A YEAR OF HARD ISSUES AND HARD CHOICES

BY SEAN ROSS

It's Sept. 10, and Americans wake up to the news that nearly 20 men have been arrested for their part in a bizarre conspiracy. As the too-fantastic-to-be-believed story unfolds, Americans hear about plans for hijacked planes and the destruction of the Pentagon and the World Trade Center. They're stunned, but once again safe in the knowledge that it can't happen here.

Would that it had really played out that way. But even if there had not been any Sept. 11 terrorism, those in the music and radio businesses would now be trying to regroup from the most difficult year since the early '90s. The music industry—which hit record levels the year before despite the proliferation of file trading—suddenly found itself laying off staffers as the consumer press noted that only one album had sold more than 1 million units in its first week this year.

On the radio side, advertising revenue—boosted by last year's dotcom boom—dropped for the first time in years. By summer's end, the Radio Advertising Bureau was trying to find good news in that the year-to-year decline was continuing, but at a slower pace. It was inevitable that this slowdown would cause layoffs as well. Even during the good times of a year previous, consolidation was continuing to claim jobs as owners tried to impress the financial community. So it was inevitable that after Sept. 11, the cutbacks would continue, and this time they would hit bone.

The first nine months of the year were already characterized by a particular harshness throughout our industries. Even if 10 albums had debuted with sales of more than 1 million units, most industryites agreed that the "cost of doing business" was already jacked up to unprecedented levels. That story garnered more attention in the consumer press than ever this year, with further allegations of "pay-for-play" and more details of radio's promotional consideration deals with independent promoters floating to the surface. But there wasn't any immediate response from the FCC, which continued to view pay-for-play not as payola but as a sponsor-identification issue.

Radio stations went through more individual scandals during 2001, often without consequence. The most bizarre—a morning host's decision to slaughter a live boar in the station's parking lot—resulted in negative publicity and one down ratings book for his station, followed by a rebound to the station's previous levels. The decision to announce that Britney Spears had been killed in a plane crash—which wasn't even a new stunt—got one Dallas team fired; they were hired in another top 10 market shortly thereafter. Even the Greaseman—who inspired an entire generation of morning guys to brazen it out, before proving that you couldn't do that indefinitely a few years ago—found his way back on the airwaves without too much controversy.

If it hadn't been for Sept. 11, 2001 would have been remembered as the year that even country label executives (who used to close ranks against any criticism of the format) decided they didn't like the current music very much. The year that a station (allegedly) ordered staffers to work at a concert and pay for their own tickets. The year that wacky stunt guys showed up at listeners' houses claiming to be escaped criminals or pet molesters. The year that a DJ made fun of Aaliyah's death, then diverted attention from that controversy by deriding Jews instead.

THE WORST BRINGS OUT THE BEST

Indeed, after all that had happened in the first nine months of 2001, you might have thought that radio had physically lost the ability to be its better self. Yet, somehow, it regained that Sept. 11. Radio once again found itself in the business of conveying information to the public. Listeners once again found themselves with an emotional connection to radio—something that seemed to have been lost in recent years. And at a time when most of us felt helpless, radio became the place where listeners could help those affected by the tragedies, by raising millions of dollars.

Even as it contributes to relief efforts, radio itself is still reeling. Major groups are announcing almost weekly cutbacks at all levels, with PDs suddenly finding themselves in charge of even more stations. Even Infinity's John Gehron, the well-respected programming executive who had spent much of the past four years trying to get broadcasters to see the good side of consolidation, is among the layoffs. Even those who survived the recession of the late '80s/early '90s say this is worse. And after showing just how potent a healing force it could be after Sept. 11, there are signs of the old aggression creeping back in, as the human flags give way to the Osama Piñatas then to the wacky stunt guy dressing up as an Arab and trying to buy hunting gear.

Radio finds itself at a programming crossroads as well. Internet radio imploded in 2001, finally bearing out PDs' predictions that it would go the way of cable radio, but even as other competitors folded, AOL Radio debuted, with a much higher built-in cume than any of its predecessors. Satellite radio became a reality as well, after years of delays, and immediately set about trying to take advantage of radio spotloads that had been alleviated only slightly by the recession.

But the year also saw traditional radio step up with programming innovations of its own. "Alternative country" finally found a group-owned champion in KIKK Houston. WBHH Norfolk, Va., finally decided to represent hip-hop (without worrying about R&B). And while some PDs worried about an overload of extremes, top 40 became more musically aggressive and current-based than it had in a decade. The year also saw Bonneville's WWZZ (Z104) Washington, D.C., become the first major station in years to adopt an "only six units" spotload policy.

WHEREVER YOU WILL GO

2001 was a year of hard issues and hard choices for radio and the music industries, and Airplay Monitor remained the only trade committed to tackling those hard issues with them. Monitor was where PDs were able to air their thoughts on what satellite radio sounded like now that it had really arrived, on Z104's controversial decision to sell the naming rights for its morning show, on whether "adds" still mattered, and how promotional support was being affected by the industry's fiscal crisis. We were the trade that asked female and gay PDs how they felt about Eminem during the Grammy controversy and aired the controversial views of some programmers that the FCC's decision to crack down on indecency was a positive. And even when our part of Manhattan was blockaded, Monitor staffers were busy putting together our extensive coverage of radio's response to the Sept. 11 tragedies.

In this special year-end edition, we'll recap some of radio's best efforts in the wake of Sept. 11 and look at how the crisis continues to affect it. We've also given PDs their chance to speak out in our annual programmers poll; recapped the top songs, artists, and labels of the year; and given the labels that managed to dominate the charts—despite the climate—a chance to talk about how they did it.

A BOLD NEW LOOK. NOW, A BOLD NEW INITIATIVE?

Monitor also unveiled a bold new look in 2001. (So did the author. It wasn't really my intention at the time, but I now tell people that I decided earlier this year to not shave or get a haircut until the music business came out of its recession.)

Sept. 11 did much to reinforce the things that really matter for most of us and to show us how contentious the industry had become over little things. Throughout 2002, it's everyone's job to ensure that the revelations of 2001 really do lead to a new way of doing business. In the toughest times that anyone can recall, that is what's demanded. The entire Monitor staff thanks you for your support during these tough times and looks forward to helping facilitate and reflect change in the year ahead.

DECLINING TSL TOP WORRY, BUT BUDGET CUTS RIGHT BEHIND

BY MARC SCHIFFMAN

For the second straight year, declining time spent listening (TSL) is the biggest concern facing programmers, according to Airplay Monitor's 2001 PD survey. More than 100 PDs, representing the various formats our four magazines cover, rated more than a dozen issues facing radio on a scale of one to five, with five being the most worrisome. Last year, TSL—which tied with the effects of increased spotload atop our PD Worry Watch—got a rating of 3.88, down from 3.95 in 1999. This year, it's a 4.12, with most respondents rating the issue a five.

Spotload was No. 1 in 1999 with a 4.0; it's down to No. 3 this year (with a 3.92), replaced by the problem of cuts in a station's marketing and promotions budget, which earned a 3.99 and second place, up from a fourth-place rating of 3.6 last year. Both spotload and budget issues were rated a five by most respondents. When asked the open-ended question, "What's the single biggest problem at your station?" Most programmers said, unaided, that it was the lack of a marketing budget.

Rounding out the top five concerns were the state of the economy at No. 4, with a 3.66 rating, and general budget cuts, at No. 5 with a rating of 3.55. Asked later whether the economy had negatively affected their station, 84% of PDs said it had. That dismal news was further reflected in response to the "single-biggest problem" question, where the economy was the second most-cited answer. Asked to project when the economy might recover, most PDs weren't expecting any relief until the second quarter of next year.

Two of 2001's top-five concerns—finding qualified air talent and time management—landed at sixth and seventh place, respectively. The talent puddle had topped the list in 1998.

Despite their concerns about declining TSL, the effect of alternate media came in at the bottom of our PDs' worries. The spectre of listeners giving their radio time to, say, the Xbox or the Internet, came in at a 2.6, while satellite radio—despite its debut this year—came in at a 2.5. As KQKS Denver PD Cat Collins says, "They will not lose interest if we do our damn job."

That said, the fear that the next generation of potential listeners might not be interested in radio came in at a 3.36. Adult top 40 KSTZ Des Moines, Iowa, PD Jim Schaefer says, "We need to keep our industry product focused or risk the same fate from satellite radio that network TV experienced at the hands of cable." Voice-tracking and increased spotloads "open a door for new competition that should not ever have been allowed to open."

The increased use of voice-tracking and a fear of being laid off were in the middle of the pack with ratings of 3.32 and 2.88, respectively. Still, 57% of those polled agreed with the statement, "Voice-tracking is ruining the talent pool." Rhythmic top 40 KQCH Omaha, Neb., PD Erik Johnson disagrees. "Voice-tracking makes it tough to get a job," he says. "[But] it does increase the [caliber of] talent in the market."

Since Clear Channel is known for its use of voice-tracking, we broke out Clear Channel PDs separately. Sixty-seven percent of non-Clear Channel PDs agreed with that statement vs. 42% of Clear Channel programmers.

RADIO GOES TO WAR

Monitor asked PDs to assess how radio responded to Sept. 11 and how prepared the medium is for further breaking news in our new world. Not surprisingly, these two questions got the most positive responses. On a scale of one to five, with five being the best, programmers gave themselves a 4.33 when it came to radio's reaction to the tragedies. More than 50% of those surveyed rated radio at a 5.0. They were only slightly less positive about how radio would meet the challenge of future breaking news, giving those prospects a 4.21 rating. As for the potential effect of life during wartime on the business, PDs rated it a 3.09.

