LOS ANGELES' R&B RABBLE

BY HILLARY CROSLY
AND GAIL MITCHELL

AFTER REIGNING FOR YEARS as one of the nation's hip-hop hotspots, the streets of Los Angeles are suddenly cooling with unparalleled haste.

The nation's No. 2 market, which once claimed three stations fighting for the youth-driven hip-hop audience, is now facing a three-way battle for adult R&B listeners. Over several months, Radio One's KKBT (the Beat) and Styles Media's KDAY dramatically flipped to an older-leaning, female-targeted playlist, featuring classic hip-hop and soul titles as well as black-oriented talk. Add to the heap Clear Channel adult R&B KHHT (Hot 92 Jamz) and Taxi Productions' similarly formatted KJLH.

With only personalities, promotions and a certain degree of heritage to separate the stations (along with signal strength and different dial destinations), which one is destined to rule the R&B roost?

PERSONALITIES

Radio One launched its new rhythm and talk format earlier this year; KKBT is the company's flagship station with Michael Baisden's "Love, Lust and Lies" in the afternoon and "The Tom Joyner Morning Show." Reach Media's Joyner is black talk's premier personality with 115 markets and a burgeoning show on Radio One's TV One. ABC Radio's Baisden also has a healthy fan base in 12 markets along with books to supplement his popularity. And both men slide right into the heart of the adult R&B demographic since their shows cover such grown-up topics as cheating husbands and the like.

"We're personality- and content-driven, and we feature the best R&B of the past 30 years," KKBT PD Tom Calococi says. "We have a full signal and two of this format's most well-respected and successful personalities." He adds that within the week, popular syndicated talk/music-driven black personality Wendy Williams, based at Inner City adult R&B WBSL New York, will be added to the lineup.

Meanwhile, KDAY, which is re-establishing itself with a new VP of programming, Steve Hegwood, and new market manager, Los Angeles radio veteran Roy Laughlin, added "The Steve Harvey Morning Show" May 5. The comedian, syndicated by Clear Channel's Premiere Radio Networks, has 25 markets in his grasp and his content—joking about country news and letters from women dating God-fearing pimps—trends a bit older than KDAY's Yung Joc-filled playlist.

During Harvey's KKBT morning-driver stint from 2000 to 2005, he made it clear that he was not a hip-hop fan and refused to play such titles during his show. So KDAY is likely adding a personality whose demographic appeal is already well-entrenched.

KHHT brands itself as the "black jack" with the slogan "Mega old school and today's R&B." With only three personality slots per weekday, Jamz mostly plays music. And the station reached No. 1 with listeners 12-plus among urban stations, according to Arbitron. KHHT PD Mike Marino explains simply, "It always comes down to execution."

KHHT comes to the table with the fewest personalities among the R&B contenders, with seven air slots during the week, including a local morning show, the Morning Jam Session featuring Diana Steele, Rico and Damon; Renee Taylor in the afternoon; and evening driver Sean Andre.

KJLH stands as the heritage player within Los Angeles' adult R&B market. With local personalities and despite a testy frequency that doesn't reach into the San Fernando Valley, the station ranked No. 3 12-plus among urban stations in Arbitron's spring 2006 phase 2 trend. Los Angeles radio mainstays, like former slow-jammed-turned-Christian-jock Kevin Nash and "The Home Team" in the morning have given them time-tested strength.

"Every station says it covers the community, but I believe we really truly are doing that," KJLH PD/air personality Aundrea Russell says. "[KJLH owner] Steve Wonder is like that mama who let the kids get away with murder. We have that niche, including talk programs like 'Front Page' that covers news, politics and local issues." Other shows include "L.A. Speaks Out" with Jackie Stephens and "Love and Spirit," hosted by Nash on Sunday nights.

TRENDING

A primary reason for the shift is that as hip-hop becomes more mainstream, Latin stations have hopped aboard the quest for Los Angeles' heavily ethnic audience, along with Emmis super-power rhythmic top 40 KPWR (Power 106) and Clear Channel top 40 KIIS-FM.

"Last year we were putting together our Summer Jam, and we lost the Ying Yang Twins to KIIS," KKBT marketing and promotions director Leonard McGhee explains. "I turn to our station, and we're coming off Anita Baker and turn to KIIS and they're playing [Snoop Dogg's] 'Drop It Like It's Hot.' With

BILLBOARD R&B/HIP-HOP CONFERENCE HONORS RADIO'S BEST

BILLBOARD RADIO MONITOR AND BILLBOARD MAGAZINE will honor the best and brightest in R&B/hip-hop and adult R&B radio when Billboard's seventh annual R&B/Hip-Hop Conference and Awards returns to Atlanta Sept. 6-8 at the Renaissance Waverly.

Awards will be given in the following categories: R&B/hip-hop station, adult R&B station, R&B/hip-hop OM/PD, adult R&B OM/PD, R&B/hip-hop APD/MD, adult R&B APD/MD and mix show DJ. For each category, separate awards will be given for major and secondary markets.

Additionally, awards will be given for best syndicated show, R&B/hip-hop label of the year and adult R&B label of the year.

A radio advisory board comprising leading R&B/hip-hop and adult R&B broadcasters will select nominees. Nominees will be announced and a ballot will appear in the July 14 issue of Billboard Radio Monitor.

As in previous years, the R&B/Hip-Hop Conference will offer topical panels addressing key trends and issues confronting black radio and the record industry, featuring top-level executives, artists and business professionals. Keynote sessions, featuring a to-be-announced major R&B/hip-hop artist, plus showcases presenting current stars and cutting-edge newcomers round out the three-day agenda.

hip-hop's chart dominance, pop has embraced it. Then I've got KXOL Latino 96.3 as competition, so a lot of stations are playing the same thing."

With the pie being divided into so many slices, hip-hop simply wasn't as financially fruitful anymore. That explains stations like KKBT surrendering Lil Jon for Sade.

"Hip-hop is being over-represented in L.A., and we saw the chance to move in a more adult direction," Calococci says. "R&B is making a comeback, and the adult African-American community has never had a full-service signal serving their needs."

KKBT adopted a new slogan in "L.A.'s R&B leader" as KDAY has trended a bit younger. Where KDAY's playlist used to include Ice Cube's "It's a Good Day," it is now spinning such poppier hip-hop as "So What" from Field Mob. Its slogan is "Classic hip-hop from today and back in the day," though the station's Web site appears to be somewhat misrepresentative, with pictures of Snoop Dogg, Ice Cube, Kanye West, Mariah Carey and Beyoncé.

"The Beat and KDAY both said at the same time they would go [adult] urban," Russell says. "Then once they each found out about the other's plans, KDAY decided to stay where it was, doing hip-hop."

Through it all KJLH has remained true, marketing itself as a steady adult R&B local station. Slogan "Radio-Free" speaks to it being an independent among its Clear Channel and Radio One format brethren. The station's playlist supports its position with such staples as Toni Braxton, Yolanda Adams and Gerald Levert.

I DID IT FIRST

Indeed, KJLH has been nurturing adult R&B listeners—along with a dash of gospel—for some 30 years. It's not surprising that Russell believes the other stations are simply following in its well-tread footsteps.

"This shifting on the urban side is the most significant change in the format that I've seen in years," he says. "Whatever these other stations do, they can't touch our people because they love the rarity of what we do."

KKBT's McGhee concurs, admitting that KJLH, while it has a weaker signal than its competitors, "has been the community R&B station."

But he firmly believes that his rhythm and talk format is a serious threat, particularly with penetration in the neglected San Fernando Valley where KJLH does not reach.

KJLH is reportedly working to remedy that situation. Russell says, "The FCC finally gave us the OK to increase [power] so we can reach into the Valley." The changeover should be in effect in about a year.

Is the competition nervous? Oh, yeah, Russell says: "Other stations have petitioned against us getting this."

