CAMPUS CONCERT SCENE

Use Of Professionals Up As Concerts Become Big Business

By JIM FISHEL

Campus bookings are innovatively surging forward, with professional promoters and middlemen increasingly playing the dominant role.

However, students, casting a critical eye on contract riders, not to mention escalating talent costs, remain skeptical when it comes to dealing with agents, managers and the like.

While most university administrators agree that there's a valuable educational experience derived from producing live music on campus, some have taken the booking reins from student hands and have looked to bring the professional promoter into the picture.

Such moves have usually been prompted by financial reasoning, though, and the overall concept has already run into some snags. What it comes down to, according to several student activities programmers, is that professional promoters still don't fully understand the workings of the university structure and its constant red tape.

Commercial promoters who have ventured into campus facilities are numerous and include Jules Belkin, Bob Bageris, Barry Fey and Norman Cheney.

Breaking an act on campus is still very important to most agents and managers and this is further pointed out by the sometimes reduced costs of their acts to colleges.

At the 1976 National Entertainment Conference national convention in Washington, many agencies are offering their acts for a cost far below the norm. In the past, the NEC showcases have featured upcoming acts that the college market helped to break, including Simon and Garfunkel, Chicago, Flip Wilson and Roy Clark.

A record of more than 3,000 students and activities programmers are expected to attend this year's confab, and although some booking agencies look upon the organization with disdain, most view its national convention as an important showcase and exhibit arena.

Much of the resistance to the NEC national convention and its many satellite conventions (including several for the first time in the Far West and Pacific Northwest) is a feeling that students come to play and not to work at securing talent.

"I always have a feeling that students come here as a lark to grab free albums and T-shirts and not really to book acts," says a booking agent asking to remain anonymous. "Hopefully this situation will change in the future, because student bookers appear to be getting more serious and professional for the most part."

Budgets at most schools have remained the same, although the ones that have incurred a change have leaned toward an upward trend instead of down. Several schools raised their budgets for the year as a full commitment to the importance of campus concerts.

According to a profile study taken by the Assn. of College, University and Community Arts Administrators (ACUCA), talent fees on campus continue to spiral, while the number of performances is slightly down.

While rock continues to be the biggest commodity, folk has taken a sharp downgrade with jazz beginning to show a sizable climb.

According to several university programmers, the drop in folk music comes as no surprise. Most activities people feel that the days of the college troubador are gone and that people would rather hear an act with a back-up band than a solo musician.

Several schools are still innovative in their approach to programming with some turning to a festival concept. For instance, West Chester (Pa.) State College sponsored a month-long jazz festival with a variety of jazz artists spanning that entire medium, while the Univ. of Miami held its fourth annual Blues Festival, presenting many top black blues acts.

Booking agents have always viewed the campus concert as important for breaking new artists and for filling in concert dates, but many of the long-time observers see several prominent changes in store.

Industry veteran Ed Rubin of Magna Artists says that schools seem to be in the habit of buying talent later and later. Agreeing with this appraisal is Sutton Artist's Frank Modica, who says schools are letting the final bookings go to a very late date, thereby hurting the possibility for lower pricing through block-bookings.

Middle-of-the-road artists, once thought to be a dead commodity, are rapidly gaining in renewed popularity. According to Frank Rio of Regency Artists, his agency has been doing very good collegiate business on his easy listening and popular music attractions.

The one type of music that appears to be overtaking this market by storm is jazz, according to most agencies. Because of this medium's growing consumer appeal, schools are booking all types of jazz: from the big bands of Willard Alexander to the current jazz booked by ABC, APA and a long list of others.

Marginal acts without current hit product are becoming a dying species on campus, according to Sam McKeith of William Morris. This is because schools feel much more secure by booking current hit acts, at their sometimes inflated prices, to draw the largest audience.

Many agents agree that the push from middlemen agencies is cutting into their business, although they sometimes end up dealing with the same schools through intermediate bookers. Middlemen companies like Boston-based Lordly and Dame, and New York-based College Entertainment As

Problems

Booking Agents

UNIVERSITY OF NEVADA AT LAS VEGAS

Booking agents often expect contracts to be signed and sent back in 24 hours or a week, and they don't realize that the forms have to be submitted to the school senate which often takes 2-3 weeks. The only solution is to have a good working relation with the booking agent who will go ahead with plans on faith. This is workable because "99% of the time the contracts are okayed anyway."

TUSKEGEE INSTITUTE (Ala.)

Had problem with booking agent signing contracts without artists knowing about it. That caused considerable confusion with school administration, and now school works only with manager of the acts and promoters.

PACIFIC LUTHERAN UNIVERSITY (Wash.)

Booking agents in Seattle have made acts sign a contract stating that they will not appear anywhere within a 50 mile radius of Seattle for a period of 12 months. That way they get first crack at the artist for an encore appearance. As a result this interferes with school's plans, though they are 45 miles away from the Seattle facilities.

CENTRAL CONNECTICUT STATE COLLEGE

There is sometimes a communication breakdown between agents and acts that results in problems before the actual concert date. School negotiates each item individually before signing contracts with booking agents.

UNIVERSITY OF NEW HAMPSHIRE

Most of the agents act a little suspicious, since they usually raise prices when dealing with students. Also, not open with students, thereby causing a communication problem.

MIDDLEBURY COLLEGE (Vt.)

Although the school would like to firm up contracts far ahead of time, they find it difficult to do so more than two months ahead.

ASSUMPTION COLLEGE (Mass.)

Intimidation of students by some booking agents is increasing. All contracts signed with agents, and there is a lot of ambiguity in most contract riders.

CANISIUS (N.Y.)

The biggest problem is working with booking agents who ask the school to provide too many niceties for artists, and demand certain opening acts. The provision of unreasonable demands in riders is becoming an increasing problem.

