few extra pounds. A Hollywood preview audience literally laughed itself into the aisles, with blase critics rolling merrily among them.

WHAT THEY THOUGHT OF IT: Variety: ". . . Hilariously funny, romantic comedy. Sure-fire entertainment . . ." Edwin Schallert (in Los Angeles Times): ". . . Status of Bing Crosby raised to level of 'Waikiki Wedding' . . ." Hollywood Reporter: ". . . Crosby and Hope one of greatest comedy teams in film history . . ." Screen Guide: ". . . Comedy selection of the month . . ."

"The Man From Dakota"

Cast: Wallace Beery, Dolores Del Rio, John Howard, Donald Meek, Robert Barrat, Addison Richards, Frederick Burton, etc. A Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer picture, produced by Edward Chodorov; directed by Leslie Fenton; screen play by Laurence Stallings from McKinlay Kantor's book, "Arouse and Beware."

Dolores Del Rio, Spanish, learned her Russian accent from no less an authority than the grand-nephew of Count Tolstoy and, for the first time in her long career, worked on the same picture with her husband, Cedric Gibbons, art director who, unfortunately, was unable to build elaborate sets for her because most of the picture was shot outdoors in the Malibu Mountains.

WHAT THEY THOUGHT OF IT: Hollywood Reporter: ". . . Good production and a capable cast . . ." Daily Variety: ". . . Wallie Beery does a competent job with a comedy inflection of the material Laurence Stallings has devised . . ." Jimmie Fidler: ". . . Two bells . . . has its moments . . ."

RAYMOND MASSEY'S

FOR TEN MONTHS on Broadway, in Washington and Chicago, Raymond Massey appeared in the Pulitzer prize-winning play "Abe Lincoln in Illinois" (left and above), did his own make-up night after night—and enjoyed it. Previous to the play, he had worked in a number of pictures, was always cast as a villain, never as a hero!

MASSEY never was completely satisfied with his Lincoln make-up, experimented constantly. It was not until RKO bought the play and hired him to play the Lincoln role in the film version that a make-up was devised which satisfied him

"Honest Abe"

FEELING MORE IN CHARACTER in the movie make-up, Massey turns in the best performance of his career in the film "Abe Lincoln in Illinois"

THE story of RKO's "Abe Lincoln in Illinois" is also the story of Raymond Massey, the actor who plays the title role. After a successful stage career which included "Hamlet" and "Ethan Frome," Massey went to Hollywood and immediately was cast as a villain in one picture after another. "Meanie" roles in "Things to Come," "The Prisoner of Zenda" and "Hurricane," among others, fed him up on what the screen had to offer him. He returned to Broadway to star in "Abe Lincoln in Illinois."

When RKO bought picture rights to the play and signed Massey to the title role, he was elated, because it gave him an opportunity to portray another type of role than that of villain on the screen. It's a strange twist of fate and a tribute to Massey as an actor that, definitely typed as a villain, he should play so successfully the role of the Great Emancipator!

It is significant, too, that Massey didn't linger in Hollywood at the conclusion of the picture. He returned to the stage and to his role in "Abe Lincoln in Illinois."

"Abe Lincoln in Illinois" as produced by RKO is, of course, made from Robert E. Sherwood's Pulitzer prize-winner of the same name, and was adapted for screen presentation by Sherwood himself. Outdoor portions of the film were done on location on the MacKenzie River, near Eugene, Oregon, after scouts had traveled thousands of miles by car, plane and train in an effort to find a background suitable for the "cluster of primitive log cabins located on a crystal-clear river running through a dense forest of maples and cottonwoods," as specified by Sherwood's description of "New Salem, Illinois." Fifty woodsmen cleared a site and built a twenty-cabin village in the space of two weeks.

The actual location crew numbered 250, with sixty-one characters appearing in the movie. Leading players are Raymond Massey as Lincoln, Ruth Gordon as Mary Todd, Mary Howard as Ann Rutledge, Dorothy Tree as Elizabeth Edwards, Harvey Stephens as Ninian Edwards, Minor Watson as Joshua Speed and Gene Lockhart as Stephen Douglas.