KHHT comes in at the head of the R&B class within Arbitron's 12-plus tally in Los Angeles (followed by KKBT, KJLH and KDAY). It is looking to even further increase its share with the promise of the adult R&B audience.

Competitors, Jamz' Marino admits, "have undoubtedly seen the success of KHHT and realized that R&B music has become the mainstream in L.A."

With all this chest-pounding, it will be intriguing to see who earns their just desserts in the fight for victory. The numerical results in this summer's Arbitron ratings and beyond will be the proof in the pudding. ●●●●

DIXIE TIX

THIS ROUND, COUNTRY RADIO REFUSES DIXIE CHICKS TOUR ADS

BY PHYLLIS STARK

Poor tour support from country radio stations may be partly to blame for weak sales and the expected rerouting of some dates on the Dixie Chicks' Accidents and Accusations tour.

Out of the gate, ticket sales were disappointing in many markets, and the plug was pulled on public on-sales for shows in Indianapolis, Memphis, Houston and Oklahoma City. A St. Louis show date has also been postponed.

Several arena managers that Billboard Radio Monitor contacted cited flimsy radio support in promoting the on-sales, with one source charging that country radio would not even accept paid advertising to promote the shows. That charge is verified by several radio managers, who admit they walked away from tour advertising money rather than risk polarizing or, worse yet, alienating their audiences.

The group's ongoing disconnection from country radio has been well-documented. The first two singles from its new "Taking the Long Way" set, "Not Ready to Make Nice" and "Everybody Knows," peaked at Nos. 36 and 45, respectively, on Radio Monitor's country airplay chart. A new single, "Voice Inside My Head," is just being serviced to pop radio formats.

CBS Radio KILT Houston, Citadel WGKN (Kix 106) Memphis and ABC Radio WKHX (101.5 Kicks) and WYAY Atlanta are among the stations that turned down the opportunity to sponsor local tour stops. Their managers stand behind those decisions.

"It is still a highly controversial subject here in Houston," KILT senior VP/market GM Laura Morris says of the Dixie Chicks, who announced a Sept. 30 tour date at Houston's

Toyota Center. "Our research indicates our listeners don't want us to play the [Chicks'] music," and she extends that to the assumption her listeners don't want the station to promote the tour either. "This is a very vocal Bush market," Morris adds.

The Chicks, of course, first got sideways with country audiences three years ago when singer Natalie Maines said from a London stage that she is ashamed that President George W. Bush is from her home state of Texas.

Despite an evolving political climate, many country fans have still not forgiven the band, a situation exacerbated by the perceived potshots group members took at the country format and its listeners in several recent media interviews, including CBS-TV's "60 Minutes," Time magazine and EntertainmentWeekly.com.

WKHX/WYAY president/GM Victor Sansone admits, "We turned down hard money" to promote the Oct. 17 show at Atlanta's Philips Arena. "We would be hypocritical to take their cash," he says. "The less you talk about the Chicks [on-air] the better, and we're not talking about them at all."

Sansone says he is simply fed up with the comments the group has been making about country music, artists and fans. "I'm at a point where I don't feel sorry for them anymore," he says.

Despite strong sales for the act's new CD, Sansone can't understand why the group's travails are still of interest. "We're spending all this time on artists who aren't relevant anymore," he says of the Chicks. "They're not relevant enough for me to take this pound of shit for them [from listeners]. Besides, they've trashed our listeners."

WGKN had been one of the few country stations playing "Not Ready to Make Nice," the controversial first single from the new album. When tour promoter AEG Live approached PD

Lance Tidwell about the Sept. 27 show at FedEx Forum, Tidwell expressed interest in fronting the show, giving away tickets and airing spots.

But what Tidwell says put him "over the top" was seeing the band "running down the [country] life group" on TV. He called the promoter back and said, "I'm not going to support this show."

Tidwell says AEG had planned to make a commercial buy on the station to promote the tour, but he has no regrets about waving the money off. He calls the whole incident "unfortunate."

The group's manager, Simon Renshaw, declined to comment.

In a statement posted on its Web site June 9, Maines and fellow Chicks Martie Maguire and Emily Robison said, "Any reports being made about the cancellation of our upcoming Accidents and Accusations tour are completely false.

"We have known since March 2003 that our path in this business would have obstacles at every pass," the statement said. "We have enjoyed meeting each one head-on, and we will continue to do so. Dixie Chicks fans are as active and dedicated as they come. This time around we are willingly feeling our way through uncharted territory. Things don't come as easy as they might have come in the past, and it makes each accomplishment more exciting and appreciated. We will go where the fans are with great anticipation and no regrets."

The U.S. tour is scheduled to kick off July 21 at Joe Louis Arena in Detroit and run through Nov. 11 at the Tacoma Dome in Tacoma, Wash., with 11 Canadian dates included in the routing. The tour opened with dates in London and Twickenham, England, on June 15 and 17.

ROCKIN' THE WEB

HARDRADIO.COM CELEBRATES A DECADE OF DECADENCE

BY MIKE BOYLE

It is quite an accomplishment to survive as a business on the Internet for 10 years. But to actually thrive as a successful music destination, too, automatically earns bonus points in today's rough-and-tumble business climate.

Texas-based Hardradio.com has earned its stripes as the world's first Internet-only radio station for fans of hard rock and heavy metal. It was founded in 1995 by radio veteran and Internet pioneer Tracy Barnes, the company's president/GM.

Barnes' 28-year radio career also includes creating the first regularly scheduled heavy metal radio show on terrestrial radio and rising to OM/PD of ABC Radio's satellite-fed Z-Rock network in 1986.

Tracy Barnes

THE VISION

Barnes' original business plan for Hardradio.com was to be a network format, but then hard rock and heavy metal started to take a back seat to grunge and more mainstream rock in the early '90s.

Yet Barnes, a self-proclaimed computer geek, has been involved with the Internet as far back as 1989 and had always kept an eye out for ways to merge his love of the hard rock/heavy metal genre with cyberspace.

"Coming out of satellite, you're always looking for some kind of 'pipe,' some new way to distribute content," Barnes says. "I was using e-mail back then and used to wonder if it would be possible to send audio over the Internet, too."

In 1995 Barnes took the plunge and Hardradio.com made its debut. Not long after, his curiosity about what would eventually be called "streaming audio" led him to forge a relationship with developers at Apple: Barnes had also been wondering why their newest application at the time, QuickTime, wasn't being utilized for placing audio on the Internet.

"We beta tested QuickTime with the Apple folks and eventually became their first streaming partner," Barnes says. "The whole QuickTime crew was a bunch of rockers, so we instantly clicked." To this day, Barnes, a "die-hard" Mac fan, still pokes the QuickTime team in the ribs to see what new things they can work on together. "We're fantastic beta testers," he quips.

Barnes points out that he has also had a terrific working relationship with Microsoft since 1997, working together on issues related to its Windows Media player.

MONETIZING METAL

Like any Internet startup that survived the tech downturn in the early 2000s, Hardradio.com had its ups and downs. But to this day the destination has remained subscription-free because Barnes felt that visitors would expect it to be that way, just like over-the-air radio.

Banner ads started on the site in 1997 and by the end of 1998 ad revenue started to mount. Most of the ads were from tech companies pushing software. "Our expenses were $8,000-$10,000 a month, but luckily we were making more," Barnes says.

But by mid-2000 it all got shaky on the Internet with investors running for the hills. However, Hardradio.com pressed on. At the height of the dot-com downturn, the site had 250,000-300,000 unique visitors a month. Today, based on computer cookie tracking done locally, more than 600,000 unique visitors stop by monthly to bang their heads. Word-of-mouth and smart search engine placement have contributed to traffic growth.

