Mrs. G. E. Makins, 1314½ Fifth Street, Santa Monica, Calif.

Sirs: My first reaction to your query concerning Dick Brown was probably similar to a great number of your readers. I was indignant at the thought of a young man falsely representing his war record, when so many of our boys are dying and being scarred for life without any public notice whatsoever.

ON OUR COVER

On Radio Life's Yule cover is a charming miss under the mistletoe. You'll recognize her as Janet Waldo, who plays the title role in CBS' "Corliss Archer." The young man manning the mistletoe is her air boy-friend, Dexter, played by David Hughes.

I have been mulling the problem over in my mind, however, and I've asked myself if anyone who has never been faced with a problem such as this, has the right to judge this man. If he is capable of pleasing the public, and the fact that he has been doing so is proof, is he any less talented as a singer because of a "lie" he told, probably in an effort to camouflage an inferiority complex, due to his physical scars, which may have hindered his whole future?

I firmly believe that he should be allowed to continue his program as long as the public wants him, and since tolerance and understanding are two vital "musts" in a democratic country such as ours I sincerely hope the listeners he acquired before his deception was revealed are broad-minded enough to remember that they enjoyed his singing before, and judge him on this talent alone.

I'm sure Dick Brown has realized his mistake and is sorry for it, and if he can, in some small way, entertain wounded men via radio, he will be doing his share in making amends for his mistakes. There are none of us perfect.

Mrs. Schiller, Los Angeles, Calif.

Sirs: Answering the question of Dick Brown, I say more power to him to bring his talents to somebody's attention in any way he can. Of course, he probably went a little to the extreme in his prevarication. But, when you stop to think how hard it is for a newcomer to break in, no matter how much talent he or she has, the means sometimes justify the end.

For instance, when Jack Benny's program is on, they announce he will be on Mr. Vallee's program next week, and on Mr. Vallee's program they announce Rudy will be on Mr. Benny's program. Mr. Cantor will be on Mr. Benny's show, and Mr. Benny will be on Mr. Cantor's. Mr. Cantor will be on Joan Davis' program, Miss Davis on Mr. Cantor's—and on and on.

Don't you think that hearing these people on their own programs is enough, and hearing promising new talent at other times is more generous and also more entertaining? After all, we do get tired of the same jokes and voices.

Why not open up these closed corporations, and let in a few more people on the payrolls?

Miss Cora Baertsch, 6003¼ Yucca, Hollywood, Calif.

Sirs: Re-the case of Dick Brown: In my opinion, Radio Life's thinking processes are badly mixed up.

I think it's not a question of "condoning Dick Brown's deceptions," but rather a question of condoning those who made it "almost impossible for him even to get an audition," to use the words of Dick's sponsor. It's not a question of "helping him and perhaps others to readjust to civilian life" (Radio Life's words), but rather a question of helping civilians, who never have suffered disfigurement, to adjust themselves to those who have.

The question then, as I see it, is not whether or not to indict Dick Brown but, rather, why not indict those who make such procedure necessary?

I do not know Dick Brown. I have never even heard his radio performance.

J. M. Neely, 3346 Victory Street, San Diego, Calif.

Sirs: I have become interested in a number of radio programs through Radio Life. I had never heard Frances Scully before the write-up in a recent issue. Now I am becoming a regular listener. Incidentally, I consider her voice one of the best of women radio commentators. It is full of warmth and sincerity. She speaks without effort. So many women assume a know-it-all air or sound very voice-conscious. Among the announcers, a very "congenial" voice is that of Jim Ameche.

I like America's custom of commercially-sponsored programs as opposed to Great Britain's system.

But I do not approve of in-between programs announcements.

An example of an easy-listening commercial is that on "Hour of Charm." One of the worst offenders is the sponsor of the Helen Trent program.

There are too many quiz shows. They are as bad as the over-abundance of amateur shows some years ago.

For half-hour drama, "Suspense" and the "Hollywood Mystery Theater" are best in my estimation. I prefer them to my old favorite, "Lux Theater." Why isn't there more music during the daytime? There used to be a lot of request programs for music—classical and semi-classical, and modern.

What has become of Peter Potter?

Peter Potter has been serving in the Army for the past two years. He has just returned to radio, and is presenting his "Platter Parade" over KFWB every Sunday morning from 9:30 to 12:30.

Mrs. W. C. Yale, 354 South Catalina Avenue, Pasadena, Calif.

Sirs: I just want to say a hearty "Amen" to the Radio Lifer who wrote concerning organ music, and the same goes for the reader whose letter commended the Gas Company's program. This seems to me the nearest to perfection of any on the radio. The announcer, and even the commercials, are a real pleasure. I would also give a hand to the "Hour of Charm" and many others. My only pet peeve are those blaring commercials.

