Preface

1964 North American Radio-TV Station Guide has been prepared from official FCC information. Every effort has been made to make it as complete and accurate as possible. Its size and format have been planned for convenient finger-tip reference.

Included are all stations now in operation, those that have temporarily ceased operation, and those which plan to start within the year. Stations listed include all those in the U.S. and its possessions, as well as Canada, Cuba, Mexico, and the West Indies. Just a few of the important statistics contained in this book are frequency, power, network affiliations, antenna height, and stereo-equipped stations. An important feature of this book is the completely integrated alphabetical listing of all AM, FM, and TV stations by call letters, making it a handy one-source reference to all commercial broadcast stations.

Also included are 13 maps showing the actual locations and protected areas for both VHF and UHF TV stations.

In order to make the listings in this issue as complete as possible, changes have been inserted up to the time of printing.

VANE A. JONES

EXPLANATION OF TV STATION MAPS

The 12 TV Channel maps on the following pages show graphically the extent of VHF Television in North America.

Various symbols indicate standard commercial TV stations, booster or satellite stations, or educational (non-commercial) stations. Stations not yet in operation are indicated with an open symbol as well as a dashed circle.

The circles are drawn with a radius of 85 miles, which is the counterpart of the minimum Federal Communications Commission's requirement of a 170-mile separation between stations on the same channel.

Due to some stations operating at less than maximum power, and others operating from extremely tall antennas, plus the extent to which the listener in a fringe area will go to improve a weak signal, the circles shown on the map present only an average picture of the extent of TV coverage. Also added coverage is obtained in difficult and sparsely settled areas thru UHF TV stations, TV booster stations and community antenna TV systems.

TV-DX enthusiasts, such as members of the American Ionospheric Propagation Association, will find these maps invaluable when TV-DX is active through atmospheric rarities or certain conditions of the ionosphere, as only with maps such as these, it is possible to see at a glance the direction from which the phenomenon is occurring, and thus be able to search adjacent channels in the same direction for other distant stations.