"Fog" used in filming the picture was a vaporous titanium and tetrachloride mixture shot from liquid-smoke pressure-guns and cooled with dry ice so that it would cling to the ground. It was a bit smelly, but achieved the desired effect. Since Massey plays three distinct ages in "Abe Lincoln in Illinois," it was necessary for the make-up department to make him look like a youth in his early twenties (Massey himself is about 40), then to age him gradually until he appeared as he does in the final scenes of the film, gaunt and tired, the "text-book" Lincoln, familiar to school-age children.

The main street of Springfield, Illinois, was constructed on the RKO ranch near Hollywood—and was revamped from a set originally used in "Cimarron."

FLASH! Nearly every autograph in the United States allegedly signed by Vivien Leigh is a fake!

Miss Leigh, in a statement recently released by Paramount studios, says she has not signed more than half a dozen autographs since coming to this country. Several young ladies have impersonated her at various premieres, according to Miss Leigh, and have written her name in hundreds of autograph books. So be careful in trading Vivien Leigh autographs.

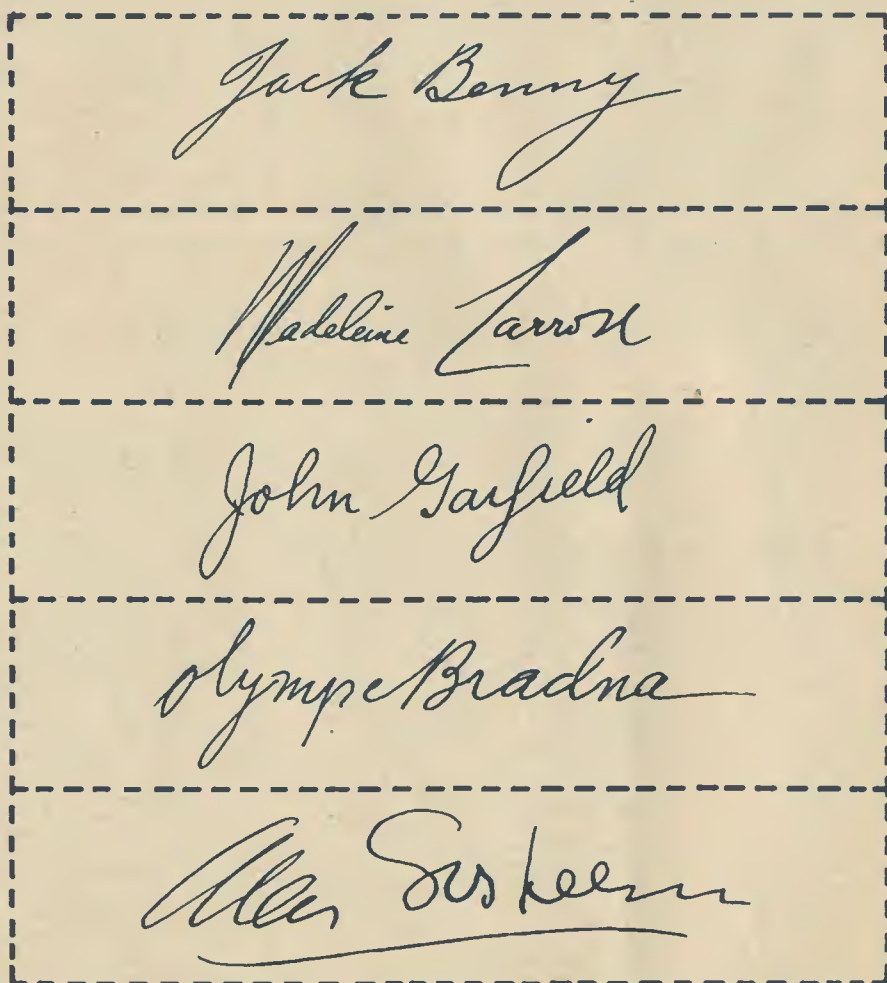

For the past few weeks, since this publication became MOVIE AND RADIO GUIDE, this department has offered itself as a medium of exchange between autograph collectors interested in building their collections. These pages have been opened, free of charge, to those collectors desirous of exchanging autographs with other collectors, with the simple stipulation that MOVIE AND RADIO GUIDE cannot be held responsible for any disagreements arising over

