Sony, Universal tie in '99

by Emmanuel LeGrand

LONDON — The merger of Universal and PolyGram may have created a world leader in the music industry, but in Europe in 1999 Sony Music equalled Universal's albums performance.

The first full-year chart share analysis based on Music & Media's Eurochart Hot 100 and the European Top 100 Albums since the merger, shows that, in terms of albums, Universal and Sony take equal first place with 23.6%. The top two companies lead by a wide margin over Warner, EMI, BMG and Zomba, which is integrated for the first time in the chart share calculations by corporate company.

Universal's performance is a slight (0.1%) decline on 1998's combined Universal and PolyGram album share of 23.5%. It can be explained by a weak release schedule during the first half of the year, when the merger was effectively taking place, not fully offset by the second half. Sony Music, on the other hand, followed a banner year in 1998 with a very strong release schedule with albums from Céline Dion, Mariah Carey, Ricky Martin, Jamiroquai, Vonda Sheppard and Jennifer Lopez plus sustained success from 1998 releases (Lauryn Hill, The Offspring and George Michael, among others).

During the same period, Universal's albums share relied mainly on Shania Twain, who has undoubtedly emerged as one of the great success stories of the past decade (second in this year's overall albums chart), and new releases from Texas, Cranberries, Sting, Boyzone and Andrea Bocelli.

In the singles charts, Universal is a clear winner with a 19.5% share, ahead of BMG, Sony, EMI, Zomba and Warner. But Universal's share is a long way off the combined singles share of Universal and PolyGram in 1998 (26.9%). Zomba enjoyed an impressive year thanks to the Backstreet Boys, Britney Spears, Steps, R. Kelly and the Vengaboys, all of them

Music & Media's review of the year

The century has closed with female artists triumphantly affirming the old saying, "age ain't nothing but a number," their domination of 1999's year-end charts being spearheaded by the teenage Britney Spears, thirtysomethings Whitney Houston and Mariah Carey, and the 53 year-old Cher.

Female artists, in fact, hogged 70% of the top 10 in the 1999 Eurochart Hot 100 singles chart and also held four out of the five top slots in the 1999 European Top 100 Albums listing (both on page 11).

Music & Media's extensive package of 1999 charts, reviews and analysis starts on page 8. You'll find the identity of European radio's most played song this year in the European Radio Top 100 on page 13, and, in our Border Breakers chart, which continental European track has been aired the most.

The year in talent (page 10) reflects the dominance of female artists in '99, while in the year in the music business (page 8), we assess the state of Europe's record companies and labels at the end of a year which saw the industry's biggest ever merger put into practice, and review 1999's significant departures and appointments.

The year in radio (page 9) saw increasing interest in Internet and digital radio, alongside more traditional stories of format flips, hirings, firings, purchases and sales.

M&M staffers reveal their critical selections of the year in the M&M Jukebox (pages 14-15); and, to acknowledge the passing of the old century and to create the first arguments of the new one, M&M asked leading radio and record industry figures to nominate their own personal Song of the Century (pages 6-7).

Swedes to end frequency sales

by Johan Lindström

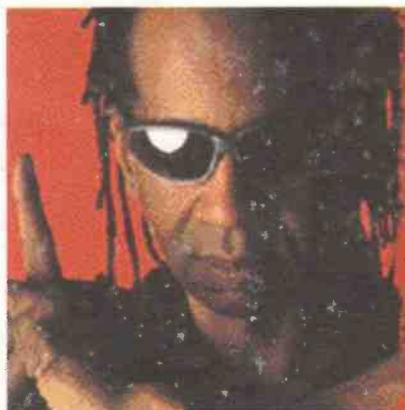

STOCKHOLM — Sweden's Social Democratic government is set to introduce a new system of awarding commercial radio frequencies to replace the country's frequency auctions.

The new licensing system would consider programme content, format and existing ownership in cases where there is more than one bid for a frequency. For instance, it would favour a company which doesn't already own a station in the area and which suggests a format which differs from that of existing services.

The Swedish parliament will formally vote on the proposals, which were trailed in a government green paper earlier this year (M&M, March 6) on January 25. Ironically, Sweden's current system of frequency auctions was recently endorsed as a model for the rest of Europe in a European

Upfront

by Emmanuel Legrand, Music & Media editor-in-chief

Songs—that's what the music and the radio business is all about. From the early days of troubadours to the advent of sheet music and now the downloading of music via the Internet, songs have always been at the heart what is today a multi-billion dollar industry.

That's why we have decided to celebrate the importance of songs in this year-end issue by asking a few dozen industry movers and shakers to name the song which, for them, best exemplifies this century.

Their answers are as diverse as one would expect. They show that songs are the soundtracks to the revolutions and changes in society, and have a legacy that survives their creators.

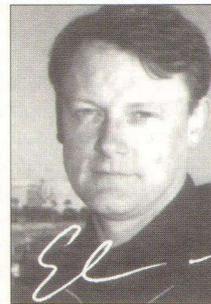

There's nothing simpler than a song. It's a few minutes long, with lyrics, a melody, and the talent of a performer. It has the power to catch your attention and imagination, arguably like no other art form.

Songs can instantly move and transport listeners, expose them to new cultures, new sounds, new ideas, new feelings. They are an intimate part of our lives. They grow on you and tell you things about you and the world.

Songs have survived all technologies, and there is every reason to believe that they will not only survive digital technology, but that they will get a new lease of life from new means of distribution. The only factor that will not change is the need for creators. There shouldn't be a shortage of talent, so hopefully we're in for another century of great songs.

● As the last year of the century comes to an end, all of us here at Music & Media wish you professional and personal successes in the next millennium. Our next issue will be published on January 10.

Licence commission biased, claims MTV

by Mark Dezzani

MILAN — The legal wrangle over the non-renewal of MTV Italy's national terrestrial TV licence is set to continue for several months, enabling the music TV network to keep broadcasting terrestrially.

MTV's broadcast partner in Italy, commercial TV network Rete A, has legally challenged the validity of the licence renewal process which was carried out by the government's ministry of communications earlier this year (M&M, August 14). Rete A's appeal alleges that two members of the commission which was appointed to select the eight terrestrial licence renewals both have a "possible conflict of interest."

Rosario Pacini, director of Rete A, claims that Andrea Munari, the commission's president, had a professional relationship with Silvio Berlusconi's three Mediaset TV networks, which were also competing for the licences.

Pacini also alleges that another member of the licensing commission, Francesco Pinto, had a previous professional involvement with pan-European media group SBS. SBS is a shareholder in TV shopping channel Rete Mia, which was granted the eighth and final terrestrial licence ahead of Rete A/MTV.

