Old Age Pensions: Direct, National, Equal, Universal

By JENNIE McMULLIN TURNER

UNIVERSAL old age pensions? You would give a pension to John D. Rockefeller? Surely you don't mean that!"

Certainly I would give an old age pension to Mr. Rockefeller. And to Mr. Henry Ford and everyone else who is above the age of 70 or 65 or 60 or whatever age seems at any particular time to be desirable.

Sentiment for the guarantee of old age security has been gathering momentum for the past twenty-five years. It has expressed itself in a variety of old age pension laws. These laws represent good intentions, but they are both unsatisfactory and undemocratic.

There are now in existence in the United States two main types of government old age pensions: the "privilege" type and the "snooper" type. The "privilege" type is represented by the pensions of certain public employees: teachers, firemen, policemen; in some states, judges; federal judges, postal clerks, army officers, veterans and their widows, widows of former presidents. There is no stigma attached to receipt of these pensions. The larger they are, the more honorable they are.

Must Furnish Proof of Poverty

The general old age pension laws of the twenty-seven States which have provided some sort of protection for citizens who are not public employees are all of the "snooper" type. To obtain the "snooper" type of pension, the applicant must furnish proof of poverty. There is no honor attached to the receipt of such a pension. On the contrary, timid and sensitive persons who most need aid are prone to suffer privation and hardship rather than ask for it. The system is expensive to administer, requiring a large force to check on applicants, or relying on the volunteer efforts of busybodies.

The appearance of both the "snooper" type and the "privilege" type of pension is an anomaly in a democratic nation. The granting of full pay to our high salaried federal judges on their retirement after ten years of service at the age of seventy smacks of the special favors of the disappearing monarchies of Europe. The patronizing gesture of providing a pittance to the proved poor intensifies the general impression of class legislation and class distinctions. The democratic way to attack the problem would be the setting up of an economical insurance service for the benefit of every citizen; one which would guarantee to all as high a minimum of comfort as our present stage of production would justify. It is absurd to assume that the ordinary voters of the nation are capable of providing for their old age by private investment, when the nine members of the Federal Supreme Court, the nine most powerful men in the nation, presumably nine of our most intelligent men, are admitted to be unable to perform that service for themselves on a salary many times that of the average family. It is ridiculous that we arrange for a luxurious old age for these well paid servants of ours, while we gamble on the bare necessities of life for our own old age. While we continue to do this, so lacking are we in a sense of humor, that we actually make a fuss about such comparatively harmless forms of gambling as craps, poker and slot machines.

Only One Safe Investment

There is only one safe investment for old age. Land is not a safe investment. Stocks are not safe. Bonds are not safe. Company insurance funds are not safe. Private insurance funds are no safer than land, stocks and bonds. The only way to make old age really safe is to assign to the old a definite amount of the annual income of the nation, take it by taxation, and pay it out to all who have reached the age decided upon as desirable.

Some one remarked to me: "You cannot make old age secure. There is nothing sure but death and taxes." But we can make old age as sure as taxes by paying pensions with taxes. There can be no easier and cheaper way of making old age secure than for every new generation of workers to tax themselves to provide the older generation with the comforts of life.

Direct taxation is the only safe method of securing old age. So far as the method of raising the money is concerned, the "snooper" pensions for the proved poor and the "privilege" pensions for the judges, raised by taxation, are scientific. As much cannot be said for the "privilege" pensions for the smaller fry: the teachers, policemen, firemen and the like. Most of these pensions are paid out of special funds, not out of direct taxation, although the State levies taxes to pay its share into the funds. The system of accumulating funds for investment and paying old age pensions out of these invested funds is a curious manifestation of the popular obsession that government must copy the methods of private business. The learned legal counsel who were employed to explain to legislators the elaborate fund systems which they had evolved for the benefit of teachers, firemen and policemen, used to smack their lips over such impressive terms as "actuarially sound," and "business-like basis." Just how sound these private insurance methods, even as adapted to private insurance, would appear now if government had not come to the rescue by taking over the poorest risks, the ordinary man on the street and in the fund will probably never know!

Should Be Raised by Income Tax

We lose most of the advantages of a government system of old age insurance when we try to make government conform to private business methods. It is much cheaper, simpler and safer to take the money necessary to care for the old directly out of the national income by an income tax than to build up funds with monthly contributions from employers, employes and the public, to invest these funds, to collect the interest, to take over and manage property on default of the interest; to figure out the changing share of each person in the fund as investments go up or down. To establish an invested fund to pay for a cost as sure as old age is really no more sensible than it would be to establish invested funds out of which to pay the salaries of all public employes, instead of using direct taxation.

There is a tendency for the people who are most opposed to government activity in any field, when they reluctantly yield to some phase of it, to use all their influence to make that activity so awkward and expensive that the whole principle of government action is held up to ridicule. By imposing upon government forms suited to private business but totally unsuited to government, they cause us to lose the advantages which would be possible under government activity properly administered.

Invested Fund Not a Safeguard

Some people are obsessed with the idea that an invested fund is a safeguard in time of depression. Exactly the opposite is true. Depressions play havoc with invested funds just as they do with the ability of taxpayers to pay. Why would a pension reduction because of lack of taxable income in a time of depression be any more of a hardship than a reduction because of loss of invested funds? Public employes do not draw their salaries from the interest on invested funds. When there is a depression, and employes of private concerns are taking cuts, people expect public employes to take them too. When prices are down, it is no more of a hardship for a retired worker to take a cut than for an active worker to take it. Consequently there is no more reason for an invested fund to safeguard retired workers, than for a fund to safeguard the wages of active workers.

The census figures for 1930 show that there are in the United States 6,634,805 persons over sixty-five years of age; 10,386,026 persons over sixty years of age; and 15,031,703 persons over fifty-five years of age.

To pay $40 a month to all over sixty-five would cost $265,392,200 per month; to all over sixty, $416,441,040 per month; to all over fifty-five, $601,268,120 per month.

Burden Would Not Be Impossible

With the present trend of public sentiment, it would probably be popular policy to pay these pensions by levying an income tax at a rate increasing with increasing income. But even if the system were actually based on a poll tax, the same for all, instead of an income tax varying with income, the burden would not be impossible for the average worker to whom an old age pension through endowment insurance in private insurance companies is prohibited by the high costs of salesmanship, of the political activities of the companies, of large administrative salaries, and in many cases of unnecessarily expensive quarters.

If all between the ages of twenty and sixty-five contributed equally to the pensions of those over sixty-five, each one would have to pay $3.88 a month. If all between the ages of twenty and sixty contributed equally to the pensions of those over sixty, each one would have to pay $6.41 a month. If all between the ages of twenty and fifty-five contributed to the pensions of those over fifty-five, it would cost each one $9.99 a month.

That is cheap insurance, especially when we consider that in many families there will be older members receiving more every month than the younger members are paying out for pensions.

While I am an advocate of the income tax rather than the poll tax as a method of raising money to pay pensions, nevertheless I believe that if we could not obtain the national old age pension except by poll tax, even that method would be infinitely preferable to our present precarious manner of providing for our old age. That would simply mean a minimum compulsory endowment insurance for all at the lowest possible cost for the clerical work of collection and distribution.

This minimum compulsory endowment insurance would take in Mr. Brown, the ditch digger, who has never been able to give his family the comforts of life, medical and dental care and education, much less save any money; Mr. Smith, the clerk, who has grown old on the job and has no savings except his home; and Mr. Rockefeller, the millionaire. Our real need is not merely for a pension for the absolute poor; it is for a minimum of security for all, rich and poor. It is for the cheapest

NOTICE

To All Locals and Members of the American Federation of Musicians: As a result of previous notices, the President's office has been successful in securing copies of the 1914 and 1915 Convention Proceedings.

However, we have not located the copy of the 1913 Proceedings. We, therefore, request that you make a further search of your files for same. If successful in locating a copy, kindly forward same to the President's office at once. JOSEPH N. WEBER, President, A. F. of M.

NOTICE

To All Members and Locals of the American Federation of Musicians: During theatrical entertainments acts often appear in the jurisdictions of Locals in which those comprising the act chiefly confine their services during same to other activities than playing musical instruments, and only incidentally play such during a small portion of the act.

Under these conditions our Federation has never insisted that the members of such acts which incidentally play musical instruments must carry traveling cards, or are in any other way governed by the laws of the American Federation of Musicians which govern traveling musicians.

As misunderstandings concerning this matter have often developed, and in order to avoid such in future, Locals are hereby advised that the following rule applies to such members of acts as play musical instruments during the performances of the act: "If the services of the members of an act chiefly consist of acting, singing, dancing, acrobatic exhibitions, tumbling, clowning, that is, services other than that of musicians, and a member or members of the act during the performances of the act, incidental to their other services, play a musical instrument, then they are not obliged, for the purpose of doing so, to carry traveling cards in the American Federation of Musicians or pay traveling musicians' tax to the Federation." JOSEPH N. WEBER, President, A. F. of M.