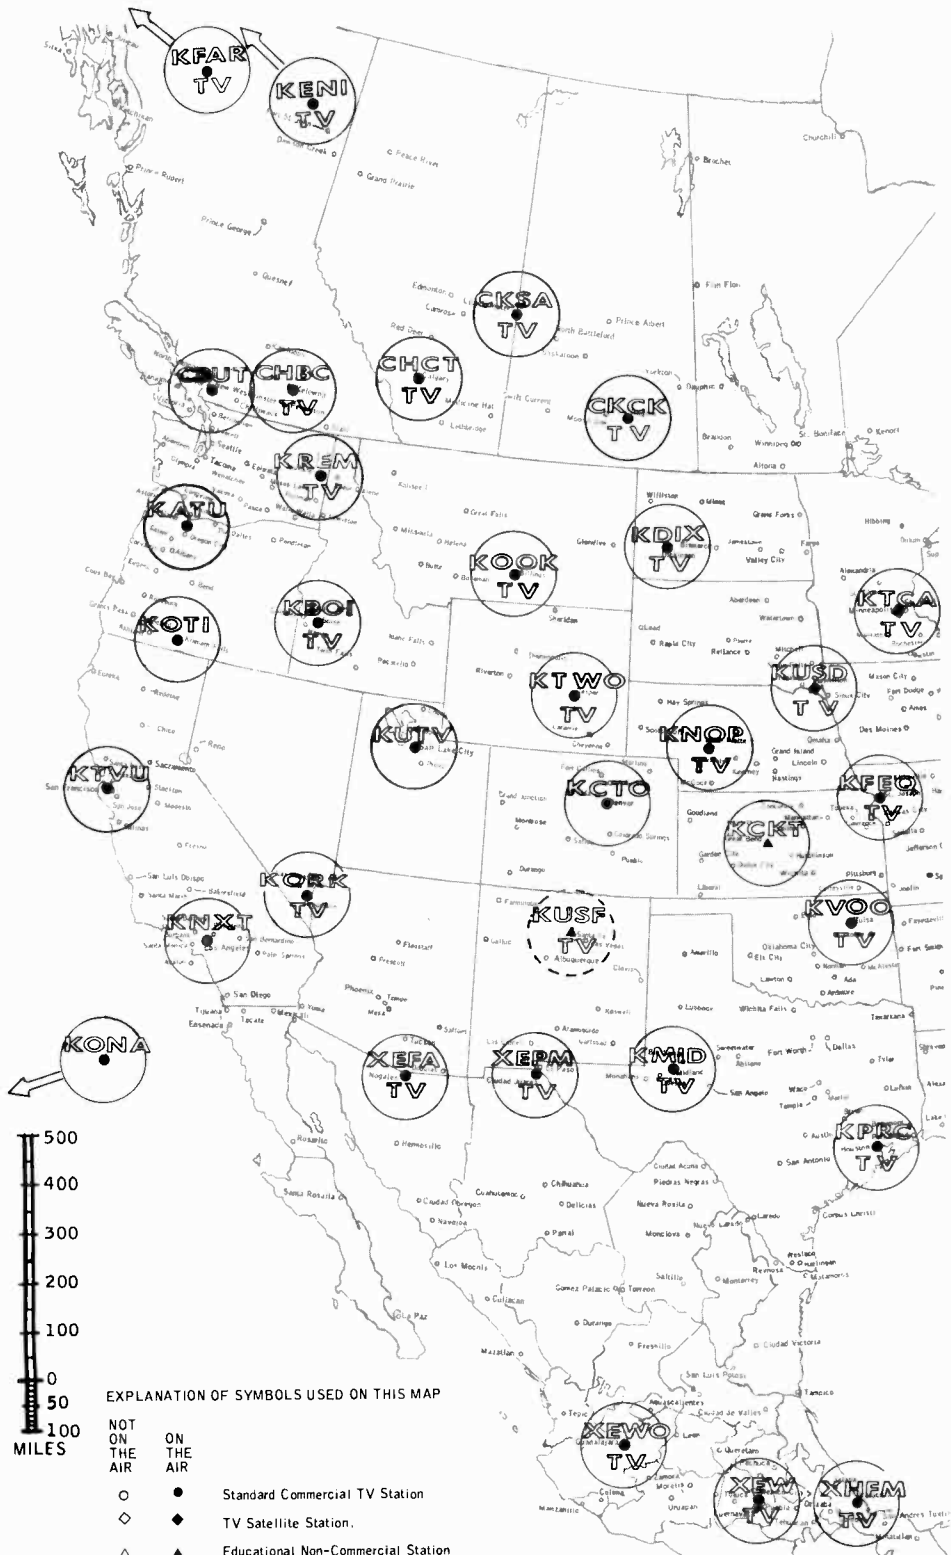

TV Advertisers and their agents will find these maps useful in planning their advertising campaigns, especially spot announcement programs in specified areas. Let us know what use you find for them.

