Miss Lois Mayo, 8461 Vicksburg, Los Angeles, Calif.

Gentlemen: "Voices we'd like to Hear" are Elliott Lewis and Rosemary De Camp. I enjoyed the Hollywood Playhouse series very much.

I would also like to see a picture of Elliott Lewis in your series of Supporting Players. Maybe you can give me some information. Since one of the first programs of "Lights Out," I have not heard Elliott Lewis on any program except the transcribed "Hollywood Theater." Could you tell me if he is still in Hollywood? Or perhaps he is in some branch of the armed forces? I would like very much to find out about him, as he has long been a favorite of mine.

(Elliott Lewis is now in the service, and is heard only when he arrives in town on a furlough. Rosemary De Camp is doing very little radio work, due to picture commitments.)

Lucy Stone, 15 West Beacon Street, Alhambra, Calif.

Gentlemen: I do not purchase Radio Life every week, but I was fortunate in getting a copy (quite at random) yesterday, your Third Anniversary number which is very interesting, indeed.

However, in looking it through I failed to find any editorial mention of Rev. Charles E. Fuller's "Old Fashioned Revival Hour." I should think that the mere fact of its "almost world coverage" exceeding, as I understand it, that of any other program on the air, would have given it an honored place in your issue. Apart from this, however, its tremendous importance should have given it recognition.

I read on page 3, that "Radio is, (in your opinion) the greatest instrumentality available to our government for the promotion of civilian and armed morale and cooperation," and I am inclined to agree with you. But, if you are sincere, will you please tell me why you ignored the program which, without any possible argument is, of all the programs of the air, "the GREATEST instrumentality" "for the promotion of civilian and armed morale?" I say the "greatest" not because it is in itself any finer than other programs which broadcast the gospel, but in its amazing coverage it reaches more than any of the others. I say that these programs are the greatest, because they build for eternity.

It appears to me that people today are more concerned about the "morale" than they are about the morals of America. We are at war and our very lives are at stake. All that we have and all that we can muster of military, air, or sea power IS NOT ENOUGH to win this war unless God fights for us. If we fail to give Him the glory for our successes, He may leave us to ourselves and if He does, we must fail!

I wish we had a few men like Sir William Dobbie and General Montgomery! Men who do not hesitate to speak of their dependence upon God. How we need such programs as Mr.

Fuller's and the Lutheran Hour, for instance!

I do not expect that you will give my letter any publicity, but if you should, I only ask that you will not change the wording in any way.

(We read your letter, Mrs. Stone, with a great deal of interest, inasmuch as we contacted the press department of the "Old Fashioned Revival Hour" some time ago. We hope material for a story will soon be coming.)

As you requested, we did not change the wording of your letter in any way.)

Before Anthony Eden, Britain's Foreign Secretary, left England for his visit to the United States, he was asked by Edward R. Murrow why he was going. "You know how it is," Murrow quoted Eden as saying on a recent Sunday broadcast from London. "The Prime Minister and the President get to talking and then one says to the other, "See here, this is getting detailed, let's have our experts get together about it."

John Lake

YOU'D never suspect that the eerie voice of "The Whistler" was owned by a person whose favorite hobby was collecting poetry, and whose favorite pastime was eating chocolates.

And to that same person—John Lake—belongs also the menacing voice which chills you when he says "Lights Out" to introduce Oboler's mystery drama.

Aside from being a very handsome chap, Lake is a favorite among producers because of a certain quality in his voice. If he is talking "straight," he has the kind of a voice that, once heard, is never forgotten. But when he's doing dialogue or character parts it is absolutely unrecognizable. The other night on "Lights Out," he had no sooner emitted the eerie words than he had to speak the first lines of the show . . . with a French accent! Some task, eh?

When John Lake was asked to what he attributed his success in radio he replied, without a moment's hesitation, "Candy did it."

Apparently he noticed our completely bewildered look, so he continued, "You see when I was a kid, we lived near a candy store and posted in the window was a sign that read:

PROMOTERS: Please do not bother me with your money-making schemes. My business suits me.

"This has been the keynote to my radio career. I like radio. I am perfectly happy to be in it all my life. Other jobs don't interest me." With such unswerving determination, no wonder Lake is doing so many programs.

HERE'S THAT MAN as he puts "his all" into his lines. When he was asked how he liked to do comedy, he replied, "Like? I've done comedy all my life!"

WELLES CONGRATULATES the cast on the fine job it has done. (Of course it's their show). He's talking to Mary Livingstone (new hair-do) and clever co-writer of Benny show, Bill Morrow.

Welles Steps Into Benny's Shoes

Without Giving Up His No. 17 Coupon

A FEW WEEKS ago when Orson Welles was pinch-hitting for the ailing Jack Benny over NBC, he aired some of the cleverest scripts we have heard for quite some time. Bill Morrow and Ed Beloin, the Benny writers who composed the script "in spite of Mr. Welles," really surpassed themselves.

The following dialogue is reprinted by special permission and comprises high spots of two scripts: March 14 and March 21. Here's hoping you'll have fun imitating "Your Obedient Servant," Orson Welles.

GIRL: Pardon me, has Mr. Welles arrived yet?

WILSON: No, not yet.

GIRL: I'm his secretary, Miss Harrington . . . If you don't mind, I'll wait for him.

WILSON: No, no, come right in.

GIRL: Thank you . . . Now which one of these microphones will be used by Mr. Welles.

WILSON: That one right there, Miss.

GIRL: Then I shall spray it.

(SOUND: TWO LOUD SPRAY EFFECTS).

GIRL: There, that's better.

PHIL: Well I'll be darned, ain't that class?

GIRL: Young man, are you Phil Harris?

PHIL: Yes m'am.

GIRL: Then hold still.

GIRL: You'll be all right now.

WILSON: That must be Orson now.

GIRL: Mr. Welles never knocks, he kicks the door right down.

WILSON: Oh . . . Come in.

NELSON: (Very pompously) Studio B, I presume?

WILSON: Yes.

NELSON: I have come to clear the way for Mr. Welles . . . I'm Mr. Tootle-Quirtle, his secretary.

WILSON: His secretary. Then who's Miss Harrington?

NELSON: She's his private secretary, I am right out in the open.

WILSON: Oh . . . Well come right in.

NELSON: Thank you . . . Miss Harrington, has Mr. Welles' microphone been sprayed?

GIRL: Yes, also Mr. Harris.

NELSON: Good.

SOUND: DISTANT RUMBLE OF THUNDER.

NELSON: Ah, the master approaches.

WELLES: Good morning. This is Orson Welles.

WELLES: Thank you, ladies and gentlemen . . . Miss Harrington, has this microphone been sprayed?

GIRL: Yes Mr. Welles.

WILSON: Well, Orson, I can't tell you how much we appreciate your coming over here tonight. . . It's awfully nice of you to step into Jack's shoes.

WELLES: I'm glad to do it, Don . . . It's a pleasure to step into a pair of shoes nowadays without handing over a coupon.

PHIL: Ha, ha . . . Orson, that's a lulu.

WELLES: a lulu? . . . Miss Harrington, are you sure this man has been sprayed?

WILSON: Pardon me for interrupting, Orson, but at this time I generally say a few words about toasty brown, sweet as a nut Grape Nuts Flakes.

WELLES: I'm glad you brought that up, Don, because I have a few suggestions in mind that I'd like to speak to the sponsor about.

WILSON: (Shocked) Speak to the sponsor!

PHIL: (Shocked) Speak to the sponsor!

