Wagner-Connery National Labor Relations Act and the Courts

By CHARLTON OGBURN

WHEN President Roosevelt, on July 5, 1935, signed the Wagner-Connery National Labor Relations Act, the most important milestone in labor legislation in this country was reached. For the first time the law itself—an act of Congress—prohibited all employers in this country, whose business affects interstate commerce, from interfering with this right of the workers to organize and bargain collectively. Congress had in 1926, in passing the Railway Labor Act, forbidden the railroads from interfering with their employes in their right to organize and deal collectively. The National Labor Relations Act extends this same prohibition to all employers whose business affects commerce among the states and with foreign countries. This seems a simple enough law and a very conservative one.

But the large employing groups—notably the large manufacturing industries, such as steel and automobiles—have bitterly denounced this law—denounced it before it was passed and have been continually denouncing it ever since it was passed. No bill introduced into Congress in many years has been so vigorously opposed by all the powerful interests of this country as was the Wagner-Connery Bill. The representatives of the great interstate industries, the steel industry, the automobile industry, the textile industry, rubber industry, the publishing houses, the banks, and the associations of all of them, the U. S. Chamber of Commerce and the National Manufacturers Association, all fought this measure bitterly and did their utmost to defeat it, first in the committees of the two houses and then on the floor of the Senate and of the House.

Most Important Labor Law Ever Enacted

The National Labor Relations Act is the most important labor law ever enacted in this country. It is now a law because the workers of this country, through their own organization, the American Federation of Labor, demanded this law. The vote in the Senate of 62 to 12, in passing this bill, and the enactment in the House, without record vote, is an outstanding example of the tremendous power of the American Federation of Labor in securing the enactment of laws beneficial to the workers and against the strongest possible opposition of amassed wealth and of the vested interests.

The Congress had the authority to enact this law under the power granted it in the constitution to regulate commerce among the States and with foreign countries. It is this same power which enables Congress to regulate the labor relations of the railroads. It cannot be said that such regulation was in contemplation of the authors of the constitution, because the first railroad in the world was built thirty years or more after the constitution was adopted. It is the same power which enables Congress to regulate grain exchanges and the bidding or non-bidding of competitors in the stock yards.

Object of the Law

The objective of this law is to prohibit employers whose business affects interstate commerce from interfering with the rights of their employes to organize and bargain collectively. That is about all there is to the law. It creates a board to hear and pass on charges brought by employes against employers for violating the law and to hold elections among employes so they can select, without interference from the employer, the representatives the majority want for collective bargaining. The law authorizes the board to go into court to enforce its orders. If any employer whose business affects interstate commerce violates an order of the board, on which a decree of the court has been entered, the employer will be subject to fine and imprisonment.

With this general introduction, I should like to discuss briefly the relation of the workers to this law, their rights under it, the benefits to society, and what classes of employers will be held subject to it by the courts.

The law has to do with collective bargaining and the organization of employes for that purpose. It is not concerned with individual bargaining.

The right of workers to organize, recognized by the Supreme Court of Massachusetts, in 1842, and subsequently by all other courts in this country, must now be recognized by employers. They must, in good faith, bargain collectively with the union of their employes with a view of reaching a final written agreement.

Discrimination Is Prohibited

The two chief means by which employers defeat the rights of their employes to organize and bargain collectively are specifically prohibited in the act. The first is discrimination against employes who join the union, and the other is the fostering by the employer of company unions, which are, of course, simply devices of employers for frustrating collective bargaining.

The government of the United States thus recognizes the desirability of unions as a means, first of giving the worker some degree of equality in bargaining for the wages to be paid him and the hours he has to work, and secondly of settling industrial disputes amicably rather than by costly strikes. The necessity for labor unions, if the worker is to be a free man, has been recognized by the Supreme Court of the United States in a notable opinion by Chief Justice Taft in the case of the American Steel Foundries vs. The Tri-City Central Trade Council, 257 U. S. 209, decided in 1921, from which I take the liberty of quoting you a paragraph:

"They (labor unions) were organized out of the necessities of the situation. A single employe was helpless in dealing with an employer. He was dependent ordinarily on his daily wage for the maintenance of himself and family. If the employer refused to pay him the wages that he thought fair, he was nevertheless unable to leave the employ and to resist arbitrary and unfair treatment. The union was essential to give laborers opportunity to deal on equality with their employer. They united to exert influence upon him and to leave him in a body in order by this inconvenience to induce him to make better terms with them. They were withholding their labor of economic value to make him pay what they thought it was worth. The right to combine for such a lawful purpose has in many years not been denied by any court."

Employers form their own associations for mutual help. The corporation itself is such an organization permitted by the State and in fact created by it. Trade associations, chambers of commerce, trusts, mergers are all examples of combinations among employers. Why should employes then deny to their employes the right to have their own organization which the law has given them for nearly one hundred years? Is it that the management of corporations want to retain their own oligarchical power, giving no voice to the workers without whom industry could not exist? Do they want the power of dictators? That this thought may be the key to the answer is indicated in the lack of consideration shown by corporate management to their own stockholders. A New York lawyer recently said that the management of the U. S. Steel Corporation treated its common stockholders as badly as it did its common labor.

There are two methods, as I have said, by which employers successfully defeat the right of their employes to organize, which are specifically prohibited by the National Labor Relations Act. One is discrimination against an employe who has joined the union. This often goes to the extreme of discharging union employes or laying them off indefinitely. This is forbidden by the act and the Supreme Court of the United States has unanimously held, in an opinion by Chief Justice Hughes, that Congress had power to make this prohibition and that there is nothing in the constitution, the fifth amendment or the fourteenth amendment or the Adair case to the contrary. No longer can employers whose business affects interstate commerce discharge a worker for belonging to a union.

Forbids Company Unions

Secondly, the act forbids an employer from fostering or financing a company union. Employers have found that they can very effectively frustrate their employes in their efforts to bargain collectively by instituting a company union. For one thing, a company union divides employes into two groups. This division in itself defeats collective bargaining. To have real collective bargaining, there must be a united front by employes. Company unions are not bargaining agencies, they are the instrumentality of the employer to defeat real unionization.

Lack of time forbids any adequate discussion of the social effects of this act. I should like to stress the stated purpose of the act in eliminating strikes and to

As player, conductor and teacher, Walter Smith has distinguished himself with equal honor. His band is one of the finest concert organizations in the country. He personally teaches 80 students who come from all parts of the country. He is in great demand for solo engagements throughout the country and broadcasts regularly from Boston stations.

Mr. Smith uses a Buescher True-Tone Model 265 Custom Built Cornet, pictured above. Here is an excerpt from one of Mr. Smith's recent letters:

"The intonation of my Buescher True-Tone cornet is positively flawless and the quality of tone one of the loveliest I have ever heard. Among its other good qualities is the ease of tone production throughout the entire range. I am particularly impressed with the solidity of tone in the lower register. The instrument exceeds my fondest expectations."

Give Your Playing a Lift with the New "Balanced-Tone" Selmer

Play one simple scale on this new Selmer and you'll understand why we are justified in calling it the finest clarinet of our time. Play this radically improved instrument for a single evening and you'll hesitate to go back to your present clarinet. With this latest Selmer you can produce a tone of silken brilliancy. One note follows another in uncanny uniformity of timbre. There is no hollow quality in the low right-hand tones—no thin nasal-ity in the throat tones. Extreme high notes come with unexpected ease. You'll glory in the tuning of the Selmer "Balanced-Tone" clarinet. Forcing and favoring, "lipping" and worrying are gone forever. Here is a tuning precision that experts have considered impossible in an instrument tuned in twelfths. Yes, we know you've heard these claims before—and have been disappointed, too. But you are the final judge of whether this new clarinet will give your playing a "lift"—whether it will make a definite, noticeable improvement in your work. So we nite, noticeable improvement in your work. So we say, "Give the 'Balanced-Tone' Selmer a thorough and exacting trial. We are sure your opinion will verify the statements we make about this unusual instrument." The coupon will bring you complete information without obligation.

LIP TROUBLES? Until "BUILT-TO-FIT" mouthpieces came there was no CONSISTENT remedy for lip problems. Whoever doubts that statement, but is burdened with lip troubles, is MOST inconsistent. For it is the height of folly to carry such a burden if there is a remedy. MILLIONS have sought that reliable remedy and have not found it. BUT I HAVE FOUND IT! Send a postal card today asking for information. It is free. HARRY L. JACOBS 2948 Washington Blvd., Chicago, Ill.

LOUIS Says: "YOU CAN'T BEAT THIS BABY!"

LOUIS ARMSTRONG PLAYS SELMER

● Louis "Satchmo" Armstrong knows what he's talking about. He's been the high-note swing idol of trumpet players for years. Louis has an international reputation. In commemoration of his twelfth command performance before the King, the Palladium Theatre, London, presented Louis with the finest trumpet money can buy—a Selmer.

Try a French Selmer trumpet. Like Louis, you'll say, "You can't beat this baby!" Some Selmer features: (1) custom built in Paris from resonant French brass; (2) takes everything you can give it without "breaking" or getting stuffy; (3) retains true trumpet quality when playing soft; (4) has remarkably fast valve action; (5) actually increases your range. Send today for free literature and information about non-obligating free trial.

