KUSC-FM, operated by the University of Southern California, brings an ever-increasing circle of listeners discriminating fare ranging from drama to philosophy.

By Bill Weber

THE CULTURE vultures who decry the lack of taste, intelligence and what not that radio broadcasting is accused of airing may hang up their crying towels. That is, if they tune in KUSC, the FM station operated by the University of Southern California.

If your taste runs to the little performed classic Jacobean dramas, you may want to tune in A New Way To Pay Old Debts, The White Devil, or The Revenger's Tragedy. These titles, unfamiliar to most modern playgoers, are, of course, important dramas in the development of the English theater.

Of if Shakespeare is your dish you may want to hear Julius Caesar or King Henry IV. If a Sir Walter Scott fan, you might be interested in the adaptation of The Bride of Lammermoor as a serial.

KUSC programming originates from two sources—discriminating selection of this country's and international broadcasting sources carried to local listeners through tape and recording, plus the diversified cultural and intellectual contributions of professors and students of the USC campus.

Many of the drama programs are of BBC origin, bringing players of the Old Vic and such stage stars as John Gielgud, Marius Goring, Flora Robson and others.

Music of Russia, for example, was a tape made by the American Society of Friends, a Quaker organization working on the international scene.

Biographies in Sound is of domestic origin and features the life stories as told by their friends of such greats as George Bernard Shaw, Ernest Hemingway, Frank Lloyd Wright, Carl Sandburg and others.

Rich In Subject Matter

As may be imagined, the wealth of material offered through the resources of USC is equally rich in the subject matter offered.

Interestingly enough, one of the most popular KUSC programs—an offering that would make any commercial broadcaster reach for his Milton and gin—is Philosophy Forum. Headed by USC's Dr. William Werkmeister, director of the School of Philosophy, Philosophy Forum is a lecture series presented by campus and visiting professors of the various schools of philosophy from Socrates to Sartre. Is there an audience for such a program? You can't discount the heavy (and highbrow) mail response indicating this to be one of KUSC's most widely listened to programs.

Another program of this calibre that has found wide response is Renaissance Lectures, a series on that period contributed to by USC's top men and guest philosophers.

Additional tidbits in this smorgasbord of intellect is Astronomy Tour given by Dr. Gibson Reeves, the astronomer; Readings From Troy in which English department professors, including Dr. Frank Baxter, present their favorite prose and poetry readings; and campus visitors such as Max Shulman, the writer, and Robert Maynard Hutchins, former University of Chicago wonder boy and now head of the Ford Foundation.

"Not being bound by commercial demands, KUSC feels itself fortunate in being able to present programming representative of the cultural life and thought surrounding a great university," observed William Stedman, program director, speaking on behalf of Dr. Kenneth Harwood, general manager of the station and head of the university's Department of Telecommunications.

"In programming, therefore, we are in the position to offer a wide variety of material not offered by any other station," Stedman said. "We are of the opinion from our studies that there are perhaps three important factors in attracting listeners to our programs—the tremendous interest that is developing in hi-fi, in which, of course, the FM broadcast fits; the discouragement of many radio and TV listeners with the commercialization and formulation of so much broadcasting today; and the fact that a higher IQ audience does actually exist and finds interest in weightier subject matter than is generally offered."

Audience Reaction

That such an audience does exist in Southern California is evidenced by letter writing, many letters from persons coming here from the east who are looking for stations on the coast carrying top calibre material similar to that which they knew in different parts of the country. Another sign of listener interest may be gleaned from the fact that at a recent Southern California hi-fi show over 1000 requests were received from potential listeners wishing to receive the monthly KUSC program schedule.

Why is so little known to the general public about KUSC? One factor is the reticence of academic institutions to highly publicize activities, and, of course, the limited budget for publicizing of programs.

KUSC-FM was founded in 1946 under the auspices of the Hancock Foundation and is owned and operated by the University of Southern California under the supervision of the Department of Telecommunications. Offices, three fully equipped studios, and transmitter are located on the USC campus.

KUSC-FM also plays another important role, that of a laboratory for students of the Department of Telecommunications. The station, however, is operated on a voluntary basis by undergraduate students headed by graduate students working for master's and doctor's degrees. William Stedman, program director, is now working on a doctor's thesis later to be published in book form. His subject is the story of the American soap opera.

This fall sees the premiere over KUSC of Fifty Years of Growth, a documentary series based on America in the twentieth century for which USC was awarded a $5000 grant by the Ford Foundation through the National Association of Educational Broadcasters. Department of Telecommunications members heading the project are Stuart M. Cooney, Jr., producer; Edward DeRoo, director; and Donald Price, researcher and writer.

So for those Southern Californians seeking the unusual and stimulating in broadcast fare give KUSC a whirl. You'll find it at 91.5 on your FM sets.

THE DOWN-TO-EARTH STORY OF Clint Walker

before. But this time, coming from an established actor like Johnson, the ABC-TV star took the suggestion seriously.

As a result, he and his wife, Verna, and their four-year-old daughter, Valerie, took off for Hollywood.

Big Break For Big Man

For a short time, he worked as a "bouncer" at various night clubs around Los Angeles. Finally, he got his big break when he landed the role of "Cheyenne" in the popular Warner Bros. feature seen on KABC-TV, Channel 7, and coast-to-coast on the ABC-TV network.

"I'm in the acting business because I hope to make a good living out of it," Clint admits. "Cheyenne," of course, was my first role and I was a green-horn when I started. I still have a lot to learn, naturally, but one thing is certain: 'Cheyenne' has given me the confidence I need."

The TV role has also given him a lot more than just confidence. Almost broke when he first arrived two years ago, Clint and his family have just moved into a new home in North Hollywood.

"It's five years old, but it's new to us," Clint explains. A former carpenter, he's been doing a lot of the re-modeling himself.

"I just finished building a tree-house for Valerie in the backyard. And wouldn't you know it—my wife and I use it as much as the kid. We just love to sit up there during the evening and sort of get away from it all," Clint says. (That must be a sight: big Clint and his small, petite wife cramped in that tree-house!)

Prospecting and Philosophy

"Getting away from it all," is not just an expression with the ABC-TV star. It's part of his philosophy of life.

Next to his family and work, his biggest thrill in life is to go prospecting. He takes off for remote areas throughout the West and heads for

*W*HERE'S SHORTY?" a man yelled, as he passed a table at the Warner Bros. commissary.

"He's coming in a few minutes," press agent Jack Casey replied, smiling.

A few minutes later, "Shorty" did enter. All six-foot-six, 235 pounds of him.

Those who know him realize there are two self-evident facts about Clint Walker's mammoth frame: there's not an ounce of fat on him—and not an ounce of phoniness, either.

Although he only arrived on the Hollywood scene two years ago, and has actually been a TV star for the past year, there's too much in Clint's down-to-earth background and basic nature to ever really change him.

At various times during his life, he has done a little bit of everything. His size has helped him in most of the jobs he's had. As a young man in his late teens he started as a boatman on the Great Lakes and the Mississippi River. Later he became a merchant marine sailor. Then a lumberjack, a ranchhand, and a deputy sheriff.

It was while he was a deputy sheriff that he met Van Johnson backstage at a Las Vegas hotel. Clint was there to enforce the law. Van was there entertaining the people. One night, coming offstage, Van passed by Clint and remarked:

"Say, big fellow, you ought to be in pictures."

Because of his size and good looks, Clint had been told this many times

The popular "Cheyenne" of the ABC-TV western series is more than just a big man (six-feet-six-inches tall, weighing 235 pounds) . . . he also thinks BIG. Here's his formula for health and happiness and why TV fame won't spoil him.