Profitability for Barnes has come in the form of regional and national audio ad-insertions picking up on the site, as the use of banner ads was cooling down. "We were beginning to think ad-insertions would be our savior, even though revenues weren't the same as the previous two years."

Then came Sept. 11, 2001.

"We had to pull back on so many plans," Barnes recalls. "We were planning new studios and we were ready to roll out a lot of new features.

I got my critical overhead down to $700 a month during that period. We made it work and kept going, though. And we kept our promise to not be subscription-based."

By the end of 2002/early 2003, things began to pick up again for Hardradio.com, so much so that today it is Barnes' full-time job. He has a crew of 10 people spread out across North America feeding the hard rock/heavy metal monster. The company has an agency that places ads on the site, and it works with Google to populate the site with ads. Some merchandising is also done (T-shirts, etc.), but as Barnes attests, "You can't ever depend on merch to pay the bills."

WHO'S LISTENING?

This may come as a surprise, but Barnes says that Hardradio.com's typical listener is a 35-year-old male, probably an accountant, who grew up with hard rock and heavy metal in the '80s and never forgot about it. "When people find us they tell us we're the greatest thing they've ever heard," he says. "And they love the new music we feature, too, as long as it's traditional-sounding." Barnes says he keeps the current to gold ratio at about 50%.

Research is a constant for Barnes and his cyber radio crew. They will conduct it when they do contests; they also reach out for it in e-mail replies to listeners. And they monitor the site's bulletin board for comments. "We keep a close eye on where on the site visitors are going, too," Barnes notes, "as traffic patterns and habits often speak volumes about the appeal and attraction of your content."

Barnes programs the stream, and edits and posts the news and articles for the site, but otherwise remains low-key, meaning he won't be heard hosting shows or reading articles with his byline. "There's nothing on the site that pumps my name and it's pretty much that way with the whole crew, too."

THE COMPETITION

Like anything else, there is bound to be competition and people who can be perceived as copycats. "We invented everybody," Barnes quips, but he lists his competitors in the space as the hard rock streaming destinations at AOL Music, Yahoo Music, MSN Music and SHOUTcast.

However, there is one programming technique that Barnes says gives him a global advantage: what he calls "country-parting." Radio programmers are familiar with similar dayparting, but Barnes uses country-parting when he knows, for instance, that the Japanese are starting their workday or, for instance, he schedules a lot of Kiss or Cinderella songs or British hard rock/metal bands for when the English work force is most likely listening. "We program by looking at the clock," Barnes explains. "We've always been focused as a global at-work audio service."

THE FUTURE

As Hardradio.com continues to celebrate its 10 hard rockin' years on the Web, look for lots of promotions, more world premieres and innovations such as the recently launched Hardaxe site destination, where unsigned hard rock/metal bands can submit their demos in an effort to get exposure on Barnes' site.

Streaming content to cell phones in 2006 is becoming commonplace, but Hardradio.com has been doing it since 2002. "It's definitely the future," Barnes says. "It's where everything will go. It will become your mass communication module and it's where we're focusing all of our energies."

And what about hard rock/metal music itself? What does its future hold?

"It's always reinvented itself," Barnes says. "There's always a band, new or old, that has a little angst going on about some issue. Hard rock/metal means different things to different people, but it was the legendary Clive Davis who once said that 'hard rock and heavy metal are the truest forms of rock'n'roll.'"

POST-KATRINA, RADIO WORKS TO PUT EMERGENCY PLANS IN PLACE

BY TONY SANDERS

The FCC's Independent Panel on Hurricane Katrina confirmed to broadcasters and other members of the communications industry some things they already knew: When disaster strikes, significant problems arise unexpectedly—all of which can prevent a message or warning from being broadcast to the local community.

Some challenges—most notably those associated with the Emergency Alert System (EAS) and the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration Weather Radio—have also been criticized in reports from the federal government's own Government Accountability Office. But the crucial role played by the FCC's Independent Panel delved much deeper into the crisis confronted by the entire communications industry during Hurricane Katrina.

ity of public safety and 911" systems in time of crisis.

And finally, the panel recommends "improving communication of emergency information to the public."

Using the phrase "Actions to Alert and Inform," the report says the FCC should "revitalize and publicize the underutilized EAS."

The report mandates that the commission ensure persons with disabilities and non-English-speaking Americans also have access to meaningful alerts. In addition, it recommends that the FCC work with federal, state and local agencies to create a "consolidated and coordinated public information program" that ensures that "consistent and reliable emergency information" gets through.

PANELISTS' VIEW

Nancy Victory, an attorney with the Washington, D.C., law firm Wiley, Rein & Fielding, who is also chairwoman for the FCC's Independent Panel, says that one of the group's key recommendations was for the FCC to engage in "more education and training of the state and local officials who have the authority to use the EAS." Part of that education involves showing the local officials "how you use it and what you use it for."

adding that things are quickly changing there now. "We have at least two additional parishes involved in New Orleans to provide direct connections and broadcast studios. Eventually, we'll staff those studios so that when their parish president wants to get on the air they'll have the capability."

SEARCHING FOR POWER

One key problem Victory says her panel found was "this tremendous reliance on commercial power" to keep communications systems up and running. She says that many providers already had generators, backup fuel and contingency plans, but "nobody had previously really planned for an outage of this length and duration."

For the future, Victory says there should be a contingency plan for a long-term outage, including provisions for "how you get the fuel in there and how you get the generators functioning for weeks, not just for a couple of days."

For his part, Hadfield explains, "We already have pretty good disaster plans in most of our markets." That includes a review of his group's own on-site fuel capacity: "That's a big concern because one of the troubling areas early on [in the Katrina disas-

'We already have pretty good disaster plans in most of our markets.'
—MARTY HADFIELD

Victory says the panel recommended doing "some outreach to the public to tell them what this system means, who can activate it and how they can access equipment to receive it."

Steve Davis, VP of engineering for Clear Channel, also served on the Independent Panel, as did Marty Hadfield, Entercom's VP for engineering. These two were the only broadcasters on the panel's roster of more than two dozen.

Davis and Hadfield had their own stories to tell about problems they have encountered with local municipalities and a failure on the local government's part to use, or in some cases install, EAS equipment.

On the flip side, of course, are the violations by broadcasters of the FCC's EAS rules. A scan of the FCC's Enforcement Bureau Web site turned up plenty of enforcement orders against broadcasters, including two issued so far this year and more than a dozen in 2005. None was against Entercom or Clear Channel.

Hadfield says that in New Orleans "and in many of our stations here [in Seattle and the Pacific Northwest]" there are "small broadcast facilities up and running at the Emergency Operating Centers."

In the Bayou, the Jefferson Parish Emergency Operating Center had a fully operational EAS system and studio. "The other parishes had been approached previously, but were either hesitant or slow to get their systems together," he says.

But when Katrina hit, "suddenly, we were getting calls of 'Hey, we'd like to be on the air,' and we would have to answer, 'Well, you don't have any equipment to get on the air from there to do these regular drop-ins as you'd like,'" Hadfield says, ter is] that people were being denied access to their sites, just to be able to return to the air or to maintain continued operation. That was a major issue."

The panel's solution to the site-access problem is to designate a new type of "first responder," known as first responder/private sector, a designation that Victory says "would allow a communications repair crew to have access to nonmonetary federal assistance such as security accompaniment." Gaining access to fuel and getting on certain priority lists were important, but the big one was being eligible for a security detail for public safety, she says.

STARVED FOR FUEL

Hadfield says Entercom news/talk WWL New Orleans has a "fuel-hungry generator," but it also has a tank that stores about 20,000 gallons. That's enough fuel to keep the AM up and running for two months nonstop, he says. But there are other sites, according to Hadfield, with even more fuel-hungry generators that are limited to about 500 or 1,000 gallons. The fuel-tank limitations are dictated by local municipalities, he says.