Mrs. C. H. Cully, 13242 Victory, Van Nuys, Calif.

Sirs: I'm glad to note you've taken up the torch for the return of good organ music on the airlines. There is nothing more soothing and restful than organ music.

Now for a gripe. Why can't Hildgarde be a little less coy and a little more dignified? I've never even seen a picture of the gal, but her manner of presentation irks me.

A Christmas Message

FROM THE PUBLISHER

The "Staff" of Radio Life constantly grows, it seems, in everything but intelligence

In addition to Editor Evelyn, Editorial Director Sudler and the others whose names you see listed regularly on our "flag", there is Shirley Gordon, who has been with us now over a year, and Betty Mills, our most recent addition—both charming young women, and writers of increasing ability.

I think that the growing size of our staff, with its increasing period of service is reflecting itself favorably in the quality of articles we are able to bring to you.

But their lack of complete judgment is evidenced by their request that I, the publisher, write, for you, Radio Life's Christmas message!

What can I, as publisher, say to our readers as the year draws to an end? I can't tell you that the family of Radio Life readers is increasing, because paper scarcity has put a ceiling on the amount of that commodity we can use, and we have religiously curtailed the number of pages per issue and the number of copies printed by the required 25%. Unfortunately, the basic period upon which our curtailment has to be based is the year 1942—the time when Radio Life was enjoying its most rapid growth!

What can I tell you about next year? Only one thing: All the way from the forests of Maine, we have now en route a shipment of extra-light paper, weighing only 22 pounds per ream, against the 32-pound paper we are now using in our "News" section. At more than double the cost of our present paper, this lighter stock will make possible our filling some of the many requests for subscriptions from men in the service, and, in addition, we hope, increase the number of copies available to you through your markets.

Finally, what of the more distant, unrationed postwar future? I can answer that easily, I think. Only today I read an advertisement of the Admiral Radio Corporation, in which it unveiled its post-war model radio-television receiver, a set which will include television with a 5½ by 8 inch image, FM reception, standard wave reception, short wave, phonograph with automatic record changer, slide-away record storage space, and a home recording apparatus—all this in a cabinet 43 inches high, 40 inches wide, and 24 inches deep!

Radio Life of post-war tomorrow will include for you news of all of these, in page size still 8¼ inches wide, 11 inches deep, but unrestricted and unlimited as to thickness or circulation!

So this is the publisher's message: A Merry Christmas; a Brighter Tomorrow! May our "Staff" increase in wisdom as it increases in size and age, to the end that our readers will not next year have to read a "Publisher's Message" that is actually written for and to them by

The Publisher.

CARL M. BIGSBY

*Another manufacturer, Stromberg-Carlson, says its set will be equipped with a "wire-recorder," the magazine for which will contain wire-recording mechanism capable of several hours of recording and reproduction. The Stromberg-Carlson "receiver" will have provision for using "blank" wire for making home recordings of your favorite programs.

Santa Claus Is a Myth--

Don't You Believe It!

By Delle Hunter

Saturday, 9:45 p. m.
CBS-KNX

1. Santa Claus is a myth—don't you believe it!

The American version of Santa Claus actually lived in the form of two real men. One was a noted bishop named St. Nicholas who left bags of gold on the doorsteps of the poor. The fellow with the little round belly that shook like a bowlful of jelly was, in real life, the plump and jovial old Dutch coachman, Hans, to Dr. Clement Moore, who wrote the famous poem, "A Visit From St. Nicholas."

2. Eleanor Roosevelt has been First Lady longer than any other woman—don't you believe it!

Dolly Madison was asked by Thomas Jefferson, whose wife had died, to serve as official hostess and First Lady during his two terms as President, then she became First Lady for another two terms when her husband, James, was elected the nation's chief executive. Therefore, Dolly Madison served as First Lady for sixteen years.

3. The Nazis gave Germany the swastika—don't you believe it!

In the time of Napoleon, a democratic-minded professor named Friedrich John organized the stout-hearted Prussians in a youth movement to oust the French dictatorship. As a symbol of good luck, he designed a black swastika on a field of white and red. When Hitler rose to power, he employed both the youth movement and John's swastika for his dictatorial policies.

4. Columbus believed the world was round—don't you believe it!

Columbus, who has been immortalized as the man who insisted the world was round, actually went to his grave insisting the world was pear-shaped.

WHISTLER'S MOTHER was a sweet old lady—don't you believe it! For seven years, illusion-smashing

Cran Chamberlin, writer-creator of CBS's Saturday evening "Don't You Believe It" program, has been entertaining and informing radio listeners by debunking popular beliefs.

"Whistler's mother was a 'battle-axe'" debunks Mr. Chamberlin without batting an eyelash. But he always backs up his debunking with facts.