COMMENT ON World Events

Military revolution has showed its head in Japan; and though that head seems to be bloody and battered just now, there is no telling when or whether it will shake off its numbness, and come on again. The uprising had command of a very considerable part of the army stationed in the capital, Tokio. The leaders proceeded to murder three members of the cabinet — the Finance Minister, the Confidential Keeper of the Privy Seal, and the Inspector General of Military Education. Others were attacked, but escaped. All the murdered men were classed as liberals; men who do not want war, who do wish to cut down military expenses, and have a closer approach to peace. That is why they were killed; that, and the fact that in the recent election, the liberals made strong gains. The military party struck, because it feared to be pushed to a back seat if it waited.

Even with liberals in office, Japan has been most aggressive. In a few years, she has annexed Korea, dominated Manchuria and northern China, and penetrated deeply into Mongolia. Power to the military party could mean only a still more intense drive for territory and markets—for Japan has become a great manufacturing nation, and her textile mills are probably the best in the world. All accounts from Japan agree that the extreme military party wants a Fascist despotism, in which not even the Emperor can interfere with the army. The Prussian junkers were hardly more insane in 1914 than the Japanese militarists are now. The obvious and immediate aim of this clique is to bring all eastern Asia under Japanese rule, and draw on the limitless man-power of China to make further conquests.

Japan is powerful and dangerous because she has seized on modern military and industrial developments. Her basic strength is not great. Japan proper contains 148,000 square miles—10,000 square miles less than the State of California. Three-quarters of Japanese land cannot be tilled; yet on this cramped and largely barren area, she has more than 64,000,000 people. Her fisheries are of enormous value; but her mineral resources are scanty. Yet her jingoes murder their own statesmen that they may stand on the prostrate body of China, and shake a dripping sword at the world. Whom the gods would destroy, they first make mad—but those whom the gods make mad run amuck over peoples who are not mad, and who ask only to be at peace. Japan under the rule of those who staged this uprising would be a definite and serious menace to the world.

British public opinion which is bitterly opposed to Fascism and dictatorship finds itself suddenly confronted with the fact that leading British arms concerns are helping in the re-arming of Nazi Germany. According to the investigation of the British Arms Inquiry Commission and the testimony given by Charles R. Falrey, head of the Falrey Aviation Company, a considerable number of machines exported by this company were sold to Germany "with the full knowledge and consent of the British Air Ministry." Falrey stated at the same time that it would have been impossible for any military aircraft to be exported from Great Britain without the knowledge of the British Air Ministry.

A Dog's Life
Counsel (in divorce case)—"Is it true your husband led a dog's life with you?"
Wife—"He did. He came in with muddy boots, leaving footprints all over the carpet. He took the best place near the fire and waited to be fed. He growled at the least provocation and snapped at me a dozen times a day."—Ez.

His Preference
"Are you keen about corn on the cob?"
We asked the Kentucky mountaineer.
"Wall, stranger," he replied, "hit's all right, but Ah prefers cawn out of a jug. You see Ah kin enjoy that even if mah teeth are all gone—and Ah kin git it all year 'round, too."—Ez.

One Union's Strong Position

THE Monthly Labor Review of the United States Bureau of Labor Statistics publishes in its current issue a summary of the work of the International Typographical Union which ought to interest all members of other unions. Thus:

"Of the 435 newspaper establishments in the United States and Canada which are members of the American Newspaper Publishers' Association, 321 operate their composing rooms under a contract with a local of the International Typographical Union, and fifty-one others on a union basis, but without a contract.

"The 372 union establishments employ a total of 23,868 members, or 71 per cent of all Typographical Union members working on newspapers, 32.1 of the entire union membership. The sixty-three non-union establishments include forty-two which are within the territorial jurisdiction of some I. T. U. local union, but operate on a non-union basis, and twenty-one which are located outside present I. T. U. local union jurisdictions.

"The 372 union establishments publish 455 daily newspapers and 192 Sunday newspapers. The non-union establishments within union jurisdiction produce fifty daily and eighteen Sunday papers. The twenty-one establishments outside union jurisdiction publish twenty-one daily papers and one Sunday paper; the average circulation of these daily papers is small; being approximately 7,000."

The Inefficient Steel Trust

FOR the first time since 1931, the United States Steel Corporation made a profit last year. Its net profit is reported at $1,084,917 for 1935. In 1934, it had a net loss of $21,667,780.

Meantime, Inland Steel reports net profits of $9,417,818 in that same year of 1935; and Atlantic Steel, a mere one-horse business by comparison with United States Steel, cleared $234,590. Others of the smaller steel companies have been prosperous during the year; but their formal reports are not yet published.

What does it mean when a billion-dollar corporation loses money steadily for three years, and even at the end of that period, wins profits of a million dollars, when a company in the same business, not one-tenth of the Steel Trust's size, made profits through most of the depression and cleared nine times as much as United States Steel in 1935?

One thing it means is that Mr. Justice Brandeis is right when he speaks of the "curse of bigness," and says that corporations can get so big that they are thoroughly inefficient. Apparently, the Steel Trust has done just this thing. That the Trust could drive almost any small company out of business is doubtless true. But that the Trust is efficient in itself is just as plainly untrue; and the figures show it.

Unwise Taxation for Relief

THE committee on relief for the destitute and unemployed appointed by Governor Nice of Maryland has recommended the enactment of a 1 per cent consumers' sales tax as the major source of revenue for this purpose during the coming year.

Of course, the consumers' sales tax is utterly unwarranted either for relief or any other object. It is a tax that bears most heavily on the poor, who are least able to pay it, and least heavily on the well-to-do and the rich, who have abundant resources hardly touched as yet for necessary governmental expenses.

Although the sales tax is inherently inequitable as a general proposition, it is especially out of place when used to raise funds to relieve the destitute aged or jobless. Relief is a social responsibility which should be met by regular tax procedure. The amount paid for relief should not be contingent on or determined by special or extra levies on either persons or property, but on the needs of those requiring public assistance. The payments should be made out of the general funds collected from all taxable sources.

They say "money talks." Why not make it "speak" for the Union Label, Shop Card and Button?

Secretary Ickes Scores Big Business

"BIG BUSINESS has chosen for itself in this campaign an interesting alias, the American Liberty League. This offspring of a notorious political miscegenation held a banquet in Washington a short time ago, a banquet at whose board, according to the conservative Washington Post, there were seated persons representing a billion dollars in wealth.

"The controllers of this great aggregation of capital flocked into Washington on special trains because their hearts were bleeding for the under-privileged and the oppressed among their less fortunate fellow citizens.

"The government is of no use to big business except when big business is in trouble. When adversity comes, the first to rush by airplanes to Washington are the big business men."

These are some of the remarks of Secretary Harold Ickes at Chicago the other day. They make a right good editorial.

Merchants would not carry foreign-made and unfair goods if they could not sell them.

Low-Rent Housing Snagged

EFFORTS of the Federal Government to provide low-cost housing at rentals within the reach of small-income groups meet one barrier after another.

Private real estate interests have fought the housing policy from the beginning. In a number of cases Federal judges, instinctively hostile to social welfare activities by the Government, have issued injunctions tying up projects pending a decision by the United States Supreme Court relative to the housing statute.

In order to bring rent charges down within the reach of those who require cheap housing the Public Works Administration, which is sponsor for the projects, donated 45 per cent of the cost from Federal funds. Under this plan rentals would be based on 55 per cent of construction costs.

Now Comptroller General J. R. McCarl erects another barrier to the housing developments with the ruling that inasmuch as the law does not specifically state that rents may be based on less than construction costs the Government must fix rents sufficiently high to defray the Government's total investment.

In commenting on the ruling Secretary of the Interior Ickes declared "it is perfectly obvious that if the low-income group, now living under the most wretched conditions imaginable, are to be given decent shelter and opportunity to grow up as useful citizens, there must be a subsidy applied to their housing."

He added that the situation created by Mr. McCarl's edict would require "mandatory" legislation by Congress sufficiently comprehensive "to permit the administration of the PWA slum clearance program."

It is believed that sentiment in both the Senate and the House of Representatives favors the Federal subsidy plan vetoed by Mr. McCarl and that appropriate legislation to make the lower rents effective will be enacted in the near future.

Union-earned money should be spent for Union-made products, but encourage your friends to spend any kind of money for them.

A unique method of making personal the horror of war has been adopted by the Congregational Church of Brandon, Vermont. The names of ninety-five men and boys in the parish who might be called in case of war are inscribed on a scroll posted in the vestry of the church. Under the heading is the inscription, "Would your loved one return?" Below the name is written "Work now to make war impossible."

The proposal to restrict the entry of alien actors and musicians into the United States except on a reciprocal basis with foreign countries was urged before the House Immigration Committee by Elizabeth Hoepfel of the Grand Opera Artists' Association, New York City. It was pointed out that this phraseology sounded much like the language in trade agreements covering wheat, potatoes and other commodities. Miss Hoepfel retorted that it didn't make much difference whether singers and musicians were classed with lemons, potatoes or cabbage, so long as there was a "fair exchange."

Out Beyond the Surf

Where thought, un-haunted by necessity or trepidation, sometimes penetrates to truth. Here, where the shallows throw no spray, let us ponder and enjoy the lessons of the art and the work and play of life.