One site with limited fuel-tank capacity, he adds, is among the main tower sites in New Orleans with TV transmitters in place. "It was literally at or less than a 24-hour lifecycle because of the fuel tank there."

Fortunately, because Clear Channel's outdoor division has drivers licensed to transport hazardous materials like fuel, the company was able to repurpose some of its outdoor fuel delivery vehicles to transport fuel to the New Orleans tower site.

The only problem with that, per Hadfield: "It was coming all

What is most striking in this research, reporting and recommendation is the role human behavior plays during a disaster. Many alleged faulty responses could be avoided, but only through advanced preparation and extensive education.

The panel offered a series of recommendations for many of the outlined problems in its report, released June 12. Some would require the FCC to change its rules and regulations. Others are a simpler fix, involving education and outreach to local governments and communities.

The specific recommendations are now available as part of the FCC's newly released Notice of Proposed Rule Making on the impact of Hurricane Katrina on communications networks (EB Docket No. 06-119).

First and foremost on the list are a "readiness checklist" and an "awareness program," which the panel suggests are new responsibilities for the FCC to adopt.

It also suggests improving "the operability and interoperabilthe way from Baton Rouge [La.].”

Intercession by the FCC helped Clear Channel gain access to fuel stored at the New Orleans airport. “That cut the round trips in half,” Hadfield says, “but we also heard odd stories about people who did have fuel, but were unable to utilize it. National Guard stopped some trucks and commandeered their fuel. All sorts of crazy things. That’s one of the reasons proper credentials are so important,” Hadfield says.

CLEAR CHANNEL’S DISASTER RADIO NETWORK

Amazing things can happen in the midst of adversity. That’s how Clear Channel’s new satellite-dish radio network was launched. As Davis tells it, he plans to put small-aperture—a meter or so—satellite dishes at station transmitter and studio sites, beginning at the group’s Gulf Coast locations.

“The point of this,” Davis says, “is [so] when a microwave dish falls down or a microwave tower completely collapses, or we lose land lines or connectivity over a T1 [Internet line], we can broadcast from any studio to any other transmitter site by just going up to the satellite.”

Once this new satellite dish infrastructure is in place, Davis says he will be able to physically manage all uplinks and downlinks from his offices in Tulsa, Okla.

Davis suggests that Clear Channel could use this new small-dish network to react to a large-scale natural disaster, such as a West Coast earthquake. A pilot program is in the works this year for Florida, Louisiana, Arkansas, Mississippi, Alabama and the Carolina coast.

“We’ll see how that works, and we do hope to deploy this on a more aggressive basis throughout the company next year so that we could use it in L.A. and other markets,” he says.

On top of this disaster-recovery plan, Davis says Clear Channel is setting up six hubs for storing portable transmitters, heavy-duty pickup trucks, RVs equipped as mobile AM and FM stations, right down to “go packs” for reporting in the field.

Davis says the six hubs are no more than one day’s drive from such major Clear Channel markets as Sacramento, Calif.; San Diego; Tulsa; Atlanta; Orlando, Fla.; and Philadelphia. Davis also plans to store “huge diesel pickup trucks” at the hubs. “Everything we’ve bought—the RVs, the pickup trucks—are all diesel because gasoline gets very hard to find and also because we have our own system for obtaining diesel, thanks to our outdoor division. Each of those trucks that we’re buying is going to have a 103-gallon tank on the back with a gas-station type of pump on it.”

The pickup trucks can tow an 80-kilowatt generator with a framework built into the back that can mount a microwave dish or an FM antenna.

Davis points out that disaster preparedness should not be just for Katrina-sized hurricanes or for major earthquakes. There are relatively small disasters that require station staff to abandon a location, too. “We’ve had bomb threats where we’ve had to abandon studios and fires. We’ve had sprinkler systems malfunction. They don’t ruin everything, but they douse everybody with water and you’ve got to get out and the equipment doesn’t work,” he says. “We’ve had people mailing a funny substance that might be anthrax, so we’ve had to abandon for that. This is the radio business. So we’ve had lots of occasions where we might need to broadcast from somewhere other than our studios, and we haven’t always had a means to do that.”

Even though Clear Channel won’t include its earthquake-prone areas in the new satellite network immediately, Davis says he plans to put “about 10 of these dishes at the hub sites. So if we did lose a site, we could just drive our truck down to the transmitter and to the studio that’s going to originate the programming and up we go. It’s not instant like it will be on the Gulf Coast, but it will still be fairly quick and that’s gratifying.”

INDECENT BEHAVIOR?

LANGUAGE AND CULTURAL BARRIERS MAY GIVE SPANISH BROADCASTERS A PASS WITH THE FCC

BY LEILA COBO

"POBRE NALGA, dicen que tienes granitos de montar tanta guagua."

The woes of a pimple-ridden butt, set to the tune of Don Omar's hit "Pobre Diabla," greet listeners of Miami morning show "El Vacilón" on WXDJ (El Zol), a Spanish Broadcasting System (SBS) Spanish top 40 station. It's 9:30 a.m., and hosts Enrique Santos and Joe Ferrero are on a roll, happily alternating between discussions on immigration and sexually themed parodies.

"I rented a Barney video for my 2-year-old, and it had pornographic images on it," a woman supposedly calling a video store says. "I've never seen bigger testicles in my life. Sir, have you ever seen testicles that big on your TV screen?" The attendant mutters no. "Then," the woman adds, "he flipped her around and gave it from behind. I had to tell my child it was a black hole."

Farther up the Miami dial, DJs on Univision tropical WRTO (La Kalle) are doing their best to keep up, with a parody of a cable guy who comes calling on a lonely housewife.

"Where should I put my cable?" he asks.

"Sonia, who has no cash, bares her breasts," a narrator intones. "Where do you think?" she coyly answers.

Welcome to Spanish-language morning shows. Sophomoric. Hugely popular. Sometimes hysterically funny. And quite often, skirting the FCC's boundaries of decency. But, unlike their English counterparts, they almost never get fined.

The reason, experts say, is basic: There simply are not as many indecency complaints filed with the FCC against Spanish-language broadcasters. And when they are filed, they are hard to follow up on because of language and cultural barriers.

Although the number of overall indecency complaints to the FCC has skyrocketed in the two years since Janet Jackson's 2004 Super Bowl halftime show "wardrobe malfunction," only one fine has been levied against Spanish-language radio and TV stations for indecency, profanity or obscenity issues since 1999. (The increase is attributed to organized letter writing campaigns by conservative activists.)

Since 2000, the FCC has issued 43 notices of apparent liability to TV and radio stations, which the FCC issues prior to actually fining someone. Only six pertained to Spanish-language broadcasts. Actual fines were levied in 14 cases to date, including the one Spanish radio infraction. In other words, about 7% of fines were directed toward a Spanish broadcast.

"There is definitely a heightened focus on indecency enforcement right now in general," says Francisco Montero, a partner with Washington, D.C., law firm Fletcher, Heald and Hildreth. He specializes in Spanish-language media, and his clients include the Puerto Rican Broadcasters Assn. and Bustos Media. "And I think it would be logical, if it hasn't already happened, to see some of that spill over into the Spanish-language media. But, you need complaints to be filed. And for a Spanish broadcast to be so offensive to somebody that they would file a complaint, first of all, they would need to understand it. And that rules out a good portion of the potential complainants in the market."

Even when offended, Latinos tend to simply switch the dial. In part, this may be because some of the most daring Spanish-language morning shows also happen to be those deeply entrenched in the community. "El Cucuy de la Mañana," for example, the syndicated morning show based at SBS regional Mexican KLAX (La Raza) Los Angeles, has a reputation for risqué comments, but he also has many philanthropic ventures that range from a health center in Los Angeles to telethons and fund-raisers for multiple causes around the world.