AC WSNY Columbus, Ohio, PD Chuck Knight says radio did falter in one place. "I had to laugh at the quotes from some PDs describing the challenges of keeping their voice-tracks updated by their out-of-market talent the morning of Sept. 11. And that's serving the local community?"

HOW WAS YOUR YEAR IN MUSIC?

We asked programmers to evaluate their formats in three key areas: the overall state of their format, the quality of available music, and the relationship between records and radio in their format. R&B formats were the most positive for those three categories, while rock was the least positive in two out of three cases.

R&B PDs rated their format a 3.71 on a scale of one to five, with five being the best. AC/adult top 40 followed with a 3.65, with top 40 at a 3.63. Country and rock brought up the rear with a 3.45 and 3.28, respectively.

On the music front, R&B radio rated its music a 4.14, the only four-plus rating. Top 40 followed with a 3.6 and country with a 3.45. This time, AC dipped below rock's 3.39 rating for its music and earned the role of least-pleased with its available tunes. AC gave its available tunes a 3.1. Maybe that explains the willingness of more than one-third of the panel to break format for Christmas music.

BUILDING A BETTER RELATIONSHIP

Monitor also asked the age-old question, "How are the two sides of the business getting along?" Not one format was particularly happy with its relationship with the promo side, but R&B again led the pack, giving the relationship a three-plus rating at 3.14. Country just tipped the scale into positive territory with a 3.03. Rock again was at the bottom, rating it a 2.89. Top 40 and AC were just shy of the mid-point, offering 2.97 and 2.95 ratings, respectively.

So what would make the labels/radio relationship better? What radio wanted most from record companies is a better understanding of the station to which they are promoting.

Honesty followed, with AC WKTI Milwaukee PD Bob Walker asking, "How many times have I been told [by a label rep] that this other PD added it right away and loves it, only to speak to the PD and hear, 'Yeah, we buried that piece of crap in overnights?' Reminds me of the car salesman who [says he] has somebody else 'really interested' in this beautiful 1973 Maverick, so I'd better act fast."

PDs also want better music and a longer commitment to the music that is released. Country WWGR Fort Myers, Fla., PD Mark

PROJECTED ECONOMIC RECOVERY

Phillips wants to see new artists with more than one hit off a release and labels to "quit working so many records . . . A lot of labels seem to be in the 'spray and pray' mentality—spray a bunch of singles out there and pray some of them work."

Top 40 WKZL Winston-Salem, N.C., PD Jeff McHugh says, "Labels are not as hungry as they used to be. It's frustrating to see labels throw up their hands and give up on worthwhile projects when they have a difficult time getting radio support . . . There are [now] so many avenues to expose product, from the Internet to XM . . . that many projects could already be selling by the time it's worked at radio. [For example], I applaud Elektra's marketing of Natalie Merchant's new CD through nontraditional means."

McHugh also wants labels to "stop spending ignorant amounts of money advertising in those Best Buy, Target, and Wal-Mart newspaper circulars. It's an unrefutable fact that 12- to 24-year-old music buyers don't read the damn newspaper."

A modern PD adds, "Give me your bands for my festival and realize that my radio station sells your records and keeps you employed . . . Only MTV can lay claim to anything more from a retail standpoint." And another anonymous adult top 40 PD—echoing a suggestion made several times by the Airplay Leaders that Monitor saluted in October—suggested that labels create a panel of PDs to give input on the artist-development process.

This was the year that the "cost of doing business" between records and radio came to the fore in the media, and it was also a hot topic for a number of programmers, including the adult top 40 PD who bemoaned the increased "pressure for programming to make money through music adds, which is very sad and doesn't benefit anyone."

Similarly, just slightly more than 50% of our PDs said that the availability of a concert act or a flyaway or other promotion provided by a label figured into a music decision at their station this year. That was, incidentally, more likely to be the case with non-Clear Channel programmers (57%) than with their Clear Channel counterparts (42%). One Clear Channel PD said that a promotional commitment might have tipped his hand toward a song in the past but went on to say, "I suspect this will be the last year that will happen."

The majority of both Clear Channel and non-Clear Channel PDs believe, though, that pay-for-play will remain an issue in 2002.

LIFE DURING CONSOLIDATION

As the realities of consolidation sink in, those who remain in radio are resigned to doing more than they used to, though many think they're adequately compensated for that work, and fewer people are considering leaving the business altogether, compared with previous years.

Still, 75% of those polled think consolidation is bad for radio. As top 40 KRQQ/KOHT Tucson, Ariz., PD Mark Medina says, "Last year, we were all waiting to see what consolidation

SEPT. 11: A DAY THAT CHANGED BOTH PROGRAMMING AND PROGRAMMERS

BY ANGELA KING

In the wake of the Sept. 11 terrorist attacks, programmers rethought many things: whether certain songs were still appropriate, whether their music stations needed more news and information, and how best to meet their community's needs. But the attacks also brought deeper changes in the way PDs conducted their business, making them more aware of life's "big picture" issues.

Modern AC WTMX Chicago station manager Barry James says, "We must compete. We will win. But on a day-to-day basis, we all realize there's far more to life than radio or any other career. Hopefully, I've instilled this mind-set into the entire staff."

Top 40 WBTI Port Huron, Mich., PD Jerry Noble agrees that the events of Sept. 11 have forced him to "strip away the trivial. It's awfully hard to get worked up over [such issues as] the salesperson [being] late for their remote these days."

And modern rock KFTE Lafayette, La., PD Rob Summers says that Sept. 11 "has made me think seriously about the future and whether radio is what I want to do forever. I mean, really, doesn't it just all seem dumb?"

Country WOVK Wheeling, W.Va., PD Jimmy Elliott agrees. "With the unreasonable workload and horrendous hours we all put in now, I'm still less dominated by my work [than] I was pre-Sept. 11. It's sad that it takes something like that to make us all stop and think, 'These are just jobs, and there are way more important things in our lives.'"

That includes improving relationships with staff, as well. Adult R&B WBAV Charlotte, N.C., PD Terry Avery is "more sensitive to my staff's family issues and concerns." Country WSTH-FM Columbus, Ga., PD Dave Anderson agrees. "I am more concerned with [staffers] as individuals, as friends, and as part of my extended family," he says. "I want them to know that I am concerned about what's going on in their lives outside the studio, and they can talk to me about anything."

NEWS MAKES A COMEBACK

Radio also emerged from the Sept. 11 horrors as a place where listeners felt they could talk about anything. A bond that had previously seemed frayed by high spotloads and proliferating entertainment choices was reinforced. And, as one regional OM notes, the attacks "made radio realize we are information sources [and] not just entertainment." Many stations that had strayed from news programming, or had abandoned it altogether, were suddenly running hourly news again, even if it came from a N/T sister.

Rhythmic top 40 KCJZ San Antonio PD Doug Bennett says, "It has forced us to redefine what the audience expects from a fun, upbeat music station. It's more important than ever to balance the music presentation with the information and community support listeners expect."

With the war on terrorism billed from the start as a "long-term effort," many stations now have long-term emergency plans in place, including helping air talent transition from entertaining to informing. R&B WFXC/WQOK Raleigh, N.C., OM Cy Young says, "We [are] extra-diligent about any and all information we report. We are definitely more news-savvy than we were in the past."

Programmers had differing views on how their staffers should handle news. WDRQ Detroit PD Alex Tear says, "We didn't try to pretend [that] we were the news station—we shared that very openly with our audience. We were watching things happen in real time and passing that along. I heard some of our competitors' jocks trying to be CNN news anchors, and they're not" (Top 40 Airplay Monitor, Sept. 28).

Country WNKT Charleston, N.C., PD Loyd Ford says, "We ran an hourlong special [called] Anthrax: Are You at Risk? I never thought that or other news programming would be a part of my fall programming. Things can change in an instant."

FROM THE TRENCHES

While few would now disagree with Ford's assessment, some industryites got a firsthand look at the devastation of Sept. 11. Pat McCrummen, publisher of the M Street Journal, volunteers for the American Red Cross and shared his experiences from ground zero (Top 40 Airplay Monitor, Nov. 2). On his first trip to the World Trade Center, McCrummen had just reached the disaster site when "all the workers stopped and stood at attention as an entourage of four motorcycle cops followed by an NYPD van [went by]... with police officers that lost their lives. Everyone stopped and saluted. That's when it hit home for me that this is real."

WPLJ New York PD/morning man Scott Shannon says being on the air when the attacks were taking place was a life-altering event (Top 40 Airplay Monitor, Sept. 28). "We spoke to people who were in the building and never made it out. We spoke to people whose husbands were missing and were never found. We spoke to daughters whose fathers were in the building. We talked to a man who dropped off his wife at work every day at the World Trade Center, and we cried with him

FALL PLANS RECAST FOR RELIEF EFFORTS

Just days before the planned kickoff of their fall promotions, stations quickly segued their attention to relief efforts and public vigils following the Sept. 11 attacks.

Many concerts that were planned before the attacks moved forward as benefits for the American Red Cross. Active rock WZTA (94.9 Zeta) Miami held its Halloweenie Roast Oct. 26 to benefit the Clear Channel Relief Fund.

Adult top 40 WBMX (Mix 98.5) Boston canceled its Mixfest and instead featured various artists during a radiothon instead. The station auctioned tickets for listeners to be a part of the studio audience, and the money raised went to the Red Cross.

Clear Channel/Washington, D.C.'s eight-station cluster hosted a Unity Walk near the Pentagon to raise funds for relief efforts. Walkers gave donations.

When stations did decide it was time to resume contesting, many tried to include a charity component. Top 40 KUDD Salt Lake City went forward with its fall-book Beat the Buzzer promotion but matched half of a winner's money and put that sum toward disaster relief. Similarly, those top 40 WAPE Jacksonville, Fla., listeners who heard the station's liberty bell ring won cash prizes to help kick-start the local economy. A charity contribution accompanied listeners' winnings.

