WHEN AM I GONNA MAKE A LIVING (OOH)
IT'S GONNA TAKE A WHILE BEFORE I GIVE IN
SEE THE PEOPLE FUSSING AND FEELING
WHAT A SHOCK SO WHEELING AND DEALING
GOTTA LOOK UP AND TELL YOURSELF
THERE'S NO END TO WHAT YOU CAN DO
(WHAT YOU DO IS UP TO YOU)
THEY'LL WASTE YOUR BODY AND SOUL IF YOU ALLOW THEM TO
THIS IS THE TIME (AAH) TO START BELIEVING IN YOURSELF (OOH OOH)
PUT THE BLAME ON NO-ONE ELSE

WHEN AM I GONNA MAKE A LIVING (OOH)

JACKSON AND JAGGER SINGLE

He did it with Paul McCartney twice, and now he's doing it with Mick Jagger.

Michael Jackson and The Stones' singer have teamed up for 'State Of Shock', a song from The Jacksons' forthcoming LP, 'Victory'.

Released as a single on June 11, the album will follow in July.

Mick joined Michael in LA last year, and there will be a video to accompany the song - it has been made, but isn't in this country yet.

As far as a Jacksons UK tour is concerned, Epic confirmed growing suspicions that it won't happen this year, "due to problems concerning the US tour".

Hopefully they'll be over next year, but don't hold your breath.

JOEL'S SMALL SCREEN SHOW

Fans unable to get tickets for Billy Joel's Wembley Arena concert on June 8 needn't despair.

In an exclusive arrangement with the BBC, the show will be televised live at 9.25pm on BBC1 and Radio One. The second half of the concert will be broadcast on the following Tuesday, June 12.

NIK WON'T LET THE HITS GO DOWN

Nik Kershaw's first single 'I Won't Let The Sun Go Down On Me', which was critically acclaimed but wasn't a huge hit, is re-released this week with 'Dancing Girls' on the B-side.

The single is available in three formats - 7" in a picture bag; a limited edition large format fold out poster bag; and a six-and-a-half minute special 12" remix, interspersed with 'Dancing Girls' and 'Wouldn't It Be Good'.

Nik is off to Europe soon but will be around to support Elton John at Wembley on June 30.

Go'ing up... Nik Kershaw

ORCHESTRAL MANOEUVRES

Hall 19, Edinburgh Playhouse 21, Nottingham Royal Centre 22, Liverpool Empire 23, Manchester Apollo 24, Sheffield City Hall 26, Birmingham Odeon 27, Ipswich Gaumont 28, Southampton Gaumont 29, Brighton Dome October 1, and London Hammersmith Odeon 2/3.

DR STINGENSTEIN

Following his part as a baddie in the science-fiction epic Dune, to be released Christmas '84, Sting has accepted another 'nasty' role as Dr Frankenstein in The Bride. Filming starts this month in France, England and America.

A new Police single isn't expected for some time as the band are all pursuing solo projects.

THE KOOLEST GANG IN TOWN

A lot of people have the wrong idea about The Kane Gang.

Their hard, soulful funk sounds like it comes from the American Deep South.

But they're really just three down-to-earth lads from Sunderland.

"We did a gig early on under the name of Kings Of Cotton," says Gang man Martin Brammer.

"The music was sort of weird soul gospel, really depressing. We played this club using loads of doomy tapes and did a monologue about there being no God.

"When we came off, everyone kept asking us if we were Moonies!

"And when we did a Kid Jensen interview he was really surprised when he met us," Martin continues.

"He said, 'Hey, I thought you guys were black!'"

The crew of Switch on Channel 4 did a double-take too.

"They thought we'd be real Wham kids," he laughs. "I think it's partly to do with the name. It's so snappy people expect us to wear leather jackets and have dance routines."

Such confusion is understandable. The Kane Gang's first single 'Brother Brother' and their current release 'Small Town Creed' both have their roots in black American sounds, from the soulful Sly And The Family Stone, The Staples Singers, and Al Green, to the freaky funk of George Clinton.

Martin, along with Dave Brewis and Paul Woods, has always been more interested in the music than the image.

"I don't think any of us particularly wants to be famous," admits Martin.

"The good thing about the club scene is that no matter how duff your image is, if you make a great dance record they'll play it."

"The worst thing in the world is to see a band like us trying to look glamorous," adds Dave.

The Kane Gang are on Newcastle's small independent Kitchenware label, and aim to make records that stand the test of time.

"It says something for soul music that songs like 'Sex Machine' by James Brown sounded great when we first started going to clubs years ago, and they still sound great now," says Martin.

"That's a general Kitchenware philosophy. We want some of the records to be great records, and to stand up in their own right in years to come. I think 'Brother Brother' could do that . . ."

Only time will tell . . .

THE KANE GANG SMALL TOWN CREED

Living life down with the small town creed

Seems so hard indeed

Papa papa papa oh oh oh yeah

Papa papa papa oh oh oh yeah

Well it's just too cosy in here

We got to get gotta get things started

On a lasting thing

The history of the small town creed

it's better by far than shallow hip hip

Hipper by far than shangri-la

Yeah, open up a new book of rules

Loosening up the non stop

Let's get things put to right in here

Once and for all let's say it

Papa papa papa oh oh oh

Yeah

Papa papa papa oh oh oh yeah

Chorus:

We're all talking 'bout the small town creed

We're gonna tell you what we believe

It's a gumball machine and seven mouths to feed

We're all singing

Papa papa papa oh oh oh yeah

Papa papa papa oh oh oh yeah

(Repeat chorus)

Get out of town get out here

Get into town get right in here

What does it matter who gives a damn

The message is the same when you kick out the jam

On a trip, from the hip

To the brain

Someone stole all the soul

From your heart

We can find no trace of this in the creed

The creed is full of soul

The city was never their goal

(Repeat chorus to fade)

HOW THE SPANDS SHOT THE COVER OF 'PARADE' — THEIR NEW LP THAT WILL MARCH STRAIGHT TO No.1

ON PARADE SPANDAU BALLET

Shooting the photo session for your album sleeve is not usually the most demanding job in the world — just line 'em up and away we go.

But Spandau Ballet decided they wanted a little bit more than that. . . in fact a lot more!

And so, in a studio in London's Ladbroke Grove, we find Blue Peter girl Sarah Green, Islington Page Three star Samantha Fox and young TV actress/singer Patsy 'Peapod' Kensit all dressed in majorette outfits. . . the Spandau dads carrying a Trade Union banner. . . Carmen Miranda, Blue Rondo singer Chris Sullivan, a girl in a lion suit. . . and in the middle, Gary Kemp and the rest of the group trying to organise the whole affair.

The intention is to have this parade dancing along the bottom of the album sleeve

For Spandau Ballet 1983 was the Year of the Dove.

That famous 'True' sleeve design signalled their most successful run in the charts to date. Now, some nine months after their last single 'Gold', the Islington Idols are back with a new single 'Only When You Leave', a new album 'Parade', and a whole new look to go with it. Harlequins, majorettes, soldiers and a New Orleans band are just some of the characters that appear on the new album's sleeve. And there are a number of guest celebrities hidden inside the uniforms.

Paul Simper got involved with this strange Parade and talked to Gary Kemp and the group's artist David Band about the new album.

beneath a massive building.

There's a lot of bustling, a lot of running around, in the four or five hours it takes to get the photo together — but finally it's done.

The extras slip away, the sound of the band dies down and Gary Kemp relaxes for half an hour before dashing off to a video meeting.

As usual he's hardly been standing still since the band finished their world tour last Christmas.