Moreover, the process of complaining to the FCC is alien to many listeners. Dr. Mari Castañeda, an associate professor of communication at the University of Massachusetts at Amherst, says Latinos may be less likely to file complaints.

"There is a cultural component that has to do with political repression in Latin America," Castañeda says. "You don't want to rock the boat if it means oppression, or in the case of the United States, if you're undocumented you could risk deportation. I know lots of people in the Latino community who are very disturbed by the amount of 'indecent and vulgar' language. But they also feel like the system is so big and confusing, that what can be done?"

The FCC says it does not classify specifically how many of its complaints refer to Spanish-language media and that it does not monitor a station or broadcast unless someone files a complaint.

"They get away with it simply because not enough complaints have reached the ears of the FCC in Washington," says Bill Tanner, longtime SBS senior VP of programming, who now has his own radio consultancy, Bill Tanner & Associates. "Those shows are funny as hell. And they're dirty as hell."

What constitutes "dirty" gets fuzzy when it comes to Spanish-language media.

The FCC's rules regarding the broadcast of obscene, indecent and profane programming are very clear—it is not allowed. But the guidelines to determine what is obscene, indecent or profane are often highly subjective.

Obscene speech, which is prohibited from airing at any time, must meet a "three-prong standard": The average listener must determine that it can incite lustful thoughts, the material must offensively describe sexual conduct and the material must lack serious literary, artistic, political or scientific value.

Profane language (the "F" word, for example) cannot be broadcast between 6 a.m. and 10 p.m. Neither can indecent material. The FCC defines indecency as "any language or material that, in context, depicts or describes sexual or excretory activities in a way that is patently offensive as measured by contemporary community standards for the broadcast medium."

Applying these standards to English-language content is challenging. For Spanish, it is sometimes impossible.

"Our on-air talent has all the FCC guidelines," says Eduardo

León, VP of programming for Liberman Broadcasting, which owns nine radio stations and four TV outlets. "But in Latin radio, especially on regional Mexican stations, we use a lot of double-entendre. There isn't an exact translation for many words."

The word "chingar" is a good example. It can be applied to a sexual act. Or to hitting someone. Or to something that's amazing. Or excellent.

The word "tirar" means "to pull." It is also applied to a sexual act. And the list goes on.

"If someone wanted to file a complaint with the FCC with words like this, they would have a really hard time," León says, noting that the FCC has never fined Liberman for obscene or indecent broadcasts.

In fact, none of the major Spanish-language companies has been fined for indecency. The sole fine against a Spanish-language station for indecency came in 2001, against WLDI Puerto Rico. The $16,800 fine was for broadcasting graphic sexual language on the "Morning Party" morning show on local station WCOM-FM in 1999, which at the time was a licensee of WLDI.

Univision is one of the few radio networks that had to pay a fine to the FCC, though it was not for indecency. The 2005 penalty stemmed from a 2002 incident in which a gay man was outed during a phone call broadcast on the "Raul Brindis and Pepito Show." The show aired on stations then owned by Hispanic Broadcasting Corp. The fine was for unlawfully failing to obtain consent before broadcasting the conversation.

Perhaps the most notorious Spanish-language FCC fine was imposed on WXDJ Miami after Ferrero and Santos got Cuban president Fidel Castro on the phone by pretending to be his friend Hugo

Renán Almindárez Coello, host of the syndicated "El Cucuy de la Mañana" show

HOMOPHOBIA EN ESPANOL

"When indecency happens [in Spanish-language radio], it is very homophobic and very sexist," says Lisbeth Melendez, a sociologist and convener of the National Latino Coalition for Justice based in Washington, D.C.

In Los Angeles, Liberman Broadcasting's regional Mexican outlet KBUE airs "Los Guapos De La Mañana" weekday mornings from 5 a.m. to 11 a.m. The show veers from deep social consciousness to irreverent. A supposedly gay character, for example, is called Ano Bárbaro (Awesome Anus), a play on the name of popular norteña singer Ana Bárbara.

"We're actually appalled with this character," says Monica Táher, a media director for the Gay and Lesbian Alliance Against Defamation (GLAAD).

"We see a difference between the way Spanish and mainstream media refer to gays and lesbians," she says. "I'm not saying Latinos or Spanish-language media are more homophobic. What I'm saying is there is a tremendous lack of information on gay and lesbian issues in [Spanish] media."

In addition, Táher says, most morning DJs come from Latin American countries, where making fun of gays and lesbians on the air is commonplace.

Melendez adds, "If you don't know anything different, you're not hearing anything different."

Táher is crusading to change attitudes.

For example, GLAAD is educating Univision Radio staff at stations in the top 10 Hispanic markets. The training teaches how to cover gay, lesbian, bisexual and transgender issues in fair, accurate ways.

"It's OK to have a gay character on the radio, especially on the morning shows," Táher says. "But there is a big difference between humiliating the character—as we Latinos have traditionally seen—and making the character a part of the cast."

Chávez. The 2003 prank was reported internationally and resulted in the FCC levying a $3,500 fine—again, not for indecency, but for failing to obtain Castro's permission to air the call.

Ferrero and Santos raised the fine money, in pennies, and personally delivered it to the FCC's offices in Washington, D.C., becoming local heroes in the process. Ironically, Tanner says, their FCC fine has given them a free pass to say pretty much anything in Miami.

Whether they are worried about fines or not, Spanish stations certainly take precautions with their programming. Sources say most morning shows now run on delay, and many extreme prank calls are staged.

Clear Channel, which last year expanded into Spanish-language programming, does not allow anything offensive on the air, regardless of format or language, insists Alfredo Alonso, the company's senior VP of Hispanic radio.

"Every year, every on-air talent in the company has to go through a test of what is acceptable and what is not acceptable. There really isn't a set of words. When you listen to something that crosses the line, you know it. In Spanish radio, there is the perception that the raunchier you get, the more ratings you get. I think that will change when you get a big fine," Alonso says.

But until that big fine drops? According to Arbitron, the highest-rated morning show overall in New York, for example, is the notoriously racy "El Vacilón de la Mañana" on SBS tropical WSKQ (97.9 La Mega), where sex is a daily topic and risqué equals ratings.

"Not everybody likes a dirty joke," Tanner says. "But enough people do that it's an accepted form of humor in America. Now, does that mean that it is permissible to have outrageous filth on the radio while mommy is taking Billy and Susie to school? No. But the issue is where you draw the line. I used to have a rule with my morning shows: 'Guys, if it's going to be dirty, it better be exponentially funny. Because if it's just a little bit funny and real dirty, you are in serious trouble.'"

AT THE MIC AND BEHIND THE LENS

KZLA L.A. MORNING MAN PETER TILDEN DOUBLES AS AN ACM-WINNING VIDEOGRAPHER BY KEN TUCKER

Over the years, radio folks have dabbled in everything from artist management to stand-up comedy to TV—remember Los Angeles morning men Mark & Brian's TV show? And while some have had varying levels of success outside of their "real jobs," few can say that they are so good at their second job that they are "awarding-winning."

Emmis Communications country KZLA Los Angeles morning man Peter Tilden can.

On May 23, country artist Brad Paisley and Tilden picked up the video of the year award from the Academy of Country Music at its annual show. Tilden produced the moving "When I Get Where I'm Going," with a team featuring co-producer Mark Kalbfeld, director Jim Shea and Dolly Parton.

It wasn't the first time Tilden and Paisley have been so honored. In 2004, the duo picked up a CMT video of the year trophy for Paisley's "Celebrity," which was their first collaboration.

In fact, Tilden has been involved in Paisley's last five videos, which also include "Little Moments," "Mud on the Tires" and "Alcohol."

Although they are the first music videos he has worked on, Tilden, who has done mornings at KZLA since 2001, has been involved in writing and producing TV shows almost since he first came to Los Angeles in 1990 to do mornings at what was then classic rock KLSX.

