THE LIFE AND LOVES OF QUEEN BETTE By JAMES STREET

WHAT YOU CAN LEARN FROM THE STARS By FAITH BALDWIN

The Running-W Is Banned and Westerns Become Humane

THE days of the running-W are over. The running-W was a barbarous wire device which, when attached to the forelegs of horses, tripped them at the right moment, enabling exciting pictures to be taken by action-hungry Hollywood directors. Horse-lovers are happy that the efforts of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals has been able to persuade the movies to take this step. William Randolph Hearst, through his daily column, was the spearhead of the campaign. "Collier's Weekly" added its own resolute editorial backing. Then the Motion Picture Producers Association passed a resolution banning the running-W.

The technique of accomplishing this improvement in the treatment of horses is of extraordinary interest, for it reveals the sort of astigmatism under which too many Hollywood producers are suffering. It reveals that it took the combined editorial support of the Hearst newspapers and one of America's greatest magazines to get action. If the thing was wrong, the producers should have seen it and banned the running-W long ago. But they didn't. Early efforts to convince them brought rebuttals that what they did in the movies was of no concern to outside organizations. Some producers profess the same attitude toward our own "attention calling" with reference to drinking-scenes in movies. Unnecessary drinking is wrong; no one scene, perhaps, but surely when they are piled up night after night. When will they also ban unnecessary drinking-scenes?

Well, a free press and the right to criticize has ended the agonies of a few dumb brutes, thanks to the newest ruling of the Hays office. We hope producers will come soon to have as much consideration for the children to whom their pictures are shown.

AT THIS YEAR'S BEGINNING we wonder what new movies we would like to see made, and an answer comes to us in the reply Carole Lombard made recently to an inquiring reporter who asked, "What book interested you most in 1940?" "I find it very easy," she said, "to name James Street's powerful novel, 'Oh Promised Land.' It has vigor, it is strong with reality, and it concerns an exciting part of American history. It is of the stuff our country was made from, and Mr. Street gave it loving attention."

In case you haven't suspected, the James Street mentioned by Miss Lombard is the same James Street who writes regularly for Movie-Radio Guide. His novel was indeed a splendid work. If you haven't a copy, you should get one. You will agree with Miss Lombard, we feel certain, that it would make a tremendously interesting motion picture.

THE ASCAP-BMI BATTLE may be compromised by the time this reaches print, but we lifted a paragraph from Ed Sullivan's recent column just to point up one phase of the fight.

THE RUNNING-W, film trick to make horse fall on running to end of taut wire (see above), is now banned as cruel, inhumane

"When Ruth Lowe," he writes, "wrote 'I'll Never Smile Again,' she never dreamed that she and her song would be one of the points of argument. But she is. The radio chains point out that Miss Lowe, whose hit was performed more than sixty thousand times last summer, didn't get a cent from performing rights because she wasn't permitted to join ASCAP on the basis of one hit. Yet one of the class AA members who got $18,000 as his yearly fee had only one of his songs played ONCE. The radio chains argue that they would rather pay Miss Lowe full value for 'I'll Never Smile Again' than pay eighteen thousand dollars to a class AA member who isn't delivering anymore."

As a listener, we must agree with the networks.

THE BORROWED TIMERS of the state of Washington should all be dead, if we can take the word of doctors who have tended them. Suffering from incurable ailments, they were given only so long to live on this earth by the best medical advice they could find. But they live on. Spurred by their interest in making their own way in the world, they defy the march of days, supporting themselves by making and selling luminous crosses. These amazing people were first brought to the attention of the world by our own Don Moore, who wrote about them in Movie-Radio Guide. Now we find that the "Reader's Digest" tells their story again. So a larger audience learns of their heroism and sacrifice, which may mean that more happiness and prosperity will come during this new year to those valiant fugitives from Charon.

GIRL ON THE COVER: Long before Gale Page was a visible personality, she counted her followers in the tens of thousands, for her voice was known wherever radio serials are heard. Even before she became a radio dramatic star she boasted a huge following, first as a blues singer on her brother's station in Seattle, Washington, and later as an NBC singing star. Her family is prominent in Spokane, Washington, society and had no leanings toward the entertainment world. But Gale did have, and moreover she had a precedent for her career in the highly successful singing career of her older sister, Carol Rutter, a Broadway musical star. Miss Page had soon attracted a large audience in Seattle and, more important, the attention of NBC officials, who brought her to Chicago and starred her in network musical shows. A short time later she deserted musicals for radio-serial parts which brought her to the attention of Hollywood talent-scouts. She took a screen test and her first film was "Crime School," followed by "The Amazing Dr. Clitterhouse." She is best known perhaps for her work in the "Four Daughters" films. Currently she is being seen in Warner Bros.' "Four Mothers." Natural-color photograph is by Jack Albin.

The Life and Loves of

QUEEN BETTE

Bette Davis was reared on goat's milk and thrived upon spankings. In every instance, she has come up smiling
By James Street

BETTE DAVIS was married to bandleader Harmon Nelson (with her in Paris, above), but the marriage ended with a divorce a few years later

OUR subject for examination this week is Bette Davis, whose paradoxes, pulchritude and common sense have left your correspondent completely under the spell of this remarkable young woman. I warn you, the things I say must not be held against me. Usually I take a great deal of delight in pin-pricking Hollywood, dehorning its sacred cows and deflating its fatuous nincompoops. But even cynics do not scoff at genius, and if Miss Davis is not a genius she can pass as one until the land of bombast and ballyhoo gives us another actress who is worthy to stand in her shadow.

Miss Davis is an American institution—a wise, tolerant Yankee who has heaved the standard of cinema art to its highest peak, toting the load on her own little shoulders. Again I warn you, if I go overboard please charge it to hypnotism.

Anyway, Miss Ruth Elizabeth Davis, slangy, slacky Queen Bette, who gave Oscar his name and then began collecting the little fellows as though they were tin soldiers, sat over there in the squishy comfort of her armchair. She had tucked one of her 4A feet under her and, completely relaxed, was prattling platitudes about life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness, including love and labor.

Miss Davis was saying something about how diligently she was seeking peace. Inasmuch as everybody, even Hitler, is seeking peace, the statement seemed a bit trite. But Miss Davis is impressive even when she says trite things. Watching her hands, her feet and a few other things, I suddenly thought of the time a smart studio executive told her she had no more sex appeal than Slim Summerville. A few years later she did "Jezebel."

I thought of the time an English judge suggested that Miss Davis was a spoiled, mercenary young lady. And for no reason at all I was sore at the judge. He may have been right, but it enraged me to think that some be-wigged, smug bigwig, a subject of their Queen Elizabeth, should hint that our Queen Bette was a bad girl. Suppose one of our judges said that their Queen Bess was a propaganda agent, a plump Scotch girl who enjoys the job of being queen. England wouldn't like it. I am anxious to help England win her war to save our own necks, but I won't have their judges talking about our Queen Bette. The mere fact that the judge was probably right has nothing to do with it. You can't expect a young man hypnotized by Bette Davis to be rational. Throw me a rose and a peashooter and I will join the million American males who are anxious to do joust for the last of the American succession of queens, a succession that includes Pocahontas, Martha Washington, Dolly Madison, Aimee Semple McPherson, Susan B. Anthony, Scarlett O'Hara, et al!

They'll tell you in Hollywood that wherever Miss Davis is, that's New England. She talks muchly about New England, New Hampshire snows, the murmuring pines, Boston cod, Rhode Island reds and the Massachusetts mortgages. Miss Davis can do many things, but she cannot take New England to Hollywood. It won't work. You can build a New England house in Hollywood, you can put a Cape Cod lighter by your fireplace, but it's still Hollywood. Hollywood is like China. It assimilates everything that goes into its maw. Queen Bette has been assimilated by Hollywood. It is New England's loss and America's gain.

For if she still was fiddling around the Cape Cod Playhouse we never would have had the first real movie queen since Mary Pickford. And, unlike Miss Pickford, Miss Davis can act.

"I was a wicked brat when I was a child," Queen Bette said. "I was jealous and headstrong."

The Queen still is headstrong and there's a bit of the brat about her. But thank heavens for brats. Conformists and placid folks are such bores.

In her autobiography Miss Davis writes: "Like Tristram Shandy, I have no exact recollection of my birth but have to rely for particulars on the word of my elders. The evidence, as presented by my mother, establishes the fact, at least to her satisfaction, that I was born in Lowell, Mass., under a cold, leaden sky that unleashed sleet and rain coincidentally with my first earthly cries, a result that seems to have given rise to a family belief that bad weather and I are inextricably bound up with each other."

Miss Davis acts much better than she writes. She neglects to say when she was born, but by casting around a bit we discovered the secret. It was on April 5, 1908. She says she was born in Lowell. Her studio says she was born in Boston. We wish they would get together on this little point. Warner Brothers and the Queen have disagreed about many things, but they surely should be able to get together on the star's birthplace. We'll take Miss Davis' word for it and give her birthplace as Lowell. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. F. Davis.

Her family moved to Somerville, near Boston, while she still was a baby. There was a blizzard that winter and Miss Davis vows that for four days she lived on nothing but water. There is no New England conservatism about Miss Davis. I don't believe that anybody who had the price of food ever lived on water for four days near Boston. New England may be bare, but it's not that bare. However, the Queen can do no wrong so we'll have to take her word for it.

"I was considered a delicate child," she said, "and my diet largely was goat's milk."

By the time she reached the age that Mr. Milne has made famous, she developed a passion for bugs, worms and rats. It served her well, for as a child she learned something about the things she would have to tolerate in Hollywood. One day she offered a dead rat to one of her mother's guests and her mother spanked her.

Miss Davis has been getting spankings all of her life. The theater has spanked her several times. Warner Brothers spanked her. An English judge laid it on her and fate slapped her flat. Love gave her a beating and life has given her a trimming. But she has never complained. That's why she's the Queen.

MISS DAVIS is not wholly New England. There is some Virginia blood in her. Her Grandfather Davis taught Negroes in Virginia. That should endear the Queen to the cavaliers. Her mother's name was LeFevre. When Bette first went on the stage she used the name of Favor. Her sister, Barbara, gave her the name of Bette.

When she was eight her father, a patent-lawyer with a lot of brains and not much bankroll, and her mother were divorced. Bette and Barbara were put in a boarding-school and her mother became a photographer in New York.

Bette was fourteen, a gawky girl with prominent teeth and stringy hair, when her mother sent her to Cushing Academy, and it was there that she decided to be an actress. There she met

Harmon O. Nelson, her first sweetheart, who later was her husband. They played together in "Seventeen."

She was graduated from the Academy in 1926 and went to New York. By pulling wires here and there she got an interview with Eva Le Gallienne. The Great One heard the Queen read a few lines and told her, "You are a frivolous little girl. Your attitude toward the theater is not sincere."

Actresses are notoriously bad judges of talent. The next year Miss Davis went to John Murray Anderson's School of the Drama. She paid her tuition on instalments, which blasts forever, I hope, the Hollywood tale that she had a scholarship. Later Miss Davis did have a scholarship to the school, but she never finished there. Instead she took a small part in "Broadway," which was playing in Rochester. Her mother told her to learn the parts of the two leading feminine players. Her mother insisted that on opening night one of the stars would break her leg. One of the stars did sprain an ankle and Bette got the role. However, she was fired from the job a few weeks later.