Mrs. Anna McNeill Whistler, mother of the painter, James, was, according to a member of her own family, a very temperamental and difficult person, in contrast to the sweet old soul she is pictured as being in her son's portrait.

On one of his recent "Don't You Believe It" shows, Chamberlin revealed that James Whistler ran away from home because of his mother's violent temper tantrums. Later, when she followed him to Paris, he painted her portrait in a moment of sheer boredom. Upon viewing the finished painting, George Ruskin, famed art critic, declared: "Whistler's mother, on canvas, as in life, is a grim old lady in mournful garb, sitting in a solemn chamber."

George Clemenceau remarked: "Could this be the cat who knocked a wine glass from my hand? She has been portrayed as an angel."

Whistler himself, explained: "One has to try to show one's Mummy as nice as possible, doesn't one?"

"You have to twist your mind to do what I'm doing," grinned Cran Chamberlin when we talked with him about his novel show. "You don't believe anything you're told. You always doubt the facts."

How Ideas Come

Chamberlin gets his initial inspirations for beliefs to debunk in a number of ways. Ideas strike him as he is engaged in a casual conversation, reading a book or a newspaper or listening to some discussion.

For instance, on one occasion, he saw a woman on the street with a dachshund. He overheard the woman's friend remark that the dog was "a fine German breed." That set him to thinking. Is the dachshund German, as is generally believed? He found out that it isn't.

Once the idea is born, his research man, Richard Sharpe, sets about to uncover the real story. Chamberlin's own extensive files are explored, in addition to the massive shelves of books at the public library. Chamberlin and Sharpe piece together the real story, bit by bit, from their varied sources of information. They search for startling facts and human interest twists, then work out their method of presentation.

Tobe Reed is the "Don't You Believe It" narrator, with the story dramatizations enacted by such top-flight radio performers as Joe Kearns, Pat McGeehan and Ge Ge Pearson. Reed had worked with Chamberlin on his "Headlines of the Past" airshow preceding the origination of the "Don't You Believe It" series.

Is Mild Person

Writer Chamberlin, who came to Hollywood from San Francisco radio, is a be-spectacled, soft-spoken, somewhat phlegmatic person who seldom expresses a more than mild amount of enthusiasm for anything, but wears a broad grin as he makes fantasies of facts.

Currently, his enthusiasm is at its high point when he talks of two things: A) his tiny six-months-old son, and B) the possibilities of televising his program. He says his "Don't You Believe It" show is set for television.

In the beginning, letters of criticism and contradiction to his expose of public beliefs flooded his office.

(Please turn to Page 31)

BELIEF-DEBUNKER is Cran Chamberlin, writer of "Don't You Believe It." He takes particular delight in debunking historical beliefs, and likes to make historical figures human. School teachers frequently request copies of his radio scripts.

Season's Greetings

Along Radio Row, as everywhere, the red and green of this year's Yuletide are tinged with a wartime gray. The Christmas thoughts of your radio favorites dwell with your thoughts on far-flung battlefronts, where gallant men and women are serving under the banner of honor, courage and freedom.

The stars are celebrating modestly, many of them foregoing personal pleasures to give their all at microphones beamed to our boys abroad, on the stages of service camps, and in the wards of Army and Navy hospitals, bringing a bit of Christmas cheer to those who need it most.

Elsewhere in this issue we bring you a line-up of air programs for the Christmas week. Not to be forgotten, too, are the messages from overseas servicemen of Southern California which will be heard throughout the day on KFI.

Radio Life's staff wishes its readers happy listening and a holiday season permeated with good will and a determination that the peace which is drawing closer day by day may be a lasting one.

Beaver

Looking in on rehearsals for the dramatization of "The Lodger" on CBS' "Suspense" program, we heard Robert Montgomery calling the program's producer, black-bearded Bill Spier, "King George."

The Big Noise

Sound effects men get their laughs, too!

On a recent NBC "Maxwell House" show the situation called for a loud crash as Frank Morgan completed an imaginary ski race with Robert Young. According to the script it was the other way around and the race almost completed Morgan. What the listening audience heard was a tremendous crash and at least a one-minute laugh from the visual audience. The cause of the merriment was two hard-working sound men who had assembled the largest pile of rocks seen outside of a quarry. They had erected a slide, resembling a child's plaything, down which they hurled various-sized boulders. These crashed into the large metal tub at the foot of the slide with such vehemence that even the cast winced and stuffed their fingers into their ears. As if this weren't effective enough the sound men began breaking pieces of firewood over their knees and each other's heads.

Still carrying out the mood of the script, Cass Daley asked Frank if he were all right after "that terrible fall." Quipped Frank, "Sure, I'm fine but you had better check on those sound effects men. I think they've killed each other."