NOTICE

To All Members of the Federation: Attention of the President's office has been called to the fact that several of the smaller steamship lines are attempting to engage musicians for their room and board and transportation only, and in some cases offering a small stipend in addition thereto.

The Federation provides a wage scale of $90.00 per month on all ocean-going steamships, and any member who accepts an engagement for a lesser price is in violation of Federation laws and will be fully prosecuted. Members may secure copy of the Federation wage scale and working conditions for ocean-going steamships by addressing the President's office. JOSEPH N. WEBER, President, A. F. of M.

NOTICE

The Federation provides a wage scale of $90.00 per month on all ocean-going steamships, and any member who accepts an engagement for a lesser price is in violation of Federation laws and will be fully prosecuted. Mid-year meeting of the International Executive Board called to order by President Weber at 2:00 P. M. Present: Bagley, Hayden, Weaver, Jarrott, Petrillo, Greenbaum and Kerngood. Excused: Brenton, owing to unavoidable absence.

The President reports on the activities of his office during the period since the last Convention.

A request is received from Al A. Green, a former member of Local 5, Detroit, Mich., for consideration of his appeal from an action of that local in imposing fines totaling $50.00, and its decision in holding he had surrendered his membership by alleged violation of Article X, Section 29 of the National laws. A report of State Officer Mackey of Florida who has investigated a complaint of Local 806, West Palm Beach, Fla., against Local 672, Lake Worth, Fla., is considered and referred to President's office for final disposition.

In the matter of overtime charges for Grand Opera performances where the law did not provide for overtime charges on performances at time of the negotiating of contract, the Board holds that under the conditions such charges cannot be made and that a law of the local subsequently enacted cannot be applied to the contract.

A request for reopening of Case No. 249 wherein the Board denied the appeal of member George W. Ventre of Local 9, Boston, Mass., from an action of Local 409, Lewiston, Me., in imposing a fine of $100.00 upon him, is considered and on motion the case is reopened. Y., against members Charles Gandolfo and Arthur Lee of the same local for alleged violations of the laws of the A. F. of M., and wherein fine of $50.00 was imposed on member Charles Gandolfo. Meeting of the International Executive Board called to order by President Weber at 10:00 A. M. All present but Treasurer Brenton, who is unavoidably absent.

The Board holds that the language of the law governing traveling bands and orchestras precludes the application of the 10% charge mentioned therein where only one musician renders services, as one musician does not constitute a band or orchestra.

The entire case, consisting of appeals, reply, rebuttals and sur-rebuttal of the local, is read.

The President advises the appellants as well as representatives that their comments and arguments must be confined to direct amplification of what was introduced in the original presentation of appeals, reply, rebuttals and sur-rebuttal, as the case was complete and would have been so considered in the usual routine of cases before the Board.

After a prolonged and exhaustive hearing, during which each of the representatives of Local 248 and the appellants had full opportunity to present his viewpoint and contentions, the hearing was closed. Thereafter, after due deliberation of all oral evidence, as well as all briefs and documents submitted by complainants and defendant, the action of the local meeting in setting aside the result of its last annual election and suspending two officers from office was reversed, the election declared lawful, and the appeal sustained.

Case No. 908 of the 1933-1934 Docket, appeal of member Meyer Davis of Local 802, New York, N. Y., from an action of that local in imposing a fine of $300.00 is taken up. The case is read. On motion, the appeal is sustained.

Consideration is given to a protest of member Mark Griffith that Local 646, Burlington, Iowa, had illegally reinstated Ray Carlson. All the correspondence in the case is read. On motion, the protest is not sustained.

They present a request on behalf of Local 399, Asbury Park, N. J., that the Federation make an appropriation to assist the local in meeting expenses caused it by being selected as the host to the 1935 Convention as the local is too small to entirely meet such expenses. Recess taken.

Have You Studied Harmony? Music is a universal language and like the language of speech has its own grammar. The grammar of Music is Harmony.

Music is a universal language and like the language of speech has its own grammar. The grammar of Music is Harmony.

Learn to analyze compositions—to identify the chords used and thereby get an intimate knowledge of the intention of the composer. You get at a real understanding of the basis of phrasing and accent, which is interpretation, through a knowledge of the chords used.

Harmony will also help you to memorize more readily and more permanently because you understand the reason for the progression of chords used, and are able, therefore, to carry it better in mind.

Let us give you free, a practical demonstration of the thoroughness of our methods and how easily you can master any of our courses. Sample lessons will be sent without obligation to you.

Only by making an examination of the actual lessons can you form an intelligent opinion of the real merit of this remarkable method of music instruction. They will show you how quickly you can equip yourself for greater things in a musical way and make more money from music than ever before.

Get Catalog and Sample Lessons of these Harmony Lessons; also our other courses. It costs you nothing—you have everything to gain and nothing to lose. State age and course in which interested. Try the Lessons, then decide.

Mars Raising Taxes Again.

MARS grunted and snored in his uneasy sleep a short time ago; and the President of the United States asked Congress for $792,000,000 for the army and navy in the fiscal year beginning July 1, next. This is $180,000,000 more than has been set aside for the two services in the present fiscal year; and $312,000,000 more than was put to the same use last year.

President Roosevelt is not an alarmist; not a jingo. He is obliged to seek staggering sums from Congress for domestic relief; and would not be human if he did not wish to save on other matters. Yet he asks the largest military appropriations ever sought in peace time. Why?

Evidently, Mars is stirring. One disquieting circumstance is known to all. Japan has denounced the treaty by which herself and Britain and the United States limited naval armaments. But there are still almost two years before that treaty expires; and one would think it might be possible to negotiate a new agreement in that time.

One thing is sure: The increased military and naval appropriations make it more important than ever to carry on the Senate investigations of the munitions industry, so well launched by Senator Nye. If we are going to spend such sums on armaments, we should see that we at least get our money's worth, and that no war profiteers are boosting their expected gains by stimulating scares.

Truth in Small Compass

DAVID E. LILIENTHAL, one of the three men who manage the T V A, has found the right name for the utility holding company. He calls it a "financial tape worm."

"The electric operating utilities seem to be suffering from financial tapeworm," he said. "The patient always seems hungry, and the more he eats, the thinner he seems to get. The patient thinks he ought to have more food. The tapeworm is sure that what he needs is more food."

"The doctor may decide that what the patient needs most of all is to get rid of the tape worm."

That is likely to prove one of the phrases that make history. It puts the case against the holding company in words that everyone can understand—and it puts the case right. The utility holding company, in at least nine cases out of every ten, is a parasite. It uses up the food—the rates—which the public give the operating company just as the tapeworm uses up the food given to the patient. And in both cases, the fact suggests the remedy—get rid of the parasite.

Lilienthal has given the country a phrase which tells the truth and sets forth the facts. And that is no small help toward the abolition of holding companies.

The Electric Age Coming.

THE Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Company reports 1934 the best year in its history for sales of electrical appliances. Sales ran 73% above those of the previous year; and a very high percentage of those sales are for domestic equipment. Yet the company expects to sell 40 per cent more electric refrigerators this year than it did last.

Which inspires two reflections.

First, the prophets from Senator Norris on, who have been saying that the American people are ready to use almost any amount of electric current if they can get it at a proper price, are being justified in their predictions. Indeed, they have helped to bring those predictions about. The T V A is not only a unique and so far amazingly successful social experiment; but as a salesman of electrical wares, it stands alone.

Speaking about the brains of Big Business, it is a joke that the first men in this country to slash electric rates on a large scale and insist on cheaper electric devices for the home were the college professors of the T V A, not at all the financiers of Wall Street.

But the other reflection inspired is not so comfortable. No one grudges the Westinghouse any decent measure of prosperity. But no one who has given much thought to the matter can doubt that electricity still sells too high over most of America; or that the difference between the cost of manufacture of electrical equipment, and its cost to the housewife, is simply enormous.

The high cost of selling is still with us.

Wage Restoration Aids Recovery

VIRTUALLY every cent of the 10 per cent wage restoration of Federal Government employees last year went toward industrial recovery, answers to a questionnaire sent out by the National Federation of Post Office Clerks reveal. This is of especial interest with legislation for full restoration pending in Congress.

Out of 100 sample answers, 74 used their restoration to pay old debts. Fifty-five bought needed clothing for the family. Twenty-nine made delayed repairs on homes. Thirty restored their diet to better standards of nourishment. Seventeen were enabled to renew the interrupted education of their children. Twenty-two were able, for the first time since the wage slashes, to indulge in amusements and in such additions to a "better life" as books, movies, membership in study and social clubs, etc. It is highly significant that sixty-seven specifically stated they were unable to stretch the 10 per cent restoration to cover such "near necessities" of family life.