AFTER being pushed around for several years, she got the lead with Donald Meek in "Broken Dishes." Then on into "Solid South," opposite Richard Bennett. It was Bennett who called her a ham actress, and the Queen went to the mat with him, lashing him with verbs, battering him with profanities and drowning him in vitriol.

In 1933 Universal gave her a test. So did Sam Goldwyn. Somebody in the Goldwyn office told her to straighten her teeth and she put on braces. No one met her in Hollywood and the Queen entered by the back door, as it were. As a matter of fact, a studio man did meet the train and sized up the passengers. However, he decided that there wasn't an actress in the carload, although he had stared at Miss Davis.

It was Universal who told her she had no sex appeal and let her go.

Miss Davis hasn't the kind of sex appeal that Hollywood goes for, but the lady has sense appeal. She is a bit pop-eyed, and there's nothing languid about her. Her ash-blond hair is not natural, but she can give most Hollywood women a handicap of two sarongs, a husky voice, a tight-fitting sweater, nine frills and twenty fur-belts and put more stirring sex into one glance than the lot of them. The Queen is a woman, as fiery as Spanish love, as clean as a waterfall. She reminds a fellow of good soap and bright starlight. And, gentlemen, that's sex appeal. Or maybe I'm still hypnotized.

Murray Kinnell, who had worked with Miss Davis on the stage, recommended her to George Arliss, and that grand old man selected her to play opposite him in "The Man Who Played God." Actually Mr. Arliss was playing godfather. Because of him Warners gave Miss Davis a long-term contract. They cast her in a number of fair-to-middling shows and then tossed her into "Of Human Bondage," a show that still ranks among the best.

Today directors call her a director's dream. Some critics say she has brought to the screen a greater intellectual and artistic honesty than any American actress. For my part you can eliminate the word American. All in all, my two bits' worth is that Miss Ruth Elizabeth is the greatest actress ever to play consistently in movies.

IN 1937 she had a blow-up with Warners. That was when that English judge said the Queen was a silly American girl. Miss Davis' fight with Warners was fundamental. She was under contract, and the law says a contract is sacred. The lady had turned in some great performances, and Warners, trying to make hay while the sun shone, cast her in some stink-aros. Miss Davis rebelled. An artist who does a good job in "Of Human Bondage" will fight rather than work in the kind of boiler-plate stories that Warners was dishing out to her. It's the age-old fight in Hollywood. Producers select the stories. Many producers are artists, but many others know no more about stories than Rip Van Winkle knew about Sanka coffee. The fight simply was whether or not some ham producers could tell this great actress what kind of stories she must work in. Warners said she would either work for them or she wouldn't work. The great sacred rights of property! Miss Davis was a piece of property to them. She told them off and lit a shuck for England. In the litigation that followed, Sir Patrick Hastings,

A SMART studio executive once told Bette she had no sex appeal, a statement the picture above openly refutes. Below, Bette, watching a scene from "The Letter," is grimly engrossed in the action

K. C., ruled against her and said, "This is rather a naughty young lady. What she wants is more money."

What the Queen really wanted was a chance to prove that the ability to act is a guarantee that a person may act in the story of his or her choosing. But the dear English judge found for the sacred rights of contract. Shades of Magna Charta, Runnymede! Miss Davis had the chance to be the Joan of Arc of the movies. Well they burned Joan. They only blistered the Queen. So she came back to Hollywood to do as she was told.

The foundation of the Hollywood structure is that an actor under studio contract must take orders from the producer. But Hollywood learned a lesson from Miss Davis, and although she has been cast in some weak stories, she has never been kicked around again.

One of the really smart cracks from the Queen was, "Domesticity is all right if it's not carried too far." There is wisdom in them there words—more wisdom than the learned king's counsel showed. Perhaps that explains why the Queen's marriage to Mr. Nelson didn't work. She called him Ham. He was a bandleader. They fell in love when she was fourteen and there are many who believe they are still in love.

Mr. Nelson divorced Miss Davis. He charged that she studied her parts in bed.

What is the true story behind Bette's divorce from Harmon Nelson? What are the chances of their reconciliation? How does Bette Davis really live? All these questions—and more—will be answered by James Street in part II of "The Life and Loves of Queen Bette," to be published in MOVIE-RADIO GUIDE next week. Reserve your copy today!

This Week in HOLLYWOOD

Republic Studios has also made a formal petition to the Academy for a consideration of Gene Autry's work in an endeavor to have the Academy give him a special award. Autry has been the number one western star, according to authentic box-office count, for several years.

Portentful Potpourri

Joan Crawford is dickering with her home lot, Metro, for a "contract vacation" to permit her to accept the offer of the lead of the John Golden-produced Somerset Maugham-Guy Bolton play, "Theatre" . . . Director Anatole Litvak's contract has been renewed by Warner Bros. . . . Olivia de Havilland, who was forced to stop short in the middle of the "Sante Fe Trail" premiere junket because of an appendicitis attack, will carry on and complete her current picture without undergoing an operation; latter will be delayed until the picture is finished . . . Comedian Joe E. Brown and his wife, Kathryn, will be formally remarried on the occasion of their silver-wedding anniversary December 24 . . . "North West Mounted Police" is breaking all Paramount Studio box-office records for the past ten years, and the same lot's "Arise My Love" is running a close second . . . Jeffrey Lynn is the latest actor to "strike"; he refused to work in the cast of "Jinx Woman" because he considered that the screen play was "all Brenda Marshall" . . . Wayne Morris has patched up his difficulties with Warner Bros. . . . Republic dedicated its latest huge new sound-stage, named the Mabel Normand Stage, December 27, with a party for the press, at which the late Miss Normand's silent version of "Sis Hopkins" was screened; same picture will be remade by Republic with Judy Canova as star . . . Jack Oakie is making plans for a personal-appearance swing just as soon as he finishes a three-picture deal with 20th Century-Fox . . . The Billy Gilberts are adopting their second child . . . Gene Markey has signed to produce for Columbia studios. His first picture will be "The Great Lady," with Jean Arthur and Melvyn Douglas as the probable stars.

Cary Grant or Robert Preston?

Either Cary Grant or Robert Preston is expected to be given the plumful romantic male lead in Cecil B. DeMille's next Technicolor picture, "Reap the Wild Wind." At least DeMille would like to have Grant or Preston if he can get either of them. Grant is very much in demand these days and has many assignments waiting for him, while Preston is busy at Universal playing opposite Loretta Young in "Lady From Cheyenne." Part to be filled is that of Stephen Osier, Charleston lawyer who assists in breaking up the shipwreckers. In the meantime, able scene-stealing Lynne Overman has been set to play the part of the skipper of a wind-jammer out of Key West in the picture.

On the Future Screen

As soon as Jane Withers completes her job as star of 20th Century-Fox' "A Very Young Lady" she will be loaned out to Columbia Pictures to make "Her First Beau," with Jackie Cooper as her male lead; Janie's growing-up process will progress with this screen play . . . Thomas Mitchell and Geraldine Fitzgerald turned out a surprise smash hit in "Flight From Destiny," so Warner Bros. have teamed them together again in "One Hour of Glory," by Mary Roberts Rinehart . . . Tim Holt and Nell O'Day are cast as Charles Boyer's son and daughter in the new version of "Back Street."

Before the public gets a chance to see "Four Mothers," next picture of the series is announced to be "Four Fathers," and the standing cast will be recalled to make the picture; seems that Rosemary Lane and Gale Page, no longer under contract to Warner Bros., will have to be reckoned with . . . Paramount is dickering with Gracie Fields, England's favorite comedienne, to make two pictures; one of them would be Lancing Stuart's "A Gay Old World" . . . Warren William starts his next "Lone Wolf" picture with June Storey as his leading lady . . . Metro plans to remake "The Trial of Mary Dugan," with Robert Young and Laraine Day co-starring . . . Latest addition to Metro's "Ziegfeld Girl" cast is a scintillating team of entertainers from Spain known as "The Kids From Seville"; they are Rnsarin Perez and Antonio Ruiz, who were born in and left Spain during the Civil War.

"Flight Command"

Cast: Robert Taylor, Ruth Hussey, Walter Pidgeon, Paul Kelly, Shepperd Strudwick, Red Skelton, Nat Pendleton, Dick Purcell, et al. An M-G-M picture, produced by J. Walter Ruben and directed by Frank Borzage, who also directed "The Mortal Storm."

ROBERT TAYLOR, Ruth Hussey are co-starred in a humorous love-tale, M-G-M's "Flight Command"

SHOT with action, importance and authenticity, "Flight Command" is the first of the major pictures depicting the United States Air Corps methods of modern training. It's definitely a first-class story of the air, with much excellent photography of impressive flying.

The combination of educational data and good drama is what makes this picture entertaining. It provides some of the most thrilling air action yet photographed.

Life in a naval flying squadron is mirrored, with the "Hell Cats" as a typical group. Taylor becomes an unwelcome member of the outfit through varied circumstances, and is even more disliked by his associates after a series of mistakes due to his inflated ego, but eventually he makes friends with the rest of the gang. When Ruth Hussey's brother (played by Shepperd Strudwick) is killed in a crash during a fog-landing experiment. Taylor tries to help her forget her loss. Misunderstanding his motives, the "Hell Cats" believe him to be in love with her—and she is the commander's wife. Trouble follows, but Taylor vindicates himself with a thrilling rescue of the commander, played by Walter Pidgeon, whose plane crashes on a beach at Guadalupe.

Acting honors might be well divided between the three leading players, with Ruth Hussey outstanding in her role as Pidgeon's loyal but misunderstood wife. She makes an important personage out of a commonplace character. This is one of Robert Taylor's best portrayals, and Walter Pidgeon does a top-notch job. Shepperd Strudwick in the role of the young inventor of the fog-landing device does excellent work.

WHAT THEY THOUGHT OF IT: Los Angeles Times, "What gives it class is the excellence of the air shots and the way these are woven into the story." Hollywood Citizen-News, "Taylor's enactment is good, very good. So is Walter Pidgeon's." Los Angeles Daily News, "Probably the best of the service films." Hollywood Reporter, "It's a good picture. In fact a great picture." Variety, "Pidgeon is at his best . . . carries his share of the dramatic situation flawlessly."

"Love Thy Neighbor"

FRED ALLEN AND JACK BENNY feud, wisecrack while Mary Martin sings in "Love Thy Neighbor"

"LOVE THY NEIGHBOR" is a laugh riot from beginning to end, and especially from beginning to end, because even the title of the picture is humorous and the finish is a panic.

As might be suspected, since it stars both Jack Benny and his radio-feud opponent Fred Allen, it is based upon the quarreling of the pair, and the situations in which they might become involved, but never have.

"Love Thy Neighbor" is a farce comedy with musical relief provided by Mary Martin chiefly, with the assistance of the Merry Maes, Virginia Dale, Rochester, and Theresa Harris. It opens with Benny dressing to celebrate New Year's Eve, 1940, and being provided with an ancient tin horn and confetti saved from previous New Years. He drives Rochester to the dock in New York, where Rochester has a date to meet an incoming boat bearing his sunburned sweetie-pie, Josephine (Theresa Harris), who by coincidence is employed as the maid of Mary Allen (Mary Martin), niece of Fred Allen, who likewise goes to the pier to meet his incoming niece and wife, Barbara (Verree Teasdale). When Benny's Maxwell has a rear-end collision with Fred Allen's limousine, the fun starts, and it doesn't end for a solitary minute until the picture finishes. Benny is casting a new show for Broadway and is still without a leading lady until Mary Allen comes into his life disguised under the appropriated name of Virginia Astor. She gets the job of leading lady with the idea of taking Benny down a peg or two. At least that's what she sets out to do, but eventually she falls in love with him.