There's the new LP 'Parade', which they recorded with 'True' producers Steve Jolley and Tony Swain in Munich — and it's evident that all five members are ready now to get back into the swing of things.

With a few alterations, of course. As Gary Kemp explains. . .

RETURN OF THE SLEEVE

"With 'Parade' I wanted to return to making the record sleeve important. So much has been done with videos, while the sleeve has just been passed over.

"What with all the 12-inches that come out as well as genuine LPs, the sleeves have become so commonplace as to be almost disposable.

"But the record sleeve's an important part of an album. Unlike a promotional video, it's something permanent,

Fearless Tony Hadley tussles with a Chinese dragon and Carmen Miranda.

Blue Rondo singer Chris Sullivan with Tony. "It's a bit strange," says Chris. "Everyone else is dressed up in costumes for this parade while I've got my normal clothes on!"

"Is this what mum meant by getting a proper job?" Simper with Spandau fan club secretary Jacqui Quaife.

REPORT AND INTERVIEWS BY PAUL 'UNCLE SAM' SIMPER. PICTURES BY STEVE RAPPORT.

ART'S COOL BAND

Scottish artist David Band first worked with Spandau Ballet on 'Communication'. He then went on to design the sleeve for their third album, 'True', with its famous dove symbol, and has collaborated with the band ever since.

Apart from Spandau, David has designed sleeves for Altered Images, Aztec Camera and his brother's band Bourgie Bourgie, as well as having his work in a number of exhibitions.

Like previous Spandau sleeves, 'Parade' came about as a collaboration between David and Gary Kemp.

"I'd been working on a painting of a man holding a megaphone for the album sleeve when Gary came up with 'Parade'. That sparked off all the different images," says David.

"It was good for me to get into painting with oils – rather than the felt pens of the 'True' sleeves – and 'Parade' gave me that opportunity because Gary's quite into art as well.

"Gary's really good to work with, because unlike a lot of people he's interested in all the arts – not just music.

"Everything I've done, we've worked out together – he's good to bounce ideas off. He understands what I'm trying to get at.

"In fact all the band are good to work with because they actually like what I'm doing, it does help.

"Some bands couldn't care F.A. about what you're doing.

"Off and on it takes me about a week to do an oil painting, but I work really quick.

"Gary and I originally started work on this sleeve two or three months ago, which has been a great help. So often you have about two days to get a sleeve done – that's how long I had before 'True' was released. It was mayhem!

"At the moment I'm trying to replace the dove symbol from 'True'. That's what the harlequin figure on the record is all about.

"I was a bit suspicious though when Martin (Kemp) got me dressed up in a harlequin outfit for the album sleeve parade – I almost throttled him!

"Still, originally I was going to appear with a paint-pot and beret, which I guess is even more ridiculous. The artist at work!"

"I said paint the sleeve, Dave, not wear it!" Gary and David Band stop parading for a minute.

something you can keep.

"This album will have a gatefold sleeve – and we got John Shaw, who specialises in advertising photography, to take the picture of the parade."

WORLD PARADE

"The idea behind 'Parade' was that this year we are really parading ourselves to the world.

"Well, it beats opening letters about Martin's underpants . . ." Spandau's fan club secretary Jacqui Quaife only came down to the photo session to help out – next thing she knows she's a drummer boy. Funny life, innit?

"Come and have your picture taken Dad, he said . . . Meet Sam Fox, he said . . . Not a word about holding this bloody banner for four hours!" John Keeble's dad Stan 'The Man' muses on life at the top.

"We're going to places like Australia, New Zealand and Japan which we've never played in before.

"I hate the word 'tour', so this world trip will be called The Spandau Ballet World Parade '84-'85.

"I like the musical and visual images that the word 'parade' conjures up.

"There's that interesting juxtaposition of the military and the carnival. And that's really what touring is like – you work out your strategic plans for taking over the world and then when you're playing there's that carnival atmosphere.

"One day I just sat down and thought of all the different types of parade – an army, a New Orleans band, Trade Unions. . .

"I love the power that a group of people together possess, the camaraderie. There's something very powerful about a crowd of people moving forwards together in a positive direction.

"There's that same sort of feeling within the band.

"On the album sleeve there's the gigantic figure of a man standing in front of a building. He's pointing forward with one hand while the other is shielding his eyes from the sun.

"That was what it was like touring last year after the success of 'True'. Every city we went to, we received accolades – which was great – but it was like having a light hanging above you, glowing, the whole time.

"The idea for the harlequin figure, which has replaced the dove on the sleeve, came from a Russian ballet by Diaghilev, 'Parade'.

"Another interesting thing is 'Parade' in French means a 'show'.

"One of the original ideas for the 'Parade' sleeve was to recreate The Beatles' 'Sergeant Pepper' sleeve using people in the entertainment business, sport and politics who sum up the best of the '80s. But it was too short notice to get it together. "Also it could have looked a bit too 'kitsch'.

"The one thing I didn't want to do with the new album was pull one track off it and make that the title. It throws too much light on one track and I think it tends to look rather like a marketing ploy."

THE GUESTS

"There was no particular reason behind choosing Sam, Patsy and Sarah as majorettes, except they are all up-and-coming stars in their different fields within the entertainment business.

"The clothes were the most important thing, but it was good that they could do it.

"Blue Rondo's Chris Sullivan is again a friend. He did design our suits last year, but we haven't had any made this time. We wanted to be more ourselves, although I love uniforms.

"The world tour this year starts in the Mediterranean, so we need something to combat that heat."

ONLY WHEN YOU LEAVE

"It has been quite a while since 'Gold' but the delay before a new single wasn't because we were overawed by the stigma of 'True'.

"It would have been far worse if we hadn't released 'Gold'. That lost the enigma of 'True', because 'Gold' stayed near the top for quite a few weeks.

"There was no sense in worrying whether it got to No. 1 or not.

"So there was no pressure on us when we went away to record the new album in Munich. We had a rest – well, not really a rest because we were touring – and then we had two months to record the LP. There was no room for paranoia.

"I think 'Only When You Leave' is a good mediator between 'True' and 'Parade'. It's got quite a bare arrangement but it's still melodic, still soulful.

"That's the only way I can write because I'm a songwriter first, not just a musician."

CITY SOUNDS

'Parade' certainly has a different sound to 'True'. That's the difference between recording in the Bahamas and doing it in Munich.

"In Munich we were working in a studio underground with no windows. It was great – we needed a city to work in.

"I play a lot more guitar on the new album and I think we're playing much more as a unit now, which comes from last year's tour.

"'Parade' is more like us. And I would hope it's matured a little bit. Steve's certainly come on well as a sax player, but it's hard to really pinpoint the changes.

"It's like when you get up each morning and look at yourself in the mirror. You don't notice you're changing. You still think you look like you did when you were twelve."

JOLLEY AND SWAIN

"It was no trouble working with Steve (Jolley) and Tony (Swain) again. Steve is a great support for Tony (Hadley) – he appreciates the troubles of singing.

"We flew the pair of them out to New York for our last gig so that they could hear how we sounded now – which was the sound we wanted for the new album. And they agreed.

Frank Kemp enjoys seeing his lads do a bit of work for a change.

"The thing is, 'True' was just as much their album as ours – so obviously they wanted a positive step forward too. It's like a team with them."

DRINKING THINKING

"When David Band and me get together to discuss new artwork ideas it's never done like a meeting. We just go out and get smashed and come up with loads of ideas.

"Then in the morning we sort out the bad from the not so bad.