Farewell

Listeners will sorely miss Sunday afternoon's "Pause That Refreshes On the Air," which bowed off the CBS network on December 10, with Andre Kostelanetz' decision to devote his talents exclusively to entertainment of the armed forces. The conductor's wife, Lily Pons, who was heard as soloist on the final broadcast, will also withdraw from the radio and concert world to join her husband in his patriotic pursuits. Last summer, the couple journeyed overseas to North Africa, Italy and the Persian Gulf Command, where they gave concerts for more than 400,000 servicemen.

Better Halves

During a recent broadcast of NBC's "The Great Gildersleeve," a sequence of the skit concerned itself with Gildy's barber and his wife, who was somewhat of a loudmouth, as the barber himself stated—and not too subtly. This past week Hal "Gildersleeve" Peary received seven letters from indignant barbers, all with the same tenor: "We don't care about ourselves, but leave our wives out of this!"

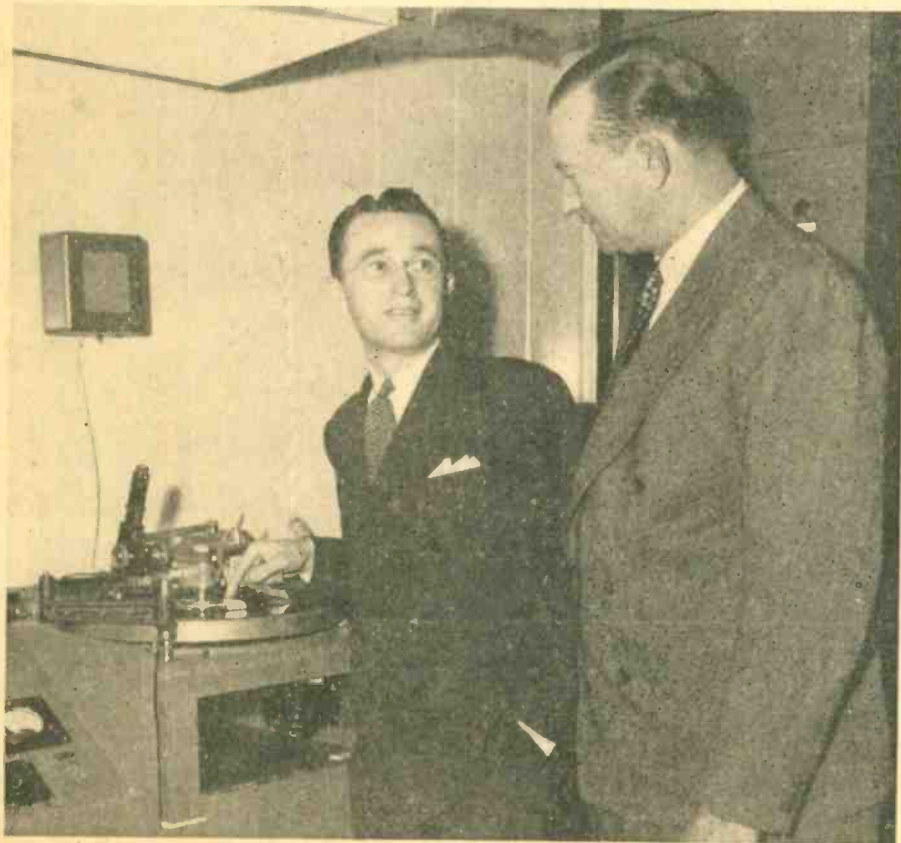

Re: Cigarettes

At this writing, Hiram Sizemore, the ex-Army private who is hitch-hiking his way home on cigarettes, has five hundred miles and eleven cartons behind him—and 1500 miles and nineteen cartons to go!

Sponsor of the stunt is NBC's "People Are Funny" program. A job with the Douglas Aircraft Corporation awaits Sizemore in Chicago. He was also gifted with a five-hundred-dollar diamond ring which has him puzzled.

He doesn't know which girl to give

GIL PALTRIDGE, left, KFI's Public Service Director, shows KFI's general manager W. B. Ryan some of the 200 platters from local service men which will be broadcast throughout Christmas Day on that station.

Radio Roundup from KFI

Christmas Eve . . . again this year . . . John Nesbitt becomes the star of John Charles Thomas' NBC show. Each year since 1937, Nesbitt has been telling the dramatic story of "The Juggler of Notre Dame," and come Christmas season he repeats by very popular demand.

Thomas, the Ken Darby chorus and Victor Young's orchestral music step into the background for this one program, but take an active part in the famous Nesbitt story.

Music for the special Yuletide program will have Thomas singing "God Rest Ye Merry Gentlemen," "Good King Wenceslas" and Schubert's "Ave Maria" with the chorus.