After hearing his comedic talents on the air, some local TV execs invited him to "warm up" a studio audience before an episode of the early-'90s hit "Major Dad."

"They fired me during the audience warm-up," Tilden remembers, "because I'd never done audience warm-up and didn't know it was about the show and not about the warm-up." After the show wrapped for the day, veteran producer/writer Earl Pomerantz invited Tilden to come back and hang with the show's writers. He agreed half-heartedly, not knowing that kind of invitation was rare. The next day he was hired to write for the show and he has never looked back.

While subsequently working on the air at KABC, KMPC and eventually KZLA, Tilden has also been part of a number of TV projects—some successful, some not. He was nominated for an Emmy for his work with Howie Mandel on the animated "Bobby's World," but he also worked on a show that was canceled after only one episode.

"It was really accidental," he says of his foray into TV. "I never anticipated that I would be doing that. And I still feel really fraudulent when I'm doing it. There's so many really creative and smart people out here."

A CO-CONSPIRATOR

Not long after Tilden arrived at KZLA, he met Paisley. "Peter and I were instant friends," Paisley says. "I sat down to do an interview with him and he and I just hit it off. As I spend a bit of time in California, we started to hang out when I was out there." They eventually agreed to collaborate on Paisley's hilariously tongue-in-cheek ode to stardom, "Celebrity." By then Tilden was the executive producer and writer for the short-lived sitcom "Bob Patterson," which starred former "Seinfeld" cast member Jason Alexander and featured William Shatner as Alexander's nemesis. Tilden enlisted both actors to be part of what Paisley calls "a silly music video." The result was an out-of-the-park hit.

Though Tilden holds the title of producer for Paisley's videos, he doesn't fill the traditional role associated with that title. In the video world, a producer is usually the person charged with keeping the project on track from a dollars and cents standpoint. With Paisley, Tilden might better be labeled a "co-conspirator."

"We always do it together," Tilden says of the creative process. "It's kind of like songwriting. You've got two guys ping-ponging ideas back and forth going, 'What about this, how about that?'" Once they come up with a concept, the two then set about trying to make it better. "I always go with the concept of 'That's good, can we now top that?'" Tilden says.

"Peter is a true idea man," Paisley says, "a genius at seeing things in different ways, taking things up a notch and finding humor in the most unexpected places."

Even though in most scenarios the video director writes the treatment, that's not the case with Paisley and Tilden: They do so together. "Because I don't have the time to go to Nashville or around the country, we hire a shooter and give them the concept and they add to that concept with their vision," Tilden says.

Because of that approach, Tilden appreciates what directors bring to the table. "Peter Zavadil did a brilliant job directing ["Celebrity"] and came up with a lot of ideas," he says, while calling Jim Shea ("When I Get Where I'm Going") an "amazing director."

The latter video was conceived not long after Tilden's wife lost her mother and Paisley lost an aunt and a grandfather.

The video, which features Paisley, Tilden's wife and other friends and family holding pictures of their lost loved ones, was inspired by a tragic event. "I started thinking about 9-11 and how I'll never forget people holding up images of people they lost," Tilden says. "They never got to say goodbye, and it was brutal. This, we decided, was going to be more about honoring people and in a way celebrating them. We didn't want just to be sad, we wanted there to be a joyousness."

Tilden says he's thrilled with the ACM award and the response to the video. "I was hoping that it would resonate with people because the song is so amazing on its own and you don't want to do anything that diminishes the song at all," he says. "The video came out beautifully and we were so lucky that it came together the way it did."

So how does Tilden's boss feel about his extracurricular exploits? KZLA PD R.J. Curtis says he was happy for Tilden when he told him he was going to work with Paisley on the "Celebrity" video.

"We were all thrilled for Peter," he says. "He has a long background in TV sitcom development. It made sense for someone which airs on KZLA. Premiere Radio Networks is preparing to make the show available nationwide. As the name suggests, the show focuses on country music and the Hollywood scene. "Because someone listens to country music, that doesn't mean they're not interested in what goes on in Hollywood," Tilden says. A typical episode might feature celebrity gossip, news from the Grand Ole Opry and an interview with Jay Leno, for example, mixed in with "lots of country music," Tilden says.

As for his interest in working on projects with other artists, Tilden says he gets "feelers from time to time" but that the stars would have to align for it to happen. "My time is limited because I'm doing two radio shows and I still have my hand in some production and writing," he says.

While Tilden says he's currently working with a country artist on a video that may or may not come to fruition, he appreciates what he has with Paisley.

"It started as a favor," he says. "We're friends; 'I'll help you do this.' We have a shorthand working relationship. We can do it over the phone while he's touring. A couple hours here, a couple hours there. He also knows with me the process is starting months before to start talking about stuff."

The two also collaborated on another project—helping Paisley meet his now-wife, actress Kimberly Williams. "He enlisted me to be a catalyst to meet his wife," Tilden says, "under the guise of putting her in a video."

Returning the favor, Paisley has been an active participant in

'Peter is a true idea man, a genius at seeing things in different ways, taking things up a notch and finding humor in the most unexpected places.' —BRAD PAISLEY to utilize Peter as a resource.

"I think it's great for KZLA," Curtis continues. "It shows our staff is passionate about this format and pretty much embedded in [it]. The fact that a couple of my airstaff contribute in a major way—[midday jock] Shawn Parr is the voice of the ACMs—demonstrates that we have people committed to this format way beyond their daily show on KZLA."

"The payoff for us is having Peter recognized on a national level, and winning an ACM; I mean, that was huge for Peter on a personal level, and great for KZLA," he says.

Curtis was concerned, however, when a serious illness put Tilden in the hospital. "When we hired Peter, he had a syndicated show in development" and was heavily involved in "Bob Patterson," Curtis says. "I really worried about his health when that TV show was on the air. I think he was working 20 hour days for several months. It ultimately led to a life-threatening health condition that [served as] a wake-up call for him."

While Tilden's achievements are impressive, in some ways, outside projects are par for the course at KZLA. Parr has two movies coming out this year, afternoon driver Whitney Allen hosts two nationally syndicated shows and MD/APD Tonya Campos does voice work for other stations, Curtis says.

"Come to think of it, I'm the only one around here who works exclusively on KZLA every day," Curtis jokes. "I guess that demonstrates my obvious lack of talent or depth."

Tilden also has a soon-to-be syndicated show, "Hollyville," the morning man's charity, Tilden's Children, which benefits homeless and low-income kids in the L.A. area. He has played its annual Christmas show for the last four years, "regardless of his schedule," according to Tilden.

Tilden says that his audience is aware of his outside work, but it's not a big part of his morning show. "If it comes up, great, but I never just bring it up to bring it up," he says. Instead, he focuses on things his listeners can identify with. "If I talk about personal stuff, it's because I hope it relates to something the audience may be going through. Not too many of them are producing or doing videos. [I talk about] what my 10-year-old goes through, I talk about my wife, my habits, my foibles, things that are relatable to them."

Despite all the balls he has in the air, Tilden makes it work with some help, according to Curtis. "Because Peter is an idea factory, his strength lies in the creative aspect and not so much the execution," Curtis says. "He does need some back-up in that area, and he's got a great morning show producer in Mike Raffety."

"Peter has a lot going on at all times both physically and mentally," Curtis adds, "but at the end of the day he makes it all work out. And the work is very strong."

"I sure do value his input," Paisley says, noting that Tilden also had a creative role in his latest video, "The World." "I'm glad he's so A.D.D. and can't keep his attention on one thing very long. We really do work well together." ■■■■

WASHINGTON BEAT

COPPS, ADELSTEIN WANT LOCALISM RULES

BY TONY SANDERS

FCC COMMISSIONERS Michael Copps and Jonathan Adelstein, the two Democrats at the Republican-controlled agency, were uneasy at the recent open meeting at their Washington, D.C., headquarters when chairman Kevin Martin introduced the commission's newest examination of its broadcast-ownership rules.