With his son Johnnie, handicapped by an impediment in speech and hearing, Tracy has a tender relationship. Johnnie has great talent as a cartoonist and artist. Under Walt Disney's tutelage, his remarkable abilities have developed quickly. Each day Johnnie draws a comic strip for his father's personal delectation. On Sunday, the boy does a full page and slips it under his father's door long before Spence is awake.

Tracy has favorite occupations and hobbies, a few pet hates. Polo is his game, but the studio frowns on this dangerous sport. He has, to a large extent, given it up. But before he became the crack player he is he had to overcome his fear of horses. He did it in a characteristically direct way. With his pockets bulging with sugar, he climbed into a corral full of strange horses. He went among them, whistling softly and handing out the sweet largess. The procedure worked.

He has taught both his son and daughter to ride well. The children have their own horses. Mrs. Tracy is a crack player on a local woman's polo team.

Spence is averse to combinations of things to eat. Give him peas and carrots separately and he'll clean up the dishes. Combine them and he won't touch them. He won't eat left-overs, which probably is a hangover from those lean first days on the stage, when he was forced to patronize quick-and-dirties, which seemed to specialize in week-before-last food. He is an ice-cream and chocolate-candy addict, a lover of biographies, and has a knowing ear for good music.

His collection of travel folders, which extol the glories of all the exciting places of the earth, is extensive. He is always planning a trip to the South Seas or Timbuktu, but the combination of work and his dislike for new environments and new routines keeps him snugly at home.

Fishing is a notable diversion for him. He can sit quietly on a pier or in a boat for hours on end, blissfully

The Girl On the Cover

WEE Bonnie Baker's revival less than a year ago of "Oh, Johnny," as vocalist with Orrin Tucker's band, was a springboard to singing fame. Today millions of radio listeners hear her baby voice on MBS pick-ups, as well as on Columbia's Saturday night "Hit Parade." Bonnie was born in Texas, later attended

Mt. de Sales Academy in Macon, Georgia, where she got her start as an amateur singer. Then followed a year of engagements in night-clubs and hotels, after which Orrin Tucker hired her. She's been with his orchestra ever since. Her hobby: Collecting dolls. Her age: 21. Her weight: 100 pounds. As for boy friends, she says, "I don't have time for such things." As for "Oh, Johnny," she says, "I must have sung it a million times."

unaware of time and tide. At one time he owned a boat, but when months went by and the boat continued idling at anchor, Spence disposed of it.

On his days off from a picture, he takes a busman's holiday. On the dot of nine, he arrives at the studio commissary for a cup of coffee with "the boys," a sound-man, a cameraman, an electrician and Mr. Whitbeck. He wanders around the lot like a lost soul until lunch-time, when the gang gets together again. When he goes home in the late afternoon, his off day has been nowise different from laboring days except in the fact that he's been more restless.

Neckties are his one marked vanity. All are somber, undistinguished. But let Louise fail to note a new one and ant necessity of attending school. Somehow he managed to stagger along from grade to grade, but he felt that classrooms, school-books and teachers were an assault on his individuality, an invasion of his privacy.

After his first failure to enlist in the Marines, he tried the Navy and was accepted. He was sent to the Naval Training Station at Norfolk, Virginia. That was all he saw of the war. When he was mustered out, he returned to finish his high-school education. He had the thirty-dollar-a-month pension, available to all ex-service men who desired to continue in school.

At Ripon College, where he finally landed, his dramatic abilities became evident, and from there on it was only a step to New York and to the American Academy of Dramatic Arts. His father paid his tuition; he lived on his thirty dollars a month.

From bits with the Theater Guild, he proceeded to various stock companies, where he learned how to face an audience, how to deliver lines, how to get over an impression of reality and sincerity.

