Radio Life in NEW YORK

WINSTON CHURCHILL'S RADIO TALK did not, to our mind, add anything new to the solution of world problems, nor, for that matter, did it take anything away. What he said echoed strangely from 1919 and the idealistic tragedy that was the end of the efforts of our beloved War President, Woodrow Wilson. Eight points or Fourteen are of no consequence if first they do not reside in the heart that may demonstrate love for humanity.

But, it set us thinking—and if our thinking seems miraculous to those of our esteemed readers who sharply and vociferously at times take us to task—please be merciful in judgment on what is to follow:

What we thought: Our country is earth's only real democracy. Democratic ideals inspired our founding sires, have been the leaven in the institutions we have founded, in the way of our life, our dream of the future. It goes without saying that we are great in our heterogeneous giantism. Sprawled from one magnificent ocean to the other, from piney woods north to cotton blossoms south, we have set and worked out a pattern for humanity. We think it is a good pattern—the best so far evolved—for the rest of the world. We think, also, it is a better pattern than has yet come out of Europe with its lethal intrigues, its crass politicisim and pseudo-divine rights to rule. We have had sons emerge on this land we have builded. These sons, including our current War President, Franklin Delano Roosevelt, are products of our democratic process. Scanning the meaning of democracy we find it to mean: A way of life and of being that accords to all men their just share in the privileges they have in common, peace and a consistent goodwill and a will to do better for all who are of us.

And we thought: Bitter though the contingency of war may be, sadly though we contemplate its urgency, there is this to say: No true son of our democracy will betray us. And there is no record in our history that those we have chosen to leadership over our destiny have betrayed us. Sharp may be our disagreement with Roosevelt or loud our praise, bitter our damnation of Lindbergh and Wheeler or warm their place in our hearts—this much still is true: President Roosevelt is a product of Democracy. He is one of its sons—how great only the future may disclose—but son he is. It is not within compass of conceivability that such a son would betray the brethren who, with him, have earnestly wished good for America, and for the world, as we of a democracy understand what is good. Franklin Delano Roosevelt is our leader, deserves our trust and support on these simple premises. Whatever is to be our role in the world to come, may we not be sure that it will be one developed, strongly and resolutely, out of the crucible of our maturity as a society of men and women that looks out upon life and the future as mediums of good agency?

While we are on the subject of Democracy, it might not be amiss to point out one of the pitfalls into which fell a Polish immigrant. The immigrant was a guest of an Americanism air-quiz and was asked by the quiz-master: "What do the letters 'R. F. D.' stand for as an American public service?" The quiz-master saw an eager light in the eyes of the immigrant and graciously he pointed to him and said: "Mr. Podolowski?" And Mr. Podolowski, the buttons on his vest straining against a chest swelled with pride, bleated: "Ranklin Felano Doosevelt," and sat down while the audience hilariously contemplated this addition to Americana Incipiensis.

NEW YORK CITY:—There were about 1200 disappointed radio fans at the CBS Radio Playhouse on 45th Street to see the "We the People" broadcast on a recent Tuesday night. The show was put on from Fort Dix but someone forgot and the usual 1200 tickets were sent out for the New York studio. The guests heard the program via loud speakers—though not more than about 75 remained for the full half hour. . . . Garson Kanin has been in town on furlough and telling the radio pals made during the filming of "Citizen Kane" all about army life. Some of the boys'll be soldiers themselves before long, so they're mighty interested in knowing what's what. . . . Now that Marion Hutton has gone back with the Glenn Miller band, I wonder if Paula Kelly might be going back with the Al Donahue outfit. It would be a swell break for both of them. . . . Phil Baker returns to the air this fall with his original cast including Harry "Bottle" McNaughton—and at a reported 6500 smackers weekly! . . . Nelson Case has returned from California and is the new announcer on the Johnny Presents program. . . . Speaking of announcers—remember Don Ball? Don's been away from the announcing game for some time, acting as assistant CBS Production Editor. He's being groomed again for announcing spots and his first whack at it will be as m. c. on the Harry von Zell baseball quiz next Wednesday. . . . Orson Welles is getting his radio group all pepped up again with new picture plans. So far, only one sure of a part is Agnes Moorehead—the rest are just hoping. . . . There's a little old lady in a poke bonnet and a velvet cape who "crashes" every Monday evening performance of the "Gay Nineties Revue." She's been coming every week for months and months and the ushers generally give her a front row seat and they have nicknamed her the "One-Eyed Connolly of Radio." Last Monday she came backstage after the performance and handed Genevieve Rowe a hand-embroidered tablecloth which she had made to show her appreciation of Miss Rowe's singing as Jenny Lind! . . . An invite has arrived to attend Ilka Chase's "Penthouse Party" a week from Friday, only this penthouse will be a reconditioned barn. Ilka is doing a summer theatre show in Westport, Connecticut, and the Friday evening broadcast will emanate from backstage. Little Yvette will be on hand, too, to sing her songs, so it should be a swell show and a lot of fun to boot.

Program Changes This Week

Editor's Note: As rapidly as they are furnished by Log Editors of principal broadcasting networks and major western independents, complete program and time changes will be noted, week to week, in this section. Readers are informed, however, that even noted changes may not hold true, because of broadcasting problems, and nearly overwhelming pressure of world affairs, to which the Radio industry, in interests of public service, sacrifices time, money and, in some cases, programs, that ideals of public service shall be maintained. "NP" means New Program. "NT" means New Time.

ther evidence of the trend: John Barrymore's contract has been renewed on Rudy Vallee's Thursday evening program, indicating that the accent will continue to be on broad comedy; moreover, guest stars already booked include top film comedians.

Ed East, rotund master-of-ceremonies of last season's "Ask It Basket" and "Spotlight" programs, received three requests for auditions in one day. Col. Stoopnagle is similarly busy. East also is adding several new sponsors to his early morning "Breakfast in Bedlam" program, aired locally in New York.

Finally, all old favorites will be back: Jack Benny, Fred Allen, Al Pearce, Fibber McGee and Molly, Eddie Cantor, Fanny Brice and Frank Morgan, Bob Hope and Jerry Colonna. In addition, Phil Baker, Walter D'Keefe, and Ed Wynn may be heard.

Below are NBC programs, old and new, that are coming or have come back to the air, and the times of airing. Noted times may change but the editors will announce changes in time to prevent annoyance whenever possible:

August 31, The Great Gildersleeve, Sundays, 2:30 p. m., KFI.

September 3, Time To Smile, Wednesdays, 8 p. m., KFI.

September 4, Maxwell House Coffee Time, Thursdays, 7:30 p. m., KFI.

September 7, Chase and Sanborn Show, Sundays, 4 p. m., KFI.

September 8, That Brewster Boy, Mondays, 5:30 p. m., KFI.

September 23, Papsod Show starring Bob Hope, Tuesdays, 6 p. m., KFI.

September 28, Eleanor Roosevelt, comments, 3:45 p. m., KECA.

Comedy Rules Winter Air

LAST WEEK, with air-returning programs nearly all established for the fall and winter season, sponsors and producers in the aggregate had decided on one thing: A turbulent world, caught between the twin devils of impending post-war depressions and war itself, has need for laughter.

That comedians would rule radio roosts for the 1941-42 season is foregone conclusion. At first timorously shying at the imponderable necessity of advertising wares, raw materials for which might not be available in sufficient quantities, time-buying manufacturers in face of network reports of increased time-sales, aligned themselves in their most successful selling medium—radio.