This is the best acting job yet to hit the screen for Benny and Allen, and Mary Martin also proves herself a talented actress. Scene-stealing credits go to Rochester (Eddie Anderson) and Josephine (Theresa Harris).

WHAT THEY THOUGHT OF IT: Los Angeles Times (John L. Scott), "Should prove a bonanza for Paramount Pictures." Variety, "A double-barrelled hit." Hollywood Reporter, "A prolonged riot of hilarity."

Girls, Your Measuring-Tape, Please

According to statistics based on an average of the twelve front-line show-girls in M-G-M's forthcoming "Ziegfeld Girl," the perfect 1940 film show-girl is aged twenty, is five feet two inches tall, weighs 120 pounds, may be either a blonde or a brunette with blue or brown eyes. Her measurements are: Neck, twelve and one-half inches; bust, thirty-five inches; waist, twenty-five inches; thigh, nineteen and one-half inches, and hips, thirty-six inches. Of course these "figures" may change during 1941!

Leap Year's Escapers

With this chapter of "This Week in Hollywood" hitting the newsstands just as the New Year dawns, it may be safe to conclude that quite a handful of Hollywood matinee idols escaped the hazards of Leap Year 1940. Cesar Romero and Eddie Albert never have been serious on anyone, presumably got by; but George Brent has a red-head on his trail. Jeffrey Lynn wasn't wed, but it wasn't his fault, because he certainly is engaged to Dana Edwards (Dale). Bill Lundigan enters the new year a bachelor despite Margaret Lindsay, and Cary Grant is still foot-loose and fancy-free. Mickey Rooney, Jackie Cooper and Bob Stack, all of the considerably younger generation, outdistanced all the females, as was to be expected, what with their young legs, and John Howard, Bill Orr and John Ridgeley are heart-free too. Laird Cregar and George Tobias, beauties if there ever were male beauties, still don't understand why some girls didn't propose. But it's too late now!

EVENT OF THE WEEK

THE Christmas holidays have brought their usual quota of parties and open houses to the film colony during the last fortnight. Several affairs have stood out for their individuality. Among these the party Fanny Brice hosted in honor of Cobina Wright, Sr., will long be remembered by her guests. Cocktails were served and a lull approached, when suddenly a new maid brought in a tray of hors d'oeuvres, offered them to the guest of honor and said loudly, "Better eat some of these and get some skin on your bones!" Next the maid called Rosalind Russell for taking several appetizers, and to cap the climax sat right down on the lap of a gentleman guest. "This has gone too far," said hostess Brice. "It certainly has," exclaimed Polly Moran, who removed her maid's disguise, consisting of a pair of glasses and phony teeth.

swing throughout the East. When Brenda consented to go, she felt it would aid her box-office popularity and improve her stage presence. No doubt the tour did just that. But just how she can cash in now on the build-up is a question. On an eastern stage she fell backstage and injured an arm. Apparently a simple injury, upon her return to Hollywood it was found that a blood-clot had formed which will rein one scene of "Blondie Goes Latin." His make-up calls for long eyelashes, dancing-pumps, a blond wig, and a glamour dress! . . . Bull-fighter Senor Armillita liked Linda Darnell so much when she visited Mexico City that he dedicated a bull which he killed to her—and then had it packed in a refrigerator-car and shipped to her home in Hollywood! . . . Melvyn Douglas loses his pants again in one scene with Merle Oberon in "That Uncertain Feeling"; his pals are beginning to call Douglas a male strip-tease . . . Don Ameche and Esther Brodelet, both working for 20th-Century Fox and in the same picture, "Road to Rio," collided with one another with their automobiles on a rainy day last week! Fortunately neither Don nor Miss Brodelet was hurt.

Dorothy Lamour's home lot announces the startling news that in her next picture she will be fully clothed; its title, "Caught in the Draft." Perhaps Miss Lamour will have to keep her clothes on so she won't catch cold! . . . Susan Hayward has gone into the ice-cream business; did we hear orders for an ice-cream cutie-pie? . . . Hedy Lamarr, who shuns hats, is permitted to carry rather than wear them in "Ziegfeld Girl" . . . Inspired by Warner Bros.' long-distance premiere junkets, that lot's writers Jerry Wald and Richard Macauley have been inspired to write "Glamor Train," screen play based on such an excursion; stars named are Jane Wyman and Ronald Reagan, instead of Errol Flynn, who really has been the leading man on all of the Warner junkets to date! . . . Miriam Hopkins has received a letter from two chaps in Quincy, Illinois, who announce a new business; they will send a star a letter of constructive criticism, based on his or her most recent picture, for a modest fee of five thousand dollars!

"Santa Fe Trail"

Cast: Errol Flynn, Olivia de Havilland, Raymond Massey, Ronald Reagan, Alan Hale, William Lundigan, Van Heflin, Gene Reynolds, Henry O'Neill, Guinn "Big Boy" Williams, Alan Baxter, Moroni Olsen, Hobart Cavanaugh, Erville Alderson, et al. A Warner Brothers picture, produced by Robert Fellows and directed by Michael Curtiz, who also directed "The Sea Hawk."

"SANTA FE TRAIL" is an unusually thrilling action melodrama with plenty of chases, shootings and burnings, but it has very little to do with the construction or extension of the Santa Fe Railroad. By rights, this picture should have been entitled "John Brown's Body."

Frankly speaking, the picture is stolen right out from under hero Errol Flynn (cast as Jeb Stuart) and Olivia de Havilland (who plays the part of "Kit Carson" Holliday) by excellent actor Raymond Massey, who portrays John Brown, number-one abolitionist.

Story begins in 1854 at a West Point commencement, with seven men who within the decade are grown to be powerful generals in the great Civil War, and enemies of one another. In the fateful seven are Jeb Stuart (Flynn), George Custer, enacted by Ronald Reagan, Flynn's rival for the hand of Kit Holliday, and Rader, a meanie portrayed by Van Heflin. Rader incites trouble at the Academy just prior to the commencement, which causes a fist fight between him and Jeb Stuart, for which Stuart's half-dozen friends and Rader are called on the green carpet. Stuart and his friends all attempt to take the blame for the trouble started by Rader, but are "let off" by being assigned to the most dangerous post in the Army, Fort Leavenworth.

They bring law and order to Kansas and send John Brown into hiding. All are promoted for changing the name of bloody Kansas to peaceful Kansas, but soon after are chasing John Brown again when he secretly plots the capture of Harpers Ferry arsenal.

Oh, yes, "Santa Fe Trail" has plenty of action, shootings and burnings, but there is an important love-story, too.

WHAT THEY THOUGHT OF IT: Variety, "An offering for theater-goers of all ages." Los Angeles Times (Edwin Schallert), "Powerful in its dealings with the activities of John Brown, abolitionist." Hollywood Reporter, "As stirring a production as the screen has offered."

"Kitty Foyle"

Cast: Ginger Rogers, Dennis Morgan, James Craig, Eduardo Ciannelli, Ernest Cossart, Gladys Cooper, Odette Myrtil, Kay Linaker, Richard Nichols, et al. An RKO-Radio picture produced by David Hempstead and directed by Sam Wood, who also directed "Goodbye, Mr. Chips" and "Our Town." From the novel by Christopher Morley.

DENNIS MORGAN and Ginger Rogers achieve tops in dramatic portrayals for RKO's "Kitty Foyle"

THE best picture of the week, if not the best picture of the month from a serious, dramatic standpoint, is this new Ginger Rogers starring vehicle from the Christopher Morley best-selling novel, "Kitty Foyle." It tells most interestingly and uniquely, through the device of a mirror reflection which talks back to the heroine, the innermost details of a girl's life, her dreams, failures and final decision in the choice of two love-affairs.

Ginger Rogers does the best dramatic acting job of her career as "Kitty Foyle," and there are few who will deny that this picture may win her her first Academy Award.

Most carefully has director Sam Wood transferred the thought of writer Morley to the screen. The story follows the book closely. Kitty's life is unfolded in retrospect when, as she counsels with her reflection in the mirror, she must decide between two proposals—one to marry a young and socially conscious doctor, the other to go to South America with her former husband, now unhappily married, but not as his wife. Miss Rogers' acting and the story are both intensely human. Her love scenes are beautiful, natural and believable. Her reactions are exactly true to form.

Credit must be given to Dennis Morgan, who plays the part of Wyn Strafford, her first husband and a Philadelphia "Mainliner," with whose family Kitty immediately disagrees; also to James Craig as Doctor Mark Eisen, a most wholesome and financially broke young physician.

The story of Kitty Foyle's life is that of a Philadelphia stenographer and a wealthy family's son, their unique romance and marriage, and the wrecking of that marriage. Every adult should see it.

WHAT THEY THOUGHT OF IT: Daily News (Virginia Wright), "A memorable experience on the screen." Los Angeles Times (Edwin Schallert), "The picture has tons of leminine appeal." Hollywood Citizen-News (James Crow), "An Academy Award bid by Miss Rogers." Variety, "A beautiful and deeply moving picture." Hollywood Reporter, "A mark of distinction for RKO."

ABOUT THE ALLEN-BENNY BENNY-ALLEN FEUD

When they brought Benny and Allen together for a film, they got a fight! Here's a true tale of a gag gone wrong

By KAY PROCTOR

IF EVER an innocent bystander picked himself up an unexploded time bomb, it was Paramount studio when it decided to capitalize on the famous Jack Benny-Fred Allen radio feud and make a movie of it called "Love Thy Neighbor."

The studio knew it was in a jam before the ink on the deal was dry. There in its mits was a mess of TNT, liable to blow everything sky-high at any moment—and nothing for it to do but hang on and hope for the best!

A fine kettle of fish that was, when a million bucks or so of the studio's money was plunked in the pot.

Like the rest of the country, the Paramount bigwigs had accepted the three-year-old Benny-Allen "feud" as an inspired form of American kidding which helped sell pudding, tooth-paste, and gasoline. Week after week they had listened to Fred hurl barbarous insults at Jack from New York on Wednesday nights and heard Jack answer in kind from Hollywood on Sunday. They pegged it all as good clean fun and darned smart showmanship in both camps.

The truth, therefore, came like a bolt from the blue.

The truth is that the feud started as a gag, but somewhere along the line it got out of hand. Too many of the harpoons, perhaps, hit too close to home. It's still kidding now, but underneath the surface of those sledgehammer wisecracks or stinging jibes it's kidding strictly on the square!

That can be dangerous business, and Paramount knew it before the first day's shooting schedule on "Love Thy Neighbor" was finished. By the time the picture was completed, everyone had a first-class case of the jitters. A good face was put on it for outsiders; people spoke of the "grand fun" on the sets and the "million laughs a day" everyone had got out of it. But behind closed doors of conference rooms and in private huddles, the words "strain" and "tension" were heard and felt.

That all Hades didn't bust loose instead of the occasional fireworks which enlivened the fifty-six-day schedule was a tribute to the personal integrity and good sportsmanship of both Benny and Allen. Each suffered painful wounds, but they licked them in the privacy of their own lairs. Too much was at stake for an open ruckus.

So, at least, is the opinion of Ted Tetzlaff, the drafted referee of the battle. As cameraman on the picture, his was the impartial eye which saw the fight from start to finish and spotted its many nuances. And his was the delicate job of seeing that a fair break was had by all in the finished product and keeping the battlers in camera range.