"David's great to work with. He's one of my best friends and we both share a keen interest in modern art. Getting David to do our sleeves is a good way of exploiting an artist's talent and getting him recognition."

AN EYE ON THE OPPOSITON

"I don't think a great deal has changed in the charts since 'Gold'. The only real difference for us is that now we're competing with Howard Jones and Nik Kershaw as well. At the end of last year it was a three-horse race.

"I buy loads of records. I buy everything. I listen to them now much more for technical reasons, though. I've almost forgotten the day of buying as a fan because I liked the sleeve or whatever.

"You've got to keep looking around, though, otherwise you end up disappearing up your own arse.

"At the moment I like the Sade record and Joe Jackson's latest LP. I'm probably more open-minded now. I like records because I like the song, not because it's played on the right radio station."

NOW AND BEYOND

"It's great to be back working here again. I love doing all the TV, playing all the different roles. You know, for three months you have to be musicians recording the album, then you're pop stars. . .

"I love Top Of The Pops. I hate bands who slag it off. That's like saying Father Christmas doesn't exist.

"This year we want to take the band the whole way. No half measures.

"But that said, the most important thing to me at the moment is waking up on the Tuesday morning and hearing we've got a nice chart position.

"For now that'll do."

WHISPERS

● THE No.1 GOSSIP COLUMN ●

Not everyone was glued to their sets for Spurs' UEFA cup triumph last week. Avid Tottenham fans Spandau Ballet were busy filming for the forthcoming Granada TV special in New Brighton.

Being sensible lads they set the video to peruse the match later. Unfortunately someone ain't too hot on numbers. So three hours later they all sat down to Brookside!

Don't worry, lads, maybe Keith Burkinshaw will organise a replay. . . .

Still on the subject of Spandau, 'official biog' fans will be pleased to hear that writers Robert Elms and David Johnson have finally finished their book on the band, titled The Angel Boys. The pair describe the book as "a work of bloodcurdling fiction . . . sure to upset." You have been warned. . . .

More tales of fact and fiction. Seems ex-Haircut drummer Blair Cunningham is not about to join Nick Heyward's band after all. Blair has been drumming with Sade and has just been made an offer by pop's favourite recluses Dexys Midnight Runners. Those smart clothes'll have to go! . . .

Sod Bobby Ewing, Whispers has the soap opera story of the week. Seen settling down for a meal and a chat with Boy George in the San Lorenzo restaurant in Berkeley Square was none other than Marilyn. Seems George is sticking to his policy of 'why can't we live together' outlined in a letter to A.N. Other music paper last week. Live and let live, lads! . . .

Meanwhile up in New Bond Street Jon Moss was spotted scuttling across the road clutching a bag from the very trendy (and even more expensive) Ebony clothes shop. Quick as a flash the club man disappeared into a black Renault. Oxford Street never knew what hit it. . . .

The fabulous ex-Squeeze songwriting duo Chris Difford and Glenn Tilbrook have been approached by Quincy Jones to write a song for Frank Sinatra's new LP. Chris reckons they might have a few minutes spare next Tuesday. . . .

Another friend of the stars, Dead Or Alive's Mr Peter Burns was recently invited to Grace Jones' birthday party in the States. According to Pete the good lady fell under the table when she was introduced to him — must have had his black and orange leotard on. . . .

Following on from his gross stage antics on Entertainment USA recently, Ozzy Osbourne has been locked in jail in Memphis for being drunk and disorderly and banned from playing in Jacksonville, Florida.

Seems the ever resourceful Mr Oz went ahead with the Jacksonville show, dressed as a woman, and this time the good townsfolk practically lynched him. Quoth a deeply hurt Ozzy, "Boy

George gets a grammy for looking like a woman — I get banned!" Serves him right, says Whispers . . .

Thompson Twin Alannah Currie recently took her life in her hands when she went up to a New York cop and asked for a bullet from his gun (strictly illegal!). Much to her astonishment he fired a whole round into the pavement at her feet then gave her the shells. Funny sense of humour these Americans. . . .

Just your Imagination. Can that really be the very sensible Mr Lee? John dressed up as a 'loveable' Bobby? 'Fraid so. Seems Lee was asked to judge a Disco Dancing Championship at the annual Metropolitan Police Ball. What we want to know is does this make him Peee Ceee Lee?

Banana Spits — Who says pop stars can't influence people? Keren Woodward has a few stern words with Her Majesty about housekeeping when she turned up on the girls' video set for 'Rough Justice' while Sarah tried to get her heads together.

Taking to the skies again the other day was Gaz 'Red Devil' Numan and his bro' John Webb. The occasion was the annual Biggin Hill air display. We're not sure if they've come down yet. . . .

Limahl's new LP is called 'Don't Suppose' and would you believe it cost £100,000 to make? Sensibly the lad has decided to save a bit of money by getting his mum in his new video. . . .

Talking of new LPs, Bowie's working on his latest in Canada, but it's not Nile Rodgers producing. Any offers? . . .

Did you know that The Cure were gambling whizz kids on the side? No, well neither did they till they broke the bank on a recent trip to the casino in Monte Carlo. The management were making funny noises about fellas wearing smudged lipstick — James Bond was never like that. . . .

Looks like those Frankie boys are in trouble again. Their video for 'Two Tribes' is based around a cock fight between actors dressed as Ronald Reagan and the Russian leader Chernenko. The band play newsmen in the crowd and their political fight to the death climaxes with shouts of 'bite' is balls off' and the like. Might as well ban the song as well I suppose. . . .

Spotted riding on a tricycle in Chichester t'other day was Sandle Shaw with her wee daughter Amy on the front. Apparently Amy's big sis, 13-year-old Gracie, is an avid No. 1 reader. Hi there! . . .

Ian McCulloch would like to produce The Pale Fountains if the ABBA team don't get there first. Well at least he's got better dress sense. . . .

Good news. London's nightclub songsters — and one of Paul Weller's faves — Animal Nightlife have now signed to Island, after leaving Innervation. Expect a single in July.

Bad news. Their guitarist Fliid, who split his arm open on a broken glass at No. 1's birthday party, has just had his stitches out and the wound's opened up again. Whispers offers commiserations. . . .

And congratulations . . . to Jackl Butcher — last week's No. 1 cover star with that George chappy. This week she signed her first autograph. Watch it Jack, it's hard at the top. . . .

STUFF AND NONSENSE

SEARCHIN' FOR SUCCESS

"Most people seem to think I'm fat and American, and maybe coloured . . ."

Hazell Dean, who's just rocketed into the charts with her hi-energy hit 'Searchin' ' is slightly bemused by the confusion.

She is in fact a Chelmsford lass born and bred, and "actually quite slim!"

She's no newcomer to the music scene either, though her name's probably not familiar to most people.

Hazell started her singing career in local bands while still at school. Since then she's been part of a pop band called Union Express who were popular on the Continent, and have even taken part in a couple of Song For Europes.

Lately she's switched her talents to the boystown beat. But although 'Searchin' ' was a massive dance hit last year, it's taken a while to cross over into the national charts.

"I really loved the song the first time I heard it," Hazell says. "So it's great that it's my first hit."

A month-long tour of the States is her next move — then back to Britain for a new single.

"I've done a lot of shows over here, mainly in gay clubs," she says. "The audiences are great — they love a show with glamour and glitter, so it goes down well.

"Nothing too over the top though!"

She's come quite a way since she did backing vocals on a record with Tony Blackburn.

"I did an interview with him the other day and he said I've only got two things going against me. One is that I come from Chelmsford, and the other is that I once did a record with him!"