"These answers reveal the hardship and, in many cases, downright suffering to which Uncle Sam subjected his nephews during the very period when he was exhorting private employers for the same practices," said Gilbert E. Hyatt, legislative representative of the National Federation of Post Office Clerks.

"It is shown that the wage cut was immediately reflected in a lowered standard of living which extended to such fundamentals as food and clothing. Answers to previous questionnaires show that the assumption of added obligations such as the entire or partial support of unemployed relatives was a usual development of the same period during which wages were cut."

Out Beyond the Surf

Where thought, un-hastened by necessity or trepidation, sometimes penetrates to truth. Here, where the shallow throw no spray, let us ponder and enjoy the lessons of the art and the work and play of life.

Congress meets.

Prophets proph.

All is excitement.

What will be done to which and why?

A great many pretend to know everything that is in the mill and what will happen to it.

One man knows. And he tells very little—until he wants to.

F. D. R., he knows, because this Congress will do little that he doesn't want done and if it does he will wield the veto axe pronto.

Perhaps this session of Congress is more important than the first New Deal Congress.

The first enacted emergency legislation; this one will go in for PERMANENT legislation, on the basis of experience had in the past eighteen months.

Many issues are being shaped up, but the biggest was shaped up when the smash came back in 1929. That one had been shaping for many years; it merely came to a head then—a head so visible that everyone had to see it.

"What about unemployment? What about what makes unemployment?"

Well, we shall see.

A great deal of the answer, insofar as there is to be any answer, will be found in the permanent Recovery Act.

We wait to see.

Meanwhile the unemployed are still that way, in growing numbers.

Relief is NOT the answer—not the AMERICAN answer. Labor keeps pounding that home.

Work and wages—that's the only decent answer. And good wages.

There are some wage-cutting gentlemen IN the administration, but they probably will be muffled.

Housing limps along, thus far, for reasons that labor men saw in the early stages.

There will be plenty of hot talk about how to push housing.

Plenty, too, about war profits and war profiteers, but the axe will probably NOT go to the roots in that issue.

Senator Nye seems to have been out-manuevered, for no fault of his.

But maybe that is not all loss. To center all attention on war profits would be to take the spotlight off industry profits.

Industry profits have been growing—growing while men in millions have been idle and hungry.

What about that? It's a good thing for spotlighting.

If all the big issues were put under spotlights there would be a boom in the spotlight business.

Anyhow, Congress now is in session. Plenty of greeds are in session also. Plenty of personal ambitions. Plenty of little jealousies. Plenty of petty hates.

Let us hope there is plenty of unselfish desire to serve, to do and to get somewhere.

The nation needs it. Humanity within the nation needs it.

Concerning Snow and Society

SNOW in the country is beautiful in itself, and is a promise of water for crops in the spring. Snow in cities is an almost unmixed nuisance. It clogs traffic, delays business, breaks trees in the parks and streets, sometimes breaks telephone wires. It brings hardship and distress to those who must be out in it without proper clothing; and if there is a leaky roof in town, the snow will find it. And it remains beautiful in cities only for the few hours before it is well mixed with soot.

Yet to tens of thousands of people, the snow which blanketed so much of the eastern half of our country was a boon and a blessing. It gave the husky unemployed a chance for work. Cities in the snow belt have employed tens of thousands of men, officially, for snow removal; and enterprising men and boys have tramped the residence districts for jobs. The pay they collect for this work in thousands of cases is the first money they have handled for weeks or months.

Could anything show more clearly the distorted, inside-out-upside-down, hind-side-fore nature of our economic system than the fact that an event which is a nuisance and expense to communities provides employment to many whom society does not know enough to employ under ordinary conditions?

"How will your people get through the winter?" asked a bishop of the parish priest on the storm-ridden Brittany coast. "Quite well, my lord, with the help of God and a few wrecks," was the candid reply. To some extent, we are still depending on a few wrecks—and never recognize our stupidity.

OVER FEDERATION FIELD

(By CHAUNCEY A. WEAVER)

We are going to take the liberty to reproduce some correspondence clipped from the Canton-Massillon, Ohio, Bulletin (Local No. 111), consisting of a letter from Secretary Chas. W. Weeks to Bandmaster Karl King, of Fort Dodge, Iowa, and the latter's reply, as the subject matter bears upon an issue of vital concern to band men throughout the entire national jurisdiction:

Canton, Ohio, June 29, 1934.

Mr. Karl King,
Director of Municipal Band,
Fort Dodge, Iowa.

Friend Karl:

At our Musicians' Convention in Cleveland, which I attended last week, there was considerable discussion about the Iowa Band Law. Would you kindly write and give me the amount of money which your city will appropriate for band concerts this year, 1934. We hope some day to have here in Ohio an Ohio Band Law whereby we can get a respectable amount of money from the city for band concerts. The Canton Recreation Board has appropriated money for nine concerts, but this is only a drop in the bucket compared with the cities in your state.

Thanking you in advance for an early reply, I remain, with best wishes,

Fraternally yours,

CHAS. W. WEEKS, Secretary,

Local No. 111, A. F. of M.

P. S.—If it is all right with you, I would like to publish your answer in a bulletin which our Local will send out to all our members.

Fort Dodge, Iowa, June 30, 1934.

Friend Weeks:

The Iowa Band Law permits the levying of a tax not to exceed two mills for band. The full two mills in a town this size ($1,000) raised $9,700 per year and that is what we got until two years ago when there was such a violent anti-taxation campaign everywhere, due to the depression. The "reductionists" got our budget cut about 30 per cent so that now we receive $7,000 per year, but hope to get it raised again next year.

Our budget is still the largest in the state, but several towns have $5,000 budgets, etc.

Four hundred towns in Iowa get the benefit of band tax, even the little villages; some of them so small that they only get two or three hundred dollars, but it all helps.

I sent Rinkendorf a complete list of all Iowa towns and their budgets a few weeks ago. It was the last list I had. If he still has it you might get it from him and post it on the board. We are proud of Iowa's record in this matter. Our tax law came nearly being repealed two or three times. The thing that saved it was the Iowa Bandmasters' Association and their political power and "lobbying." I think every state needs a strong bandmasters' association. It gives you an organization in addition to the union that can lobby and includes all the small town leaders.

The enclosed newspaper write-up gives you some idea of the things we do to keep up public interest in bands. Band Days, Band Festivals, etc. Things like that have to be done. One reason our band is popular and gets continued support is that we have a good band and we give them peppy programs and we don't play the same old tunes year after year and we don't stall in our concerts. We put them on like a show. FAST and really entertain the people. All the band laws in the world won't keep your band going unless you sell the public on your band and to do that you have to give them something for their money. And you can't go out and stall 10 minutes between numbers and do things like most bands and get away with it.

Our concerts only last one hour, but we practically segue all numbers and give some popular novelties, too, and put on a fast show-like performance without any intermission or talking and the people like it and would put up a "roar" if the band was taken away from them.

The reason I mention all this is that some places have had the band tax and lost it simply because they did not give the public anything for their money.

I would certainly like to see the Ohio bands get back on their feet. I suggested to Rinkendorf when he wrote me about this matter that an Ohio Band Masters' Association be organized to lobby for such things and that Frank Simon of Cincinnati be chosen to head it, as he knows what it is all about and has a national reputation and could do more for the group than any man I know of.

Certainly hope you succeed.

Regards to all,

KARL L. KING.

There are many ways of how not to do a thing, but the Karl King letter is notable for its common sense appeal. It discloses the elements which should be brought into play. Aggressiveness must be included in the capital stock. The public must be educated and interested and will make due response if they are to be provided with something worth while. King's suggestion as to what might be done in Ohio under Frank Simon's direction is a happy one. With the wonderful musical resources in that state a bandmasters' organization should be a great success. We are glad to pass along this letter and its reply as the correspondence furnishes rich food for reflection in practically every state in the Union.

We glean the following news paragraph from the Chicago Federation News, official organ of organized labor in that city, which will be of interest to A. F. of M. readers:

Until the merger of the park systems at the elections last spring a member of the West Park board, James C. Petrillo, has been appointed by Mayor Kelly as a member of the Chicago Park District Commission to take the place of John R. Nash, assistant to the Mayor, for a term expiring in May, 1936.

The City Council confirmed the appointment after Alderman Oscar Nelson, Republican labor leader, had spoken at length in praise of the musicians' veteran chieftain. In making the appointment the Mayor praised Mr. Petrillo for his assistance in many charitable enterprises.

Congratulations!