As Radio Life last-minuted developments these were highlights: Frank Fay, veteran vaudevillian heard before on Rudy Vallee's show, heads his own program Oct. 4th to follow the Vallee program. Bob Burns has his own program commencing September 16th on CBS. Similarly, Hal "Gildersleeve" Peary has cut himself out of the Fibber McGee and Molly program, now heads his own comedy show called "The Great Gildersleeve," which first aired August 31st.

Burns and Allen have been recalled for a new series and Ransom Sherman, whose "Hap Hazard" was a summer fill-in for Fibber and Molly, gained a new lease on radio life when sponsors decided to bankroll him on a second program. Zanies Abbott and Costello will continue on the Edgar Bergen show when he and his dummy return September 7th.

Into step Mutual fell, turning up with one of the big plums of the new season, a program featuring comedian Milton Berle, dramatist Charles Laughton. Fur-cultural, scientific, artistic and kindred esthetic achievements.

Said Fair officials:

"A dazzling galaxy of super talent from around the world has been assembled for the lavish song-spun extravaganza to be presented on a huge open-air stage the last eight nights. Practically every field of the show world—radio, movie, opera, vaudeville, hippodrome and circus will be represented under the timely title, "Music on Wings". Designed on a scale far too large for any theater or auditorium, it employs a huge cast of singers, dancers, comedians and specialty artists. Its costs exceed $100,000 and an entire train to transport the scenery, baggage, and accessories has been chartered.

Notable is the fair as third largest in the state in attendance—and pari-mutuel handle. The horse racing programs every afternoon are outstanding this year. Pari-mutuel facilities have been increased. Four tunnels have been cut from the grandstand seating area to the second floor of the building, the entire space given to the pari-mutuels.

During first nine nights is to be a brilliant society horse show, blue-blooded aristocrats from the foremost stables in the country to parade.

A giant joy zone is to feature days punctuated with parades, contests, sports, conventions, reunions, drills, massed bands, other feature attractions.

AGAINST THE FLOOD: Difficult among problems faced by engineers of the nation is that of flood control. Annually throughout the land rampaging rivers pound against friable banks, raise flood crests above shorelines, sweep in over countrysides to devastate priceless arable acres, ruin homes, add to life losses by this and other hazards of nature on the wild-loose.

Sensing that flood control is not completely an engineering problem, but also one of awakened sentiment leading to civic pressures to give engineers money and authority to do their good works, radio last week was reported doing its part.

Months ago Margaret Lewerth and Ann Daly, writers of the "Bess Johnson" radio script, unconsciously plotted a flood control theme, first injected the idea over air August 5. New York Times broke a special story from Mount Holly, N. J., that citizens were to petition Governor Edison, President Roosevelt for flood control appropriations, apparently totally un-inspired by the radio parallel, mythical citizens of a mythical Radio Mt. Holly.

For weeks now, Bess Johnson has paced air drama with insistent efforts to put over the plans of "Engineer Scot Thorne" to saddle tempestuous "Moccasin River" by damming and flooding surrounding farms.

The real Mount Holly in low-lying Burlington County has been trying to promote the diversion of its Rancocas Creek, which seasonally overflows its banks to cause hundreds of thousands of dollars damage.

HAP HAZARD

Lord OF CRESTFALLEN MANOR

By Don Sabre

Hap Hazard's Show Promises a Winter Of Grins and Laughs

HERE probably are places somewhere in this broad land of ours that are like "Crestfallen Manor", but of one thing we can be certain: Wherever they are they cannot be one-half so funny as the mythical place from which Ransom Sherman, radio's newly created character, "Hap Hazard" comes airing before a laugh-stricken audience at 5:30 p.m. Tuesdays, KFI (NBC-Red).

The Manor is perhaps like those quaint hotels one sees in journeys through provincial America, hotels that have inevitable loose shingles that bang lustily in the night winds, doors that hang drunkenly and creak like lonesome ghosts, floors that crackle and weave underfoot, cracks in walls, temperamental taps that pay no attention to their prescribed duties—running hot water from the cold, cold from the hot with the noisy abandon of whales and sea lions coming up for air. Proprietors of these hotels are almost always garrulous old duffers who make big talk on hospitality and deprecate woeful lack of services with more handsome talk on atmosphere. Such hotels usually have a be-pimpled gawk for a clerk, a blustering mildly alcoholic handy-man, a Tillie Lisch who waits on tables and makes up beds, beds that collapse in the witching hours and a cook who can perform the miracle of waving a frond of celery across a kettle of boiling water and proudly announce "soup de jour" as though this were a major event in lives of the guests—when there are any guests.

Ransom Sherman is, of course, more personable than the proprietor of such a place in real life. But he has developed his characterization of the composite owner of the nation's Crestfallen Manors to a satisfying degree.

Ransom's place of business is supposed to be a run-down vacation resort. He never makes enough money to put the place in working order, is, at his funniest best, an awkward and inept and well-meaning fellow who is often puzzled, sometimes dismayed at the turn things will take.

He occasionally tries to rise superior to the distressing things that happen to his ambition of making something of Crestfallen Manor. At these times he has been known to appear at a convention of smart hotel owners and harangue them on "How To Run a Hotel" with emphasis, entirely unintentional on the "down." . . . Some carelessly-thrown-away carrot seeds sprouted in the back yard of Crestfallen Manor and inspired Hap Hazard, after affectionately regarding the pair of strjngy and sickly carrots that struggled from their unwatered habitat, to address Crestfallen's women on "Modern Technics in Garden Making" or "Sowing With Complete Abandon To Grace with Bloom and Beauty Hitherto Undeveloped Areas About the Home Site" . . .

One night a lady guest was caught in a folding bed which, carrying out the full implications of its title, promptly

Perspiringly hard does Felix Mills work to musically lead Hap Hazard through his days as Lord of Crestfallen Manor.

Theatre Notes

Mirandy, who has become so well known and so well loved over the radio that people have forgotten her last name, is very much at home in the part of Maw Cane in "Hill Woman," current play at the Assistance League Playhouse. Mirandy comes from the Ozark Hills of Southern Missouri which were settled in great part by the mountaineers of Tennessee who came out before the Civil War, always keeping to the hills and ridges. Mirandy says, "the Cane family are a little more primitive but the people I was raised with had the same downright honesty, unflinching courage and much the same dialect."

Ten years ago Mirandy's radio career started with the Beverly Hill Billies. That association earned for her thousands of friends. The popular "Mirandy's Sociable" programs added to these and the "Gilmore Circus," an NBC attraction, made friends for her all up and down the Pacific Coast. It was during her two years as featured comedienne on this program that she earned the sobriquet, "Her Rural Highness."

Mirandy is now heard at 9 a. m. daily over KFI with "Mirandy's Garden Patch," and her devoted listeners are from the lowest to the highest, for her hobby, gardening, has universal appeal, especially when coupled with the quaint philosophy and humor that are Mirandy's greatest charm.

Her pioneer ancestry gives Mirandy an especial interest in early American times. For several years, she had what she called "Pioneer Day" on her program every Friday and her "Tales of the Early Days" is an outgrowth of that interest. Perhaps it is these associations that make her feel a real kinship with Maw Cane whose character seems a composite of the hill women Mirandy has known both personally and through word-of-mouth stories.

Left, Charles Laughton, eminent actor, to star with Milton Berle, Broadway nimble-wit, in Mutual's "Three Ring Time" program.