The chorus will background much of the narration with "Hymn of Adoration" in Latin and the half-hour will close with "Mighty Fortress Is Our God."

Nesbitt has based his story on a 12th century Roman Catholic legend, and it was so popular with its first airing in 1937 that he has been commissioned to do it repeatedly.

Gayne Whitman announces the program which is heard at 11:30 Sunday morning over KFI.

John Nesbitt

When you hear Kay Kyser's "College of Musical Knowledge" Wednesday night at 7 over KFI, it will be the same Ol' Professor, with all the kids on the campus, but the show will have a new sponsor. Nothing will be changed but the company who'll present the "College" for the weeks to come.

In fact, such old favorites as Georgia Carroll (Mrs. Kyser), Sully Mason, Ish Kabbibble, the Town Criers Quartet and Don Leslie with his romantic ballads, will be around as usual.

Also to be continued will be the policy of originating the programs from service camps all over the country.

It was a thrilling story that Don Wilson was telling after a rehearsal of the Jack Benny show. (KFI, 4 p.m., 9:30 p.m.) "There I was in the water and I'd given up all hope As I sank for the third time," continued Don, "my life seemed to rise before me in a series of grim, realistic pictures."

Just as Wilson was about to conclude the story amidst murmurs of sympathy, Jack interrupted him with: "Say Don, did you happen to notice a picture of me lending you a ten spot in the Autumn of '42?"

CHANGE OF SHIRTS
For years Walter Winchell has worn no other color shirts than blue. Recently with Jack Benny he appeared on a broadcast attired in a white shirt. He explained that he had a lot left over from his last year's service in the Navy.

ANNIVERSARY
Joe E. Brown recently celebrated his forty-fourth anniversary in show business during his weekly Blue "Stop Or Go" program. On hand were such celebrities as Orson Welles, Rudy Vallee, Hedda Hopper, and Dorothy Lamour to pay tribute to Joe.

DOWNY ABROAD
Morton Downey has left his Blue Network program to entertain servicemen abroad. During his absence of several months, his regular cast will be augmented by such pinch-hitters as Earl Wrightson and other singers.

ARMY WIFE
Dorothy Lamour, whose husband is the Army Air Forces' Major William Ross Howard, is writing a book on her experiences as an Army wife.

One-Man Mike

When "Casanova Brown" came to CBS' "Lux Radio Theater," in the person of tall, gaunt Gary Cooper, the stagehands shined up his special "thin man mike." Cooper, who is six feet, four inches tall, towered a full fourteen inches above his leading lady, Joan Bennett. Whenever he comes to the "Radio Theater," the specially-constructed "skyscraper" microphone is brought into use.

The Pay-Off

Sitting in on a script reading for CBS' "Toasties Time" show, we uncovered a cute custom which Fanny Brice and her cast have cooked up. Anyone who contributes an acceptable suggestion for a script change is paid for it, the money being drawn from a pool. The script contributor rates twenty-five cents by a majority vote, thirty-five cents if the vote is unanimous.

HEARTS ON THEIR SLEEVES

The Dick Brown fan club literally wears its heart upon its sleeve. The bobby-sox fans now sport small heart-shaped pins with an arrow running through Dick's name.

A sailor was afraid a soldier might get the "Blind Date" and told the girl over the phone, "Well, if you don't know whom to date, flip a coin into the air—if it stays up—take the soldier."

HEDDA'S PITCH

A recording of the bond pitch Hedda Hopper made on her recent CBS show is being played currently during bond sales in Times Square, New York, where a huge replica of the Statue of Liberty has been erected.

The pitch was written to include a special arrangement by her musical director, Dick Aurandt, of the song, "Put a Bond in the Bank for a Yank for Christmas."

A Christmas Message From a Philippine Foxhole

By Clete Roberts

the lucky little kids whose folks can still take them through the toylands of the department stores, take them adventuring in a fairyland that, thank God, still exists there at home. I could see all that as a vision that appeared between the lines. I looked around me at the wreckage of war and prayed that some day again I'd experience that kind of Christmas.

Do you know what Christmas is like out here? I'll tell you. This is my second Christmas under fire. Do you know where I was last Yuletide? Take a look at your map on the wall. Look at the west coast of New Guinea. Down in the southwest corner you'll see a place called Lae and Oro Bay. That's where I was the day before Christmas last year. That's where thousands of American boys were waiting in the black mud and steaming swamps for orders to go aboard ship for an attack against the Jap.