Other stations tried to provide outlets for grief and anger. KUBE Seattle held a United We Sing songwriting contest for area high-school students. The student who composed the best song reflecting how he or she was affected by Sept. 11 had his or her song recorded and played on the station.

Top 40 KIIS-FM Los Angeles, the first of numerous stations that offered listeners a chance to take out their aggressions, gave its audience the opportunity to take a whack at an Osama Piñata. KIIS-FM also offered the effigies for purchase through its Web site.

as he described how much he loved her."

Adult R&B KSSM Killeen, Texas, PD Marc Raymond says his station caters to "the largest military institution in the free world" (R&B Airplay Monitor, Nov. 9). "Everything in this city, in some fashion, is associated with [Fort Hood]. So we are touched every day by what is going on overseas. For example, many of my neighbors are in the service. I can see my next-door neighbor this morning, talk to him as I leave for work, and think, 'He could be gone tomorrow,' he says. "We are faced with the reality of war every day. It forces you to treat people differently."

Country WCMS/WGH-FM Norfolk, Va., PD Randy Brooks sees the same thing in his military market (Country Airplay Monitor, Oct. 5). "It's difficult to be upbeat on the air [right now]. We're trying to hit the right tone—'We salute you, support you. We're not happy and fun right now, but we're saying we [have] pride in America and the job you are going to do for us.'"

IN SEARCH OF NORMALCY

For many PDs, finding the right tone, whether in music or promotions, has been an issue. With most stations suspending their contesting and turning their attention to charity events for several weeks, PDs were eventually faced with the question of re-entry.

Modern rock WMRQ Hartford, Conn., PD Todd Thomas says, "We are a fun, attitude-driven station. It took us a while to feel that we should have fun and an attitude. We still are careful how we word things as far as promotions. [For] example, we were going to do something with an air-raid sound effect, [but] we reconsidered. We also have shied away from trip giveaways for the time being."

Many outlets immediately adopted inspirational and patriotic themes, but some PDs were careful not to go too far. For WHRI Albany, N.Y., PD Susan Groves, "It goes back to not wanting to be viewed as trying to profit from any sympathy or wave of patriotism," she says. "That's something our listeners would call bullshit on right away. People don't want to hear that. They're turning on the radio and listening to music as an escape" (Rock Airplay Monitor, Oct. 12).

But modern rock WMFS Memphis PD Rob Cressman did choose to reflect the public's patriotic fervor (Rock Airplay Monitor, Oct. 12). "We're not soapboxing, but we're not ignoring it either," he says. "Some of our recorded IDs reflect the patriotic environment that the nation is enveloped in."

Programmers had similar issues with music, as songs that were written about the mosh pit (Drowning Pool's "Bodies"), the breakup of a relationship (Marc Anthony's "Tragedy"), or traveling rock stars (Steve Miller Band's "Jet Airliner") all took on unintended irony. While several songs, most notably "Bodies" and Afro-man's "Because I Got High," lost their chart momentum with the events of Sept. 11, other songs—some written long earlier—became anthems. Among them Enrique Iglesias' "Hero," Enya's "Only Time," Five for Fighting's "Superman (It's Not Easy)," and Lee Greenwood's "God Bless the USA."

It's also notable that stations' music research showed that many songs PDs had thought might no longer appeal to listeners—particularly those with a party theme—did hang in through the period of national mourning, reinforcing PDs' beliefs that listeners wanted normalcy.

Now, many PDs say, Sept. 11 is having little ongoing effect on their music. Country radio, however, has taken on a decidedly patriotic tone, with new titles that reflect the tragedy from Alan Jackson ("Where Were You [When the World Stopped Turning]?"), Aaron Tippin ("Where the Stars and Stripes and Eagle Fly"), and the Charlie Daniels Band, whose controversial "This Ain't No Rag, It's a Flag" means that not all debates about lyrical appropriateness have ended.

Traditionally ballad-heavy country outlets also became more upbeat musically after the attacks (Country Airplay Monitor, Nov. 9). WQMX Akron, Ohio, PD Kevin Mason says, "We need to be up, bright, happy, and fun, because that's what people want right now. As we all try to recover from the tragedy, we're looking for ways to help people escape. We're very conscious of it. And I'm back with normal contesting. My cash cow is mooing five times a day."

KRQQ Tucson, Ariz., organized 6,000 listeners into the shape of a 300-foot-by-160-foot flag—one of many such events that radio stations hosted around the country in the wake of Sept. 11.

ARISTA'S BOBBY KRAIG REFLECTS ON LABEL'S SUCCESS IN 2001

BY PHYLLIS STARK

The Arista Nashville team is celebrating its victory as label of year, having taken the top spot from MCA Nashville after a decade-long run. Airplay Monitor recently chatted with Arista VP of promotion Bobby Kraig about his team, his star artist roster, and the other factors that made his label a winner this year.

How did you manage to knock MCA out of No. 1 after 10 years?

I've got a great roster that I can credit for that and a great promotion team. We dug in on everything we had. It just feels good when everything is hitting on all cylinders. My entire roster turned loose some great projects this year, but I have to give credit to my staff.

What are some of the other contributing factors that led to the label's success this year?

Certainly the planning that goes into each project here at RLG [RCA Label Group] made a big difference. You learn to strategize about squeezing every spin you can out of something. It has always been important, but certainly when you have an industry where sales are off, it's increasingly important.

What attributes does your staff have that make the label stand out from your competitors?

I've been involved in managing staffs for almost 25 years now, and I have had the opportunity to work with some incredibly talented people both on the radio side and the record side, but I can tell you that I've never worked with a staff that gets along so well. The teamwork here and the sharing of ideas—nobody's shy about saying what's on their mind. It's not about grabbing credit—it's about what can we do for the success of our artists and our label.

What was the biggest surprise hit of the year for you?

I've had so many great things happen this year. Certainly the one that came out of nowhere was Alan [Jackson's] "Where Were You (When the World Stopped Turning)." In terms of surprise, I'd have to say that one. We had little warning. I did get a chance to hear it with [RLG executives] Joe [Galante] and Butch [Waugh] in the studio just before the Country Music Assn. Awards. I knew that [Jackson] had written something very special. It took me an hour to get over what I had heard.

Certainly the resurgence of Brooks & Dunn and [their] "Ain't Nothing 'Bout You" [also fall in that category]. The first time I heard it, did I say, "This is going to be a six-week No. 1"? I certainly didn't, but I knew it was a hit record. The staff was so excited about it. It's a fun time to be in the record business when that happens. We felt really good about the projects we took out this year.

We had a lot of good feelings throughout the year, [including] Carolyn Dawn Johnson having her first top five hit, [and] Diamond Rio having the biggest record of [its] career. How great is that? Also the continued success at radio of Brad Paisley and Phil Vassar.

Any disappointments this year?

I was disappointed that we couldn't somehow deliver a big hit on Pam Tillis. [Tillis amicably parted ways with the label earlier this year.]

What would you say has been your proudest moment of 2001?

It's hard to isolate one. The resurgence of Brooks & Dunn is one proud moment. But I guess I would have to go back to the CMA Awards and watching Alan Jackson sing that song. Not only was I very proud of him, but to know that you are, in some small way, associated with it—Wow!

What do you see as the state of the format right now and its primary challenges?

New acts are our lifeblood. You've got to be able to develop new acts. There is nothing new about that. [Also] getting sales back to a level where they were—getting them back [to at least where] they show an increase every year is key.

Someone recently commented that with radio's changes forcing music decisions to be consolidated higher up the food chain, record promotion may change in the coming year with less reliance on field staffs and more reliance in nationals with key radio contacts. Do you see that happening?

I don't know if it's going to happen in the next year. I hope it doesn't come to that. Having the relationships inside various radio stations is very important. . . . I would hope there would be some reliance for some time to come on that.

How do you see satellite broadcasters XM and Sirius affecting your job, and radio in general, in the coming year?

I don't know how big of an impact they will have over the coming year. It's something radio has to keep an eye on. We want all the avenues we can find to get our music exposed. [But] it's going to be possibly a slower growth than some might have expected when the buzz started.

With Sept. 11 behind us and the country seemingly in a recession, do you think people will no longer be spending on entertainment the way they have in the past?

People will still spend on entertainment. What they spend it on could be different. My hope is music is something they will continue to spend on. It's one of those things that can offer some healing. Music can do that for people.

Are there any other Sept. 11-related changes you're seeing in the industry?

[In business], the mission hasn't changed. Personally, I think you tend to think about people in a different way. In that sense, I don't know if it will be business as usual. We tended to take things for granted, and [we] don't anymore. I was always an easygoing guy, but since Sept. 11, I can't remember the last time I really got mad. It just seems so inappropriate to me. It doesn't mean you don't do your job, but I tend to approach things a little differently.

What new projects do you have coming in 2002?

Brett James [a new addition to the Arista Nashville roster] has a single coming in February, "Chasing Amy." We're very excited about that. Alan Jackson's album will be out in January. A new Phil Vassar, hopefully with a single toward the end of April. New Diamond Rio at some point. We [also] have a new artist, Kristy Lee. That will probably come in the summer.

THANKS

FOR AN INCREDIBLE

We just wrapped up my first headline tour. It required the help of so many people to make each show happen. I am truly grateful to all of them. As I look back and see all the shows we did, all the memories we made and all the love we shared, I couldn't let this year come to an end without saying thank you.

THANK YOU To my friends at RADIO. Your support made each show possible.

TO THE FANS There are no words that even come close to how magical you made this past year for me, my band and crew. Your support, enthusiasm, excitement, energy and love, will be carried in our hearts forever.