MUTUAL'S THREE RING TIME!

Where Charles Laughton as Captain Bligh Comes To Air in Rollicking Moments of Pure Fun

WE NEEDN'T WORRY WHEN it was. It was back some years ago when Charles Laughton, the formidable Captain Bligh of "Mutiny on the Bounty", dozens of other pictures that have left their memorable impress on the popular mind, was a little boy in England.

But it was like this:

"Charles, m'lad. Hadn't you best be thinking of what you're to do in this world?" It was senior Laughton speaking to the chubby-faced, strong-bodied chap who was his son. "Now, m'lad, there's the Royal Navy. If you wish, it can be arranged for you to enter schooling for a commission in his Majesty's Fleet. What say, lad?"

Had Charles followed his father's wishes he most certainly would have emerged into years of his maturity as one of that gallant band of gentlemen who officer and command the far-ranging ships of the British Fleets. A modern version of the Crown-faithful Bligh might have been his career. But—he didn't choose to follow the sea. And why?

"Well," said Charles Laughton the other day as we were on interview, aftermath of Mutual announcement that on September 12 at 5:30 p. m., he would be star of that Network's first great Hollywood origination, transcontinental "Three Ring Time", . . . "well, it's a bit hard to say. Damnee, but there was a strange stirring in me for the theatre.

I probably was a better Naval Officer in dramatic roles than I might have been as part of His Majesty's Forces. And perhaps I've done a better job, brought more to everyday living for everyone as an actor."

"I've tried to be a good actor, but it's been a struggle avoiding being pigeon-holed as a type. Of course I won my spurs in all sorts of roles from effete foppery to fiendish sadism, but it's comedy I like best. I think 'Three Ring Time' is going to give me a chance to do what I really like to do, make people laugh."

Whether he makes us laugh, cry or grit our teeth with determination to get even with him when, on the screen, he has been particularly villainous, Charles Laughton has made a place for himself in the American theatre of stage and air. His air-debut, I think, bespeaks the definite trend of radio toward ultimate dominance in the entertainment field as television and frequency modulation make more complete the fine illusions of reality heretofore reserved for the speaking stage, never really achieved by motion pictures.

Laughton attained success on the London stage largely through portrayals of leading character roles and ascribes his intimate knowledge of characters to his observations while working as a clerk in Claridge's hotel.

The heavy-set English-born actor made his first American appearance in the play, "Payment Deferred." Hollywood offers followed and he has appeared in such films as "If I Had a Million," "Les Miserables," "Mutiny on the Bounty," "Rembrandt," "Jamaica Inn," and "The Beachcomber." He won the Academy award in 1933 for his work in the English-made "Henry VIII."

Teamed with Laughton in the new series is Milton Berle, nimble-witted and intensely talented young comic from New York's glittering Rialto called Broadway. Starred, also, is Shirley Ross, Radio's red-headed hotcha of vocal handsprings who is to be backed by Bob Crosby's band.

Berle was born in New York City and at seven made his first professional appearance, doing an imitation of Charlie Chaplin for a Yonkers audience. New York movie studios were humming in those days (if silent pictures hummed) and soon young Berle was appearing with Ruth Roland, Pearl White, John Bunny and Mabel Normand and doing his best

MAN ON COVER

HE is Orson Welles, conceded to be one of the brighter luminaries of the American stage, radio and motion picture. For years Mr. Welles has been established as a leading contributor and volatile and healthy younger influence in American entertainment. When Western clocks swing slowly round to 6 p. m., Monday, September 15, Western ears may hear him in his return to the air from CBS-KNX. With him, in the first of a series of brilliant Fall Shows, will be his famed New York Mercury Players, the young dramatic group that has broken precedents for performance and theatrical virtuosity.

Count Marriage Rocks

Haven MacQuarrie's detailed file, built up during the past year for "Your Marriage Club", now lists over 317,000 separate and distinct domestic problems encountered by Haven's listeners in the state of Matrimony. Asked about this huge number, MacQuarrie replied airily—"A mere trifle. I'm convinced the actual number of problems encountered in a successful marriage amount to at least three times that number, perhaps more. They'll never all be listed. I'd say about 93 per cent of these problems can be solved."

MOSCOW IN FLAMES!

A Dramatic Radio Narrator Verbally Paints The Great Fires of History

Ed. Note: Hardest of all roles in radio is that of the story-teller. In ancient days story-telling was an art developed to an amazingly high degree to hold interest of the populace. The modern prototype of the story-teller of old must pit his skill and talent against a multiplicity of competition raised by modern methods of communication. Radio Life has discovered in John B. Fisher a story-teller who recalls the great traditions and art of the past. Currently Mr. Fisher, in cooperation with the Los Angeles Fire Department, tells, over KFI Saturdays at 9 p.m., stories of history's great fires. In this story we think that Mr. Fisher meets the cardinal requirements of an artist—interest, drama, education and entertainment.

NO CITY in Europe, perhaps, is so strangely impressive as Moscow, capital of old Russia. Its unbelievable extent, its weird mixture of Gothic steeples and impressive Oriental domes, the forbidding towers of the Kremlin, that ancient palace and fortress of the Czars, the countless dingy streets, the unspeakable squalor of the miles of slums—all these were an awesome sight in the eyes of Napoleon's men from the west. Within these grim walls lay the treasures of a hundred conquests; along these roadways Ivan the Terrible had ridden; in that courtyard Peter the Great with his own hands had beheaded a thousand men in an afternoon. This was a tragic city, a mysterious city, one with a peculiar aura of death all about it.

When Napoleon's French entered the city they met with no resistance. The populace watched in sullen silence as they marched past, and mute were the beggars, whose fitful cries usually made a shrill din in Moscow's gutters.

Cannon on the city walls were found to be unloaded, the enemy armies nowhere to be seen. They'd retreated long before, by a carefully conceived plan, looking toward the approaching winter storms to defend their country for them, even as modern Russia looks to winter as an ally against Hitler. But they weren't leaving the total defense to nature, as the French discovered very shortly. Napoleon's soldiers, hungry and tired and thirsty, soon set about satisfying their immediate needs and by nightfall were eating and drinking their merry fill. At midnight, as Napoleon and his generals sat in council in the Kremlin, the rank and file of the soldiery, almost out of hand in their carousing, failed to notice a small fire that had suddenly broken out, apparently by accident, in the eastern section of the city.

With great care and with devilish cunning, the Russian army, before its abandonment of Moscow, had placed thousands of kegs of oil and inflammable spirits throughout the city. Every well and cistern was also filled with such liquids and at a pre-arranged signal first one, then another, then another was set ablaze by the patriots who had remained behind. The small conflagration soon became a holocaust covering all of Moscow and scarcely a tower or steeple could be seen, so dense were the red-rimmed clouds of smoke which swirled about everywhere.

STORY TELLER is John B. Fisher whose broadcast narrated dramatizations of Big Fires of History rank with best.

The lack of engines and other fire-fighting weapons insured the success of the Russian plan, and the French were powerless to stop the blaze at any point.

The looting of the city began almost at once. The greedy soldiers left their orgies to search for valuables along with the crowds in the streets. All the prisons

- A Contented Announcer
- Dance Music vs. Good Music
- The FCC—A Wrecking Crew

IF THERE had been a bucket handy we would have retched with considerable enthusiasm the other night when a silky voice bubbled out the fact that its owner was the "most contented announcer in radio." The gentleman then went on to say that he owed his contentment to the fact that he was stationed at Catalina for the summer and was just having a whale of a time.

