Expect big changes at Europe 1 in France in September. The top executives all gathered at a restaurant in the Bois De Boulogne recently to redefine company policies. Heads may well role in the autumn ...

Marc Booth, MD MTV Europe, is expected to move onto bigger and better things within Maxwell's Media Communications empire. And rumours have it that Patrick Cox's position in the same company could also undergo some changes.

* * * Look out for new developments with Guesch Patti's manager. Marc Britan, whose links with EMI France are expected to grow significantly closer. * *

Radio I will provide full stereo coverage of Jean-Michel Jarre's September 24 light and sound extravaganza in London's Docklands. The event coincides with the 21st birthday of Radio

1. The news was given by Jarre himself speaking on the Simon Bates show: "We are using an FM transmission by Radio 1 so that people in the surrounding area can enjoy the music in sync with the effects," explained the French maestro.

CBS France's new subsidiary label, Squat, headed by Philippe Bonin, kicked off with two local groups, La Fiance Du Pirate and Rap 2. Since then several other groups have been signed, including Fishbone and Alain Chamford.

* The outcome of the government lobby by French performing rights society SACEM to make co-publishing deals between radios and publishers illegal will make some parties involved none too happy. More next week.

* * * British double standards sometimes escape one. On the one hand an effective, emotive and brilliant concert condemning apartheid was organised, and at the same time the British Musici ans Union bans South African anti-apartheid artist Johnny Clegg with his multi-racial band Savuka. The group is deservedly no. I in France and should surely be given a chance in the UK (see spotlight page 19).

Virgin is selling 74 smaller record stores to WH Smith, the UK's largest retailer of recorded music, in a deal worth £ 23 million. WH Smith will combine the Virgin stores with its existing Our Price chain, giving it some 275 million stores and more than 22% of the UK market.

Such a deal has been on the cards for some time and is in line with Richard Branson's expressed aim of turning Virgin into a worldwide communications and entertainment group. Last year, the Virgin stores in question, mostly in the North and Midlands, videos, games and books. Ac-

Philips CD Offer

London - Philips is offering a special discount on its latest CD960 player to people who bought the company's first CD player in 1983. Philips has launched the scheme to celebrate the fifth anniversary of the CD format.

Philips will send letters to the original customers, offering the CD960 at the same price as they paid for their original player: about £ 150 less than CD960's current retail price of £ 725. The offer is also linked to a competition with prizes including Philips audio equipment and 'Phantom of the Opera' CDs.

Philips UK's CD Marketing Manager, Peter Blom: "It seems incredible that it has taken only five years for CD to become established worldwide. By the end of last year one million players had been sold in the UK and 12 million worldwide. CD software sales stood at 20 million in the UK and over 200 million globally. We want, through our offer, to thank customers who had faith in CD right from the start."■

Music Video Market Booms

by Nick Robertshaw

London - The success of the music video was underlined at the city's recent conference for the video industry, 'Video '88', which was sponsored by 12 leading members of the British Virgin Video's Angus Margerison told delegates that, after a rocky start in the early 1980s, when product available was too expensive for the age group it was aimed at, music video had now become a stable, money-making business, with sales of more than two million units worth £ 25 million in 1987. He said the annual turnover would expand within four years to £ 100 million.

He added that the price of just under £ 10 for a one-hour music tape was good value and marketing was a relatively simple matter, with clearly defined target groups and prospects of crosspromotion with audio products.

CD Player Sales Hit I Million

London - Sales of CD players in the UK soared by 38% last year compared with 1986, according to BREMA (British Radio & Electronic Equipment Manufacturers' Association).

Trade shipments of CD players in 1987 totalled 737.000 units, compared with 438.000 in 1986 and a mere 147.000 in 1985. These were sales of separate CD players. Combination players are estimated at another 250,000 units last year, giving a total for 1987 of around one million CD players. The retail value is estimated at some £ 300 million.

UKRADIO

Richard Bransons' lavish reception for the launch of Virgin's Radio Radio in London recently was attended by virtually everybody who is anybody in the broadcasting world. Johnnie Walker was passing around the biggest bottle of champagne that I have ever seen, and all the other Radio Radio DJs were in attendance. Janice Long starts in September, and I think that Diana Luke will be a name to watch out for in the future. Radio Luxembourg DJ Jeff Graham is succeeding Phil Ward Large as the station's Head Of Music. Graham, who until recently worked for Capital Radio, will still be hosting at least one Radio Luxembourg show a week.

Jon Myer at Nova Radio informs me that they will be offering radio stations around the UK a night network service, which will be similar to Radio Radio's nighttime service.