Promoters

UNIVERSITY OF CALIFORNIA AT BERKELEY

School reports that sometimes promoters would rather pay for professional arena managers than for those on campuses just learning the ropes of the concert business. Also, it is difficult to establish a good working relationship with promoters due to the ever-changing staffing that occurs on campuses. Promoters don't like some concessions they must make in campus dates such as having student ticket prices.

SOUTH DAKOTA STATE UNIVERSITY

School experiences problem with promoters signing contracts without artists' authorization. Is pursuing one in court, and settled another case out of

Programming

Discos

KENTUCKY STATE UNIVERSITY

School has had good experiences with disco. They use their own equipment and show films speeded-up against a blank wall. With lighting adding to the effect, school reports that once, a couple of years ago, they actually had to throw the students out.

UNIVERSITY OF REDLANDS (Calif.)

School has both "discos" where the students "really have fun and cut loose" and "stomps" which are "meat in the market" affairs.

UNIVERSITY OF WYOMING

School wants to start a disco because it sees the couple of thousand dollars it would spend on a sound system as a permanent investment, and really the price of just one middle range live show. Also it feels that "nothing's better than the original recordings."

MARSHALL UNIVERSITY (W. Va.)

School tried disco, but administration prefers coffeehouses. They are more conducive to quiet conversation, small group activity, and building social skills, and are thus favored as a school event.

Artists

UNIVERSITY OF NEVADA AT LAS VEGAS

School has lounge show stars of the calibre of B.B. King and the Checkmates come to the campus to play for a half hour for an honorarium. The motivation for the stars is to keep in touch with young people, and simply to get good P.R.

DAVIDSON COUNTY COMMUNITY COLLEGE (N.C.)

School has full-time artists-in-residence, professionals who are hired by the school for a nine-month period. They both teach-consult and perform-demonstrate for the college, high schools, and the community. School strives for variety, having hired a classical guitarist, a harpist, a dramatist and a sculptor in the past four years. The North Carolina School of the Arts tells what graduates are available for residency and professionals and teachers then list their preferences.

Variety

UNIVERSITY OF CALIFORNIA AT LOS ANGELES

School will book a wide range of acts, because they believe the "appreciative mode has spanned out." Thus the same student who sees a rock show will see a classical show. This finding was arrived at by polling students and by seeing the same ones line up at the box office for diverse concerts. It was reportedly backed up by a Harris Poll last April.

UNIVERSITY OF CALIFORNIA AT LOS ANGELES

School will book international acts, because they believe that international acts are becoming more and more Americanized. Thus German and British groups have hits with American disco sounds. (This Americanization is true only with regard to popular acts; traditional arts have remained European.)

UNIVERSITY OF IDAHO

Nearby college books MOR acts like Mac Davis, Frankie Valli, and Olivia Newton-John, so school counter-programs by booking FM acts that have perhaps had some AM airplay. School does this

Promotion

Gimmicks

NORTH DAKOTA STATE UNIVERSITY

Arranged with Coca Cola to use hot air balloons to hype concert. Shared cost with them.

ESSEX COMMUNITY COLLEGE (Maryland)

Fund drive sparked making of a 169-foot banana split.

AUSTIN PEAY STATE UNIVERSITY (Tenn.)

Best promotion was "Boogie Day" to boost all activities with Vance Vance as group and goldfish eating (two students tied at downing 33 each).

COLUMBUS COLLEGE (Ga.)

School has had students run through the campus cafeteria wearing sandwich signs to publicize an event. Also has had students carry a fellow student in a coffin (holding a sign, natch) and dressed in "wierd chicken and gorilla costumes" to hype a show. Thinking is that students become "poster blind" very easily and that gimmicks like these don't cost very much for the good they do.

UNIVERSITY OF CALIFORNIA AT IRVINE

School has used the services of a skydiving team descending amidst an array of colored flares to hype a show.

UNIVERSITY OF WEST FLORIDA

School feels that notices on bulletin boards are not effective because they are lost in the sheer numbers of such ads. Thus it has used custom-made frisbees to promote its events.

CHEMEKETA COMMUNITY COLLEGE (Ore.)

School ordered huge helium balloons and wrote advertisement on them with felt pens. 4-5 foot balloons ran $14-$15.

CHRISTOPHER NEWPORT COLLEGE (Va.)

School has dropped color-coded ping pong balls out of an airplane onto the campus. The coding can be used for ticket discounts or promotional giveaways. Also has dropped six-foot helium balloons with blocks of wood on the bottom for weight.

Products

UNIVERSITY OF ARKANSAS, Fayetteville

Silk-screen shop turned out Frank Zappa shirts with his photo and date and details of up-coming concert. Shirts were give-aways but school would have charged had it received approval enough in advance.

UNIVERSITY OF GEORGIA

School manufactured T-shirts for Linda Ronstadt date, sold them and gave them to members of the band. Ronstadt reportedly was ecstatic about it.

Advertising

GEORGIA INSTITUTE OF TECHNOLOGY

Ticket-a-Tech, automated telephone answering service for concert announcements, stickers advertise service.

KENTUCKY STATE UNIVERSITY

School prints handbills that are actual replicas of the large posters that are used to hype a particular event. These are then given to other colleges, to high schools, and to record stores, where the backs are used to print that stores Top 40.

WINTHROP COLLEGE (So. Car.)

School relies on drawing both the campus and the off-campus community. Thus it places flyers in the court. Feels that in the Midwest management interferes more, while in the West artists are more apt to sign contracts personally. Has had five cancellations in a year and a half, with promoters begging out whether or not they've signed a contract.

UNIVERSITY OF DENVER (Colo.)

School feels that there are not enough prompters in the area to pick from. Being "locked in" with one promoter leads to monotony and the dictating of ideas.

QUINNIPIAC COLLEGE (Conn.)

All booking done through agents because of past bad experience with professional promoters.

PROVIDENCE COLLEGE (R.I.)

Most of the concerts are done by outside promoters who cut corners and don't accept the full responsibility. Many times they bring in equipment very late.