Perhaps his contentment would turn to restiveness were he to realize that his so publicly acknowledged state of mind is making him a laughingstock among the fellows of his profession.

WE HOLD no quarrel with the program brass hats who sincerely believe late evening dance music is attractive to a large audience. That is quite possibly true.

We do find copious arguments with the program brass hats however, for the manner in which the late evening dance programs are produced. An increasingly apparent attitude of dance band announcers revolves around the theory that "Anything Goes." Attempts at sophisticated banter between numbers are, in most cases, juvenile and unfunny. The manner in which numbers are introduced is generally slovenly, uninteresting and downright bad showmanship.

Bandleaders who cherish ambitions of becoming pre-eminent in their fields would be wise to engage an announcer out of their own pockets, train him diligently and keep him on the payroll at all times. It would be a "sound" investment.

ON SECOND thought, we aren't entirely convinced that the percentage of late evening listeners is favorable toward dance music, anyway! If a check was made, we'll bet more dialers would vote for the classics. The abundance of musical junk and the glaring lack of good music on the air during the late hours is an admission of a sad state of ignorance on the part of the listening public.

We have more faith in that public, evidently, than the brass hatters. We're confident that a larger, more commercial audience could be established and maintained with a consci-of "Radio Today" and principal of NBC's Blue Network (KECA—3:15 p.m. Fridays) offering "Radio Magic." Little is there of Radio's nether-world language and vernacular that Doctor Caldwell does not know. Fortnight ago, to test the knowledge and guessing ability of air-tuned persons, Dr. Caldwell related the following and challenged listeners to make what sense they could of it:

"Well, the boss tells me there's a corpse on Park Avenue so I goes up and stumbles over an old maid's skeleton and says 'Ouch.' Some neighborhood genius has been at work there so the folks had almost given up their outlaw as a morgue job and were depending on their rat trap. I tuned up the music bottles, dismantled the Ferris Wheel, took their old aunt apart and still couldn't locate the butcher.

"But it was plain at first glance that this was an attic job and that the G-man had reduced the railroad to a bunch of junk. I finally traced the headache to a strangle iron on their bird rest and did a swell doctor job. But by that time I was so disgusted that I said I had to check a few tubes and went out to get pie-eyed.

Those who fail to make of this seemingly senseless jargon the sense it actually makes when uttered by a radio repairman, may turn to Radio Lifelines in this issue, there learn what radio repairmen talk about when set-working.

MAYOR BEN WILLET: In a section that is predominantly devoted to the fabrication of amusement for the rest of the land has a tradition grown and flowered: The nation's entertainers, lodged in the West, have a first claim on smaller civic honors a grateful citizenry may bestow.

Last week Cliff Arquette, star of NBC's Monday evening show "Point Sublime," in which he appears as garrulous, crafty, alert Ben Willet, making his genuflection to tradition became, by accolade of residents of community-conscious Sherman Oaks, California, Mayor of that flourishing suburb of Los Angeles.

Most of such honorary posts are conceived in spirit of fun, with publicity-wise chamber of commerce taking a proper advantage of publicly popular individuals. Yet to most of those who have been so honored the jobs have been taken seriously. James (Fibber) Jordan, last year made ruler of Encino, metamorphosed into an Encino horn-tooter of civic first-water.

Said Cliff "Ben Willet" Arquette soberly:

"I sincerely believe I will do a good job for Sherman Oaks. To start with, I know nothing at all about politics."

Plans were made last week to induct the town's new mayor formally into service a fortnight hence.

RANCHO ROMANCES: Combining powerful entertainment with educational historic accuracy, a new half-hour dramatic program, "Romance of the Ranchos," sponsored by Title Insurance and Trust Company of Los Angeles, KNX-airs 6:30 to 7:00 p. m., Sunday, September 7.

Star is Frank Graham, as narrator, with a cast of six actors, sound effects, specially arranged music.

Initial program will trace history of Rancho San Rafael, first of great ranchos, use of which was granted by Governor Pedro Fages to Jose Maria Verdugo in 1784. Rancho San Rafael comprised land on which are now located California's Glendale, Burbank, Montrose, La Canada, Eagle Rock, Flintridge, Highland Park, Garvanza, and the campus of Occidental College.

Second and third programs will feature Rancho Santa Gertrudes (Santa Fe Springs, Downey, Bellflower, etc.), Rancho San Jose (Pomona, Claremont, San Dimas, Spadra).

Stories are carefully checked for historical facts, with the vast files of the company's title plant at disposal of script writers. Dr. Robert Glass Cleland, Occidental College savant, author of numerous articles and books on California history, is assisting in preparing research material.

Romance of the Ranchos will relive days of dons, sturdy pioneers whose deeds and exploits were foundations of California.

Said sponsors: To newcomers it will instill some of the spirit and romance of California that have for a century and a half been a heritage to California.

HENRY ON THE PHONE: Fortnight ago Roy Boardman, a fire warden in bomb-racked London, stood within a circle of interested Britishers. While they gaped he expounded practical axioms for self protection when Luftwaffe bombers rode high in English skies. He turned impatiently as an aide came up, said: "You're wanted on the telephone, old man."

Into the Chief Warden's office strode Warden Roy Boardman, there to prove what transatlantic radio and phone experts in New York and Hollywood had claimed a few minutes before could not be done: That a call from Hollywood could be successfully put through to London.

"Hello," bellowed Boardman.

"Hello, Boardman. This is Bill Henry calling. How's it going?"

"A bit rummy, but still a bit of all right. How're you, Bill?"

"Fine. Bombs getting around?"

"A few, blast their bleeding hearts."

Thus was completed most complicated successful international phone call made by Bill Henry to date ("Bill Henry Calling" programs on CBS replace Hedda Hopper's broadcasts during the latter's vacation.) Henry talked for 11 minutes with Boardman. Radio experts and phone company officials assured him the call would never be completed, due to complexity of war-time restrictions surrounding calls to London. Cooperation from officials in 12 American and English governmental bureaus made the call successful. American friends of Boardman, a department store partner when he isn't enforcing the blackout in his district at night, made sure that Boardman's wife and two children, safe in a New Hampshire resort, were listening.

More: Hap Hazard

folded up when the lady went to bed. Hap was called. Unwilling to forego this opportunity to demonstrate hotel efficiency as he understood it, Hap melodramatically put in long-distance calls for latest information on how to extricate people folded up in folding beds. Before the call was completed the lady had extricated herself. This same lady lost a $10,000 string of pearls. Hap, when informed, assigned himself as Crestfallen's house detective, spent several hours on the case; to solve it eventually by deciding the dinner dessert—tapioca—shouldn't be quite so hard on molars.

What makes Hap Hazard extra fun are Sherman's travesties on current air-favorites. Hap has humorously trounced the Easy Aces, Goodwill Court, Early Bird programs, Singing School of the Air and News Commentating.

Felix Mills and his orchestra, Edna Odell, vocalist with a warm and friendly voice, and Harlow Wilcox, he of the booming controlled basso, announcing all conspire to make Hap Hazard as simple and human a show as "Fibber and Molly", as funny mayhap, as "The Great Gildersleeve", but—in the end—to make this writer decide: Johnson's Wax has a formula for more than polishes—and that's good fun.