"For instance," Tetzlaff observed, "Jack always has been notoriously careless about camera angles. As a valuable piece of studio property, he always has assumed we would protect our interests in that respect, in which he was correct. He relies on us utterly to guide him into the best camera breaks and see that no one upstages him. Even with Allen in the same shot with him, he continued to be careless and off guard.

"Allen, on the other hand, definitely was on guard every moment, as a man must be when he lives by his wits. He seemed to feel he was an outsider in enemy territory, and adopted the defensive policy of watchful waiting. I didn't have to tell him to 'cheat' a little (which means turning the face more toward the camera) or warn him about being upstaged (which means being forced into the background of a scene). Someone evidently had done a very thorough coaching job on that subject before he stepped foot inside the studio, and the points remained fresh in his wary mind."

No master mind was needed around Paramount to deduce that Benny and Allen are not the bosom buddies and old college chums the general public thinks them. That became quite apparent from the day Fred arrived in town to start work on the picture. Each was casually polite in his "Good morning, Jack" and "Good morning, Fred," but there all social relationships ended. Not once did they lunch together in the studio commissary or visit in the other's home. Each had his own "clique" on the set and kept to it, Benny usually sitting with his writers, Eddie Beloin and Bill Morrow, and Allen with the two agents he brought with him from New York, Howard Reilly and Walter Batchelor. Unlike the comedy team of Bob Hope and Bing Crosby, who cook up new gags for their pictures by hashing them out together before presenting the idea to the director, Fred and Jack held to their lone-wolf policy. When either had an idea for new material he took it to producer-director Mark Sandrich, who in turn talked it over with the other.

So pointed did the situation become, in fact, that a studio wag one night painted a broad white stripe down the center of the studio street which separated their dressing-rooms. The implication was obvious.

Jack Benny prepared for the beginning of film work with Allen by taking a long vacation in Honolulu, where, according to him, "I was met on my arrival by 27,000 people, which is four fans and two Kanakas more than greeted Shirley Temple. They were lovely to me. They all put leis around my neck. It's bad luck to take a lei off, so I had to carry 27,000 leis around. That sort of dulled my mind, so I think I'll take another rest before going into this picture with Allen."

Which was a mighty fine thing, for—as Jack well knew—once he and Allen were brought together on a single set the fireworks would begin. And they did. Allen's reaction to the Benny statement about his reception in Honolulu was perfectly in character.

"The only reason that there weren't 27,000 people to meet Benny on his return here," he slurringly remarked, "is because extras cost more in Los Angeles than they do in Honolulu—and Benny wouldn't put out that kind of dough."

The whole shebang actually started three years ago when a nine-year-old guest on one of Fred's programs played the difficult violin composition called "The Bee." As one of the running gags of his show, Jack had talked a lot about playing "The Bee," but somehow the promised performance never came off.

"Just imagine," Allen ad-libbed into the microphone. "This young man can play a piece perfectly which that Benny can't even attempt after forty years' practise!"

BENNY cracked back the following week, and the "feud," which was to grow into a national institution, and ultimately into "Love Thy Neighbor," was on. As the word-war raged and the public's interest mounted, several movie producers saw in it the germ of a picture idea, since Benny was an established picture star and Allen twice had made excursions into the cinema field.

One of the producers—Mark Sandrich—finally did something about it. He outlined a story, based on the feud itself, in which Benny and Allen would play themselves. Paramount okayed it and gave permission to approach Allen on the deal. Sandrich took the story to New York and showed it to Fred. There he struck his first snag.

Fred liked the story and the idea of co-starring with Jack. But he doesn't like Hollywood and never has made any bones about it. Sandrich pleaded, argued and coaxed. Finally Fred gave in and signed on the dotted line to make the picture in time for a December, 1940, release.

Clear sailing from there on? Not a bit of it! Three giant hurdles remained to be taken.

First, the story itself. Here you had two top comedians, each famed for a distinctive style of comedy, pitted against each other in a race for laughs. Each would rather have his throat slit than lose that race, and understandably so, since laughs are a comedian's bread and butter. Again, there was the matter of footage on the screen; Fred couldn't be expected to stooge for Jack or vice versa.

The general skeleton of the story was prepared by two of Sandrich's ace writers, Ernest Pagano and Zion Myer. It is a hilarious elaboration of the "feud," with Allen stealing Rochester away from Benny; Benny retaliating by stealing the Merry Maes from Allen's show; a wild brawl which lands them both in jail; a chase in which they both almost drown; and a grand mix-up concerning a Broadway show in which Jack finds himself under contract to Fred. Woven through it is a gay romance in which Benny finds himself in love with Allen's niece, played by Mary Martin.

The skeleton next was dressed with dialog by Jack's own writers, Beloin and Morrow, who prepare all his radio and picture material and are under personal contract to him. Finally it was sent to Allen, who liberally (and with sardonic satisfaction, no doubt) exercised his privilege of re-writing any of his own lines and situations in the story.

How carefully Sandrich mapped his plot is revealed in the final statistics on footage. Benny appears in seven scenes with Allen, eight with Mary Martin, five with Rochester, three with Mary Kelly and six alone or with other members of the east. Allen's scene score added up to seven with Benny, seven with Mary Martin and Verree Teasdale, two with Rochester, one with Miss Martin and three alone, two with Miss Martin and three with Miss Teasdale. Final score, twenty-nine to twenty-eight in favor of Benny.

Second hurdle to be taken was the matter of billing. The public may not give a continental hoot about who gets mentioned first in the ads and on the billboards, but artists and actors get themselves in a terrible stew about it.

The problem was solved in a novel fashion for the title sheet on the screen. Jack's name flashes on first. Immediately Fred's appears above it. Jack's jumps on top of that, then Fred's jumps again. Finally the letters end up in a free-for-all. Cold legal documents, however, were necessary to settle the official billing for newspapers and billboards. Jack's contract with Paramount states his name must be mentioned first, except in the case of a female star of equal importance. Then, gallantly enough, the lady's name may come first. Fred's agreement states he must be co-starred with equal billing but that Benny's name alone may precede his. Thus the official billing will read "Jack Benny and Fred Allen in 'Love Thy Neighbor'" with the Benny and Allen names in the same size type and the name of the picture in type twenty-five percent larger.

Who was it said the little things are the important things in life? Apparently it's so.

The third hurdle was the matter of world-premiering the picture. Jack wanted it in his home town, Waukegan, Illinois. Allen held out for his stamping-grounds at Old Orchard Beach, Maine. The studio compromised on New York City.

Even the propboys on the picture took no chances with wounded pride for either prima donna. One day Benny requested a glass of water. While propman Roy Krueger dashed to bring it to him, assistant Verne Baine rushed one to Fred. Allen wanted a pencil Krueger got one for him—and Baine presented one to Benny. Benny mentioned the need of a cigar. Krueger promptly got one for him—and Baine just as promptly handed one to Allen.

"This is all wonderful," Allen said, "but I don't smoke cigars."

"You can throw it away for all of me," Baine calmly informed him, "but you've got to take it. This department's strictly neutral and we're staying that way!"

IT WAS the trigger quality of Allen's wit which placed Benny at a disadvantage in many of their extemporaneous battles and kept a coterie of hopeful listeners within sound of the Allen voice at all times. There was the day the two were doing a scene which called for Fred to comment bitterly on the undesirable aspects of Jack's face. Just as he began the prepared lines, "Your face, Benny," all the electrical power in the studio went dead.

"Your face, Benny," he improvised instantly, "not only stops clocks but cameras and lights as well."

Against such rabbit punches, Benny usually was helpless, for while he is every bit as funny as Allen, his greatest asset is his delivery of lines. It's not what he says but the way he says it that brings the roars of laughter from his listeners. It must be remembered, too, that Jack is dependent on what others write for him, while Fred writes all his own material and is the acknowledged master of extemporizing gags for any situation. Every once in a while, however, Jack hung one on Fred which sent him to the ropes.

Such a day was the one when Fred mournfully was confessing his unhappiness with his role.

"Cheer up, Fred," Sandrich consoled him. "This is your third picture and the third time's the charm."

"He might also be said to be going down for the third time," Jack contributed. "Sort of committing artistic suicide."

The first hint referee Tetzlaff had that the feud kidding was kidding on the square came with Jack and Fred's first scene together. It's a violent argument with both men in character, Fred as the cocky, brash puncher and Jack as the bluffer who starts out bravely but backs down when his bluff is called. Much to everyone's surprise, Jack kept getting out of character, and apparently with deliberation.

Suddenly the truth dawned. If Allen was to be allowed to yell and rant, then by jeebers Benny was going to yell and rant just as loud and long!

The final stab in the back came recently when Allen threw that fast curve about Benny's relatives. He said, you may remember, that Jack should be glad to get second billing because his relatives all read from right to left anyway.

Jack burned, but the two gentlemen it really put behind the eight-ball were Messrs. Beloin and Morrow, his official mouthpieces. Orders went out to "top that gag—or else!"

Two heads are said to be better than one. At this point in the feud it remains to be proved. So far the advantage seems to be with Allen.

A BEVY of Benny beauties welcomed Allen to Hollywood with a collection of signs on which the Allen name played second fiddle to that of his broadcasting rival

THE CIRCUS GOES

"CHAD HANNA"

SET in the moth-eaten, hungry days when small circuses were striving to gain a foothold in an America which had little money for frivolous things, "Chad Hanna," made from Walter D. Edmonds' famous magazine serial, "Red Wheels Rolling," has an epic sweep and a stirring tale to unfold for movie-goers. Nunnally Johnson, distinguished for his work on "The Grapes of Wrath," was associated with Darryl Zanuck as its producer. Johnson also did the script for the film and assigned to Henry King, who made "Drums Along the Mohawk," the task of directing it. After assembling his top-notch cast for the film, King set to work to seek out locales which would approximate the Erie County (N. Y.) locale of Edmonds' novel, traveling more than six thousand miles in his quest. The cast traveled more than four thousand miles to and from location sites despite the fact that none of these sites was farther than fifty miles from Hollywood. Greatest difficulty, however, was the handling of animals necessary for the circus sequences. The first day four hours of shooting were wasted because a gibbon perched in a tree over the microphone insisted upon chattering—and the gibbon wasn't even a member of the cast but a pet living on property adjacent to the set. A short time after, Tony, a rented lion, became ill and held up production. What made Tony ill, they found later, was the red interior of his cage, so colored for the benefit of Technicolor. The cage was repainted green and Tony recuperated. "Chad Hanna," a 20th Century-Fox production, was released nationally in December, 1940.