Riders

UNIVERSITY OF CALIFORNIA AT BERKELEY

School combats problem of artists' excessive demands with a "counter rider." The contract is based on an NEC rider, a rider from George Washington University, a University of California performance agreement, and a consultation with a lawyer (See reprint elsewhere in these pages).

School reports that usually the counter rider is signed without even being read, that only occasionally are changes negotiated, and that never do acts refuse to sign. As agencies work with the school, they become familiar with the rider, and notify the artists that it is standard procedure. The rider is based on the assumption that conflicts usually arise out of a lack of communications, not a desire of one of the parties to rip the other off. The counter rider just spells it all out.

UNIVERSITY OF DELAWARE

Acts forget that they're dealing with schools and not promoters when they demand "cases of beer and umpteen sandwiches." Deems these "extra frills" as unnecessary.

COMMUNITY COLLEGE OF BEAVER COUNTY (Penn.)

Outrageous demands for liquor, limos, and intricate lighting by artists. Though school tries to negotiate differences, sees problem as a rising one. Cites act that had a 22 page rider detailing demands. Sees sound as an exception, the one legitimate demand.

FERRIS STATE COLLEGE (Mich.)

School has discovered that riders demanding limo services and liquor are not usually put there by the artists, but are inserted by eager-to-please booking agents. School notes that performers don't complain if the demands aren't met, but booking agents do.

EAST WASHINGTON STATE COLLEGE

School simply initials items on riders it can't go along with. Thus, school can't supply liquor to artists, can't give any part of payment in advance, and can't meet elaborate sound and lighting demands.

UNIVERSITY OF CALIFORNIA AT IRVINE

School used to have contractual problems when it was referred to as the "employer." Now it insists on being referred to as the "purchaser" so it doesn't have to be responsible in matters of insurance.

EASTERN MONTANA COLLEGE

School cites as its major problem "the irresponsibility of group management." Knows of no other business where, even after a contract is signed, you are "at the mercy of their whim or fancy." Has had dates pulled out at the last minute.

UNIVERSITY OF VIRGINIA

School doesn't know of any campuses that give in to rider demands. Furthermore, feels that artists don't expect to get what they demand, because it's in the base price anyway. "When you're paying $8000, a case of beer or some cold cuts shouldn't be a factor."

NORTHWESTERN STATE UNIVERSITY (La.)

In return for short, often poor, performances and even though the orientation of the market seems to be Top 40, because it feels "obligated" to meet the needs of those at the other end of the spectrum. Whatever the motivation, going after a different audience pays off for the school in concert attendances.

Programming

CALIFORNIA STATE UNIVERSITY AT SAN JOSE

School has an artist-in-residence program whereby an artist puts on four concerts in two weeks of residence. This year's choice, avant garde jazz musician Anthony Braxton, did solo, quartet, piano, and chamber ensemble shows, in addition to attending 11 classes and 2 rap sessions.

MORRIS HARVEY COLLEGE (W. Va.)

School can't compete with the big-name bands that are booked into a nearby off-campus venue, so it concentrates on a coffeehouse program.

MANSFIELD STATE COLLEGE (Pa.)

Since school can't book big acts themselves, they provide transportation and block of 40-50 tickets for students to go to outside events.

UNIVERSITY OF VERMONT

Based on the success of the Blues Festival concept, the school is toying with the idea of a Jazz Festival.

Training

LORAIN COUNTY COMMUNITY COLLEGE (Ohio)

School sees a strong advantage to having students coordinate activities in that that way they feel it's their program. A disadvantage is the high rate of turnover whereby students just learn the ropes and they graduate. This is a particular problem in two-year community colleges.

UNIVERSITY OF ARKANSAS, Fayetteville

Regularly schedules two pop music committee workshops away from campus and holds regular ones after selection of each concert as way of maintaining continuity of changing committees.

Newcomers

UNIVERSITY OF REDLANDS (Calif.)

School hasn't had a top-level concert for a couple of years because they are economically devastating. Since it is hard to get a draw for a major concert, school hires lesser acts and counts on word of mouth.

NORTH DAKOTA STATE UNIVERSITY

School tries to get students to view newer talent who "haven't reached their glitter point." School makes a concentrated effort to have variety and encourages sophistication in music appreciation.

QUACHITA BAPTIST UNIVERSITY (Ark.)

Feels that acts on their way up are better in that they try to give it their all, while acts that have made it let off a little bit. Also, once school has booked new act, it can bring him back repeatedly based on word of mouth on campus.

WINTHROP COLLEGE (So. Car.)

Schools feels that the cost of an act has little relation to its appeal. Thus as the prices go up on established stars, the school is turning more and more to unknown acts.

LORAIN COUNTY COMMUNITY COLLEGE (Ohio)

School feels that most big-name groups are overpriced. They wouldn't pay more than $1,500 for an act, and they feel that they can, in fact, get a good act for $800. In this way a limited budget can be spread around, and those desiring a top star can go to a off-campus venue.

DES MOINES AREA COMMUNITY COLLEGE (Ia.)

Because of the size of student body and facilities, most activities are held during the day using local talent.

Audience Preferences

JEFFERSON STATE UNIVERSITY (Alabama)
"Whites don't go to soul concerts; blacks don't go to bluegrass events." School's solution is to book racially mixed acts.

Promotion

Post Office as well as notices around the school in an attempt to notify everyone.

PACIFIC LUTHERAN UNIVERSITY (Wash.)

School calculates what its total concert costs will be, overcosting everything, and then allows 10-12% of that for promotion.

TULSA JUNIOR COLLEGE (Okla.)

School posts handbills in restroom stalls "at eye level when sitting down, so they'll read instead of write."

ROCHESTER INSTITUTE OF TECHNOLOGY (N.Y.)

Campus media and outside media used on all major shows. The University's arts and design people help out with posters and flyers. Sometimes special promotions are done with balloons, combs, etc.

NIAGARA COUNTY COMMUNITY COLLEGE (N.Y.)

Campus media is the main thrust, although they utilize a video cassette promotion of the act—that is either provided or made.