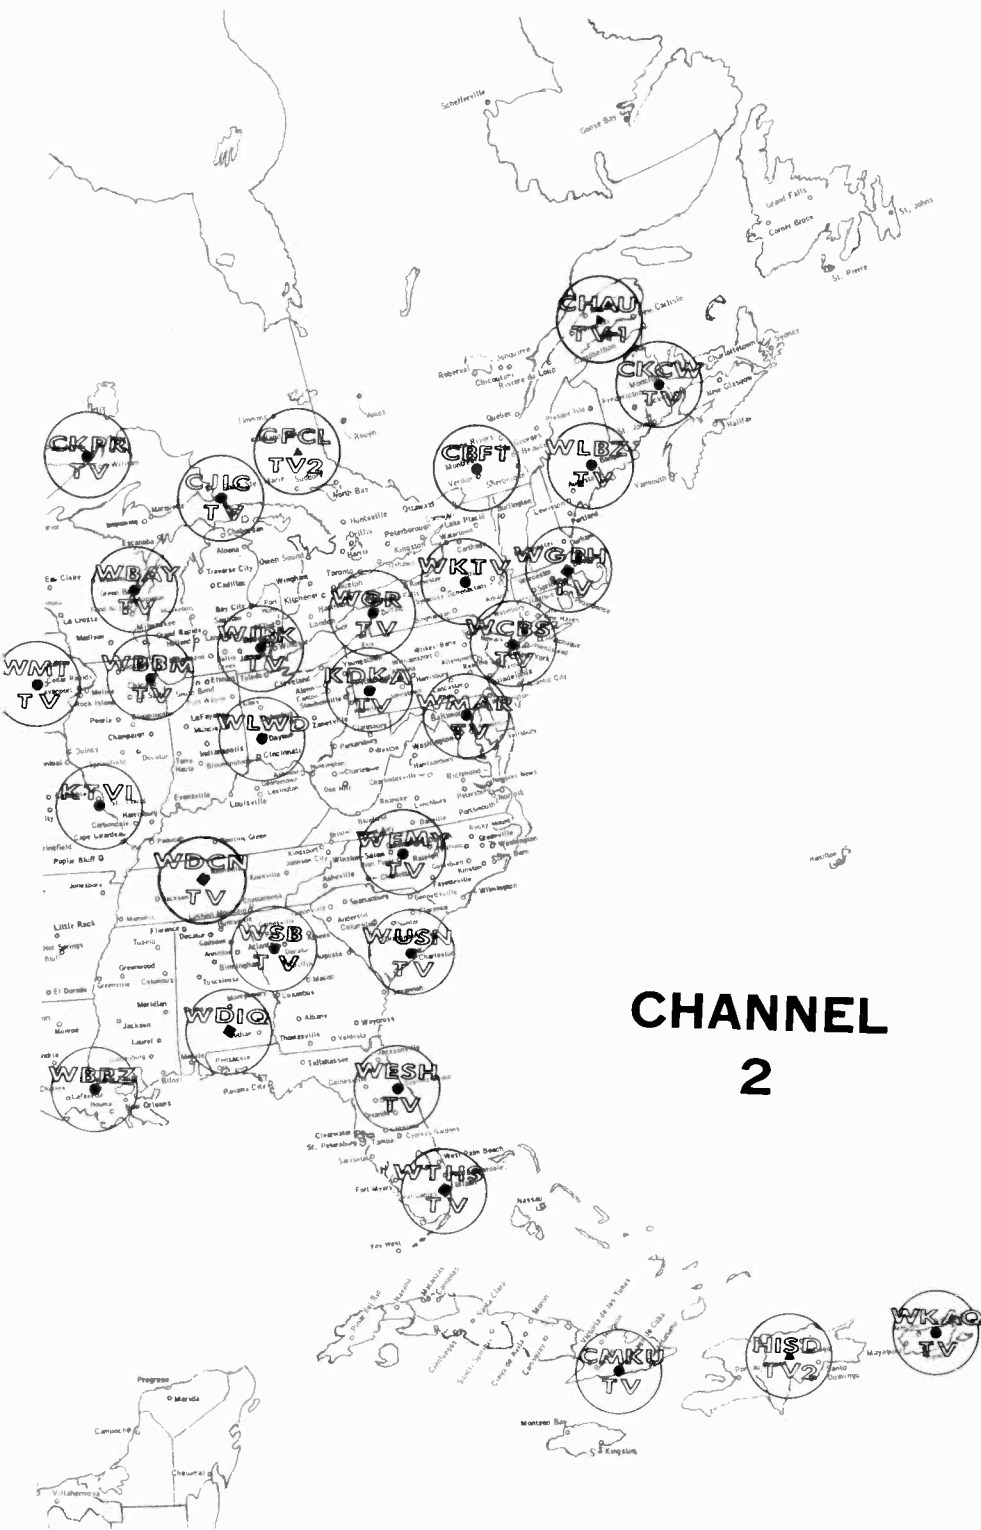

The UHF-TV Station map, on pages 38 and 39, shows the location of all presently operating UHF stations (solid center and solid circle) and those which hold a construction permit, and are either not yet in operation or have suspended operation, but have not relinquished their permit. Other symbols are the same as those shown on the VHF maps.

The 25-mile radius used on the UHF map is not indicative of the maximum or minimum area covered by a UHF station, but may be said to be the average area that good reception may be expected in most cases.