By Ted Hilgenstuhler

the hills looking for any kind of rare stones and metals, or even uranium.

"I have to get away in that kind of country and environment every once in a while," Clint explains quite seriously. "Most people go through life running around in circles. When I get out in the wide, open country, I get an entirely different perspective on life. My problems just seem to fade away. I realize that I am just a small part of everything.

"Probably the simplest way I can explain it, is that it's just like taking a shower. Living with nature like that seems to just wash me clean. I may get a little dirty on the outside, but inside of myself I feel fresh and alive again."

The long-haired, long-legged cowboy took a bite of his fresh fruit salad. Surprisingly enough, the big man from Cheyenne is a very light eater.

"I learned a long time ago—the hard way—that it isn't how much you eat, but what you eat, that counts."

Clint remembers his boyhood when he lived on "day-old doughnuts."

"The folks couldn't afford much better," he recalls. "Then when I started to travel around the country getting various kinds of jobs, my eating habits became even worse. Even at 20 years of age, I found myself getting fat and sloppy. My teeth were even getting bad. A steady diet of chopped-up bonemeal restored their natural strength.

"I soon became convinced that all types of processed food were detrimental to my health. And without a healthy body, life isn't much good. So I stayed away from all foods that are tampered with, degenerated, and literally poisoned by all kinds of disinfectants. The same with canned foods—which lose 70 per cent of their food value.

"Even though I was in my early 20s, I discovered that I became bigger and stronger. To this day, I buy my food at organic health stores.

CLINT IS convinced that his good health - and eventual success - can be attributed to the special kind of food he eats.

"Sure, it costs more to buy. But in the long run, I figure I'm saving money. I don't have to pay the doctor bills other people do!

"My little girl is a good example: A short time ago, all the kids in our neighborhood broke out with measles. My kid didn't," he proudly proclaims.

A Bull Story

From what has been written so far, the reader might get the impression that Clint Walker is a superman in cowboy's clothing. A perfect specimen of masculinity who tears nothing and has no faults. Although he might come pretty close, Clint would be the last one to admit it.

"I like to do most of the action stuff—the riding and fighting in the Cheyenne series. But sometimes even a well-meaning director can ask too much.

"Just the other day, for example," Clint relates, "the director came over to me and pointed to a grazing field. In that field were nine of the biggest bulls you've ever seen in your life.

"Now, Clint," he tells me, "I want you to take your horse and ride right through those bulls."

"Not me, the strong-man from Cheyenne replied. "You can find yourself another boy."

"But Clint," the director reasoned "You want to become a star, don't you? Tom Mix did it!"

"Yeah, and he's dead now," Clint concluded.

Result: Cheyenne rode around, not through, the ominous looking herd.

CHEYENNE has a simple solution for solving a problem between two tough guys: just bang their heads together (Warner Bros. photos.)

HOW THE WOMEN do go to muscular Clint. And little wonder with that physique! The admiring blonde is pretty Faye Spain.

HE'S ALL Ears and Eyes!

There's always an exciting challenge in a chance remark for the man whose hobby is the story Behind the Story 400 or 500 volumes, including Hones' Day by Day Book which goes back to 1806, and Chamber's Book of Dates. However, he always checks three sources for each story in order to get a complete picture.

He has corresponded with every state library in his search for documentary evidence, and some librarians have gone out of their way to help him. If, when researching for someone else, they come across a story they think he might like, they photostat it and send on to him. A Massachusetts state librarian found a story of two young girls, the Bates sisters, who by a bit of ingenuity prevented the British from landing in Scituate Harbor during the Revolutionary War. Checked through two other records, photostats were made of all three mentions and sent on to Bob.

As one of the writers for Behind the Story, Bob has written more than a million words, and Marvin Miller

by Jean Corlis

BOB TURNBULL is probably the most inquisitive man in Hollywood!

The author of over 500 scripts for KHJ-Radio's Behind the Story, Bob just can't resist finding out the who, why and when.

"I hear conversations in restaurants or on street corners. My curiosity is aroused by things I read in magazines and books or by questions people ask. Only the other day I was asked why it was all right for a woman to go to the Brown Derby without a hat, but must wear gloves. Why? Well, I know some of the history of gloves, now I've got to find out why they've become a symbol of correct social attire."

Practically everything is grist for Bob's mill. A book of matches, a lead pencil—"Did you know that wars have been fought because of pencils?" Bob queried. "At one time the English had a corner on the lead market and other nations wanted a share of the supply. Now pencils are filled with graphite, but we still call them 'lead' pencils. I saw an ad in a magazine for a new 'liquid lead' pencil, began wondering, and another Behind the Story was born."

Bob didn't start out to be a writer. In fact he still doesn't consider that his life work, but he was led to it because of his hobby.

"I taught art and drama in Live Oak, California. There wasn't much social life there so I turned to a habit I had acquired during the depression when you looked for hobbies that didn't cost anything—I started to gather unusual facts. I brought home volumes of the encyclopedia and made notes of things I wanted to do more research on.

"Then I went into the service and was stationed at Portland, Oregon. During passes and leaves I spent many hours at the public library. During this time I started sending home notes in envelopes addressed to myself to be 'filed' in paper cartons. Later, when I was sent to the South Pacific this habit got me into trouble.

"I had a letter from a relative back home asking me what I was up to, that the F.B.I. had been making inquiries about me. Frankly, I thought they must have been checking on the wrong person, but the next thing I knew I was dragged off by the MPs to the colonel's office for questioning. They thought I might be a spy. And all because I'd been sending letters home addressed to myself—written in my own particular brand of shorthand, a sort of cryptic code which no one else could translate except for a couple of words! I'd been taking down notes on the legends and early history of the Chinese and Filipinos, using V-Mail stationery, and the censors, making a spot check had become worried. Since we were at a secret base of operations, making invasion maps, close to General MacArthur's headquarters, there was reason for precaution. It just hadn't entered my head that my notes looked suspicious. Fortunately I was able to prove to the colonel's satisfaction that I was just indulging in a harmless hobby. But I'd learned my lesson, no more self-made shorthand during wartime!"

Legend or Fact

Bob has found that the fun of research is discovering that a "fact" reiterated down the years is really only legend. It becomes a game to uncover the real truth. He has an extensive reference library, about has spoken them soft and shouted them loud, has laughed and cried; infusing into Bob's factual stories the human element behind them. Marvin considers the story of how they chose The Unknown Soldier Bob's best script, and in his narration of this he was almost overcome with emotion.

Interesting Origins

Bob's favorite stories, though, are the offbeat, or little known ones. For instance, in reading through U. S. Naval Institute proceedings to learn the history of early paddle-wheel boats, he found a reference which upset the common belief that the Merrimac was the first iron-clad vessel. Actually, a Frenchman by the name of Labrousse had designed and built several iron-clad ships for Napoleon III, and these were engaged in battle October 17, 1855.

Another interesting story was that of the first automobile. It was constructed by a Belgian Jesuit missionary to China, Ferdinand Verbiest. Built in the courtyard of the Chinese Emperor in the late 1600's it was powered by steam. When the boiler was fired up, the compressed steam turned the axle.

So behind the story of Behind the Story is the chance remark, the obscure mention, the long, tedious weeks of research, correspondence, preparation and writing of a story it takes just fifteen minutes to tell.

"If I was just a writer I might find all the necessary research a chore," Bob commented. "Since it's a hobby, it's fun, but I'm even more enthusiastic about my real work—that of production assistant on the Edgar Bergen show, Do You Trust Your Wife? I'm lucky, I have two things to do that I really enjoy."

BOB CUMMINGS WAS SELECTED AS ONE of judges for the "Strike It Lovely" beauty contest. Bob, flanked by Donna Martell and Joi Lansing of his CBS show, will guest contest winner on his program.