A hit show, "Yellow," established him in New York, and from then on it was easy sailing. At last he was a name in the theater. In "The Last Mile" he was a star. On the basis of his performance in this play, Hollywood claimed him.

In the last couple of years every star who gets an Oscar has Tracy to beat first! He has two of his own, by the way! For his Manuel in "Captains Courageous" and for his Father Flanagan in "Boys Town." And for his portrayal of Major Rogers in "Northwest Passage" he shares honors with Mickey Rooney (for his Young Tom in "Young Tom Edison") as winner of the first MOVIE AND RADIO GUIDE AWARD FOR DISTINGUISHED ACTING, as selected by ace movie columnist and commentator, Jimmie Fidler. (See Page 23.)

THIS WEEK IN HOLLYWOOD

Because he proved so able a pilot of the modestly made "Commandment," Zanuck signed him, assigned him to make "Earthbound," a departure in story and technique from the usual Hollywood fare. Pichel has directed a dozen small-budget pictures, has never hit big time with them: "Earthbound" and "The Great Commandment" will likely do the trick for him.

FRED ASTAIRE, off for a vacation in Florida with his charming wife after the "Broadway Melody of 1940" premiere, announced his future plans as follows:

He will make but two pictures per year. He will be teamed with Eleanor Powell again in his next. Rumors that he planned to return to the stage in a Broadway musical are entirely without foundation. Whether he'll make another picture with Ginger Rogers is still undetermined, but if he does, it won't be until next year.

WHEN ANDREA LEEDS rushed back from her honeymoon with Scion Howard of the automobile millions, Hollywood wondered, speculated. But Andrea expects to leave the screen permanently within a year—sooner, if she finds that her career interferes with marriage. Meanwhile: She dislikes idleness, believes women are more interesting if they're busy.

ROBERT SHAW, young 20th Century-Fox contract player, is now designated as Linda Darnell's official squire. Everybody is happy with this one-man escort-bureau arrangement. Studio bosses are smiling because it keeps too young Linda out of gossip columns; Linda's mother is happy because the Shaw and Darnell families are friends down Texas way. Tempted have been Hollywood's lesser eligibles by Linda's freshness and beauty. Exempted is Linda now from manufacturing excuses for proffered invitations. Her valid reason: "No, thank you. Bob's supposed to take me."

"I HAVE ALWAYS WORKED in pictures; I can now afford to play in them." This is the happy swan song of Warner Baxter, who with "Earthbound" completes his long-term contract with 20th Century-Fox. Best known as a romantic lead, he hankers for character roles with meat in them, such as the aspirin-eating officer in "The Road to Glory." He believes he

Mr. Tracy becomes irked. The wardrobe department knows that Spence will find no fault with his suits, his shirts, his coats or his hats. But that he is very likely to ask for another tie to replace the one brought him.

Spencer Tracy was born in Milwaukee, Wisconsin, on April 5, 1900. His father came of Irish stock. His mother could trace her lineage to early Colonial days. His childhood was comfortable, marked only by the unpleas-will find them more frequently if he is free-lancing. For years Warner has been drawing a fancy wage. In 1938 he was among the ten highest earners in the nation, with his $279,807. Studios are already angling for his services: RKO looks the likely winner on a one-picture deal.

CHRISTENING OF THE WEEK: Ten minutes late was always-prompt Pat O'Brien on the "Torrid Zone" set. Delayed while small daughter Mavourneen held a christening party: A newly acquired goldfish was named Patricia, "Pat" for short.

SIT BACK AND RELAX. There is a word for it—and it's GLEX. "Oomph" and "It" girls, please move over. The authority is S. Sylvan Simon, currently directing "Two Girls on Broadway." It's a mixture of glamour and sex appeal, and young America, Mr. Simon says, goes for it. GLEX GIRL: Try to say it!

ANN RAND, former RKO wardrobe girl, has just collected a fancy price for "The Night of January 16th." Before it was produced on the stage, her former bosses had a chance to buy it for a song. They turned it down. Recently RKO wanted the rights and had to go to the original purchaser for them. Aside: 'Twas a good deal for Paramount.