Events

PORTLAND COMMUNITY COLLEGE (Ore.)

When acts are signed they agree to do not only the evening concert, but also a free daytime show to help push the ticket sales for the nighttime show. This gives added PR to the band and to the school, and doesn't take away from the main event.

QUACHITA BAPTIST UNIVERSITY (Ark.)

School serves full breakfast at midnight while playing the group's albums and screening free flicks. School notes that "some of these programs are better than the concerts."

WIDENER COLLEGE (Pa.)

School has scheduled champagne receptions with the artist in attendance.

Tickets

EASTERN MONTANA COLLEGE

School tapes coupons good for discounts on tickets to candy bars in the vending machines. This can also be done taping the tickets themselves or just promotional handbills to the vending items.

WEBER STATE COLLEGE (Utah)

School makes a clear attempt to draw the community to its events, which include shows by the Tijuana Brass, the Lettermen and the Carpenters. As a result the school brings tickets downtown to clothing stores and gives the management freebies for their cooperation in selling the tickets.

RICKS COLLEGE (Ida.)

At the beginning of the year, the school announces who it has lined up in its "entertainment series." Students can then purchase a pass for $17 that will get them into all of the year's events. A problem of course arises when an act later backs out and the school has to scramble around for a last-minute replacement. Sometimes the passholders feel betrayed.

EAST WASHINGTON STATE COLLEGE

School brings a stack of 100 tickets to each of five other campuses in the area, and also brings 25 posters for them to put up to advertise event. School of course reciprocates, and this network works to the benefit of all the schools.

PACIFIC LUTHERAN UNIVERSITY (Wash.)

School auctions off a set number of tickets, which wind up selling for more than the tickets would cost at the door. The motivation for the students is that they get to go through the pass gate with the auctioned-off tickets, and don't have to wait in line.

Problems

late arrivals, artists will demand limos (Cadillac or Continental), liquor (by brand) and, what's turning out to be biggest headache, sound equipment which costs the schools in excess of $1,000 (rental or lease) per act.

MONTCLAIR STATE COLLEGE (N.J.)

Some contract requests are outlandish, but all of them are negotiated on a one-to-one basis. Almost all signed with booking agents.

MISSOURI WESTERN STATE COLLEGE

Acts will make rider changes after arrival.

Equipment

UNIVERSITY OF ARKANSAS, Fayetteville

Can offer 800 amps of power as top ceiling though many acts stipulate a need for more. "We know they demand more just because they've been stuck previously. This is why so many technical requirements are extremely demanding."

Competition

GEORGETOWN, (D.C.)

Prior to working out concerts as co-producer with Cellar Door, schools just took on too much, concerts for 10 straight weeks. "It's too big a market, we just got killed." Basically, working with Cellar Door has helped overcome the problem of competing with larger venues in area.

UNIVERSITY OF NEVADA AT LAS VEGAS

School has a problem with older students not coming to campus shows when they can just as easily go to any number of shows on the Strip where they are able to drink as well. School suffers in this most intensely competitive live entertainment market.

BROOME COMMUNITY COLLEGE (N.Y.)

Too much competition with outside promoters is resulting in a cutdown of concerts and an increase in student mixers.

Administration

UNIVERSITY OF NORTHERN COLORADO

Activities board would like to go through promoters, but school policy forbids letting outside businesses profit. As a result, students must promote their own shows.

Activities also has to pay the school to use on-campus facility. The school's reasoning is that they could have made money renting the building out if activities hadn't taken it.

Generally, activities wants to be recognized as administrative office of school with authority to, for example, get the basketball team out of the gym when a concert comes up. If not that, activities wants an administrator to do the lobbying for the students.

NORTHWESTERN UNIVERSITY (Ill.)

School administrators regard concerts as minor part of total college picture: feel school could just as well without them or that the effort could be better spent in other aspects of university life.

Athletics

AQUINAS COLLEGE (Mich.)

Though this small school (under 3,000 enrollment) has booked such potent attractions as Seals & Crofts, the Spinners, Linda Ronstadt, the Ohio Players, and Harry Chapin in the past year, it has trouble getting authorization to use the fieldhouse. School is a conservative Catholic college, and the feeling is that "all we've done is bring a bunch of creeps into the building." Thus the administration is on the side of the athletic department, which argues that the concerts cause damage to the fieldhouse.

EAST STROUDSBURG STATE COLLEGE (Penn.)

School has been denied use of fieldhouse for music events because at last big concert there was pot smoking and drinking. There had been a continuing feud with the physical education department for use of the facility, and this was the excuse the jocks needed to have the concerts banned. As it stands now, folk or jazz might be acceptable, but rock is out.

Columbia photo

Dave Mason

AUSTIN PEAY STATE UNIVERSITY (Tenn.)

Suspect fearful attitude in booking new fieldhouse. "You have to know the basketball coach will wonder about our putting in rock concerts."

STANFORD UNIVERSITY (Cal.)

Campus newspapers pay more attention to sports than to music events. And then off-campus concerts get more space than on-campus ones. Of the school-sponsored dates, pop gets more attention than jazz. This order of things doesn't settle well with the Public Events Board, which programs classical and jazz events.

NICHOLLS STATE COLLEGE (La.)

Brings in good acts and promotes heavily but can't get student support. Root cause is conflict with sports when using gym and rivalries on campus (some fraternities will not support certain events).

Students

UNIVERSITY OF THE PACIFIC (Calif.)

Students don't buy tickets until the last minute. School is accustomed to this now and doesn't panic when many tickets remain unsold as event draws near.

UNIVERSITY OF WYOMING

School sees the breakdown of formal dating patterns as a detriment to concert attendance. Time was that undergrads used the concert as an excuse to get together, now no excuse is needed. The school contends that ticket sales have likely suffered for this reason.

VIRGINIA WESTERN COMMUNITY COLLEGE

85% of the students are employed, more than half of them full-time, so they don't have time for activities. A Circle K Club was started, but only 13 students signed up. "School is in the business of teaching."