THIS week in TV was an interim period—the lull between new shows which had descended onto the airwaves in a flurry and tooling up for coverage of the elections.

For TV-Radio Life, however, it was one of the magazine's most exciting weeks when the redesigned publication hit the stands in all rotogravure, with news stories told pictorially. Enthusiastic acclaim greeted the "new look" in TV and radio circles. By week's end, it was evident that readers reaffirmed this warm reception and that TV-Radio Life had taken a major step in a most rewarding and promising direction.

PARTIES at ABC-TV greeted debut of two new "band" shows—Lawrence Welk's and Ray Anthony's.

The victual (pronounced vit'l) statistics as furnished by manager Louis Bianco of Chasen's catering service: For the Anthony party of 450 people—425 pounds of Eastern prime beef, 75 fryers for Chicken Saute Sec, 200 pounds of lobster, shrimp and red snappers for Saute Sea Food Creole and 200 pounds of small potatoes.

For the Welk shindig of 350 persons: 200 pounds of tenderloin, 235 chickens, 125 pounds of lobster, shrimp and scallops for Sea Food Poulette and 100 pounds of potatoes.

The total cost of the parties was not announced. Prime rib, a la carte, at Chasen's runs $3.85. And that's no small potatoes when you multiply it by 800.

CHAMPAGNE LADY ALICE LON and Linda Crosby, wife of announcer Lou Crosby, enjoyed the Monday night affair for Welk so much — they came back for "seconds" on Friday night for the Anthony celebration.

SUAVE JOHN DALY will act as anchor man for the ABC-TV network.

NBC's ANCHOR MAN will be Merrill ("Red") Mueller. Also reporting: H. V. Kaltenborn, Morgan Beatty, Elmer Peterson.

THE night of November 6 will be occasion of the most Spectacular TV show of them all—the highest-priced and most publicized program of the year.

It won't be "exclusive" to one station or network, either. All three majors (ABC, CBS and NBC), plus all Southern California's independent stations will cover the event on an individual basis.

The cause of the Spectacular: Election Night, 1956.

In many ways, it's not only the most important, but the longest-running of any televised event during the past four years. It began in late summer with the Democratic and Republican conventions; continued through the fall with innumerable campaign speeches; and comes to a dramatic close this week.

CBS NEWSMAN DOUG EDWARDS will be assigned to UNIVAC, to explain giant computer's evaluation of national voting trend.

ANCHOR MAN FOR CBS election news will be Walter Cronkite who held same post before.

VIRTUOSO JACK BENNY HEADS UP HILLBILLY BAND ON EARLY DAY TELEVISION

BUCK BENNY RIDES THE AIRWAYS AGAIN

ONE OF MOST ENERGETIC wartime entertainers, Benny loved to highlight camp appearance by "rendering" "Love In Bloom." Audience threw pennies at his feet.

RAUDIO was clapping its collective hands in glee last week when word of Jack Benny's return to the sound medium was finally confirmed. Starting October 28 on CBS-KNX (6:30-7:00 p.m.) the sly man who first gained fame with his rusty vault, antique Maxwell, rasping Rochester, squeaky violin and a dozen other beloved trademarks will bring radioites a weekly portion of distinctive humor, culled from the best of Benny tapes. As occasion demands, new material will be sandwiched in. Appearing with Jack will be Mary, Dennis, Rochester, Don Wilson, Mel Blanc, Frank Nelson and Artie Auerbach. Accompanying pictures from TV-Radio Life files may jog your memories.

ROCHESTER AND "BOSS" sadly survey the old Maxwell. Picture was taken during World War II when script called for car to be turned in for junk metal.

FIRST, MAY I THANK ALL the readers who favored us with nice messages on the redesigned TV-Radio Life! Had only 8 adverse comments, mostly from those who missed the kilocycle radio guide (this was rectified last week). Response to the pictorial treatment of the news was overwhelming. Minor changes will be made in format as your wishes indicate.

MOST FRUITFUL GATHERING of the week was the luncheon hosted by Sarah Churchill and Albert McCleery of NBC's Matinee Theater. It was prompted by upcoming performance of Sir Winston Churchill's only novel, "Savrola," on the Matinee program. Originally scheduled for Oct. 31, the presentation was suddenly postponed early last week after Miss Churchill and McCleery flew to Nice to consult with Sir Winston and found that the author wished certain revisions in interpretation of the book he wrote when he was only 23. Apparently the main problem is for the TV vehicle to take the audience back to 1897 when young Winston in India was writing before the era of political dictators as we now know them. McCleery found Sir Winston emphatic, but not negative about the script which had been prepared, an author with great respect for other writers. The NBC visitors decided there was no point in travelling 13,000 miles for an opinion only to disregard it, so will revise their treatment and present it Nov. 15.

NOTE TO W.A.H. of San Dimas (in case you read this issue): Notice of the address you wanted to hear did not come out until four days before the speech—we were already on the stands. You jumped to very unfair conclusions!

HOW RELIEVED WE'LL be when political pitches leave our airways—not only because we're pretty tired of palaver. Trying to maintain a true log schedule in the face of pre-emptions is well nigh impossible. Latest to feel the pinch is Nat ("King") Cole's new show, supposed to have started this week and crowded out by election material. It is now set to go Nov. 12. Another show failing to appear was Most Beautiful Girl in the World, to be emceed by Hal March. It is now pencilled in for a Nov. 19 start.

FIRST CHRISTMAS PARTY of the season was held Oct. 24 in the American Room to let the press know about the Nov. 10 Christmas Show to be telecast from 11:00 to 12:00 midnight by Riviera on all seven local stations, plus 8 and 10 in San Diego, 10 and 29 in Bakersfield and 3 in Santa Barbara. Art Linkletter, who will emcee, said he was delighted at prospect of being on all channels simultaneously. "In case viewers tune one channel and don't like me, they're going to be stuck with me on every channel and can't tune me out," he gloated.

Johnny O'Neill and Wynn Stewart were the two outstanding singers on Town Hall Party. I am going to yell my "ever lovin'" head off until these two kids get back on the show. Please yell with me.

oooooooooooooooooooo!!! Explanation for absence: Johnny is making a movie and Wynn is making personal appearances around the country.

Mrs. K. C., San Bernardino

I don't understand why people dislike Elvis Presley, for he is a good boy and has a different way of singing which I and my husband and all my friends like very much. If someone should be criticized it should be those women on TV without proper clothing.

P. H., Hollywood

Give the actors a break! Several of the credit lists on various TV shows — Lux Video being one of the worst offenders — are hurried through to the extent of not being able to read the names of the players. The impression to the viewer is that the stars are the only important people in the cast. Or it could be that the technicians have a train to catch!

Mrs. K. L. T., Pomona

What happened to Liberace, Ina Ray Hutton and Orrin Tucker? We enjoy lots of music and have missed them.

At press time, the shows mentioned are not on the air, but may return shortly. We will keep our readers posted, as always.

Miss R. M., Covina

This is to S. C. of West L. A., who wrote that little bit about Elvis Presley, and to all the others who don't like him. Television is for everyone, and if there is a program you don't like all you have to do is turn the station. No one is making you sit there and watch it. There are a lot of programs I don't like, but I'm not complaining because I know there are a lot of people who do like them, or otherwise they wouldn't be on TV. Everyone to their own taste I say, but if you can't say something nice about someone, the best thing is to keep quiet. And if you want to sell your TV set, that's your business, but don't you think there will be a lot of shows you'll miss?

E. E. O., Beverly Hills

I do feel that one should "give credit where credit is due" and would like to comment on some of the past summer's shows, which I enjoyed.