Now Hazell Dean has overcome those two major hurdles, it looks like there'll be no stopping her . . .

CRYSTAL CLEAR

Most groups that haven't played a gig in their home town for two years are just content to do three encores as their glib thank you when they finally do play.

Trust Echo And The Bunnymen to arrange a whole day of "happenings" in Liverpool.

The Crystal Day kicked off with brekkers in Brian's Cafe where the lads have spent many a long hour.

After that it was just one long haul around the 'Pool, taking in a haircut at Victor's Salon, a trip across the Mersey (with banana fights), a cycle ride through the olde town seeing the sights, and a choir recital at the Anglican Cathedral.

What else? Oh yes, a gig at the ancient St George's Hall, last used as a law court.

The verdict? Jolly good.

Mac and wife Lorraine sneak off for a bit of shopping before the gig.

The Pagoda Of Divine Harmonies. What? Actually it's a drama section from Liverpool's Chinese community providing a spot of entertainment during the interval at the gig.

Mac, Mac and Mac queuing up to take their places on the ferry 'cross the Mersey and the ensuing banana fight.

● I TALK TO THE TREES

Holger Czukay resembles a mad professor with his long grey hair, beady eyes, horsey laugh and countless tales of the unexpected.

He sees music as a language that can make our lives eternally happy and claims to have the power to communicate with plants.

His name may be new to some people, but Holger's been exploring music for many years.

In Germany in 1968, "when it was the spirit of the time to experiment", he formed the legendary group Can. Along with Kraftwerk, they were "the first groups to search for good strong rhythms".

Now solo, his work is a lengthy process. It took him 15 months to make his new album 'Der Osten Ist Rot', from which comes the humorous 'Photo Song' single.

Holger's life reads like a fairy tale.

"When I was 18 jazz was fashionable, but I felt there were so many notes and tones being wasted that I decided to study classical music instead.

"I couldn't survive as a modern music composer so I decided to look for a rich wife. I went to the private schools in Switzerland where the millionaires send their daughters and got a job as a teacher - even though I didn't have any qualifications! - and there I met the other members of Can.

"Seven years ago I discovered I could make the leaves and branches of plants move when I wanted them to. I cried. It was a very intimate experience.

"Here in England I go to Hyde Park at 4.00 in the morning and make the trees move. Once the police stopped me and asked, 'Can you see something special, sir?'

"I said, 'YES! Look at that tree, there's no wind but it's moving and laughing'.

"They asked for my name and address. They thought I was nuts!

"With the police, I have always had very funny meetings!"

Holger Czukay beats 'em all for sheer weirdness!

INTIMATE DETAILS

JUNIOR WAITES

MUSICAL YOUTH

EARLY LIFE

Real name: Frederick Junior Waites.

Nickname: Scoops. Dunno where it came from!

Born: 23 May 1967, West Bromwich in the Midlands.

School report: I took CSEs just before I left school last year and - let's say they was fair results. OK considering that I'd had quite a lot of time off school.

Childhood ambition: To be a musician, always. When I was about three my mum bought me a toy drum for Christmas and I used to mess about on that.

First job: I did a paper round once, just standing in for a friend for a week.

HOME LIFE

Lives: With my parents in W. Bromwich.

Eats: Chicken, curried goat, lamb, and some health foods like Nutrament and vegetables.

Records: Aswad, Bob Marley, Michael Jackson, Evelyn King.

TV: I don't have the time! I miss Coronation Street.

Films: Horror films that don't go too over the top. Superman. I also like sensible films like Penitentiary, that have got a meaning, not films that are just there to make you laugh.

Pets: I used to have a cat called Lucky, but she kept getting pregnant so my mum gave her to an animal home. I was upset, but Patrick was more upset, he used to really cuddle that cat.

SOCIAL LIFE

Favourite people: Number one is my mum and dad, then it's the guys in the band - I get on with all of them. My girlfriend, and I've got some friends at school still.

Least favourite people: I don't like people who go on bigheaded. I just like humble people.

Hobbies: Pool, table tennis, snooker.

PRIVATE LIFE

Worst habits: I've got a bad temper. If I get in a mood and someone says something to me I'll cut them down for no reason.

Best points: Just being friendly really, sociable.

Girlfriend: Her name is Debbie. She lives in West Bromwich.

I met her in Jamaica when we were making some videos. I started talking to her on the beach and it turned out she came from West Bromwich. The relationship took time to mature. I went after her for a year.

Where I would like to live: In Jamaica, or Los Angeles. The lifestyle's cool in LA.

I wish: Just that this group would go on for years to come and we'll make enough money to survive. And I wish I had a studio, a nice little eight-track, because I like writing songs.

It's just something I've inherited from my father. If I'm sitting in the house I'll just write a song and put it on a tape machine so I won't forget it.

GROWING UP IN PUBLIC

Cecil: "My grandfather Thomas had a group — The Womack Brothers. He had eight sons and five daughters who were called The Womack Brothers and Sisters."

"My own father, Friendly, started the third generation of Womack Brothers, which was us."

"By the time I was two and Bobby was five, they were already singing. When I got a bit older — about three! — my father would coach me in singing. He wouldn't let us lie around!"

"It was a great experience growing up in such a musical family. We had the chance to develop our talent, and we learnt to be competitive at an early age because we were around a lot of professional gospel groups."

"I was at home in Cleveland, Ohio, until I was 13. Then we met Linda's father, Sam Cooke, and Bobby and I sang in California as The Womack Brothers, then The Valentinos."

Linda: "My father travelled a lot, working, and the family would go on the road with him."

"The shows were big in those days — it wasn't a one person show like it is now. There'd be ten or twelve major acts getting together. I loved it."

"The best part was staying with some of the artistes I was really close to — such as The Shirelles, the Crystals and Dionne Warwick. Once I was asked out on stage during the big finale. I had a really good time dancing around."

"I must have been about eight or nine at the time!"

GETTING IT TOGETHER

Linda: "My father sent for The Valentinos to come from Cleveland. He asked them to visit and that was really special for me because no one came to our house. He was very private when it came to our home life."

"Bobby and I talked and talked, but Cecil didn't say anything the whole time. I said 'why ain't you saying anything?'"

"He just smiled and it turned out that he's not really quiet, he just watches a lot before he talks, y'know?"

"We got into a lunatic conversation and we've talked a lot ever since."

SONGWRITING

Linda: "I wrote little songs when I was eight. My father taught me how to re-write nursery rhymes — like make 'em hip. It could be 'Humpty Dumpty' or anything. We'd put a little groove to it and put it on tape."

"From there it developed into writing serious songs."

THE FAMILY ALBUM

Womack and Womack have started a 'Love War' in the charts — but really it's a family affair.

Cecil Womack and his brother Bobby were discovered playing in a group called The Valentinos by the legendary '60s soul star Sam Cooke.

They had an American hit with 'It's All Over Now' which The Rolling Stones covered for their first No. 1. Then Bobby went on to become a singing legend in his own right.

Meanwhile Cecil had married Sam Cooke's daughter Linda. During the '70s they forged a successful songwriting partnership.

Now — under the name Womack and Womack — they have a classy album and smash single of their own.

Martin Townsend adjusts his tin helmet and meets the couple who've turned the charts into a battlefield.

Cecil: "Years ago I had a track that still needed lyrics and Linda offered to write some for it."

"They were real beautiful lyrics. I was knocked out. That was the first song we ever wrote together."

Linda: "We both write lyrics and music now, although he plays more than I do. Tinkle things out on the piano but the guitar is really his thing."