DENNIS: (Voice breaking) Speak to the sponsor!

WELLES: Of course, speak to the sponsor . . . Miss Harrington.

VERNA: Yes, Mr. Welles.

WELLES: Get me New York on the telephone . . . I want to talk to Mr. Mortimer of General Foods.

DENNIS: (Voice Breaking) Speak to the sponsor!

WELLES: Young man, will you please pop your eyes back in? . . . You see, Don, I love Grape Nuts Flakes . . . In fact I have them for breakfast nearly every morning, and it's my thought that a few changes might—

GWEN: On that New York call, Mr. Welles, the operator says there will be a three-hour delay.

WELLES: Delay nothing, give me that phone.

WELLES: (With Authority) Hello operator, this is Orson Welles . . . I want that New York call and I want it now . . . Hello . . . Hello Mr. Mortimer, this is Orson Welles . . . Now I have a few changes I'd like to have put into effect immediately. . . Jot these down, will you old boy?

DENNIS: (Excited) Jot! He told the sponsor to jot!

WELLES: Dennis, please . . . in the first place Mr. Mortimer, I love Grape Nuts Flakes, and I can see the reason they are America's fastest-growing flake cereal . . . Thank you . . . However, have you got your pencil ready, old boy? . . . Well get one, for heaven's sake.

NELSON: Please Mr. Welles, remember what happened to your last sponsor.

WELLES: We never mention that. . . Now first Mr. Mortimer, in place of Mr. Benny's I'd like my picture put on the box. I shall be dressed in tights with a spear in my hand . . . Tights and a spear.

DENNIS: (Excited) Speak to the sponsor!

WELLES: Next, instead of twelve ounces of tiny, individual Grape Nuts Flakes, I think each box should contain one huge 12-ounce flake. . . Just one flake.

NELSON: But Mr. Welles, that's impractical.

WELLES: Type your resignation, Tootle-Quirtle.

NELSON: Yes sir.

WELLES: Quiet!

WELLES: Well, and who is this charming young lady? Come, come my dear, speak up.

MARY: (Voice trembling) My name is Mary Livingstone, and I'm not the least bit nervous, so there.

WELLES: Well Mary, this is a pleasure. When did you get back to town?

MARY: Yesterday on the Super Chief. I got off at Pasadena.

WELLES: I wish I'd known that. I would have arranged for the Tournament of Roses to be held simultaneously with your arrival.

MARY: Gee!

PHIL: Wow, that Orson really does things in a big way.

DENNIS: Who did anything, he just said it.

WELLES: Dennis, I have spent years inflating the balloon that is Welles. Please do not puncture it.

DENNIS: Yes sir.

WELLES: Well tell me, Mary, how is Jack coming along? Is he up and about?

MARY: Oh yes, he's feeling a lot better. A few more days and he'll be over his nervous breakdown.

WELLES: Nervous breakdown? I thought Jack had a cold in his chest.

MARY: He did. But when he got his doctor bill, he went right from a mustard plaster into a straitjacket.

WELLES: Now Mary, Phil, before we rehearse, I think I had better explain this scene to you.

NELSON: Quiet everybody, Mr. Welles is explaining.

WELLES: Now Mary, in this scene, you as my fiancée and Phil as my brother, have parts which overshadow mine in dramatic intensity.

MARY: You mean we're more important than you are?

WELLES: Definitely. The motivation of the scene, its mood and pulse and tempo rest entirely in your hands.

MARY: I want my face in the picture, too.

WELLES: Mary, please. . . You, (Please Turn to Page 32)

➡ BEFORE. Mr. Welles was asked to pose with Rochester. This is the way he looked. After the shot was taken, he raised a commanding arm and said, "No. That must be taken over. I don't like the way I looked. I was rolling my eyes."

➡ AFTER. Here's the way Mr. Welles preferred to look as he posed for his public. (Note: the cigar Rochester is handing to Welles is his own brand. However, both are cigar smokers, though Welles has his made to order.)

"How To Write a Hit Song"

By MARK WARNOW

Conductor of Columbia's "Your Hit Parade" orchestra.

A few weeks ago a friend said to me, "If anyone knows how to hit with a hit song, you should know." He was laboring under the delusion that because I play ten hit tunes a week on "Your Hit Parade" I might understand the ingredients of a Number One number.

Of course, I was flattered—so I put down my baton and tried to figure out why a hit's a hit.

There's one school of thought holding that lyrics are the important thing. Another school pounds on the piano and says the melody is more important.

I don't want to get into any such argument as that—so I've developed my own, or "Warnow," school of thought.

The successful song writer, as far as I can see, must know what the public wants. Of course, he has to be quick about it. The public may not want it next week. That is why the average songwriter is an agile fellow with a wild gleam in his eyes. And he's kept worn down by his efforts to follow the public trend in musical taste.

Perhaps here I should define a trend in music. A trend is a taste in music which, by the time the songwriter recognizes it, has changed to something totally different.

From this it might be gathered that I have a sneaking feeling that few songwriters actually know what the current trend is. Well now, that's right. The present taste might be for revivals—at least, the last time I looked out the window we were in the midst of what history will call the "Oh, Johnny, Oh" era—but while songwriters are pulling oldies out of the old kit bag, they may suddenly discover the public wants sweet ballads on the sentimental side.

When thus confused, a hit song writer should sit down and read a newspaper. He may find something topical in the news that will make a good song. The relaxation will do him good.

A songwriter either knows or doesn't know the trend. He sits down at his piano or paces around his room in the throes of writing a tune which he hopes will land on "Hit Parade." He writes it—and in the due course of time it DOES land on "Hit Parade."

Does he know how he did it? Nine times out of ten he hasn't the slightest idea.

Do I know how he did it? Quite frankly, no.

Who, then, knows how he did it? Someone must know. Do YOU know? Ah, there we have it. You—the public—know more about it than anyone else.

A songwriter writes a song. A publisher publishes it. An orchestra plays it. And the public decides whether or not it shall be a hit song.

And here I am, trying to tell the public how to write a hit. I think I'll just pick up my baton and get back to work.

You keep right on telling me what they are, and I'll play 'em.

↓ WORKING TOGETHER are orchestra leader Mark Warnow and organist Ethel Smith. Ethel just recently joined "Hit Parade," but her popularity with listeners has zoomed. She has introduced an entirely new school of organ playing.

Radio Life's Portrait Album

Alice FROST

Femme Detective, of "Mr. & Mrs. North"

Winsome Alice Frost is almost too charming a bit of femininity to adorn a whodunit show, but that she does with whimsical grace every Tuesday night on NBC-KFI at 9 o'clock in the series, "Mr. and Mrs. North." Alice, who can invest her blue eyes with an extremely quizzical look, plays Pam North, who hides shrewd talent for deduction under a fluffy manner with which she fools suspects. In this picture you can detect a pondering glint in her eyes—perhaps she's wondering what kind of tangle she will be called upon to unravel in the next episode!

the planning, planting and growing of vegetable produce. Mrs. Wilkes will answer questions on her regular Thursday night radio program "Meet Your Victory Gardener," heard 9:15-9:30 p.m. each week.

New Quizzer

"Take-A-Card" has been selected as the name for a new quiz program which will make its debut over KHJ-Don Lee System on Wednesday, April 28, at 8 p.m. Lehn and Fink will bankroll the broadcast.

The program will turn the spotlight on five weekly contestants who will vie for cash and war bond awards. Emcee will be the popular Wally Butterworth, formerly with Parks Johnson on "Vox Pop."