A major reason for their displeasure is that another proceeding—one focusing on localism that has now amassed an overwhelming 87,000 comments—was to be folded into the new ownership-rule examination.

The two Democrats told Billboard Radio Monitor that they are concerned that a number of questions they felt were central to the localism proceeding would be left unanswered as the issue is neatly incorporated into the ownership-rule proceeding.

That, however, is not how FCC chairman Martin views the situation.

All five members of the commission voted in favor of the re-examination, which is the newest action on broadcast-ownership rules since a federal court put a halt to the FCC's previous attempts at deregulation in 2003. But the two Democrats made note during the meeting that they had certain objections, in part, to the new proposal.

Shortly after the vote, Martin said that he planned to "make sure we take that [localism proceeding] record and incorporate it fully into the media-ownership proceeding." He said the objective was to "incorporate the issue of localism and its impact on media ownership and the impact of media ownership on localism into the record."

"People will have the opportunity to comment on [localism] here, and I assume that that's something that will be addressed at a lot of the [local community] hearings that we'll end up doing," Martin has said he plans to hold six hearings around the country.

Martin also said that he intends to "gather a full record. We're going to do more additional studies and more hearings than were done before."

But according to Adelstein, "All he's saying is he's going to summarize the comments and stick them in this proceeding as comments on the proceeding.

"He didn't say anything about completing the meetings that are outstanding or completing the studies that are outstanding. All he said is that we're going to take what is already given to us, the staff is going to do a summary and then stick it in the record. That's not what I was asking for. What I'm asking for is that we actually complete this [localism] proceeding, which means we move it from an NOI [Notice of Inquiry] to an NPRM [Notice of Proposed Rulemaking] and from an NPRM to final rules, if necessary. That involves completing the hearings."

Adelstein said there are still two hearings outstanding, one in Portland, Ore., and the other in Washington, D.C.

When questioned about Martin's mention of "additional studies," Adelstein countered that "there are major studies for which money has been allocated that are under way and have not been completed—and that should be completed."

He said incorporating the record on the localism proceeding is "helpful, but it's not anywhere close to what members of Congress on a bipartisan basis have asked us to do."

In a separate interview, Copps said, "It's kind of mind-boggling to make these far-reaching decisions about our media without having completed the localism proceeding." He characterized the localism proceeding as "the heart and soul of what we're talking about," with one fundamental question being "How do you maintain localism, diversity and competition?"

To get that answer, Copps suggested, "Let's go out and find out what the situation is. Let's complete our hearing. Let's get an NPRM, and let's see what those findings from the studies tell us."

Copps believes that six hearings are not enough. "I asked for a dozen themed hearings around the country where you could actually take a subject like this and make that the topic of the day and get the experts in to talk about it. All they're saying is, 'Oh, in the course of these generalized hearings that the FCC will hold, you'll have ample opportunity to talk about that.' That's not the serious kind of treatment that a subject like this needs.

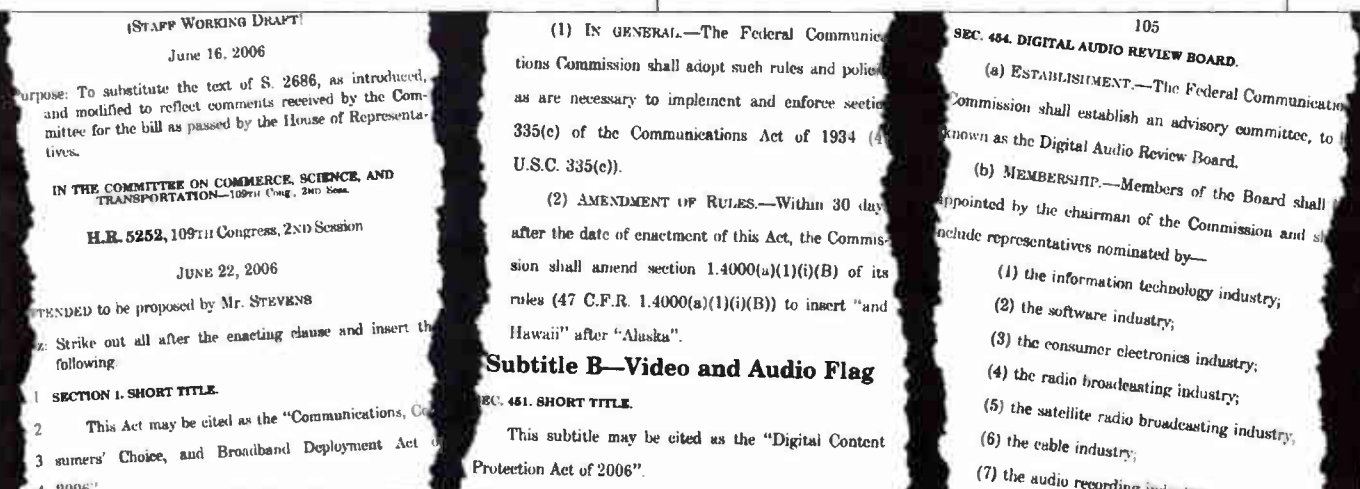

"What we really have to have here is an open and transparent process," Copps said. "And I am not at all convinced that the road we went down [recently] is going to provide that. We're going to do our damndest to make sure we get as much as we can. It's clear to me that we can't just rely on the FCC to get all of this information that I think is so necessary. We're going to have to rely on outside citizens and outside groups and not just the measly half-a-dozen hearings that the FCC is talking about."

Peter Gutmann, a communications attorney with Womble,

Carlyle, says that Copps and Martin, "by their partial dissents, seem to be most concerned that the rules in the multiple-ownership proceeding would be handled piecemeal and that they wouldn't get the overview that they were really looking for."

Gutmann says that folding localism into the ownership proceeding "would seem to advance their interests" but he also says that the move would leave "some aspects of the localism inquiry" out in the cold.

As an example, Gutmann points to the FCC's concern about political broadcasts in the localism proceeding as a question that would not necessarily fit into the ownership inquiry: "For local races, where access was not mandatory, was enough attention being given to allowing local candidates on, covering their races, giving them time to purchase or to appear for debates on the air? I really think that that's way beyond the scope of the ownership rules."

ON THE HILL: McCAIN'S LPFM BILL RETURNS AGAIN AND AGAIN

SEN. JOHN McCAIN, R-ARIZ., has championed low-power FM in virtually every Congress since 2000. Along the way, something, or someone, has managed to derail his attempts to turn this legislation into law.

Six years ago, in the 106th Congress, McCain's bill was introduced as the FM Radio Act of 2000.

The following year, McCain introduced the Low-Power Radio Act of 2001, which would have permitted more low-power stations to hit the air, while requiring the FCC to intercede when LPFM stations were causing interference on full-power stations. McCain planned to increase the LPFM population primarily by relaxing protections for third-adjacent channel interference.

Last year, in the first session of this 109th Congress, McCain introduced his bill as the Local Community Radio Act of 2005.

Most recently, when the Senate Commerce Committee began its markup of a major communications reform bill in late June, word spread quickly from the NAB that the senator planned to introduce a new version of his LPFM radio bill as an amendment during the markup session.

As of this writing, the Senate markup session had just begun. McCain's amendment was still to be introduced, with Sen. Maria Cantwell, D-Wash., as a co-sponsor. A brief summary of the McCain/Cantwell amendment reads: "To implement the recommendations of the Federal Communications Commission report to the Congress regarding low-power FM service."

According to sources, an amendment refuting McCain's move toward LPFM adoption was to be introduced by Sen. Frank Lautenberg, R-N.J.