Radio Life Lines

By "BUCK" HATHAWAY

What They Do Besides: Announcer Bill Goodwin of CBS Blondie has just harvested 100 wheat acres at Dos Palos, plans a December 200-acre corn crop. . . . Jim (Fibber) Jordan owns a bottling works in K. C. . . . Penny Singleton manages a knitwear shop in San Fernando Valley. . . . Al Pearce long-distance-runs a ranch in northern California. . . . Ann (Meet Mr. Meek) Thomas buys and sells real estate.

Some panned and some praised the articles on FCC. There was no personal spite involved. I wouldn't be guilty of so insulting your intelligence despite the El Scorcho by H. G. Pierce of Olive View, California. . . . Intent was merely to do my part to help check a threat to a free institution, a threat sincerely thought to exist. . . . So let's shake hands. . . .

Funny Lines Gleaned Here and There: Peter Van Steeden, band leader, advising us males never to say to a woman that a thing is as plain as the nose on her face. . . . Keenan Wynn to dialog writers: "The longer the spoke the greater the tire." . . . Harry Salter about the tattooed lady: "She lost her job because people wanted talking pictures." . . . Ezra Stone saying "One trouble with Hitler's machine is that it is overburdened with nuts that can't be screwed down." . . . Max Marcin, the Crime Doctor: "You rarely see a married genius, for the reason that nobody can love him quite as much as he does." . . . Alice (Big Sister) Frost: "It's a short road that has no tourist camp." . . .

Look For This: Frank Graham of the thousand voices in one compact frame, will air-open September 7 "Romance of the Ranchos," stories of Southern California's adolescent days of romance and adventure. . . . He will narrate for 39 weeks for Title Insurance and Trust, Los Angeles. . . . Chamber music lovers will get a bang out of another CBS natural. It's a 10-week Beethoven Chamber Music series originating from the Library of Congress. Check your stations on CBS, for KNX may not carry. . . . DLBS (KLIJ) comes through with its first variety show on TC with "Three Ring Time," starring Charles Laughton and Milton Berle. Starts September 12 with Shirley Ross and Bob Crosby's ork. . . .

Notes on a Cuff: "Date with Judy," NBC's Bob Hope summer replacement, will stay as a fall show. . . . "Summerfield" is the mythical locale of the Great Gildersleeve's. . . . Wistful Vista will be twice as quiet now. . . . Bill (Old Timer, et al.) Thompson was caught hosting Joan Blaine the other aft. . . . Hap Hazard will go on from October 15 over NBC-Red with a rating as 2nd top-show for Johnson's Wax. . . . Deal is good for Ransom Sherman who took a long chance to be a fill-in for Fibber and Molly during summer. . . . You youngsters who wanted to know—to be an announcer, just brush up on these tips: 1) Dress like a businessman; 2) Play golf in low 80's; 3) Have a beautiful blonde, brunette, titian or auburn-haired wife; 4) Be able to play a number of characters; 5) Have an infectious laugh, a patch of distinguished gray at temples; 6) Enunciate perfectly but appear spontaneous; 7) Have a voice like Harlow Wilcox of Hollywood Premiere, whom we've just described. . . .

Story of the Week: Actress Barbara Weeks of "Are You a Missing Heir" tells it. Barbara was seated in the living room during the recent heat wave. Her young nephew squirmed and itched like all small boys, who manage to convey the impression of doing a hard day's work merely sitting still. Finally nephew blurted: "Auntie Barbara, it's so hot. Why don't we just take our clothes off and sit in our figures?"

Radioman's Quiz: Corpse—Set almost beyond repair; Old Maid—Old model without a name; Skeleton—Cabinet; Ouch—Set requiring more work than estimated; Neighborhood Genius—Person who fixes his friends' radios; Outlaw—Orphan set; Morgue Job—Set beyond repair; Rat Trap—Midget set; Music Bottles—Tubes; Ferris Wheel—Drum-type dial; Old Aunt—Old antenna; Butcher—Set that cuts out; Attie Job—Unlicensed set; G-man—Gimmick man, or cheap repairman; Railroad—Set that whistles at signals; Bunch of Junk—Just that; Headache—Tough set to service; Strangle Iron—Choke coil; Bird Rest—Aerial; Doctor Job—Repairs made by revising circuit; Check a Few Tubes—Excuse to wife to be out late; Pie-eyed—Pie-eyed. So now you know.

Spy Report: At the "V" club opening last Saturday among a glittering group of Radio celebs, our circulation manager, Gail Cole, with his apple-eye-lovely wife, Lila. . . . The V's run by Art Wilson . . . 6th, La Brea.

Ancient IS NOT HOWARD'S WORD

By John Richmond

Much Married Is The Singing Septuagenarian Of Gay Nineties Revue!

songs are included such daisies as "Goodbye My Lady Love," "What's The Use Of Dreaming?" "Central, Give Me Back My Dime."

This spry 74-year-old takes pride in recalling he wrote a song, "Loving You To Music," that Tommy Dorsey introduced and also recorded along with Glenn Miller.

Actually Howard prefers songs of the Gay Nineties whose themes were broken hearts, trusts betrayed, weeping women under weeping willows, and faded floral wreaths on forgotten graves. Those moth-eaten songs he still sings today on the Columbia Broadcasting System's program, "Gay Nineties Revue." Soubrette of this program, Beatrice Kay, sings them with burlesque overtones, mock melodramatic touches, kids them constantly, but Joe still considers them the most serious and sentimental music of our time.

The story of Joe Howard's life is a neat little Horatio Alger story. He was born in a ramshackle building which was both home and business quarters. In the front of the dwelling was a saloon operated by Joe's father. It was a quiet night in the neighborhood that did not produce a dozen street and barroom fights. At the age of eight, after his mother died, Joe ran away from home to peddle papers at the approach to the Brooklyn Bridge. He was arrested. Refusing to answer a police captain correctly, he was packed off to Father Drungoole's Orphanage in downtown New York. He behaved so properly he was made altar and choir boy. Joe's father came to claim his son, but Joe refused to leave and hopped a freight for St. Louis.

In St. Louis young Joe made his home in a packing house behind a warehouse, got along by peddling papers. He moved into cosier and cleaner quarters at a newsboy's home. While selling papers it was Joe's habit to sing in a boyish soprano that could be easily heard several blocks away. This practice shortly brought him a week's offer from a vaudeville team—Riley and Woods—appearing in a local theater. Billed as "Master Joseph" he warbled "A Boy's Best Friend Is His Mother." He made such a hit that immediately he was hired by McNish, Johnson and Slavin's Refined Minstrels.

Next he got a job with a touring road company presenting "Uncle Tom's Cabin." He played Little Eva, wound up finally in St. Joseph, Missouri, where, because he was a big boy for his age, he was able to sing in saloons, to make a small, steady income. There Joe recalls renting a room with a family who resided a few doors from the mother of those famous outlaws, the James brothers.

But he had the wanderlust, at the age of 12 sneaked into Dodge City, Iowa, by stage coach to sing in saloons. After two years he tired, moved on to Denver, a town of silver dollars, gambling halls and jeweled bar-rooms, with many a saloon floor paved with gold and silver coins. At 16 Joe made his debut in a local stock company playing romantic roles. It was here that he married for the first time, the marriage to 16-year-old Ida Burt lasting a day, ending in annulment by the young lady's mother.

Within a year he met Ida Emerson, 19, called the most beautiful girl in Colorado. Joe coaxed her to accompany him on a tour of the Colorado mining camps. If performers pleased, these rough and tough miners tossed gold coins at them: Joe recalls once stopping a gold piece with his jaw while singing. That night, too, he took in $100 in gold.