Hinds Honey and Almond Cream will be the product plugged.

Try It Out

In over four years only 36 contestants have been admitted to the sacrosanct circles of the Thought Twister Club.

The Thought Twister Club is that little monument to memory on NBC's "Dr. I. Q." in which the Mental Banker (Jimmy McClain) reads a thought twister only once, and if the contestant can repeat it exactly, he gets 35 silver dollars, which ain't hay.

Test your friends out on this one: "Let's agree to agree," said McGee to Lee.

"Let's do agree to agree, McGee," to him said Lee.

Tsk! Tsk!

Radio is like that! . . . Billie Burke and Roland Young left Hollywood last season to visit New York and star in Broadway plays. Both of their shows got unhappy reviews and closed quickly with flop ratings.

Nevertheless, their air performances have been sparkling, (particularly those of Miss Burke, who did an excellent job on the "Cresta Blanca Carnival"), and they are being called for many radio "guest shots." Thus, the two who went East to make money in Broadway plays, have wound up making the do-re-me over the radio.

Army Hit-Kits

Because hard-boiled military experts contend that "singing soldiers are good fighting soldiers," American Army men on all fronts and in camps at home are to receive Army Hit-Kits each month, with the lyrics of six top songs selected by the soldiers and a committee headed by Fred Waring.

With each fifty copies of the small pamphlets, which are about three or four inches in size, will go one regular-size piano score of each song for the use of accompanist or song leader. First six songs selected to go are "This Is the Army, Mr. Jones," "I've Got Sixpence" (an unpublished English Army ditty which first caught on with our men at the Miami Base), "Move It Over," "Praise the Lord and Pass the Ammunition," "I Had the Craziest Dream" and "There Are Such Things."

GAGS OF THE WEEK

For the best Gags of the Week, heard over Radio and sent Radio Life, tickets will be sent winners for admission to radio broadcasts. Send your best gag selection to 1029 West Washington Boulevard, Los Angeles.

Mrs. George Jameson, 1823 1/2 Montrose Street, Los Angeles, Calif.

Heard on "That Brewster Boy":
 Joey: Do you know what has four legs and one foot?
 Marvin: No, what?
 Joey: A bed.

(Tickets also to Mary Stewart, 2428 Alsace Avenue, Los Angeles, Calif.)

Mrs. M. R. McCune, 2534 South Carmona, Los Angeles, Calif.

Sirs: Heard on the "Breakfast Club" program from Chicago:
 Cast member: Let me tell you about the fellow who fell in the well.
 Master of ceremonies: Well, did he hurt himself?
 Cast member: Of course he did, he kicked the bucket.

Mrs. William Halterman, 918 1/2 Surf Street, Balboa, Calif.

Heard on Eddie Cantor's program:
 Jap Announcer: The Jap navy is now the finest, most luxurious navy in the world. Each ship has parlor, bedroom, and sinks.

Mrs. A. Botkin, 3311 Atlantic Street, Los Angeles, Calif.

Heard on "That Brewster Boy":
 Joey: What did the scarf say to the hat?
 Marve: No. What?
 Joey: You go on a head, I want a neck.

Mrs. Carl Routley, 12003 Idaho Avenue, West Los Angeles, Calif.

Heard on "Breakfast at Sardi's":
 Corney: Why is a tight girdle like an income tax blank?
 Tom: I don't know.
 Corney: Because if you fill it with the wrong figure you get pinched.

(Tickets also to Dan Wickham, 1500 Spruce St., South Pasadena, Calif., Mrs. W. H. Driver, 8201 Third Ave., Inglewood, Calif.)

COMING: More fun, more music, more drama. Two new shows for your "must listen to that" list.

More music. That's from Raymond Paige and his orchestra, with Elaine Farrell, soloist. More drama in the same show, with celebrity guests in timely dramatic spots. The combination will be added to your radio schedule Tuesday evenings at 9:30 p. m. KFI, of course.

More fun, from "Scramby-Amby," a radio game with a new twist. It's a little like the word games you used to play, the quiz shows you listen to now. But it's strictly original, fascinating stuff. Wednesdays at 9:30 p. m. And also KFI.

Ray Paige's new show begins April 20, and "Scramby-Amby" makes its bow to the coast April 21.

Less than a month old, the Garry Moore-Snozzle Durante show already has carved out a large portion of an audience acceptance. Screwball Moore and equally screwball Durante provide a line of comedy that is distinctly different from the Abbott and Costello show it replaces, but enough like it to please us Abbott and Costello fans.

Garry Moore

The music of Xavier Cugat's orchestra gets and deserves high billing on this half-hour of madness and music. Time, 7:00 p. m., Thursday, on KFI.

If you've grown a little tired of heavily idealistic talks about the world after the war, or deeply detailed economic plans for post-war life, make a date now to hear "The World We're Fighting For" Friday night at 7:30 over KFI.

The world pictured in that series of dramas is a practical place. The authors, two of Hollywood's outstanding writers, show people like us actually living in a world that isn't totally idealistic, nor Buck Rogerish either. It's a realistic, believable and entertaining world. Sounds like a pretty good world, too. Listen in next Friday. You will like the drama, even if you disagree with the ideas.

People who get up before daylight don't have to miss the radio news nowadays. KFI has several shows for their benefit, notably a world news broadcast at 6 a.m., and Ted Meyers' feature, "Today in the News" at 6:45 a. m. And for the swing shifters there are frequent news bulletins from midnight to 6:00 a. m. Very news minded is KFI.

LAUGH

With 3 new comedy stars!

GROUCHO MARX

Saturday at 7:15 pm

The maddest of the mad Marxes steps into your home — with his king-size mustache, seeing-eye glasses, performing cigar and TNT wit. With him is frozen-faced swing songstress Virginia O'Brien, find of "Meet The People" and Hollywood's newest singing star. This week Groucho will trade quips with William ("Wake Island") Bendix. Together they'll make it one of radio's maddest shows.

MILTON BERLE

Wednesday at 6:30 pm

Here comes Milton Berle, too—star of the 1943 Ziegfeld Follies and one of the reasons that Broadway has come back to life again. With him is sweet, swinging Diane Courtney, and the music of David Broekman's orchestra. You can always count on Berle for a riotous interview with an unusual guest star. Tune in Wednesday night and raise your laughter to the Berle-ing point!

RANSOM SHERMAN

Thursday at 9:30 pm

Thursday night the place to laugh is Grapevine Rancho, where Host Ransom Sherman turns on the fun with Leo Carrillo, the screen's "tough guy" Lionel Stander and comedienne Anne O'Neal. There'll be a special guest star, too, and the South American singing sensation, Carlos Ramirez. Hear Sherman get himself into the goldardnest predicaments, then stumble out as nobody else could ever think of doing!

Diggin' Discs

With JACK LAWSON

Like the Mississippi River, Paul Whiteman "keeps on rollin' along." Of all the guys in the band business, no one has been "washed up" more than portly P.W. He's been "washed up, all thru" at least a dozen times that we recall. But somehow or other, he always seems to come back greater than ever.

We hadn't heard of Paul for some time, when all of a sudden Capitol Records kicked its shiny, new hat into the record business ring. That was about a year ago. Paul Whiteman, the great up-and-down man of the band business, was exploited as an EXCLUSIVE recording artist for the new company.