"We are questioning whether they [Munari and Pacini] should have been selected to participate in what should be an impartial commission," explains Pacini. "We are also querying the whole legal validity of the licensing process and the fairness of granting licences to two television shopping networks [Telemarket and Rete Mia] which, under proposed media laws, are supposed to transfer to cable and satellite distribution within three years."

The ownership composition of Rete Mia has already been investigated as part of the ongoing legal dispute. The channel's shareholders include US-owned Home Shopping Network, which sparked allegations that Rete Mia's shareholding was mainly non-European (only majority-owned European companies are eligible to hold an Italian terrestrial broadcast licence).

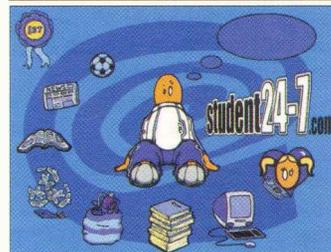

While an initial report showed that Rete Mia was majority-owned by European interests—the German group Quelle holds a 51% stake—the licensing commission has, however, recommended a further investigation into Rete Mia's shareholding structure. But a spokesperson for Italy's media authority (which would undertake any such investigation) says: "We have so far received no instructions from the ministry to conduct this further investigation."

Rete A's Rosario Pacini says: "The licence renewal process is a very serious problem in a very delicate area, but we are confident that the appeals court will look at our evidence and see that it was not undertaken absolutely correctly."

While there are several magazine-style sites that target students, Student24-7.com is one of the first to have professional backing (including Jim Kerr of Simple Minds) without being American. It already has relevant news, features articles, interviews and chat areas. There's also a music area with reviews and articles, with promises of webcasts, gigs, charts, sounds and more in the new year. Shopping, banking and other features are similarly slated to appear as appropriate strategic partnerships emerge. Why music and film are given less prominence than sport on the splash is a minor mystery, but, perhaps that too will change. Everything is written in English slang.

MTV EXTENDS DIGITAL COVERAGE

LONDON — MTV Networks Europe, which launched three 24-hour digital services in the UK this summer (M&M July 3) is rolling out the channels across 42 European territories. The three digital channels, MTV Base (R&B/dance) MTV Extra and VH1 Classic are set to sit alongside sister channels, MTV, VH1 and M2.

EUROP CASH FOR PEOPLESOUND.COM

LONDON — Europ@web, a $500m (euros 505m) global Internet fund, is to invest in peoplesound.com, a download MP3 music site offering customisation and a forum for new artists which launched in October (M&M November 6). The amount of investment has not yet been disclosed, but follows peoplesound.com's announcement of French and German subsidiaries. Ernesto Schmitt, president and CEO of peoplesound.com says: "We will shortly be adding lots more music covering local genres to complement over 40 genres already in place. Whether it's schlager, Krautrock, volkmusik, chasnon, French rap or simply Brit pop or jazz, you'll be able to find it on peoplesound.com."

SARA COX TAKES BREAKFAST AT RADIO 1
LONDON — From April 3, 2000, Sarah Cox will replace Zoe Ball as the new presenter of the breakfast show on UK public CHR station BBC Radio 1. Emma B will take over Cox's current Radio 1 shows—Saturday lunchtimes and Sunday Surgery—with immediate effect. Radio 1 controller Andy Parfitt commented: "Sara is sure to build on our success at breakfast. It'll be the essential stop-off for young Britain." The choice represents a continuation of the station's commitment to the 15-24 year old audience, and to young women in particular.

TELEFONICA TO BE CURBED?

ANDALUCIA — The largest of Spain's 17 regional governments, Andalusia in the far south, has called on the national government's ministry of development to annul the sale of Onda Cero Radio (OCR)—which has some 30 stations in the region—to telecommunications giant Telefonica. If the government refuses to co-operate, the Socialist Party-controlled Andalusian government will refer the matter to Spain's highest court, the Constitutional Tribunal, as, under existing legislation each region has autonomous powers over radio and TV licences. The ministry has responded by saying that it currently has the power to authorise the sale to another company of shares in affiliate stations in various regions. The sale of OCR to Telefonica was authorised in July, as part of the creation of a major new radio group (M&M July 2).

FAVOURITES PLAY FOR BALKANS VICTIMS

MADRID — Cadena SER's CHR market leader Los 40 Principales raised some 180,000 euros for victims of the Balkans conflicts with a concert by Spain's top selling artists. Appearing free of charge at the concert, which took place on December 16 at Madrid's 10,000-capacity Palacio de Deportes, were Joaquín Sabina, Hevia, La Oreja de Van Gogh, and Celtas Cortos.

DENMARK GETS A TASTE OF TEXAS

COPENHAGEN — Texas are the first international act to confirm their performance at the Dansk Grammy 2000 awards celebration. Music Matters, the management company behind the event, says that a couple of other high-profile names are also close to confirming their appearance. Danish artists performing at the event include Thomas Helmig, Kashmir, Hampenberg, Funkstar De Luxe and De Brune Punktum. The event, on February 5, has been dramatically expanded, from a 1,500-seat venue last year to Copenhagen's Forum which will hold up to 6,000.

MOVING CHAIRS

BRUSSELS — Carla Doms has been appointed to product manager with BMG Ariola Belgium, after being product manager at Arcade Music where she helped to launch the careers of artists such as Poco Loco Gang and X-Session.

LONDON — Christian Tattersfield is to join Warner Music UK as the new managing director of East West Records, effective January 4, 2000. He will report to Warner Music UK chairman Nick Phillips.

New station for Antwerp focuses on world music

by Marc Maes

BRUSSELS — Radio Multipop—a new station majoring on world music and local news—launched in the greater Antwerp area under the banner "One world, one radio" on December 18.

The launch follows nine months of trial programmes for the new outlet on the 102.2 FM frequency.

Station manager Dagmar De Beukelaer explains: "The idea for a multicultural station came two years ago when oldies station Radio Zuiderlicht had to stop broadcasting as a result of new broadcast regulations."

During daytime, Multipop plans to offer a mix of world music and underground tracks while at night, the station will offer targeted music shows featuring African music, reggae, triphop and dance. Friday night is hosted in English by Jacky Jones, a VJ with MCM music television. Specific programming will target the gay and student communities.

De Beukelaer says Multipop's approach is unique in Belgium, and the station is currently drumming up support from the record industry. However he does stress that, for the time being, "programmers bring their own records and material we get from specialised retailers like USA Import records. We also get material from Show Radio transmissions in Turkey via the Internet."