When Joe and his wife, Ida, drifted apart, they arranged a quiet divorce. Shortly afterward he fell in love with Mabel Barrison, the star of one of his current hits and formerly star of "Babes in Toyland." The night they started on their wedding trip, Joe dashed off the song, "If All Moons Were Honeymoons."

After Joe's wife, Mabel Barrison, died of tuberculosis, he returned to vaudeville.

SIX feet tall, with silver-white hair, twinkling brown eyes, and a ruddy complexion, Joe Howard is proud of 525 songs he has written and published during 60 years in show business. No man in America has ever composed more tunes.

Joe was born in 1867 in New York's Mulberry Street, a tough, brawling Irish neighborhood made famous by the Five Points Gang, who had a droll habit of flinging cobblestones at policemen. He made his vaudeville debut in St. Louis as a boy of 11, wearing a velvet Little Lord Fauntleroy suit and singing in a piping soprano, "A Boy's Best Friend Is His Mother."

His most famous song, "I Wonder Who's Kissing Her Now," written in 1906, sold 3,000,000 copies and became America's No. 1 barbershop ballad. Standing next to him at the bar of Chicago's College Inn were two college men. He listened to fragments of their muddled, sentimental talk. One of them said, "I wonder who's kissing her now." Howard dashed upstairs, in two hours completed a hit tune. Among other hit entious campaign of good music in the late evening hours.

MEMBERS of the Federal Communications Commission are busily engaged in the business of breaking up what they believe to be a radio monopoly. In the process of their breaking up, the busy little beavers are throwing in a considerable number of thumping and damaging whacks at the industry in general.

The average listener may be content to sit back and silently observe the thumping because of a misguided notion that "the big networks have it coming to 'em."

These silently observing average listeners will spring to their heels in alarm and high indignation one of these days when they begin to notice a serious lowering of the American standard of broadcasting. They'll screech in glorious but unavailing chorus when they hear Senator Quackenbush instead of the NBC Symphony, or Congressman Robb in place of the Club Matinee. And they'll positively have hysterical cat fits when political propaganda of every description odorizes their newscasts.

Now is the time for the radio public to look to its wave lengths. But it had better take a quick look, because there ain't going to be any public wave lengths much longer, at the present rate of destruction.

And let no man entertain the idea that we are the tool of vested interests, the dupe of the "monopolistic networks." We are, instead, a guy who likes his radio just as it is . . .

owned and operated according to the American way of life!

Cleaners Dish Dirt

Mutual's New York switchboard girls are used to all sorts of odd telephone calls, but there's one frequent caller these days who has disturbed their usual calm.

Every night at about six o'clock, a woman calls in, proclaims in a shrill voice: "I have some news for you!"

Then she proceeds to reel off a minute of chatter about world-famous people and what they have been doing for the past twenty-four hours. She covers everybody from Churchill to La Guardia. All of her "news" is obviously phony.

When this amateur commentator is through, she announces mysteriously, "That's all for tonight," and immediately hangs up.

The other evening one of the operators managed to get a word in before the sign-off. "Where," she queried politely, "do you get this information?"

"From the window cleaners," the woman whispered.

Chef Milani's Sunday Dinner

For Eight Persons

Consomme Royal and Carrots
Ripe California Olives
Escalopes of Veal with Sorrel
Risssoles Potatoes
Romaine Salad with Italian Dressing
Peach Melba
Assorted Cakes
Monarch Coffee

Recipe for Consomme Royal and Carrots

1 qt. small tender carrots
3 eggs
Salt and pepper
 $\frac{1}{4}$ lb. butter
1 qt. hot consomme

Boil the carrots in salt water. When done, drain off the water and pass the carrots through a fine sieve. Take a cup of this carrot puree and mix with 2 whole eggs and the yolk of 1 egg, season with salt and pepper, and strain again. Put in a small buttered pudding mould and cook in a double boiler. When set, allow to become cool, remove from mould, and cut in fancy shape desired. Serve in the hot consomme.

Recipe for Escalopes of Veal with Sorrel

4 lbs. fillet veal
4 lbs. sorrel
Some flour
Salt and pepper
Yolks of 2 eggs
2 tbsps. olive oil or butter
Bread crumbs

Cut the fillets into slices just under $\frac{1}{2}$ inch thick, and trim off all skin and fat. Give the escalopes an oval shape. Each should weigh about $3\frac{1}{2}$ to 4 ozs. Flatten out with a beater, then dip them in flour, coat very evenly with egg yolk well seasoned with salt and pepper, and finally with bread crumbs. Pat down with the blade of a knife to make sure that the bread crumbs will adhere to the meat. Have ready a pan of hot butter and cook the escalopes for 5 minutes on one side and 5 minutes on the other. When done, they should be a nice golden color. Place on a hot dish on a puree of sorrel.

Recipe for Puree of Sorrel. Remove the stem from the sorrel and wash leaves in 4 different waters to remove the sand. Have a kettle with salted water on fire. Put the sorrel in the boiling water and cook for 10 minutes, stirring often. Pour off the water and let stand in the colander 15 minutes so the water will drain dry, then strain through a sieve. Then put the strained sorrel in a sauce pan with 3 ounces of butter and bring to the boiling point. Season with salt and pepper, and bind with 2 whole eggs, beaten. Do not boil after adding the eggs but heat just enough to give the sorrel a firm body.

Recipe for Peach Melba

8 large peaches
1 qt. vanilla ice cream
 $\frac{1}{2}$ pint raspberry pulp, strained
Juice of one lemon
1 lb. powdered sugar

Mix well the half pint of strained raspberry pulp, the juice of the lemon and $\frac{1}{2}$ lb. of the powdered sugar, place in an earthen pot and let set overnight. Then pack in ice, stir well, add a cup of powdered sugar and stir every half hour until smooth and thick. Keep on ice until used. Peel the peaches and cook them whole in a light syrup. From the vanilla ice cream, frozen very hard, cut some round pieces about 3 inches in diameter and 1 inch thick. Place the ice cream on plates, place a peach on the center of each and pour Melba sauce over them.

CHEF MILANI is heard Monday through Friday at 11 a. m. over KMPC in a program entitled A DINNER FOR FOUR FOR A DOLLAR, NO MORE.

Radio Life Consumers' Club

Directed by Chef Milani

SOME SWEET FACTS—Sugar sprinkled on frying bacon makes it crisper. Sugar used in cooking ham or pork creates a nuttier flavor. A small amount of sugar added to beets, peas, string beans, lima beans, corn, carrots, parsnips, squash, onions, tomatoes, cauliflower, spinach, asparagus and celery, usually points up their natural taste. Sugar cooked into cereals instead of being sprinkled on afterwards will give them a brand new quality. Sugar on fruits softens their acids and brings out their mellowness. Sugar added to beaten egg-whites makes a lighter meringue, and if you add it before the eggs are beaten, the result will be even lighter.

THE PENNIES IN YOUR DIET—Your body can use about eight of them in the course of a lifetime. At any rate, that's how much copper your system needs, and without copper, they say that the iron pigment cannot get in its work in building red blood cells. However, we're not advising you to pulverize pennies and sprinkle them on your food with a salt or pepper shaker. An easier way to get the copper you need, and the only way it will do you any good, is to eat such things as calf's liver, cereals, chocolate, dried fruits, legumes, molasses, nuts and oysters.