Christmas Eve

All day we lay under the trees, trying to keep out of the broiling sun. We waited while the landing craft were brought in from the sea. We watched them run up on the beaches, open their great bow doors so that we could wade out through the surf and crawl aboard. Our ship finally did reach the beach. We loaded and a few hours later pulled out to sea. There, until night-fall we steamed in circles waiting for the convoy to make up. At dusk our invasion force was ready to steam north for the attack against the Japs at Cape Gloucester on the island of New Britain. That was the dusk of Christmas Eve, your Christmas Eve there at home.

What did we do that evening? We sat around and thought of home. We sprawled on the ship's hot steel deck and cleaned our guns, sharpened our bayonets, tested our flame throwers. We made ready the weapons of death while we talked in low tones about what the folks were doing. Some of us wondered a little. Half-formed thoughts arose in our minds. Why? Why were we here on this side of the world preparing to kill or be killed on Christmas Day? But those were dangerous thoughts. We beat them back. We never voiced them. That's no way to think when you're landing on an enemy-held beach at dawn.

I guess most of us felt a little low. Then it happened. We heard the singing. You know how voices carry over water? From another ship, lost in the tropical blackness, we heard the melody of "Silent Night." We sat there saying nothing, listening to the soldiers singing, thankful for the darkness that hid the moisture that crept into our eyes. We heard that song through, then another. "Come All Ye Faithful" was where we joined in, softly at first, just a few of us singing sort of to ourselves, then louder, the chorus swelling as marines in mottled jungle clothing, guns in hand, forgot the tropic night, the war, and the death they might face on Christmas morn.

Men Affected

I think we all felt better for the singing. I know I did. I know that most of us managed to stretch on deck and get a few hours' sleep that we thought an impossibility an hour earlier. I think we could sleep because we'd found some sort of inner peace in the singing of those Christmas carols that reminded us of home and what we were really out there fighting for. Whether we realized it or not, we knew why we were going to land on that Jap-held beach in the morning.

We landed on Cape Gloucester Christmas morning. Some of us died, some lived. Those of us who came through now face another Christmas that will be much the same. Most of us on Christmas Eve this year will be thinking the same kind of thoughts as last year. But instead of New Guinea or New Britain, we're in the Philippines.

You asked me in your letter if I had a Christmas wish. I have. It's the same wish that's in the mind of every man out here. My wish: May you not forget about us. Try to realize that we are now only reaching the real beginning of our war here in the Pacific. When you gather around the family hearth this Christmas Eve, save a thought for these dogfaces, the doughboys, the thousands of guys like myself who are sleeping in foxholes half filled with water. Think of some of us waking to the howling wind of a hurricane, eating soggy K-rations, wringing the water out of our clothes, then going out to kill Japs on your, on our Christmas Day.

Think of us for a minute, and say a prayer, but don't overdo it. We're trying to make your Christmas happy and we'll be happy, just knowing you are. So don't pull any long faces. Smile, darn ya! Sit around and enjoy yourselves and sing a couple of Christmas carols.

We may be in a foxhole or an invasion barge, but we'll be singing with you.

EDITOR'S NOTE

A little over a year ago, the Blue Network's Coast Director of News and Special Features, Clete Roberts, left for the South Pacific as a war correspondent pledged to relay to the public "the kind of stuff that brings the home front in direct contact with the war front."

Not long ago, tired, wounded, and recipient of the Purple Heart, he returned home. A bomb from a Jap plane landed twenty-five feet from a hut in which Roberts and a number of radio and newspaper correspondents were quartered, killing one correspondent and blowing Roberts and two others completely out of the hut. Despite wounds in the arms and shoulders, Roberts obtained medical aid for his fellow casualties.

Not as Clete Roberts, war correspondent, but as Clete Roberts, voice of Gil Joe, does the Blue newsman write the accompanying article. He feels that the things he observed and learned in the Pacific should be brought firsthand to the folks back home, and with this idea in mind, he kindly consented to write this message for the readers of Radio Life.

THIS BRIEF note will have to take the place of the cheery, brightly-colored card which I'd be sending to all my friends if I were back there now instead of sweating it out in a foxhole in the Philippines.

You wrote me a letter not so long ago. I remember the day it came. It was the first news from home I'd received in five weeks. When the sergeant called my name and tossed me that envelope, my morale soared upward like a homesick angel. When I sat down on a blasted cocoanut palm to read it, I almost wept at the scene you painted of the preparations you are making for the holidays. I could picture everything: the turkey and cranberry sauce for Thanksgiving, the cool crisp air of fall, the shopping for the Christmas tree, the excitement on the children's faces,

Her Series of Presentiments Started in 1937, Have Come Regularly Every Two Years

HELEN FORREST, a cuddly little blonde who was a cuddly little brunette until recently, doesn't have much chance to relax. Besides her work on "Everything for the Boys," she makes frequent appearances on "Command Performance" and other War Department shows, is a consistent visitor at the Canteen, makes bond appearances and has three pictures to her credit.

zine, took a poll of the boys in uniform, and Helen came in second, right behind Dinah Shore.