DOUBLE-NAMED SIMONE SIMON brought to Hollywood several years ago on the wings of a tremendous publicity campaign, dropped in favor after several indifferent pictures and the unpleasant and undeserved notoriety coincident with her defaulting secretary's trial. She returned to France, is back now touring the country in a play. Likelihood of her return to the screen is good: She has a beguiling personality, which is useful to Hollywood.

HOW MUCH is the love of children worth? Mary Nash says a minimum of $25,000 a year. Mean to Shirley Temple in "Heidi" and "Little Princess," she received an avalanche of letters from children, scolding her, calling her names. If recognized on the street, they ran from her, hid their faces. Kind-hearted Mary Nash has refused all fearsome roles in the past twelve months, has lost thereby $25,000; intends to continue refusing them.

A MARVEL OF ADVANCED RADIO ENGINEERING

 Custom Built
 PHILHARMONIC

LONG acknowledged "The World's Finest Radio", the new 1940 Custom Built Scott rises to even greater heights of engineering development and performance. Guaranteed to give finer tone, clearer, quieter broadcast or recorded music, higher fidelity, greater undistorted volume, wider long distance range... is laboratory built and tested with greater precision than any other radio receiver in the world of your money refunded. A long and ever growing list of famous musicians have honored the custom built Scott by choosing it above all others for personal use.

reproduction. Yet the magnificent Scott can be yours for surprisingly little premium over many standard production instruments sold in retail stores.

EXCLUSIVE SCOTT DEVELOPMENTS

Many features available only in Scott receivers are developments of our own engineering laboratories. These are combined with the best general developments in advanced radio design.

A 5 YEAR GUARANTEE

90 days is the standard guarantee adopted by the radio industry. The custom built Scott, however, is guaranteed for 5 YEARS! A full month allowed for home trial. Extended terms available. Sold only direct from our laboratories and studios. Get all amazing facts and details of savings you can make by ACTING NOW!

BUILT-TO-ORDER BY HIGHLY SKILLED TECHNICIANS

Skilful Scott technicians hand build these superb instruments from materials of finest quality to the most exacting standards. The result is an ability to perform that to our knowledge is more sensational than has ever been attained in radio or record

SPECIAL OFFER—SEND FOR IT NOW!

DISCARD YOUR OLD AERIAL
It is Most Likely Corroded and Has Poor or Loose Noisy Connections
No MORE BUZZES, CLICKS and shorts from summer rains and winter snow and sleet when using an F & H Capacity Aerial Eliminator. Anyone can connect it in a moment's time to the radio set—occupies only 1 1/2 inch by 4 inch space behind the set, yet enables your radio to operate without an aerial and tune in stations over the entire broadcast band frequencies and short wave channels.
ELIMINATE THE AERIAL FOR GOOD
Attach this unit to your radio—make your set complete in itself—forget aerial wires and troubles—move your set anywhere—no more roof climbing unsightly lead-in or aerial wires.
NOT NEW—VALUE ALREADY PROVED
On the market five years, 100,000 customers in U.S. and foreign countries.
In use from the Arctic Region of Norway to the Tropics of Africa. Each factory tested on actual long distance reception. Cannot harm set—Easily connected to any radio, including radios having no ground or radios for double aerial. Note: It will not operate on battery or automobile radios.
5 DAYS TRIAL
Mall coupon at once. Pay postman $1.00 plus a satisfied, return within five days and your dollar will be refunded without question.
A few pennies postage on delivery. If not entirely
F & H Radio Laboratories, Dept. 70, Fargo, N. Dak.
Send F & H Capacity Aerial. Will pay postman $1 plus few cents postage. If not pleased will return within 5 days for $1 refund. Check here if sending $1 with order—thus saving postage cost—same refund guaranteed. Check here if interested in dealer's proposition.

$1.00 will be paid to the writer of every letter used in this department.
Express your opinions, write V. O. L., 731 Plymouth Court, Chicago, Ill.

Sell Saturday?