I remember Vic Damone from just a very few years back . . . he was shy, retiring and so unsure of himself and sang with little feeling. In just these few years, he has developed into a dynamo in putting over his songs, with sureness, just 'enuf ego to make his program outstanding.

I feel that Rosemary Clooney is one person who puts feeling in her songs, enunciates all of her lyrics perfectly and never sings a false note . . . and too, she always looks as tho' she has just stepped from a band-box . . . so refreshing and acts as tho' life is worth living.

Patti Page has shown she is a female Perry Como with her serenity and soft voice — so restful and oh, how she can sing a song . . . and she's so pretty too!

Now for a brickbat . . . I feel that TV has progressed 'enuf' during these past years, NOT to have so many second, third and even fourth "repeats" all summer long, among them, "Lucy," "Gracie Allen," "Dragnet," "Badge 714," Groucho Marx, etc.

No name listed, Redlands

We spun the TV dials eagerly for the return of "The Big Surprise" and were so disappointed to see the same stage setting, props, call them what you will, everything curved and curlycued, and the ghastly revolving dots!

P. E., Lancaster

Here is what I think of Jackson Wheeler: he is too wordy, too "personal" and causes me to lose interest in KTTV's really good pictures about that time of night.

M. J., Universal City

Again, I have just watched Wanderlust on TV and enjoyed it very much. But this letter is for that happy, happy laugh of Slim Barnard's. I always feel happy after hearing it and I hope he reads this item in your column.

Tunnel

DUG BY JACK HOLLAND

It took a woman to sound off on what should be a battle for the men. One young lady, quite irate, told this tunnel how sick she was of TV shows and movies that made the husband of the house look like a jerk of the first degree. "Always he is pictured as being so stupid, so dull, everyone is smarter than he is, and I think women resent this." She referred to no specific show but to most TV family series in general. Check your list of family shows on television and see how often this holds true. As a man, naturally I think she has something in her argument. I grant you that the little woman may pull a lot of strings to make her husband seem very clever at times, but she's not the consistent brain-truster TV would have you believe. There's an old story that women like the man to be the boss, the real head of the house. If this is so, somebody ought to tell the writers of family situation comedies. At any rate, thanks to this one young lady's stand on a much neglected soap box.

It was sad to see that Peggy King got a divorce. She tried very hard to make this marriage click, as Knobby must have too. When they reconciled a while back, I talked to Peggy and she spoke very frankly of her own mistakes. Then she said very seriously, "If our marriage does fail, it won't be because we haven't tried to make it go." Apparently, career differences caused the break, but knowing Peggy's feeling about career vs. marriage I can't help thinking there was more to the situation than just this. Whatever the reason it is too bad it had to happen. Happiness is often an elusive thing. We run after it, look for it everywhere, and fail to see it right under our noses. Guess it's because horizons get too clouded with things that don't, in the long run, really matter. Wherever it is for Peggy and Knobby, let's hope they find it before too long.

Disc jockeys come and go but Andy and Virginia Mansfield go on and on holding their respected position on radio by their sheer efforts to do a thorough, thoughtful job. Their KFI program and Andy's solo stint on KFI on Saturday night have steadily attracted listeners because something different, something off-beat is provided. They never do a half job and they're always after some new idea. It is this kind of imaginative thinking and hard work that keep any radio — or TV — show alive and kicking. Andy and Virginia's programs are probably the most difficult of any record show since they involve so much research and require such extensive musical background. This is one couple who never sits down on a job. No wonder they're still radio stalwarts.

Much has been said about Playhouse 90's last two productions of "Sizeman and Son" and "Requiem for a Heavyweight." Both came in for critical raves — and both proved that it makes no difference how long a show is if there is a good story and expert production. From all indications, Playhouse 90 has hit its stride and is being recognized as adult TV. It was not an easy task to produce an hour and a half show each week, but the standard so far is very encouraging. Martin Manulis and his staff deserve high credit.

At the risk of being repetitious, credit is also due KTTV for finally showing how to present commercials on shows running old movies. The way the plugs are done on the Colgate Theatre is an example for other TV stations. The blurbs are short, to the point, and not too frequent. This is something viewers have been crying for for months!

Received the information too late to tell you last week, but I hope you caught "Ninotchka" on KTTV, Friday night, Nov. 2. It's a very funny picture containing some of the most effective propaganda ever used against the communists, and by way of heresy, I must say that I enjoyed the performances of Melvyn Douglas, Felix Bressart and Sig Rumann fully as much as that of Miss Garbo. Now, I hope she'll still speak to me.

"Gunga Din." (9) beginning Nov. 6, 9:00. 1939 or '40 or so . . . I forget. One of the best adventure movies ever made, this free adaptation of a series of stories by Rudyard Kipling stars Cary Grant, Victor McLaglen and Douglas Fairbanks, Jr. as a trio of British soldiers in India who get mixed up with a tribe of native killers, find themselves pinned down under fire atop a temple of gold, and finally subdue the recalcitrant citizenry so they can return to their normal routine of practical jokery. Sam Jaffe plays the title role in a bikini, Joan Fontaine is Doug's heart interest, but the real stars are Grant and McLaglen, whose comedy performances spark the whole proceedings.

"Wizard of Oz." (2) Nov. 3, 9:00. This well remembered, well beloved movie classic is to be shown here on the "Ford Star Jubilee." Movies on TV are really going big time, eh? It stars Judy Garland, Ray Bolger, Bert Lahr, Jack Haley, Frank Morgan and Billie Burke and I'm sure everyone has seen it at least once and heard "Over the Rainbow" at least a hundred times, so I'll just say it's a wonderful treat for kiddies of all ages.

"Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde." (11) Nov. 9, 8:00. Nothing but classics or remakes of classics on TV, lately, which leave me with not much to say. (This is why I said a couple of weeks ago that I'd never heard of "The Man Who Came To Dinner," and received no fewer than five letters telling me all about it.) Surely, everyone knows the plot of "Jekyll and

Pick of the Pix

BY AUBREY DAHL

Hyde," so I'll add only that this version stars Spencer Tracy as the schizophrenic, Ingrid Bergman as the barmaid and Lana Turner as the sweet young thing, which I've always thought was quite a casting switch.

"Footsteps in the Dark." (5) Nov. 4, 7:30. 1941. Errol Flynn is an author who prowls the streets at night looking for material, stumbles across the dead body of a gem merchant, decides it's murder and makes suckers out of the police force while he solves it. This was a quick change for Errol from costume pictures and I think it was for the better. Some of it is funny. Watching Errol the other night in an old movie, I was struck by the fact that the leading men of yesteryear were such much better actors, even though they weren't great, than the current crop of short name sensations.

"Romance of Rosy Ridge." (11) Nov. 7, 10:15. 1947. A harmonica playing stranger, Van Johnson, comes to the border state farm of Thomas Mitchell in 1865 and is soon in the middle of a feud between men who can't forget the Civil War, and a romance with Janet Leigh.

"Blues in the Night." (2) Nov. 8, 11:00. 1941. One of the first cinematic attempts to understand jazz, this picture starts out promisingly with the formation of a jazz band in the south, but soon develops into a fairly routine gangster thriller. Richard Whorf, Jack Carson and Priscilla Lane are the stars and appearing in a small role is Elia Kazan. Who would've thought?

Television Twins Reign Over Harness Race Meet

The Western Harness Racing Association outdid itself picking a "queen" this year. Two queens were selected—two young ladies who are no strangers to TV fans. They are Caryl and Susan Volkmann, the UCLA co-eds who astounded the nation recently with their knowledge of American politics on the $64,000 Question. Caryl and Susan won $16,000 before they decided to quit. All the money goes into a trust fund for their education at UCLA.

