With Norvo, one knows that the whole battle of technique has been waged and won, with no obstacle left in the clear run between creation and execution,

The man can play anything, and, with the fact established, does not need continually to prove himself.

One of the most impressive things about Norvo is the way he exploits the mechanism of his instrument.

Unlike so many vibraphone blayers who merely jam the bedal down and clatter away, he uses its sustaining properties like a Chopin planist.

Even at a bright tempo, a ote or chord will suddenly sing at, like a chime from Basic's ano in one of those Neal Hefti

"Retailers should force the manufacturers either to control the number of records issued to take back redundant stock or to allow them to be sold off cheaply. allow them to be sold off cheaply.

"As it is we are not allowed to have a sale of old alock—at least, the first time it has ever been allowed was with decisions last year.

"One chap did try to have a sale and he has a solicitor's lefter from one of the companies with 24 hours."

Restrictive?

Asked if he considered the manufacturers were operating restrictive practices." Mr. Cadbuty roblies: "I suppose it is not very far from that." The new cheap labels, he said, "complicated matters dreadfully.
"We have already in stock about Cannon worth of records."