WOMACK AND WOMACK

Linda: "We were writing songs for other people — like Teddy Pendergrass. We'd talk about if we were doing an album, we'd do this or that . . ."

"By the time Teddy had his car accident our writing and producing for other people was just about fulfilled, because people were becoming more and more confining to us creatively."

"When you get big record sales off a certain song it tends to stick in artistes' minds — all of 'em suddenly want the same kind of songs. We didn't want to become formula-ised."

"When Teddy got hurt it really set us up to do an LP because he was the one person we were hanging on with."

LOVE WARS

Cecil: "The concept for the 'Love Wars' LP evolved out of different relationships that were close to us, and the fact that in our relationship we could mature by talking things out."

"A lot of people don't really iron things out between each other — they just let the problems build up, and as time goes on things get worse."

SUCCESS

Linda: "Our album's been successful because you can go for so long on junk food but in the end you want a good meal."

"It's the same with music. It's emotional food. People can listen to all these records that don't really say much but in the end they find it's not really fulfilling."

THE FUTURE

While we've been talking Cecil has been idly thumbing through an encyclopedia of black music he's bought.

"Just looking through this book I see that basically almost every artiste in here is no longer in existence," he says.

"A lot of 'em are gone because of what they were doing. It was just fad, imitating one another."

"Ten years from now we want our music to be on another planet."

"We've come to stay — and play."

R A T S I S STRIKE OUT!

The Boomtown Rats don't like videos. Not expensive ones, anyway. Bob Geldof and Johnny Fingers take a pick-axe to the current crop. Interview by Paul Bursche. Pictures by Clare Muller.

"It's disgustin'," explodes Bob Geldof. "I can't believe the money that people spend on videos!"

"We've just done one for 'Drag Me Down' that cost ten grand. It's a joke when people spend three times the budget of their LP on the video for a single."

In the late '70s the Rats had the knack of making cheap but very watchable videos.

Their video for 'I Don't Like Mondays' (based on the true story of a girl convicted of murder) helped make it a worldwide hit.

Now, Geldof can't understand why most groups need a fortune to make even a dull one.

"For 'House On Fire' we just took a home video unit while we were on tour," he says. "It cost £100 and we shot 24 hours of film, and you know what?"

"It looked exactly like those Ceylon ones that Duran did!"

BIG IN AMERICA

Bob admits that he does in fact like Duran Duran. But he sees the American video channel MTV as the main reason behind their success story.

"I think that if MTV had been around in 1978 then some of our contemporaries, like the Jam, would have made it in America. We were making better videos then."

"Video broke British bands on a big scale," says Fingers,

"America suddenly seemed to realise how fashion, attitudes and music could all be incorporated in video."

VIDEO-DROME

"I hate to sound boring," says Bob, "but I think that we've done just about every video possible."

"We've done videos where there was an alternative story to the song. 'Someone's Looking At You' was a real Apocalypse Now one where Fingers dressed up in black pyjamas to play a Vietcong spy."

"We've also done elaborate videos like 'Diamond Smiles' which had Busby Berkeley dance sequences in it. That was the first time video synthesisers had been used."

"Imagination is the important element of any video. It should sum up the attitude of the band and the atmosphere of the song."

THE GOOD, THE BAD, AND THE UGLY

A typical bad video, says Bob, is one where "the singer sings 'Yummy, yummy, I've got love in my tummy' and then turns round to see a window exploding significantly."

"Spare me."

Fingers picks the normal American video as ugly.

"You know," he says. "This really, really ugly Yank singer is seen chucking a beautiful girl out of his flat. He's throwing her out!?' And she's crying and he's all macho. It's pathetic."

"My ideal video," says Bob mistily, "is where the band is in a room and are all cracking up with laughter. Then as the song progresses they all start looking glummer and glummer until they finally start crying."

"Imagine, the whole range of emotion in three minutes."

WHAT A DRAG

The Rats' latest video is just as exciting and controversial as their others. Well, nearly . . .

"I wanted a visual that fitted in with the idea of people being dragged down," says Bob. "I guess seeing all the trouble on TV gave me the idea of using miners."

"We asked the National Coal Board if we could use a mine, but they said no. So then we asked the NUM. They told us if we crossed a picket line we'd be blacklisted from TV and radio for making a political statement!" he snorts.

"So we just went and did it at Chislehurst Caves. Just to make sure no one thought we were miners we put up a sign:

QUARRY. In the end it worked fantastically."

MOVIE-MAN

Bob has taken his video exploits a step further by appearing in two proper movies. First came The Wall, based on the Pink Floyd album. His latest is No. 1, in which he plays an Irish Jack-the-lad who's a brilliant snooker player.

"He's in debt, this lad," says Bob, "and he's in trouble with the police. But he's such a charmer that he gets away with all his lies. That's his attraction."

"He falls into the hands of an unscrupulous manager, played by Mel Smith of Not The Nine O'Clock News - who persuades him to lose matches even when he could win them."

"It's a really good yarn, folks."

Bob isn't intending to concentrate on movies fully, though. He still enjoys being in the Rats too much.

"Making a film is just a good break from being in a band," he says. "For once in my life I can sit back and let other people tell me what to do."

"Making a film is like having a holiday - but I'll always go back to working with the band."

SAD SONGS (SAY SO MUCH)

Guess there are times when we all need to share a little pain
 And ironing out the rough spots
 Is the hardest part when memories remain
 And it's times like these when we all need to hear the radio
 'Cos from the lips of some old singer
 We share the troubles we already know

Chorus:
 Turn 'em on turn 'em on
 Turn on those sad spots
 When all hope is gone
 Why don't you tune in and turn them on

They reach into your room
 Just feel their gentle touch
 When all hope is gone
 Sad songs say so much

If someone else is suffering enough oh to write it down
 When every single word makes sense
 Then it's easier to have those songs around
 The kick inside is in the line that finally gets to you
 And it feels so good to hurt so bad
 And suffer just enough to sing the blues

Repeat chorus

Sad songs they say, sad songs they say
 Sad songs they say, sad songs they say so much

Repeat chorus

You do me wrong still I'm crazy about ya,
 Stay away too long and I can't do without ya,
 Ev'ry chance you get you seem to hurt me more and more,
 And each hurt just makes my love stronger than before

I know that flowers grow to rain
 But how can love grow to pain?

Chorus 1
 Ain't that peculiar
 Peculiar attitude
 Ain't that peculiar
 Peculiar attitude

You tell me lies that should be obvious to me
 I'm so much in love I don't want to see
 The things you do and say must be designed to make me blue,
 You know it's a shame my love for you make all your lies seem true

If the truth makes love last longer
 Do lies make my love stronger?

Chorus 2
 Ain't that peculiar
 Peculiar attitude
 Ain't that peculiar

Ev'ry chance you get you seem to hurt me more and more

10 PEARLS OF WISDOM

The Cocteau Twins are suddenly the talk of the town after years in the independent wilderness. There must be good reasons. Paul Bursche gives us ten.

1/They're not twins

There are three twins at the moment, Robin, Liz and Simon.

But even before Simon joined, Robin and Liz were lovers and living together – hardly brother and sister. At the moment the two of them share a flat in London.

"It's a very nice place," says Liz doubtfully, "but our neighbours are always complaining about the noise we make."

"Noise! Us?"

2/They're not hip

The Cocteau Twins come from no famous centre of music, which might have given their career a head start. They don't come from Liverpool or Sheffield or Glasgow but Grangemouth, which is a petro-chemical centre in the centre of Scotland.