Cleve, and Gil on TV, and Sam on radio, regularly announce the daily Harness race results. The meet at Hollywood Park lasts until November 7.

ELECTION RETURNS

The year's biggest political story will be covered by the notable newsmen on the ABC team. Heading the team of commentators who report and analyze the returns is JOHN DALY.

"The Wizard of Oz"

Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's 1939 film adaptation of the "Oz" series by L. Frank Baum starring Judy Garland.

Dorothy .....JUDY GARLAND
Scarecrow .....RAY BOLGER
Cowardly Lion .....BERT LAHR
Tin Woodman .....JACK HALEY
Glinda .....BILLIE BURKE
Wondrous Wizard of Oz .....FRANK MORGAN
Munchkins .....SINGER MIDGETS

The story of a little Kansas girl and her dog "Toto," deposited by a cyclone in the magic land of Oz. With the Dancing Scarecrow, the Cowardly Lion and the Tin Woodman, Dorothy goes on a tour of Munchkinland, a city populated entirely by midgets, sees the legendary horse of a different color and views trees that talk and throw apples. Her adventures include an exciting ascent in a balloon, a visit to the Palace of Gems in the Emerald City and a meeting with the wondrous Wizard of Oz himself.

Musical numbers include "If I Only Had a Brain," "We're Off to See the Wizard," "Ding, Dong, the Witch Is Dead," "The Merry Old Land of Oz," "If I Were King of the Forest" and "Over the Rainbow," the song which has become identified with Judy's success as "Miss Show Business."

The film was directed by Victor Fleming, produced by Mervyn Le Roy. The screenplay was written by Noel Langley, Florence Ryerson and Edgar Allan Woolf.

Wire Service

Wire Service is one of those things that should never have happened to the newspaper profession.

Allegedly portraying the news gatherer of a wire service, the first showing of this series was nothing more or less than a tired plot hung around a newspaperman's neck. Steeped in cliché, even to the fortuitous bite of a rattlesnake circumventing the lethal intentions of one partner to do away with another by rolling a boulder on his unsuspecting noggin, Wire Service is badly in need of competent newsmen if for nothing else than to reveal the facts of life to the television plotters.

Even the most innocent television viewers would find it hard to believe that a supposedly crack newspaperman would, while trapped in an isolated desert spot, knock out a story of a suspected murderer hovering around the newspaperman's neck. And what newspaperman—except in the mind of a television writer—would casually hand his copy covering the skullduggery of uranium prospectors to the subjects of his story for them to put over the wire?

Wire Service suffers from the fact that today's television watchers have seen top reporters of such calibre as Edward Murrow at work. And it is hard to top the reality of seeing ace newsmen in action as brought to television in Big Story, true stories of professional newspapermen. Today's sophisticated audiences are hardly to be taken in by old plot claptrap as offered in Wire Service.

Wire Service suffers from the lack of what I would call the "Jack Webb approach," that is, a careful and intensive study of the subject matter. It will be remembered that cops had become pretty routine stock characters until Webb gave them reality and vitality. Wire Service offers this same possibility for turning up with a strong series of dramas.

The fact that Wire Service also suffered from its length of one hour, poses a problem that will come increasingly to the fore as television shows lengthen, as they seem to be at this time. An audience will put up with a tedious picture in a motion picture house for the simple reason that having paid an admission, human nature usually demands that money's worth be obtained.

Walter Winchell Show

Walter Winchell is a slice of Americana that has made itself a part of the scene whatever one may think of Mr. Winchell personally.

Winchell has an enduring power of personal magnetism, charm, or call it what you will, that has insured his survival against all odds. Few radio and television performers have the distinction to have members of his unseen audience denounce him on any number of grounds and then turn around and listen to him spellbound.

In his new show Winchell is still Winchell with his sharp, breathless and brassy charm. Which is to say that the old maestro is in top form and will still draw a wide audience, including those who profess to dislike him.

With the experienced newsman's nose for drama, Mr. Winchell puts together an exciting bill of entertainment.

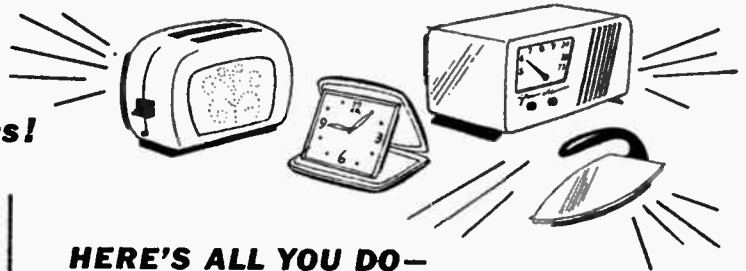

Sooner or later the comparison will be made between Winchell and Sullivan. And it would be interesting to speculate as to the competition between the two were the shows posed opposite each other. Although in the realm of pure speculation one cannot help but wonder if perhaps the present Winchell show is a try-out for later pitting against the formidable Sullivan. Both are former newspapermen and columnists, and both possess a strong sense, well-honed by experience, of what spells excitement to the public. And I'm not so sure that Winchell might not come out the victor, judging by his present pace. Bill Weber.

6 (2) (3) (8) ELECTION RETURNS

Walter Cronkite again settles into the 'anchor' seat for the CBS Television Network. Edward R. Murrow and Eric Sevareid give their interpretations of the election news. Douglas Edwards has the unusual assignment of working with UNIVAC. Public opinion analyst Elmo Roper and political analyst Samuel Lubell join the CBS staff in the coverage. Charles Collingwood covers the East; Bill Downs, the Midwest; Richard C. Hottel, the Far West; and Blair Clark the South. Remote pick-ups are planned throughout the evening.

(4) (10) ELECTION RETURNS

Anchor men for NBC's coverage are Chet Huntley and David Brinkley and are supported by Morgan Beatty, Richard Harkness, Ray Scherer, Herb Kaplow, Peter Hackes, Randall Jessee, Joseph McCafrey, Ray Henle, Ned Brooks, Robert McCormick, Elmer Peterson, Jim Hurlbut, Roy Neal, Jack Chancellor, Alex Dreier and H. V. Kaltenborn. At IBM headquarters in New York Joseph C. Harsch reports and analyzes the computations of the huge "705" IBM electronic "brain" used to compute and project voting trends.

"MURDER AMONG FRIENDS."

Well, it looks like fall is really here, although we do have a very warm day every now and then. In most parts of the country this means that the salad season is over but here in Southern California that is not the case. No sirree . . . salads are in demand all of the time and if you like a sweet-sour dressing I have just the one for you.

HENRI'S TAS-TEE DRESSINGS. This dressing is ideal for any fruit or vegetable salad and it's also wonderful when poured over warm potatoes. This makes the best potato salad ever. Try it with cottage cheese or cole slaw too. Salads are a very important part of the diet for any family and the right dressing is a must. So try HENRI'S TAS-TEE DRESSING next time you want a real taste thrill. And remember to save the labels. The 8 oz. is worth 2 points and the 16 oz. is worth 4 points.

You just might win a bottle of HENRI'S or many of the other fine Label Bank products if you would come to some of the market appearances. Saturday morning at 11:00, Nov. 10th, I'll be at Safeway Market, 3215 Tweedy Blvd., in So. Gate. I'll have fifty giant bags of Label Bank Products to give away as well as some beautiful prizes. How about coming out and winning yourself some prizes or products. You just might win both.

There's a brand new label list out now with many new products listed and if you haven't received yours drop me a note and I'll see that one is sent to you. Just write to me or Label Bank, 727 No. La Brea Avenue, Hollywood 38, Calif. Or call WE 8-2438.