TOUR SPONSORS JERZEES and CMT. You made it possible to put together the set, show, crew and carry it across the country

TO MY FAMILY ON THE ROAD. You always gave me your best and that's all anyone could ever want. I love you.

DEF JAM'S SECOND CHART HAT TRICK

BY DANA HALL

For the second consecutive year, Def Jam leads the mainstream R&B, rap, and crossover charts. It was even the No. 5 label at adult R&B. A look at the year's 100 top mainstream R&B hits shows Ja Rule and Jay-Z each with four titles, Ludacris with three, Musiq Soulchild with two, and one apiece from DMX and Case. Johnnie Walker, senior VP of R&B promotion at Def Jam/Def Soul Records, tells Airplay Monitor about her team's hard work and tenacity.

How competitive is it between labels to be No. 1 at the end of the year?

It's extremely competitive. Of course we want to be No. 1. In fact, we go into the game each week with the mind-set of winning. And even though we might not win every week, or we fall short of our goals, the beauty of it all is that other weeks we surpass our goals. I think every label feels that way, whether they admit to it or not. How can you settle for less?

What were some of the unique contributing factors leading to the success of Def Jam/Def Soul in 2001?

One of the things we incorporated early this year was to have a mantra of "one." Meaning that we as an entire company agreed on a common goal. When we're able to break a new artist like Ludacris and sell 2.5 million albums, that's an incredible win for us as a company. But that only happens when the urban, crossover, and pop departments are working in unison. We're in sync, with the same goals. While my staff and the crossover staff will work a single at the same time, we also meet with the pop department to know when they plan to launch the project. In fact, we and the crossover department will have input in making that decision. That way, I know where I need to be and at what point. We're all parallel, keeping each others' objectives in mind.

Last year at this time, Def Jam/Def Soul president Kevin Liles referred to his promotion staff as regional marketing people. How do you describe them?

I feel the same way, but in addition to that, I think each regional is also their market's national. That person is responsible for knowing everything that goes on in their region/market/city, as it pertains to music. They just don't call radio—they talk to retail and video outlets. They hit the clubs. They are even aware of the new, unsigned acts that are making noise in the city. They are our eyes and ears out in the real world.

Also, what makes my staff stand out from other labels' reps is that no matter how grueling or pressure-filled it is, they love it. I ask these guys, "Aren't you taking a vacation?" and they tell me, "I can't take a vacation, we have the new Ludacris single coming." There is a strong sense of commitment. It's like they wear a Def Jam tattoo on their chest.

When we finish our often much-too-long conference call each week, the staff will end up having their own call afterward to continue talking about a game plan and how they can help one another.

Were there any songs or artists that came off this year even bigger than you expected?

"Love" by Musiq Soulchild. It wasn't in the original game plan. We had scheduled "The Girl Next Door" as the follow-up single to "Just Friends (Sunny)," because it fell in line with what was happening at the time in music—it had a similar tempo and feel to "Just Friends," which was a big hit. So the idea was to play off that vibe. But one day, Kevin and I were looking at [Broadcast Data Systems] and saw that WPGC Washington, D.C., was playing "Love" as an album cut and playing it like it was their national anthem. Other stations were spiking it as well, so we flipped the order of the next two singles.

And "Love" blew up. I think it was so popular, in part, because the song addressed so many issues—being in love with a partner, or a situation, or God. It was very powerful and impacted so many lifestyles. I feel very fortunate to have been the team working that record.

What were the biggest challenges you faced this year in working records?

Radio consolidation and having to deal with one person, whether it be a programming VP or director, as opposed to being able to deal more directly with PDs—especially when you've had relationships with some of those PDs for many years. Often, we might have a record that is working well in a market, but because the national programmer isn't ready to do the song yet, it has to wait. That makes it very difficult, especially for us with the rap genre, because we've been trained to try and start certain records regionally. That's how we used to break records. If we knew we couldn't get it on right away in Chicago or Philly, we'd try to break it in the mid-South or the Carolinas and work our way up. But now, that's not always possible.

But I have to say I look at the situation as a reason for me to work harder and smarter. It forces me to re-address how we promote and market records and even set up our records. We can't necessarily just call up a PD and ask him for more spins anymore. It has forced us to figure out ways to do our jobs better.

What issue will affect the industry as a whole the most in the coming year?

The growing acceptance of the independent marketing companies—or, as some people call themselves, independent promotion companies. It seems they are finding ways to position themselves, which appeals to the corporate hierarchy at radio companies, and so we have to deal with it whether we like it or not and learn to work with it and grow from it.

With less day-to-day contact with individual market PDs, some label people say there will be less of a need for a field promotion staff.

I agree and disagree. As the consolidation at radio continues, there may not be a need for as many people in the field, but to some degree, we will always need that human factor when it comes to working music—a person who can talk to the PD face to face. When we start to rely on the FedEx man to get our records at radio, we lose our impact. Just delivering a record to radio isn't delivering a record at radio. It takes a human being to translate that excitement to another human being.

Do you see any musical trend that started in 2001 that you predict will grow in 2002?

Good old-fashioned R&B, which we started to see emerge last year and which really blossomed this year. Labels are putting out girl groups or great singers like Jill Scott. Radio has been starving for really good R&B for years. Fortunately for us, hip-hop and rap has been the leading musical genre the past few years, and I don't think that is going away. I just think we will see more of a melding of the two and a larger spot for more quality R&B that is now breaking out. A good indicator of that was what Erick Sermon did with Marvin Gaye. And with artists like Jill Scott and Musiq Soulchild having so much success in 2001, that opens the doors for others in 2002.

How have the recent economic downturn and the tragedies of Sept. 11 affected you personally and professionally?

Fortunately, despite the hard times right now, Def Jam has been able to flourish. I could give you some methodical, fancy, record company answer, but I'm from the country, and I say it's simply because we are blessed. You look at a project like Jay-Z's, and even with the economy in the shape that it's in and considering the amount of bootleg copies of the album probably out there, we still are doing 400,000 albums a week.

But it's all relative. When I was in radio, MCA could have put out the Coca-Cola song, and radio would have played it. So, in a way, it's just our time. There's a curve that Def Jam happens to be at the top of right now. When I started at Def Jam in 1990, we had acts like Downtown Science, Newkirk, and No Face—and we struggled. Look at where we are now. All power rests in [God]. It's as simple as that, along with some hard work, tenacity, discipline, and a lot of blessings.

FOR EPIC'S RODNEY SHEALEY, 13 WAS THIS YEAR'S LUCKY NUMBER

BY DANA HALL

With 13 charting records on the adult R&B chart for the year 2001, Epic Records was not only the format's top-performing label but also boasted the format's top artist—Jill Scott. While Epic's senior VP of urban promotion Rodney Shealey is proud of his accomplishments at adult R&B, Epic also climbed into the top five labels of the year at mainstream R&B (at No. 4).

This is the first year in your tenure at Epic that the label has been No. 1 in any format. What was your strategy to get there?

The strategy is to chart as many records as we can and then put them in the No. 1 or at least a top five position. For me, the thought is, "How big can we grow our audience on those records? Are we reaching the most listeners possible?" I've been in situations where we've been the No. 2 or No. 3 record on the chart for several weeks, but our audience was matching, if not close to matching, the No. 1 record [due to our song] being in better dayparts or bigger markets. I look at that and say, "Do I beat a dead horse to sustain a lock in that spot, or do I move on to the next record?" I move on. Even when you occasionally have a record that you know is not a No. 1 track, you still want to chart it and move it up as high as you can. We want to give every record the opportunity to perform. So even without trying to be the No. 1 label as a specific goal, you make it there by simply getting your records to chart by getting them the most exposure you can.

In addition to being the No. 1 adult R&B label, you were also the No. 4 label on the mainstream side, up from No. 12 last year. What were some of the songs and artists that helped in Epic's success?

Two songs in particular [at mainstream] that came at the end of the year. The Jennifer Lopez and Ja Rule track, which sat at No. 1 for about six or seven weeks. Then, we swapped that out with Ginuwine's "Differences," so we basically held the No. 1 position on the mainstream chart for over two months. In general, charting records and putting them in the top 10—like Jill Scott's "A Long Walk"—then having them remain on the charts for a long time also helped.

A good example of that was the group 3LW, which began at the end of 2000 and carried over to 2001. We didn't give up on them, so they were on the chart for an enormous length of time. Also, at any given time, we've had at least three records on the charts simultaneously. When Jill Scott was finally moving off, we already had Michael Jackson's "You Rock My World" moving up.

I think that 3LW surprised the industry. They sold a million-and-a-half albums. At first, people would say they are a pop group, but they charted higher on the R&B side than at any other format. The same thing is possible with our new guy group, B2K. There is a huge market out there of young, black teens. They want these types of artists, and we are the first company to really break into and make inroads into that arena.

A lot of people were also surprised about the success of Jennifer Lopez. But PDs had told me, "If you give us a black record, we'll play Jennifer." And that's what happened. Black radio wasn't hating on Jennifer; they just wanted something they could play. It just took people off guard when it went to No. 1 and stayed there for weeks. It even broke records for the most spins in a single week. Then, the fact that Ginuwine's "Differences" was bigger than "So Anxious" was a surprise to a lot of folks. In fact, in general people are in awe at how big black music is today overall. You have Mary J. Blige with a No. 1 record at top 40. That just illustrates the state and the power of black music at this point in time.

Any other factors that earned Epic this title?

My staff. First, when you look at the national staff, you have very distinctive and crucial qualities in each person. With David Lawrence, you have a guy who is on the road constantly, no questions asked. Kathi Moore [handles] everything from maintenance to clean up. She has the kinds of relationships [at radio] where she can get almost any PD on the phone, then talk for an hour, nurturing that relationship. She is the calm to the storm. She brings sensibility to us. When I've said something to piss off a PD, she's the one who comes in and makes it all right. Then there is Shanita Carter, who manages the entire field staff in addition to working her very challenging market—the South.