BUT Chad's return to Caroline and the circus comes only after he has gone to Albany Yates, now with the rival show, to discover that he really is in love with his wife

CHAD HANNA (Henry Fonda, above with Linda Darnell) is the small boy who is in all of us, falling madly in love with the dashing bareback rider who comes to his town with the Huguenine circus in 1838. Dorothy Lamour plays Albany Yates, fascinating circus horsewoman

WHEN CHAD double-crosses a local bigshot in order to get admission price to the show, he gets into trouble. When the circus rolls off that night, Chad goes with it, not knowing that Caroline (Linda Darnell), daughter of the man he double-crossed, has joined, too

WHEN HUGUENINE becomes ill, Chad (with clown Roscoe Ates above) becomes ringmaster and manager of the show, which is now having its troubles with dying animals, the owner's expensive illness, and severe competition from a bigger and richer circus on the same circuit

CHAD, meanwhile, has married Caroline and become a prime favorite of the Huguenines after he saves Huguenine (Guy Kibbee) from drowning. But, in the press of the circus' troubles, Chad and Huguenine quarrel and Chad leaves the show and his wife, Caroline, in the night

WHEN DISASTER seems certain, the Huguenines (Jane Darwell and Guy Kibbee) are saved by the return of Chad, who has arranged for the purchase of an elephant. The novelty of the strange beast makes the circus a success, and Chad and Caroline are happily rejoined

THE GREAT PROFILE hasn't been idle much since his divorce from Elaine. For the fourth consecutive night he dated Sally Allen, with him above at Ciro's, and willingly mugged for the cameraman

BETTY GRABLE, far from pining away for Vic Mature, now in New York, seems to be having a downright good time with Vic Orsatti, above, between dates with band-leader Rudy Vallee

METROPOLITAN OPERA COMPANY, NBC. "Tannhaeuser," by Richard Wagner, in three acts. THE CAST: Tannhaeuser, Lauritz Melchior, tenor; Elizabeth, Kirsten Flagstad, soprano; Wolfram, Herbert Jannssen, baritone; Hermann, Landgrave of Thuringia, Emanuel List, bass; Venus, Kerstin Thorborg, mezzo-soprano; Walther, John Dudley; Heinrich, Emery Darcy, baritone; Reinmar, John Gurney, baritone; Biterolf, Mack Harrell, baritone; A Young Shepherd, Maxine Stellman, soprano. Conductor, Erich Leinsdorf.

Wagner was always fascinated by the ancient German song-contests and based two of his operas on them, "Die Meistersinger" and this one. It tells the story of a noble minstrel, Tannhaeuser, who comes to the Wartburg on the eve of a singing-contest to court Elizabeth, daughter of the Landgrave of Thuringia. He does not reveal that he has recently been at the court of Venus (opening scene of the opera) where he had been indulging in sensuous pleasures. At the singing-tournament (Act II), which opens with Elizabeth's ringing aria "Dich, teure Halle" (Thou Dear Hall), most of the knightly contestants, including Wolfram, Tannhaeuser's friend, sing of the beauties of virtuous love. Tannhaeuser, contemptuous of them, recklessly answers in a song praising Venus, thereby throwing the contest into an uproar. The knights wish to kill him but Elizabeth intercedes. Tannhaeuser, repentant, joins a band of pilgrims heard chanting outside to beg forgiveness of the Pope in Rome. The third act shows a road in the valley of the Wartburg. Elizabeth prays for Tannhaeuser's salvation before a roadside crucifix. Wolfram tries to comfort her, but she leaves him and he sings his beautiful "Hymn to the Evening Star." Tannhaeuser appears, and begs Wolfram to tell him the way to the Venusberg. He recounts that the Pope has refused him pardon, saying that his salvation is as remote as the chance that the papal staff he carries might blossom. Venus suddenly appears in a vision, trying to tempt Tannhaeuser back to her. But bells are heard tolling, announcing the death of Elizabeth. Her funeral procession approaches and as Tannhaeuser sinks dying of grief on her bier, pilgrims arrive carrying the papal staff which has miraculously bloomed. Outstanding numbers in the opera are the great overture, the wild sensual Venusberg music, the "Evening Star," Elizabeth's prayer and the pilgrims' chorus.

NEW FRIENDS OF MUSIC ORCHESTRA, NBC. Fritz Stiedry, conductor; Hortense Monath, pianist. Piano Concerto in F Major (K. 459), Symphony in E Flat (K. 543) (Mozart).

Since Raymond Scott discovered Mozart last year in his "Eighteenth Century Drawing Room," taken from Mozart's third piano sonata, a lot of people have found that Mozart isn't as highbrow as they had thought. In fact they had to admit that he could write a good tune, good enough to keep running through their heads. Here is a whole program of Mozart, without benefit of Raymond Scott, and if you listen carefully, you'll probably hear a lot more good tunes. The piano concerto, written at the same time as his better-known "Coronation" concerto, was also titled "coronation" and he frequently played both of them on the same program. Written toward the end of Mozart's lamentably short life, it is, like all his later works, filled with tender and moving melody.

These two soloists are acclaimed as one of the finest two-piano teams now before the public. They do both ancient and modern music equally well, as you can hear by listening to their numbers, the dainty and sparkling Mozart Rondo and the fascinating Ritmo with its insistent Spanish rhythms.

News from the Music Front

"THERE is too much talk about music for the intellect. I believe that music should appeal to the emotions rather than to the intellect."

The young woman who recently made that statement is the person responsible for planning some of the best chosen and most artistic programs on the air, those of the "New Friends of Music." Hortense Monath, one of the better-known young American pianists, is also the wife of Ira Hirschmann, founder and patron of the New Friends. Hirschmann is vice-president of Bloomingdale Bros., one of New York's largest department stores. He looks youthful enough to be just starting in business, instead of holding down a post of such importance. Both he and his wife are young and enthusiastic, with an enormous zest for life, and a deep and profound love of music. However, although many people love music, few do anything about it. These two did.

For years Hirschmann had it in the back of his mind to start a series of low-priced concerts for New York music-lovers. Miss Monath had the same idea in a more concrete form. She wanted to give chamber music, of which there was very little at that time. But instead of presenting only string quartets, she planned to use all types of chamber music, featuring different instruments and combinations of instruments. She also believed that the concerts should run only for an hour and a half. She figured that the public would like the novelty. Hirschmann agreed with her. And so did the public. The New Friends concerts are now sold out every year in advance. Next season will be their fifth.

Miss Monath follows no definite plan in choosing the programs. She and her husband begin around January to think about the next season. She admits frankly that she is no musicologist, and that since she has started doing this, she has added immensely to her musical knowledge. She plays most of the music over on the piano, balancing one piece against the other, deciding how they will fit together. She is careful not to have too many things of a kind on one program. Quartets alternate with piano trios and quintets for wind instruments. This year there have been two new departures. Modern music was featured for the first time by the New Friends, and there will be two solo concerts by Alexander Kipnis and Lotte Lehmann. Miss Monath was criticized for including modern music. But she declares that there is no such thing as "modern," only good or bad music. An audience reacts to good music no matter what idiom it's written in, she finds.

Chamber music has always been considered as the highest form of music, and many people find it hard to understand. True, for those who play an instrument there is nothing more pleasant than to gather together at home and scrape away by the hour at trios and quartets, just for the fun of it. But to listen to four other people do it for two hours in a concert hall was a different thing. The New Friends, guided by Miss Monath, has provided a different slant on chamber music, and has, over the air, made it cultural fun for thousands and thousands of people who never even knew it existed before.

WORD has just come through that Rise Stevens, young American mezzo-soprano of the Metropolitan, has signed a seven-year contract with Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer to make movies co-starred with Nelson Eddy. She leaves for Hollywood in May after her current season with the Metropolitan Opera Company has been completed.

Record Review

PIANO CONCERTO NO. 3 (SERGE RACHMANINOFF), played by the composer with the Philadelphia Orchestra under Eugene Ormandy. (Victor M-710, $5.00.)

This is easily one of the finest piano concerto recordings in existence. Rachmaninoff not only plays his own work with all the verve, rich emotion and technical virtuosity demanded by the piece, but the reproduction of the piano tone is almost perfect. If you are a Rachmaninoff lover, this should be the high point of your record collection. It should also stimulate you to write to all of the broadcasting networks and beg for his appearance on the air. That is the surest way to bring him to radio. —V. L.

Musician of the Week Andre Kostelanetz

Portrait of Mr. K., whose wife is Lily Pons, whose music is as famous as hers

"I DO NOT know a begonia from a petunia. But Lily, she knows the names of all the flowers, and she can tell which is which. I think it's wonderful." Andre Kostelanetz was holding forth on his favorite topic, his wife, Lily Pons. It is just as difficult to persuade him to talk about himself as it is to get Miss Pons to talk about herself. But on the subject of each other, they are bursting with eloquence. It seems that Lily's gardening is a serious business, and not at all the usual publicity nonsense. "Prima donna loves flowers" with the p.d. in an organdy dress and floppy hat daintily wielding a trowel is an old press standby. But with Lily it's workman-like overalls, the proper tools and plenty of grubbing in the dirt.

"Recently we went to visit one of the most famous herb gardens in the world, near Washington," Kostelanetz recounted. "The place is filled with every kind of herb, medicinal as well as food. They all looked like grass to me. But Lily knew every single one of them by name."

Lily also likes birds. She has an aviary in their Connecticut home, and if she's talking to you and a bird flies by she breaks off in the middle of a word to watch it. This must make conversation fairly slow in the country. An addition to the bird family (not the Kostelanetz family) is arriving Christmas morning. Lily has wanted a parrot all her life, and her husband has bought her one for Christmas. It talks and sings. In fact it reminds Kostelanetz of a dramatic soprano—he didn't say which one.

What Kostelanetz appreciates most in his wife is that "She's cheerful without being annoying about it. She has a fundamentally wise philosophy of life, and all the little things that bother most of us, she seems to be able to distill in her mind and to relegate to their proper place."

Neither Kostelanetz nor Miss Pons has ever seen a performance of "The Daughter of the Regiment" in which Miss Pons appears this year, so her interpretation is entirely her own and not based on any tradition. Tradition, Kostelanetz believes, is all very well in its way, but is made to be broken at times. He is and always has been a firm believer in popularizing good music and making it intelligible to the public, even if unorthodox methods are employed. Walt Disney's classical vaudeville cartoon "Fantasia" enchanted him, and he believes it will be a powerful stimulant to the public to hear more good music. He himself several years ago cut big symphonic works to fit them into a half-hour program. He was uncertain how such a thing would be received, and consulted Deems Taylor for the composer's attitude about cutting.

"What would you say if anyone cut your music?" he asked Taylor, who gave the following answer: "If there were some good reason for cutting it, I wouldn't mind at all."

LIKE most musicians who have been in radio for any length of time, Kostelanetz has developed the long view, and aims to please the greatest majority of people. That he has succeeded is evident by the hundreds of thousands of people who turn out every summer when Kostelanetz and his wife make their annual tours together. A record audience last summer was two hundred and fifty thousand people in Chicago. "That is more than the dictators get," remarked Miss Pons, who finds their tours very exciting.

In spite of all the publicity it received, this marriage looks as though it will be a long and satisfying one. A union of two normal, intelligent people who share the same interests, like the same things and share the same sort of wisdom, it is indicative of the new type of marriage among professional artists as exemplified by the Lunts, the Clark Gables, Grace Moore and her husband, and Gladys Swarthout and Frank Chapman. —V. Star Sparkles

● In lining up musical material for future programs, HORACE HEIDT turns to his band members for their suggestions. Red Ferrington and Jerry Bowen are constantly on the lookout for novelty numbers. Frankie Carle supplies ideas for piano innovations and each section of the band contributes ideas for the show.

● CLIFF ARQUETTE, NBC comedian and actor, has just finished a book entitled "It's Corn, But It Ain't Hay," which contains some twenty-four short stories covering various subjects.