Incidental to the mid-year meeting of the National Executive Board in New York, the members were invited to attend the installation of officers of Local No. 526 in Jersey City. We repeat the wish, then and there expressed, that every Local in the Federation jurisdiction might have been privileged to witness the ceremony. Doubtless there are other Locals which stress the importance of a dignified and impressive installation of officers, but we are sure none could surpass in detailed arrangement and felicity of execution the Jersey City program. Local No. 526 has a membership of something like seven hundred, and the large and commodious hall was filled. President Harry J. Steeper was master of ceremonies. An especially fine orchestral band, under the direction of Joseph A. Jordan, musical director at Loew's Jersey Theatre, rendered several selections. President Joseph N. Weber was accorded the honor of conferring the obligation upon the newly-elected officers. Visitors from surrounding jurisdictions, and including President John MacLuskie of Wilkes-Barre, President Vincent Castrovano of Providence and George Keene of Middletown, showed their interest and appreciation. The following officers took the obligation: President and Business Agent, Harry J. Steeper; Vice-President, Hyman Hockstein; Treasurer, Harry J. Swensen; Secretary, John J. Firenze; Financial Secretary, William H. Dieffenbach; Board of Trustees, Dominick Morda, John Helwig and Frank De Blasi; Executive Committee, Henry Lippelgoes, Ray Neuer, Bert Davis, Ralph Dascenza and Charles Mazzotta. A formal installation is something more than mere ceremony. It is a quasi-public acknowledgment of responsibility assumed and a declaration of purpose to be faithful to the trust thus imposed. The program was climaxed by a bounteous lunch, keenly relished by all.

From a chance pick-up of a copy of the Seattle Post-Intelligencer, of recent date, we glean news of a happening to our old friend William J. Douglas, for many years secretary of Local No. 76 and delegate to many national conventions. "Bill" is a nimrod of much wider than merely local fame. He loves to hunt. All game comes within the scope of his sportsman ambition—the wild beasts of mountain fastness and forest range as well as birds of prey which skim the atmosphere. Some of the latter specimens proving especially elusive, "Bill" conceived the happy idea of going after them in an airplane. With three other kindred spirits an aerial migration was attempted in an effort to capture an eagle whose tantalizing antics simply emphasized determination to bring his eagleship down to earth. Higher went the eagle and higher went the plane. Somewhere in the upper atmospheric stratas hunters and hunted parted company and the airplane parked on a telephone pole near Stockton, California. In due time all four plane occupants had been transferred to a hospital, where it was discovered that "Bill's" allotment was a compound leg fracture, two broken ribs, the sacrifice of several square yards of cuticle and an array of bumps—of no small dimensions. The last seen of the eagle the proud bird of freedom was perched on the tree-limb of a projecting California mountain crag—calmly blinking at the sun. "Bill's" many Federation friends will sincerely hope that surgical skill and time's healing touch may combine to speedily restore him to his accustomed haunts. The late Mr. Longfellow observed in one of his poetic outbursts:

The day is done and the darkness
Falls from the wing of night;
As a feather is wafted downward
From an eagle in its flight.

An occasional feather comes down, but the eagle's eye is ever on the zenith, and his perigrination in that direction—in the direction of the sun.

The mid-year meeting of the National Executive Board of the American Federation of Musicians was held at national headquarters at 1450 Broadway, New York, N. Y., January 7-10. Seven protracted sessions were held and over fifty matters—many of them complicated and provocative of extended debate—occupied the attention of the Board. The resume of proceedings prepared by Secretary Kerngood appears elsewhere in these columns. Depressions and hard times do not seem to minimize the number of con-troverses pressing for adjustment. Probably this is a healthy symptom rather than otherwise, as it shows the Federation members are alive to their rights, and will not be content with less than an honest effort to vindicate them.

New York City is sometimes accused of trying to pattern after London. It would seem as though the American metropolis had now reached a numerical magnitude that would eliminate all thoughts of rivalry from contemplation, but the fog which she featured last month must have put London completely out of the running. During a four days' visit it was difficult to see the opposite side of the street. Fog-horns and fog-bells created a pandemonium which was positively uncanny to the ear of one not used to the sound. However, the usual millions who love to surge up and down Broadway were in constant evidence, both day and night. Perhaps the fog had mollifying effect upon the bright lights and was deeply appreciated by the rural visitor.

The Hudson Valley Conference of the American Federation of Musicians continues to function in an energetic way. At its recent session, Kingston, Poughkeepsie, Newburgh, Port Jervis and Middletown were represented. The meeting was held at Kingston and was entertained by Local No. 215. Fred W. Birnback, of President Joseph N. Weber's office, was a visitor and delivered an address. High school bands, how to increase membership, child labor and kindred subjects received attention. We thank Secretary John A. Cole for remembering us with an outline of proceedings. The next conference will be held in Middletown in April.

"More Great Victories Gained in Theatres" is an inspiring headline carried in the Philadelphia Musician, Local No. 77. May the words prove prophetic of the rapid approach of better days.

Perhaps before Congress adjourns the national administration will generate the happy idea of "plowing under" every third Federal employe—that is consign them back to private life. At the rate things are progressing office-holders will soon outrank the st 7-at-homes.

adjunct which bears the name—"Polski Chicagojskiej Federacji Muzyków." As an alphabetical abracadabra we submit the foregoing as far more interesting than anything the present national Federal administration has been able to evolve and we would feel safe in guaranteeing it to be far more harmonious. The Intermezzo interpretation is: The Polish Club of the Chicago Federation of Musicians." Nationally, Poland has known much of stress and storm in days gone by, but in the realm of musical achievement she has added her full quota of unfading stars to the artistic sky.

The year is passing rapidly. Only four months to the next national Convention.

Local No. 6 of San Francisco is preparing to observe in appropriate fashion the fiftieth anniversary of its existence. We predict it will prove a noteworthy event.

Do you realize that next year will plunge us into another Presidential campaign? Will prosperity still be just around the corner?

Local No. 47 of Los Angeles recently had a fire. The conflagration was well attended and the report is that a good time was had by all. The highly combustible material was in the form of bonds representing the cancelled indebtedness of the Los Angeles Musicians' Club. The incineration also was an observance feature of the fortieth anniversary of the formation of the Local. Local No. 47 has been blessed with a uniformly fine membership; always dependable in general Federation support; always vigilant in seeking to promote the welfare of its members. We congratulate the Local upon its fire, which meant a purging from the incubus of debt.

Asbury Park is a city of New Jersey, located about forty miles south of New York City. It is noted as a seaside resort and residential city. It has, however, various local industries, including the manufacture of stereoscopic instruments, pearl buttons, gold pens and leather goods. We understand its population to be in the neighborhood of 15,000. We believe Asbury Park will prove an ideal location. If the hot weather which sometimes characterizes June is prevalent throughout the land, the ocean breeze is sure to be in evidence. We anticipate a determined purpose on the part of Locals throughout the Federation jurisdiction to be represented. This is as it should be, for the convention is the law-making congress of the Federation and its importance to the rank and file cannot be over emphasized.

HE WHO PLAYS A BACH PLAYS BEST

MAL HALLET'S BRASS SECTION
ROSELAND, NEW YORK CITY
100% BACH

A good brass section "makes" a band, and Mal Hallet's excellent brass team is the backbone of this well-known orchestra. The three trumpeters, R. D. McMickle, Bob Alexy and Frank Ryerson, are thoroughly sold on their Bach trumpets, while Jimmy Johnson is full of praise for his new Model 6 Bach trombone.

Dear Mr. Bach:

Our new Bach instruments are giving us complete satisfaction. They respond even easier than our old Bachs did, especially in the high range, and they have a marvelous tone. Believe us, we are talking "Bach" to all the musicians we meet. It is the least we can do in appreciation for the service you have rendered us in supplying such fine horns.

(Signed) R. D. McMICKLE,
BOB ALEXY,
FRANK RYERSON,
JIMMY JOHNSON.

January 24, 1935.

SCOTT FISHER'S BRASS TEAM
PARK CENTRAL HOTEL, NEW YORK CITY
100% BACH

Scott, himself, poses in the above picture and shows how proud he is of his cornet section. Tune in on their radio broadcasts and enjoy the fine tone and execution of these artists. Get some of their phonograph records and hear how well the Bachs blend.

Dear Mr. Bach:

Just a few words to tell you how much we enjoy our new Bachs. Your instruments have the most solid tone of any cornets we have ever played. It took us a few days to get the "feel" of it, as a Bach has to be played with an easy, relaxed embouchure—not with "brute force," like on so many horns, but we are now familiar with the response and great flexibility and find that there is nothing like a Bach.

(Signed) HARRY PREBLE,
BARRY DREWES,
JOHN PRODIGIO.

January 23, 1935.