(1941) John Hubbard, Marjorie Weaver. Two young romancers get involved in insurance murders.

BIG FIVE
The annual Hollywood Bowl Charity Show of the Big Five on KLAC is rapidly becoming a filmland institution. This year the Big Five—who are actually the Big Six—grossed $66,179 on the benefit, some $10,000 more than last year. The net proceeds are distributed between the Hollywood Boys' Club and the trade organization, Radio, Television, Recording, Advertising Charities, Inc. Headliners in show business donated their services to the event which filled the Bowl for the fifth presentation of the yearly program.

'OUR GAL DOTTY'

Dorothy Gardiner, who recently completed a mechanic's course in the mechanics of an automobile, was greatly honored by her fellow students. They named the "Milady" hostess. "The girl we'd most like to clean sparkplugs with."

SAFETY SWABS SWELL

Tom Hatten and his friend 'Popeye' have recruited 1250 members in their 'Safety Swabs Club' in an effort to make kids and adults alike more safety-conscious. The 1250 junior sailors give 'Popeye' a pretty big navy.

Around the Sports Circle With The L. A. Rams

WHEN veteran Ram announcer Bob Kelly takes over the TV chores, popular Bill Brundige handles the play by play of the Ram games over KHJ radio.

AMONG the Rams' most promising rookies this season is the 220 pound full-back from West Virginia, Joe Marconi.

ANOTHER promising rookie on the Ram roster is center Hugh Pitts from Texas Christian. He was the Rams' number two draft choice in 1956.

ELROY "CRAZYLEGS" HIRSCH supposedly retired two seasons ago, but ole number "40" is still in business snagging passes.

NOW AN established star in the National Football League is rugged Les Richter. The six-foot-three-inch, 230-pound lineman is considered one of the best in the business.

Are Giveaway Shows

By Jack Holland

LITTLE DID ANYONE know what would happen to the TV scene when The $64,000 Question and The $64,000 Challenge became such sensations.

They say that imitation is the best form of flattery. Well, if that is the case, the $64,000 shows are sure being flattered.

A rash of giveaways is flooding television now—with the money offered skyrocketing to incredible—and often ridiculous—amounts. The first to follow The $64,000 Question was The Big Surprise, which offers money up to $100,000. It hasn't lived up to its expectations. It proved that the money wasn't the answer to a successful show, but that the people who appeared were.

In spite of the disappointing showing of The Big Surprise, other quiz shows are sprouting like weeds and all are assuming that the bigger the giveaway the more spectacular will be the success. There are bound to be a few disappointing results in that line-up.

CBS Offers

One of the more recent shows is CBS-TV's High Finance. This one stars the very personable and likeable Dennis James as host and is based on the premise of trade and barter. Each week three contestants aim for their life's dream and answer questions based on news in the daily newspapers. The payoff amount is $75,000, depending on how far each contestant chooses to trade or barter for his objective.

A Navy commander, Andrew J. Taylor, already walked off with winnings totaling $44,000. He got a miniature golf course and driving range in Daytona Beach, Florida, two cars worth $4000, $5000 worth of stocks and $50 left in the cash stake.

Another upcoming CBS-TV show is Giant Step, which will give kids from 7 to 17 a chance to compete for scholarships to a college of their choice or a trip around the world. This at least gets the younger set in the act and gives them something really worthwhile to aim at.

NBC Shows

NBC-TV has a few on tap, too.

Its new show, Twenty-One, has already started rolling and offers unlimited cash awards. It's played by two contestants, previously selected on the basis of their knowledge, who compete for 21 points by answering questions from an assigned category. To prevent the contestants from knowing of the others' progress, they are isolated in two miniature TV studios fully equipped with microphones and cameras. The categories are the same for both but change after each set of questions is asked. The contestants can win from one to 11 points for each correct answer but the higher the number chosen the more difficult is the question. If a contestant can't answer the puzzler, the number of points the question is worth is deducted from his score. The first to get 21 wins and receives $500 a point for the difference between his score and that of his opponent. The winner then can win more by competing against a new opponent. And a contestant can continue to appear and win as long as he beats his challenger. Sounds involved—and it is.

NBC also launched Tic-Tac-Dough for the daytime with Jack Barry emceeing. This one is the old familiar game of tick-tack-toe. The winner gets $100 but can increase his winnings indefinitely.

Another NBC projected quizzier is The Most Beautiful Girl in the World with a jackpot worth $250,000 for the most talented, beautiful and intelligent female on the face of the earth. At least this one will offer some attractive scenery.

Then there is Bert Parks and his ever-present Break the Bank which goes on NBC and is offering a new format and a jackpot of $250,000. This is a sizable change from the former years when Break the Bank offered good entertainment but nothing as staggering as its present payoff.

DENNIS JAMES on the High Finance show for CBS-TV shows a contestant some of the prizes she can win—plus a fabulous final payoff in cash.

GETTING OUT OF HAND

Quiz shows with fabulous prizes are piling up daily. Their critics accuse them of vulgarizing TV entertainment. Do you agree?

Treasure Hunt

ABC is not going to be left out of the act, either. It has Treasure Hunt, headed by Jan Murray. The jackpot here is a measly $25,000. Contestants compete to reach the treasure cove wherein is stowed a chest containing $25,000. Each person is asked four questions and each question is worth $25. At the end of the four questions the one who has won the most money goes on to guess which of the chests in the cove has the $25,000. Other chests may contain title to a car, a speedboat, a house trailer, a trip around the world, or just a head of cabbage. A representative of Lloyds of London places the payoff chest in the cove and seals it off under guard.

Of all the quiz shows Treasure Hunt is the only one which has luck as the payoff instead of knowledge, but network officials believe this will add more entertainment.

Speaking of entertainment, it is significant to note that Groucho's You Bet Your Life has remained popular for several years. And it is offering peanuts in comparison with the other shows. All it has to give viewers is continued good entertainment which seems to be a factor overlooked by some.

After all, the only giveaway that really matters in this business is entertainment—unless TV is to degenerate into a mass of uncontrolled tossing about of money. One thing is certain—if the questions asked the contestants are as ridiculously impossible to answer as some have been recently, the whole quiz idea is going to get a lot more hoots than praises from a disgusted public.

Why Groucho Didn't Quit

For a while the master wit of You Bet Your Life was ready to throw in the towel. But he changed his mind. Here's why.

By Jack Holland

IT HAS BEEN no special secret that Groucho Marx has been concerned about several things in connection with his career and his NBC-TV and radio You Bet Your Life. It also has been no secret that the greatest wit on TV and radio today was thinking of calling it a day.

These, then, are the facts behind Groucho's feelings about his future.

There are over 6000 actors registered in this town and yet of this lot there are only about 10 who can be called real comedians. The conclusion to be drawn is that comics, the top-drawer variety, are a rare species, a perishable commodity. Many of this country's best comedians have tried regular shows on TV and most of them have broken down under the pressure. They have also been treated in a shameful way by a fickle public and an even more inconsiderate use of their talents.

"Once comedy shows went into a slump," Groucho has said, "people began to lose interest in TV itself, since comedy is, after all, the backbone of the entertainment business. I personally feel that the treatment given our finest comics is disgraceful. They should be taken care of—not used as footballs."