"In the early days," says Robin, "both Edinburgh and Glasgow tried to pass us off to each other. The people in Glasgow would slag us off and say that we came from the Edinburgh scene – and vice versa."

3/They're not fashionable

Robin and Liz have shunned image from the very start. In fact they've made a conscious effort not to dress up to look like all the other 'alternative' people. You'll often find them at home in exactly the same clothes as they wear on stage.

"Being fashionable just isn't necessary," says Liz. "Wearing 'nice' clothes isn't going to change the sort of person you are, or the sort of music you make."

4/They don't play by the rules

You won't have seen the Cocteau Twins publicising their 'Pearly-Dewdrops' Drops' hit single on Top Of The Pops for the simple reason that they refused to do the programme.

"It's such a sham," glowers Robin. "All these groups miming and not having to prove that they can actually play. A lot of people think that you can't have a hit without at least one appearance on the programme. You can."

5/They work hard

Instead of selling their souls on the TV screen, the Twins have concentrated on live appearances and recording. And whenever they're not doing either, then you'll probably find them rehearsing!

6/The great escape

In a world full of coal strikes, Olympic boycotts and Nik Kershaw snoods, isn't it wonderful for a group to provide us with a glimpse into another different world?

This strange land has 'Peppermint Pigs' eating from 'Pepper Trees' and then getting 'Sugar Hiccups' – all at Liz's bidding.

7/That voice!

Liz Fraser's singing is one of the most memorable experiences in music.

In years past she was often compared to Siouxsie Sioux but now she's firmly recognised in her own right. Her broad Scottish accent is hard enough to understand at the best of times, but when she's in full flow her words are indecipherable... but that's not the point.

Her voice is used as an instrument, to conjure up image and atmosphere.

8/There's no pretence

All The Cocteau Twins' beliefs and actions are real. It's no ultra-trendy act or game.

They're smart enough to know that they don't want a part of the established game. But they don't make this into a gimmick, as New Order have done – they sincerely believe that it can be done their way.

9/Punk is dead

There's no pogo-ing at The Cocteau Twins' concerts. Instead their fans choose to sway to the beat of Liz's singing. There's never a sign of violence.

The Twins recently played London's Royal Festival Hall and everyone seemed more interested in coffee than lager. Times have changed.

10/And in the end...

Liz and Robin are very private people. Always careful not to give too much away in their interviews, they lead a guarded existence, shying away from the world.

Underneath their careful exterior, though, they enjoy a laugh just like the rest of us. They are not stars. They are human beings.

EDDY GRANT

"If ever there was an original sun-worshipper, it's me," says Eddy Grant, looking fit and considerably less than his 36 years.

He glows with satisfaction as he surveys his colonial-style manor house and the surrounding disused sugar plantation which sits in a remote area of the West Indian island of Barbados.

I cast my mind back three years to the scruffy grey area of North London where Eddy used to live and work, and recall a similar conversation.

"I hate the cold," Eddy said then. "I think my next move just might be to the Caribbean."

A man of his word — if ever there was one.

THE EQUAL

Eddy Grant is a self-made man — if ever there was one.

Born in Guyana, he moved to England when he was nine years old, and was in a successful chart-topping band, The Equals, by the time he was 16.

The Equals had their first British hit 'Baby Come Back' a year later, and went from strength to strength.

With the money he made from the band, he set up a recording studio and his own label Ice Records, with offices in London, Canada and the Caribbean, and for a while even had his own pressing plant.

Total control was the name of the game.

Eddy wrote, sang, played all the instruments and produced his own records.

And it worked. He had a string of successes — 'Living On The Front Line', 'Do You Feel My Love', 'Walking On Sunshine' . . .

Then came the move to the Caribbean.

"It was something I'd always been aiming for," says Eddy. "Something I'd always been saving for. But it was still a very difficult thing to do.

"I thought, well you've spent most of your life in England, in the cold, and I wanted the sun.

"There are some people born in England who are sun people, who spend all their time in Marbella or somewhere, and I thought I could go and live in one of those places. But I can't speak Spanish, and I thought it'd be a lot to ask everyone in the family.

"So I kept on saving so I could move a little further away, and yet still remain independent. And that's exactly what I've done."

THE ROCK

It wasn't only the sun that prompted Eddy to leave England. It was also the dog-eat-dog music business, which rears its ugly head highest in

I DID IT MY WAY

Eddy Grant is an independent pop star, if ever there was one. A self-made man, he has risen from humble beginnings in North London to become an international superstar. Deanne Pearson met Eddy at his mansion in the West Indies.

Britain and America.

Now he is miles from anywhere, sat amidst his 70-acre plantation, rarely even venturing into the tiny local town.

"I can live on a rock, and don't move," says Eddy. "I'm that kind of person, I can eat rice every day and it wouldn't worry me at all."

An independent man — if ever there was one.

Eddy has his own recording studio on the property, where he still writes, plays, sings and records his continuing flow of hit records — 'Electric Avenue', 'War Party', 'I Don't Wanna Dance' and now 'Romancing The Stone' . . .

"I don't need people or happenings around me for inspiration," he says. "I can get that from any surroundings. A man in the middle of the sea will find character and atmosphere in the waves. There's always something."

THE ISLAND

There have been few visitors.

The last 2½ years have been spent setting up home and studio, recording last year's 'Killer On The Rampage' LP and this year's 'Going For Broke' album.

Roxy Music visited briefly, and Eddy did some backing vocals. Recently Musical Youth recorded some tracks with Eddy for possible single release.

"With Musical Youth I've taken one of my biggest chances," Eddy asserts. "It was like a trip backwards for me. Another beginning. I saw a lot of what my group The Equals had when they started.

"For them I've made music unlike anything there's ever been. The nearest thing to the music I've made for them is my music.

"I've shared a part of me with Musical Youth that I wouldn't do for anybody else. Because they're the future. They're the next thing."

There is only one other person Eddy Grant would like to produce.

"I would like to have the last crack, after everybody else has tried, at James Brown.

"But I don't really relish producing people, because it's a thankless job. If you get a hit it's not you that did it, it's them."

Eddy's next assignment will undoubtedly be to tour, although he is adamant that he never tours to promote a record.

"It's like beating the people across the head. I put the product out, then if people like it, I tour.

"When I tour, I will tour everywhere. Because when I leave here I don't leave to go and come, go and come — I get up and say 'Right, I'm going to do everywhere now, and then I'm going to come back home'.

"You, and the public, probably see more of me than my wife and four children (aged 10-15) do, because I'm always in the studio or touring. Always working."

THE MAN

How, then, do his family cope with life on this remote West Indian island?

"They like to be where I like to be," says Eddy confidently.

"It was difficult for the kids at first. They missed football, and their friends, and fish and chips — you know, the little silly things.

"But now they've got to meet friends, and school and everything, you can't even budge them to go for a holiday."

Eddy's children will probably go into the music business, he admits.

"They've started to come into the studio and learn about the desk, and they've got their own tape recorders in their rooms.

"The other day one of them asked me to listen to a tape, and I thought 'Oh no, not at home as well!'

"But their time will come.

"My wife? She is absolutely and only interested in my career.

"You know what they say: behind every great man — not that I'm great, but behind every man who's got any leanings towards greatness — there is a woman. That's a fact.

"And my wife's time will never come."

Admire him then for his work, his music and his dedication, his absolute unswerving faith and confidence in himself.

But perhaps question an arrogant, selfish (he will admit) and sexist man — if ever there was one.