Bach Trumpets, Cornets and Trombones Are Instruments of Quality

They are not "bargains," but built for those artists who are ever willing to pay a price commensurate with high-grade workmanship and perfect playing qualities. Ask your dealer to send for a Bach. If he cannot supply it or tries to substitute a cheaper grade instrument, write us directly and we will gladly send you an instrument on approval. You can then compare it with any other instrument supposed to be "just as good." Write for our catalog and mention what instrument you play.

S O S

A policeman, making his rounds in the early morning, found an inebriated individual standing in a horse trough and waving his handkerchief over his head. "Hey, what are you doing there?" asked the cop.

Useless Worry

A man on trial for his life was being examined by a group of alienists. Suddenly one doctor jumped up and shouted at him: "Quick, how many feet has a centipede?" The man came back in a dry, dry voice: "Gad, is that all you have to worry about?"—Annapolis Log.

Now While the Year is Young

Now while the year is young we speculate idly upon its possible events, Envisioning matters big with consequence. Is joy just around the corner? Is the gate Unbarred to high prosperity? Will Fate Forbear now from her long malevolence And clouds disperse that gathered gray and dense? Will problems clear, and poverty abate? Heaven grant! But Wisdom bids, since earth is earth And offers mingled potions to our lips, Reliance on the simple, stable things, Virtues of wide esteem and proven worth— Love's flame kept bright for Fortune's chance eclipse. The sweet rewards of mutual ministrings. —American Mutual Magazine.

Advertising Chop Suey

T. E. Dooley, chief storekeeper of the U. S. S. Gold Star, with station at Guam, sends us an advertising card which he picked up while ashore in Chinwantao some months ago. It reads: Fung Yuan Tai Co'e. Dinner, drink, smoke, confectionery and all kinds of food are good and cheaply. The rooms are clean and broadly. The servants are kindly. If you come we are welcome and you will satisfy.—Pathfinder.

A Slight Reduction

A little man bought two tickets at the theatre box office and, followed by his wife and eleven children, started to enter. "Here," shouted the doorkeeper, "Where are the other tickets?" "What other tickets?" "Why for this crowd?" "Do you not advertise children under 12 with parents admitted free?" the movie fan asked. "But these are not under 12," came the protest. "Count them," retorted the man, "and you will find there's just eleven—we left the others at home."—Ex.

His First Fight

Mike was home, wounded from the front, and he was stopped by a friend one day as he was hobbling along the street on his new crutches. "And how did you get on in the big battle?" asked the friend. "Sure, Oi had the toime of my life," replied Mike. "But you got very badly knocked about," retorted the other. "Yes, I know that," cried Mike enthusiastically, "but it was the first fight I was ever in that the police didn't stop."—Ex.

Temporary Improvement

Down in Alabama a Negro went into a meat market, gazed long and tenderly at a chicken, and then purchased a ham. The next day he came shuffling back into the market with the ham under his arm. "Look here, Boss," he exclaimed. "This here ham am spoilt." "Why, it couldn't be," replied the surprised butcher. "It was cured in the best way." "Well, Boss, if this here ham has been cured, it sure done had a powerful relapse."—Ex.

A Federal Apprentices Program

JEAN A. FLEXNER

Organized labor has throughout its history been keenly interested in education. Labor has prompted and supported the development of a free public school system, including technical or vocational education; it has been instrumental in the growth of adult education classes, both for vocational and cultural purposes. By no means last among union aims has been adequate training for skilled jobs, and the maintenance of high standards of craftsmanship through the apprenticeship system.

The need for skilled mechanics and other craftsmen persists, in spite of the growth of mass production industries, both within the mass production industries themselves and in other trades. The services of electricians, boiler-makers, pattern makers, tool and die makers, blacksmiths, molders and machinists are essential in the construction, repair and maintenance of machine tools and semi-automatic machines, although short training periods may suffice for those operating these same machines. Individual skill and artistic workmanship require prolonged training and consequently apprenticeship will also be found wherever these qualities are desired—for example in building and carpentering, printing and engraving, cabinet and fine furniture making, and in other decorative trades.

Besides the occupations in which apprenticeship has long been one of the accepted methods of training and recruiting workers, there are no doubt others in which for various reasons, it has never prevailed, but where it might be developed to the benefit of both the workers and the trade as a whole.

The training of an apprentice is a rather lengthy, difficult and expensive process. It requires the co-operation of the employer, the public schools and the union. A good deal of social planning is necessary to put together, out of school and shop work, the elements of a successful training program. Furthermore, certain definite obligations are imposed on both employer and apprentice for a period of a year or more, and these must be thoroughly understood and appreciated by both the employer and the apprentice himself.

The depression halted numerous apprentice training programs. A surplus of skilled adult labor, the urge to reduce costs, plant shut-downs, the stagnant outlook, all combined to discourage taking on new apprentices, and made it difficult to complete the training of those already engaged. There is today a great body of unemployed youth clamoring for opportunity to begin their working careers. While many of these boys and girls would not care to commit themselves to the conditions stipulated in an apprentice contract, employers who are willing, in view of a somewhat brighter industrial outlook, to undertake their part of the contract, will probably have for the next few years a large number of promising applicants from whom to select their apprentices.

An obstacle to the revival and spread of apprenticeship is, however, presented by the N.R.A. codes which fix minimum wage rates a good deal higher than those usually paid to apprentices, and allow sub-minimum rates for learners for relatively short learning periods, but seldom allow for genuine long-term apprenticeships. In a few trades where the apprenticeship system has been regulated by union agreements, such regulations have been incorporated into codes. The N.R.A., however, made no general provision for apprenticeship, with the result that no new plans could be developed, and even such plans as those sponsored by the Wisconsin State Industrial Commission were blocked. The difficulty has been that the codes did not permit sufficient flexibility in wage rates. The wage paid during apprenticeship is necessarily different from wage rates for either unskilled labor, skilled labor, or for learners on semi-skilled processes. At the outset an apprentice is something of a liability and a nuisance; foremen and skilled workers must be paid to instruct him; he produces little or nothing, and may cause damage to goods in course of production, or to machinery. Some of his time goes in attendance at technical classes. However, as the training progresses his worth to the employer increases, and this should be recognized in a graduated wage scale starting at a low level and providing for periodic advances.

After some months during which the apprentice problem was studied by a committee representing organized labor, employers, N.R.A., U. S. Department of Labor, and the Office of Education—that is all the groups vitally interested in apprentice training—an executive order was recommended and signed by the President on June 27, 1934. This executive order so modifies the N.R.A. code provisions as to permit the hiring of apprentices at lower than minimum rates provided the apprentice contracts meet certain basic minimum federal standards. Machinery, partly federal, partly state and local in character, is being set up to approve apprentice contracts, grant exemptions to employers for apprentices engaged under approved conditions, and to supervise the training of these apprentices. Organized labor is assured representation, together with organized employers, in specifying the terms of the apprentice contracts and the ratio of apprentices in the various trades and occupations. The minimum standards already fixed by the President and the Secretary of Labor, to which all apprenticeship contracts must conform in order to secure approval, embody features that have been tested by experience in the organized trades. For the first time in the history of this country it becomes possible to develop a program of apprentice training on a nation-wide scale, with due allowances for local and industrial variations.

The program, as at present envisaged, provides at the top for a Federal Committee on Apprentice Training, and at the base for advisory committees of employers and organized workers in all trades and localities where apprentices are to be trained. The Federal Committee watches over the program as a whole, to see that action taken conforms to principles and standards laid down in the President's Executive Order and to general regulations drafted by the Secretary of Labor pursuant to authority vested in her by this order. The Federal Committee superintends the establishment of State Committees, and assists them in organizing their work. The committee is appointed by the Secretary of Labor and consists of Mrs. Clara M. Beyer, U. S. Department of Labor, chairman; Stanley Posner, National Recovery Administration, and Frank Cushman, Chief Industrial Service, Office of Education. It has an executive secretary, William F. Patterson, formerly director of guidance and placement at the Milwaukee Vocational School, who devotes his entire time to the administration of the federal program, including conferences with State Committees and interested industrial and labor groups.

On State Committees are represented the State Department of Labor, State Board for Vocational Education, State Employment Service, State N.R.A. Compliance Office, State Federation of Labor, and employers. The functions of these committees resemble those of the Commissions in Wisconsin and Oregon, the only two States at present having systems of apprenticeship regulated by statute. The State Committees assume responsibility for approving apprentice contracts, issuing certificates of exemption to employers for apprentices, organizing an educational program for apprentices, cancellation of contracts, issuing diplomas upon completion of the training period. In performing these duties the State Committees will be assisted by the various branches of State government, N.R.A., school systems, unions and other agencies—foremost among which will be the advisory trade committees.