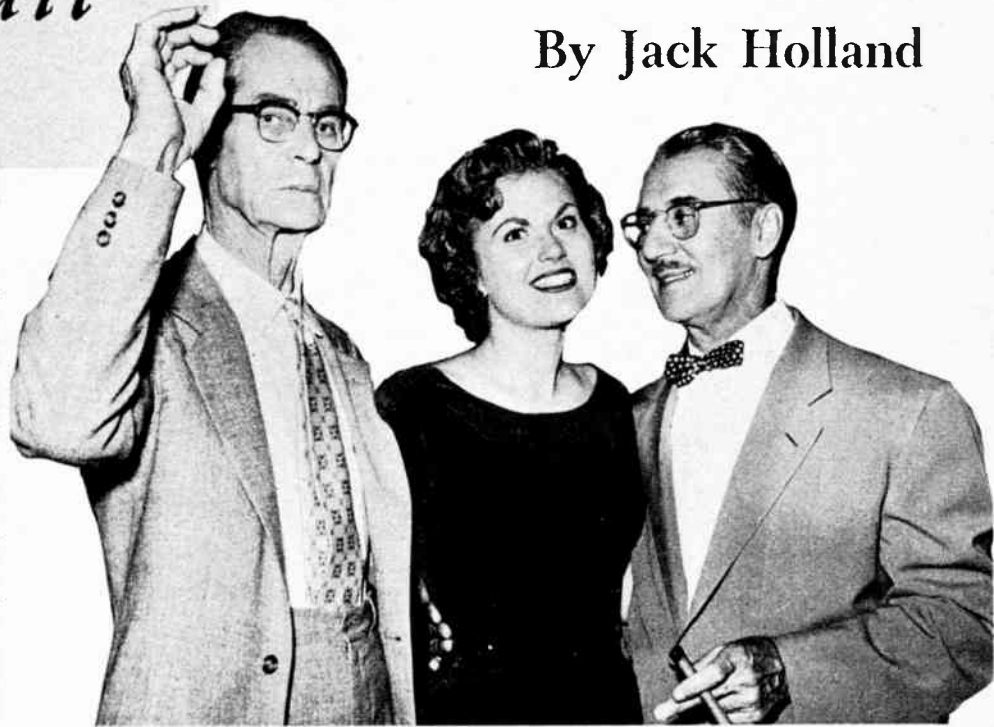

Groucho is about the only comedian around who has survived on TV—and after 10 years in the medium he is stronger than ever. Part of this may be due to the interesting personalities on his program and because he is not the entire show, although he has to carry the biggest load. Still, Groucho has given his future much thought.

His Views

He is no kid any more. He's well enough off financially so that he doesn't have to work. He's been a headliner for 45 years. He feels, therefore, that he's foolish to work as hard as he does for 39 weeks of the year.

"Why knock my brains out anyway since the taxes take about all I earn?" Such is his reasoning.

His health is also a consideration. While he is very healthy and while he takes care of himself, he is subject to colds and the stages on which he works are quite drafty with their often erratic air conditioning. So why risk his health when he doesn't have to?

EDGAR HIGGINS, left, Groucho's father-in-law, paid a surprise visit to You Bet Your Life and won $500. Barbara Grant, school teacher, won $300 on the NBC-TV show. (NBC photo—Gerald Smith).

Groucho weighed all these things and then decided to carry on with his show until someone says to him, "Groucho, you're slipping." The reasons he made up his mind to remain are twofold: (1) he is enough of a showman to appreciate the applause and to enjoy being told by people they like him and his work, and (2) he feels a deep loyalty to those co-workers whose own living depends on his staying with You Bet Your Life. He doesn't want to let them down.

Changes

There will, however, be some changes in the Groucho show, changes that he has suggested to make his load a little lighter. His fellow workers are also anxious to do everything to protect him since they know how deeply he has been affected by the sudden passing of such close friends as Fred Allen, Robert Sherwood, Isidore Lindenbaum and others. They know how their deaths not only shocked him but made him afraid.

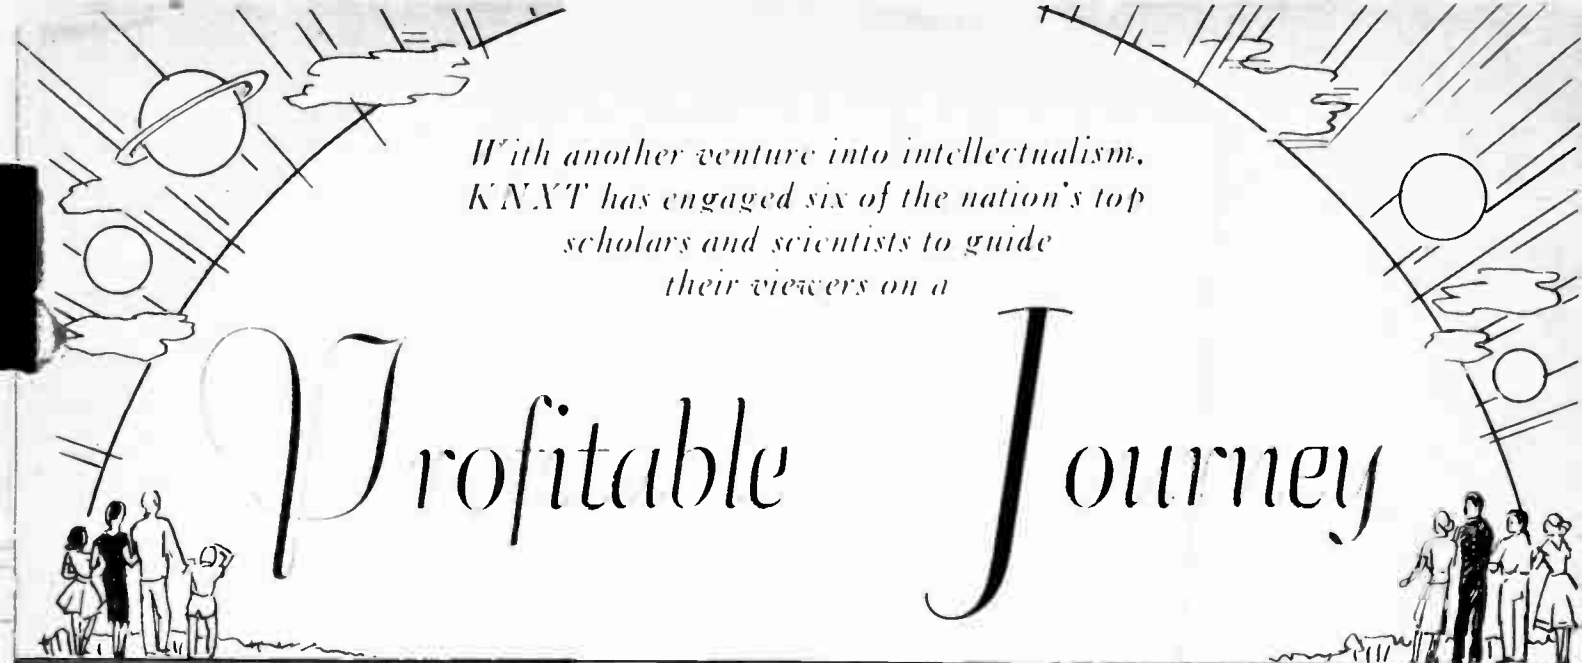

In the past, Groucho filmed interviews with three couples each week for a half-hour show. This was bad because too often it was necessary to cut many of the best laughs in order to fit everything into the allotted time. Groucho decided it was wrong to waste this good material, so films will now be made of the three couples but each couple will go for the $2000 top-prize money.

This is a change from the previous format in which the three competed against each other for a chance at the big money. By shooting the show in this way, the film editor can take the best of the three for one show—or, if time allows, use all three. This will give Groucho a backlog so that he will have some weeks off in which he won't have to report for filming.

The emphasis, however, will still be on the contestants themselves and there will be the desire to get the most interesting people possible. To line up contestants, three men are now daily interviewing likely possibilities. And those from foreign countries will be given the same extra consideration as always. Altogether, there have been contestants from 58 countries on the show. Few people realize how much Groucho has done for the United Nations and for better understanding among peoples by his use of those from other lands on You Bet Your Life.