Absolute (Virgin)

Green Gartside has perfectly mastered the art of mid-Atlantic pop. His grasp of the hard New Yawk dance records he loves is absolute, but at the same time he manages to blend their influence with cool English melodies.

The result? An absolutely brilliant record. This man is in severe danger of weaning rockist old freaks like myself into dance music!

Single of the week, month, year etc.

GRANDMASTER & MELLE MEL
White Lines (Don't Do It) (Sugarhill)

A welcome re-release for the essential dance record of last year, and an intriguing social drama to boot.

'White Lines' tells of a young drug addict's decline into oblivion while the drug pushers stand by and get rich.

Strong stuff.

HAIRCUT ONE HUNDRED
Too Up Two Down (Polydor)

Still trailing in the wake of Nick, The Haircuts are in dire need of a hit.

They're in much the same situation as Bruce Foxtan is with Paul Weller. They're absolutely nothing wrong with their records — in fact they're very pleasant. But they're just not interesting enough.

Bruce is lacking in the vitality of Weller, while the Haircuts jollity sounds just a little forced without Nick.

THE S.O.S. BAND
Tell Me If You Still Care (Epic)

The S.O.S. Band are proof that there is such a thing as production line music. A never ending stream of singles — their last one hasn't left the chart yet — has come from these boys over the last few years, each indistinguishable from its cousins. One day the world is going to wake up and find itself covered in S.O.S. Band vinyl but by then it'll be late.

I hardly know how to advise you. If I say buy it, their success will continue. If I say don't buy it they'll release another one next week anyway.

Heeeelp!

MICHAEL JACKSON
Farewell My Summer Love (Motown)

In 1973 Motown moved offices and 40 unreleased Michael Jackson songs were lost. Now they've been found and — surprise surprise — released. This is but the first.

In 1973 Mikey would have been 14 years old but his voice doesn't seem at all different!

As for the song. Well, if it had auditioned to go on 'Thriller' it would have been picked up by the scruff of the neck and tossed out on to the pavement.

JB'S ALLSTARS
Sign On The Dotted Line (RCA)

JB's aren't actually an American baseball team, they're the group who nearly had a monster hit with 'One Minute Every Hour' a short time ago.

Here they team up with a young black soul singer called Dee Sharp and give us one belter of a good song.

Home run definitely!

DIE TOTEN HOSEN
Hip Hop Bommi Bop (EMI)

German funk crew flies off to New York, meets up with young rapper, then come pounding back to Europe to tell us all about it.

Although the beat on this is suspiciously close to 'Wordyappinghood' by the Tom Tom Club, the sheer relentless power involved should see it through.

One to watch.

BIANCA
Where The Beat Meets The Street (EMI)

Whereas Madonna went to New York for her holiday, I think Bianca probably chose Jamaica instead. She must have found this light, calypso-like number lying under a pebble on one of the beaches.

Walk Through The Fire (Virgin)

Three members of the old Genesis perform songs on the Against All Odds soundtrack — cherubic Phil Collins, Mike Rutherford and Peter Gabriel.

The last one — or God as Debbi Voller calls him — is one of the most copied artists in the world. Marillion, Tears For Fears, Nik Kershaw, Howard Jones and a host of others would willingly give a leg to sound just a little like him.

This is a hot and steamy song which is presumably meant to go with some hot and steamy scene from the film involving the luscious Rachel Ward.

Hmm. Wonder if it's on at my local cinema yet?

LOU REED
I Love You, Suzanne (RCA)

Old Rock Stars Part Three. If David Bowie was the Thin White Duke of Rock 'n' Roll then this man is the undisputed King.

In the '60s his Velvet Underground paved the way for punk and the later art school groups with their mixture of startling ideas and mundane musical ability.

But now it's 1984 and Lou Reed sounds tired. I could almost have sworn that this was just another Shakin' Stevens single gone wrong.

Times change.

GLJ are one of a number of bands poised to permanently occupy the Bauhaus slot of the musical spectrum, along with the Danse Society and Sex Gang Children.

They don't sound exactly similar but their sombre mood and dramatic vocals are well in keeping with the former doom merchants.

'Shame' seldom lifts its head from being a monotonous chant. But there's plenty of promise here.

The Blue Hour (IRS)

This is a song that nestles lovingly up behind your ear and just won't go away.

Produced by Anne Dudley of ABC and Art Of Noise fame it's a fabulously dreamy debut from yet another synth duo.

Judging by the mood of the song I'd guess that 'The Blue Hour' is somewhere between last orders and bedtime.

Luv it!

FIVE STAR
Hide And Seek (RCA)

Anna Dudley again, this time with a writing credit, overseeing the fortunes of a quite amazing young chap.

Singer Steadman Pearson is the dead split of Michael Jackson, and he even sounds like him! The vocals on this bouncy little treat are first class.

Five Star look to Jackson, Culture Club and Freez for their musical influences and mix them together in a song that could be a big hit.

THE ROOM
New Dreams For Old (Red Flame)

The Room sound like a cross between two better known Liverpool groups, the Pale Fountains and the Lotus Eaters. You must be familiar with that evocative, wispy, wimpy background combined with the singer giving his gutsy all.

This is as good as anything the other two groups have done and they're meant to be the ones on the big labels.

Open the door for the Room.

RUBBER RODEO
The Hardest Thing (Chomp)

Yuh see, down here on the ol' ranch we're used to havin' cowpoke songs 'n' country 'n' western songs. But I tell ya, we wus real suprised when this group called Rubber Rodeo came along.

They had things called syn-thor-sisers with them, and mighty puzzled folks are calling them thangs like "technobilly" and "cowpunk".

One thing fur sure. That little Trish sure can sing a mean tune.

BARB
Yeah (Magnet)

Barb used to be in the Three Courgettes whose vocal arrangements would put the sorrowful Flying Pickets to shame.

Yeah — it's light and breezy, yeah — it swings nicely and yeah — I think it'll be a hit.

Reviewed by Sunie

THE FLYING PICKETS
Lost Boys (10 Records)

As you might expect, the novelty of hearing pop hits sung acappella wears pretty thin over a whole LP — though the Pickets do dish up a couple of winning moments. There's 'Only You', of course, and a moving rendition of Bruce Springsteen's 'Factory' that allows the song to shine.

As for the rest, the original songs are passable, and the other covers range from quirky to banal. An erratic collection.

THE LOTUS EATERS
No Sense Of Sin (Arista)

These boys breezed in last summer with 'The First Picture Of You' and then blew away. When little more than that to go on, I expected an LP that would make up in melody for what it lacked in muscle.

This is a sore disappointment. The music is clumsy and the lyrics sappy. The Lotus Eaters are nice people with some sound ideals. But (it pains me to say this) their album is a stinker.

VARIOUS ARTISTS
Electro 4 (Street Sounds)

I'm no student of dancefloor history, but my adolescent expeditions to the local clubs had a blissful soundtrack of Tamlia and ska. I remember the quality disco days of 'I love The Nightlife' and all that ilk.

If the painful hardware of 'Electro 4' is anything to go by, then dance music must have hit an all-time low.

This may well be great to break to, but you'd have to be a robot to enjoy listening to this stuff.

VARIOUS ARTISTS
American Heartbeat (Epic)

A compilation of American AOR (adult-oriented rock) — that huge, bland, stadium-filling beast that dominated US music throughout the '70s and early '80s. Styx, Toto, REO Speedwagon and co are all represented here, along with Blue Oyster Cult's 'Don't Fear The Reaper', which is great but hardly fits the mould. The awful Wang Chung are featured too, amusingly enough. And the bland played on . . .