These trade advisory committees, composed of employer and labor representatives, will advise the State Committees upon such vital questions as the need for training apprentices, where apprentices should be trained, the number or ratio of apprentices to be allowed, the course of training which should be prescribed, the length of apprenticeships, standards of performance which the apprentice should meet before obtaining a certificate of completion, and other matters. State Committees have been instructed not to proceed with approval of apprentice contracts in any trade, where a number of apprentices are to be trained, until the advisory committees for that trade have been formed and submitted their recommendations. It is believed by the Secretary of Labor and the Federal Committee that successful apprentice training must spring from a need felt and expressed by an industry, and that the details of the plan should be framed in accordance with the wishes of employers and workers in the trade.

The administrative setup just described fully safeguards apprenticeship against misuse by "chiseling" employers, since both the numbers to be engaged, and the terms of the contracts are subject to the determination of a representative trade body, and a State administrative body on both of which organized labor is represented. Furthermore, the minimum standards approved by the Secretary of Labor ensure the weeding out of proposed contracts which might result in exploitation of cheap labor, rather than in training. These standards specify that the apprentice period shall be not less than 2,000 hours or more than 10,000 hours; that 144 hours per year must be devoted to related general and technical instruction given by public authorities and that the beginning wage paid apprentices cannot be less than 25 per cent of the basic wage rate for journeymen in the locality and the average wage rate for the apprentice training period shall not be less than 50 per cent of the journeymen's rate. The Trade Committees are to decide what rate shall be taken as the local "basic wage rate for journeymen."

This program offers organized labor an opportunity and a challenge to help demonstrate the soundness of apprentice training under democratic control. Its success depends in large measure upon labor's participation. Like other social experiments now on foot, this one enjoys the advantage of centralized direction and co-ordination and is moreover set up under a permanent branch of the government—the Department of Labor. If a period of experimentation demonstrates the value of State-regulated apprenticeships, the essential features can be incorporated into State legislation, should that appear desirable.

Forgetfulness

The night before the wedding Jock was talking over the arrangements with his best man—Sandy.

"Aye, ye'll be giving us a send-off?" he asked.

"Aye, certainly," replied the other.

"With rice and confetti and white ribbons?" asked Jock.

"Och, aye, of course, man," answered Sandy.

For some minutes there was silence, and then Jock spoke:

"And might ye be throwing any old shoes, too?" was his question.

"Well, I dunno," answered Sandy, "but if you want us to, then we will."

"Why, man, of course I want ye to. But, lad, dinna forget I wear tens and Maggie wears sixes."—Ex.

British Prime Minister Flayed

The British Government's proposal for a new unemployment insurance set-up caused a violent verbal attack on Prime Minister Ramsey MacDonald by George Buchanan, a Labor member from Glasgow. Opponents of the new plan charged that it would reduce the amounts the unemployed would receive. The absence of Mr. MacDonald from the debate on the measure was used by Mr. Buchanan as the basis for his attack.

possible old-age insurance, not only for the person who has not a cent saved, or who has lost every penny he had, but also for the person who has a little home and wants to spend the rest of his life in it; even for the person who has today a comfortable income. He may not have it tomorrow. No private income is sure.

To send a monthly check to all over a certain age is much simpler than to investigate need. It is certainly much more democratic, and takes the curse of charity off the gift to those who are in actual need of it. It hurts no one who actually needs the money, since under any reasonable system of taxation, every rich man will give each month a check for taxation purposes which will be much larger than the check he receives.

In the establishment of an old age security service for all, regardless of present wealth or poverty, we have a precedent in the service which has been set up for youth security. There was a time when schools were private and only those with means could obtain schooling. Then we established a public school system, primarily for the benefit of those who otherwise could not attend school. But we did not shut the rich out of the public schools. We did not say to them, "If you have as much as three thousand dollars worth of property, you must pay for your child's schooling. To get your child into the public schools, you must give proof of poverty."

There are still private schools for the rich who want to patronize them. The children of the rich have great educational advantages over the children of the poor. They can have language instruction, expensive music training, foreign travel. But with all their advantages, they are not deprived of the opportunity to enjoy with the poor the minimum standards of training provided by the public school. No one criticizes them if they make use of this opportunity. In fact, we are inclined to applaud the rich who send their children to the public school at public expense.

Accident compensation for workmen is another illustration of equal treatment for rich and poor. An injured employe may be a well-to-do man; he may own a good home. That makes no difference under the workman's compensation laws.

If it is reasonable to establish educational security for all youth, and to establish accident compensation for all workers, in both cases disregarding the financial status of the insured, it is certainly not unreasonable to advocate a system of insurance which will safeguard the old age of every citizen, regardless of his financial status.

Should Be the Same For All

The old-age insurance provided by government should, however, be the same for all. Democratic government should concern itself not with providing special privileges for the few, but with guaranteeing minimum safety and comfort for all. As long as private industry exists, those who want more than the minimum can still use the methods of private industry which they have used in the past. But no mistakes they make in private investments should be allowed to jeopardize the sum set aside out of the national income to secure their old age from want.

In our old age pension legislation in the various States, we have stepped out on the wrong foot, but we have not gone so far that it will be impossible to shift to the other without losing ground. We should seek to shift at once to a system which is not only universal, equal and based on direct taxation, but also national in its scope.

There are many who favor the general principle of old-age pensions who nevertheless hesitate to work for a general federal old-age pension system. They have more faith in the efficiency of State than in the efficiency of federal administration; or they fear that a federal law establishing a general system of pensions for the old would be held unconstitutional.

The danger of adding to the administrative powers and burdens of the federal government through federal old-age pensions is not a very serious one. The administration of a general old-age pension for all, as here proposed, would be a fairly simple task; a clerical task, in fact. It is the "snooper" pensions, requiring proof of poverty, and the pensions derived from invested funds, which create complications and difficulties for administrators. A single federal system of compulsory saving for old age based on one federal tax would involve far less administrative detail than a variety of privilege and snooper pensions in all the States, financed by a variety of local taxes, with or without federal aid, and supplemented by a variety of private industrial insurance projects, with the probability of attempted State regulation for them. It would be infinitely simpler than our present systems of poor relief in the various States.

However, the administration of a public pension system would not approach in difficulty and complexity the attempt to regulate and control private banking, private speculation, private transportation. It is a grave error to assume that the actual supplying of public services is more of an administrative burden than the attempt to regulate and control private corporations which are supplying them. Just the opposite is true, in fact.

It is also an error to assume that the expansion of federal activity as against State activity, or of State activity as against local activity is necessarily dangerous to democratic government. It is childish to make either a fetish of home rule or State rights or national power. Home rule may be and often is arbitrary and autocratic; national activities may be carried on in a democratic manner. We can develop democratic forms in any unit of government if we desire to do so. We should consider separately each problem to be solved, and assign functions to units of government on the basis of the character of the function. Then we will assign local problems to local units; State problems to the State, national problems to the nation.

The protection of old age is clearly not a local problem and cannot be achieved adequately if treated as a local problem. A city or county or State system of old age protection means a loss of freedom of movement. Freedom of movement will be no wider than the administrative unit for old-age pension. An industrial pension is the worst kind of all, for it makes the employe an industrial serf tied to an industry over which he has little or no control.

There remains to be considered the question of constitutionality.

I would rather not touch this phase of the problem because it raises issues which demand more lengthy discussion than the limits of this article will permit. Since, however, the question has actually been raised in the case of two State acts and will no doubt be raised in connection with Federal old-age pensions, it seems necessary to meet it as well as possible in the time available.

The judges of the Supreme Court of Pennsylvania held that the constitution of that State would not permit the law of 1923 granting old-age pensions to the proved poor, since Section 18 of Article III forbids pensions or gratuities for charitable, educational or benevolent purposes; but that it did not prohibit "retirement acts not founded in charitable or benevolent considerations but upon faithful services to the Commonwealth for a long period of years," such as the act granting the judges themselves full pay with certain possible light duties!

(Busser v. Snyder 282 Pa. 440). The Arizona judges found, on the other hand, that while laws providing pensions for the proved poor might have a public purpose and thus be constitutional, laws providing pensions for those not proved in need could not be upheld under the Arizona Constitution.