With the field staff, each rep brings their own degree of professionalism... We have staffers who have never done this before and staffers who are vets. They help each other, learn from one another, and teach each other... [Sometimes] people mistake our passion for anger. It's not anger—it's a desire to win. Losing is not acceptable.

Consolidation has changed radio a great deal in recent years. What issues make your job a little more difficult than in years past?

Radio has been through a lot of changes in a short period of time. There are more corporate issues and exclusivity issues.

The increased use of research is a concern to me... Too often it is used by PDs as a crutch to get out of playing records. I find it very interesting that we are seeing more and more records that test poorly initially then come back strong later, like the Tyrese record. A lot of stations gave up on it, but now the research is coming back really strong on it.

As promotion people, we have to remember that part of our job is working records over a period of time. Too many stations want to jump off records quickly, because they want everything to research like rap records. We have to convince them to believe in an artist, like a Glenn Lewis or Jill Scott, so that new talent can flourish. If we left it up to research alone, those types of artists may not get past the first few weeks. The thing that will sustain us as a label and as a format overall is the ability to identify and define new talent then break it. Not just records—artists.

With consolidation at both radio and labels, are we going to see less reliance on a promotion field staff in the future?

If you take a label without a good field staff—even when you have a strong national staff—you're not going to have the same results in terms of breaking new artists. We need people in the field feeding us information. You can take Colin Powell or any great general and tell them to win a war, but without soldiers they will lose. You need those people in the trenches to fight for every spin.

I am worried though. In the past two years, we've seen the demise of three black-music departments. In the 10-plus years I've been in the business, I don't ever recall a company closing down a top 40 department. Now, if you look at the music on top 40 today, much of it comes from the black-music division. I don't get it.

To me, that says we have to continually break new artists, so that we are still valuable. That's the bottom line. And each new artist that succeeds helps pave the road for the next. Erykah Badu in part made it possible for Jill Scott, and Jill made it possible for Alicia Keys.

What do you think the role of satellite radio will be in breaking new acts?

I don't know. The question for me is, "Why would a consumer pay for radio, which they can get free?" I understand paying for cable because you get nudity and such. But why pay for hearing songs you can hear for free on regular radio? If you want to hear hip-hop in New York, you tune in to [WQHT] Hot 97, and 90% of what you want to hear is on. If you want to hear album cuts, you'll buy the CD.

What one issue will affect the industry—both radio and records—the most in the coming year?

The thing that will affect us the most will be exclusivity deals. It's changing the way we all do business. But I'm concerned that when PDs and record executives are beholden to one individual person or company to make decisions that neither the PD nor the label really wants to participate in, it's not right. To me, the marriage between [PDs and labels] has worked effectively this long, why change it? When you can no longer look at programmers as the gatekeeper—when they have to look at a list and make a decision solely based on what's on that list—it's the music that is going to suffer.

What has changed for you personally and professionally since the Sept. 11 attacks?

Personally, I have always tried to be a positive person and value the things I'm lucky to have—my family, a good job, and a home. So those things haven't changed, except that maybe I feel even more thankful today. Professionally, the biggest change for me is a concern over flying. In this business, we have to travel a lot, and I know a lot of folks who don't want to go near an airport, let alone get on a plane. So we'll see more people doing their job over the phone, at least initially. At the same time, events like this create a greater desire for music from consumers. In times like this, people want to feel better. They want music to take them away from the sadness and their day-to-day concerns. So in some ways, we can say music has helped soothe our country during this time.

UNIVERSAL'S SUCCESS REVOLVES AROUND BIG HITS, SMALL STAFF

BY BRAM TEITELMAN

Universal Records nabs label of the year honors in three categories this year: active, heritage, and mainstream. It's the label's second year topping the mainstream and active categories. The continued success of Godsmack and 3 Doors Down, as well as solid performances from some of the label's newer acts, helped cement Universal's status as a label synonymous with rock radio. The label's recognition is due at least in part, however, to the hard work of senior VP of promotion Steve Leeds and his staff.

What has been your proudest achievement this year?

When your industry peers acknowledge you have achieved the No. 1 position. It's hard to find a pinnacle bigger than that.

What makes Universal stand out from other labels?

Hopefully, it starts with the music. Then—as it always has been and always will be—it's about hit songs that we identify and our staff, which has the tenacity and the perseverance to take the music to its logical end so that the consumer can't escape our exposure, whether it's through radio, video, retail, or live performance. [Leeds interrupts the conversation to answer the phone.] Another label just called to say they'd like to interview one of my employees for a national position. That's the ultimate compliment. I think we've got a phenomenal staff. They work hard, and they're small—we only have 10 people in the field, and in this day and age, that's tough. We do great work, though. I'm blessed. I've got a really good staff.

Any other attributes that led to the latest success this year?

It's great music, great people, a great work ethic, and a desire to win. I hate sounding like it's a locker-room coach talk, but there's no secrets. Everyone knows that great records make great promotion people, and everyone's got the work ethic that they want to win. Doug Morris and Monte [Lipman] give us great tools to work with, and we just go.

Any surprise hits or disappointments this year?

I'm not surprised by anything other than day-to-day life. Waking up every day is a surprise, because you never know what's going to appear on the horizon or be there. I'm disappointed in things I can't change—that there's only 24 hours in a day. The public won't respond to new music 24 hours a day, seven days a week. I'm also disappointed in the state of the world right now. If you want to talk disappointments, I would have to say it has to be with current events. Some of the biggest surprises and disappointments that I never thought I'd see in my lifetime are that some people really don't value or respect life. That kind of overshadows our ability to bring happiness to people by playing good music.

That said, any concerns that relate to station/label relationships?

I hope the radio relationship/concert business scenario works itself out to some sort of positive conclusion so that the artists can still tour and make a living. I also hope that radio promotion people don't become relegated to concert promoters and that radio programmers who got in the business to be radio programmers don't find themselves as concert promoters. I think we can hopefully keep our roles straight.

What are rock radio's primary challenges now?

Current events have provided a huge distraction, so there's a lot of competition from other media, whether it be print or news/talk. I think fragmentation of formats is a real challenge in how to develop a critical mass. Can the economics sustain a channel that only appeals to people who want to hear Lithuanian whaling songs? We have the technology to do it. We can build it through the Internet or satellite or terrestrial, but is the economic wherewithal there to sustain such a format and make it a profitable thing?

So how do you see the XM and Sirius products affecting radio in the next year?

They're not on my radar yet, because they are not signatories yet to the digital licensing that's necessary for them to be properly doing business with the record labels. Having said that, they'll probably get that worked out and will provide another avenue of exposure. Joe Capobianco and Lee Abrams, who are good pals of mine, aren't going to want to hear this, but until they get the business side worked out, I can't answer that [question], because I don't know.

What do you think will be the next big thing that radio will experience?

The next big thing—and I'm stealing this quote from someone else—is and always will be a hit song. I think you'll see comfort music that attracts the introspective side of people with meaningful lyrics. People are looking for comfort zones, and I think people are also in a quandary as to where to find comfort music. Of course, there's also the angry, rebellious side of things. Rock 'n' roll is always about two things: rebellion and sex. Those will always be there, and in times of stress and crisis, those things—at least for the short term—get magnified.

What one issue will affect the industry as a whole the most in the coming year?

It goes back to societal world politics. People are not going to be able to escape the uncomfortable nature of their lives. They'll try to escape and use the media as a short-term escape, but until that changes, that's a real challenge—to hold people's attention span and try to entertain them and provide them with an emotional release, since the world situation is in a state of flux.

Entertainment has always been and will continue to be a great value. In depressed times, people look for escapism, and I still think the price of a CD is a great value for someone, and [it] has a repeatability factor that other mediums perhaps don't offer. So I think the entertainment value of music is always there. Sure, since Sept. 11, people perhaps have less discretionary dollars—they're more cautious with their money, they're concerned. There's a lot of friends of mine in the business who are unemployed. Business is down significantly at retail. But I'm optimistic about the future, because people are going to look for entertainment value and . . . to get away from the weirdness that the world presents right now.

ACTS NEW AND OLD PUT COLUMBIA ATOP TRIPLE-A

BY BRAM TEITELMAN

Columbia's commitment to artist development showed in its triple-A chart success this year. The label's Trina Tombrink has seen the breakout success of newcomer Pete Yorn and a cross-format smash with Train's "Drops of Jupiter." Also garnering critical accolades were new material from John Mellencamp and Bob Dylan, whose Love and Theft has been hailed as his best album in years.

What was your crowning achievement of 2001?

I had many proud moments in 2001. I would say my most proud moment was when Pete Yorn's "Life on a Chain" went No. 1 on the Monitor triple-A chart... because it was one of the most difficult songs I have ever worked. I guess it's true what they say: The hardest songs to get on the radio are the ones that stay on the longest.

Any surprising hits or disappointments?

I can't really say there was a surprise hit that I worked this year. Every song that eventually became a hit was one that I believed in wholeheartedly. The biggest disappointment of the year is that triple-A radio has yet to commit to Bob Dylan's latest record. Of course, there are many stations that have supported Dylan's latest work, especially the noncommercial panel, but the format as a whole has not. Dylan is writing and performing at the top of his game, and it's frustrating to have to argue that point with radio.

How does your staff make Columbia stand out?

Columbia has the best promotion staff in the business. People on our staff possess a unique combination of passion, energy, creativity, and intellect. The willingness to work hard and the desire to succeed is unfailing. We have a balance of talented, excitable rookies and excellent, accomplished promotion veterans.