FIRST FAMILIES OF RADIO

"AMANDA OF HONEYMOON HILL"

AMANDA'S father is a hard-bitten southern mountaineer, endowed with the unshakable belief that mountain gals should marry mountain lads. So it was natural that he should dissent violently when she fell in love with young Edward Leighton and married him—the wealthiest young tobacco planter of the aristocratic Honeymoon Hill set. Just as natural, perhaps, was the shock to Edward's mother, a daughter of the "Old South," whose blue blood boiled at the thought of her son's act. But Amanda (played by Joy Hathaway) married Edward (Boyd Crawford), in spite of all opposition, so listeners to "Amanda of Honeymoon Hill," the NBC five-a-week serial story of their love-life, will tell you. There is another dissenter to the marriage, too. She is Sylvia Meadows (Helen Shields), who was engaged to Edward and still loves him. Surrounded by these three the young Leightons are having themselves a hectic time trying to sidestep all the unpleasant obstacles scattered along what would otherwise be their royal road to happiness. Another newly married couple, Olive (Ruth Yorke) and Walter Courtleigh (George Lambert), sympathize with them, become their best friends. Olive and Amanda are especially close. But, like her sisters of the serials, Amanda has problems which seem to grow proportionately as the days pass. How she will overcome them is the never-failing attraction for a host of interested listeners.

—Morgan

NOMINATED AS BAND OF THE WEEK is Freddie Martin's outfit, organized eight years ago. Soft music is Freddie's specialty, and his style bears distinct marks of his years of apprenticeship with the Lombardo brothers. Members of the Martin band are identified below

AS A former salesman-demonstrator of musical instruments in Cleveland, Ohio, orchestra-leader Freddie Martin found it hard to sell the Lombardo band. What he did manage to get from them, however, was a sympathetic interest in his expressed desire to give up the selling game and take up a career devoted to music. In fact, Carmen Lombardo went so far as to take young Martin under his wing—not as a member of the orchestra but as a pupil and observer. Later, when the Royal Canadians were planning to be absent for a week from the Music Box Cafe, leader Guy insisted that Freddie form a band of his own and substitute for them. After the engagement the band was broken up, Freddie realizing that before trying to become a professional leader he should acquire more playing experience. With this decision, he got himself hired to a traveling band, toured this country and Europe, worked many cafes, clubs, theaters and one-night-stand jobs. In 1932, having felt that he had fully served his apprenticeship, Freddie again formed his own orchestra, instrumented according to the ideas he had picked up during the years of his playing with other outfits. The tutelage of the Lombardos is, however, evident in the Martin band presentations, most of them bearing a faint resemblance to the soft-music style which for years the Royal Canadians have never departed from. Since its formation the band has played many top-notch hotels and clubs; also playing on many radio shows, both sustaining and commercial. As a result, Freddie's name has become known from Coast to Coast. Present members of the orchestra posed in the special MOVIE-RADIO GUIDE photo above are as follows: First row (left to right): Russ Klein, Reid Christiansen and Clyde Rogers, saxophones; Freddie Martin, leader and sax; Charles Bilek, Eddy Berg-

One of the most popular of the orchestra-leaders with the younger dancing crowd, Martin has also written several songs. In addition to his baton-waving he plays the saxophone, his first love. For the band's persistent attempts to give its customers musical arrangements that are original in expression, and for all-around ability in Goodman records. The bandleader wants it understood that he does not mean to imply that swing music is dead. He will continue to play the music which is so natural to him and with which he is so closely identified. He is only seeking another name for swing. Let's have your suggestions.

Bandots

At his own request Tommy Dorsey henceforth will be billed as "The Sentimental Gentleman." "Of swing" will be deleted. Does Mr. T. D. think swing is on the wane? . . . Incidentally, the bowling fad amongst the New York bands and has whipped up a neat six-man team. Every night after hours at Roseland the boys of the Long band get together at the Capitol Alleys on Broadway for a few frames of bowling. Now Johnny Long is challenging other bands about the city for a series of matches in the early ayem. It's a follow-up to the softball fad of the past summer and the boys have lots of fun.

Vocalistings

Horace Heidt has a new femme vocalist in the band. She's Maureen Walker from Detroit, Mich. She's eighteen years of age, blue-eyed, brown-haired and plenty cute, they tell me. They also report that she's a wee bit temperamental, but knowing H. H. we're sure that will be taken out of her very soon . . . Jane Ward has joined the Johnny McGee band, replacing Betty Bradley, who joined Bob Chester's band replacing Dolores O'Neill . . . B. Goodman Wants New Name for Swing

Benny Goodman seems to be creating quite a bit of comment with his new band. Those who have heard it say it's a better outfit than the one he had when he was crowned "King of Swing." Incidentally, Mr. Goodman is seeking a more dignified expression than swing. He feels that the word has become attached to so many loud and incapable musicians that it has reflected on the few serious musicians in the field. He feels another name might sound sweeter. If you have any suggestions send them to this reporter at 731 Plymouth Court, Chicago, Ill. The person submitting the best name will receive ten autographed Benny

NOW IT CAN BE TOLD

How politicians spent $2,000,000 in radio time to elect a President

By Dick Dorrance

THE tumult and shouting are over, but the days of our recent election are still bright in our memory. Things happened during those hectic weeks about which every listener should know, things that show the workings of this democracy.

They say that twenty millions of dollars were spent by the Republicans, that the Democrats weren't far behind. Nobody has audited those claims. But what was spent on the air has been audited. We have the record, and it is an amazing and absorbing one.

Politicians spent two million dollars for a pencil-mark. That pencil-mark was an "X." An "X" scratched on a ballot is an instrument of democracy. It can change the path of national policy. It can change Presidents.

Early in the race, politicians realized that radio would win or lose their race. So the money poured out. It was a golden, gleaming stream of two million dollars. NBC got just under $1,000,000 from the embattled Democrats and Republicans. CBS netted better than $500,000, while Mutual's sales of political programs passed the $250,000 level.

Long before the late lamented-by-some campaign began its rollicking career, the heads of all three major networks met in a quiet room and settled a number of important matters. They agreed that after the general conventions where the candidates were nominated, no spokesmen on forums or group discussions were to be allowed, injecting unconscious plugs into theoretically non-partisan programs. Faking of audience applause by transcriptions or paid studio hand-clappers was taboo, but genuine applause at halls and political rallies was considered bona fide. Anonymous voices were not to be used. Party plugs could not be dramatized. Networks refused to issue publicity on political talks, other than routine program listings, or release the texts of any speeches.

As a matter of fact, looking back at the whole campaign, they were about as partial as a marble statue of Christopher Columbus.

There is always a benevolent body of men in Washington, called the Federal Communications Commission, ready to rap on the knuckles any broadcasters who fail to operate "in the public service, convenience and necessity."

We know now that all radio scripts, behind the closed doors of the networks, were guarded closely to be sure no toes were trod upon. The extent of such caution reached old-ladyish extremes. CBS, according to reports, coined a set of resolutions to keep funny-men from inadvertently embroiling the network. A well-known comic found the innocent word "indispensable" had been stricken from his script because the censor feared someone might link it with that slogan about the "indispensable man." Another had a line black-balled because the word "egg" appeared in it—during the week that Willkie figured as target for an ill-wisher's missile of this category.

It was at the heated height of the campaign, we now learn, that smart-boy Winchell's sponsor wired him curtly in these words:

"Positively no political comment Sunday night."

Winchell, who would undoubtedly have been a first-class Patrick Henry if he had lived in Colonial days (and there are people who wish he did), wired back at once.

"I intend doing an editorial," he asserted, "urging the people to unite no matter who the winner. If no can do, please let me know so I can get laryngitis."

One of the most impressive set-ups in the entire furor of electioneering was the kilocycle madhouse staged by the determined Democrats, late in October, when Roosevelt expounded nationally from Philadelphia's normally sleepy Convention Hall.

According to the post-election confession of roly-poly, well-liked George Wilfred Johnstone (who prefers to be dubbed "Johnny" by his omnipresent friends), this cost the Democrats something in the vicinity of $90,000. Johnstone served as radio director of the Democratic National Committee, playing a stealthy (and rather well-matched) game of chess with Wells (Ted) Church, who fulfilled a similar function over on the G. O. P. side of the tracks. Both men, ever mindful of slender budgets, were forced to purchase air time where and when it would do the most good—all with the acumen and foresight of a frugal housewife buying carrots and lamb chops for a fifty-seven-cent budget-menu dinner.

Caution, however, went whirling off on the wind as the campaign grew to its crescendo. The radio bills mounted high above original appropriations, because radio was proving the best, hardest-hitting way to win votes.

On the eve of the President's address from Convention Hall, Johnstone learned that mike-minded F. D. R. wanted to talk for forty-five minutes—although only thirty had been purchased nationally. The networks re-

By
WILSON BROWN

"TRUTH OR CONSEQUENCES," Ralph Edwards' zany program, is now top quiz show, according to radio's measuring-stick, the Crossley report. Heretofore "Information, Please" held top honors.

POOR Henry Aldrich! He has a sister and he hasn't. In "The Aldrich Family," Ann Lincoln played the role of Mary, the sister. Then the sponsor dropped her and put June Allison in the spot. She lasted about four months and was dropped because "she sounded too sophisticated." Betty Wragge took up where June left off. That didn't work. Judy Parrish was tried December 19. If Judy isn't on when you read this, don't be surprised, judging from past history. In all, 225 girls have been auditioned for the job since the program has been on the air.

Jack Benny Comes and Goes

Ten thousand persons put in requests for the seven hundred seats available to watch Jack Benny broadcast his last New York program, December 22. Thirty-four million persons stayed home to listen. Jack and Fred Allen are jointly contributing a one thousand-dollar scholarship to Stuart Canin, fourteen-year-old New York violinist, who played "The Bee" on Fred's show in December, 1936, causing Fred to crack at Jack's fiddle-playing, thus starting the famous Allen-Benny feud. . . . Jack's visit made it possible for Dennis Day, tenor, to spend part of the Christmas holidays with his family here.

These Nasty Nazis

Irving Berlin titled it "God Bless America" but in Germany they call it "God Blast America" . . . The Lynda Lee involved in a Baltimore breach-of-promise case is not the Linda Lee of the late "Believe It or Not" show. The latter Linda is happily married . . . The soprano introduced as Vivian on "Hour of Charm" is Hollace Shaw, who used to be a star soloist on CBS . . . Reason Shirley Ross is on the Ben Bernie show is that Ben moved to Hollywood and Carol Bruce had to stay with her Broadway show . . . Bouke Carter is romancing a Miss Jean Newell . . . Col. Stoopnagle is trying to get Ruth Nagel, daughter of Conrad, to come to New York for an appearance on his "Quixie Doodle" just because their names rhyme . . . King George VI's Christmas broadcast came from "somewhere in England" with anti-aircraft guns and troops patrolling to assure his safety. We had always thought of Christmas as the season of peace on earth and good-will to all men.

Without a Skirt

Broadcasting without a script is nothing new, but broadcasting without a skirt is. Elizabeth Reller, Ann Malone in "Young Dr. Malone," did the latter the other day when she was drenched with coffee. She gave her skirt to a page-boy to take to the cleaners, and did her broadcast wearing her coat.

Similar to David Ross

A University of Wisconsin freshman auditioned for a job as announcer on station WIHA in that state. "That voice sounds familiar," said the boss. The freshman read more lines. "You sound like a ringer for David Ross," the boss interrupted. He should have. Because the freshman was David Ross, Jr.

Duke at Windsor Scoop

There are stories that the Duke of Windsor has turned down one million dollars in radio offers. So naturally it was a surprise to the industry when Robert Ripley presented the Duke, unballhooped in advance, on his program from Nassau December 6. Believe it or not, despite this important scoop, Ripley went off the air that night. Now free from microphone duties, Ripley is thinking about a South American trip.