TULSA JUNIOR COLLEGE (Okla.)

Average age of students is 27, with 30% of them veterans, 50% married, and 80% working. As a result students are so overloaded "when they get an hour free, they're not going to see a concert."

DELAWARE TECHNOLOGICAL AND COMMUNITY COLLEGE, SOUTHERN BRANCH

Students have to commute 35-40 miles to campus events since there are no dorms at the school. This, plus the fact that it is a two-year school with high turnover, intrudes on college programming activity, since students tend to maintain allegiance to high school crowds and activities.

Security

BOISE STATE COLLEGE (Ida.)

Future acid rock or hard rock shows have been prohibited in a move to tighten security at campus concerts. Administration felt that students were rowdy at such events, and smoking was too prevalent. Now if students smoke at a show, security people carrying coffee cans will make them put it out.

UNIVERSITY OF NORTH CAROLINA (Wilmington)

Behavior of audience has at times been a problem. School can't use the gym because of damage done at concerts, and now must be careful of the auditorium. School is alerted to cases of alcohol use and smoking at concerts.

UNIVERSITY OF MIAMI (Fla.)

Security problems since '68-'69 when students tore up building. When events subsequently moved out-

Programming

NORTHERN ARIZONA UNIVERSITY

School is faced with programming dilemma where community is into country music while students prefer rock. School however needs to draw both segments to have a successful show.

FERRIS STATE COLLEGE (Mich.)

To get greater returns on student surveys, school uses smaller and more carefully selected pools of 5-10% of the student body. School then asks what days of the week, times, types of music, and specific artists the students like best, as well as any criticisms on seating and sound & lighting in past shows. School lists specific artists it can definitely attract and afford, and has students pick their favorites from that list, rather than just asking them to write in their choices.

SCOTTSDALE COMMUNITY COLLEGE (Ariz.)

Like most community colleges, school has students from 17-70, with an average age of 27, so it likes to program pop events that "hit it right down the middle." Situation is compounded by the fact that area plays host to "winter visitors," elderly, high socio-economic individuals who live in Arizona from November to April and take courses at the college.

UNIVERSITY OF ARIZONA

School feels that the days of the college troubadour are over. Folk music simply doesn't draw the adults, while comedy acts like George Carlin and Bill Cosby appeal to everyone.

PENNSYLVANIA STATE UNIVERSITY

School prefers booking a name act that is only fair to an unknown act that is better musically. The school's philosophy is simply to book the acts that the students will turn out for.

The school also believes that students are more into dancing now than listening to the music, so it sticks to bands that play danceable music.

UNIVERSITY OF WYOMING

Students are very Top 40 oriented, so acts that aren't being played on the radio don't draw students. The community, though, doesn't support Top 40 shows, preferring "High School Band Days."

EAST STROUDSBURG STATE COLLEGE (Penn.)

School conducts straw polls to see what students want in the way of concerts. Then, if a top vote-getter is out of the school's price range, they'll try to find someone with a similar style who's available for less money.

CALIFORNIA STATE UNIVERSITY AT SAN JOSE

School relies on local record sales and airplay in programming, but since few stores specialize in singles, the school concentrates on the album listings. Feels that singles are overestimated as a concert draw. Bearing this out, despite two consecutive No. 1 singles, K.C. and the Sunshine Band are an only regionally successful concert draw.

UNIVERSITY OF LOUISVILLE (Ky.)

School is a black-white campus where the most popular music is "jumping soul" and bluegrass. Acts that fall between the two seem to miss both groups, so the school has stopped looking for "compromise artists."

EAST MONTANA COLLEGE

School wants to appeal to both older fans, who like accessible pop, and younger ones, who like bluegrass and rock. The solution seems to be male semi-country solo acts like John Denver and Mac Davis, who appeal to both sectors.

STANFORD UNIVERSITY (Calif.)

School concentrates less on "perceiving the market" than on "developing tastes." Thus, programming is of an educational nature, booking "serious artists."

UNIVERSITY OF VIRGINIA

School feels that questionnaires have little value, so it engages in individual interviews. That way you can differentiate between overwhelming and marginal choices, and between acts students like and acts they'd go and see.

Problems

side, students tore down fence (thus no admission can be charged)

UNIVERSITY OF CALIFORNIA AT BERKELEY

School administration doesn't like to have outdoor concerts because they are afraid there will be campers coming into the hills, and that fires will start in the dry hilly areas.

NEW YORK INSTITUTE OF TECHNOLOGY

Lack of facilities presents chief problem. School would like to do outside concerts, but security is a problem.

CENTRAL CONNECTICUT STATE COLLEGE

Because of a security problem, the school can only advertise on campus, although it can sell tickets to other colleges.

UNIVERSITY OF VERMONT

Security is a major concern, because all of the concert seats are on a first-come, first serve basis.

Artists

QUACHITA BAPTIST UNIVERSITY (Ark.)

Attitude of acts is a problem when they walk on and walk off without showing appreciation to the students. Feels that more cooperation from artists would mean a lot to those on campus. Cites instance where act played music in a perfunctory manner and didn't really entertain.

UNIVERSITY OF DELAWARE

School is near big metropolitan arenas so was forced to concentrate its attentions on middle range acts. Now that it has, it sees a problem with booking agents and record companies only pushing their "big money acts." As a result of this, schools have to do more digging to find lesser priced acts.

CHEMEKETA COMMUNITY COLLEGE (Ore.)

School feels that there are fewer middle price range acts available for campuses than there were a few years ago. While then $2,500 would buy a pretty big name, now a school would need several times that amount for a comparable act.

EAST OREGON STATE COLLEGE

Hard to get artists to come to the campus during the winter months. School combats problem by emphasizing that then students are a captive audience. Still school has better luck during the spring and summer months.

UNIVERSITY OF ARIZONA

School has trouble with artists that want an exact percentage on the night of the show. Professional performers not used to the workings of schools have trouble understanding that in due time they will get their money.