There have been some more or less raucous gufaws going up from the politically unwashed, anent the ability of the Supreme Court to turn backward somersaults and side-flips, in connection with the various issues brought before it at different times. The ability of the Court—we would not say of the individual judges of the court—to carefully discern the ownership of the ox which is being gored, is something which your ordinary high school youngster feels qualified to talk about in these days.

But it remained for the illustrious representatives of Big business to place the cap-stone of credulity and super-confidence in the ability of the great Court, in the matter of discernment of emergencies and beneficiaries.

It is in the matter of affecting the Sugar Institute, brought before our legal high priests for violation of the anti-trust laws on the initiative of the Federal Trade Commission. Under the NRA—of blessed memory—such things as the Sugar Institute is accused of doing were quite according to the rules of the game as amended. But with the death of the Blue Eagle, no protecting wing hovers over those in business—Big or Little—who combine in restraint of trade.

Comes now: The Cotton Textile Institute, with The Window Glass Manufacturers and the National Lumber Manufacturing Association, and the Consumers' Goods Industry Committee, before the bar of the Highest Court, asking that august body to "construe" laws which have been on the statute books for decades, and which have been clearly construed, and ask that these laws be changed "by construction"—of the Court—to permit "these friends of the Court" to do things which the Congress—and the Court—has said they must not do.

To be sure, the president of the Cotton Textile Institute did mention the matter also to a Congressional sub-committee, being as he was there anyway on some other business. But they went first to the place where they have been getting real favors of late—to the big white temple of "Equal Justice Under Law."

These are the gentlemen who wanted to be "let alone," and they would bring back prosperity, all by themselves. And now they have made the discovery that there are some chiselers sitting in the game along with them, and they want a good, big club.

So this is the way they would do it! Well, we happen to have the record of these eminent gentlemen, and we do not believe that they would stop there. They would next ask for the "construction" of a few more things, like the Norris-La Guardia Act, and every other law which gives to the workers some of the privileges in their fields which the corporations acquire by virtue of their charters as corporations.

They want now the power of super-combinations, the thing which twenty-five years ago was branded as "combination in restraint of trade." Given this, they will take the bit in their teeth and go down the highway to something which Americans have been trying for fifty years to keep from stumbling into. Lincoln warned us of it. The American labor movement has helped to restrain them from wrecking the basic liberties of freedom of speech, of press and of assembly. But give them the power of free action in their trade associations, unhindered by the anti-trust law, as they are asking, and you might as well write off the Bill of Rights in the first ten amendments to the Constitution.

Let's "inflate" wages by buying only Union-made goods and Union-services.

Q.—What per cent of trade union workers are now unemployed?

A.—Reports from unions to the American Federation of Labor indicate that in January, 17.3 per cent of the membership was idle. Twenty-two per cent had part-time work.

(By CHAUNCEY A. WEAVER)

The Ohio-Kentucky-West Virginia Musicians' Association recently held a conference session, which official setting is envisioned by Secretary-Treasurer Carroll McGhee, of Local No. 103, of Columbus, in the following words:

"In an invigorating and cheerful atmosphere, the Queen City of Cincinnati, resting serenely on the throne-like banks of the beautiful Ohio River, opened her arms in welcome to the visiting delegates. No truer exemplification of warm hospitality was ever more in evidence than during this period marked notably by the attention and care of the delegates by Oscar Hill, our host."

In the reported proceedings we note a list of forty delegates.

A feature of the program was reports from various locals regarding the progress made with WPA relief enterprises.

Cleveland reported a WPA "Little Symphony" with forty members and of effort being made to expand the list to sixty.

Cincinnati told of a project cost of $165,000 for one year embracing various kinds of musical activity.

The report does not disclose very much WPA activity in other conference jurisdictions. The general inference seems to be warranted that hopes of realization are frequently strangled by governmental red tape.

Assistant to the President Thomas F. Gamble, of President Weber's office, was present and stressed the technical adjustments constantly necessary in order to secure WPA or any other kind of Washington assistance.

Otto Kapl, president of Local No. 4, Cleveland, presented copy of a bill which has the approval of the Ohio State Federation of Labor, prohibiting the use of teachers, pupils, students, etc., from competition with union musicians, which we believe is quite similar to the one proposed in the State of New York.

The resume of local conditions aside from the WPA issue was interesting as disclosing how contrasting these may be in jurisdictions closely adjoining each other.

Cincinnati musicians enriched the visit of the delegates with musical offerings of the traditional high standard.

Sometimes we are disposed to feel that winter is also unconstitutional.

We are free to say that we have no sympathy with the affirmative side of the current debate which holds that the Supreme Court of the United States shall be deprived of its power to pass upon the constitutionality of a legislative act.

It is even charged that the exercise of such power is a clear usurpation—wholly unwarranted by the text of that great document itself. It strikes us that only a superficial reading could warrant any such inference or statement.

The Constitution provides that (Article III, Section 1):

"The judicial power of the United States shall be vested in one Supreme Court, and in such inferior courts as the Congress may from time to time ordain and establish."

The Constitution further defines the Court's jurisdiction by providing that (Article II, Section 2):

"The judicial power shall extend to all cases in law and equity."

Again, the Constitution declares (Article IV, Par. 2):

"This Constitution, and the laws of the United States which shall be made in pursuance thereof; and all treaties made, under the authority of the United States, shall be the supreme law of the land."

No one can read the debates of that great constitutional convention without finding convincing proof that it was the intent of the delegates to vest the Supreme Court with the very power which it has exercised from the beginning.

Providing for such a tribunal, and investing it with the powers outlined, was the logical climactic act in the creation of a Federal government, consisting of three branches—the Legislative, the Executive and the Judicial.

With this triumvirate of powers thus balanced, the checks and balances necessary to "form a more perfect union, establish justice, insure domestic tranquility, and secure the blessings of liberty" to that and future generations, moved Gladstone when he declared the instrument to be the most remarkable one of its kind ever emanating from the mind of man.

Has any reader of these lines ever seen or heard of a better government than the one under which we live? No sensible individual will contend that the Constitution should be immune from amendment. It has already been amended 21 times and the document itself provides the means for the effectuating of that purpose. Our forefathers, however, in their great wisdom saw to it that amendment or revision should be brought about only as the result of careful thinking and calm deliberation rather than by the outburst of passion and immature reflection.

Modification of the power of one branch of government tends to the centralization of power in the other two. To that extent liberty begins to yield to tyranny. Scuttle the judicial power, and elect a rubber-stamp Congress to pass your laws, and what might not be accomplished at the hands of a designing and ambitious dictator in the executive chair?

Between February 1, 1790, and July 1, 1935, the United States Supreme Court declared just sixty laws to be unconstitutional.

During that same period the Chief Executive vetoed six hundred and eighty laws which the Congress had passed.

Which does the reader look upon as the more dangerous to liberty—the power of veto, or the power to annul?

Perhaps, more on this subject, anon—If the present debate continues.

When a woman makes a good secretary in the office of a Local we notice that there is quite a pronounced disposition to retain her services for an extended period. Two illustrative cases are those of Maude E. Stern, secretary of Local No. 228, of Kalamazoo, Mich., and Fanny Benson, secretary of Local No. 531, of Marion, Ohio. Recent reports show re-election in both cases.

Another well-known bandmaster and composer has fallen from the ranks. Fred Jewell died at his home in Worthington, Ind., February 11th, 1938, at the age of 60 years 10 months and 22 days. He had been in poor health for six months and had not been able to be about since last November. Cancer was the cause of death.

In recent years Mr. Jewell had been identified with the Fred Jewell Music Company, dealing in band and orchestra music. For something like twenty years he had been musical director of the leading circus bands of the country—beginning with the Wallace Shows in 1897-98—after which came the same connection with Gentry Brothers, Ringling Brothers, Sells-Floto, Barnum and Bailey, Hagenbeck and Wallace. Later he had charge of the Murat Shrine Band, at Indianapolis, the Concert Band at Tampa, and the Worthington High School Band in his home city. There are few bandmen identified with the musical activities of the past third of a century who will not have vivid recollection of "Our Special," "Outlook," "Quality Plus," "Screamer," "Supreme Triumph," "March of the Prophets," "Shrine of Liberty," and many other meritorious numbers—marches, waltzes and overtures which might be named and which came from his pen. During his extended career he also directed the National Band of Fairfield, and the Iowa Brigade Band of Oskaloosa, Iowa. He was a member of the American Bandmasters' Association and was immensely popular with all who knew him. Fred Jewell was a credit to the profession with which he was so long identified.

An "Open Shopper" Who Ran Shop That Was Really Open

By JOHN P. FREY

President, Metal Trades Department, A. F. of L.

The subject of these recollections surrendered his earthly responsibilities so many years ago that personal reference can now be made without embarrassing his business associates who may survive.

When we began to work for Mr. Frank Williams as a molder, he had been foundry superintendent of the Crompton Knowles Company (loom manufacturers) of Worcester, Mass., for many years. The foundry was one of the largest in the city. Because of the reputation Mr. Williams had established as a fair man to work for, there was generally a waiting list of applicants for jobs, a condition which Mr. Williams appreciated, for it gave him a number of molders from whom to select, the result being that the foundry operated with picked men.

Frank Williams possessed many of the finer sterling qualities of New Englanders. His word was as good as his bond; a promise was as sacred as a contract. While a firm disciplinarian, he was also considerate, combining his consideration with a natural shrewdness, which resulted in efficient discipline yet leaving an open door when personal relations became strained.