"That was the thrill of a lifetime for me," said Helen, "for those are the fellows I want to like my songs. When I signed for 'Everything for the Boys,' I wasn't kidding. That's been my motto ever since the war started."

What Teacher Said

Helen, a cuddly little blonde who was a cuddly little brunette until recently, was born in Atlantic City. Like most popular singers today, she came from a non-musical family and never took a lesson in her life. Just for the heck of it, she went to a voice teacher a couple of years ago to see if she was doing right. The voice teacher listened to her, and when she had finished he said, "I have been teaching voice for 30 years, and I get $10 a lesson. You get $500 every time you open your mouth. Just keep on singing the way you always have."

STATISTICS show that the average G.I. gains fifteen pounds after he joins the Army. Helen Forrest, the songbird G.I.'s like better than food, knows how true those statistics are, for she gained thirteen pounds in one week eating G.I. chow.

"And on me it doesn't look good," said Helen—a statement which would probably get plenty of arguments from boys at the camps in Georgia who came out in droves to hear her sing.

Helen, who parlayed jobs with Artie Shaw, Benny Goodman and Harry James into a top spot on NBC's "Everything for the Boys" show, was something of a dark horse in the race for G.I. favor until a few months ago when Billboard, the trade maga-

Helen got off to a flying start in the musical world. After testing her wings in school plays both in Atlantic City and in New York, where her family moved, she landed on Station WNEW in New York in 1933, singing on five different shows under five different names. The names were Marlene, Bonnie Blue, Helene, Helen Forrest and another, which she can't even remember. At the same time, as Bonnie Blue, she was appearing with Mark Warnow's orchestra, which numbered among its members Jerry Colonna on trombone.

From New York she went to Washington, which she still looks upon as home, to fill a two-weeks engagement at the swank Madrilion Club. She stayed for two years. She had a couple of nibbles during that time. Artie Shaw heard her sing and wanted her to join his band then being formed, but she refused. Later Benny Goodman came around to hear her but said, "She can't sing worth a damn"—six words which he later ate.

◀ HELEN COMES from non-musical family and has never taken a lesson in her life. Voice teacher whom she visited said, "Just keep on singing the way you always have."

"My Christmas Song For You"

THE ODDS ARE 10,000 to 1 that it won't happen, but this did. Hoagy Carmichael, one of the most popular of songwriters, gets thousands of amateur music and lyric writers' manuscripts. Almost all of them are returned. But early this fall he received a note from Furniss Peterson, a newspaperman now in a rest cure home (Ansen Rest Home) in Tucson, Arizona. It read, "Dear Mr. Carmichael: I've never written a song before, but I thought that the enclosed lyrics might find favor with you in a song for our boys overseas." Hoagy read it and as he expressed it, "My hair stood on end." He knew he had some beautiful lyrics there, and if he could write a tune to go with them, he'd have the Christmas song hit of the year.

He wrote "My Christmas Song for You," which is well on its way to being one of America's number one tunes. He paid a visit to the Kay Kysers and while there sang the song to Georgia. She and Kay became so enthused that Kay broke all precedent and had his arranger make up the song for the following broadcast, three days later.

Georgia introduced the song on NBC's "College of Musical Knowledge" program on a Wednesday and by Friday morning the Kyser office had received over 400 letters commenting upon the song. From then on, history was made in the song business. The first order put in by the music wholesalers was for 100,000 copies and orders are well past the million mark by now.

GEORGIA INTRODUCED SONG on Wednesday night and by Friday morning the Kyser office had received four hundred letters commenting on the selection. She has sung Hoagy's and Furniss Peterson's "My Christmas Song for You" almost every Wednesday night for the past two months.

A SONG IS MADE POPULAR by a combination of many things, but most important are the singer, band, arranger, and number of listeners who will hear the effort. Here, Hoagy Carmichael runs over his new tune, "My Christmas Song for You," with Georgia Carroll, singing star of Kay Kyser's NBC "College of Musical Knowledge."

Prayer For the People

AMONG THE records of the Seventy-eighth Congress are the words of a prayer. It was written by Gabriel Heatter and read to his Mutual-Don Lee listeners on 'D'-Day. It became a part of the Congressional Record when Senator Carl A. Hatch of New Mexico read it on the floor of the Senate and has since become a part of thousands of letters sent to the boys who took part in that invasion and the battles that followed it.

These are the words of a man who likes to call himself "an average American" speaking to average Americans:

"Merciful God, watch over these men. They march in a crusade for humanity and freedom. These are not men of war. These are not men of hate or vengeance. These are humble men. Men whose hearts will never forget pity or mercy. They fight to give all the children of men peace on earth. They fight to banish tyranny and fear. Merciful God, our homes are empty—our hearts are torn with this desperate vigil.