RICKS COLLEGE (Ida.)

Mormon school has had trouble with acts that "try to get the students out of hand." School prefers "morally clean" acts, so, to have more control over the entertainment, has taken to having their own students perform. School has four bands comprised of students, for rock, modern, folk, and waltz dance events. This also serves to give the performance opportunity to their own people.

RICKS COLLEGE (Ida.)

Artists are reluctant to come to out-of-the-way campuses, even if they are large. "Acts like to hit the belt" and this school is 30 miles from the nearest airport. Thus the school has trouble getting "good name people."

HARDING COLLEGE (Ark.)

Christian college has a hard time finding suitable entertainment. Will not take acts that use "vulgar language or risque material."

WIDENER COLLEGE (Pa.)

School has had trouble getting records from artist's label to promote event. Typically if they ask for 50, they get two.

UNIVERSITY OF VIRGINIA

School feels that there have been few good concert acts coming out in the past year, even though there may have been some big new acts on records. Feels that a year ago, with Linda Ronstadt, Little Feat and Bonnie Raitt breaking concertwise, the situation was better.

UNIVERSITY OF WISCONSIN

Had problems with one act, who though warned against use of pot, did so during the show.

Finances

WEBER STATE COLLEGE (Utah)

Students at this school want the big name rock acts, but to bring them in the school would have to charge $10 or $20 a ticket. Students somehow fail to grasp this.

UNIVERSITY OF SOUTH CAROLINA

School has put on free concerts in the last year involving such major acts as Hall & Oates and the Nitty Gritty Dirt Band. The problem with doing these free shows, though, is that the ticket prices on the paid shows have to be raised. Thus the tickets on John Denver and Mac Davis went as high as $7.

ROCK VALLEY COLLEGE (Ill.)

Try to catch acts between engagements, during weekdays. Often able to get performers who would otherwise be too expensive.

UNIVERSITY OF ALASKA

School has found that acts from the lower 48 states simply tack transportation costs onto their tab when they play Alaska. As a result, Alaskan facilities are more likely to book solo acts or duos than large bands.

Programming

Nuts & Bolts

UNIVERSITY OF CALIFORNIA AT BERKELEY

Operates under a no loss system where the promoter provides a guarantee and a certain percent of the net profits. The school also gets billing as co-sponsor with the promoter. Since the campus body is the Student Union Programming Entertainment Recreation Board, it's trumpeted as SUPERB Productions. The guarantee from the promoter and the budget allotment from the school are combined with the objective of breaking even at 60% of the house.

GANNON COLLEGE (Penn.)

Operates under system where promoter takes over and guarantees school $1,000 minimum and no risk. If show grosses above a certain amount school gets a percentage (usually 20% compared to promoters' 80%).

UNIVERSITY OF WEST FLORIDA

Typical of many colleges, school can't use student activity fees to buy an act and then turn around and charge the students admission. To get around this, the school enlists the services of an outside promoter who buys the act for the school. Thus the school can charge admission, with tickets as high as $4-$5 in this case.

PROVIDENCE COLLEGE (R.I.)

Committee picks the groups they'd like to hear and presents list to outside promoters. School lets professional promoter aid in all of the costs-- they turned to them to minimize costs of presenting top acts.

INDIANA UNIVERSITY SOUTHEAST

Try to schedule dances and concerts off campus where restrictions are not as stringent, students can relax more.

VIRGINIA WESTERN COMMUNITY COLLEGE, Roanoke, (703) 344-2031; Harry Nickens; A-125; no disco though there are periodic off-campus school-sponsored dances; no music events or budget. Events: There are none due to a lack of interest and the absence of an adequate facility.

ACUCAA '76 CONCERT FORECAST

Perhaps the most comprehensive analysis of the campus entertainment and performing arts scene, the study is by no means presented here in any full extent. "Profile Survey VI" was gathered and analyzed by Thomas Spray, 81 pages. The predatory study data were gathered and analyzed by Robert Moon, and runs 27 pages, and it is from this latter study that material on these two facing pages is presented in excerpt form.

Material is from a survey of 162 colleges and universities and 33 non-profit institutions. A comprehensive review of the studies appeared in the Dec. 27, 1975 issue of Billboard, the magazine's year-end edition that also carries Talent In Action, a review of chart activity around the world.

Based on information and tables from "The 1975-76 Concert Season: A Prediction" by Robert Moon. Excerpted with permission, Assn. of College, University & Community Arts Administrators Inc., Box 21317, Madison, WI 53701 (608) 262-0004.

Payment of all additional percentages will be made by ASUC check within ten (10) working days following the performance(s).

5. If all conditions of the contract are not fulfilled, the contract will be renegotiated according to the violation and the check will be withheld pending financial settlement with the Artist's Manager or Agent.

6. The Artist agrees that he will not accept any other engagement for a performance during a period _____ () days prior to or _____ () days following the performance(s) hereunder within a radius of _____ () miles from the location of the performance(s) set forth herein, without express written permission of the ASUC, and in the event of a performance by the Artist in the above area within a _____ () day period following the performance(s) hereunder, no announcement of that performance may be made until after the performance(s) hereunder. In the event of any such unauthorized performance or announcement, this contract may be cancelled at the election of the ASUC.

10. The ASUC shall be the only party authorized to issue complimentary tickets to the performance(s); however, upon request by the Artist, no later than two working days prior to the performance(s), a maximum of complimentary tickets shall be given to the Artist. All complimentary tickets shall be appropriately distinguished and shall not be counted in determining the gross receipts.

Provided, however, that in the event such failure is occasioned by major student disruption at the campus, the ASUC shall reimburse the Artist for all out of pocket expenses incurred as a direct result of such failure.