We didn't ask Glenn Wallichs WHY Capitol had contracted Whiteman. We KNEW. Whiteman is an institution. His name gave the company needed PRESTIGE. True, his records didn't sell as big as Ella Mae Morse's "Cow-Cow Boogie" or Johnny Mercer's "Strip Polka," but his name got the new company attention in the record and music trade.

Paul Whiteman always has been a LEADER. He has brought out NEW THINGS. You might say he fostered "symphonic jazz." He made jazz palatable for the masses. He brought out some of the greatest of modern singers and musicians—Bing Crosby, Morton Downey, Mildred Bailey, Johnny Mercer, the King's Men, Tommy and Jimmy Dorsey, Henry Busse, Jack Teagarden, Matty Malneck, to mention a few.

In fact, a few years ago a musician really didn't hit the TOP until he played in Whiteman's orchestra.

In 1919 at the old Alexandria Hotel here, the Whiteman band earned around $350 a week. Just a few years later it moved on to the Palais Royale in New York at $7,000 a week. It might sound like a lot when we hear that Tommy Dorsey earns in the neighborhood of $100,000 per picture nowadays, but old "Pops" dragged down close to $600,000 in "The King of Jazz."

At a charity concert in Carnegie Hall, he grossed $65,000 in one night, the highest on record.

Then, first thing we knew, he was back at us again, playing one of his numerous engagements at the Coconut Grove. He had decided he wanted to be an orange raiser in California.

We don't know what "Pop's" latest ambition is, but his latest "comeback" was auspicious, when he played five concerts within a week in Southern California for the benefit of the Los Angeles Philharmonic Orchestra fund—each of them a sellout.

No, you can't keep a good man down, and P.W. is one of those kind of guys!

"WALKS IN BEAUTY"

Radio City—(BR)—Just managed to make Madame Chiang Kai-shek's Los Angeles Press Conference. Arrived breathless, but the Chinese consul courteously showed me in, after I'd presented my credentials.

The large hotel room was jammed with representatives of the press associations, local newspapers, and national magazines, famous writers. Almost at once, Madame Chiang appeared, greeted us, and composed herself to answer our questions.

It was a press conference on the style popularized by the White House. We were placed on our honor to make no direct quotes of what China's First Lady said. It was her seventh press conference and probably her last on the present visit.

The usual questions were asked: What about China and India? China and Russia? Did Madame Chiang believe that we could arrive at an enduring peace? The same questions this gracious lady has been kind enough to answer from coast to coast.

But I assume you've read about that or heard it over your radio, so I'd like to mention a few things that haven't been printed or broadcast. At the conference, I met Mrs. Louise Roberts, sister of NBC's Upton Close, a brilliant woman who also is an authority on the Far East and who lived with the Soong family in China for many years.

Soong was Madame Chiang's maiden name. There were three girls in the family, all of them beautiful and talented, and, in conformance with an old Chinese custom, they took a first name in common. Just as if three American sisters were to be called Rose Jean, Rose Anne and Rose Marie. Instead of Rose, the little Soong sisters were given the name "ling." Madame Chiang's given name is Mei-ling, meaning beautiful understanding, and the sister who married Sun-yat-sen, father of Free China, is Ching-ling or clear understanding.

Turned out that Mei-ling was well named. She proved to be the most beautiful of the three, and, auspiciously, the Mei part of her name is also the Shanghai Chinese expressions for America: beautiful country.

When I heard Madame Chiang reply to queries from the press, I detected just a trace of a Southern accent. She went to school in Georgia for a while before becoming Wellesley College's most distinguished alumna.

China's lady wore pearl ear-rings at the press conference. She also likes jade. Dressed in a black gown. I wondered about that since most of the press descriptions have placed her in that color. Mrs. Roberts explained:

Black is considered more ceremonial and better befitting a married woman of official family. The color is also appropriate to Madame Chiang's age. How old is she? Old enough to celebrate her birthday and that's clue enough if you know what that expression means in China.

Mrs. Roberts described the Madame as dressing in the modern Shanghai style. As far as fashions go, Shanghai used to be to China what Paris was to the world. In Madame Chiang, this style was typified by American shoes . . . I'm told she prefers and always wears them . . . and the black gown: short sleeves, length from shoulders to ankles, and split on the side. They say that modern dress styles have done more than anything else to unify China. Before they were introduced by just such returned students as Madame Chiang, the differences in Chinese dress and dialects had kept the people from a firm union. But the Shanghai style swept the country, thus uniting the women on a solid front of fashion.

China's Ambassadors of good will, as I saw her, is of slight build, as most Chinese women are, except those from the North. She has dainty feet and hands, trim ankles, a face as beautiful as a full moon, and bone structure of the kind that's a sculptor's delight.

About her illness: she looked weary rather than ill at the press conference. She's had a long siege of travel. I understand her present condition is not serious. It's the result of an old injury. Sometime ago she and the generalissimo were out in their car inspecting the Chinese lines. A Jap plane dropped a bomb, machine-gunned the car, and it overturned. The generalissimo escaped with bruises, his wife suffered the injury which still troubles her. But I'm told she insisted upon walking back to another car.

And she still walks . . . in beauty.

WHAT A WEEK! Love took over the editorial offices of Radio Life this past week, causing no end of excitement and making issuance of an edition hectic, to say the least. Monday the ball started rolling when Art Editor Lorie Behr and her beloved, Mr. Ackerman, took out their license, and Feature Writer Suzanne Warner and her soldier boy took out theirs.

Lorie plans a very quiet wedding. Suzanne, whose fiance, Sgt. Edward McDonnell, was on 12 days' furlough from Florida, plunged into preparations for an elaborate wedding at Chapman Park Oratorio. Midway, Sgt. McDonnell had his leave cancelled and was ordered back to Florida immediately. No thanks to the "gin marriage" law, the pair couldn't take out their license until Friday. That would be too late, so the last we saw they were heading for Yuma and a minister. We all wish both couples the acme of happiness.

WE ENJOYED: Hedda Hopper's preview the other night at KNX. The show, called "Hedda Hopper's Hollywood," featured the hat-sensation lady in chatter about Cinemaland and Radio Row. Cass Daley in a guest spot, Fred Brady, rising young MGM actor, Claude Rains in a swell dramatization and leading supporting actors. Climax of the program was the dramatization which was designed to show the serious side of Hollywood. Joe E. Brown's magnificent tour of the South Pacific was propitious choice for the preview dramatization. We hope Hedda's audition record connects with a ready sponsor.

ALSO ENJOYED: Luncheon at the Derby with Paul Whiteman. He is vested with greater prestige than ever before since he has been named musical director for the entire Blue Network. We have always wanted to do a story on Whiteman, so this new appointment has furnished us with an angle which we enjoyed pursuing and will pass on to you in a forthcoming story, tentatively titled, "Rhapsody for the Blue."

CONDOLENCES: Radio Row was sad last week when Press Agent Knowles Blair passed on so suddenly. He did publicity for Ray Noble and several others. . . Carroll Nye, former Times columnist and now with Young and Rubican Agency, spent most of his time last week in Covina, where his father was gravely ill.

. . . Lieut.-Comm. Eddie Peabody broke one of his fingers last week and won't be able to play banjo for some time.