What factors have contributed to Columbia's triple-A success this year?

Most important is the music. It was a year of amazing records from artists like Train, Pete Yorn, Five for Fighting, John Mellencamp, John Mayer, Cake, and Shawn Colvin, to name a few. Second, radio took a more aggressive stance with hit songs and a renewed interest in developing artists in their respective markets. Last, but certainly not least, was the encouragement and trust of executive senior VP of promotion Charlie Walk. Charlie's ability to empower his staff and create synergy with every aspect of an artist's career gave us all the tools to win.

Do you recall any particularly rewarding radio-station visits by artists?

A memorable artist station visit was Train, taping a World Café session. At the height of their success with "Drops of Jupiter," the band recorded a performance and interview. The World Café staff was ecstatic about having a band of their caliber and recent multi-format success. In addition, it was great for the band to experience noncommercial radio again after many years. It was a pleasant departure for them.

What about the state of the triple-A format?

The state of the format is fairly strong now. [During] the past two years, triple-A has spawned multi-format hits and acquired higher ratings. In my opinion, the format faces many challenges in the coming year. First is the ability to win in the climate of consolidation, convincing major broadcast companies to nurture triple-A stations and have the patience to focus. Also, garnering a marketing and promotion budget.

Then there's continued support of new music and developing artists, which has set most stations apart from their competition. To have the wisdom and courage to play a song over 100-200 times before judging if it's a hit for them. Otherwise, other formats come in and play the same song two to three times more and get "credit" for the hit. The format has a tendency to "lose" bragging rights of big records, i.e., [Five for Fighting's] "Superman" or Coldplay's "Yellow." Apart from a dozen stations or so, there will be a bigger challenge to resist too much music/artist unfamiliarity and on-air clutter.

In order to remain, or become, competitive, many stations will need to focus the music and presentation. Stations in the format have achieved success by establishing exactly who their audience is and remaining true to the lifestyles and interests of that audience.

Are there any trends coming at radio that you can predict?

It's happening right now. The resurgence in popularity of the singer/songwriter and listeners' desire to hear songs with a deeper meaning. As a side thought, satellite radio might create a negative impact on radio in the coming year.

That said, what impact do you think the satellite radio services might have, and how will they affect you?

I think it is too soon to establish an opinion on XM and Sirius products and whether they'll affect my job in the coming year. Columbia has an online/satellite radio person in the promotion department, Brian Cullinan. He will most likely spend the coming year establishing a base for our artists. The satellite products will definitely have an effect on radio. In the short term, there will be a lot of curiosity usage from otherwise loyal radio listeners. If the products become hugely successful, obviously radio will feel a long-term effect from the loss of listeners.

With Sept. 11 behind us and the country in the midst of a recession, do you see people spending less on entertainment?

I believe the country will still spend money on entertainment during the recession. Music has always been a source of pleasure and comfort for humanity. I don't see that changing. It's still comparatively cheaper than many other leisure activities. Sept. 11 fallout that I've seen so far is budget crunching in line with the falling economy. For a while, the record industry will have to spend less to see profits.

the whole process down and thus impedes momentum on a developing record. No small effect indeed. I've also seen too many qualified people—and friends—on both sides of the aisle lose their jobs. It has not been pretty.

How is Sept. 11 affecting the business?

People will be more inclined to stick close to home. Because of that, I think they will be looking for music to help entertain, and in many instances, soothe them. Music has always helped define moments in people's lives. I think music with more lyric content will become more important—people needing someone to help express their emotions for them.

For Atlantic, A Satisfying 2001

What one project from another label would you have liked to work this year?

The job done on Enya was excellent. I know the challenges they faced, and being involved in the format as well, I love when mainstream AC steps up and breaks a record.

What shape was adult top 40 in overall during 2001?

Pretty solid. As a whole, they have come back to a more balanced form of programming, leading on the guitar-driven rock bands but more open to playing the big crossover hits from pop, i.e., Alicia Keys, etc. The challenge is developing true stars for the format. The only way that can be done is by supporting an artist, not just a song.

Finish this sentence: Consolidation has changed my life by...

Making it harder to get records on the air. Programmers have less individual autonomy in what goes on their station. Approval for an add has to pass through several levels. It slows

ARISTA SHOWS ITS OWN HIT 'EM UP STYLE IN 2001

BY MARC SCHIFFMAN

Rick Sackheim made the leap to the majors this year, joining Arista about nine months ago as VP of promotion. What better way to celebrate that new post than by capping the year with top rhythmic label of the year honors? The label also finished No. 3 in mainstream top 40 and No. 2 in crossover.

Why did Arista come out on top at rhythmic this year?

Honestly, it boils down to having great music—between OutKast, 112, Usher, Blu Cantrell, and Toya, we really had some great music that worked for radio.

What sets Arista apart from other labels?

I've been at Arista for about nine months, and we have an amazing executive staff, from L.A. Reid and Steve Bartels directing the company to all our regionals and locals in the markets. We have some regionals who have been [with] Arista for 25 years, and we have some that are rookies, and everyone offers support, no matter what marketplace you're in. It's probably a promotion cliché, but we really are a team.

What was it like for you joining a big label?

Needless to say, it was fun. It's nice to have a staff and records that are viable in today's world. It was an easy transition. The difference at Arista vs. small labels, obviously, is your product flow, but you're still talking to the same amount of stations every week.

What song developed faster or better than you even expected it to do?

For us, Usher's "U Got It Bad" and "U Remind Me" were just such huge gainers every week at radio. As soon as we dropped either single, it just ran up the charts. It was the No. 1 Greatest Gainer at the Monitor rhythm and crossover [charts] every week until it reached the top. And it's not that I was surprised by that, but it was just so amazing to see every week that you were up 700, 800 spins. It was just incredible.

Any particularly tough projects?

The one nice thing, even though Arista is a major label for rhythm/crossover, is that we still develop artists. An example was Toya—we could have easily lost our radio, but we really dug in and worked her to the rhythm format and reaped the benefits. Toya was a record that I would assume a lot of labels would have turned their back on and walked, after eight or 10 weeks of slowly creeping up. But we had such huge call-out success stories at just a handful of stations that we knew we had something. And we just kept [at] it.

Unlike some labels that are criticized for throwing things against the wall...

When you're at week 12, 13, 14, 15, whatever it is, and if you're not, [say], in the top 10 or the top 20 or growing X amount of either units or spins a week, at some point a lot of labels turn their back. You look at some of the indicators—[such as] KQKS Denver getting top five phones forever—that the rest of the country needs to [know] and spread those stories. We believe in our records and try to stick with them.

Any stories from the road this past year?

I love being on the road. It's very easy to not go on the road because of all the meetings or phone conferences or me traveling to New York, but being on the road is the best thing. You're actually out there listening to radio and seeing your friends in radio.

To me, one of the best moments I've had with Arista on the road was watching Sean "P. Diddy" Combs at the [WBBM] B96 [Chicago] Halloween show onstage doing "[I'll Be] Missing You" and doing a tribute to the people who lost their lives on Sept. 11 and having the videos in the background and holding the American flag and having the whole audience singing along.

Is it harder to find passionate music decision-makers these days?

No, and that's why right now I like doing rhythmic/crossover, because I think overall [in this] format you have very passionate people making the decisions.

How do you characterize the state of rhythmic radio right now?

Rhythmic radio is doing great now. The format itself is leading the way when it comes to radio members, with [KPWR] Power [in] the last book being tied for No. 1 in L.A.—the first time a Hispanic station hasn't taken that slot. Or [WQHT] Hot 97 in New York doing so well. If you look at radio on that side, it has been doing well.

Even on the sales side where you have a Busta Rhymes, a Ludacris leading the sales charts on SoundScan, I think rhythm radio is real strong right now and the way the country is leaning.

Does being in a recession change the way you do promotion?

It definitely changes things. In any industry there's monetary waste, and it definitely makes you rethink what you're doing as a company. You rethink your promotion dollars, the sense of a promotion tour, how much it costs to send an artist out on the road to do a promo run. It's very expensive, and you want to make every dollar count now. Not that people wasted money in the past, but now you are more cognizant of what you are spending.

meant. This year, we got a lot of answers and not many positives." His thoughts were countered by top 40 WBTI Port Huron, Mich., PD Jerry Noble. "The economies of scale and cluster management are better-developed than they were a year ago," he says. "Once competition better develops in a shrinking market, the pendulum will swing back in incredible ways for those who are 'sticking it out.'"

Asked to rate the effect of consolidation on a scale of one to five, the average rating was a 2.23. The average for Clear Channel respondents was a 2.63, compared with the rest of the pool's 2.1.

But it's another sign of the times that 91% of those polled think their station will still be operated next year by their current owner—the topic on which our respondents were most unified.

Looking at the day-to-day effects of what it means to work in a consolidated world, a majority of PDs (58%) noted that they now handle more responsibilities than they did a year ago, and 65% spend less time with music than they'd like to. Still, few are complaining of negative extracurricular impact. Less than one-third (29%) said their job negatively affects their personal life, down from 36% last year and closer to 1999, when 28.6% responded in the affirmative. And 65% said they are adequately paid for the work they do.

And with a nearly equal split of respondents—consistent with the previous two years—programmers are evenly divided regarding whether they've thought of changing jobs in the past year. But while last year's 43% had pondered leaving radio altogether, this time around that figure was 39%, perhaps indicating that people have come to terms with the current state of radio.

While PDs may be better-adjusted to their working conditions, a majority (67%) still think radio is in worse shape than it was a year ago. When given an open-ended chance to say why, the No. 1 culprit was the economy. Others blamed consolidation, the war, and other post-Sept. 11 fallout, as well as the lack of marketing and promotion money.