Multipop will also carry the city of Antwerp's official information magazine. De Beukelaer adds: "Information is important to us—we have opted to invest in journalists rather than DJs as we want to cater for both the local and 'foreign' [13% of the population in Antwerp] audiences."

"Our goal is to become the complement service to state-owned VRT, emphasising local information, politics and culture."

Radio's millennium moments

As the transition from one century to another approaches, Music & Media takes a look at how some of Europe's radio stations will be marking the event on air.

Fatboy Slim

While in many ways the millennium has represented a headache for radio programmers in terms of ensuring station computer systems are Y2K-compliant, plus finding (and paying) staff to work—or at least be on call—New Year's Eve, it has also set programmers a major creative challenge, to which some stations have responded quite extraordinarily.

One of the most technically ambitious and expensive millennium celebrations has been planned by UK public CHR station BBC Radio 1. In what the network claims will be "the biggest dance party in the world," Radio 1 will broadcast live DJ sets from venues around the world on New Year's Eve as countries in different time zones to the UK usher in the new millennium.

Carl Cox will broadcast from the millennium celebrations in Sydney, Australia and will then fly to catch the midnight celebrations in Honolulu, Hawaii. Danny Rampling will be on air at midnight from Cape Town, South Africa, while Junior Vasquez's set will be beamed from New York at midnight there.

Back to the UK, and the millennium will be greeted by the station's own Dave Pearce live in Glasgow, while later in the night there will also be live DJ sets from Fatboy Slim in Stoke-on-Trent, Pete Tong in Liverpool, Judge Jools in Sheffield and Paul Oakenfold in London. Overall, the millennium dance programming, which the station has dubbed One World, will run from 17.00 on December 31 to 08.00 on January 1.

Capital's musical fireworks

In the UK's commercial radio sector, London CHR station 95.8 Capital FM has been named as the official music provider to Big Time, London's official millennium celebration. The climax of the day-long event will be The River of Fire which, the organisers claim, will be "the biggest and most spectacularly choreographed firework experience the world has ever witnessed," running 6km along the River Thames.

In a collaboration with legendary ZTT producer Trevor Horn, Capital's in-house production team has created the musical composition which will accompany the River of Fire sequence at midnight, and will also be broadcast on Capital FM. To enable as many people to hear the musical accompaniment to the fireworks as possible, Capital is giving away special "target tuner" radios which listeners can bring along to the event with them.

By way of contrast, the millennium mood among stations in Germany appears to be fairly laid-back. Bavarian CHR giant Antenne Bayern will broadcast a special New Year's Eve edition of Die Jungen Wilden, a live show presented by the five members of what the station describes as Germany's "one and only radio commune." Started two years ago, the show has an emphasis on alternative rock music and new talent.

Waltzing after midnight

No decision has been made on which track the show will play to see in the year 2000. But Jan Westphal, deputy head of programmes at Antenne Bayern, seems to think that in the end tradition will prevail—meaning that the first track will almost certainly be a waltz.

It's waltzing-time post-midnight at CHR broadcaster SWR 3 in Stuttgart, too, but editor-in-chief Gerold Hub is happy to leave the decision about the final track of 1999 to his listeners. The station will air an extra-long edition of its SWR3 Silvester Party between 19.00 and 06.00, during which listeners can call in with requests. Like BBC Radio 1, SWR 3 is also planning to air footage from "millennium spots" around the world.

In Italy, two of the country's commercial music networks, the AC-formatted Radio Capital and CHR broadcaster RTL 102.5 Hit Radio, will be ringing in the year 2000 in very different ways. Radio Capital has chosen the contemplation of poetry, whilst RTL 102.5 is another station aiming to take its listeners on a whirlwind trip around the globe.

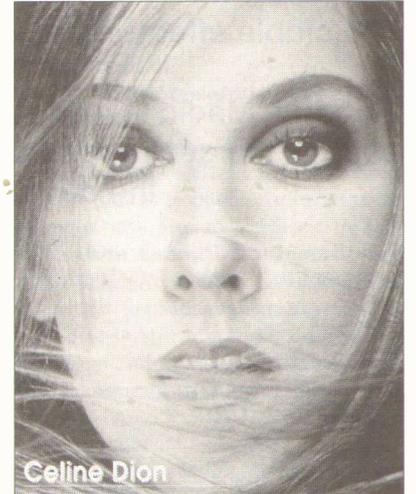

"We will have a live link-up with the Celine Dion concert in Montreal, whilst our own correspondents will be phoning in from around the world," says RTL 102.5 programme director Luca Viscardi. "In between this we will be playing a selection of the best songs from the past 20 years. It is a fairly straightforward formula, but rather than reaching for the moon, which everyone else is trying to do, we thought we would keep it simple." Viscardi adds that, "in typically Italian fashion, we haven't decided yet on which record will be our first for the new millennium, and probably won't decide until the last minute."

Poetry in motion

Radio Capital is simulcasting its poetry celebration with pay TV channel Tele+. "Tele+ have a split audio channel," explains Radio Capital music director Carlo Mancini. "On one channel there will be a classical soundtrack, while the other will have us playing contemplative pop classics from the past 30 years, such as Elton John's Rocket Man. Tele+ will have the poetry in caption form on the screen, while on our radio broadcast we will have actors reading the poems. We will also have our logo on the TV screen."

Mancini, who has picked The Beatles' Long & Winding Road as Capital's first song of the next century, says "everyone is going to be at a party, so we are ditching our usual format for something completely different."

In Portugal, the country's most-listened-to station—Radio Renascença (MOR/Nat. Music)—is approaching the millennium reflecting its Catholic church heritage and ownership. Programming on New Year's Eve will include messages recorded by both leading national political and social figures, as well as messages of peace from Portuguese-speaking countries around the world. Like Italy's RTL, Renascença will also be broadcasting the Celine Dion concert from Montreal.

Don't stop the music

At public Portuguese CHR station Antena 3, director of programming Jorge Alexandre Lopes has requested a list of music suggestions from the station's DJs, which will form the basis of the station's playlist for New Year's Eve. The music will be played back-to-back without interruption, to provide an ideal soundtrack to listeners' parties. Another station following this idea is Lisbon CHR outlet Rádio Comercial, which will be playing a non-stop selection of the best songs from the '80s and '90s.

Of course, amongst all the plans for merriment, there are still real concerns that things could go wrong. But of the programmers M&M spoke to, all have had their broadcast computer systems checked out for problems associated with the millennium bug; it is also something that software suppliers to radio such as RCS have been aware of for the last few years. Many stations, such as SW3, are taking the precaution of putting emergency generators on stand-by in the event of a Y2K bug-induced power failure. Says Gerold Hub: "SWR 3 will be on air, guaranteed. Even if we have to use tapes".