WHATNOT DEPT.: Art Baker was terribly thrilled about that telephone call he received Thursday night right after he came off the air. It was from a teacher of speech who had not heard him before because she was never home late afternoons. Bedded by flu, she took in Baker's 5:30 program, then couldn't wait to call him to tell him how wonderful it was. . . Gracie Allen is applying herself to learning a new composition, "Theme for Thumb." Don't mean to disillusion anybody, but Gracie did not play the "Concerto for Index Finger" when she went to Carnegie Hall. Somebody else did while she carried on with the mugging to delight the real audience. . . Al Pearce has made a record which has gone East and is being considered as replacement for Victor Borge's radio spot. Borge is up for service. . . That funny dentist, Dr. Samuel W. Snide, on "Lum and Abner's" show is none other than Eddie Holden, remembered as Frank Watanabe.

THEY'LL CHARM AGAIN: Phil Spitalny's "Hour of Charm" girls have been signed for another "moom" picture, "Mr. Co-Ed" with Red Skelton, and will be back here this summer.

HANGING UP RECORDS: Ralph Edwards, who is gradually working his way to the Coast with his "Truth or Consequences" show, has raised 10 million in war bonds from four programs. Original mark for show to shoot at was 20 million. He'll be here in June. Admission will be by buying a bond. And speaking of bonds, "Melodies for Uncle Sam" is perking right along although Freddy Martin has turned over his baton to Harry Owens for a few weeks. We visited the Grove again, and the program was overwhelming. John Conte sang, Vick Knight was there and his "I Love Coffee" was aired, Dennis Day did some slick vocalizing, and Andy and Virginia complemented the musical numbers by doing an original dialogue about "Poi Meets Girl." Fannie Brice was there but didn't participate.

Radio Lifelines

HEARD AT THE DERBY: (Where a big turnout of radioites was honoring an important person at luncheon) "The guests must think a lot of (person's name) or maybe they're just hard pressed on their meat coupons."

VICK KNIGHT tells us that he is planning something super for the Ginny Simms show on April 20. That is Hitler's birthday anniversary, and they're GOING TO CELEBRATE! Yes, there will be a cake! And a guest named Mrs. A. Mark, who will show what some women have sacrificed for the war. We advise you not to miss it.

WINS WINGS

Paul Langford, former KPAS announcer, now has his wings, having recently graduated from the Army Air Corps Officer Candidate School at Miami.

Tony Gale, the arranger for Kate Smith's musical scores, has a unique method of filing his tunes according to moods. Funeral compositions are filed in black envelopes, light ballads in yellow, and swing tunes in red.

WHO, INDEED!

Quote Groucho Marx, of the CBS "Blue Ribbon Town" program, "Marriage is a game, and happiness a matter of teamwork—but who the heck appointed my mother-in-law umpire?"

Says Henny Youngman of Kate Smith's CBS program, "I told my cousin he should join the parachute troops. He's been dropped by practically everyone."

CUTTING TO THE QUICK?

Juliette Marglen, known as the girl with the longest fingernails in the world, recently made her debut in the "Theater of Fame," cut her 3½-inch fingernails for the duration in order to do war work.

Susan Miller suggests that when Jimmy Petrillo is interviewed about the phonograph situation, he should say: "I'll talk about music, but it's strictly off the record."

DANCE TONIGHT

Following is the schedule for "Dance Tonight," heard on KFWB Monday-Saturday at 10:30 p.m.: Monday, April 19, Frankie Masters; Tuesday, Guy Lombardo; Wednesday, Alvino Rey; Thursday, Will Bradley; Friday, Vaughn Monroe; Saturday, Benny Carter.

Andy and Virginia send word that "the Mussolini-Hitler friendship ought to be called 'Demon and Piteous.'"

Welles Steps

Phil, will play the part of my younger brother who is a cheat, a cur and a scoundrel.

PHIL: Oh I get it. A heel without a sole . . . Ha ha, that Harris is dynamite when he gets rollin'.

WELLES: Phil, you're a genius and I ought to know. Now as the scene opens, Phil, I enter your apartment unexpectedly. And to my surprise, I find my sweetheart in your arms. . . . And remember, Mary, you and Phil carry the burden of the scene.

MARY: Okay.

WELLES: Now let's try it.

NELSON: Quiet on the set, Mr. Welles is about to emote.

WELLES: Thank you . . . The door opens.

WELLES: (Emotionally) What? What's this? . . . Mildred, what are you doing here? . . . Answer me I say . . . What are you doing in my brother's apartment?

MARY: Well—

WELLES: No explanations are necessary . . . I have eyes, I'm not blind to what's been going on . . . and if I hadn't been madly in love with you, Mildred, I'd have brought things to a climax long ago. . . . And now Clarence, what have you got to say?

PHIL: Well—

WELLES: Alibis, alibis, nothing but alibis . . . To think that the two of you have been together every afternoon for months . . . Why are you looking at me like that, Mildred? Have you something to tell me? . . . Come, speak up.

MARY: Well—

WELLES: Never mind, I know what you're going to say . . . You're going to say it's me you love and that Clarence is just a passing fancy . . . You're both strangely quiet . . . Why don't you speak up? . . . Is it because your guilt is so obvious?

PHIL: Well—

MARY: Wait a minute, that's my line.

PHIL: Oh pardon me.

WELLES: Come on Mary, give me the cue . . . "well."

MARY: I've said "well" so much I feel like the old oaken bucket . . . Okay, "well."

WELLES: This is the end, Mildred, our engagement is broken . . . shattered beyond repair . . . but you may keep the engagement ring I gave you . . . That is, if you want it.

MARY: Well—

WELLES: It's yours . . . I must leave now . . . and as for you Clarence, if you ever so much as cross my path again, I shall thrash you to within an inch of your life. . . . Goodbye.

(SOUND: DOOR SLAMS).

MARY: Clarence, my love, kiss me.

PHIL: Darling, I love you.

WELLES: No, no, let's cut that.

ad, looked at Georgia, looked at the ad again, and cashed the check.

One of Georgia's most unusual experiences transpired when she kept a modeling appointment with a "Mr. Smith" at the Powers' office one afternoon at 3 o'clock. "Mr. Smith" called a cab and took Georgia to one of the photograph places where passport pictures are taken.

To a bewildered model, "Mr. Smith" finally explained that he had been in Venezuela for several years and that he and the other men in camp had come to admire Miss Carroll through the many advertisements picturing her in magazines.

When "Mr. Smith" was granted leave to return briefly to the United States, the other men had bet he would not be able to get the beautiful model to pose with him in a picture.

"Either come back with her picture and you in it with her or you'll have to propose to the Indian chief's daughter," was the ultimatum served him before he left.

Georgia obliged by posing, "Mr. Smith" was grateful for being spared the alternative, paid her the regular modelling fee for an hour's work.

Georgia came to California less than two years ago. While she was doing a picture assignment, Kay Kyser employed her to serve as one of his campus cuties during camp performances of his program. Together with Kay Aldrich, Georgia decked herself out in swiny skirt and co-ed

QUITE A MYSTERY

Strangest story of the week comes from Sergeant Russell Carter. Carter comes from the town where the story, "Lone Journey," is laid. The authors of the program, in order to make the story as realistic as possible, have taken the characters out of the little town of Lewistown, Montana, and placed them into the script.

But last week when Sergeant Carter was flying over North Africa he heard "himself" on the air. There is no logical explanation of why the story should be "picked up" in Africa, as it is not short-waved.

The only possible solution for the mystery broadcasts was ventured by a spokesman for Army Special Services. It was his guess that a "freak air carry" from one or more of the 50,000-watt stations was responsible. However this officer knew of no other program carried only on long wave that is being heard in Africa. If anyone has a solution, let us know.

sweater, went down the aisles and beckoned service men to the platform, helped choosé contestants.