"Musical Americana" leaves the air with the broadcast of January 16. Budget troubles . . . Charlotte Manson is now playing Katherine in "Myrt and Marge" . . . "The White Haired Boy," with Betty Garde, will open on Broadway this month . . . Burl Ives, singer on CBS' "Back Where I Come From," has the Maharajah Metta, twenty-two-year-old wealthy Indian, as a roommate. Not yet fully Americanized, the Maharajah, who met and liked one of Ives' girl friends, wanted to give her twelve elephants as "a token of affection" . . . Boake Carter has sent Dorothy Rasmussen of his research staff to South America to gather exclusive news for his broadcasts. This is a precedent, for commentators usually lean upon established sources.

Grauer on Ice

Ben Grauer now knows why they call a New York stage show "It Happens on Ice." Assigned by NBC to do a broadcast from the show, he put on dress clothes, hurried to the theater and dashed on the stage. The next thing he knew his arms and legs were in the air and his bottom was on the cold, slick ice . . . All networks plus short-wave stations will be hooked together January 20 for the inauguration of President Roosevelt . . . If you think you have talent, and if you have radio ambitions, you might contact "Discoveries of 1941," a Friday program on NBC . . . Edgar Guest returns to the air January 15 with Eddy Howard to be heard Wednesdays, Thursdays and Fridays over NBC-Blue at 4:45 p.m. EST . . . The Saturday Evening Post recently presented Raymond Gram Swing as having the world's largest radio audience. The basis for this claim is that Swing is heard via short wave and BBC in England, South America and Australia as well as in the U. S. A.

. . . A welcome and delightful Christmas present was delivered to Genevieve Rowe in the form of a contract renewal as soprano star on, both the NBC and CBS sessions of "Johnny Presents." Only a few Yuletides back, Miss Rowe was just one member of the choral group . . . Prof. Quiz entertained one thousand children at a Christmas party in Columbia's Playhouse December 21. Helping the Professor with the entertainment were Bob Trout, announcer; Otto Soglow, author of "The Little King" cartoon; Russ Westover, creator of "Tillie the Toiler"; Lee Falk, who writes "Mandrake the Magician," and many others of cartoon fame.

And a happy New Year to all.

Hollywood

By
EVANS PLUMMER

ALICE FAYE, whose Chesterfield radio contract was bought up by her 20th Century-Fox boss, Darryl Zanuck, several years ago, has a fat broadcast offer up and is trying now to get permission to accept it.

OFF live mikes (concealed under Christmas trees): Jimmy Durante positively will not add his nose to the cast of the Rudy Vallee Seal-test opus; that show already has one "profile"! John Barrymore, by the way, played this program of a fortnight ago while running a flu temperature . . . Hats off, incidentally, to Rudy for devoting a part of his January 2 show to giving the lesser-known members of his cast a chance to sell their wares; Vallee has given radio and the show world many discoveries by being so big . . . Another flu victim was Penny Singleton, who missed her December 16 "Blondie" broadcast because of it; Alice White pinch-hit for the little blonde, who right now is about to be (or already is) married to her film producer, Bob Sparks . . . Al Pearce's bandleader, Carl Hoff, is another who won't be pinched by the ASCAP (music cartel) battle with the networks; he has published thirty-six original tunes through a Chicago firm outside ASCAP and expects to have nearly three hundred in his catalog very soon.

Purely Personal

Johnny Burke (Bing Crosby's lyricist) and wife Bess are chilling; she may name music as his affection-alienator! Which reminds that Johnny and his tunesmith partner, Jimmy Van Heusen, are training east to consider two New York musical show deals . . . Louis Silvers, musical director of the "Lux Radio Theater" since January 1, 1936, announced his

STILL "SHOW BOAT" baritone (Mon.), still flying east for recordings, Dick Todd is as busy as ever

"secret" marriage December 10 at Tia Juana, Mexico, to Lavonne Skillman. For a wedding gift, he received a year's renewal on the dramatic show.

McCarthy Promotes Duck Chorty

Charlie McCarthy, dressed in his very best duck-hunting suit and carrying his twelve-gauge popgun, joined Edgar Bergen December 17 to dedicate a large new wishing-well on the grounds of the Beverly Hills Hotel to the benefit of "Ducks Unlimited." Coins from guests and Hollywood folk will go into the well and be cleaned out weekly to be sent to assist in the support of a duck-refuge project in northern Canada. Aiding Bergen and Charlie in the dedication was Preston Foster, avid Nimrod and cinema star.

Couldn't Be the Climate?

Haven MacQuarrie, who conducted the past two CBS "Marriage Club" broadcasts from Hollywood, before he returned east admitted he was still puzzled over some impressive matrimonial facts he ran up against at Minneapolis. Among his studio audience there, MacQuarrie decided to try to find a few couples who had been married twenty-five, forty or even fifty years. To his near-blackout, he discovered present forty-five couples who had been married fifty years or more! On the night of the broadcast he spotted one elderly couple in the front row and asked them casually if they had been married fifty years. "Good Lord," snorted the old-time gentleman derisively, "you've got nothing but kids on the stage. Ella and I been married sixty-four years!"

Pigeons and How They Coo

Charlie Forsyth, the "Lux Radio Theater" sound-expert who stalks noises with his wax recording-machine and captures them without losing a single note, has decided that California pigeons (sometimes called doves) are temperamental. He started out to record the cooing of pigeons for a scene in "Fifth Avenue Girl," but at two pigeon-farms the birds were not of the cooing variety. At another Forsyth was told that pigeons never coo except when eating. So he scattered feed around several cages, but the birds weren't hungry. Finally he persuaded the caretaker to skip the nightly feeding of a cote and permit him to return early next morning for another try. This he did. The pigeons were very hungry, and they cooed very loudly, too.

Radio Folk in Pathe Shorts

A chance to see radio favorites on the screen is offered by Pathe News-reel's "Picture People" short subjects, soon to be released at neighborhood theaters. Jack Benny and Irene Rich are among the early releases. Gracie Allen and Arch Oboler, of "Everyman's Theater" fame, are also coming up. Gracie will show how she paints surrealist art—which will be a revelation in itself, as her original efforts in this direction were certainly "ghost painted." Oboler will be shown as he directs with gusto the radio rehearsal of one of his original plays, "The Storm," with Elsa Lanchester and hubby Charles Laughton. Incidentally, Alla Nazimova came to Oboler's rescue December 13 just when the writer-producer had despaired of his dramatic effort reaching the air because of the sudden illness of his leading lady. Nazimova learned overnight to speak the Armenian dialect required by the part—and the show went on.

Toglines

Eddie Cantor did his Christmas Day broadcast from Hollywood so that he could be home with his entire family . . . Lum and Abner rang the bell once more—for the eighth successive year, to be exact—when they repeated on Christmas night their homely version of the birth of Christ, the sketch has become a radio classic, like Lionel Barrymore's "Scrooge" . . . Edward G. Robinson and his "Big Town" cast will move to New York City for several weeks starting probably January 15 . . . Add to the list of nice people: Norma Shearer; she turned over her radio-guest salary check for work on "Everyman's Theater" to "Bundles for Britain." Elizabeth Bergner did likewise recently . . . The "Voice of Experience," heard from the beginning of his new series over the Pacific CBS net only, has now had his network extended to six more stations in the Rocky Mountain area . . . Page-boys at NBC thought they were seeing double the other day; two dressing-room doors, facing one another across a hall, were labeled "Mr. Crosby"; one was Bing's and the other Bob's, who happened to be in Hollywood for that broadcast.

Chicago
By DON MOORE

"QUIZ KIDS" will be seen in movie shorts early in 1941. Also within the next couple of months the show will expand to include contestants from all over the country instead of just the Chicago area as at present.

THAT auditioner-at-large pops up again. We're still keeping tab on Gordon Grant, one of the nerviest radio aspirants we ever heard of. A few weeks ago we wrote about the young man getting an audition with NBC after a couple of years of singing on the "L" platform where NBC officials leave the trains. Now he has landed two more auditions with talent-agents—one by singing at a hamburger stand, the other through his blithe warbling in a Loop theater washroom.

Lynne First Line of Defense

A Canadian aviator, back wounded from England, visited "Breakfast Club" recently, and he told that another R. A. F. flyer he knew over there had named his plane "Evelyn" for "Breakfast Club" vocalist Evelyn Lynne . . . Here's an opening for a proud-pop note: Our little Judy is showing distinct signs of being a "Breakfast Club" fan. She mimics, "Dee-uh Dy-uhry," when Evelyn Lynne reads her diary. And the other morning when Jack Baker was singing she put her arms around the radio and said, "I love you much." Of course, McNeill's gags are still a little over her head.

When the "Tom Mix" cast went to St. Louis for a sponsorial Christmas party, it was young Jane Webb's first plane ride, so she took her mother to share the thrills and support her morale . . . John McCormick, announcer of "Design for Happiness," a licensed pilot and a former dirt-track racing-driver, smashed his new convertible coupe in a collision recently. He escaped injury but his car looks like a mechanical "design for unhappiness" . . . Virginia Clark, star of "Helen Trent," gave a stork shower for Ruth Bailey, Glenda of the same sketch . . . Station WBBM takes another bold step off the beaten path by announcing that, after many years of broadcasting baseball, the practise will be discontinued for next season. Reason given is that it is less profitable than selling time otherwise. The same station let the others carry football this fall, and threw a popular variety show into Saturday afternoon.

Santo Real to "Quiz Kid"

Gerard Darrow, eight-year-old "Quiz Kids" phenom, believes in Santa Claus whether other kids do or do not. "A lot of them," he points out, "don't even believe in the Darwinian theory" . . . How's this for one of radio's heaviest schedules: Twenty shows weekly either on NBC or station WTIC, Hartford, Conn., eight and one-half hours of actual broadcasting, four or five personal appearances a week. Old favorites Gene and Glenn do it, without benefit of orchestra or other support . . . The first local radio star spotlighted on the new Tucker-Baker "Hidden Stars" show stirred up a bit of international interest. Among the letters received by Betty Ann Lorch, of Peoria, Ill., after her beautiful singing act was a request for a picture and biography from a magazine editor in Bogota, Colombia, South America.

Among the Santa Claus gifts that grown-up kids at the Crossroads have always wanted and still hope to find under the tree sometime are: A hobby-horse for Pat "Uncle Ezra" Barrett; a live alligator or a talking pig (he once saw it in vaudeville) for Tony Wons.

Mike Carries Michael's "Hello"

At "Breakfast Club" December 21 Michael Davis, the six-year-old English refugee mentioned here two weeks ago, said a wistful radio "hello" to his mother, who had returned to Red Cross duty in England after leaving her son with relatives. Mr. and Mrs. E. P. Langguth. Her ship, the Western Prince, had been torpedoed, but the young mother had been rescued and was safe in England, where she had promised to listen.

ENGLISH NEWSCASTS OVER U. S. SHORT-WAVE STATIONS

MOVIE-RADIO GUIDE'S exclusive monthly revised list of all English news periods broadcast by United States international stations—the latest edition of which is given below—is eagerly awaited not only by thousands of United States and Canadian listeners, who in remote areas are dependent upon short-wave outlets for good reception, but by countless additional thousands of English reader-listeners throughout the length and breadth of the Americas. U. S. Army officials in the office of the commanding general of our forces in the Canal Zone thought so much of our last list that they made 1,600 copies of it, one each for every officer in the U. S. Army foreign service, from Alaska to the Canal Zone and from the Philippines to Puerto Rico (in list below time is EST).