UK readers may be interested to note that, in the case of a complete "millennium meltdown," the British government has designated BBC Local Radio as the "official media for communication" over the millennium period. As a result, all BBC local radio stations have been instructed to make sure they have a fully-operational back up broadcast studio in a separate location ready to go to air should there be a problem with their usual studios.

SONGS OF THE CENTURY

The last weeks of 1999 were awash with "best of the Millennium" music polls and surveys. Their most predictable effect was to invite a torrent of criticism for songs unforgivably left out and songs unaccountably included. Everybody has an opinion.

Music & Media invited some prominent music and radio industry figures to give their personal choice for the song of the century—selected for its influence on the course of popular music, its position at a turning-point in the development of the art, or simply for its personal appeal—and to say why.

Grandmaster Flash and The Furious Five

The Message (Sugarhill)

Selected by:

Andy Parfitt
Controller

BBC Radio 1 (UK)

Because mass global communication has been one of the characteristics of the 20th century, and popular music has been strangely powerful. The Message by Grandmaster Flash and the Furious Five (GMF didn't actually perform on the record) really lit the blue touch paper on rap. However simple or naive the stories of rap, they have hit home for a global audience.

Aretha Franklin

Respect (Atlantic)

Selected by:

Dennis Clark

Radio consultant

Aretha Franklin

America in the early '60s: all the lily-white acts are covering the great black records; Motown jumps out as a world of its own, while still being really mainstream. Finally, a solo artist with true SOUL has her first real hit (after several years with Columbia being A&R'd by a marketing machine). Look at today's charts. Thank God for the "Queen Of Soul." Respect can sound dated today (to some), but it's still one of most influential and most PLAYED songs in the world.

Massive Attack

Unfinished Sympathy (Virgin)

Selected by:

Luc Vergier

President Europe

RuffNation

Because it is the song of reference for these past years and proves that, by using the new technology of sampling, it is possible to pen a standard in the same league as Imagine, Ne Me Quitte Pas, Good Vibrations etc. If I were an artist, this is the kind of song I would have loved to write to illustrate the century.

Marvin Gaye

What's Going On (Motown)

Selected by:

Simon Cole

Chief executive

Unique Broadcasting (UK)

Marvin Gaye

Because not only is it a brilliant example of the writing of one of the century's great pop composers, it is also an example of how music represents and reflects calls for social change.

Jimi Hendrix

Voodoo Chile (Universal)

Selected by:

Uli Grossmaas

Co-managing director

Popkomm (Germany)

Jimi Hendrix

Because it has the aggressiveness of this century and the spiritual power we will still need next century. Hendrix was an instinctive artist.

Donna Summer

I Feel Love (GTO)

Selected by:

Sam Zniber

Scheduling director

Fun Radio (France)

1999: the year in the music business

The final year of the 20th century was, appropriately, a year of transition in the music industry. The business is now more concentrated in the hands of a few major players, but it is hard to predict what shape it will take in the next millennium, writes Emmanuel Legrand.

If the industry is still assessing the new order which the digital revolution is imposing, it has also started to take steps to be actively involved in the digital future, rather than passively experiencing its effects.

The highest priority on the agenda of record companies was deciding how to embrace the cyber age. Very timid—if not conservative—in their approach to the Internet over past years, majors went into overdrive in 1999, with all companies announcing major plans.

Industry initiatives

The development of Internet-related affairs is actually twofold: one aspect is the joint industry effort through the SDMI initiative, which is seeking to establish standards acceptable to both the software and the hardware industries; the other is the implementation of projects spearheaded by each individual company. One of the most ambitious of the latter was announced by BMG and Universal, who teamed up to initiate a joint venture, GetMusic, which will include genre-based sites tailored to specific music styles, and a joint e-commerce site, getmusic.com, offering CD sales to consumers. "Together," said Thomas Middlehoff, chairman and CEO of BMG's parent company Bertelsmann, "BMG and Universal have the critical mass of artists, resources and expertise to turn this new network into the premier destination for music in cyberspace."

EMI has teamed with Liquid Audio and a number of other Net companies. Sony announced a partnership with Launch Media which will give the latter access to the former's video library for display on the Internet.

The impact of new technologies has begun to be felt in the day-to-day business, at least in Europe where the IFPI reported mid-year figures down from the previous year both in units and in value—a decline which was quite dramatic in Germany and the Netherlands. In these two countries, local industries blame CD-Rs for the poor performances of the singles market. "I am in no doubt that it [CD-R piracy] is denting the legitimate singles market," Sony Music Entertainment Europe chairman Paul Russell said in M&M last October.

However, the industry was counting on a robust schedule of new releases in the last quarter to boost year-end sales.

Merger of the century

Dominating the agenda this year were the changes in the shape and scope of the industry leader in the wake of the PolyGram/Universal merger. Under the guidance of Universal Music chairman/CEO Doug

Morris and Universal Music International chairman Jorgen Larsen, the new regime at Universal started to take shape at the beginning of the year—more smoothly than expected in Europe, but with some difficulty in the US.

In Europe, most of PolyGram's continental MDs were confirmed at the helm of the new Universal and PolyGram combined operations, while in the US, the merger resulted in several thousand job losses.

Two other majors, EMI and Warner Music, also went through important management changes. The most radical transformation occurred at Warner Music, where PolyGram veteran Roger Ames was named chairman/CEO of Warner Music Group in October, to the surprise of many, since he had been tipped to become chairman of Warner Music International. The need to find a new chief executive at Warner became pressing after co-chairmen/CEOs Robert Daly and Terry Semel announced their decision to step down at the end of the year.

The current view in the industry is that Ames will bring an international touch hitherto missing at Warner, which is by and large the most Americanised major.

One of Ames' first major appointments was a replacement for his mentor Ramon Lopez, chairman/CEO of WMI, who will retire at the end of this month. Rather than searching for an outsider, Ames chose to promote Stephen Shrimpton who was already president of WMI.

At EMI, Sir Colin Southgate terminated his tenure as chairman by handing over the keys of the British company to Eric Nicoli, fresh from United Biscuits, leaving him a company in search of direction.

Presenting his first financial results in November, Nicoli said he wanted the EMI Group "to exploit the power of the Internet and the rapid development of digital technology," and said he expected that, by 2005, 10% of the company's revenues would come from Internet-related businesses.