One night as the big bus carrying the Kyser troupe was on its way back to Hollywood from a camp appearance, the performers were singing at the tops of their lungs. Kay Aldrich heard Georgia's voice and went over to the seat where Kay Kyser was half listening, half dozing.

"Did you know that Georgia can sing?" she asked the "Old Professor."

Kay, who didn't know, perked a critical ear and made note.

One night three months ago, he met Georgia at Hollywood Canteen and said: "We're making a camp appearance tomorrow. How would you like to sing a couple of numbers?"

Very frightened and skeptical about her abilities, Georgia warbled "Dearly Beloved" and "Moonlight Becomes You." She stopped the show. Kay made note again.

When Trudy Erwin was summoned from the Kyser show to step into the featured femvocalist assignment opposite Bing Crosby on Kraft Music Hall, Kay Kyser sent an audition record of Georgia Carroll's voice East to George Washington Hill, president of American Tobacco Company. Back came a 13-weeks' contract for the girl from Dallas, Texas.

Now, Georgia is studying under one of Hollywood's finest voice coaches, as she works to improve her rich, contralto tones. She considers herself fortunate to be on Kay Kyser's program. "Look what he did for Trudy and Ginny Simms," she remarked.

"What strikes me funny," Georgia continued "is that everyone came to know me as the model girl for Camels, but I can't talk about that now. I'm singing for Luckies! But am I lucky!"

She Can Sing, Too

*That's Why an Ex-Powers' Model
Has Become Kyser's Radio Thrush*

By EVELYN BIGSBY

I'M TELLIN' ya! When they get a gal singer with looks like hers, those brass hats oughta hurry up with television!"

It was one of NBC's maintenance men voicing his opinion. He had just pushed a ponderous piano across the stage of Studio C and he spread both elbows on the lid as he paused to regain his breath.

But he didn't look at us as he talked. His eyes were glued on the center microphone where Kay Kyser's new vocalovely, Georgia Carroll, was rehearsing "That Old Black Magic."

We didn't look at the property man, either. Our eyes were focused on the statuesque blonde with the arrestingly even teeth and transparent skin. Her lithe figure, about five feet eight and 114 pounds, was wearing a black faille suit with an air of distinction most girls envy but seldom achieve.

"Of course she's good looking," we conceded. "She used to be a Powers model."

AS OUTDOOR GIRL, Georgia looks as refreshing as a breath from the Pacific.

"Naw. Do tell!", exclaimed the prop man.

So we did. We told him all the things Georgia had confided in us a few days previously when we had huddled over chicken a la king in a corner of the Derby. How, as a small girl, she had liked to dress up and play "lady" in her mother's clothes, how she had started to model for the biggest department store in Dallas, Texas. How McClelland Barclay had come through Dallas and had said, "You ought to go to New York." How Toni Frissell, one of Vogue's photographers, had stopped in Dallas and said, "You ought to go to New York." How Georgia had finally taken their advice and gone to New York. She was just 17, just out of high school.

The people who had told her "You ought to go to New York" weren't in New York when Georgia arrived.

"I tried answering a want ad for a model at $50 a week," Georgia said, "but the place turned out to be Paradise Isle and they wanted show girls, not models.

"So I decided to crash the Powers' office. I wanted to make my very best impression, so I wore my baccalaureate outfit. I didn't know how they dressed in New York in the middle of summer and my white hat, white boucle suit, white gloves, and blue and white shoes and bag were considered very nice in Dallas.

"When I opened the door at the Powers' office, all the girls there stared at me. They were wearing sleek, sophisticated black afternoon dresses. Mr. Powers was standing in the hall. He took one look at me and called out: 'You're just the girl we've been looking for. Come on. Red Book wants a cover of you.'"

Georgia spent three exciting years as a Powers' model. Unlike most models Georgia displayed toothpaste or clothes equally well. Her picture appeared on the covers of national magazines, her face gleamed out from the dentifrice advertisements, she was pictured wearing ultra smart clothes in Vogue and Harper's Bazaar. She was sent to Honolulu with a complete wardrobe, to Venezuela, spent her winters in Florida.

Her figure and face became familiar all over the world.

AS SOPHISTICATED TYPE, Georgia is as enchanting as any shimmering, moonlit lake.

"I often attended parties in New York and people I'd never met stared at me in the most puzzled way. Finally, they would come up to me and say, 'Where HAVE I met you. I know I have somewhere.' I never told them that I was probably the girl they saw in the nail polish ad.

"When I went to football or baseball games, I would see my picture on the back cover of the programs. Half of the 80,000 people in the stadium would be using me as an eye-shade or fan. I got used to it, but at first it made me awfully embarrassed."

Once however, Georgia's picture in an advertisement saved her from a precarious situation. She was en route to St. Paul, Minnesota, where she was to model in a fashion show. In Chicago she discovered that she had left her money behind in New York and didn't have even the $10 for train fare to St. Paul.

What to do! It was after banking hours. Of course a station wouldn't cash a personal check.

Georgia remembered the copy of Harper's that a friend had pressed into her hands as the train pulled out of New York. Armed with the magazine, Georgia braved the station master.

"Look," she said desperately. "See this girl in the Revlon nail polish ad? That's me—Georgia Carroll. I left my money in New York and I've got to get to St. Paul. Twelve thousand ladies are waiting for me to put on a fashion show. You've got to cash me a check for enough money to buy my ticket."

The man looked at the girl in the

Cocky Doodle Maestro

Here's a Conductor Who Employs Doodles to Get Results From Musicians

THE clarinet player stopped, squinted, scratched his head, and finally called out "what the deuce's this thing?"

Felix Mills, conductor, composer, arranger and about everything else musical, dropped the baton, walked off the podium, and approached the musician. He was a new man in Mills' band, which is one of the high spots of the Tommy Riggs-Betty Lou weekly NBC airshow.

"What's this here business doin' on my score?" the clarinet player pointed to a drawing—a very good drawing—of a harpie bopping a guy on the noggin with a mallet.