Dear V. O. L.:

Why doesn't some commercial firm take advantage of the Saturday daytime airlines to sponsor a worth-while program? Throughout practically the entire day we hear nothing but transcriptions and sustaining programs of music. Let's have better Saturday radio entertainment.

Elsie H. Grossman, Haynes, N. D.

● Are you sure, Miss Grossman, you want Saturday more completely commercialized—when you stop and consider the daytime radio fare Monday through Friday?—V. O. L.

Music with Meals

Dear V. O. L.:

I wish something could be done to restore good dinner-music programs to the air between the hours of, say, 5:30 to 8:00 p.m. The present idea seems to be mystery serials, spelling-bees, quizzes, and what have you. But continuous good music is conspicuous by its absence. Good music has always been an enjoyable accompaniment to a good dinner.

A. D. Kincaid, Baltimore, Md.

Box Seat on Scaffold

Dear V. O. L.:

My partner and I, while painting houses through the summer, would rather have our teeth pulled than miss baseball broadcasts, and unless we heard them from across the street or through a window where we were working, we had to miss them. But ah! the portable has come to our rescue. This summer we will have a portable with us right on the job whether we're mixing the paint or painting up on our scaffold.

Charles Bader, Monmouth, Ill.

● But remember—three sit-down strikes and you're out?—V. O. L.

Wants Drama "Real"

Dear V. O. L.:

Although I'm an ardent serial fan, I don't enjoy all of them. I want them real. For magnificently portraying the typical American boy, my heartiest congratulations to Kingsley Colton as "Buddy" in "My Son and I."

ON THE BANDWAGON

Off the Beat

Glenn Miller adds two men to his band in trombonist Jimmy Priddy, formerly with Tommy Tucker, and saxophonist Ernie Caceres, late of the Zurke and Teagarden bands . . . In an attempt to prove that radio can make a band without recording support, NBC is giving the new Spud Murphy crew a six-month sustaining build-up, during which time he will not be permitted to record . . . Murphy, incidentally, already has a couple of Bluebird platters in the record marts . . . Rudy Vallee will return to the wax works for Varsity . . . Newest follow-up to "Beer Barrel Polka" is "The Woodpecker Song," an Italian ditty waxed in France by a Czech brass band, Will Glahe, of "Roll Out the Barrel" fame.

It's one of those quirks of fate that the death of Rudy Wiedoeft should come simultaneously with the centennial celebration of the saxophone. Adolph Sax, a Belgian, whipped up the sax in 1840 to fill out the brass harmony of the military bands of his day. Wiedoeft pioneered with the saxophone in this country, making many thousand American youngsters conscious of the sax as a jazz instrument. Included among those youngsters was one Hubert Pryor Vallee who, in tribute to his idol, adopted Wiedoeft's first name for his own.

Diskussions

CHARLIE BARNET—"Comanche War Dance" (Bluebird 10584), Ray Noble's follow-up ditty to "Cherokee," is given fine medium-swing treatment by "The White Ellington" . . . Drummer Cliff Leeman's opening rhythm solo and a duct between Barnet on the sax and Leeman at the traps, toward the close, highlight . . . "Tappin' at the Tappa," Barnet's swing novelty composition, is the platter-mate.

BENNY GOODMAN—"Opus Local 802" (Columbia 35362), Goodman's own jazz work arranged by Fletcher Henderson and featuring fine sax section precision. Benny on clarinet, Ziggy Elman on trumpet and Artie Bernstein at bass for the solo work . . . Nice rhythmic drive . . . "Stealin' Apples," on the other side, highlights opening Fletcher Henderson piano solo.

BING CROSBY—From his new Paramount flicker, "Road to Singapore," Bing introduces "I'm Too Romantic," "The Moon and the Willow" (Decca 2998) and "Sweet Potato Piper" (Decca 2999) with the usually brilliant orchestral support of Johnny Trotter . . . "Just One More Chance," an oldie which Bing introduced when he first hit radio, backs up the last-named.

NEW FRIENDS OF RHYTHM—"Foster Chile" (Victor 26503), dining-room swing treatment of Stephen Foster's "Old Black Joe" by a jazz string ensemble, with fine lift rhythm emanating from a harp strummed by Laura Newell . . . "High Voltage," a race-horse tempo jazz original by Alan Shulman, is the backer-upper.