Ability Only Job Test

If a molder was discharged because of personal habits, he was not debarred from future employment, for Mr. Williams believed in salvation on earth as well as in the Beyond. A frank avowal of error on the molder's part would generally result in his being reinstated in the foundry.

The Crompton Knowles foundry employed union and non-union molders, Mr. Williams insisting that his only test for employment was ability and willingness to make good castings. Sometimes the majority of the molders were members of the union. Frequently when a molder had been discriminated against for union activities in some other foundry, he would find employment with Frank Williams. The only rule relative to unionism enforced was that the question should be discussed outside of the foundry.

For many years Worcester had been an active "open shop" city, the "open shop" employers using such means as they could command to prevent any trade union organization among their employes.

Was Frank "Open Shopper"?

Mr. Williams was also an "open shopper" who did not keep his opinions to himself or his light under a bushel. His belief in a so-called "open shop" was expressed at employers' meetings vigorously, time and again.

Apparently a shop where non-union men could work with union workmen, was a condition which corresponded with his New England ideals, traditions and impulses, but in practice he applied his ideals in a manner which sometimes caused other businessmen to raise an eyebrow, and at the same time puzzled his molders, for while affirming his "open shop" policy, he never indicated any prejudice against molders in his employ who were officers in the local Molders' Union.

Some twenty-five years ago, when the National Founders' Association was making an energetic drive for membership, a representative met with the Crompton Knowles board of directors in an effort to persuade them to affiliate. All that could be said or invented which would cause fear of the Molders' Union was voiced. The necessity for coming under the protection of the National Founders' Association, was presented at great length, and so effectively that the directors agreed to affiliate as a matter of necessary protection.

Didn't Join Association

Mr. Williams had not been consulted; furthermore, he was opposed, and no time was lost in presenting his views to the directors. He informed them that he had been their foundry superintendent for some twenty years. During that period there had been no strike nor strike talk. What was equally important was the fact that his labor cost for castings would bear favorable comparison with that of any other foundry in Central New England.

If you join this association, he said, you will be bound to observe their rules and regulations relative to foundry employment. The National Founders' Association is hostile to the Molders' Union. There are members of that union employed in the foundry because they give satisfaction as molders. If you look around New England you will find that many of the foundrymen who have become members of the National Founders' Association have had strikes in their foundries shortly afterwards.

If my record as foundry superintendent is not satisfactory, that's another question; but if you want to have as satisfactory results in the future as you have had in the past, don't make the mistake of tying up with an employers' association whose principal purpose is to oppose trade unionism.

Williams Opens Own Factory

As the directors were also practical men, Mr. Williams remained superintendent of the foundry, which did not come under the influence of the National Founders' Association.

Although the Crompton Knowles foundry could employ some one hundred and twenty molders, orders came in so rapidly at times that it was necessary to contract for the work with some of the jobbing foundries in the city. This led Mr. Williams and two of his business associates to form a separate corporation of which he was president.

The Standard Foundry soon became one of the largest in Worcester. To keep it busy Mr. Williams entered the market as a jobbing foundryman. It is particularly in connection with his management of this foundry that the story, if it is such, is being told.

About the time the Standard Foundry was built the writer had left molding to become one of the vice-presidents of the International Molders' Union. For some years afterwards he took up the question of the annual wage agreements with Worcester foundrymen which always brought him into contact with Mr. Williams individually.

During this period Mr. Williams would decline to discuss wages or other conditions of employment in the Standard Foundry, with a national officer of the Molders' Union. He would be quite precise and firm in taking this position, but he seemingly had no objection to discussing the subject with one of his former employes, and of informing him as to his fair intentions.

No Difficulty Over Wages

At times the personal relationship became delicate and difficult, for it had happened that none but members of the Molders' Union were employed in the Standard Foundry. There had never been any difficulty over wages, though Mr. Williams, consistent with his "open shop" policy, had always refused to agree to pay the minimum wage rate established in the other jobbing foundries. His invariable position was that he could afford to pay as much as any other foundryman, and we would have to accept his word that he would do so. But it was his practice to pay more than the union scale, one practical result being that he had an exceptionally competent shop crew of molders.

But his frequent public statements of "open shop" policy had its influence upon his foundry superintendent and some of the molders as well.

"You know that you don't have to be a member of the Molders' Union to work in this foundry," was this superintendent's frequent statement.

A few molders accepted this as a hint, and hoping to win the superintendent's approval they stopped paying dues, which in time, under the laws of the Molders' Union, suspended them from membership.

Williams Indignant

The suspension of these molders created an issue which threatened unlimited trouble. When the writer took up this question with Mr. Williams, he promptly exploded. His New England indignation was expressed in foundry terms which, for years, have paled the blunt Anglo-Saxon words which men may use when they feel strongly. He would not even discuss such a question. The molders in his employ had the right to remain in the Molders' Union or get out. That was their affair and the union's, and none of his. Furthermore, every molder knew that it was not necessary to be a member of the union in order to work in the Standard Foundry.

He was informed that the purpose in calling the situation to his attention was not to force an issue, but to prevent one from being created. That his friendly attitude had been so deeply appreciated by the molders in his employ, and by the local union, that their desire was to cooperate in every way possible. It would have been an act of unfriendliness to see a situation developing friction, arise in the foundry without informing him.

It was evident, from the expression of his countenance, that Mr. Williams would do something in the matter, but the manner in which he combined practice and theory had not been anticipated.

Molder Sharply Quizzed

The following day he walked down the foundry gangway to the floor of one of the suspended molders.

"Are you a member of the Molders' Union?" he asked the man.

"No sir," was the reply.

"Well, you were a member of the Molders' Union," Williams shot back.

"Yes, but I am not a member now."

"How did you get out of the union?" was the next question.

"I was suspended," the molder said.

"How did the union come to suspend you?"

"Well, I was behind in my dues."

"Oh, I see," Mr. Williams said, "the union suspended you because you owed them some money and had refused to pay."

Had the molder been observant he would have noticed that the muscles of Mr. Williams' jaws were tightening and that there was that look in his eye indicating an intention to dispatch business. Briefly, and to the point, glowering at the molder, he said,

"Do you know what I would do if I found any molders in this foundry who refused to pay his butcher and his grocery bill, or his rent? I'd fire him, for if one of my molders would be dishonest in the matter of paying his just debts, he would also be dishonest with me."

Union Dues Paid Thereafter

And then for good measure, Mr. Williams, added, "you know that you don't have to be a member of the Molders' Union to work in this shop, but I consider the men in this shop my friends, and I am not going to have anybody around here making trouble. You're fired, go into the office and get your money, and get out."

That was the end of the molders becoming suspended for non-payment of dues in that foundry, and yet throughout the remainder of his life Mr. Williams continued to champion the principles of the "open shop" as he understood them, and as a practical foundryman, continued to show the lowest labor cost of any of his competitors, through his discovery that union molders as a whole were better mechanics than the non-union, and that the union created a form of co-operation with him which could not otherwise exist.

Had there been more Frank Williams throughout the country, private strike breaking agencies would have starved to death years ago, a consumation which would have been as beneficial to employers as to workmen. The broad principle of co-operation would have been stimulated, instead of the suspicions, the antagonisms, and the misunderstandings which have bedeviled industrial relations.

What Next?

Automatic governor to limit the speed of automobiles, long talked about, are beginning to be used. All new cars of the New York City Department of Sanitation are to be equipped with governors permitting them to be driven at no more than 25 miles an hour. The installation of the device is expected to promote safety and lengthen the life of the vehicles. A governor has recently been installed on the car of a New Jersey resident, as a condition of restoring to him his driving permit, revoked for speeding.

NEIGHBORHOOD MOVIES CHISELING IN WAGES

Kansas City, Mo.—Moving Picture Machine Operators No. 170, which has dealt with local theatres for twenty years, is finding considerable difficulty with what are termed "chiseling" tactics of neighborhood movie houses, where non-union operators are hired at the lowest possible rates.

"The Labor Herald" is supporting a fight in behalf of the movie operators, endeavoring to point out to the public the necessity of maintaining wage standards and the employment of skilled workers for jobs requiring skill. Nineteen movie theatres are said to be indulging in the obnoxious "chiseling" tactics, which organized labor expects to reform.

United Front Has One Purpose —To Promote World Revolution

By W. R. GAYLORD

Communism, and the machinations of the Communist groups in this country, are not in our opinion to be regarded as one of the major menaces of the nation. In fact, should the Wagner Labor Act, and the Social Security program, escape the destructive scythe of the Supreme Court, it is not likely that there will be anything like the occasion for extreme expressions of organized revolt on the part of labor, from its historical point of view.

However, in the presence of such "fringe" organizations of the Communist activities as that which has been holding recent session at Cleveland, supposedly for the purpose of protesting against war and Fascism, it is just as well that we keep the record clear as to the actual purposes and ultimate objectives of the Communists in this country.

There is being much made of the alleged "united front" of all liberal and radical movements in all parts of the world these days. And it is accurate to say that this set of wiggles which passes for a movement, under the name of the "united front," is only one of the phases of the Communist International.

United Front is Communist

Make no mistake about it: The United Front is the Communist Front. Under whatever other specious and attractive titles it may emerge, that is its motivating force. And so long as there is a Communist International—a Comintern—it is ultimate, only because the Soviet control under Stalin disagreed with Trotsky as to the practicability of its attainment in the nearer future.