WHAT YOU CAN LEARN FROM THE STARS

you said the same things about other people, he believes, they would be dull. This is an extremely interesting and basically sound point of view. For instance, if I say to you today, "Mrs. Jones, my neighbor, has just dyed her hair . . . or taken to raising Scotties, or bought a new automobile," you would not care at all. But if I said these things about any one of a dozen well-known people I can name to you, stars of stage or screen, you would at once begin to think that dyed hair, Scotties or new cars were important.

Mr. Astaire has not forgotten the hard road to success—the years in vaudeville and on the stage without benefit of publicity. He worked, he practised year in, year out. He did without a home, without the glories and excitement and security of childhood. He has not reached his present situation through publicity. Publicity has merely caught up with him. He has earned the right to his success. The only thing for which he will accept credit is the hard work which has made up his life. No one praised him on the way up. He can't accept praise now except for what it is worth to him. Publicly expressed adulation embarrasses him. He finds it all a little incredible. He doesn't want to splurge, so he doesn't. He likes living quietly. And so he does. Flattery is useless to him, because it can in no way reward him for grueling work, heartbreak, disappointment, and struggle. Nothing in life can be a reward for the difficult road except the inner satisfaction to the person who has traveled it, the satisfaction of having reached a goal and having done a job well. No one can give you this satisfaction, no amount of praise, no spoken or written word. For this satisfaction comes from yourself and from yourself alone. It is your own individual reward, given you by yourself. You know, that's all.

MR. ASTAIRE lives simply and well. He drives a small car; he is not interested in racing around publicly. He dreads being asked to "perform" on impromptu occasions. It seems like "showing off" to him. As a matter of fact, I fancy that most people who are asked to exhibit their special talents at parties and friendly gatherings must, in their souls, wonder if they are not throwbacks to the court jesters of the kings of yesteryear.

Mr. Astaire does not use his name to procure special favors. This was apparent at a recent preview when, going without the knowledge there was to be a special occasion, he found the seats sold out. Had he asked to see the manager, a seat would have been found for him. He didn't. He couldn't see why, because he was Fred Astaire, he should find a place when hundreds had been turned away. His name he has made himself—as actor and dancer. But he did not go through the agony of creating it in order to be given a seat at a theater when there were a great many other people who couldn't get seats—because they had no "names."

I do not for one moment believe that such modesty is what we have come to call an act. There are other stars of whom this might be said, with truth, but not of Mr. Astaire. He is what he is. He knows himself. He accepts himself at the valuation of self-knowledge and not at the valuation of people who are blinded to everything in a well-known name except its persistent glitter. I doubt if glitter holds much charm for him. He knows what it is worth, too. I am certain that he is glad he has succeeded. He would not be human otherwise. But what makes him glad is not all the excitement and oh-ing and ah-ing and autograph-hunting and envy. It is the knowledge merely that he has worked hard and without cessation and that he has been true to himself.

To be true to oneself and one's star, to remain clear-sighted when success is so blinding to most people—that is modesty.

This is the first in a series of articles, "What You Can Learn From the Stars," by Faith Baldwin. The next will appear in an early issue of MOVIE-RADIO GUIDE.

Why I switched to Meds

by a nurse

It would be silly for a nurse not to keep up with modern ideas. I've used internal sanitary protection even though it cost me a lot more. But when I learned that Modess had brought out Meds—a new and improved tampon at only 20¢ a box of ten—I decided to try them. And am I glad I did! Meds are the best tampons I've ever used. And they're the only tampons in individual applicators that are so reasonable.

fused to split the extra half-hour, which would leave fifteen unwanted but highly valuable minutes dangling in the ether. So the Democrats bought a full hour, cancelling such headline programs as Eddie Cantor and "District Attorney" on NBC, Fred Allen on CBS. And these artists require talent fees, even if they don't go on the air. If you like figures of the statistical type, here's what the damage came to, just so Roosevelt could read another six or eight pages of speech:

Total cost over NBC, $37,117.70. Total for CBS, $42,081.15. And for Mutual, $8,241.64. You can add to this a flock of independent stations (with no network connections) and a few small regional networks, aggregating about another $1,000.

That's just a slight idea how highly radio is valued by the men who want to see your "X" in a certain spot on the ballot.

Roosevelt reputedly made five presidential campaign broadcasts, and each of them averaged between $60,000 and $75,000 of revenue for those impartial, unbiased broadcasters. Original budgets ($250,000 for the Democrats, $150,000 for the Republicans) were stretched out of all shape by the end of the campaign.

Another fact not generally known before election day is that the political parties had a meeting with radio moguls on the very mundane question of paying for whatever time the former used. It was agreed to allow thirty days' credit from the date of broadcast. (A few of the bigger shows were paid for at once—but only a few.) Neither Church nor Johnstone were in the market to purchase any old hour that happened along. There was much figuring, slide-rule strategy, perplexed lip-biting. Keymen in both parties were studied with care, with an ear to best microphone techniques and personality.

Crackerjack outdoor orators, they learned, are sometimes thorough dubs in the studio. We have hints there is a standing, unwritten agreement among the networks that candidates for President and Vice President of either major party will be permitted the air whenever they desire, regardless of who is on at the moment. Lesser fry candidates are not so lucky.

It is not always smart, the political radio men now tell us, to buy time generally filled by a popular program unless the substitute is an eminently worthy one. Although you may garner a peak listening audience at first, a lot of them will probably be pulling their hair because a pet broadcast has been sidetracked. In 1938 young Thomas Dewey, competing for the governorship of New York state, usurped the half-hour normally occupied by "Information, Please." Apparently he lost a healthy allotment of votes.

From all survey indications, the President hit high point for big audiences on October 30 when, speaking from Boston, he enjoyed a rating of 38.7 percent—phenomenally high. Wilkie's best effort was only a shade less—a 37.8 percent gathered during his acceptance speech on August 17. It is rather fascinating to note that on the same night when F. D. R. spoke at Boston, Wilkie hit a 30.6 rating during his Madison Square Garden ("We Want Wilkie") rally. The ratio between the two—38.7 and 30.6—is almost the same as that reflected in national balloting three days later.

(Record for non-commercial broadcasts is also Roosevelt's—a high 45.5 chalked up during his Charlottesville address last June 10.)

Very few people realize that Alexander Woolcott's special stumping broadcast for the New Deal—of which he is a rabid disciple—was his own idea. It seems that Woolcott wrote Mrs. Roosevelt of his desire to speak for the President, and upon investigation it developed that he had purchased fifteen minutes on WABC, Columbia outlet in New York, with his own money. The Democrats pounced upon this and built a whole network show out of Woolcott's sally, which, incidentally, featured Roosevelt-rooter Oscar Levant.

THAT cold-sweat fear of showing any slight partiality dogged the networks all the way from conventions to election returns. Shortly before Wilkie went on NBC's air with his conscription speech, a G. O. P. official phoned the network with last-minute instructions on "fill-in" music to follow the talk.

"Mr. Wilkie will probably run short," he explained, "but he plans to end on a patriotic note, so please fill out the time with a selection in the same vein. Something brisk and brassy to sustain the mood..."

NBC thought it all over carefully—then substituted a Strauss waltz. Fear ruled that protests would follow if listeners thought they were boom-deafening for Wilkie.

The station telephone switchboards are invariably a wilderness of red lights and irate calls during a political talk. Many people insist that someone is causing terrific and willful interference with their receivers. Investigation, of course, always shows that the accusations come from impatient persons who seldom listen to the radio anyway. "When the campaign begins," explains a studio official, "they finally hear how badly their neglected set is working. Then they blame it on the chicanery of political opponents."

Another little-known fact is that the election eve, two-hour shindig splashed across the nation by those same heavy-spending Democrats cost approximately $135,000. But the Democratic National Committee did not pay for this. The bill was initiated by the Democratic State Committee of New York. Reason: There's a bit of Federal legislation called the Hatch Bill, designed to keep political parties from spending too much money on campaigns. By this arrangement, however, the provisions of the bill were evaded.

All in all, radio has never before had such an important task—as an instrument of democracy—to fulfill as its work of the past summer and fall. Newspapers can have forty-five-degree political leanings; they can distort the news and exhort editorially—but radio has a moral and a legal obligation to present both sides of the picture clearly, equally, without discrimination. Its facilities are open to all qualified candidates.

And when we look across the ocean and see what use is being made of radio there—to regiment, intimidate, deceive and arouse the many people now lost to democracy—then that little pencil-mark upon a ballot, made by minds which are free to think as they will, becomes ridiculously cheap, even at twice two million dollars.

And, at the same time, infinitely priceless.

VOICE OF THE LISTENER

Express your opinions. Write V. O. L., 731 Plymouth Court, Chicago, Ill.

Muff on Montana

Dear V. O. L.: Referring to your issue of November 30-December 6, page 43, containing twenty-five "Brain-Busters"—which we use regularly in one of our prison classes—we wish to call your attention to question number three, "In what state did Custer make his last stand?"

We being citizens of the good state of Montana, and proud of our historical spots, beg the privilege of declaring you in error in the answer given, and we refer you respectfully to the location of Custer's Battlefield National Cemetery on Little Big Horn River in Big Horn County, Montana. Wallace P. Akers, Prison Education Program, Deer Lodge, Mont.

● The answer to this question was erroneously given as South Dakota. Montana is correct.—V. O. L.

Too Bad

Dear V. O. L.: In this day of world strife, it's too bad that ASCAP, music users and BMI couldn't get together and settle their differences, so America could have the finest in the musical world. Schuyler C. Hill, Centralia, Wash.

Texas Without Representation

Dear V. O. L.: In one week I listened to ten quiz programs which mention the names of those who submit questions and the states where they live. Of the 149 questions asked, fifty-two came from the East, thirty-one from the North, twenty-three from the West, but only two from Texas.

Why are so few Texas questions used? What's wrong with Texas questions? This state has innumerable colleges. Texas has only about eight percent illiteracy. Probably the true reason Texas questions aren't used is that there are so many good ones the judges can't choose the best! Jayne E. Avery, Fort Worth, Tex.

● We have received letters from every section of the country complaining that that particular section or state was being discriminated against in the awarding of prize money. However, the alleged slight of Texas must be the more galling because it is the mother state of "Vox Pop," considered the granddaddy of question-and-answer programs.—V. O. L.

More Music

Dear V. O. L.: After a hard day's work there is nothing more restful than good music. It seems to me musical programs as such are becoming extinct, and all there is is swing, drama, comedy and so-called "idea" shows. Can't we have some more all-musical shows? Mrs. Ruth Nestell, Fletcher, N. C.

● Radio producers have got themselves all involved in figures and formulas and are turning radio into a vicious spiral similar to the movie theaters' "dishes, screens and double feature" pattern. Real standards will prevail ultimately when the great game becomes tiresome.—V. O. L.

MR. FAIRFAX REPLIES

Mr. Fairfax will give personal answers to all readers who send self-addressed stamped envelopes. Remember that he must confine himself exclusively to network personalities and programs. Address Arthur Fairfax, MOVIE-RADIO GUIDE, 731 Plymouth Court, Chicago, Ill.

Mrs. Alice Keign, Chicago, Ill.—The "VIC AND SADE" daily serial is broadcast from Chicago. However, the organist and announcer are plugged in from New York, thus confusing you on the point of origination... BRET MORRISON portrays Stanley Westland in "Arnold Grimm's Daughter."

Mr. M. Frank, Cleveland, Ohio.—In "Road of Life" DONALD KRAATZ portrays John Brent (also known as Butch McEwen), SIDNEY BREESE has the role of Dr. Thompson.