Some management reshuffling also took place at EMI, with the elevation of EMI president for Europe Rupert Perry to the newly created position of senior VP for EMI Recorded Music, assisting Ken Berry, president/CEO of EMI Recorded Music, on a wide portfolio of issues and projects. Perry was replaced by Charlie Dimont. In France, Marc Lumbroso succeeded Gilbert Ohayon as president, and in Germany, Heinz Canibol took over a seat vacant since the departure of Helmut Fest in 1998.

Sony had a good year-end, but 98/99 results were affected by a struggling Japanese parent company. But in terms of management, Sony Music remains one of the most stable companies in the world, with no significant changes at the top except for the addition of former PolyGram president for continental Europe Rick Dobbis, who joined the Sony Music international team in New York, and the elevation of Sony Music France president and executive vice-president Sony Music Europe Paul-René Albertini to a more hands-on role in London, deputising for SMEE chairman Paul Russell.

At BMG, the year was quite buoyant in the second half—thanks to the Eurythmics, Christina Aguilera, Lou Bega—and quite steady in terms of management changes, although the year ended with conflicting rumours regarding the future of Arista chairman Clive Davis, apparently embroiled in a head-to-head conflict with BMG's president Strauss Zelnick.

Elsewhere in Europe, German indie edel went into an acquisition frenzy which saw companies such as Mega Records (Scandinavia), PIAS (Belgium) and German music TV channel Viva, among others, drawn into edel's fold. Financed through stock offerings, this expansion plan aims to create "the biggest independent in the world," according to edel's founder and CEO Michael Haentjes.

But, for the indie movement, the year ended with the surprising announcement that Alan McGee and Dick Green, the co-founders of Oasis' label Creation, were to leave the company they founded 17 years ago to "pursue a number of new ventures."

On the legislative front, the industry is still waiting for a final and approved version of one of its key texts for the future—the much-anticipated European Copyright Directive.

The year started well, with a draft approved by the European Parliament which included several provisions the music industry had been lobbying for. However, this text was changed to a more restricted version by the Commission later in the year. Meanwhile, the crisis at the Commission and the subsequent resignation en bloc of its members has pushed the whole process back to next year. Another year lost.

1999: The year in music radio

New technology such as Internet and digital radio may have increasingly occupied the thoughts of radio people during 1999, but, writes Jon Heasman, there were still plenty of cosily familiar tales to tell of sacked programmers, station make-overs and, of course, arguments with the music industry.

Despite the ongoing audience success of the radio medium in virtually all European markets (the UK and Germany both saw particularly encouraging growth in listening), there was nevertheless plenty of pre-millennial tension to be found among radio station personnel during 1999.

The uncertainty stemmed mostly from the "Threat Of the Net," which seemed to dominate most of the radio conferences and seminars attended by Music & Media's correspondents in 1999. Aside from the basic worry that the public would spend more time surfing and less listening to the radio, there was concern about new competition from Internet-only stations, which do not face the overheads or regulatory restrictions of established terrestrial broadcasters.

As the year wore on, however, Europe's radio community—drawing comfort from new US research—seemed to become increasingly optimistic and confident about the Net. These early studies indicated that Internet usage actually leads to more time spent listening to the radio (and less watching TV), because of radio's ability to be a background or secondary medium. And despite the worldwide choice of stations available via the Internet, it appears that most people will still choose to listen to their favourite local station on-line, particularly on their work PCs.

Digital dilemmas

Also contributing to the climate of uncertainty has been the ongoing matter of digital radio. While in countries such as the UK and Germany digital seems to be moving smoothly ahead, with stations already broadcasting digitally, the technology still has a few high-profile doubters in Europe, not to mention the US. Some have talked about digital radio being eventually "overtaken" by Internet-delivered radio services once technology in that field develops further and becomes more portable.

Most experts agree, however, that digital radio and Internet radio will ultimately be compatible, rather than rival, technologies. The UK's Digital One commercial digital radio multiplex enjoyed a successful launch on November 15, offering consumers two new national channels unavailable elsewhere—classic rock station Planet

Rock and new music service Core. And digital radio sets are slowly appearing in the shops, albeit at very high prices.

But despite the development of new platforms for radio such as digital and the Internet, there was still plenty happening programming-wise in 1999 at good old analogue radio which, after all, is still where the listeners are at. Among the year's most innovative format flips were CLT-UFA's modern rock station Bandit 105.5 in Stockholm metamorphosing into the modern AC Wow! 105.5, and Fun Radio in France making a hugely successful switch from CHR to dance.

Dance power

Reflecting the ascendancy of dance (as opposed to guitar-based) music in the charts, 1999 was an exceptional year for mainstream dance stations, with Kiss 100/London and Chrysalis Radio's Galaxy network scoring record ratings in the UK, and MTG's Power Hit Radio moving to the top of the ratings chart in Stockholm.

Among the stations "freshening up" this year were RTE's 2FM in Ireland (CHR), VRT's Studio Brussel in Belgium (Alternative Rock) and Hamburg's N-joy (CHR/Dance). One format change ultimately proved a little less radical than had been feared by some—Federico Volpini, director of Spanish public network RNE Radio 3, appeared to be threatening to turn his alternative music station into more of a "cultural" network, but in the end the station held on to most of its innovative music content, much to the relief of Spanish record labels.

We welcomed some interesting new stations onto Europe's airwaves in 1999: Lyric FM, a new classical outlet from Irish public broadcaster RTE; central Scotland's Beat 106, blending dance and alternative rock; OCR's new AC network Europa FM in Spain; Baden-Wuerttemberg's new commercial CHR/Dance outlet Sunshine Live and, in south east Germany, new public youth station MDR Jump FM.

Stations for whom 1999 would mark their last full year on the dial included London's eclectic AOR/ talk outlet BBC GLR—planned to be canned in favour of the talk-driven BBC London Live next year—and Vienna's full-service English-language station Blue Danube Radio, scheduled to be replaced by bilingual alternative music station FM4.

Consolidation consolidates

While the pace of really big-scale consolidation slowed down in most European markets this year (mainly due to ownership restrictions), there was still the usual amount of wheeling and dealing going on. French rap station Skyrock was (ironically, perhaps) bought by merchant bankers Morgan Grenfell; the UK's Talk Radio purchased The Radio Partnership group of stations and is proposing to buy the Independent Radio Group; Luxembourg-based SBS bought into the Netherlands' domestic music specialist Nordzee FM and also snapped up the Stockholm FM frequency previously occupied by Sky Radio; and, in a long running saga, Spain's Onda Cero Radio was finally acquired by telecom giant Telefonica. And watch out for increased US involvement in European radio as the effects of US consolidation cause some broadcasters there to start looking overseas—Clear Channel, for instance, purchased a 50% stake in Norway's Hot AC chain Radio 1 in October.