The ultimate objective of the Communist movement, of the Comintern which is the international expression of it, and of the Russian Soviet government which is the immediate sponsor of it, is a unified worldwide revolution. A revolution so all-inclusive that it shall take in everything in governmental form from Turkestan to London, from Australia to Albania, and so disruptive that it can be satisfied with nothing but the destruction of all existing forms of social and political organization—that is the goal of the alleged Marxists of Moscow.

In frank announcement of this ultimate goal, the Communists have openly stated, in the United States, as well as in Moscow, that among their first steps in this country must be the destruction of such organizations as the American Federation of Labor, to say nothing of such incidental organizations as the churches and the existing forms of government. If we seem to be repeating things which have been stated many times, it is for the purpose of planting them so firmly in the minds of American workers that they may be convenient of access on any and every occasion when it may become necessary to re-examine the pretensions and reputed motives of the Communists themselves.

Red Offensive Finally Stalled

We do not think that the Communists will be successful in destroying the A. F. of L., but we do know that they have already carried on some very expensive—for the A. F. of L. and its constituents—operations looking to that end. And we do not want to leave open any doors of uninformed opportunity for them, if it can be helped.

Their first offensive consisted in attacks upon the honesty, the sincerity, the decent character of the various leaders and units of the A. F. of L. They had been doing the same thing in European countries. Always there are some minds which are open to such approaches, whether on account of personal jealousies, grudges, or actual injustice having been done. No sensible person denies that there are such openings. From these and other sources the Communists gained adherents, some of them from the parlor intelligentsia who always have known more about what the labor movement ought to do than they were able to put into practice.

This offensive came to a natural ending, in the stalling of the Communist movement here and elsewhere. And so they changed their tactics. They opened wide their arms of alleged brotherhood and invited everybody else to join them in a "united front"—against something or other—anything, to get somebody else to join them, somehow.

Lost "Face" is Sought

From being the most narrowly exclusive and inquisitorial sect of the world, they suddenly turned themselves into a most inclusive fellowship for all the liberal leaders of the nations. Although all others had up to that time been traitors, and hypocrites, and misleaders, and compromisers, and a lot of other things with peculiar and funny names, such as "class-collaborators," and unfit to associate with, the world-call went out during this last six months to gather in all these wild, black and multicolored sheep into one fold—if they would only come into the same corral with the Communists.

The truth seems to be that the Communists have lost a lot of "face" during the last few years, and now they are out hunting for that "face." They want to get their "front" lifted. They urgently need to be respectable.

Now, there is a very real reason for all this hurry-up to get decent again. The reason lies on the East and the West borders of the Soviet domain. On the East it is Japan, and her apparently ruthless pressure toward an open rupture of relations with Russia. On the West, it is the German nation, now arming in cold blood and in plain sight of all the world, for the announced purpose of taking on some additional territory in which they can raise corn and hogs for the German appetites, and it is proposed very frankly, that a part of this new domain is to be taken in the Ukraine, the great wheat belt of Russia.

The nearer approach of the crisis, or the two crises on opposite quarters of the Soviet lands, gives them much to think about. That line of railroad to the Siberian country is a thin line and a very long one. And the overwhelming power of German armies has been tasted once by Russia. Should the remainder of Europe not be friendly, should America be indifferent, the Russian bear will have plenty of exercise for some months.

Ergo, and therefore, make friends for Soviet Russia, while the making days are good.

Russian Remedy Not for U. S.

This is not to say that Fascism is not a real danger in the world. Nor is it to deny that war is a curse. So also are kidnapping, and tuberculosis and cancer. The question is, why take up the Russian remedy? It was tried in Germany, before Hitler. And the "united front" in Germany seems to have opened the way to Nazism there. Neither did it avail in Italy—for whatever reason.

We have our American problems, and shall doubtless have our American crises. But that we shall need advice from Moscow mujiks, or the Soviet Gay Pay 00—is to be very strongly denied, repudiated, and vigilantly guarded against.

RIDING at ANCHOR

—by MR. MODESTUS—

Balance the budget!
Anything else is just spending money—
Money by the billions of dollars rolled up into food and clothing—
Of course, there is not that much money anywhere—
So the government has to borrow the money, from somebody—
Paying interest on the money which is not money at all—
It is just nothing but glorified credit expressed in checks—
Most important is the fact that all this spending produces little, or nothing—
If it did, it would interfere with business!

So, balance the budget!
Spend less than you take in—
Or, take in more than you spend—
Get out of the red, and get into the black!
It is not a question of how good the government credit may be—
Nor of whether the American people can ever pay back the borrowed money—
Nor of whether they will be unable to pay the interest on the loans—
It is a question of book-keeping, pure and simple—
Budgets must be balanced, or they become something else besides budgets—
An unbalanced budget becomes a campaign issue—
Except in time of war.

The trouble with the budget has not been the regular government expense—
That has been growing by leaps and bounds and billions for years—
The real trouble is not with bureaucracy which takes a lot of the money—
These job-holders are all good people, whether their jobs are or not—
If you abolish those jobs, there will be that much less pork to fry—
No matter what crowd gets elected next time you will need the jobs—
Because neither industry, nor farming, nor transportation, nor hotels—
Nor cleaning and dyeing, nor any other kind of business now in sight—
Not even the new extensions of electric lines and household gadgets—
Can possibly give all those eleven million unemployed the jobs they need—
They are in the new high country, the Plateau of Unemployment—
They are likely to stay there for some time, unless there is a war—
Until they die off, and their children with them.

It costs less money just to feed these people, than to put them to work—
You cannot make their labor productive, because you cannot sell their products—
It just would not fit the profit system—
Not even if you let them use the things they are able to make—
Why, the shoe-machinery owners would not let you use their machines that way—
No, sir! That would break all the rules of the game—
It would interfere with legitimate business—
That kind of business would somehow be illegitimate!

Some of these people are said to have been getting about $7.50 a month—
All of that money to feed a man and his wife and children—
That amounts to almost $100 a year, for eleven million folks—
Why, you could almost bury them for that, and be done with it—
Say—why isn't that an idea?
Let 'em starve, slowly-like they are doing—
Then in a few years have them all buried for just about what it costs to keep 'em—
That would be cheaper than having a war to kill off the men—
Shipping them off across the world somewhere with a lot of costly guns—
With a lot of them coming back afterward to demand pensions and bonuses!

Wagner-Connelly Act and the Courts

show you how costly strikes have been to the workers, to the public, as well as to the employers. Virtually this same law has been applied to the railroads since 1926 and there has not been a strike on the railroads since that year.

Employers who are subject to this act are those whose business is in or affects interstate commerce. This is a question of fact, although the effect on interstate commerce may involve technical legal questions requiring judicial determination and must be of the kind which the Supreme Court of the United States has held that Congress has the power to regulate.

Constitutionality Upheld

The Supreme Court has already upheld the constitutionality of the principles of this act as applied to railroads and unions of railroad employes, in a unanimous decision in an opinion written in 1930 by Chief Justice Hughes in the case of the Brotherhood of Railway and Steamship Clerks vs. The Texas and New Orleans Railroad. It is inconceivable that the Supreme Court now will repudiate that decision and itself in any future case in an industry the activities of which affect interstate commerce.

The Supreme Court has in numerous cases held the activities of commercial and industrial enterprises which ordinarily are purely intrastate, are nevertheless subject to regulation by Congress under the power given Congress by the constitution to regulate commerce among the States, when it is shown that these activities affect interstate commerce among the States. Activities taking place wholly within a single State which the Supreme Court has held to affect interstate commerce include manufacturing, coal mining, painting the woodwork in a building, bidding on cattle in stockyards, operating grain exchanges.

One Federal judge has already passed on the National Labor Relations Act and held that it did not cover a little flour mill in Kansas. But there were no facts before him to show whether the activities of this business affected interstate commerce or not. In his eagerness to knock out this law, the impetuous judge did not wait for the facts. Like jesting Pilate he asked, "What is truth?" but would not stay for an answer. The Board had announced a hearing to determine whether the business of this flour mill affected interstate commerce, but the quick-trigger judge would not let the Board conduct the hearing. He decided the case without awaiting the facts that would have been developed at the hearing. But there is one word in the beginning of Judge Otis' opinion which disposes of it completely. He speaks of this "little" mill, and thus this little flour mill in Kansas may be very different from the huge manufacturing industries making and shipping automobiles to all parts of the world.

Several days ago the Supreme Court rendered a decision holding the AAA unconstitutional—one of the most momentous decisions ever rendered by the Supreme Court. I shall not undertake to discuss this question, except to say that the power of Congress called into question was the power to tax for the general welfare, whereas the power under which the National Labor Relations Act was passed is the power to regulate commerce among the States.

But in the AAA case Mr. Justice Stone in a dissenting opinion concurred in by two other Justices made some interesting comments on the relative functions of Congress and the Court. I should like to quote to you from Mr. Justice Stone's opinion:

"One is that courts are concerned only with the power to enact statutes, not with their wisdom. The other is that while unconstitutional exercise of power by the executive and legislative branches of the government is subject to judicial restraint, the only check upon our own exercise of power is our own sense of self-restraint.