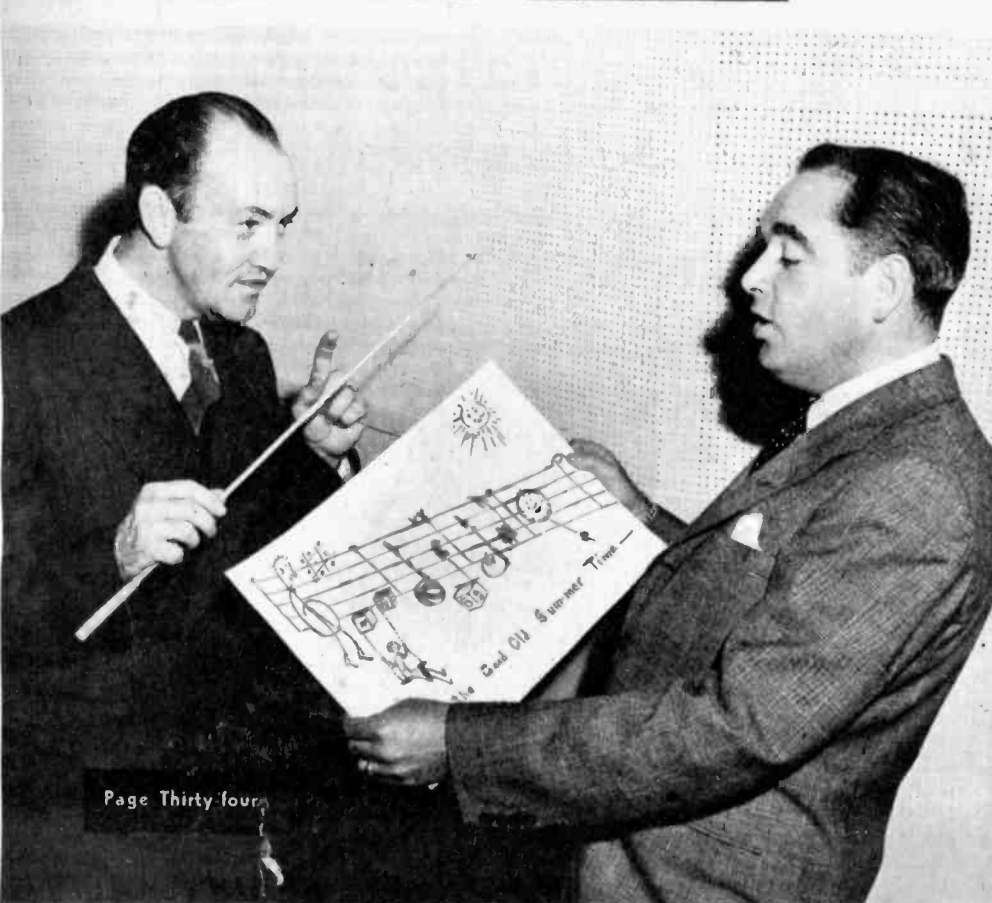

"That," said Mills, "is a doodle. I do a lot of doodling".

As most of you Radio Lifers know, music from which orchestra members play is not the usual sheet music variety. Every number must be "arranged" to suit the particular orchestra which is playing it, and each musician has a special copy of his own part.

There are certain rather positive effects that Mills demands of his musicians in the orchestrating and arranging that he does himself. He learned early that the best way to achieve this was to draw a "doodle" over the note or bars affected. Not bad "doodles" either, because Mills admits that one of the main reasons he managed to finally get out of grammar school was because his drawing teacher also happened to be the school principal.

If you were allowed to prowl Mills' spacious music files and library which occupy huge rooms of his Los Angeles' home, you would note that the "doodle" effect runs through most of his lighter stuff even to the varying shades of blue to bring out how much of that Harlem quality he seeks to elicit from each score. It does make sense, too. The older members of his musical ensemble say Mills' doodles help no end to put over a point and Mills has figured out that it saves a lot of wear and tear on his vocal chords.

His men call him "cocky-doodle maestro" for the same reason that most seven-foot guys are called Wee Willie. Mills is a quiet, mild-mannered gent, but he is a driver on the Toscanini order and insists on the ultimate in perfection. Once he taps the baton on the wood, the boys all know that the head-man is facing them. In his long career in the field of music Mills has played every instrument except the violin and tells you confidentially that one day he'll get around to "Love in Bloom" on that cat-gut viaduct, too. He started as a sprout of six, beating the bass drum in the Sunday School band at Fort Collins, Colo.

"I was not good, but boy! Was I noisy," he laughs. Then he went to the snare drums and on and on and up and up to the leadership of many musical organizations.

His right "handle" is Gordon R. Mills—not Felix.

The Felix nickname came early in his career as a leader. When rehearsals went sour on him, he had a habit of fuming within but refraining from bawling out his musicians. He would pace back and forth, hands locked behind his back with shoulders stooped.

One day an observing French horn player leaned over to the oboe player and remarked: "Felix, the cat, he looks like!" The name stuck.

But back to the doodling that mystified Mills' new clarinet player—the doodle of a harp bopping a guy

EXAMPLE OF EFFICACIOUS DOODLING. This is a harp arrangement. Note Mills' doodle to impress upon player that the run should be brilliant. When harpist hits top the second time, one eye peering from pair of spectacles means, "Keep an eye on me (Mills)". With such reminder, the harpist will, too.

orchestra came up on the elevator into the pit, catch their first number for my audience, then cut out and go around back stage and down underneath to set up my microphones to complete the narration. I couldn't see what was going on, of course, but I'd memorized the script, and knew how to time it by the sound of the feet on the stage floor over my head.

As background for the prologue, a fountain with running water, was set on the stage. The water from the fountain was drained off by a large pipe that terminated about three feet from my broadcast set-up. Yes, one night the drain in the floor became clogged and the water from the fountain started to seek its own level, and pretty soon, my level.

ALBRIGHT REMINISCES as he looks over his scrap book and board covered with clippings recalling his 18 years in radio.

I kept right on talking about the adagio dancers, the comedian with the little dog, and the street urchins of Paris, as the water kept coming higher and higher. It was well on the way past my knees when one of the stage hands happened to look down my way and saw my difficulty. He brought me a rickety but high-legged table, and from that vantage point, literally, I finished my broadcast.

One long remembered is the broadcast of the blessing of the animals and pets at Olvera Street—a beautiful ceremony, beloved by all Southern Californians. On the occasion referred to, I arrived at the fountain a little late and though the Padre was there, and the crowd assembled, the animals were still back in their pens, where their owners were tying flowers onto their halters and freshening the gilt on their hooves. There were cows, and goats, beautiful huge horses, bulls, and children's pets, all excited, yet all very well behaved.

My wife walked past the engineer's remote set-up just as he turned to me and said "if you don't get those animals on the move, you won't have them on the broadcast." She took him literally. Without saying a word to me, she went down to the end of the street, opened the pens and started pushing the animals out. She speaks Spanish very well, so as she turned the heads of the cows, goats and horses toward the gate she'd say "Time for the blessing and the broadcast." Of

IN A FEW days there'll be another Easter Sunrise Service in the Hollywood Bowl, and as usual KHJ-Don Lee will have microphones out there to pick up the ceremonies for broadcast. How different it will be from the first one I took part in. Fifty thousand celebrants were there and to this day I think the sight of that microphone and the remote equipment we carried enthralled them as much as the glory of the sunrise.

Unfortunately, the implied tribute didn't thrill me, the announcer. For just as I was in the midst of my own contribution to the radio service, one of the fifty thousand stepped on my microphone cord and I went off the air. Nowadays, of course, microphone cords are built to take the pressure of a crowd, but that day it meant a repair job on the spot, with a very frustrated announcer-commentator doing the repairing.

Actually, when I sit down with my scrap book, and "remember when," it does seem that it has been 18 times 18 years since the day I first read stock market reports on the air, and so became identified with radio.

When I see the youngsters who come into the studio now, all professionally polished, trained by radio listening experience if not by conventional radio schooling, I look at them and wonder what they would have thought of that first broadcast of mine, with my script clipped from the newspaper, the microphone set up in a room where people hung their coats and waited for appointments to see the doctor down the hall, and worst of all, my voice so colored with doubt that anyone could hear me, much less understand me, that what I read must have sounded even duller than I thought it was.

Maybe some of you remember when one of Hollywood's radio stations broadcast the prologue to the weekly presentation of "Seventh Heaven," with Janet Gaynor and Charles Farrell. It was my job to narrate that prologue, week after week.

I'd sit out in the auditorium as the course the owners lost no time in cooperating with her

But the policeman stationed there for the day wasn't so willing to have her take charge and he came over to me to object. I could hardly control my gaping mouth long enough to tell him to leave her alone, for as we watched, my wife lead a flower-laden bull toward the Padre—and me.