12. Except as provided in Item 11 above, Artist shall be responsible for the ASUC's out-of-pocket expenses necessitated either by change of date or cancellation by Artist after tickets have been printed and/or promotion begun. 13. In the event that the Artist, after execution of this agreement, indicates or states that the Artist will fail to appear or present the performance hereunder, and such failure is not excusable under Item 11 above, or in the event that the Artist arrives at the performance hereunder, and such failure is not excusable under Item 11 above, or in the event that the Artist arrives at the performance site noticeably under the influence of intoxicating beverage, narcotics or drugs, in the opinion of a selected physician, the ASUC may cancel this agreement and, in addition, the Artist shall be responsible for payment of any and all costs, expenses, damages (including the ASUC's actual out-of-pocket expenses incurred in preparation for the performance(s)), and claims arising out of any such cancellation.

14. The sale of Artist's records, photographs or souvenirs preceding, during or following the performance(s) by the Artist is strictly forbidden unless agreed to in writing by the ASUC. If so agreed, the sales will be allowed with the stipulation that fifteen (15) percent of the gross sales will be paid the ASUC within one hour following the completion of the performance(s). In the event ASUC personnel or students are used for selling of souvenirs, an additional ten (10) percent will be paid the ASUC, who will in turn pay the seller.

15. No oral representation, warranty, condition or agreement of any kind of nature whatsoever shall be binding upon the parties hereto unless incorporated in this agreement. This rider, along with Artist's rider and contract, contain all the terms and conditions agreed upon by the parties hereto, and may not be amended other than in writing.

16. If this contract is signed by someone other than the Artist, the person signing for the Artist expressly warrants that he is authorized by the Artist to execute this contract for the Artist for his engagement at the time and place specified in this contract.

19. The ASUC agrees to prevent to the best of its ability the filming, broadcasting, recording or reproduction by radio, television, or any other device, of the performance(s) without written permission of the Artist. Conversely, written permission of the ASUC shall be required for any filming, broadcasting, recording, or reproduction by radio, television, or any other device, of the performance(s) by the Artist, Agent, or any other person.

20. The Artist agrees to pay any and all royalties required to be paid on copyrighted material, the ASUC to be held free of all liabilities therefrom.

21. Royalties, union fees, welfare, and insurance obligations are a part of the cost of production and are included in the compensation specified in this agreement; therefore the ASUC shall not be responsible for the payment of these obligations.

22. The ASUC, as Presenter, has final control over all matters pertaining to any performance held under its auspices.

23. In the event of any conflict, inconsistency or incongruity between the provisions of the Artist's contract and/or rider and the provisions of the ASUC Rider, the provisions of the ASUC Rider shall in all respects govern and control.

soc. (CEA) and Supreme Artists have been a boom during the past year.

In some instances these middlemen are tying in with groups of schools, associations or even record companies in attempts to further secure this important market. While they are sometimes very successful, other times things don't work out as planned as was pointed out by the only semi-success of the CBS Records-CEA tie-in for funneling novice record acts on campus.

While the problems of producing a campus show are usually not insurmountable, many are quite disheartening to the campus booker. According to several university bookers, the major offenders are usually booking agents, because they don't fully understand the background behind producing a college concert.

Among the things leading to "campus confusion" are the signing of artists without ever making them aware of the development, the late return of contracts, the refusal to provide adequate promotion and publicity pieces for the school, the refusal to sign a campus contract until the last minute in hopes of getting a better commercial offer and the constant raising of prices to the collegiate booker.

Still the most annoying and rapidly expanding problem is the multi-page rider that has popped up all over the place. Some of these extensive riders have knocked up prices considerably, sometimes an additional $2,000—mostly for the provision of "ridiculous items."

Artists, or their managers as some schools believe, ask for fine liquors, limousines, intricate sound and lighting, full-course meals and other things.

The feeling among most college bookers is that acts forget that they are dealing with schools and not promoters when they make these demands.

East Washington State College initials the rider items it cannot provide and hopes for the best in the hands of the agent, while Ferris State College (Mich.) finds that artists usually don't object to most of the rider omissions.

UC-Berkeley has taken this one step farther with the introduction of its own "counter rider."

The contract is based on an NEC rider, a rider from George Washington Univ., a Univ. of California performance agreement and legal consultation.

The school says that artists always sign it, and that it is based on an assumption that conflicts arise out of communication breakdowns and interpretations.

Several medium-sized schools (3,000-5,000 students) like Virginia Western Community College, Franklin Univ. (Ohio) and Golden Gate Univ. (Calif.) have no concerts at all; while some small schools (under 3,000 students) like Aquinas College and the Univ. of North Carolina at Wililmington present big-name acts on a regular basis.

In the past year, UNC-Wilmington has brought in Billy Preston, Marshall Tucker Band, the Souther. Hillman and Furay Band, among others; and Aquinas has showcased Seals and Crofts, the Spinners, Dave Mason, Harry Chapin, Linda Ronstadt, Sha Na Na, Mountain, Jackson Browne, Chick Corea, Buddy Rich and the Ohio Players.

State schools continue to hold an advantage over most independent schools, because they have the enrollment and funds to present a full array of music in all areas of music. Schools like the Univ. of Virginia (Steve Stills, Bonnie Raitt), Univ. of Delaware (Janis Ian, Chick Corea), UCLA (Cleo Laine, Leontyne Price, Three Generations of Brubeck), Univ. of Arizona (Bill Cosby, George Carlin, Highlander Pipe and Drum Corp), and the Univ. of Florida (James Taylor, Loggins and Messina, Herbie Mann), have each presented a full array of talent on campus, because they have the funds and audience to support it.

According to a UCLA spokesperson, the school books a wide range of acts, because the appreciation mode has spanned out and now the same student who sees and enjoys a rock concert will do the same with a classical show.

Many schools, including Jefferson State Univ. (Ala.) and Northern Arizona Univ., face a dilemma that is common—how to program music that will appeal to all of the student body as well as the outside community (for some major concerts). For the most part, these schools have settled on a happy median and booked a small portion of acts that cross over into several areas, thereby providing a taste of something for everyone.