THE WATERBOYS
A Pagan Place (Island)

Guitar rock is obviously well and truly back with us. The Water Boys play an American-derived variety. Initially I was lost in admiration of how well they pull it off — it's not original and it's not my cup of tea. But it's extremely well executed.

OUT OF THE HAT

This week's random reader's chart and winner of a £5 record token.

1. THE REFLEX Duran Duran
2. DANCING GIRLS Nik Kershaw
3. AUTOMATIC Pointer Sisters
4. AIN'T NOBODY Rufus and Chaka
5. EAT IT Weird Al Jankovic

Joanne Lavery, Nuneaton, Warks.
This week's coupon is on page 14.

I've got a few questions concerning your charts. I think they're great, in fact I use them all the time being a deejay on a local radio station.

Now I just want to know, how official are they?

If you pull yourself together and give me a sensible answer you can prove that you're No. 1 for news, songs, video and charts.

The Radio Ga Ga DJ, Aarhus, Denmark.

I've had enough. Your mag is great but it has one fault. The UK singles chart, I'm sorry to say. They're always wrong.

For issue 53 'The Reflex' was put at No. 4 instead of No. 1 and Phil Collins has never been No. 1 yet.

So next time, please get it right.
Joanne Hutchings Langport, Somerset.

The No. 1 chart varies from the national chart produced by Gallup because it's compiled from sales in different record shops.

Although it's not the one used by Top Of The Pops or Radio One, the No. 1 chart is taken from a large number of shops nationwide — and it may well be more accurate.

Many of Gallup's chart return shops are known by record companies, so they're the ones that get all the goodies — singles with T-shirts, free badges, free posters, etc.

This distorts the sales of those singles in those shops and gives them an extra edge in the charts.

The record shops No. 1 takes its charts from don't get that sort of preferential treatment, so each single competes fairly with the next. That's why we think they're more accurate.

Thanks, too, to the NME who do the compiling.

Having just watched the American Music Awards on Channel 4, I feel something ought to be said about Michael Jackson's lack of enthusiasm when he was accepting the awards.

All right, no one expects him to rush on stage and start kissing and hugging his award, but he could have shown some pleasure.

I suppose Michael wouldn't have come to the ceremony if he wasn't going to receive over half the awards.

Any liking I had for Michael Jackson has been somewhat reduced because of this.

POISON ARROW

Don't just bottle up! If you've got a message for your loathed ones, stick it on a piece of paper and send it to Poison Arrow, No. 1, King's Reach Tower, Stamford Street, London SE1 9LS.

Dear Ian McCulloch, we know you suffer from a vastly over-inflated ego.

Saying that the brilliant David Bowie should look up to the Bunnymen was just about forgivable, but calling yourself the son of God . . . you've gone too far this time.

You've alienated all your fans who have the slightest respect for Christian beliefs.

Us included. Lady Stardust And The Thin White Duchess, Cambridge.

Is I.M. truly J.C. or just N.E.R.D.?

A Disillusioned MJ Fan, Belfast.
We all saw the programme too, and we reckon that the little spin Michael gave as he came up to receive one of his awards should have earned him twice the number he did get.

"Ere Michael, you've just won the Irving Bigbum award for the least amount of smiling at an awards ceremony."

I am now totally convinced that Paul 'Poser' Bursche is into The Cure. He is always in there at the Cure interview, every one

Now I present to you the proof that he is either a close friend of Robert Smith or a liar.

In the issue dated April 7, Posing Paul did the writer's chart with 'The Top' by The Cure at No. 1.

Then in the next issue he leaves Robert Smith from an interview to continue mixing the album.

How could he have heard it if it wasn't even finished before being mixed?

Cure Fan, Scotland.

We put this to Paul Smith, er, Bursche, but he was too busy listening to the demos of the next Cure album to answer.

I would like to point out to you that you are wrong. In the Whispers of issue 52 you said that now Nick Rhodes was looking for a flat in New York.

On the Kid Jensen show he said he wasn't doing anything of the sort, he wants to stay in England.

So now you know.

John Taylor's Kissable Lips, Stevenage.

Actually we meant the village of New York, which is situated near Chipping Sodbury. Honest!

What has happened to that group of smooth, smart, cute, cuddly little boys?

I'm talking about Modern Romance.

After seeing them on Cheggers Plays Pop 1 was shocked. Why are they looking like a load of hippies with long hair? Have they fallen out with their hairdresser?

Could they be standing in for Status Quo or Twisted Sister in their spare time?

If they are going to change their image, I think the public need to know — after all, we're the ones who'll need to go out and stuff cotton wool over our eyes.

Marilyn's Black Eye, Salisbury.
We went out and consulted the very best of our legion of fashion experts and they tell us that long hair is very hip and in this year. So the Roamers are halfway there. All they need to do now is put on their Day-Glo clothes and they'll be away.

I am complaining about Duranie 29524 who obviously doesn't know that Simon Le Bon is 6' 2". If she thought about it, she would have known that it is nearly impossible for a man with his build to be 11 1/2 stone.

Another thing, thanks for having The Nose Poll. I haven't had such a good laugh since I first laid eyes on Gary Crowley.

The Hungary Wolf, Grimsby.
Hmmmmmm. Phil McNeill stands nearly 12ft tall with his socks on but he claims to weigh a mere nine stone.

Of course, we believe him — he pays our wages!

Dear Morrissey, after reading No. 1 recently I felt I just had to write and tell you that you are my favourite sex symbol.

I would be grateful if you could tell me if I am the first to say this and if so, I can't understand why.

Maybe it's because you constantly put yourself down by saying things like "I am ugly".

Well, for your information you're not. In fact you are the most charming, witty, gentle, unique, eloquent and not forgetting beautiful man I've ever seen and it's terrible for me to see a work of art like yourself being ridiculed, especially by yourself.

Morrissey's Quiff, Dublin.
We at No. 1 are really very proud of the number of letters we get in from pop stars' mums. Long may it continue.

In reply to Miss A. Evans' Poison Arrow in your birthday edition, I disagree entirely with her suggestion that Boy George is jealous of people like Marilyn and Pete Burns.

Why should he be? He's got more talent and personality in his little finger than the two of them put together.

As for the comments about bodies, I find naked chests and tight jeans that leave nothing to the imagination are very dull indeed.

In my view Boy George with all his layers of clothes on is much sexier by far.

It's like David Attenborough being confronted by the Amazon jungle—it makes one want to go in and explore!

I would walk all the way to London for a chance to meet Boy George and Culture Club and see one of their concerts, and I'm no star-struck teenager. In fact I was 35 last birthday.

I think the records they've made and the awards they've won proves who comes out on top in the end. Christine Harrison, Widnes, Cheshire.

When David Attenborough went to the Amazon rain forests he took with him a seven-man camera crew and two native guides. Now unless George went round wearing a Portakabin we don't think they'd fit in his layers of clothing. At least, not the two native guides anyway.

George and comedienne Joan Rivers—the only time in her career she felt underdressed.

Boy George was talking rubbish in the interview when he commented on Frankie Goes To Hollywood.

FGTH never said that they were aiming to disgust people. They said that nothing was disgusting as long as it didn't hurt anyone—I've heard Claire Rayner say the same.

Frankie dealt with pleasure and freedom and fun and made no comment against love. In fact Holly

Johnson said that love is the strongest magic of all—words every bit as relevant as 'Karma Chameleon' or even the very wonderful 'Time'.

I've nothing against Culture Club, but their music and Frankie's have such different messages that one is no more relevant than the other. Ziggy Angeldust, Birkenhead.

£5 record token winner.