DEL COURTNEY—"The Singing Hills" (Vocalion 5354), a new waltz which seems headed for the top in Courtney's "candid camera" fashion, highlighting electric guitar backgrounds and Joe Martin's vocal . . . "Hawaiian War Chant," a rhythm novelty, is on the other side.

SHIRLEY HOWARD—"After I Say I'm Sorry" (Bluebird 10607), a radio favorite of a couple of seasons back, the torch-tease disk debuts with the old Abe Lyman-Walter Donaldson hit, backed up by "The Sky Fell Down," a current ballad.

ANGEL OF ANGELS FOR HOLLYWOOD AND BROADWAY!

Wealthy Jock Whitney makes good in the show business! A success story in reverse. Here's a rich man's son who despite the handicap of millions has actually gone to work and been more or less successful in the entertainment world. What with the success of Technicolor, the movie "Gone With the Wind," the current dramatic hit "Life With Father," to give just a few of the things he has backed and which are terrific successes. April CLICK tells of the background of Mr. Whitney's life, where his money came from, and so on. Don't miss this revealing picture-story in April CLICK—the National Picture Monthly.

THE AWFUL PRICE YOU PAY FOR BEING NERVOUS

Read These Important Facts!

Quivering nerves can make you old, haggard and cranky—can make your life a nightmare of jealousy, self pity and "the blues."

Often such nervousness is due to female functional disorders. So take famous Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to help calm unstrung nerves and lessen functional "irregularities." For over 60 years Pinkham's has helped thousands of grandmothers, mothers and daughters "in time of need."

Pinkham's Compound positively contains no opiates or habit forming ingredients—it is made from nature's own wholesome roots and herbs each with its own special work to do. Try it!

Note: Pinkham's Compound comes in liquid or handy to carry tablet form (similar formula).

Father Coughlin, to hear from Father Coughlin's own lips whatever explanation he has for that mysterious broadcast that didn't come off. And I think that Father Coughlin would want to see me if he knew I was here. It's his opportunity to clarify false rumors and I'm sure that's what he wants to do."

More phone conversation, long pauses. Finally: "She said to tell you Father Coughlin is out of the city." So I walked over to the little house which—unlike the Social Justice offices—is clearly and unmistakably marked "Souvenirs." Inside, on a table, were things to sell—countless little anti-Semitic pamphlets under labels like "Am I an Anti-Semite," by Father Coughlin; "The Real Rulers in Russia," and latest copies of Social Justice magazine bearing a large picture of Abraham Lincoln and a paragraph from John Reeves' biography of the Rothschilds, horribly misquoted and twisted in the Social Justice version to prove that the Jewish Rothschilds had caused the Civil War.

The old white-haired keeper of the souvenir shop "didn't know where Father Coughlin was, didn't know anything about his business." Finally he asked me whom I represented. I told him. He said, "I don't know nothing." I'll say this for Father Coughlin employees: They're discreet and silent.

I then called at the chancellery, and to Church officials there gave a detailed recital of what I was seeking as well as of the morning's activities. "You'll understand, then," they smiled, "why the chancellery issues no statements about Father Coughlin." I asked whether the Church had censored or obliterated any parts of the Coughlin talk that evening. Very pointedly they admitted that a Church board of review passes on Father Coughlin's broadcasts only for matters which concern the Church. In short, the political and labor discussions, the various civil and lay matters with which the Coughlin talks are filled are not touched by this censorship!

Now, let's see where we stand. The Church wasn't responsible for the last-minute cancelation of the talk, for its board of review had passed the speech several days before and it had been sent to WJR by Father Coughlin, obviously with every intention of delivering it. Executives at WJR in positive statements admit that the speech was okayed by the radio station through Mr. Fitzpatrick's secretary. Only one other body could possibly have interfered with the broadcast and that body is the Federal Communications Commission.