"Into your care we give our prayers—our lives—our sons—all that we are and can ever hope to be on this earth—send these men back to us—home to us—for they are part of man's spirit—of man's dream of a world which is free and where kindness lives—watch over these men—we who are meek and humble—we whose faith is strong ask this. Send these men back to our hearts and our homes—this is our prayer."

Gabriel Heatter first became known to the radio audience about eleven years before he wrote this moving prayer, and is said never to have missed a single broadcast in all that time. For the past seven years he has been on the air five nights or more a week, fifty-two weeks a year! And for three years, he shouldered the additional task as conductor of "We, the People."

Newspaper Background

His first job was in 1907 as a copy boy on Brooklyn's old Times-Union, from which he advanced to full-fledged reporter in the courts, City Hall, and finally to cover New York state news at Albany. A born newspaperman, however, Heatter went with the New York Journal, later becoming London correspondent for the old New York Tribune, serving some time in Britain and the continent.

Returning to the United States, he became a successful freelance journalist and writer, winning for his article, "Children of the Crucible," the equivalent of the Pulitzer Prize of that day. His entry into radio came as a result of one of these articles, which he was asked by a leading broadcasting executive to deliver on the air. Before leaving the studio on that day, Heatter became a radio news commentator, and is widely credited with having developed the technique of radio commentary—the interpretation of news—as it is known today.

Within the radio world itself, he is one of its best-liked personalities and in the homes of his legion of fans, he likes to express the sentiments of the man he is among them—"An Average American."

▲ A PART OF MUTUAL'S NEWS COMMENTATOR'S TRIBUTE to 'D'-Day was his moving prayer, which is an appropriate thought at this holiday season.

again later on, and again offered Helen a job. This time she took it—on a hunch, she says, because Ozzie Nelson also made her an offer at the same time.

"I played my hunch and joined Artie," Helen says.

Hunches Began

That was the beginning of a series of hunches, which have come regularly ever since at two-year intervals. She went with Shaw in 1937. Two years later she joined Goodman, at a substantially larger figure than he could have got her for when he heard her in Washington. Soon after she joined the Goodman band, Harry James left it to start his own orchestra. It was not a successful band at first; in fact, after a few months, odds were that Harry the Horn would be back in the Goodman fold again before very long. However, Harry stuck it out. At the end of two years Helen Forrest had another hunch. She left Goodman and joined James. Within a matter of weeks the James band was a sensation, and Helen Forrest became a sensation along with it.

Her records with the band made history—"I Don't Want To Walk Without You," "I've Heard That Song Before," "I Had The Craziest Dream" and many others.

"After a couple of years, though, I figured that I had gone about as far as I could singing with bands," says Helen. "I had another hunch, this time to go out on my own."

So that was it. On her final radio show with Harry James, she sang "How Sweet You Are" and ran off the stage crying.

Nothing Like It

The following week she opened at the Orpheum in Los Angeles, and her opening was like none that theater has ever seen before or since. Somebody sent her a giant horseshoe made of roses. When she finished her act and was taking her bows, Martha Raye came crawling onto the stage on hands and knees with the horseshoe over her shoulders, followed by Carole Landis and Dick Haymes. The four joined voices in an impromptu song which veteran Orpheum-goers are still talking about.

Helen's next stop was the Roxy in New York, where she saw her name in lights on Broadway for the first time. Then she began working her way West again, and here she is.

She has been too busy lately to have any more hunches. Besides her work on NBC, she has appeared many times on "Command Performance" and the other War Department overseas shows; she is a frequent visitor at the Hollywood Canteen; she is always available for a war bond appearance; and she has made three motion pictures. Then, of course, there are her camp trips, including the one to Georgia, on which she gained thirteen pounds in one week. On her trips since then, she has kept herself to a strict diet, no matter how tempting the G.I. chow.

Her favorite story concerns the Georgia trip. She did one of her shows in a pine grove from the back of an Army truck with soldiers crowded about her and far back into the woods. As she sang, she became conscious of a commotion in the rear of the crowd. The public relations officer who was with her noticed it, too, and when she finished her song he called out, "What's the matter back there?"

From deep in the pines came a voice in reply, "I can't see the forest for the trees!"

Chamberlin takes particular delight in debunking historical beliefs. He likes to make historical figures human, and he constantly strives to give credit where credit is due, but always with diplomacy and tact.

But the illusion-smashing Mr. Chamberlin stopped short at shattering a child's faith in her historical hero, when his own six-year-old daughter came home from school one day, lauding Christopher Columbus as the discoverer of America.