And as a response to that same open-ended question, Clear Channel itself was a divisive issue for PDs. Former Clear Channel PD Brian Burns—whose survey arrived shortly before he left Entercom's KRBZ Kansas City—thinks "companies like Clear Channel are systematically eliminating the brains to cut costs while trying to keep the body alive." But at CC's WMTX Tampa, Fla., OM Tony Florentino says that "the ability to effectively communicate within the brain trust of a company—like Clear Channel—gives us far more resources than we had even a year ago."

Monitor also asked PDs about the impact of group contesting, a practice championed by Clear Channel but now widely adopted. Asked to assess group contesting on a scale of one to five, those within the Clear Channel chain gave the practice a 3.28, compared with a 2.41 for non-Clear Channel PDs. Both sides disagree with the statement, "It's tough to compete against group contesting"—63% of Clear Channel PDs disagreed, while 79% of other PDs disagreed.

IDJMG'S POWER OF (NO.) 1

BY MARC SCHIFFMAN

This is the second straight year that Island Def Jam Music Group has walked away with top crossover label honors. So, once again, Airplay Monitor sat down with VP of rhythm crossover promotion Marthe Reynolds and senior director of rhythm crossover promotion Motti Shulman to discuss their success.

This is your second consecutive year as top crossover label. How have you kept the stamina up to continue that success?

Marthe Reynolds: Work for Lyor [Cohen] and Kevin [Liles].

Motti Shulman: And have great artists. I give a lot of credit to our artists and A&R. If they give us good product, we can run with it. We have an amazing team, but you need a great record to start with.

Reynolds: My philosophy always was that I waited for Def Jam to come back. We were together. They left, and I hung out, because I had good artists that I didn't want to leave, but I knew and counted on the fact that they would come back. And, of course, they did, but it's just so much easier when you know that you have great artists. It's hard enough as it is, and to start with artists that are marginal or that you are not confident in—that you have doubts about—is just suicide.

Shulman: We've been blessed, and even with our new artists and breaking artists, I have a lot of confidence in our A&R department and [in] making good decisions, and we have a great team from the top down. From Kevin and Lyor to Ken [Lane] and Johnnie Walker on the urban side. They all support us. I came from the Def Jam side, where we were the stepchild for a long time. We were not treated like part of the family, and now we are the family. And we work so well [together]. I think we work better than any other company as far as integrating the urban and the pop departments. There are always hiccups, but we really are one big family. And we're in it to win, to sell the most possible records... Both Marthe and I sit [in] on both the pop and the urban conference calls. We work with both the pop and urban staffs. Our [Broadcast Data Systems] guru, Rich Westover, oversees both. So, it's a good thing.

How is that different from other labels?

Reynolds: [At] most labels, the black people and the white people don't even speak [to each other], and they know that that's the truth. You know who you are out there.

Shulman: Sometimes it's like they're separate companies. They're trying to beat their own company. The pop department is trying to beat the urban department to get an artist for a radio station. We're trying to battle other record companies and have a most-added [title]. Sometimes that's in-house. They're trying to get their act to the urban station before the pop station or the pop station before the urban station. And it's not a matter of calling and saying, "Hey, are we going to have a problem if we do this?"

Reynolds: One thing that I would like to see is that labels spend so much time pitting each other against each other in the building, and that energy—and it's pure energy—and karma and vibe would be better used to delive artists. Because at the end of the day, isn't that what we're here for?

Shulman: And it's not about one format. You said this is two years in a row, but it's two years in a row that we're [the] No. 1 R&B label, too. We're working together, and it's a new thing. We want to be [the] No. 1 pop label, No. 1 AC label, No. 1 rock label, No. 1 alternative label, and we're starting to do that. I go to our label's rock shows. I go to the alternative shows. I go see Shelby Lynne and Sum 41, and I just saw Ryan Adams at the House of Blues. And I'll support those people, if there's something I can do. Strangely enough, Jimmy Steal, the PD of [KPWR] Power 106 in Los Angeles, was at the Ryan Adams show, which is great to me. I love it. It's all about music. It's all about our company and building that. And you feel more secure if your whole company is successful.

Reynolds: We had two themes this past year. One was, "We are one"—that we are one company. And the other one was being thirsty. We're continually thirsty for success, and we are one, and that is how come we are successful.

Shulman: We work hard at doing that. Honestly, radio doesn't always make that easy for us. It's very competitive. And the urban station in town doesn't want to hear that we're one and we want to do stuff for the pop or crossover station or vice versa.

Reynolds: It's like, "I thought we had a relationship. You're not looking out for me."

Shulman: They would be happier if we were pitted against each other, honestly. Because then they could go in and fight and have us say, "Fuck it. I don't care about the urban department. I don't care about the guy across the street." But the reality is I've got to care. That's my family, and I'm not going to fuck my family.

Bottom line, I want to sell the most records in the market. I want to have Ja Rule on the AC station if I can.

Is there a way that you guys approach artist development that differs from other labels?

Reynolds: Protect and build. We introduce artists on records...

Shulman: ... [From] our successful artists. A lot of it comes through other artists on the label, and if not, we make those marriages, and sometimes they're humongous. Redman and Method Man came together because they were on our label together. But they became best buddies. They ended up doing a record ["How High"] together years ago that was on a soundtrack. Now, they're starring in a movie called How High and doing the whole soundtrack and [doing] phenomenal... And we take it from introducing them on each other's records to the street level, where we have the best street team in the business. We have alternative marketing from barber shops to restaurants to wherever we can get our artists seen. [We] get samplers out there, get posters up, get kids in clubs, club DJs, mobile DJs. We try and cover everybody from the mix-show level at radio to get a record added and on up to MTV and the more obvious bigger ways of getting our record seen.

Being focused on the street has to be very important these days as people tighten budgets.

Reynolds: You have to be set up. I see so many labels and they say, "God. How does Def Jam do it?" We send out vinyl to the DJs.

Shulman: And we work them. We don't just send it out. We keep in touch with them, and they know that they can get us. It's important to hit it on every level. Def Jam started out not getting radio airplay. So we did everything on that level, from retail to street to clubs. And we haven't given that up.

Was there a big surprise hit for you guys in the projects you worked this year?

Reynolds: Musiq Soulchild just dominated so many awards categories. I knew he was great and groundbreaking, but just the way that the urban department got him to dominate so many categories. And Ja Rule. Look between Ludacris and Ja Rule and how many labels are borrowing those two artists for their records. It's a great compliment that they think our artists are so successful that they have to have them on their records to be successful.

Shulman: Ludacris was a brand-new artist, as was Musiq, [who] did his own little independent thing and everybody was saying, "Oh, it's a Southern record." I had radio stations out here on the West Coast telling me, "Oh, it's a regional record. Southern records don't work here." I'm like, "Hits work everywhere." These are the same people who now consider him a core artist and now want him for their Christmas shows and everything else.

Was there any act that you worked whose reaction at radio disappointed you?

Reynolds: For me, it would be the lack of [support in] the rhythm community [for] Musiq. They missed "Just Friends," and they certainly missed "Love." And I will hold them accountable for this [in the] coming year. They're not going to do it twice.

Do either of you have a particularly fun or interesting artist visit from the past year?

Shulman: Ludacris, everywhere he goes.

Reynolds: He can't go to the mall. He gets chased in the malls.

Shulman: And going to radio with him is such a pleasure and a surprise from everyone at radio, because he came from radio, so he totally gets it. And we did Ludacris radio [in] a lot of places, where he'd come in and do an airshift. It's not like it has never been done, but it has never been done this well. The jocks who are board-opping for him are scared for their jobs. They're like, "Thank God this guy is making so much money that he doesn't want my meager salary."

Or when they do these radio shows and there are other artists in town, I've had the PDs ask if he can interview other artists... Having come from radio, he understands what it's like to be a jock and when an artist comes in and respects the radio station and respects the jock on the air and knows how to make the most of it and understands that the medium is going to benefit his career and sell records for him.

What challenges does crossover radio face as we move toward 2002?

Shulman: Some of the challenges of radio in general—the consolidation stuff; radio's going through a hard time right now, and things are changing. From our standpoint, it's in great shape. As long as you have hits, you're going to be successful. Knock on wood, we have a lot of hits, and it doesn't look like it's slowing down.

FOR ATLANTIC, A SATISFYING 2001

BY JONATHAN KURANT

Matchbox Twenty is now something of an adult top 40 staple, so it's no surprise that it tops the list of Atlantic's top-performing acts at the format this year. But Uncle Kracker? That was a surprise, and indicative of Atlantic's influence at the format this year. Airplay Monitor spoke with VP of AC Mary Conroy and got her evaluation of her label's championship year.

CONROY

What's your proudest moment of 2001?

I try to steer clear of the word "pride." It is one of the seven deadly sins. I'm more comfortable with "most satisfying moment"—and I would have to say helping to bring Atlantic Records to the No. 1 position in this format fits that bill.

Give an example of a new approach to a project this year.

We probably just stuck with our tried-and-true approach—set up, follow up, and ritual sacrifices in [executive VP and head of promotion] Andrea Ganis' office to placate the airplay gods.

What single leadership quality do you feel is most effective in motivating your team?

Bamboo under the fingernails works well, followed closely by honesty and frequency in communicating with your field.

What attributes distinguish your staff from your competitors?

We have, hands down, the best field staff out there. They are aggressive and super-proactive in their promoting of their stations. I also think our having three national people in the field makes us enormously effective: Pamela Jouan in Los Angeles, Mark Fritzes in Pittsburgh, and Kim Stephens in New Orleans give us a constant national presence that I'm not sure other labels have.

What was the biggest surprise hit of the year?