The broadcast was beautiful. Letters afterward commented on the "moving quality of my voice, showing it was deeply touched by the scene." I sure was. As I explained later to the policeman and the Padre, my wife was a city gal—and was so afraid of animals that she wouldn't even pick up a pet kitten.

often enough, someone important was bound to hear him.

He was right. A regular listener to Sinatra's shows was Harry James. Super trumpeter James, at that time a member of Benny Goodman's band, promised Frank a singing spot in the band he hoped to organize. When James did form his own group, Sinatra went with him for six months before switching to Dorsey. Sinatra left Dorsey's band to accept tempting offers for solo work and pictures.

Radio considers Sinatra a fresh, interesting personality. His voice is universally liked and he has brought a large following to "Hit Parade."

Remaining as regulars are Mark Warnow and his orchestra, and Joan Edwards, femme nightingale, who have lent their popular interpretations to many a favorite.

And speaking of favorites, we thought you might like to check up on the progress of the "Parade" so far this year. Consequently, Radio Life obtained the record direct from New York and lists for your information the top tunes from January 1 to March 20, 1943: "There Are Such Things," six times top; "Moonlight Becomes You," two times; "Brazil," two times; and "I've Heard That Song Before," one time.

on the noggin with a mallet.

Some years ago when Mills was arranging for one of the country's top orchestra leaders, it was necessary for him to work straight through for two days and nights every week. One night when the 48-hour stretch was almost over, Mills was sleepy-eyed and had slumped down in his chair until only his forlorn face peered above the desk top. One of Mills' conferees drew a picture of Mills as he saw him.

Mills took such a fancy to the drawing that he more or less adopted it as his trade mark. If you look closely on some of the accompanying illustrations, you may discern Maestro Mills' identifying doodle.

through his control board. He turned to Olmstead, the producer—"You know, last night when we went over the program it sounded bad—this morning it's swell." Olmstead laughed a genial laugh and remarked: "That's what a good night's sleep will do for you."

As we looked out over the orchestra, it was interesting to note the number of women that have taken places. Seven of them. A thing almost unheard of in pre-war days.

Ken Darby, leader of the Westinghouse Choir, never removed his eyes from Victor Young. He led his group in exact coordination with the orchestra, in order to form the combination of metal instruments and human instruments all blended into one.

In order to keep up with the six microphones, and different ranges of tonal qualities, Engineer Brooke's hands flew back and forth from one modulator to another on his control board with an eagerness to help create that for which Producer Olmstead was striving—perfection.

As one sat in the control booth, saw the sensitive faces of the musicians, heard the well-modulated voice of story-teller John Nesbitt, thrilled to the great baritone voice of John Charles Thomas—it was impossible not to feel the greatness of this program—greatness which does not come from formal attire, but from honesty of soul, and a determination to bring to the people the finest music possible.

Tingles of emotion ran to the very tips of our fingers as the music and songs poured out unstintingly over the air waves. This was the "Westinghouse Program." This was a program typical of America.

They Don't Dress "Dress" for the Dress

By SUZANNE WARNER

As we passed good-looking Clarence Olmstead, producer of the Westinghouse Program, in the NBC corridors on Saturday afternoon, he stopped and in his gracious manner said: "We just finished our rehearsal. Why don't you come to the 'dress' tomorrow morning at 10 o'clock?"

We hadn't seen this show yet as it had just been transferred from New York, but we had heard that it was a program that usually rates the name of "long hair." We envisioned at the dress rehearsal baritone John Charles Thomas standing so straight and tall, with a black tuxedo. We imagined master storyteller John Nesbitt wearing a dark blue double-breasted suit, and Victor Young, the leader of the orchestra in . . . well, it certainly would not be in a colored shirt, but a very neat white one.

This, in our mind's eye, would be the one rehearsal, in an otherwise casual Hollywood, that would rate the name of "dress rehearsal" . . .

Did they dress?—But then we're getting ahead of our story.

Our curiosity had the better of us. So at 10 o'clock sharp we were at the "dress rehearsal."

When we arrived musicians scurried out. Studio D, the largest auditorium at the National Broadcasting Company, was all confusion and chatter.

Then gray-templed producer Olmstead clapped his hands. Almost as if by magic, chaos became order. The musicians, all 44 of them, moved to their seats.

Victor Young, the maestro, stepped upon the podium, tapped his baton twice lightly for attention, and from that orchestra came almost heavenly music. But the light trills of the flute, the stifled sighs of the horn, the singing notes of the violin, were soon drowned out by the full, rich baritone voice of John Charles Thomas.

Later, Thomas joined us in the control booth and confided, "it feels grand to be back in California. Now I can dress like this."

Perhaps we wouldn't have been so surprised at Thomas' garb if we hadn't pictured him dressing as he sounded. But, oh my! Here was Metropolitan Opera Star Thomas pointing to a pair of burgundy slacks and shirt, polka dot tie, leather jacket, and a black beret!!

At that moment, I walked John Nesbitt. Did he wear the double-breasted suit?—(that question almost sounds like the ending of a soap opera). No, readers, I walked dashing Mr. Nesbitt in green slacks, gray-green open-necked shirt, and a plaid loafer jacket. This was set off by gray gun-boat shoes!!

Perhaps Mr. Nesbitt noticed we were looking rather quizzical at his clothing and he commented with a wry grin, "I always dress this way. It started years ago. I was the announcer on a show which featured a large orchestra that dressed formally. On one very warm evening when we were rehearsing, I asked if they minded if I removed my coat. The 'artistic' leader of the orchestra raised an eyebrow and commented, 'You may if you like, you're not one of the artists! It was at that moment I decided never again would I wear my blue serge suit . . . I'd dress just to please me . . . comfortably. Every week after that, since I wasn't one of the artists, I'd come in open-necked sport shirts and tennis shoes. I guess that's what started me dressing this way . . . and I love it."

▼ TYPICAL OF THE COORDINATION evidenced by the "Westinghouse Program" is the way everyone keeps a sharp eye out for Thomas. Note in this picture that Thomas faces Victor Young, and in turn, chorus leader Ken Darby watches Young very closely.

▼ THOMAS, OF THE CONTAGIOUS SMILE, sings in front of the mike as comfortably as though he were seated in a big easy chair. He marks his music much as an actor marks up dialogue, so that he won't forget to emphasize certain words.

NEVER A FORMAL MOMENT is the keynote of the "Westinghouse Program." Thomas wears burgundy shirt and slacks, Young (center) always works in shirt sleeves, while Nesbitt invariably wears a very gay sports jacket.

Our attention was then called to Victor Young, the conductor of the orchestra. He is not just a wrist or arm conductor, he throws his whole body into the rhythm, until you no longer see a small, dark-haired, bespectacled man—but the living embodiment of music.

By this time we no longer expected to find Mr. Young in the white shirt, but were ready for anything—he looked so comfortable in his brown slacks and short sleeved shirt!

When the number was finished, and pronounced good, he radiated a satisfied glow that was contagious to all members of the orchestra who took such a visible pride in their work.

The rehearsal had stopped because Thomas' music was nowhere to be found. So engineers, sound men, writers, directors, all went in different directions trying to locate "Kay" Thomas' secretary who had the music.

In a few moments the lost was found, and the program continued. Engineer Bob Brooke listened with a critical ear to the notes as they came

HERE'S THE MASTER STORY TELLER as he sits at his desk and reads his tales in his own inimitable style. Occasionally Nesbitt is a worry to the engineers as he likes to talk with great gusto, also likes to lean way up to the mike, so it has to be constantly moved back.