Capital Radio have sold all 9,000 tickets for their biggest and best ever junior disco. The station also announced this week that pretax profits in the six months leading up to March 31 were £ 3.09 million on a turnover of £ 13.3 million.

GWR Radio is also reporting increased turnover. Eddie Blackwell, a consultant to GWR Radio, has been appointed as temporary Manager of GWR station, Plymouth Sound.

Antwerp - Flemish cultural Minister, Patrick Dewael, looks likely to give the go-ahead for Sky, Super Channel and MTV's access to the Belgian cable network. He said that negotiations between the satellite channels and the government would be concluded in the next few weeks.

The cable distributors say that they are technically ready to start broadcasting the programmes as soon as they receive the green light from the minister.

the two-day Rhythm 'n' Blues Festival at Peer, featuring Stevie Ray Vaughn (July 16) and John Lee Hooker (July 17). Commenting on the switch

Paris - Chrysalis has announced | to BMG, Magny said: "A European choice for BMG is more logical for us. This agreement is exactly like the one Chrysalis made in Holland with BMG earlier this year."

Summer and autumn priorities for Chrysalis France are a new Huey Lewis album, Pat Benatar's last studio album (Wide Awake In Dreamland), and work from Billy Idol (Best Of), Midge Ure and the Waterboys.

The third new national Chrysalis foothold in a major European market - all realised in a short span of time - clearly indicates a strong policy to strengthen the company's A&R activities in various European national markets.

EMI Is Always On Line

by Vittorio Castelli

Milan - The focal point of EMI Italy's 1988 dealer roadshow, which carries the slogan 'Always On Line', is a high technology unit, featuring a videodisk player and a computer terminal linked directly to the company's warehouse.

The unit will enable dealers attending the show to view the entire range of EMI's back catalogue item by item, including the sleeve artwork as well as essential catalogue data. Dealers can then order immediately.

Giuseppe D'Anzeo, EMI Italy's Sales Chief, claims the scheme is already paying off. "By showing album sleeves fullsize to dealers, memories are jogged and the ordering process is then speeded up by not having to go through printed listings." The road show will be staged at hotels in 16 key Italian cities throughout the summer.

Portuguese Sales Decline

Lisbon - Recently released figures on Portuguese vinyl sales show a severe downward trend for all formats, excluding cassettes and CDs. Combined singles and album sales dropped from 5,200,347 in 1986 to 3,924,947 last year. However, the Portuguese industry expects the boom in CD and cassette sales to continue. CD sales surged by almost 200% to 226,688 in 1987 from 76.687 in 1986, while cassette sales were up 84.42% to 2,112,488 from 1.145,436. The Beatles back catalogue topped the CD sales list, exceeding 20,000 units.

PolyGram has the largest market share (33.11%), followed by EMI (28.41%), CBS (16.92%), Reader's Digest (8.64%) and Transmedia (2.41%). However, EMI is market leader in terms of domestic product with a 35.12% market share.

Hey Blondie!

Italian rock star Gianna Nannini is currently working on a new studio album, the follow-up to the compilation LP Maschi È Altri, which went gold or platinum in Italy, Sweden, Germany, Austria and Switzerland. Nannini's last studio album, Profumo, sold over one million units in Europe.

The production of the new LP will be handled both by Nannini and Alan Moulder, known for his work with Eurythmics, The Smiths and Big Audio Dynamite. The first single from the LP, the thumping Hey Bionda ('Hey Blondie') has been released by Polydor this week (see Previews on page 13). Nannini has a big European tour scheduled to begin in October.

Red Rock - A Post-Glasnost Perspective

Although access by Western acts to the East Bloc countries is far easier in the post-glasnost climate, there are still special difficulties to be overcome in negotiating with government authorities, and the problem of a shortage of Western currency still exists.

his emerged from the IMMC panel on 'Red Rock, The Post-Glasnost Perspective' moderated by Vera Brandes, Managing Director of VeraBra Records, in Cologne, Johnny Beerling, Controller of BBC Radio 1 in the UK, who visited the USSR for two weeks in February with DJ John Peel to make documentary programmes, reported that, in the USSR today, there is a considerable softening of attitudes to rock music. However, he added that it was essential always to go through official channels and that there was still a lot of red tape which had to be cut through.

This was confirmed by the other two speakers on the panel. Klara Landwehr, Head of Artag Promotion in Munich, and Janos Kukoricza, an executive of Show Technica, in Hungary.

Beerling said there was no real censorship of lyrics in the USSR. There was a semi-official musicians' collective in Leningrad called The Rock Laboratory to which lyrics were submitted, but there was a wide degree of tolerance even for lyrics critical | Soviet bands and said that most of the government.