A Question No One Can Answer

Whether the Supreme Court of the United States would uphold a federal law providing universal old-age pensions collected by direct taxation is a question which no one can answer. The answer depends upon many conditions; upon the lives and background of the judges who happen to be on the bench when the case comes up; upon the ability of the attorneys on both sides; upon the intelligence of the briefs filed; upon the industrial and economic situation, and resulting public opinion. Certainly it would be easily possible for the federal Supreme Court, following interpretations given in the past to the blanket provisions of the Fifth Amendment, to declare unconstitutional a statute providing a federal universal old-age pension system. In fact, it is impossible to conceive of any legislation intended to minimize the hardships of the less fortunate citizens of the nation, which could not be declared unconstitutional under interpretations which have been given to the general terms: "life," "liberty," "property," "due process of law," and "just compensation." However, the decisions of our federal and State supreme courts must in time be effected by the new economic condition which is gradually penetrating the minds of Americans. We are saying now that we have passed from a condition of scarcity in which only a few can have comforts by forcing the rest of the population to work long hours at low wages, to a condition of plenty in which all may have the comforts of life with a short workday. If ever this idea is fully grasped by those who have enjoyed the comforts of life, then those who have the power to determine the meaning of such terms as "liberty," "property," "due process," and "public purpose," may find it possible and desirable to liberalize their interpretations so as to admit the powers of the people, through their elected representatives, under their present constitutions, to do many things for themselves now forbidden by judicial interpretations of the constitution, or by fear of these interpretations.

Fear of Veto

Fear of the judicial veto has been more disastrous to American progress than the actual veto itself. Our lawmakers have permitted the question of constitutionality to play too large a part in their deliberations. Its importance has been exaggerated, until, from being the secondary, it has become the main issue, so that our legislators now center their attention upon the question "Will the Supreme Court declare this constitutional?" rather than upon the question, "Is this good or bad for the nation?" This has proved far more serious to democratic government than the problem of home rule versus State rights and increase of federal power. Paralyzed by their awe of the courts, our lawmakers in State and nation have become unable to act in emergencies; to meet the serious problems of the nation presented to them for solution. Unable to act or imagining themselves unable to act effectively on important issues, Congress sees only one way to serve the nation; it declares an emergency and on the score of that declaration, endows the executive with the powers its members are convinced they themselves do not possess. The result has been the gradual weakening of the law-making body and the confidence of the people in that body and the gradual enhancement of the powers of the executive, and of popular confidence in his powers. By weakening the legislative body, the courts have strengthened the executive to a really dangerous point.

A grave responsibility rests with our legislative bodies of throwing off the spell under which the courts hold them, and of assuming responsibility for legislating in the interests and according to the will of the people they represent. Instead of protecting the Supreme Court from popular wrath by refraining from passing needed legislation because the court may throw out that legislation as unconstitutional, Congress should go ahead with constructive legislation. If the court throws it out, Congress can start a constitutional amendment. That is certainly within its constitutional power. Personally, I think that it is unfortunate that our courts should have interpreted our Constitution in such a way that we are forming the habit of legislating by the constitutional rather than the statutory method. The statutory method requiring deliberation in two houses, adequate public hearings, a majority vote of the elected representatives and approval by the executive, offers sufficient safeguards against hasty legislation. But if the courts persist in interpreting the Constitution so as to deprive the people of the power to legislate for their own welfare and protection by means of the statutory method, then the people are justified in tacking on to an already too-detailed Constitution still more details. In view of recent popular votes of 2 to 1, 3 to 1, and 4 to 1 in favor of old-age pensions in various States, it is evident that passage of a federal constitutional provision for federal, universal old-age pensions would be by no means unreasonable to expect at this time.

A constitutional amendment which would permit old-age pensions without question might take any one of three forms. It might simply permit old-age pensions. It might permit social insurance of all sorts. It might be a general gateway amendment abolishing the distinction between statutory and constitutional law; making the statutory method also the constitutional method. This, of course, would mean a complete revolution in our form of government, a complete reversal of that principle of our government which places the reserve powers in the States; a recognition of sovereign power in the federal legislative body. It would mean amendment through the regular processes of consideration by elected representatives with ample opportunity for hearing the point of view of the interested public. It would mean continuous amendment to meet changing conditions rather than spasmodic amendment when conditions have become so bad as to be insupportable.

Amendment Not the Only Method

Formal amendment of the Constitution is not, however, the only method open to Congress and to the people to secure needed legislation. Another alternative presents itself—one which was used frequently and effectively in earlier periods of our history, but which seems to have been forgotten as Congress has grown more and more submissive to the courts.

What Congress seems to have overlooked in late years is the fact that it has power to increase or decrease the number of members of the Supreme Court. Congress has the same power over the Supreme Court of the United States which the British House of Commons has over the House of Lords—the power to increase its members. Again and again the House of Commons has threatened to use that power to prevent the Lords from vetoing vital measures. Finally it used the threat of that power to force the Lords to surrender the veto power itself.

In earlier, more virile days, the American Congress likewise used its power many times to increase or decrease the Supreme Court in order to insure the acceptance of a measure by the court. Such an action may savor of sharp and unfair practice, but the alternative of a servile ineffectual law-making body held up to ridicule by a people whom it has failed to serve, is much more dangerous to the nation and to the future of self-government.

To accept the decisions of our courts that our State and Federal constitutions permit us to provide our paid employes,

New York to Buy Street Car System

New York City's plan for municipal street railway ownership forged ahead with the announcement that the conferees representing the city and the Brooklyn-Manhattan Transit Company had practically reached an agreement on the price to be paid for the company's lines. Originally the company, it was said, insisted on $200,000,000. It was reported now, however, that the city would pay around $190,000,000, with suitable provisions for amortization.

COMMENT ON World Events

J. P. Morgan has sold six of his world-famous pictures at a price of about $1,500,000; or a quarter of a million apiece. Two of the pictures are by Franz Hals, one by Peter Paul Rubens, Fra Filippo Lippi, Ghirlandaio, and Sir Thomas Lawrence. Doubtless all the paintings are first class—if Franz Hals ever painted a poor picture, the matter has escaped attention. But of the six paintings supposed to command a price averaging $250,000 each, five were painted by men now more than two centuries dead, and Lawrence, who came long after all the others, died in 1830. There have been thousands of good and large numbers of great paintings completed since Lawrence laid down his brush. Remembering these, it is clear that the price paid for the six Morgan paintings represents perhaps one part of devotion to art and nine parts pride in owning something which only a handful of people can afford. Our millionaire "art patrons" would do a hundred times as much for art if they followed the example of their long dead predecessors. The Italian, Dutch and Flemish patrons of painting did not pay enormous sums, even for their own day, for the works of men long dead. They patronized their contemporaries.

Since the beginning of the depression in the United States attention has been centered so much on the adult unemployed and particularly upon families affected by unemployment that a serious situation has arisen with respect to older boys and girls who reached the age of customary self-support. They are forced on their own, and because they have no dependents little is done for them by the relief agencies. It has been said that the "forgotten man" is now the youth from 16 to 25. Among them are many mere youngsters. They migrate freely, incurring physical and moral risks, they have no trade or profession, they lack motivation for serious work, and they have become an army of the "never yet employed." The CCC camps have taken care of a part of the problem, as they include boys as young as 18. But only employment on a permanent basis, for those ready for it, and a return to school for the others, will meet the situation. The organ of the German Labor Front, the "Deutsche," which recently regarded it as its educational ideal to make the German workers into blindly-obedient "soldiers of industry," publishes, under the title of "Mass Man or Personality?" an article from which the following extract is taken: "The ruthlessly suppressed masses are merely the instrument for these tyrants, who do not regard them as differing in any way from dead matter. Calculations are made with the 'mass man' just as calculations are made with machinery, goods, construction. Man is a cipher, he is just one particle of an immense machine. He is not allowed a will of his own. The will belongs to the dictator. The mass man is not allowed to create or to strive for progress, for the dictator alone decides whether he shall go forward or be submerged." Of course, the "Deutsche" is not talking about Germany, but about Russia! And the dictator is not the one who lives in Berlin, but the "Jewish dictator" in Moscow! But what the "Deutsche" says applies with equal force to Germany. Some day the German masses will realize this and then goodbye to Herr Hitler and all his gang.

What Next?

"Electronics" reports that combination of an electric window-closer and a photo-electric cell concealed in a small bedside table make it possible for the bedroom occupant to open his window by a wave of the hand after getting into bed, and to have them closed automatically next morning by the first flushes of dawn.

PRESIDENT'S BIRTHDAY BALL

Labor in 300 Cities Takes Big Part in Great National Birthday Party.

Labor in 300 cities participated in the national President's Birthday Ball the night of January 30, rallying thousands of labor men and women in the celebration which poured thousands of dollars into the battle to save children from the scourge of infantile paralysis.

President William Green and Vice-President Matthew Woll of the A. F. of L., who served as chairman and secretary of the Labor Advisory Committee, said after the celebration that they were proud of labor's participation and gratified with the extent of its efforts.

In more than 60 per cent of the cities where labor was active it worked in co-operation with other organizations, social, civic and fraternal, working under a general chairman appointed by the National Committee of which Col. Henry L. Doherty was chairman. Col. Carl Byoir, in charge of national organization, covered himself with glory by organizing twice as many birthday parties as were held a year ago.