"Courts are not the only agency of government that must be assumed to have capacity to govern. Congress and the courts both unhappily may falter or be mistaken in the performance of their constitutional duty."

By prohibiting employers from interfering with employes in their rights of organization, the act assures collective bargaining as a means of settling wages, hours and conditions of work on all the major manufacturing industries whose activities extend across State lines.

Contentment for Worker

Contemplate for a moment what this means to the worker and for his happiness and welfare. If the employer can no longer discriminate against union employes, wages and working conditions can be determined by collective bargaining between the two sides. The working man will have a voice in determining the matters which vitally affect him, his wages, his hours of work, the security of his employment. Think what this will mean to his state of mind.

Furthermore, collective bargaining made possible throughout the country by this act will surely increase the wages of all union workers. This means an increased purchasing power throughout the United States. This means a constantly expanding market for the agricultural products of American farms and for manufactured goods of our mass production industries. It means the end of depressions and the lessening of business cycles. It means security, prosperity and happiness to the people of America.

Last Hope of Free Capitalism

Collective bargaining is the last hope for the survival of free capitalism and free democracy in this country.

If the purposes of the National Labor Relations Act are defeated, either by its repeal in Congress or by its nullification in the Supreme Court, then what will be the alternative?

We should no longer have the purchasing power which comes from good wages and steady employment. As we can no longer count on foreign markets we should almost be forced to adopt a plan of allocation and limitation of production under a bureaucratic and perhaps socialistic government. This means regimentation. It means collectivism.

My work as counsel to the American Federation of Labor takes me all over the United States. I am constantly traveling. I am trying to make collective bargaining through the instrumentality of the law and through legal procedure possible in this country. I know the needs and the feelings of the American workingman. I know that if we do not have collective bargaining in this country and all that that implies—good wages, secure jobs, prosperity and happiness—then we are going to have

UNION LABEL BUYING CALLED LABOR MOVEMENT INSURANCE

New York.—Union label buying is the best insurance for a powerful and lasting American labor movement, I. M. Ornburn, secretary-treasurer of the Union Label Trades Department, American Federation of Labor, told the executive committee of the twenty-one standard railway labor organizations here.

Ornburn said that the great reforms which the A. F. of L. and the Railroad Brotherhoods advocate can be more easily accomplished by greater organization and union label buying.

"Collective bargaining and collective buying are the only methods yet discovered to raise wages, shorten hours and better the condition of the workers," he said. "In just the degree that workers and their friends buy under the union label, shop card and button, the contents of their pay envelopes will increase.

"If 'self-preservation is the first law of man,' then buying union made goods should be the first law of a union man."

After citing wage gains and reductions in hours made by American national and international unions, Mr. Ornburn said: "The gains that have been made will be added to and sustained through collective buying by American workers of products and services which bear the union label, shop card and working button.

"The chisellers desire to continue the cut-throat competition which caused the panic of 1929. If these large industries were unionized and displayed the union label on their products, business conditions would be better for them as well as for the average citizen, and permanent prosperity would return to America."

Remarkable Things Said

If the world is to enjoy peace and stable prosperity, nations must pursue economic policies which permit peace.—Francis B. Sayre, Assistant Secretary of State.

There is no sound reason why our national income should not be $100 billion a year in 1937—that means doubling our income of today. That can come only by all of us going back to work. Not raking leaves or digging ditches, but productive work which when completed leaves something needed and useful.—Governor La Follette of Wisconsin.

The deleterious effect of currency inflation upon the social and economic life of working people can only be offset through increase in wages and through an increase in mass purchasing power throughout the nation.—William Green.

I wish that it were in my power to bring effectual help to the victims of one of the basest persecutions in human experience. Germany will have to learn, though at heavy cost, that Bishop Butler two centuries ago wrote truly that "no one ever did a designed injury to another without at the same time doing a greater to himself."—Bishop of Durham, England.

TEACHERS REMOVAL ON PARTISAN GROUNDS HIT

St. Louis.—The National Education Association's department of superintendence adopted a resolution in convention condemning removal of any teacher on political or partisan grounds.

The resolution specifically mentioned the case of Dr. Payson Smith, former superintendent of Massachusetts schools, who was ousted from office for opposing a compulsory oath of allegiance for teachers.

"American Created" Work

By HON. CARL STEFAN, M. C.

(The writer of this article is a member of the House Committee on Insular Affairs, and has just returned from a journey through the Philippines, Hawaiian Islands, China and Japan.)

Secretary of Commerce Roper in his annual report recently stated that: "American industry and business can help by intensifying its efforts in the fields of research and invention. I believe that through creative work, a characteristic for which America is known throughout the world, we can create proper new needs, new markets, and new employment. This will lead to safer prosperity and progress."

Americans who work with their hands and those who are skilled and trained should study this statement carefully. They should study it most curiously if they really believe that their "creative work" will bring back employment and prosperity. True, American "creative work" would bring back some semblance of employment and prosperity "if" that "American created" work were in demand and "if" that "American created" work were properly protected by "American industry" and "American business."

Standing on the docks at Nagoya, Japan only a few weeks ago, I was amazed at the hundreds of crates and gigantic boxes of china-ware and other Japanese-made merchandise loaded into the hold of an American-subsidized vessel. Every crate and box was addressed to American industry and business, among them being the F. W. Woolworth and S. S. Kresge companies.

Today in Japan there is no unemployment. Men and women, boys and girls work unlimited hours at a few cents a day. They turn out manufactured goods by the shipload, much of which finds its way into the business houses of the United States. American imitated "created goods" are turned out in innumerable quantities.

As a result, press dispatches from Tokio show prosperity in Japan. In Tokio it is announced that "Japanese trade is at a favorable balance" (exports exceed imports). Not only is Japan capturing a gigantic amount of trade in the United States, which rightfully belongs to the workers of America, but she is slowly, steadily and surely capturing most of the trade which was once enjoyed by Americans in the Far East.

Untold numbers of "created" articles based on "American created work" which could be made in the United States are now being made by slave labor in the Orient and sold to American men and women whose "creative ability" is unprotected at home. No American who believes that we should continue the American standard of living can agree that American labor will ever submit to competing with the labor of Japan, China or the Philippines. Nevertheless, unless American labor is protected against the importation of the tremendous quantity of these very cheaply manufactured goods, our "creative ability" is of no avail.

The visitors to Japan today, if they are industriously curious, can find that in that prosperous country there are names of such cities as "Paris," "Berlin" and "U. S. A.," spelled in capital letters, marked on manufactured goods. The names of these industrial centers of Japan have had their uses in the sales of Japanese-made merchandise sold all over the world.

There are about four hundred million people in China today, unable to find enough food to go around. It is a mecca for those "industries" who search the earth's surface for cheap humanity. Here, for a few cents a day, human beings can be employed to work on "American created" goods which are shipped back to the United States to be sold to men and women who are looking for jobs. People in China who hold nets under the drains of ships to find something to eat, gladly work for pennies. Shall American labor compete with these "Coolies?" Every shipload of Japanese-made goods which can be manufactured in America means the loss of many jobs to American workers.

America today finds itself in a position of endeavoring to find work and food for millions of unemployed people. Work as well as charity should begin at home. Since this is so, American industry and American business must take steps at once to protect "American created" work.

With the assistance of American industry and business, cheaply made goods in China, and other Far-East countries, come by the shiploads into American ports. American industry and business, with factories in China today employing slave workers, cannot lay claim to being the champions of the cause of high standards of American living. To qualify this statement, it should be said that cargoes of textiles are being shipped to China and other countries, by American business, which employs cheaply paid Chinese laborers to finish these goods. Then the goods are sent back to the United States for sale. The industries of America are in danger of being wiped out forever unless adequate protection comes soon.

The Far-East will not be satisfied with the capture of the "finished-goods" business of America. American industry and business, which is now encouraging this foreign-business because of cheaper humanity—beware! "We have reached almost the maximum of creating manufactured goods," Fukumoto, a Tokio newspaperman, says. "We now must become independent of the world in raw materials." Today the Far-East, with the backing of certain powerful American interests, is waging a campaign to limit the use of American raw material.

This is but the beginning of a mighty campaign by the enemies of American producers and workers to once and for all kill the American standard of living, and to take advantage of the present depression and this nation's misery to hammer down manhood and American resistance, in order that we be returned to the days when the labor of men and women could be bought on the auction block of slavery!

WAR VETERANS SCENT REDS IN WPA THEATRE PROJECT

New York, N. Y.—War veterans who are members of the WPA Federal Theatre Project here launched an organization "to combat the element of communism in the theatre project and other WPA units." Sponsors for the organization said a minority group of Communists "is endeavoring to undermine every WPA unit set up."

OREGON MILL ORDERED TO STOP WAR ON UNION

Portland, Ore.—Oregon's first case under the Wagner labor disputes bill brought a decision in favor of labor when Harry M. Kenin, trial examiner, recommended that the Oregon Worst Company "cease and desist interfering" with employes of the Textile Union, re-employ the union president, Sidney Girard, and pay his wages at the rate of $14.60 a week since the day he was dismissed, November 21, 1935.

The union's contention that the Oregon Worst Company showed favoritism in its treatment of members of the employers' mutual council and that it discharged Girard for the sole reason that he joined and assisted the union in its activities was upheld by Kenin.