Some schools have cleverly gone to other extremes in attempts to satisfy the musical appetites of their student bodies. For instance, East Stroudsburg State College (Pa.) conducts student polls to see what type of music and acts the students want to appear on campus. If the winner of the poll is out of their price range, then they find another group that is close in style but available for less money.

Pennsylvania State Univ. goes the other extreme by booking a name act that is only fair musically instead of a group that is better but unknown. Another thing this school is looking for is the return of danceable bands, since students are now more into dancing than listening, according to a school official.

California State Univ. at San Jose, like many other schools, relies on local record sales and radio airplay in programming their concert series, but since many of the stores specialize in singles, the school concentrates on LPs. This is because they feel singles are over-estimated as a gauge for successful campus draws.

Prospects for the coming year look particularly bright, according to most campus talent bookers and sellers, and the campus market should continue to hold its head up high as a breeding ground for new talent.

Traditional Promotions

In addition to some extraordinary means of promotion that are listed separately, there are the more traditional methods. These old stand-bys should not be forgotten, though, and Billboard lists them in this space as a reminder.

- Get attractions listed on annual, quarterly or weekly school calendars.
- Play artist's music and air concert announcements on the PA system in the halls, student union, disco, and cafeteria on campus, and in the post office and shopping centers off campus.
- Have concert activity listed in the faculty newsletter.
- Set up a campus information booth or concert phone hotline.
- Stick handbills on auto windshields in campus and shopping center parking lots.
- Have community mailings or distribute notes door to door.
- Put notices on tables in the cafeteria, and in mailboxes in the dorms.
- Plunk artist in the shopping center or in a park to play for an hour.
- Get campus and local record stores to offer discounts on artist's LPs, to play them in-store, and to sell tickets to the event.
- Have campus and local radio stations play artist's records, and plug event.
- Get campus and local newspapers to re-print artist's bios.
- Mail newsletter to campus and local tv stations so they regularly plug campus events.
- Get records, posters and bios from artist's label for giveaways.
- Use banners, posters, handbills, flyers, bulletin board announcements, and sandwich boards.
- Go for gimmicks like T-shirts, balloons, bumper stickers, and buttons.
- Offer season ticket subscriptions.
- Bring posters, tickets, and records to other colleges and area high schools, and encourage the development of a concert promotional network.
- Have concert announcements at school games and other events.
- Put bulletins in restroom stalls on campus and in the public library, and in fitting rooms in area department stores.
- Have ticket giveaways and offer coupons for ticket discounts.
- Use on and off-campus Ticketron services.
- Chalk or paint announcements on sidewalks and walls in the area.
- Shout announcements through megaphones on city and campus streets.

IX GREAT ACTS.

Act I: Ted Nugent.

He's been on tour with Aerosmith and his electric guitar has scorched over half a million people. On his own, he sold out 12,000 seat Cobo Hall in Detroit—in the middle of a snowstorm.

Act II: David Sancious.

With breathtaking keyboard expertise, he is proving that he is the definitive renaissance man, born again for the new music of the Seventies.

Act III: Michael Murphey.

A star from Texas with a gold album and single ("Wildfire") behind him and a new album and single, "Renegade," pushing to the top now.

Act IV: Dan Fogelberg.

He's out now on national tour to promote his album "Captured Angel," and Dan's popularity is spreading far and wide with this great new release.

Act V: Kansas.

Their third album, "Masque," has turned their regional breakout into a national explosion. Book them while you can still afford them.

Act VI: Jeff Beck.

The amazing one. Last year's tremendous tour with John McLaughlin and the Mahavishnu Orchestra, and his gold album, "Blow by Blow," were only the prelude to a big '76. He's been in the studio with George Martin recording his new album, to be released soon.

Act VII: Dave Loggins.

He's a big campus attraction, especially after his hit, "Please Come to Boston." Get ready for his tremendous follow-up album, "Country Suite."

Act VIII: The L.A. Express.

Now on an international tour with Joni Mitchell, this incredible group has been tearing up colleges and clubs alike with a unique blend of jazz and rock.

Act IX: Gerard.

This is a new group whose first record release will be in March. From Colorado, they have been sharpening their act around the Boulder area to super local response, and their Jim Guercio produced first album will be all over America soon.

ALAN

Fairs

What Alan does is effectively create what the audience expects to hear from Elvis (and by that we mean that he provides a harder rocking, more exciting show than Elvis).

Performance Magazine

Alan effectively catches the Elvis sound while he gyrates, jumps and romps as the King did in his first years.

Billboard Magazine

ELVIS

Alan is easily the best-ever Presley impersonator. Above all the sound is authentic to the very last houn' dawg.

London Sunday People

He carries the Presley career from its beginning, with exceptional accuracy. You'll swear that's Elvis, when you know it isn't.

Right on your campus...right in your home town...right in your face!
This year's biggest off-Broadway musical comedy hit!

is coming your way!

Warning: This show has strong political and sexual references. If you're uptight about open reference to relations between the sexes, or feel that the incumbent president is doing an extremely capable job under difficult circumstances, or that religion, earthy language, and music and lyrics expressing dubious moral activities should not be presented on stage, may we refer you to a dandy Walt Disney film playing just down the block.

The National Lampoon Show

Now on a smash, nonstop college tour.

"More than a show...it's a traumatic experience."

BROOKS KERR

DUKE ELLINGTON, "Ask Brooks Kerr—He's our encyclopedia."

DEREK JEWELL, LONDON TIMES, "Kerr, though isn't an imitator. He plays adventurously, with great power."

ESQUIRE MAGAZINE, "Brooks Kerr learned from Willie 'the lion' Smith. So did Duke Ellington. With that sort of lineage it's not surprising that Kerr, at twenty three, is a living link to Harlem's stride piano style that evolved from Smith, Fats Waller and James P. Johnson and reached its apotheosis with Ellington and Art Tatum."

NAN ROBERTSON, WASHINGTON TIMES, "He is a gifted jazz pianist with perfect pitch, has his own combo and an encyclopedic knowledge of the jazz world."