Reports will continue to come to Labor Division headquarters in Washington, together with remittances of 30 per cent of the proceeds, which will be turned over at once to the National Committee to be transmitted with all other proceeds to the President's National Commission for research work to find, if possible, the cause and cure of the dread disease.

Riding at Anchor

By MR. MODESTUS

Arithmetic—

That is mostly just counting—
Sometimes you count up—
For other purposes you count down—
Or you may count both ways from the figure one.
You can cut things up—
And count up the pieces—
That is called division.
When you count things in bunches of equal numbers—
They call it multiplication.
When you count people, it is population.
When you count manufacturers—
It begins to run into statistics.

Mathematics includes arithmetic—just counting—

It takes in algebra—relations of quantities;
Also geometry—spaces and distances—
Which reaches out into trigonometry and calculus—
Measures the arches of heaven and the curves traveled by stars.
But it all comes back to simple counting.

People who know a little about counting—

Sometimes get to talking in big figures—
Using words to describe supposed relations of quantities—
Slip in a word or two by mistake, or on purpose—
That is when the figures begin to lie.
You can always find out whether they are correct—
By just going back to arithmetic.
All these other things are nothing but short-cuts—
Which statisticians use when they get tired of counting.

Arithmetic was the first of the sciences—

That is how important it is.
When you are puzzled by "population" figures—
Just remember that it is nothing but human beings—counted.
When they puzzle you about "labor costs"—
Go back and examine the humans whose sweat was being paid for.

In these discussions about "housing"—
Get inquisitive—insist on seeing the places where these people live.
You'll know a lot more about it also—
If you go and count the folks that live inside the housing.

Budgets will cease to bother you—
If you find the way to count them out for yourself.

Don't let the "billions" confuse you.
A billion is just a thousand millions—
Get used to thinking in any kind of units.
When pints get too numerous, you count the quarts;

To count a million parts, use gallon measures;

When the gallons pile up—take it by tons.
We use steam shovels now for moving dirt—

Where our grandfathers used wheelbarrows.

For similar reasons, we now use the "billion shovel"—

To handle the multiplied quantities which are moved by modern machines.

Don't let 'em buffalo you with a few figures!

If you can count up to one hundred—
Without using your fingers—

You have the beginnings of the famous—
Mathematical mind!

The Cherry Tree Where with our Little Hatchet we tell the truth about many things, sometimes profoundly, sometimes flippantly, sometimes recklessly

We move along 1935, watching a new and largely unknown Congress get under way, with a work that easily may turn out to be more important than the work of its predecessor Congress.

The last Congress went into a huddle and brought forth NRA, which has done certain things, but that has not made much of a dent in unemployment.

This Congress will throw out four billion dollars for a gigantic drive to get men on payrolls.

It will make NRA permanent and it will establish the principle of social responsibility by writing unemployment insurance and old age pension laws. They will be a beginning, though they will be timid.

One of the strange things about this Congress, filled with new faces, is that when legislative agents want something done, they go to the same old veterans—men who have been right in the same seat for a term or more before this one.

Those who know the ropes through experience still pull the wires and make legislation go through its paces.

But it may be different in the next session, when the youngsters get to know something about the ropes.

At this writing many of them scarcely know their way home after dark.

Administration measures are in the hands of practiced and experienced figures, like Wagner.

Of course, there are lots of things in Washington besides Congress.

There is S. Clay Williams, tobacco king, who hates unions, but who is supposed to uphold 7-A as head of the N I R B, as strange a combination as ever was.

And there is the New York speech of this same Clay Williams, in which he said we should all praise the rich, because they work for us so hard and pay Uncle Sam so much in taxes, which will yet get to be one of Washington's best jokes.

And there are certain NRA subalterns who are just now in hot water because of their zeal in behalf of business.

And there is the proposed hippodrome day, set for January 30, when labor is supposed to go, en masse, to tell NRA what's the matter—in general terms, but not in specific terms.

And there is the question of who is to administer the four-billion public works fund. And the unpleasantness between Ickes and Hopkins.

There are many other things of interest about Washington, not all of which are known to the sight-seeing guides. As a matter of fact they know more about mortar and stones and dead folks than about live folks.

If the gold decision comes before you read these lines you will know that the FAMOUS BROTHERS WHO SHARE THE SPOTLIGHT!

FAME follows the family tree. Think of the Wright Brothers in Aviation, the Dean Brothers in baseball and—in MUSIC—the great galaxy of "brother" talent shown on this page;—Brothers who are sharing the popularity and applause that the public bestows on its radio and dance band favorites.

These brothers, like so many other great artists, show a marked preference for Conn instruments. And they count it a brotherly act to let the whole brotherhood of musicians know that Conns help win success.

Try the new models now at your music dealer's store. Or write for free book. Mention instrument.

C. G. CONN, Ltd., 223 Conn Building
ELKHART, INDIANA

LOMBARDO BROTHERS—Three of the brothers in this famous family who contribute to the harmony of the renowned Royal Canadians. Voted America's most popular band in many national polls. Broadcasting regularly over NBC chain. Center, is Guy Lombardo, director. At left, Lebert, who plays a Conn Trumpet and writes us that he has used a Conn for more than 13 years. At right, Victor, who plays a Conn Baritone Sax and says: "It is the finest saxophone on the market." Both letters dated August 8, 1934.

WEEMS BROTHERS (at left)—Ted Weems and his great orchestra are clicking in their usual big-time fashion at the famous Palmer House, Chicago, where they are delighting the dining and dancing guests of the colorful Empire Room. Now broadcasting over WGN in programs that are worthy successors to their radio hits for Canada Dry and other big shots. Ted is here shown with brother, Art, his manager and able cornetist. Noted for his peculiarly sweet, velvety tone—it is Art's muted Victor cornet that you hear in the Weems' themesong. He plays a Conn exclusively and writes us on October 19, 1934: "It is one of the best horns I ever played."

MCCOY BROTHERS—Clyde McCoy's popular orchestra is a great favorite with radio and dance fans. Featured on some of the biggest programs on the air. The big attraction at Chicago's ritzy Drake Hotel for two years. Clyde McCoy, the director—"Sugar Blues in Person", is shown here with brother Stanley who plays string bass. Clyde is not only a great leader, but a talented cornetist, as well. He owns and plays a Conn Victor, in burnished gold, and writes us August 5, 1934, that "it has good tone quality, sturdy construction, and is very flexible and easy to play."

BARBER BROTHERS (at left)—Charley and Fred, left to right, have mastered the same instrument. Charley is now with Fred Waring's famous Pennsylvanians. Formerly with Whiteman. Recently purchased new Conn baritone sax and wrote us Nov. 10, 1934: "Intonation and the new valve action are just what all tuba players have long wanted." Fred directs his own orchestra. Featured in many commercial broadcasts. Has played a Conn for ten years and writes on Oct. 5, 1934: "Received fan letters while using my Conn over NBC asking what Bass I used to produce such a beautiful tone."

NAPOLEON BROTHERS (at left)—At the NBC studios, New York City, are two able artists from one family who are making their illustrious name synonymous with musical as well as military success. George B. Napoleon (right) has done outstanding saxophone work for both big networks. Featured on Cities Service, Good Gulf, Bond Bread and other big programs. Well known for his recordings and movie-tunes. Owns and plays a Conn Baritone sax and Conn Tenor sax. Writes us on October 10, 1934: "Conn saxophones are the finest made." Brother Phil (left) is a trumpeter of equally wide renown; became famous for his "hot" work with Rolfe. Plays a Conn 22B Trumpet on such programs as Show Boat, Bayer Aspirin and the Mollie Minstrels—Nov. 11, 1934.

ROLLINI BROTHERS—New York City boasts two brothers who have achieved fame as saxophone artists extraordinary. Adrian Rollini, (right) leader of the original California Ramblers. Three years at the Savoy Hotel, London. Famous for his recordings and radio work. Plays unique "slap tongue" on a Conn bass saxophone and wrote us on October 2, 1934: "Have played a Conn for 13 years. I consider Conns vastly superior to all others." Arthur Rollini, (left) a very fine tenor sax man now at Billy Rose's Music Hall. Formerly with Paul Whiteman. Has played a Conn for 7 years and writes us on September 29, 1934: "Conns excel in both tone quality and intonation."

prediction, written prior to the decision, that the government is set for eventualities is a good one.

There is wonderment about what's back of Senator Borah's bill to license corporations. It provides for a license, but nothing else. Is it an artful beginning?

Only trouble is that, as many agree, Borah loses interest when a fight is nearly won.

Washington is booming, what with legislators and lobbyists added to NRA. Keep your eye on Washington. A lot that will happen to you will start in Washington.