WPA CONTRACTORS TO GO DIRECT TO UNIONS FOR LABOR

Washington, D. C.—Harry L. Hopkins, WPA administrator, has issued an order enabling WPA contractors to requisition organized workers direct from union ranks rather than go first to the United States Employment Service. The order, issued to end delays in getting WPA workers, is as follows:

"1. The term 'project' as used herein shall mean a project or portion of a project financed, in whole or in part, from funds allotted to the Federal Emergency Administration of Public Works from funds appropriated by the Emergency Relief Appropriation Act of 1935.

"2. When organized labor, skilled or unskilled, is desired by any contractor employed to handle all or any part of a project the contractor shall requisition such workers as may be required from the representative of each recognized union concerned.

"3. The representative of the union will select union members for work on the project giving preference, first, to those members of the union who are on the local public relief rolls; second, upon exhaustion of union members on such rolls, to any other members of the union.

"4. Actual assignment of these workers to projects thereafter will be the responsibility of the Works Progress Administration."

"FAIR LADIES" FACTOR IN MAKING ARMS SALES

Washington, D. C.—"Fair ladies" play an important part in selling arms to some foreign governments, the Senate Munitions Committee learned from correspondence describing sales tactics in Europe.

"The chief culprits are the middlemen or munitions contractors who nearly always are outside the firms," Major J. F. C. Fuller wrote in one letter. "For instance, were I one, I would go to a State, dine the Minister of War, produce the fairest of fair ladies, and then suggest that his country's army wanted a new M. G. (apparently a machine gun). He would say how much do I get. I say 10 per cent, then I go to Vickers or some other firm and say I want 500 M. G.'s at a price which will enable me to scoop 30 per cent (20 per cent for myself, 10 per cent for the Minister). The general result is the high price charged for armaments."

Referring to tactics of munitions salesmen, Fuller wrote:

"It is all rather a dirty business and most difficult to get to the bottom of because the main profits are secret transactions."

NEW YORK CITY PLANNING WAR AGAINST SILICOSIS

New York City—The Board of Health is studying the problems of combatting the lung disease, silicosis, which menaces the health and life of workers who are compelled to accept employment in the so-called dust industries.

Dr. John L. Rice, health commissioner and president of the board, said the question was whether the city should assume the job of preventing the conditions responsible for the disease, leave the matter to the State Department of Labor or co-operate with the department. The city has the power to require industry to adopt preventive measures.

It was pointed out that the Labor Department has control over dust hazards only in certain occupations, although a bill is pending in the Legislature to enable it to adopt rules covering all industries, including public works.

Despite the fact revealed by official figures that about 20,000 workers in New York State and 4,000 in New York City are exposed in their work to silica and other dust hazards, there are no estimates regarding the number of workers who have contracted silicosis.

The Cherry Tree

Where with our Little Hatchet we tell the truth about many things, sometimes profoundly, sometimes flippantly, sometimes recklessly

Pay attention to the Labor Chest for Relief and Liberation of Workers of Europe.

It is unique among labor organizations. It is doing a grand job.

William Green is president. Matthew Woll is chairman. David Dubinsky is treasurer. William English Walling is executive director—the man on the job.

Walling is a veteran in many fields, long a writer of books and a writer for International Labor News Service, a world traveler, student and expert on European affairs, labor and others.

The Labor Chest has worked wonders in establishing channels of information in Nazi Germany and Fascist Italy.

A regular output of news pours through the offices of the Labor Chest.

Through the Labor Chest we learn, for example, that Paul Opitz, formerly an official of the strong German Clothing Workers' Union, forced to flee to Switzerland, returned to his home in Silesia to see his family, was arrested, thrown in jail and there died. Authorities said, on the morning after the arrest, that Opitz had committed suicide. Yes, that's what the authorities said.

Through the Labor Chest we get a constant picture of the brutalities and repressions of Fascist and Nazi dictatorships.

We learn of the Nazi propaganda during the Olympic games and we get the impression that Nazi rulers found a way to send money to the United States to help finance U. S. participation.

There will be ghosts of American participation for a long time.

The American labor boycott of Nazi goods moves along, gaining strength.

The Labor Chest keeps us informed about that. The Ladies' Garment Workers have told their employers they will not work on machines imported from Germany, or even where machine parts are imported.

The Nazi highbinders will feel this pressure—feel it where it will hurt them most.

Look for the mark "made in Germany"—and let it alone.

Take a tip from I. M. Ornburn and buy where you find the union label of American union labor. That's your safeguard.

It would be hard to find anywhere men who are doing better jobs for American labor standards than Walling and Ornburn, working in different fields, but to the same purpose.

Walling, through his grand job of organizing information from the brutalized nations, often using underground channels; Ornburn putting real salesmanship tactics behind the union labels of American union made products; here is combined effort that supports freedom and democratic progress.

Queer, what co-operative effort can do. Walling knows and Ornburn knows. Here's another example. A quarter isn't much. But more than 60,000 union members signed a birthday greeting to the President and each gave a quarter, to go to Georgia Warm Springs Foundation. That means more than $15,000—in quarters.

But watch the Labor Chest. Support it. It is American labor's mobilization against dictatorship. It is important beyond estimate.

Court Enjoins Radio Station

No More Broadcasting of Leader's Recordings—
Legislation Sought to Make Ruling Universal

INDISCRIMINATE exploitation of music recordings by radio broadcasting stations was declared illegal and a musician's property rights to his recorded talents established in a decision handed up last month by Judge Harry S. McDevitt of the Common Pleas Court in Philadelphia.

The decision was in the case of Fred Waring versus WDAS Broadcasting Station, Inc., and restrains and enjoins the radio station from using for broadcasting purposes any records made by Waring and his "Pennsylvanians." The restraining order specifically prohibits the reproduction and performance of any Waring record for commercial use or profit.

WDAS already has announced its intention to appeal from the decision in a higher court. Nevertheless, Judge McDevitt's decision is being hailed by professional musicians and recording artists throughout the nation. Unrestricted use of music records made expressly for home consumption has been responsible, to a great extent, for the vast unemployment problem in the music profession.

Recording artists in Pennsylvania may now, with the precedent set by Judge McDevitt, wipe out the pirating of music records by radio stations, restaurants, hotels, cabarets, dance halls and other places of entertainment where musicians have been denied employment. While at this time this ruling is effective in Pennsylvania only, Judge McDevitt's decision may be used as a basis for litigation in other states. Already professional musicians and other recording artists in New York City, world center for music, are making plans for such action here. Efforts are being made to induce Congress to amend the copyright law so that the decision of Judge McDevitt may become a piece of national legislation.

Records Made in 1932

Local 802 took an active part in support of Mr. Waring's suit against the Philadelphia broadcasting station. The difficulties facing the American Federation of Musicians by virtue of the illegal use of mechanical music throughout the country was described to Judge McDevitt's court by Sam Tabak, representing Local 802, at a hearing in Mr. Waring's suit on December 12 last.

Waring's suit centered on WDAS's broadcast of the recordings "You're Getting to Be a Habit With Me" and "I'm Young and Healthy," on July 2, 1935. Both were RCA-Victor records made by Waring and his "Pennsylvanians" in November, 1932. At the time these records were distributed, the RCA-Victor Company advised dealers that the records were for public sale and were not to be used for radio broadcasting. In the center of the records was the following stamp: "Not Licensed for Radio Broadcasting."

In a statement of the Court's findings, preceding Judge McDevitt's decision, it was brought out that these records may be purchased for seventy-five cents retail and approximately at forty-five cents each in wholesale lots. This was compared with the fact that Waring and his band receives $13,500 for a 60-minute broadcast conducted in person.

The court also found that 400 out of more than 700 radio stations in the country operate almost exclusively with records for their commercial and sustaining programs.

"Many stations preface the playing of such records with announcements designed to create the impression among the audience that the concert is being rendered personally by the recording artist," the court found.

"Continual broadcasting of such records reduces the artist's commercial attractiveness and consequently affects his financial income," Judge McDevitt opined. "The indiscriminate playing of records would put the artist in competition with himself," he held.

In rendering his decision, Judge McDevitt made the following conclusions of law:

"The creator of a unique and personal interpretation of a musical or literary composition possesses a common law property right in the same, and has a right to control and limit its use.

"A creation or interpretation that may be captured or transcribed by mechanical means, and then capable of reproduction at the will of the possessor, makes such an interpretation or creation, property.

"The making of a phonograph record or the sale of same, under such conditions as were imposed in the suit at issue, does not constitute a public act. (Editor's Note: Publication here meaning, public property.)

"Such a use of a phonograph record as has been made by the respondent (WDAS) in this matter, is a commercial use for profit.

"Unfair Competition"

"The respondent's use of said records violated the express restriction stamped thereon, and was an unlawful interference with complainant's right. The respondent's use of said records is an interference with the complainant's contractual relations with the international company, with which he has a contract for his exclusive broadcasting services.

"The restriction stamped upon the records is not an interference with the purchaser of said records to use them for the purpose intended, it is not an unreasonable condition, its enforcement would not be in restraint of trade, and its enforcement does not create a monopoly. It is a protection of the property right vested in the complainant and enforceable in equity.

"Such use of said records, as the use made by the respondent, creates unfair competition."