However, Beerling also said that there was a division between the official and the unofficial rock scenes in Russia. Official bands record for the state record company Melodia. They receive a salary and their records are aired on the radio, in return for which they have to compromise their music. Melodia does not issue any real recording contracts and will generally only press about 15.000 copies of any one record.

The unofficial rock scene consists of more inspired musicians, whose lyrics can be considered more controversial. They receive little airplay and their music is distributed by people selling copies of cassettes on Official bands are chosen by a sort of collective A&R organisation called the Arts Council. The Council, which consists of poets, composers and representatives of cultural authorities, meet twice a week to select bands from auditated, had discernable Russian roots. There are no real charts, as such, except for the one produced by TASS (the offficial Soviet news agency).

Beerling said that pop artists in the USSR had no star status and travelled to gigs by public transport. A top official USSR band like Aguarium could play to audiences from 200 to 7,500 people. There is a severe shortage of musical instruments, and guitars that could be bought in the West for US$ 300 could cost as much as US$ 4.000 in Moscow.

Recording studios are equally thin on the ground. Beerling said that there were about 10 decent studios in the whole of Moscow. only two of which had 16-track recording facilities. Most bands Beerling talked to did not consider Melodia producers very sympathetic. They are allocated a four-hour recording session and are expected to get on with it like any other job.

tion tapes. Beerling noted that commercial appeal is increasingly becoming the main criterium for choosing a band.

A band's popularity depends on TV exposure. Soviet TV features two 90-minute late-night pop shows each week which include some live performances and some video-clips. Beerling played taped extracts from the music of some contemporary

Apart from the official Melodia discs on sale, people swap or sell off old LPs at record stores. Official LPs in the USSR cost from £ 2.50 to £ 3.50, but black market, imported albums could cost as much as £ 50 each.

Beerling said he was planning to take a Radio 1 team back to the USSR later in the year to do a breakfast show from a Black Sea resort

Landwehr recalled that the in-

of the music, though rock orien- | creased receptivity to pop music from the West had really started before glasnost and perestroika. For several years the acceptance of Western music had been growing in the USSR. Initially, the hardliners were opposed to the infiltration of popular Western music into the USSR and had tried to forbid it. But in time they

> this music and that it could not be excluded on ideological grounds. She said the penetration of jazz had preceded the advent of rock, though, at the time of Stalin, jazz was officially regarded as undesirable.

came to realise that young people

all over the country want to hear

Landwehr said that an indication of the new open-door policy was the fact that she had been asked to organise a three-day concert with Western rock artists in the 32.000-seater Moscow Olympic Stadium on the theme 'Rock Agains Drugs'. The project had been initiated by the magazine Ogonyok, a sister publication of Pravda, and was set to take place in November or December.

She pointed out that security measures at concerts in the Soviet Union are stricter than those in the West. Fans are not allowed to get close to the stage and there is a restriction of one person per square metre in front of the podium. She said that although the lighting equipment and open-air stages measure up to Western standards, the sound systems at major concerts cannot compete.

Landwehr said that one way of overcoming the lack of Western currency was for the Eastern countries to film concerts by Western rock artists and then make the Western rights available to the artists. This happened when Queen played in Budapest in 1986. The resulting video had been broadcast in most Western countries.

Vera Brandes said that other East Bloc countries were anxious to make the cultural exchange a two-way traffic. East Germany was interested in exporting its pop bands and product to the West as a means of earning Western currency. Bands had to give 60% of their earnings to the state concert agency, she said.

Doctorin'The Tardis - KLF Communications Ex-UK no. 1 hit, shamelessly exploiting the works of Sweet, Gary Glitter and mixing it with the theme of Dr. Who. Is this the fate of pop music?

Liane Folv Ca Va Ca Vient - Virgin

This ex-New Talent tip is now climbing the French charts. A great number; loads of atmosphere and a killer chorus.

Hazell Dean

Maybe (We Should Call It A Day) - EMI What can one say? It will be a hit. The PWL formula has yet to run out of ideas. Nice guitar break.

American Radio History & MEDIA July 2, 1988

lust For Now - CGD A ballad in the Barry Manilow mould. Very MOR and a possible summer hit.

Camouflage

Neighbours - Metronome

The second single from the excellent Voices & Images LP is already nudging the German charts. Quality elektro-pop that could make them the next big German export.

Sam Brown

An impressive new talent whose striking debut single leaves us with no doubts about her future. Produced by brother Pete Brown (whose credits include The Mighty Lemon Drops and The Soup Dra-reviewed in this column next week.