George B. Coleman, assistant counsel for the broadcasting division of the FCC, on the night of the mysterious broadcast, said: "I have no hesitancy in speaking for the Commission when I say that no Federal intervention has occurred."

THAT leaves only one other possibility—Father Coughlin himself. What possible motive could he have for such a strange procedure? Why should he suddenly cancel an address which had passed through the various bodies which exert a censorship right over it and substitute in its place the cryptic announcements which were given to listeners that night? And above all, why should Father Coughlin so persistently refuse to explain the meaning of his actions after virtually promising to enlighten his audience as to the reasons which underlie them?

For an answer to these questions read the second installment of "Why Father Coughlin Didn't Go on the Air" in next week's MOVIE AND RADIO GUIDE.

Father Coughlin may be heard Sunday over a special network at:
EST 4:00 p.m. — CST 3:00 p.m.
MST 2:00 p.m. — PST 1:00 p.m.

THE GRAPES OF WRATH

Last Call Offer:

America's TOP BEST SELLER
FREE with Literary Guild Membership!

THE most talked-about, most exciting novel of our day—bought by over 300,000 people at $2.75—now a wonderful gift to you from the Literary Guild! The mighty best-seller that is gripping the hearts and minds of all Americans—that is discussed everywhere—John Steinbeck's greatest novel, "The Grapes of Wrath." The story of the Joad family, and their epic journey to a modern land of promise—lusty, human characters whose humor, whose tears, whose struggles you will never forget. Of this 600-page novel, Alexander Woollcott said, "It seems to me as great a book as has yet come out of America," and Carl Van Doren wrote, "A mighty document and an amazing work of art." You may have this best-selling $2.75 book absolutely free, if you accept promptly the offer of Literary Guild membership outlined below. But act at once—this offer will soon have to be withdrawn!

THE BOOK ON WHICH THE SENSATIONAL
NEW MOVIE IS BASED

Now you can read and own FREE this big 600-page novel—know the REAL story behind the movie which the New York News called "THE MOST DARING PICTURE that has ever come out of Hollywood." The New York World-Telegram called it "ONE OF THE GREATEST FILMS EVER PRODUCED!" The New York Times, "ONE OF THE CINEMA'S MASTERWORKS!" The New York Herald Tribune, "GENUINELY GREAT MOTION PICTURE! Eloquent, challenging masterpiece!" Accept this great human story with free Guild membership.

Why the Guild Offers You "THE GRAPES OF WRATH" FREE

THE principal reason is to encourage immediate acceptance of our offer of free membership in the Guild so that we can demonstrate the extraordinary book values which you get as a Guild Member. When you realize that you will have the privilege of getting many important new $2.50 to $5.00 books, fiction or non-fiction, whenever you want them, for only $2.00—we feel that you are practically sure to join the Guild at once.

How You Save Up to 50%

The Literary Guild selects for you each month an outstanding new book from the forthcoming lists of the leading publishers. Although the publishers' editions sell for from $2.50 to $5.00, if bought individually in the stores, Guild members pay only $2.00 for these same books, in handsome Guild editions. Guild selections are delivered to members, on approval, the same day the publisher's edition is placed on sale.

Magazine "Wings" Free

Guild members receive free the famous Guild magazine

WINGS, which contains articles about the current selection and its author, and includes a special contribution by the author. It is profusely illustrated. WINGS is also an invaluable guide to all important current reading, for each month it reviews about 30 new books, any of which may be purchased through the Guild at the established retail price.

WINGS also contains an advance description of the book to be selected the following month. If you feel you do not want that book, merely notify the Guild not to send it when the time comes. On the other hand, if the selection sounds interesting, you may have it sent for your approval. Guild members are not required to purchase a book every month. As few as four selections within one year keeps your membership in force.

Other Advantages of Membership

Members who purchase four Guild selections within the six-month period between January and June, or July and December, are rewarded with a free Bonus Book, worth $3.00 or more. Full details of this popular plan will be sent you upon enrollment. The Guild Service starts as soon as you mail the coupon. "The Grapes of Wrath" will be sent to you immediately. Send no money—just the coupon. Act at once—this offer must soon be withdrawn!