Judge McDevitt's thirty-seven page opinion and decision was read and heartily cheered at a testimonial luncheon to Fred Waring at the Essex House on January 20. The luncheon was sponsored by the National Association of Performing Artists with Paul Whiteman as toastmaster. Members of the Local's Executive Board attended the luncheon and expressed to Mr. Waring the Local's gratitude for having been the first to test a musician's property rights to his recorded talents.—Local 802, Official Journal.

WILLIAM ADAMSON IS DEAD; WAS BRITISH LABOR LEADER

Dumferline, Scotland.—William Adamson, long a prominent figure in the British labor movement, died here at the age of 72.

Mr. Adamson was a son of James Adamson, a miner. He began his working life as a pit boy. He was general secretary of the Fife-Kinross and Clackmannan Miners Association. St. Andrews University made him a Doctor of Laws in 1929.

His recognized ability in the broad questions connected with the welfare of working men and women automatically advanced him to positions of influence in the councils of organized labor. He was made chairman of the Parliamentary Labor party in 1917, succeeding Arthur Henderson, and thus became leader of the Opposition in the House of Commons. Mr. Adamson was made Secretary of State for Scotland by the Labor government of 1924 and 1929. He lost his seat in the House of Commons at the last general election.

Toilers' Education and Labor Leadership

By FANNIA M. COHN

At a recent convention of learned scientists, a discussion took place on the subject of the American mentality. A scientist of international reputation argued that the mind of the average American adult is that of a child of 12 years of age. Whereupon one distinguished thinker observed that the actual difference between such a mentality and that of a grown-up person is contained solely in the accumulated experience acquired by the latter over a span of years.

In a sense this may be applied to the labor movement. The collective experience of this movement is recorded in its publication, its executive records, and in convention proceedings. This experience is also a part of the lives of the men and women, the pioneers who were the architects, the builders, the soldiers, and generals of workers' organizations. Many of these men and women are now disappearing from the scene, but they are leaving behind them an impress and a heritage from which the younger group may benefit as they take up positions of leadership in the movement. Out of these experiences, whether they be in the form of biographies or reminiscences, will come the real history of labor—a dramatized record of the struggles and strivings of the millions who have fought against exploitation, misery, and oppression. This store of experience will be invaluable material for workers' education, to be studied by the younger generation as a guide and an inspiration in their daily struggle for human rights.

This recorded experience should visualize for the workers the continuity of our movement. It should teach them the object lesson, that it is part of their life work to strengthen and perfect the structure which rests upon the trials, efforts, and sacrifices of countless and nameless men and women who have preceded them.

"Knowledge is Power" was first proclaimed long ago. As an important constructive social force, the labor movement must, in order to play its historic part in our present changing world, use its knowledge for an intelligent, effective exercise of its power. Through the medium of workers' education it can achieve this.

Of importance to the labor movement also is a knowledge of social psychology, as it is reflected in the reactions of the workers during historic events. A knowledge of human nature cannot be stressed too much, as the labor movement itself is a problem of psychology. We are always confronted with the problem of winning over the workers to our cause, of getting their confidence and emotional response to our movement.

We are now living in a most disturbing period. Events crowd each other out daily. It is not easy for the mass of the workers to analyze these happenings. Though they are participants in these events, they frequently do not register on their minds as experiences. Obviously, it is the function of the labor official to be prepared to interpret these occurrences intelligently to the workers and to give them a new orientation. Here is where an officer can enlighten the workers to react against hostile influences. He must be prepared to answer questions and discuss problems with workers, employers, and now, with governmental agencies, which not only affect his union and his industry, but the general problems with which the world is now confronted. His practical experience as an officer of the union, whether he holds a high or low position, is indispensable to the success of his organization.

But an officer can be more effective if he adds to his experience the special training offered by the workers' education program. The workers' education movement, appreciating the value of having well-informed officers, is therefore conducting week-end institutes, summer schools, and discussion groups for officers and active members. Among the subjects are current problems, social and economic trends as they affect the labor movement. The educational department of our I. L. G. W. U. recognized the importance of such an educational program for our officers many years ago.

The business world, recognizing the need of trained executives, has established schools of commerce and business courses. Future business executives have the advantage of learning from the practical experience which the world of business has accumulated, in addition to the study of social and political sciences. Furthermore, how the business world appreciates the scientific training of the mind is demonstrated by the fact that the service of psychologists is being secured for their schools.

Another objective of workers' education is the accumulation of knowledge based on experience. Its aim is to interest the leadership and members in their own history, to give them a broader view of labor problems and of the world as a whole. It wants to help the worker to see his local as a part of his international union, as a part of the larger labor movement, and to extend finally the interdependence of these links of the entire labor chain.

To achieve this, the workers' education movement insists that the workers should study in a new environment and atmosphere. It applies a new approach in the study of the social sciences. It also insists that the workers study class, college or discussion group be conducted under working class auspices. Each social group conducts educational activities in which its economic and cultural interests are reflected, with the view of enhancing its prestige among the youth of the country. These groups are, therefore, interested in the creation of the proper environment and atmosphere no less than in the curriculum itself.

This consideration prompted a handful of pioneers a few years ago to develop the workers' education movement in its present form. These purposes are still the prime motive behind it. Its normal development was interrupted for several years by the economic depression, but not disrupted. It can claim distinct achievements, even though it is too early to judge its importance in our movement. It is responsible for the appearance of many volumes on the labor movement, a wider and more comprehensive discussion of its problems in labor publications.

The workers' education movement has had a distinct influence on the active membership of the trade unions and on the more progressive groups of the community and—what is most important, although not quite so tangible—it has influenced the workers to think and feel and act as members of a distinct social class.

In this connection also we might discuss its program of mass education, but this subject requires a chapter in itself.

But, through the influence of workers' education, increasing numbers of workers have gradually developed the habit of studying about and thinking through their problems. Especially is it important now for the workers of America to develop initiative and ability of inquiry, at a time when the world is at the crossroads, when the masses are restless in search of new paths, at a time when Fascism is raising its ugly head and making use of slogans and catchwords which tend to influence the average mind and leave it bewildered. The workers should not become victims of this ugly malady. Clarification of ideas and of the objectives behind these insidious movements are essential.

It is the labor leader, regardless of the office he holds, who is constantly in touch with the workers. His influence upon the membership is great. The grasp of problems and far-sightedness of the labor official is imperative to development of an intelligent, alert, vigorous rank and file.

Persistency Wins

There used to appear in the catalogue of a mail order house a picture of a pair of corduroy trousers.

Year after year the picture appeared, together with the description of the pants—and the price, $3.

In the twenty-fifth year of the ad the company received this letter:

"Dear Friends: The more I been seeing them corduroy breeches, the more I got to wantin' them. If you ain't sold them yet, let me know and I will buy them. Your truly, Si Higginbotham."—Ez.

Judge to Rescue

Counsel was trying to discredit a witness and asked him how many children he had.

"Two," was the reply. After putting a few other questions, the barrister said, significantly:

"You say you have two children."

Mr. Justice Darling quietly remarked: "He told you a few moments ago he had two children, and there are scarcely likely to have been any new arrivals since your first question."—Ez.

FIVE AND DRUM CORPS

Drum and Bugle Corps, Walter R. Craig Post of the American Legion, Rockford, Ill.
 Perth Amboy Post No. 45, American Legion Five, Drum and Bugle Corps, Perth Amboy, N. J.

Kindly and Tactful

"I've come to tell you, Mrs. O'Malley, that your husband met with an accident."
 "And what is it now?" wailed Mrs. O'Malley.
 "He was overcome with the heat, ma'am."
 "What! Overcome by the heat in January!"
 "Yes, ma'am. He fell into the furnace at the foundry."—Ex.

Necessarily Lengthy

It was her first attempt at cooking, and when her husband came home he saw a very long pile on the table.
 "Whatever is that?" he asked.
 "I couldn't get any shorter rhubarb," she replied.—Ex.

And How They Do Attract

The class was studying magnetism.
 "Robert," asked the professor, "how many natural magnets are there?"
 "Two, sir," was the surprising answer.
 "And will you please name them?"
 "Blondes and brunettes, sir."

Alas and Alack!

Their meeting was so sudden
 Their parting was so sad;
 She gave her life so meekly,
 'Twas the only life she had.
 And down beneath the willow
 She sleeps so peaceful now;
 'Cause that's what always happens
 When a fast train meets a cow.
 —Widow.

Far Removed

A member of a new jury panel in circuit court at Kansas City, gave his name as Peter J. Nugent.
 "Do you happen to be related to Anthony P. Nugent, the lawyer," he was asked.
 "Yes, sir, I am a distant relative of his."
 "Please be more explicit about this distant relationship. Is he your cousin, nephew or what?"
 "Well, you see, there are 16 children in our family. I am the oldest, and Anthony is the youngest."—Ex.

Herford's Wit

Oliver Herford, who died recently, was for many years the wit of New York, whose sayings were quoted widely. Here is one example:
 Two actors were discussing the Sunday night Restoration drama revivals in New York. One said that he never was a kicker, but some of the lines he had to speak were too salt for anything—fatly, he didn't like to say them.
 "That's all right, boy," said the other actor, "mumble them, mumble them."
 "I see," said Oliver Herford, who was sitting by; "an actor should be obscene, but not heard."—Ex.

Dangerous Possibility

What would happen if Cab Calloway should marry a Chinese?
 All their children would be yellow cabs.