Tyka Nelson

Marc Anthony's Tune - Cooltemno A sweet, lilting ballad by Prince's sister. Good tunes and a fine chorus

Stefano Ruffini

Canto Bolero - WEA Blessed with a slightly wailing, high-pitched voice, this Italian singer confidently debuts with a melodic and romantic mainstream song. With a Spanish guitar adding a Latin flavour, the result is commercial. Gianna Nannini

Hey Bionda - Polydor Pulsating synthesizer rhythms provide a steady, determined layer on which the Italian superstar's intense vocals can flourish. See also page 9.

Pink Floyd One Slip - EMI

A driving and poignant rock song released in conjunction with their current, highly successful, Euro-

UB40 With Chrissie Hynde Breakfast In Bed - Dep Int/Virgin Another duet, following the formula of 1985's I Got You Babe. A forgotten reggae hit of Lorna Bennet that fits their vocal chemistry. Helen Watson

When You Love Me I Get Lazy - Hit Or Miss/EMI Soothing jazz/blues ballad, written by Watson and her musical collaborator, Martin McGroarty, and excellently produced by Glyn Johns. The third single taken from the auspicious singer/songwriter's Blue Slipper debut album.

Geoffrey Williams

Cinderella - Polydor Pleasant and danceable pop song from a promising Englishman who is a confessed admirer of Stevie Wonder. And it shows!

ALBUM OF THE WEEK

Marti Iones

Used Guitars - A&M

Whereas Jones' first two albums had some dark and uneasy moments, here an overall pleasant feel dominates. Jones' mature voice matches thoughtfulness with sensuality and the arrangements are seemingly simple. Producer Don Dixon again does a flawless job. Don't miss Ruby and Graham Parker's You Can't Take Love

Eros Ramazzotti

Musica F - DDD

As Ramozzotti's international reputation grows, so do his ambitions. The II-minute suite is a pleasant exercise in working through an idea. The arrangement is skilful and the orchestration epic. His emotional range is immense and overall this LP, which includes four other tracks is a powerful statement of one of Europe's most accomplished singer/songwriters.

Scritti Politti Provision - Virgin

SCRITTI POLITTI/PROVISION

Continuing in the same vein as 1988's Cupid & Psyche this is an album of complex but lighthearted music. Gartside has always held high ambitions, wanting to rewrite the rule book for pop and to some degree he succeeds. The only problem is that his sound is so individual he runs the risk of repeating himself. Nevertheless this record will undoubtedly stand out as one of the releases of 1988. Check Bam Salute, All That We Are and Sugar And Spice.

Fishbone

Truth And Soul - CBS

A strange mixture of hard rock, salsa, funk and pop. These things thankfully do not occur at the same time but provide a varied and interesting record. Best tracks include Ma And Pa and One Day.

as delicate and subtle as they are

Tonio K

Notes From The Lost Civilization - What/A&M A straight from the heart rock album. Powerful lyrics with wellcrafted compositions and arrangements. Sometimes wayward but always convincing. With a passionate vocal delivery, the music balances between roughness and perfection. Beautiful. Check out Without Love. Stay and City Life.

David Hallyday

True Cool - Scotti Bros

The impressive debut LP from the California-based son of French artists Johnny Hallyday and Sylvie Vartan. Known for the hit single He's My Girl, this spunky set of rock, pop and R&B never fails to entertain. Raunchy songs, fuelled with solid drums. quirky guitars, Motown-esque keyboards and sampled horns. Impressive.

Moody Blues

Sur La Mer - Polydor

After 23 years at the top of their profession it is amazing that the Moodies still produce interesting and fresh music. Whether or not you like their particular brand of symphonic pop there is no denying they do it very well. Check out No More Lies, Miracle and Deep.

The Style Council Confessions Of A Pop Group - Polydor

A strange mixture more in the mould of their first LP Cafe Bleu than their last two efforts. It is a brave mood to include the film soundtrack-like The Little Boy In a Castle on a mainstream rock album and generally to challenge preconceptions as to how a group should sound. Sometimes it works, sometimes it does not. Check Why I Went Missing and Confessions 1,2 and 3.

Johnny Clegg & Savuka In A World Of Extremes

by Marjolein Rotsteeg

While their first album 'Third World Child' holds the no. I spot in France, South African band Johnny Clegg & Savuka are banned from promoting their new LP 'Shadow Man' on TV in the UK. It is a very bizarre situation, says Johnny Clegg.

rom the beginning of his career, Cleso har fighting the apartheid system in South Africa through his music. Before he set up Savuka (which is Zulu for 'we have awakened' and 'we have arisen'), he was already very popular in South Africa. As a member of Juluka, together with Sipho Mchunu, he received five gold and two platinum albums.