I would have to say Uncle Kracker's "Follow Me." Programmers had all sorts of excuses not to play this song initially: "too country," "can't say 'kracker' on the air." Stuff like that.

Were there any disappointments?

Edwin McCain. He gave us a great in-depth album and really great songs. I'm disappointed radio didn't give him more of a shot. Plus, he's truly one of the nicest, hardest-working artists out there. He deserved more consideration from radio.

Any particularly memorable artist visits this year?

It wasn't an actual station visit, but my clearest memory was having the Corrs play WVRV St. Louis' Christmas show last December. They had just come from a long tour in Europe with a stop in Los Angeles to play the VH1 Awards show, and they were exhausted—plus, it was their first radio show in this country in a long time. They took the stage that night and literally tore the house down. People doing the Irish jig in the aisles—very exciting.

HAVING FAITH PAYS OFF FOR WARNER BROS.' CERCHIONE

BY JONATHAN KURANT

Navigating AC radio can be tough, but with help from Faith Hill and Don Henley, Warner Bros. took top label honors this year at the format. VP of adult formats Debbie Cerchione defines her label's long-term approach to artist development and promotion.

CERCHIONE

What's your proudest moment of 2001?

Faith Hill's "There You'll Be" [staying at] No. 1 for 12 weeks.

Give an example of a new approach to a project this year.

Allowing marketing to take the lead and establish a base on an artist before going to radio.

Looking back on your greatest success stories of the year, can you determine now what were the biggest contributing factors?

We set a long-term goal for the artist and don't believe in the concept of putting out an overabundance of records all at once and then chasing the ones that stick.

What does your label do differently?

Take the time to properly set the record up.

Were there any big disappointments?

While we had such huge success with Faith

Hill at adult contemporary, "There You'll Be" only peaked top 15 at adult top 40.

What one project from another label would you have liked to work this year?

Enya. [Sister label Reprise] did a stellar promotion job.

What do you see as the state of the format right now and its primary challenges?

The adult contemporary format depends on other formats in the market to break records and rarely steps out on new artists. Even though the format thrives on the core AC artist, they should step out on new artists more often, so that they can claim them as their own.

Finish these sentences: I wish I was a PD because . . .

I would like to make the decisions of what the public gets to hear.

I'm glad I'm not a PD because . . .

I would have to take calls from annoying, aggressive promotion people.

With the country in a recession, do you think people will stop spending on entertainment? Is there other Sept. 11 fallout you're seeing?

People will continue to spend money, but perhaps the type of entertainment they seek will be more family-oriented.

COLUMBIA'S TOP 40 FOUR-PLAY

BY MARC SCHIFFMAN

After three straight years atop Airplay Monitor's list of top 40 labels, Columbia comes back again with successes that ranged from Train to Crazy Train to Destiny's Child to the Five for Fighting story—which is still being written at top 40. Executive VP of promotion Charlie Walk spoke with us from New York City, and senior VP of pop/adult promotion Lee Leipsner checked in from his home away from home—the road.

How do repeated label of the year honors happen?

Walk: Every record we look at and every artist that has a new single, we start from the beginning. Everything is starting over. You're always proving yourself time and time again with each single.

One of the things that we do is we're never really concerned about being most-added. We're never really concerned about trying to impress anybody. What we're trying to do is find the people—in this format especially, there's always someone that has to play a record first. There's always someone that has to find the passion in their heart to play these songs. Those are the people we're concerned about. People that actually play records because they hear it and they want to play it between 6 a.m. and midnight, when people actually listen.

And that's how we do it. We don't worry about the people that are in it for different reasons. We're truly about the music... Keep it organic. Keep it under the radar. Find the right people that believe in your music and that will spread accordingly. And that has been our philosophy over the last few years here.

So you're not so hooked on the chart game?

Walk: You can't be. If you try to play a game or you try to manipulate, you lose. It has to be real, because ultimately radio and the records that are successful are really truly based upon research more than ever, especially with consolidation. Research is basically the decision of the masses, of the people who listen. So, there's no real time to manipulate. If you're wasting time trying to figure out a chart game or being most-added—if you're doing that, you're really taking away the true art of finding people and going to the tastemakers and spreading the music.

By doing what we do, we're doing it quietly and methodically, with great strategy tied in with our marketing department. And [we're] really looking at markets and having our plan not necessarily include radio from the beginning for some of these acts and songs that we've broken over the last few years. There has to be a plan that ultimately includes radio to be a big part of the picture. But I also find that songs don't research unless there's other things happening in addition to the song being on the radio.

There will absolutely be a few anomalies when a song will go out and research right away and become a special record. But for the most part, you can't ever think that. You have to surround radio, whether it's [with] television—MTV, VH1, BET, MTV2—or things happening in the marketplace from a touring, college, or street-marketing perspective, all of those types of things that come into play to help the whole picture.

We also look very close and really work with all the formats together. If you look at top 40, they truly more than ever cherry-pick the best records of other formats like modern, adult top 40, and rhythm/crossover. We watch those records early. We have those research stories early. We watch development and the sales of those records and artists to other formats, and we develop a plan early on to cross those records over to top 40... We truly strategize and focus on the plan months and months before we even go to top 40—how to surround the top 40 stations with real organic things happening in the marketplace. It's got to be real. We try to keep it real. We're spreading reality to radio.

Is the way you work with the marketing department unique vs. other labels?

Walk: I can't speak for other places, because I've only been here, but I can tell you that everything is done in tandem with our marketing department. We need them, and they need us. Too many labels have seen the marketing plan be the radio add-date plan. Hint: It doesn't work in this day and age, in this particular culture we're living in and this particular time, with digital downloads, satellite radio, and all the things changing our culture. It's a different time... And we're so cognizant of that. If we feel like we're getting to a place where all we have is an impact date at radio, we pull it.

You've spoken of focusing on PDs who are passionate about music. Is it harder to find them?

Walk: It is, and it gets harder every day. But what keeps us going and motivated is that top 40 radio is driven on hit songs, and somebody has to play the song first... Those are the people we superserve. Those are the people we want to let know what's happening early on.

If a record's exploding at [R&B], we'll go to that [starter] station early on. You don't have to add it. Put it in callout. Let's see what happens. Because the information that we have before we send it to them shows the song will probably come back top 10 in their callout.

Do you have an example of how that worked in the past year?

Walk: Five for Fighting. We just went market by market. We started off in the adult formats and drove the record. And while it was becoming a big record in certain marketplaces on the adult side, we went to top 40. And we told them the story across the street. "Put it into callout. Here's their research. Here's what's happening generally. Look at album sales." We did all the micro-managing of markets by markets from the adult side of things and spread it organically to the top 40 side of things. And if you look today, we're top 15 at top 40 and continuing to rise, and if you look at the adult formats, we've been No. 1 for three weeks at adult top 40 adult and modern [AC]. And it's a true market-by-market, seven- or eight-month process. We were never most-added. We never had more than 20 stations a week ever on Five for Fighting at top 40.

Leipsner: When people first heard the record, they thought to themselves right off the bat, "[This is] soft AC, not contemporary. Lyrically strong, but where was it going to fit in between Britney Spears and Toya? Was it going to work with Nickelback on the air?" With a lot of extreme stuff happening and the teen-pop phenomenon—which has always been alive and well for the last five years—was this record going to be a fit at mainstream top 40 radio? How far was it truly going to go? Were people really going to embrace it? Those were a lot of walls and a lot of barriers. And still having a record No. 1 at adult and modern—and hot and top 15 and growing—we're all very proud of that. For the industry, I think, it was a bigger surprise than it was for us. We were just determined.

And those early adapters are where you focus?

Walk: If you have people that are chart-watchers, they're not going to help us. They're going to be the last ones on. If you do your research and you look at Monitor and you read the history of these particular programmers and you know that their stations are always the last ones on, we're not going there. Let them do their thing. I don't get upset. We don't get angry. We're not going to make deals and do this and that. They're not on our radar. It doesn't matter. They'll play it when it becomes a hit somewhere else.

If you look at Alicia Keys, somebody had to play that record first. And I know that everyone didn't hear that record in tandem. [As for] Train's "Drops of Jupiter"—Nobody heard the record in tandem. There were one or two people who raised their hands and said, "This record could be a classic." One of them was Tom Poleman at [WHTZ] Z100 in New York, who raised his hand in my office when he heard the record and got goose bumps. And the rest is history.

One of the three biggest audience records of all time was "Independent Women [Part 1]" by Destiny's Child. You would think right now as you look back that everyone heard that together and it just blew up. Not true. Look at the history of [Broadcast Data Systems]. Look who played it first. Look how long that song took. And that was after a big record... It's very hard to get everybody to agree that they all like the same food. So relate that to music. It's very hard to get everyone to like the same song at the same time. Eventually, if you slowly and surely prove and build the song, it spreads. But we have to do that, and that's our job.

And Lee, that has you on the road a lot?

Leipsner: I never want to be somebody who runs the department and sits in the big white castle. I won't do it. With consolidation and brand managers and e-mail systems now, and a lot of people who are unavailable, and music times scarce, [for] about an hour each week, it's the only way to get one-on-one time [with PDs]. There's nothing like being able to stand up in a PD's office and push play and then give him the breakdown of a marketing plan—really unfolding it [before] their eyes. That's what it's about, explaining how the market is coming together or bringing in a sales rep from Sony who can explain the retail side of things. Being on the road is the most effective way to do this job.

It's still about relationships, and I think some people have gotten away from that. I've followed my programmers and my friends everywhere they've gone in their career. We've stuck together. The problem is... It's tougher to find that next program director... So you've really got to be on the lookout for who's going to be the next Tom Poleman or the next John Ivey or the next Jay Stevens. You've got to find those people, and they're out there. I've met more smart programmers in my career by being on the road. And I still want to do it.