The year was not without its fair share of controversy. A German company, Radio Marketing Services, was formed specifically to engineer "pay for play" deals between labels and stations, while Norway's Radio Atlantic was dropped from the country's official airplay charts after it was found to be openly selling its "power play" high-rotation slots. In April, 104.6 RTL/Berlin managing director Bernt von zur Muehlen was forced to resign after a prank phone call was made on the air by one of the station's presenters to German chancellor Gerhard Schroeder. The UK's Radio Authority, on the other hand, was cleared of allegations that it acted improperly during the award of a major regional radio licence back in 1997.

Hot seats get hotter

As European radio becomes ever more competitive, the industry's executive merry-go-round seems to spin quicker each year. NRJ was stunned in November by the resignation of a number of senior managers, including group programme director Christophe Sabot. The brave Henry Owens became Virgin Radio (UK)'s ninth programme director in six years, while in a move which might be the shape of things to come, Galaxy 105/Leeds programme director Ande McPherson switched to programming on-line content at Galaxy's parent company Chrysalis Radio.

And what year would be complete without the traditional music versus radio industry spat? There was a huge one in Germany, which came to a head in December when labels' body BPW decided to downgrade the airplay weighting of "unadventurous" stations in the compilation of its official charts. Top German label executives, frustrated by years of what they see as conservative playlisting at German broadcasters, were also heard to be muttering darkly about withdrawing traditional "favours" from stations they perceive as being unduly conservative, such as artist interviews and concert sponsorship opportunities. In the UK one programmer, FM102 The Bear's Simon Harding, proposed boycotting Warner Music product after that company ceased to provide The Bear (and other local stations allegedly not playing Warner singles upfront-enough) with new releases. However, with the likes of Simply Red coming out of the Warner stable, it was never likely that such a boycott would catch on unless Warner ceased to service a significant number of stations.

1999 artist review: girls stay on top

The millennium closes with female artists commanding the charts, writes Paul Sexton.

Take even a brief look at M&M's year-end charts and you soon realise that, this time, James Brown got it wrong—this wasn't a man's world at all. Thanks to Britney, Whitney and co, Europe's singles and album charts in 1999 wouldn't have been nothin' without a woman or a girl.

Before we go any further down that path, let's keep sexual relations sweet by giving the guys a pat on the back too. Eiffel 65's Blue (Da Ba Dee) (Bliss Co.) is our Eurochart Hot 100 Singles number one of the year, followed by another song at the novelty end of the pop market that was everywhere on European radio in 1999, Lou Bega's Mambo No.5 (Lautstark/RCA).

But the girls not only had a lock-out on positions 3-7 on the singles wrap-up and cornered 70% of the top ten, they dominated the European Top 100 Albums survey, nabbing four of the top five spots.

Dance and R&B-influenced pop were very much the flavour of the year, with no age barriers.

Youth and experience

The girl thing was orchestrated by a teenager, a fifty-something and two North American vocalists in their 30s. Britney Spears has become such a pop icon that it's almost impossible to remember that she was unknown in Europe this time last year. European record-buyers made ...Baby One More Time (Jive) the continent's third biggest single of the year, but European programmers made it the number one radio hit of 1999, ahead even of the mighty Madonna's Austin Powers-assisted Beautiful Stranger (Maverick/Warner Bros). Britney's dizzying year included another of the year's top ten Eurochart singles, (You Drive Me) Crazy, and a number 5 placing for the ...Baby One More Time album.

Cher may have been born in El Centro, California (53 years ago, we might impolitely add) but her latest career revival was a British triumph. Signed directly to WEA in the UK, she sold more than ten million copies worldwide of her Believe album, our number one for the year, and hit number 4 with the title song, written and produced by the south London-based Metro team—even more impressive when you consider that the track actually began its European chart marathon in October 1998.

Mariah Carey

A few weeks after that, Whitney Houston's My Love Is Your Love album (Arista) got off to a flat start, but 1999 was the year when she took her soul to the street with the help of young guns like Rodney Jerkins and Wyclef Jean. The result of the reinvention was a number 7 single on our year-end Eurochart with the title tune, a number 4 for the album, and even a number 9 placing for the album's introductory duet with Mariah Carey, When You Believe (Columbia). Whitney was part of a more than satisfactory year at European radio for Arista, with My Love joined in the top 12 of the European Radio Top 100 for 1999 by two TLC hits, No Scrubs (number 5) and Unpretty at 12.

Twain makes her mark

The other sisters doing it for themselves in the Eurochart top ten were Christina Aguilera at five with Genie In A Bottle (BMG) and Emilia with Big Big World (Rodeo/Universal) at six, but in many territories '99 was the year of Shania Twain. Come On Over was launched in the UK by Mercury in March 1998 and, after a cautious start, grew into the UK's bestselling album of this year and Europe's number 2, although Twain's best placing on the Eurochart was a surprisingly low 29 for That Don't Impress Me Much.

Elsewhere in European Top 100 Albums, Offspring (Columbia) and

Red Hot Chili Peppers (Warner Bros.) proved that American rock can still ring the retail bell. Apart from the omnipresent Ms. Spears, radio's other favourite American newcomers of the year were Sixpence None The Richer, whose Kiss Me (Squint/Elektra) lands at number 3 on the European Radio 100, and Jennifer Lopez, who made a successful transition from big screen to A-list with If You Had My Love (Work/Columbia), number 6 on the same chart.

Swedes break borders

The 1999 Border Breakers survey, summarising the mainland European singles that broke most successfully out of their country of signing, makes very good reading for the Swedish industry. Three of the top five on that chart, and five of the top ten, come from that ever-productive territory, with Roxette's

Shania Twain

Wish I Could Fly (Roxette Recordings/EMI) at number one and strong performances by Jessica Folcker, the Cardigans and especially Emilia, who placed Big Big World at three and Good Sign (both Rodeo/Universal) at nine. Also battling for Scandinavia was Norway's Lene Marlin, at six on Border Breakers for 1999 with the Virgin single Sitting Down Here. Girl power indeed.