Clegg's albums with Savuka are marked by a brilliant blend of traditional Zulu music and Western pop. The origin of the Zulu influences is obvious, but what about his Western pop roots?

"In the very early days I was a fan of Jethro Tull and I loved and Sting."

Child a compilation album. "I drum-box, synthesizers and sequencer-machines. Two songs on international album. The new LP just went into the studio with a Shadow Man is the result of 10 weeks work with the band in the studio." The result is a fine danceable fusion of African and Clegg was born in Rochdale, near Manchester (UK) in 1953. At the age of five he moved to South Africa with his parents and has lived there ever since. A few weeks ago, he was expelled from the British Musicians Union (BMU)

Celtic folk music. I also like Jack- | Johnny Clegg, fighting apartheid

"I still have a British passport," Clegg explains, "but I've been black-listed by the United Nations for performing in South Africa. And now I've been expelled from the BMU, because they are aligned with the UN's cultural embargo, which was set

"It is a very bizarre situation. It does not prevent Unicef or similar organisations from asking me to play Zimbabwe. And of course, it does not stop British bands from playing Sun City, which they do constantly. The British media have attacked the BMU very strongly.'

Accordingly, Clegg cannot do any promos on UK TV, which are subject to strict BMU control. Clegg: "It affects my career, the band's credibility and the album's airplay. It is also hard for EMI. Basically, it means that it will take us longer to break through. Maybe two years, instead of normally three or four months."

The BMU's decision also affected Clegg's performance at the Nelson Mandela 70th birthday Tribute, held recently at London's Wembley Arena. Clegg was asked by the Nelson Mandela Committee to appear, but when he was expelled from the BMU his contribution was cancelled. Which is all very strange as he has been fighting apartheid for years.

Clegg: "The Anti-Apartheid Movement is going to try to talk to the BMU on my behalf. They will point out that the United Democratic Front and the Broad Democratic Movement in South Africa do not consider that I am breaking the cultural boycott. In fact, the direct opposite: they feel I am contributing to a new, postapartheid culture ".

Iohn Norum In Total Control

by Alexandra Van Den Broek

Everyone remembers 'The Final Countdown', the pan-European no. I hit and a mega breakthrough for Swedish band Europe. lust when all this action was taking place, their longstanding guitarist John Norum caused another sensation by leaving the band. Most people thought he was crazy. How could he leave such a highly successful band?

ohn Norum: "It was actually quite easy to leave the band We had drifted into completely different musical direc-

I tions. While Europe increasingly | Roxy Club, which was also rewith a prominent role for lead vocals, I wanted to continue playing rough-edged guitar dominated rock. Therefore a split was inevitable."

Towards the end of last year his first solo LP (for CBS) was released. It was appropriately titled Total Control as Norum wrote, performed and produced most of the songs. At the time of recording, he had not yet formed the Jonh Norum band and was using friends and guest musicians.

A couple of weeks ago John and his band were in Amsterdam shooting the video to their new single Back On The Streets, a cover of a song by ex-Kiss member Vinnie Vincent. The live cuts in the video were shot at The various locations in and around

A breakthrough in the US market is very important for us". Although his music is rough-edged rock, the songs also show a certain softness. Norum: "I am a very romantic person person. I write about my experiences on the road. I can't sing about sex, violence or satan. I am no devil worshipper".

Boys And Girls by French band Charlie Makes The Cook, tipped by my predecessor in issue 41 of last year, has now sold more than 300,000 copies in France. It has also been picked up in Italy by Panarecord, Bellaphon in Germany, Unidisc in Canada, Carrere in Belgium, AVC in Spain, Indisc in Holland and, last but not least, Trademark in the UK.

Havana Blacks, the Finnish rock band whose rousing single Indian Warriers was featured in issue 23, are now no. 14 in their home chart. They have been on TV both in Finland and Sweden and recently Spanish TV has also shown an interest in them.

Moving across the big pond now, California's MU Records report that the excellent version of Respect Yourself by J Blackfoot has been picked up by Polydor in Holland and is doing well in the clubs despite being released after the Bruce Willis version. They have also had enquiries about their talented composer/guitarist Malachi and we hope that will lead to something good.

While we are on the subject of enquiries, Michael Ritto of Denmark's Medley Records reports that they always get a lot of enquiries from watchful publishers and record companies when a record is featured in M&M's Talent Tracks section. No less than 15 companies contacted them concerning Kama Sutra Eyes by Love Construction following its inclusion in issue 21.