Lautenberg's amendment says, "The FCC shall retain its rules that provide third-adjacent channel protections for full-power FM stations that are licensed in significantly populated states with more than 3,000,000 housing units and a population density greater than 1,000 people per square mile land area."

That amendment is exactly the same as the one Lautenberg added to McCain's version of this bill when it was considered in the 108th Congress.

What's most interesting is that this amendment appears to allow LPFM to flourish in less dense states, such as Arizona, but no changes would be allowed in states like New Jersey.

According to the latest census data, Arizona has 2.46 million housing units, which is below one of Lautenberg's key criteria.

On the other hand, New Jersey has 3.41 million housing units, above the cutoff point of 3 million housing units and, therefore, exempt from LPFM expansion.

WHAT A DIFFERENCE 'A NEW DAY' MAKES

Billboard Radio Monitor top 40 managing editor Chuck Taylor made his annual Celine Dion sojourn to see, for the fourth time, her "A New Day" extravaganza at Caesars Palace in Las Vegas. ADULT R&B OFFERS WIDE L.A. BERTH

CHART COMMENTARY BY JOE FLEISCHER

I HAVE TO SAY, I love where the adult R&B format is headed. Even though KJLH Los Angeles doesn't play much of what people download, there's some nice diversity in the playlist that makes Los Angeles one of the top adult R&B markets. Three great female records that have been blowing up the BigChampagne charts for months, by Cassie, Letoya and Paula Deanda, are in the top 15, along with can't-miss tracks from Busta Rhymes, Chris Brown and Jamie Foxx. And there's no doubt that the format will become yet another venue for Gnarls Barkley to dominate and Ne-Yo to escalate a long, stable career.

THE CHARTS

THIS WEEK IN DATA. For complete charts, there's always more at www.BillboardRadioMonitor.com

LEGEND TO CHARTS

Charts are ranked by detections except for Jazz, Latin, Christian, Gospel and Country charts which are based on audience impressions, compiled by adding referencing exact times of airplay with Arbitron listener data.

Songs showing an increase in detections (audience for Jazz, Latin, Christian, Gospel and Country) over the previous week, regardless of chart movement. A song will also receive a bullet if its homophone rises in detections (audience for Jazz, Latin, Christian, Gospel and Country) does not exceed the price (times of monitored radio airplay) for that format. Even off the Country chart, a song that has been on that chart for more than 20 weeks will generally not receive a bullet, even if it might see an increase in detections (audience for Jazz, Latin, Christian, Gospel and Country). Country titles which decline in audience but increase in detections will also receive a bullet if the total audience erosion for the week does not exceed 2%. A song in its first week at No. 1 will always receive a bullet, even if it has lost detections.

AIROPOWER: awarded to songs appearing in the top 20 on both the Airplay and Audience charts for the first time with increases in both detections and audience. Airpower awards do not appear on the Latin and Christian, Gospel charts.

GREATEST GAINER: awarded to the song with the largest increase in detections (audience for Jazz, Latin, Christian, Gospel and Country).

MOST AIRPLAY ADDS: awarded to the song registering six or more detections at the most stations for the first time this week.

TIES: A song with the best detection differential (audience differential for Jazz, Latin, Christian, Gospel and Country) over the previous week is ranked first if tied with another song on the chart. If the songs are still tied at this point, the title that is being played on the most stations at that format will be ranked first.

RECURRENT RULE: Songs follow the top 30 (No. 15 for Adult Top 40, AC, Adult R&B, Heritage Rock, Dance, Christian and Gospel) become recurrents and are removed from the chart after 20 weeks. In addition, songs that have been on the chart for more than 52 weeks also rank below No. 10 will become recurrents and will be rotated from the chart. Descending country titles move to recurrents after 20 weeks if they rank below No. 15 in either audience or detections.

Nielsen BDS certification for sales of 100,000 detections on all monitored stations, including satellite and national networks across the U.S. and Canada. Numerical following symbol indicates multiple level of 100,000 detections.

★ Indicates title earned HitPredictor status in research data provided by Promoclad.

Playlists are listed in order of TBA weekly curve, beginning with the highest-ranking stations. Gatties are updated twice yearly following the release of the spring and fall Arbitron surveys.

A+ AIRPLAY ADDS denotes songs with five or more detections at stations for first time this week.

IMPACT! Songs of Airpower level and below with a gain in detections or with a percentage loss in detections equal to or better than the monitored differential in the format.

★ INITIAL IMPACT: Indicates song's first appearance on the Impact! page.

THE SPIN

JANET'S 'CALL' RINGS IN CHART HONORS

Just when you thought the smoke cleared from Beyoncé's chart-burning debut at No. 20 on last week's R&B/Hip-Hop chart, "Call on Me" (Virgin) by Janet With Nelly shines one spot higher to become the best debut on the list in seven years. The title also nabs triple crown chart honors with Airpower, Most Airplay Adds (57 new stations) and Greatest Gainer awards (up 1,467 detections).

The No. 19 entry is the highest at the format since TLC's "No Scrubs" landed at No. 13 in February 1999, and the 1,651 spins rung by "Call" are the most by a debut in the chart's history. The prior mark belonged to Missy Elliott's "Pass That Dutch," which opened at No. 22 with 1,649 detections in the Oct. 10, 2003, issue. Meanwhile, Janet's No. 28 debut at Rhythmic Top 40 gives the singer her first appearance as a lead artist at the format since "Son of a Gun" entered the chart in November 2001. "Call" also opens at No. 36 at Adult R&B and at No. 38 at Mainstream Top 40.

ALLAN LOGS NINTH TOP 10; STRAIT PLACES WITH 'AWAY'

Gary Allan collects his ninth top 10 on the Country chart with "Life Ain't Always Beautiful" (MCA Nashville), which gains 1.5 million audience impressions and rises 13-10. Three of his previous top 10 singles peaked at No. 1, most recently when "Nothing On but the Radio" led for two weeks in December 2004. His first top 10 entry was his debut single, "Her Man," which rose to No. 7 in January 1997.

Meanwhile, George Strait has the second-highest debut of his career as "Give It Away" (MCA Nashville) starts at No. 34 with 5.5 million impressions. His highest debut had been "You'll Be There," which entered at No. 30 in April 2005.

Petty's 'Graceful' Triple-A Bow

Tom Petty's "Saving Grace" (Warner Bros.) earns the highest Triple-A debut in nearly four years as it enters at No. 6 and picks up Greatest Gainer, Most Airplay Adds and Airpower stripes. The last title to start that high at the format was U2's "Electrical Storm," which also came in at No. 6 in the Sept. 13, 2002, issue. Petty's only better opening was the No. 4 debut for "Walls" in July 1996. "Grace" also takes Gainer, Airplay Adds and Airpower honors at Heritage Rock as it rolls 23-3. That's the longest jump into the top five since the Wallflowers' "Heroes" leaped 28-5 in May 1998.

MAYER'S 'WAITING' IS WELL-RECEIVED

John Mayer enjoys his highest-ever debut on the Adult Top 40 chart, as "Waiting On the World to Change" (Columbia) begins at No. 27 and takes Most Airplay Adds honors. The song, from Mayer's September release, "Continuum," is his seventh entry on the chart, and first since "Daughters" became his first No. 1 in December 2004.

"Waiting" also marks Mayer's eighth appearance (seventh as a lead artist) on the Triple-A chart, where it debuts at No. 15. Mayer has reached the top 10 in each of his prior visits and has peaked at No. 1 four times.

ACTIVE ROCK 'SMACK 'DOWN'

Godsmaek's "Shine Down" (Universal Republic) earns Greatest Gainer and Most Airplay Adds honors at Active Rock for a second straight week and tacks on Airpower stripes as well. "Shine" moves 22-14 and extends the group's run of top 20 appearances at the format to 15, which is the band's entire chart output.