VAN MORRISON & LONNIE DONEGAN THE SKIFFLE SESSIONS

Virgin
International release date: January 17

The ever-prolific Van Morrison has gone way back to his earliest roots on this live acoustic recording of skiffle classics with the '50s king of the genre, Lonnie Donegan. The skiffle repertoire consisted of American folk and blues tunes by the likes of Leadbelly and Big Bill Broonzy, played with a distinctively British flavour, and came as a breath of fresh air at a time when the UK charts were dominated by middle-of-the-road balladeers. As such, Donegan was an influence on a generation of would-be British rockers including the Beatles and the Stones—and the young Morrison himself, growing up in '50s Belfast. Morrison sang on two tracks on Donegan's 1998 comeback album Muleskinner Blues (BMG) after the two men had met at an Ivor Novello Awards ceremony. The idea of a full album grew from there. "Van called me and asked what I was doing," Donegan recalls. "When I said 'nothing,' he said 'Good, because you're coming with me to Belfast next week for a concert.' We rehearsed one day and did it the next." The result is a refreshingly spontaneous take on 15 venerable skiffle classics such as Midnight Special and It Takes A Worried Man, which find the two men trading vocal lines in energetic but easy fashion. They are joined by Dr John on two tracks and another British jazz and skiffle hero of the Fifties, the trumpeter Chris Barber. NW

ENIGMA THE SCREEN BEHIND THE MIRROR

Virgin
International release date: January 17
With the Enigma trilogy (MCXCad, The Cross Of Change and Le Roi Est Mort, Vive Le Roi!) selling over 22 million copies, Michael Cretu's fourth album under the group name has a tough act to follow. Born in Bucharest, educated in Germany and living in Spain, Cretu has created a European brandname with his instantly recognisable ambient synth pop. The Screen Behind The Mirror should continue to please his loyal fans but is hardly groundbreaking. The first single, Gravity Of Love, already getting German airplay, features the vocal charms of Olive's Ruth-Ann and should attract considerable interest. The heavy sampling of Carl Orff's Carmina Burana throughout the album adds a bizarre, almost sinister element but becomes wearing toward the close. The album has a variety of potential airplay winners including the title track, Push The Limits and Silence Must Be Heard. It's quality is undeniable and it's ideal for AC radio, but it does have a dated feel and may well leave the younger generation cold. CB

The weekly dance chart comment by Harald Roth

Things are moving fast at the top of the chart, with a new no.1 this week as Italian act Eiffel 65's sophomore Move Your Body (Skooby/Bliss Co.) takes over from Junior Jack's My Feeling (Noise Traxx/P.I.A.S.), which held the top honours for only one week. Before that, Bob Marley Vs. Funkstar Deluxe's Sun Is Shining (Hypnotic/edel) had held the top spot for nine consecutive weeks and become one of the strongest performing tracks in the history of the chart. Eiffel 65 becomes the 30th no.1 track since the chart began. There were nine in 1999 while '98's tally was eight, compared to '97's 14 no.1 tracks. Looking at all these no.1s, only three acts have made it to the top with more than one track. Germany's Sash! did the trick four times, Brits Phats & Small and now Italy's Eiffel 65 twice.

The displaced Junior Jack joins the exclusive one-week-at-no.1 club in company with DJ Quicksilver, Blueboy, Ultra Nate and Dario G. Longevity of key dance tracks is one of the most astonishing trends of 1999, especially the extended tenures at no.1.

Back to this week's chart, Eiffel 65's success is due to an excellent level of clubplay support, which increased by 21% and accounts for 79% of the track's overall support.

The entire top six of this issue is extremely competitive—unusual for this time of year when most regional dance charts are "frozen" for one or two weeks.

Other tracks to watch which have already achieved success on various national dance charts include Tom Jones Vs. Mousse T's Sex Bomb (Peppermint Jam/Gut). The track moves Euro 11-8 and already features on national dance charts which have a combined weight of 47% of the total sample—a good sign for future growth. This week, Bomb debuted on the club chart in Italy as well as on dancestore charts in Belgium and France. Also on the rise is Mario Piu's Communication, subtitled Somebody Answer The Phone (Peppermint Jam/Gut). The Italian artist jumped Euro 13-10 this week.

The Wamdue Project's You're The Reason (Strictly Rhythm) climbed five notches to Euro 19 this week and follows the route of the act's former hit, King Of My Castle (Strictly Rhythm), though at greater speed.

On the air

M&M's weekly airplay analysis column

It's time for round-ups and year-end charts, both in M&M and on European radio stations. As the 1999 European Radio Top 100—not surprisingly—honours Britney Spears' ...Baby One More Time (Jive) with the top spot of the year, Jennifer Lopez's Waiting For Tonight lingers at number one in the weekly chart. The record reached number 44 in the year-end chart (not bad for a late entry), whereas the actress turned singer's first single, If You Had My Love (both Work/Columbia) is the sixth most played single on European radio this year.

Jennifer Lopez

The highest new entry in the European Radio Top 50 this week is Boyzone's latest single Every Day I Love You (Polydor), which emerges at 44 after a long period of bubbling under. Head of music at Hot AC station Radio 102/Haugesund in Norway, Egil Houeland, explains why the act does so well on his format: "Boyzone have become easy to distinguish from other boybands as they have done many covers which the adult listener will recognise. They have even been associated with Andrew Lloyd Webber, as they released No Matter What (Polydor) from the musical Whistle Down The Wind. The track is at number 10 on our 'top 102' list of most played records of the '90s. Every Day I Love You is a typical Boyzone number, and it's very suitable for our Christmas programming."

The special chart is being drip-fed to listeners over the holiday period. Houeland explains: "We started the countdown of our top 102 of the '90s on the November 8th, playing three records every weekday. We'll do the top three the day before Christmas Eve. The Rembrandts' I'll Be There For You (East West) is number one in the '90s, whereas Lene Marlin's Sitting Down Here (Virgin) is our most played record of 1999. We'll run the entire top 102 on New Year's Eve." Christmas Eve is dedicated to Christmas music—and to surprising people. "Every year," says Houeland, "we ring listeners' friends and relatives abroad to wish them a happy Christmas. It's a very popular tradition, although some are caught in bed, depending on which time zone they're in."

Madison Avenue's Don't Call Me Baby (Virgin) is another new entry this week, at 49. The very first radio chart of the next millennium is set to include Christina

Roxette

Aguilera's new track What A Girl Wants (RCA), which is most added this week. Also Roxette's Salvation (Roxette Recordings/EMI) and Sting's Desert Rose (A&M) are possible for the charts in the new year.

riding high in the overall year-end Top 100 singles and albums charts.

Compared with 1998, BMG made a significant recovery on the singles front, jumping to second position from fourth, with the help of hits by Eiffel 65, Lou Bega, Christina Aguilera, the Eurythmics and Blondie, the latter two bands having made stunning comebacks during 1999. In terms of album share, BMG has lost 1.3% and remains in fifth position, although it can take pride in having re-established Whitney Houston as a top artist in Europe—her 1998 Arista album My Love Is Your Love is fourth in the overall Top 100 albums chart.