CHINA ON YOUR CHINA—It's high time that we introduced China into your food files with a few Chinese dishes. You all know Chop Suey, Chow Mein and Egg Foo Yung, of course, but do you know that there are a great variety of ways to fix both these and other Chinese items? Well, just in case you don't we are giving you a few of our own ideas in the form of recipes this week, but in addition here are a few other ideas that may interest you:

A Chinese touch can often be introduced into a dish with the use of rice, bamboo sprouts, bean sprouts, mushrooms, pork, duck, shrimps, chestnuts and ginger, and if you cook with peanut oil, you'll get even closer to the real thing. Then again, if you chop up meat fine or slice it into thin strips for your dishes, and if you serve tea in handleless cups during the dinner, you'll be approaching what you find when you go to a Chinese restaurant. Still another trick is to decorate a dish with those noodle-like egg strips that you find on your food when you dine in Chinatown. These are not as hard to make as you think. You just beat the eggs lightly and spread them very, very thin on a large griddle or in a large pan, and then, after browning them on both sides, you just make ribbons out of them. Two curious facts about tea and rice (which Mr. Ripley may use some time, if he hasn't already), may also interest you before we change the subject. The one on tea is that the tea plant is a tree, always grown from a seed, and willing to grow to a height of thirty feet if left alone. The one on rice is that rice flowers in China are used for cleaning the teeth.

IN CASE YOU SPILL SOMETHING—Water applied at once will remove almost any kind of food stain, but remember that "at once" business, because if you wait till later, things get more complicated. If you do wait till later, you can keep in mind that berry or fruit stains will generally come away with distilled or rain water if they are not too old and if you don't use anything else on them first. Ice cream and milk stains often come off with an application of first cold and then warm water. Coffee or tea with milk and cream can usually be removed if you use cold water first and then pour a stream of boiling water on the stain from a height of about two feet, making sure to set the stained piece in the sun immediately afterwards without wringing it out. Plain coffee or plain sugar syrup stains can come out with soap and water, but must also be set in the sun without being wrung out and the soap should be rubbed on and into the stain. Generally water, hot water, rain water, distilled water, soap rubbed on and in, sunshine, and no wringing out—will take care of a food stain, but be careful not to use heat of any kind on food stains that are rich in protein, because the heat will coagulate the protein and thereby set the stain.

IN A LIGHTER VEIN—A schoolteacher once asked her class what three foods were required to keep the body in perfect health. Whereupon a boy in the back of the room replied, "Yer breakfast, yer dinner, and yer supper."

Recipe for Pork Chop Suey

- | | |
|-------------------------------------|-------------------------|
| 12 ozs. bean sprouts | Salt |
| 2 ozs. mushrooms, Brandy-wine Brand | Cornflour water |
| 4 ozs. bamboo shoots | 4 tps. peanut oil |
| 6 ozs. onions | 1 cup stock |
| ½ oz. lichen | 1 tbsp. sugar |
| 8 ozs. pork | Soya bean Chinese sauce |
| | ½ lb. rice |

Cut the mushrooms in half, soak the lichen in hot water for 15 minutes. Cut the bamboo shoots, the pork meat very thin, and the onions in pieces. Sprinkle a little salt in a hot oiled pan, put in the bamboo shoots, the onions, the mushrooms, and cook for 2 minutes. Next add the bean sprouts, and cook for a minute longer. Lastly add the meat, sprinkle with cornflour water, a few drops of Soya bean Chinese sauce and cook for another minute. Add 1 cupful of stock, a little sugar, and few drops of peanut oil. Cook for 1 more minute and serve with Chinese soya bean sauce and steamed rice.

Recipe for Special Chicken Chop Suey

- | | |
|-----------------------------------|-----------------------------|
| ¼ lb. bean sprouts | ½ lb. thinly sliced chicken |
| ¼ lb. thinly sliced bamboo shoots | Salt |
| 2 oz. can Brandywine Mushrooms | 4 tbsps. cornflour water |
| 6 ozs. thinly sliced onions | 1 egg |
| 3 thinly sliced tomatoes | 4 tbsps. peanut oil |
| | Some soy bean sauce |
| | ½ lb. rice |

Slice the mushrooms very thin. Sprinkle a little salt in a hot oiled pan, put in the chicken meat and cook for 1 minute. Add the bamboo shoots, the bean sprouts, the onion, and mushrooms and cook for another minute. Add the tomatoes, cook for another minute, sprinkle with cornflour water and few drops peanut oil and cook for another minute. Put on a hot dish and place over it an egg, previously well beaten and cooked in a hot oiled pan for one minute, serve with soy bean Chinese sauce and strained rice.

Recipe for Boneless Beef Roast

- 2½ lbs. rolled shoulder beef
- Salt and pepper

First season beef with salt and pepper. Now put 1 cup of water in the bottom of Dutch oven. Then place roast in and cover. Put to bake in oven at 350 degrees for thirty minutes. Then uncover and let bake until roast is tender and baste frequently. Now serve with baked potatoes.

CHEF MILANI'S DOLLAR (FOR 4) DINNER No. 2

- Chicken Espagnole with Rice
- Sliced Tomatoes and Cucumbers with Lady's Choice Vinegar Sauce
- Bread and Butter
- Coffee
- Seedless Grapes for Dessert

Recipe for Chicken Espagnole with Rice

- | | |
|-------------------------------|-----------------|
| 1 lb. frying chicken | Salt and pepper |
| 1 can (8 ounces) tomato sauce | 4 tbsps. oil |
| 1 onion, 2 cloves garlic | ½ lb. rice |

First, joint a 2½-lb. frying chicken, and wash and dry well. Now pour oil in a Dutch oven. When the oil gets hot, put to saute the jointed chicken. As soon as the chicken gets to a golden color, put to saute the onion and cloves of garlic minced very fine. When the onion and garlic begin to get brown, season with salt and pepper. Now open can of Spanish style tomato sauce and put over the chicken. Then cover the Dutch oven and let simmer until chicken is done. Now, in another pot boil ½ lb. of rice which you have washed and drained three times. When rice is tender, drain and place on top of chicken. Cover pot and let simmer for fifteen minutes, and then serve.

| 2 lbs. new potatoes | Salt and pepper |
| 4 slices Wilson's Ol' Fashund Bacon | |

First, open a 12-ounce can of Wilson's Mor. Now cut the meat into 1-inch squares. Then mince 1 onion and 2 cloves of garlic. Now saute onion, garlic and cubed Wilson's Mor with 4 slices of chopped Ol' Fashund Bacon in a Dutch oven. As soon as the onion and garlic begin to brown put in 2 lbs. of bell peppers cut into strips. Then season with salt and pepper and cover Dutch oven. Let simmer until peppers are tender. Then add 2 lbs. of new potatoes diced and 1/3 bottle of Hauser Sauce. Now cover again and let simmer until potatoes are done.

More on Howard

His partner was Mabel McCane, whom he married and divorced within a year. He next teamed with Ethelyn Clarke, considered one of America's best dressed women.

In Los Angeles he had frequently escorted Irma Kilgallen, daughter of a Chicago steel magnate, to several cabarets. At a gala dinner party by Barney Oldfield, the first man to drive an automobile 60 miles an hour, a mock marriage between Joe and Irma was suggested. Joe fell in with the spirit of the jest and agreed. The next morning he discovered that he had gone through a real ceremony. Local newspapers splashed this event on their front pages. Joe hastily left Los Angeles.