Groucho's future, then, is in your hands. As long as you want him around, he'll be there.

Profitable Journey

by Bill Kelsay

WITH A STATION'S license to fill the air with commercials and entertainment goes a legal obligation to include a prescribed minimum of "public service" features.

More often than not, this obligation is met with filmed handouts from government bureaus or private institutions willing to spend the money for publicity.

Locally, however, there has been at least one imaginative exception to this pattern. Station KNXT has done considerably more than merely adhere to the letter of the law. The management has made public service a major project, and with proudfest results.

Now, with a 16-week series called Journey, KNXT promises to scoop the cream of today's intellectualism. Six of the nation's most prominent scholars and scientists are being given a platform from which to speak their thoughts on 20th century man—his efforts, his accomplishments, and his future in the fields of art, music, literature, philosophy and science.

Discussing the new program, Bill Whitley, director of public affairs for KNXT and producer of the series, said, "I myself have felt fortunate in being able just to sit and listen to these men as we were planning the shows.

Nice People

"They are nice people, adjusted people, not a group of neurotics hidden away in a tower somewhere to contemplate vague theories. They are in contact with the rest of us, and genuinely interested in their contemporaries."

The "nice people" he refers to are Dr. Frank C. Baxter, who was "discovered" in the first of KNXT's cultural programs, Shakespeare on TV; Aldous Huxley, internationally famous author and philosopher; Dr. Edward Teller, "father" of the H-bomb; Dr. Glenn Seaborg, Nobel Prize-winning scientist; Rico Lebrun, international painter; and Lukas Foss of UCLA, who has gained wide recognition as a young and modern composer.

"The really wonderful thing," Whitley continued, "is that these men are not only at the top rung in their fields, but they are articulate personalities. They are able to communicate their ideas in a way that truly interests the listener.

"After all, the function of television is not just to watch moving pictures on a screen. Nor do you need dancing girls to provide entertainment. We feel that a personality also provides entertainment, and these men are all personalities with the added advantage of being able to inform.

"The feeling was that men of this caliber must have reached their own conclusions about the world around them, just as you and I and everyone else have. The difference being, of course, that their conclusions are so much more perceptive than ours.

Free Rein

"So when it came to formatting the series, we asked them, 'What do you want to do?' They have at their disposal whatever props they want—singers, dancers, film clips, screen projections. We wanted to give them a chance to express themselves in a completely unfettered way. Where it is advantageous, the program will be done in color.

"This will primarily be in the art broadcasts, for obvious reasons. And incidentally, Rico Lebrun pretty much typifies these scholars and scientists. Lebrun knows there are new dimensions yet to be discovered in art. It wasn't all done in past centuries. Like the others, he is looking forward, not back over his shoulder, just as Foss in his work is not copying the European opera.

"Each program will be different from the last. There will be different approaches, different production. Some will require much in the way of props, while others, like the ones on philosophy, will be verbal, with great men in their fields as guests.

Broad Outlook

"Currently, Aldous Huxley plans to have as his first guest Gerald Heard, who is as famous in the circle of philosophic thinking as is Huxley himself. These two men are intimate friends from years back. They are true avant garde members with a broad outlook on the study of man."

Whitley had enthusiastic comments about the others in the series, which space will not permit us to quote. The important thing to him is that none of them is second choice. Each of the speakers was at the head of the wanted list in his field.

And he was pleased that again the station management has given him first-class time for the presentations—4 o'clock on Sunday afternoon.

He is thoroughly optimistic about the public's reaction, too.

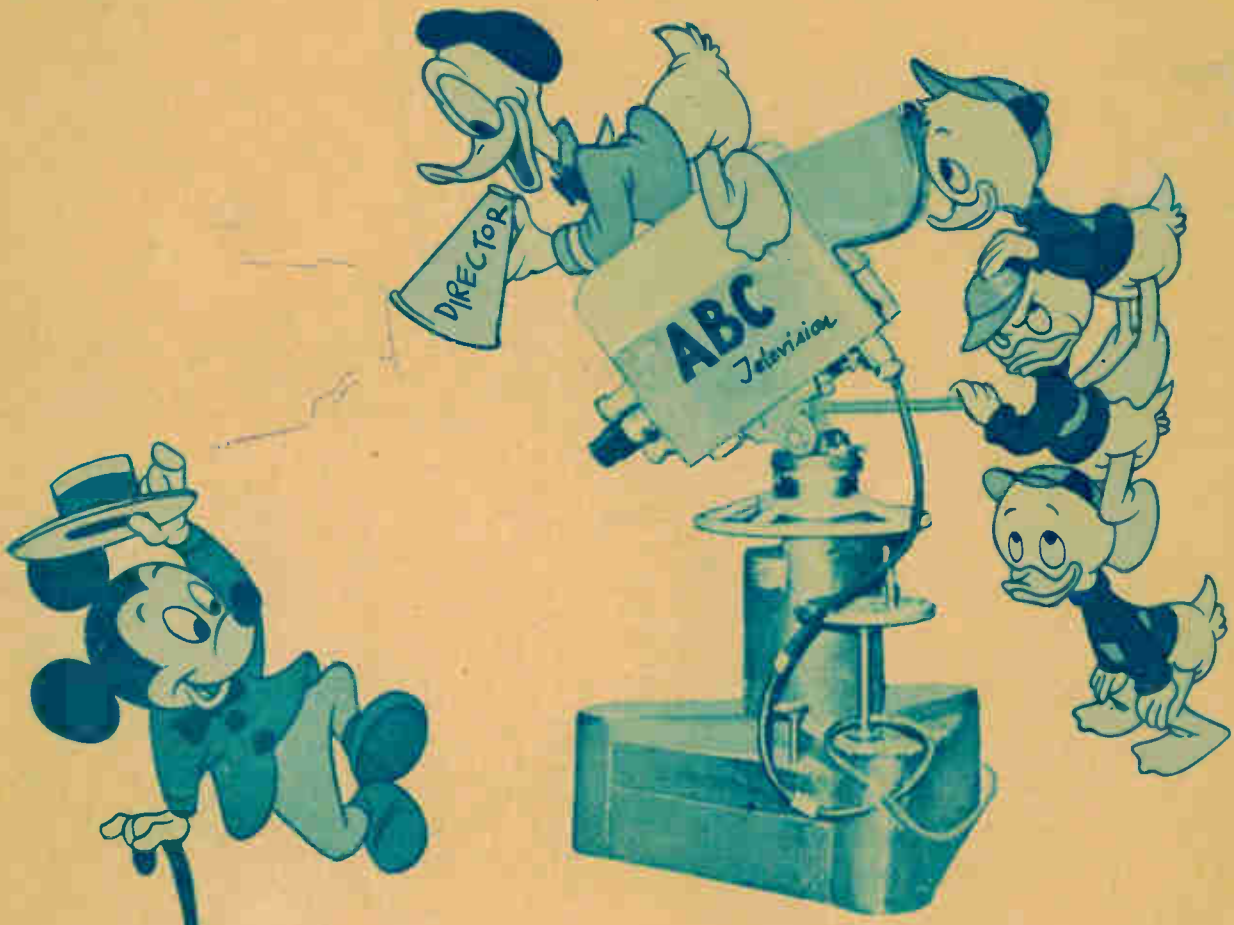

"We have something for everybody," he said, "and I am sure we shall have the biggest audience yet for a public service series.

"The thing is, whether he is primarily interested in science or art or literature, a thinking person is also aware of the other fields of culture and wants to know what is happening in them.

"And here we have the men who know."

Which should make for a pleasant as well as a profitable Journey.