EMI has lost share both in albums and singles compared with 1998, moving down one place to fourth position in both league tables. The company has suffered from a relatively low-key year from Virgin (the label's highest album was Lenny Kravitz's 5 at number 40) and a lack of European-wide successes, despite strong showings from Robbie Williams.

Robbie Williams

Warner Music also suffered losses in both albums and singles, despite the crowning of Cher's Believe as the top album of 1999. In the singles chart, Warner drops to sixth position, below Zomba, while on the albums side, the company retains third place in the rankings, but with a smaller share than 1998. Warner's main albums of the year were The Red Hot Chili Peppers' Californication and Madonna's Ray Of Light.

Jump, Sunshine launch in Germany

by Gesa Birnkraut

HAMBURG — Two significant new German radio services will be on the air to greet the new millennium.

Public broadcaster MDR is replacing its mainstream CHR station MDR Life with MDR Jump FM in south-east Germany, effective January 1. The move comes after MDR Life haemorrhaged listeners in last year's official MA ratings, dropping from 620,000 listeners per hour to just 150,000. Meanwhile, commercial outlet Sunshine Live (CHR/Dance), which has been broadcasting on local frequencies in Baden-Wuerttemberg since June 1997, has launched an enhanced service covering the whole state.

Michael Schiewack

MDR broadcasting director Barbara Molsen says that "Jump FM is going to be a young and modern format for 20-40 year old listeners." The details of the new station's music format have yet to be revealed by Jump's head of music, Reinhard Bärenz, who previously worked on music policy at MDR's cutting-edge CHR service, MDR Sputnik.

Jump FM's presenter line-up will combine fresh faces with better-known ones such as Michael Schiewack, head of programming at MDR Sputnik. Schiewack, who has been head of programming at MDR Sputnik since 1992, will manage both stations' output until a replacement programmer for Sputnik is found.

"Market leadership is a duty for us, and Jump FM will provide better music, more interesting information and better news," promises Schiewack. Jump FM will also have an Internet site under MDR's umbrella site at mdr.de, providing traffic and news updates every five minutes.

The media regulator for Baden-Wuerttemberg gave Sunshine Live the green light to broadcast right across the region last month. The station will continue to target the 14-24 year-old age group with a CHR/Dance format focusing specifically on trance and techno. Programmes on the station include "Pick-Up," where new releases are reviewed by listeners, and "Label Night," in which record labels are introduced and profiled.

Sunshine Live is set to have a competitor from April 2000 when public broadcaster SWR launches its major multimedia project "Das Ding." The radio service part of that project will broadcast on FM frequencies, and will target the same 14-24 age group as Sunshine.

Commission discussion paper (M&M December 4).

The 84 commercial radio stations currently on air will be able to keep their frequencies until 2008, and will have to keep paying the government annual fees which average Skr 1.5 million (euros 170,000). The new legislation will lower the average fee to Skr 40,000 (euros 4,500).

Sweden's commercial radio industry has welcomed the lower fees, but is unsure about the new system of awarding frequencies. Christer Jungeryd, managing director of Swedish commercial radio trade body RU Radioutgivareföreningen, says: "Of course, lower frequency fees are an advantage for the industry, but there is an obvious risk that the competition will be unfair and that this proposal will damage the commercial radio market, which is still weak here."

RU chairman Jonas von Hedenberg echoes these sentiments. "The government will have to stand firm on this, as many judicial institutions which commented on the green paper think that this is a form of censorship."

There are some 20-25 unused frequencies which will be put out for tender if the proposals become law in July 2000. None of them are located in the country's three main metropolitan areas, although medium-sized towns such as Uppsala and Norrköping are on the list.

A quota which will require all stations to produce daily local programming has been set at three daytime hours, and it is also proposed that the ban on newspaper ownership of commercial radio stations will be lifted.

For The Record

Contrary to last week's report on Mudhut.co.uk (M&M, December 25), the company says it is planning to float in 2000.

The new millennium will see a host of new faces at NRJ in France as, following the resignation of NRJ managers including Christophe Sabot and Jean-Marc Morandini last month (M&M November 27), NRJ Group president of the board Max Guazzini has made five key appointments. Gilles Seydoux has been named scheduling director of (AC) Cherie FM. Seydoux, 26, was most recently co-manager of Paris-based electronica/alternative station FG. Mike Wagner has been appointed as scheduling director of Gold network Nostalgie. Wagner, 46, has 20 years' programming experience managing stations in Los Angeles. Sébastien Cauet has been named scheduling director of CHR network NRJ. He will continue to be scheduling manager of NRJ's AC/comedy station Rire et Chansons until Guazzini finds a successor. Guazzini has named Hans Knobloch director of NRJ's international programming. Knobloch has been programming manager at NRJ Austria since 1988. Finally, Roberto Ciurleo has been appointed to the newly-created position of manager of regional programming to strengthen NRJ's local presence.

No mistletoe required last weekend in The Netherlands when, to celebrate the success of their latest single Kiss (When The Sun Don't Shine) (Positiva), The Vengaboys organised "The Longest Kiss Ever" contest. At the Venga Beach Club, The Vengaboys presented a $15,000 (euros 14,095) cheque to the winners Neli van der Hoeven and Wanderley Costa e Silva, who created a new world record by kissing for a grand total of 34 hours, 11 minutes and 37 seconds.

MTV Spain director Raffaele Anecchino has announced that Spain will be the second European territory after the UK to receive the full package of MTV's digital TV channels, starting January 1. In addition to the two channels already available—the basic MTV service and VH1—the 800,000 homes subscribing to Spanish digital TV platform Canal Satellite Digital (CSD) will be able to receive alternative/techno strand M2, MTV Base (dance/hip-hop), MTV Extra, and VH1 Classic (AC/Gold).

International music body IFPI has appointed Allen Dixon to the new post of general counsel based in London. Dixon has been chief policy counsel to the Business Software Alliance since 1994 and a partner in London law firm Covington & Burling. He takes up his new post in the new year reporting to IFPI chairman and CEO Jay Berman. His priorities will be building a legal framework for the development of music on-line and fighting global music piracy.

Finally, UK rock station Virgin Radio became the first radio station in Europe to give away a cash prize of £1 million (euro 1.62m) on December 17. Clare Barwick from Worthing, West Sussex won out in a nail-biting competition staged on the breakfast show presented by the station's biggest shareholder, Chris Evans. The station got more than useful publicity out of the event, making the front page of most of the UK's national papers.