In Omaha, four weeks later, Irma caught up with him. Going to the box office she purchased a ticket in the orchestra. When Joe came on stage, she drew a revolver, threatened to shoot not only her husband but his partner, Ethelyn. She was calmed down, removed from the theater to her hotel. Later employees of the hotel were startled by a pistol shot. They broke into Irma's room, discovered her dead.

Four days later Ethelyn convinced him he could offset bad publicity if he got married again. That was in August, 1916. One year later they traveled to France with Elsie Janis, to entertain the A. E. F. Joe's last song success, "Somewhere in France Is The Lily," earned him $50,000 in six months' royalties. By 1924, he had been divorced again. He started out on a vaudeville tour with lovely Anita Case, whom he married before the tour was completed. She too divorced him within a year.

Vaudeville was by this time on the down-grade. Joe Howard's style of songs had waned in Tin Pan Alley. When the crash came in 1929, he lost $280,000. Reduced to playing vaudeville on lesser known circuits, Howard, now 63, made a meager living but prospects were dim.

In 1930 he met his present wife. They started a new life together. To Joe, his wife gave understanding and sympathy at a time when he was in despair.

During his career as actor, singer, composer and producer, he amassed a fortune of $1,500,000, only to lose it. At the age of 63, with just $100, Howard pitched into a vaudeville career, started up the come-back trail. Vigorous and hearty, he just couldn't think of retiring and musing over his memories as most men of his age might have done.

Recently he and his wife celebrated their eleventh wedding anniversary with their 10-year-old son, Joe Jr., whose ambition is to be an aviator. At that time his wife remarked, "I think I should be very grateful to Joe's other wives. For I think he learned much from them that makes him the gentle, considerate and unselfish husband I still love deeply today."

Says she: "Joe is ageless."

GAGS OF THE WEEK

Tommy Riggs and Betty Lou and their various guests took the humor spotlight this week with the following gags submitted by reader-listeners to whom tickets are to be mailed. Remember, readers, more tickets are mailed usually each week than are credited to gags that are published, so listen and write. Whether your gag is printed or not the chances are a ticket will be on the way to you—that is, as long as tickets last.

San Fernando Mission Restoration To Be Aired

San Fernando Mission, where through the generations leading out of California's early history, the silent Padres ministered to the weary traveller, delivered the Gospel of Christianity and maintained a beacon of advancing civilization, will bridge the gap between the old and the new, September 7.

For the first time in its history San Fernando Mission services will be broadcast by KMPC in an hour long airing of rededication ceremonies. Time of broadcast 8 to 9 p. m. September 7.

Services to be held as part of the rededication will be the first in 67 years in the historic place at the metropolitan entrance of San Fernando Valley. Built in 1797 the hoary and traditional headquarters of religion's march into the West was ravaged by elements, later abandoned as the territory grew up, finally fell into nearly complete disrepair.

Citizens over the years, headed by Father Charles Burns, contributed to restoration of the old Mission. September 7th's exercises, religious ceremonies and fiesta motif mark its renovation.

Brunette songstress Maxine Gray returned to Hollywood last week for rehearsals with Dave Rose and his orchestra on Mutual's "California Melodies" program which is now back on the air to steal a scene from those erstwhile flicker figures.

More on Laughton

Shirley Ross, while a student in the University of California, auditioned for bandleader Gus Arnheim. A nine months contract as blues singer with the Arnheim band followed. Eventually the band settled in the swank Beverly Wilshire Hotel in Beverly Hills. Studio executives spotted Shirley and soon she was appearing in films. One of her recent pictures was "Kisses for Breakfast." Shirley is the wife of talent agent Ken Dolan.

The origination of the show from KHJ in Hollywood augurs that Mutual will establish itself as a formidable competitor with its big cousins CBS and NBC on the West Coast, to help center national attention more completely on the West as the show-place of the world.

were opened and thousands of criminals joined in the robbery and rioting. As soon as Napoleon realized that the burning of Moscow was the result of a preconcerted scheme, he ordered all persons found carrying torches to be shot. The result was that the only illumination for four unholy nights was that offered by the blazing city itself. As the fire burned on into its second and third days, the disorder spread with equal rapidity. In and around the Kremlin the looting was directed by the Emperor in person. In the gorgeous Cathedral of the Assumption, two huge scales were set up, and outside, two furnaces, one for gold and one for silver, were kept busy continually melting down the settings torn from the sacred pictures on the cathedral walls, the holy vessels, the gilt ornaments, even the decorations on the priests' robes. What the fire didn't take, the French did. Those churches which escaped the flames were used as stables for the officers' horses and thousands of hallowed relics found their way into the common soldiers' knapsacks.

By the night of the fourth day, the fire had become unbearably intense, so much so as to drive everyone from the city. Now the huge warehouses along the riverfront were a mass of flame and the miles upon miles of filthy slum dwellings were soon just a blackened memory.

Clusters of sparks sailed over the tallest buildings as if shot from some mammoth gun. Stores of spirits exploded continually and weird blue flames hid the yellow and orange of burning timbers in every section. By this time Moscow seemed to be a geometric pattern of fire, for its streets in those days were paved with wood and when these were all ablaze, the city looked like nothing so much as a gigantic, red-hot griddle. On the morning of the fifth day a heavy rain stopped the fire's spread, and the French returned to what remained of their quarters, walking back over still-smouldering embers. Here they remained for over a month, for Napoleon daily expected from the absent Czar a message of surrender. During that time the greatest privation imaginable was suffered. Food grew scarce, water became polluted, the inhabitants of Moscow became unruly, and hundreds of executions took place every week. At last, reluctantly, the Emperor gave the command for "the retreat from Moscow", that terrible march back to Europe that was to become the most famous episode in all military history. When the first ragged grenadiers reached Paris, months later, only a fragment of the Grand Army remained alive. Six hundred thousand had started on that triumphal invasion. Less than 60,000 returned. Is history today about to repeat itself?

Ad-Libbing a Cinch

Jean Colbert, black-haired actress heard on "Myrt and Marge" and "Kate Hopkins" programs, claims ad-libbing holds no terrors for her. She once worked on a program, in which the writer turned out part of each day's script after they had gone on the air. It was a mystery series, and the writer claimed he worked better under pressure. "When we couldn't make out his hand-writing," Miss Colbert says, "we either ad-libbed or shrieked. The show was so blood-curdling anyway that one or two extra shrieks just added to the atmosphere."

Brief Lines

Conrad Thibaut had a few friends to dinner the other evening and the invites he mailed out were in the form of bank checks which read—"Pay to the order of —; one dinner." . . . Phil Baker had all but signed a radio pact for this fall when he decided the submitted script didn't look so hot on paper. Phil's smart enough to know that he can't stand another flop so he'll go on searching for a better setup.

Cinch Cake Mix

MAKES PERFECT CAKES EVERY TIME

All necessary ingredients in each package. Just add water, stir and bake. Guaranteed delicious cake every time. Comes in 4 favorite flavors.

CINCH APPLE SAUCE

Each bag makes full quart — flavorful, old fashioned applesauce. Just add water, simmer and sweeten.

NOTICE TO FLIES

Get Out Of Town!

Flies who up to now have merely been lulled to sleep by fly spray had better get out of town, for women are buying BIF! And BIF not only kills flies but kills them quick and kills them dead!

Stainless to clothing, furnishings and draperies — BIF is pleasantly scented, and works in any sprayer. It is also effective with ants, moths, mosquitoes, roaches, silverfish and other pests. If you want an insect spray that really kills flies, then get BIF—right away.