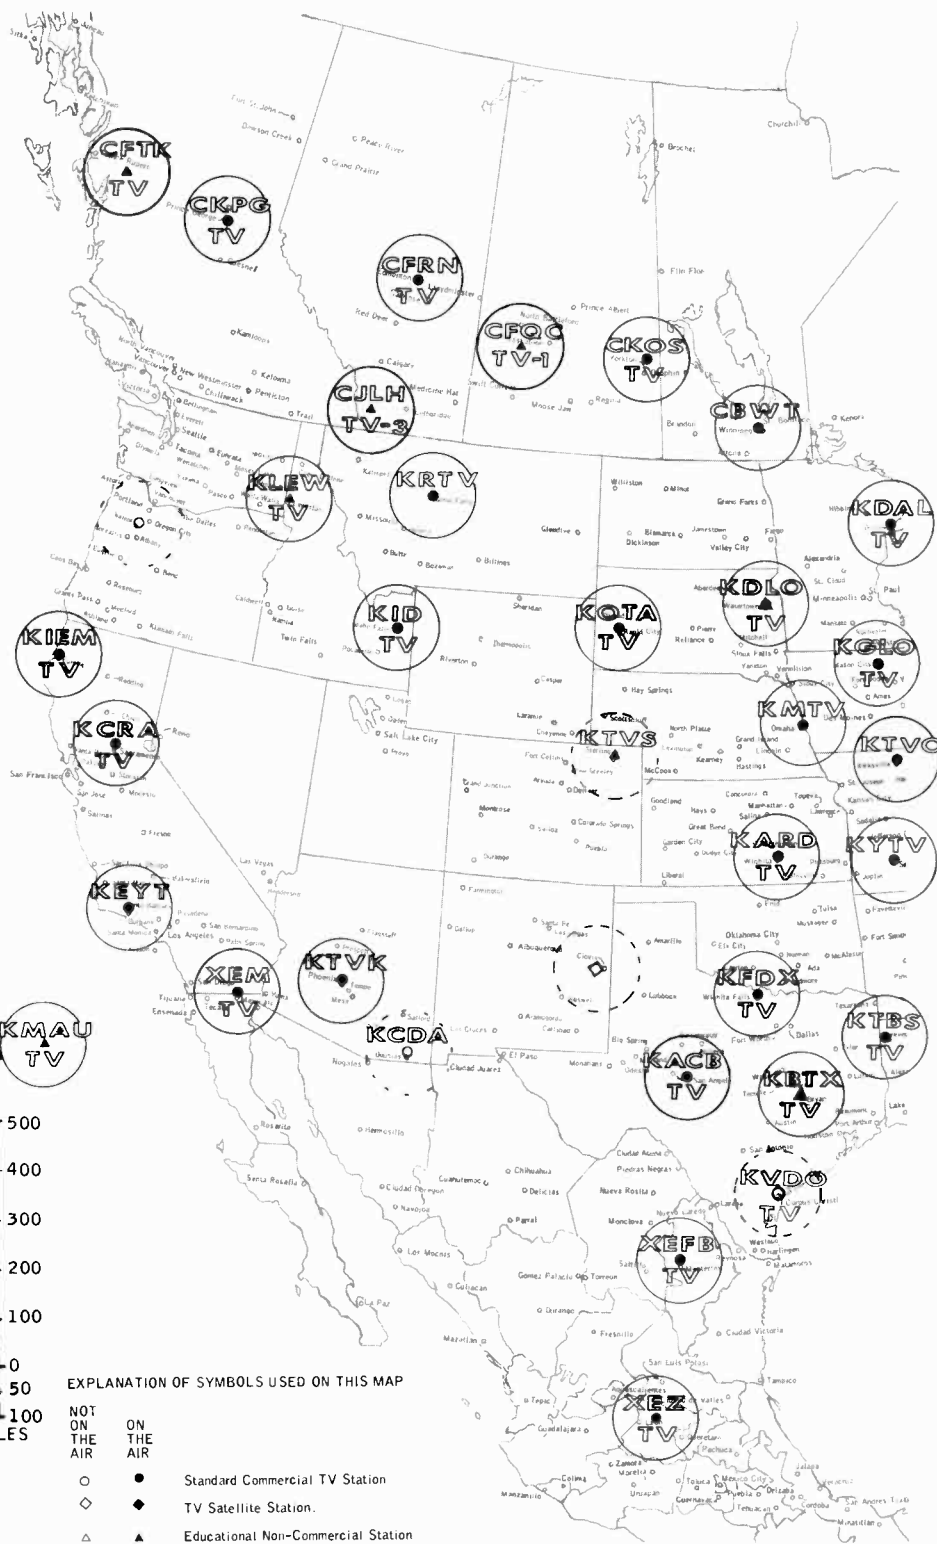

This map may prove to be the low point in the UHF recession. Immediately following the VHF-UHF freeze which was lifted in 1952, many UHF stations were built and operated in cities which eventually obtained VHF stations; however, the UHF stations were not as sought after, and in some cases were very useful for several years, while the VHF applicants fought out their permits in lengthy FCC hearings.

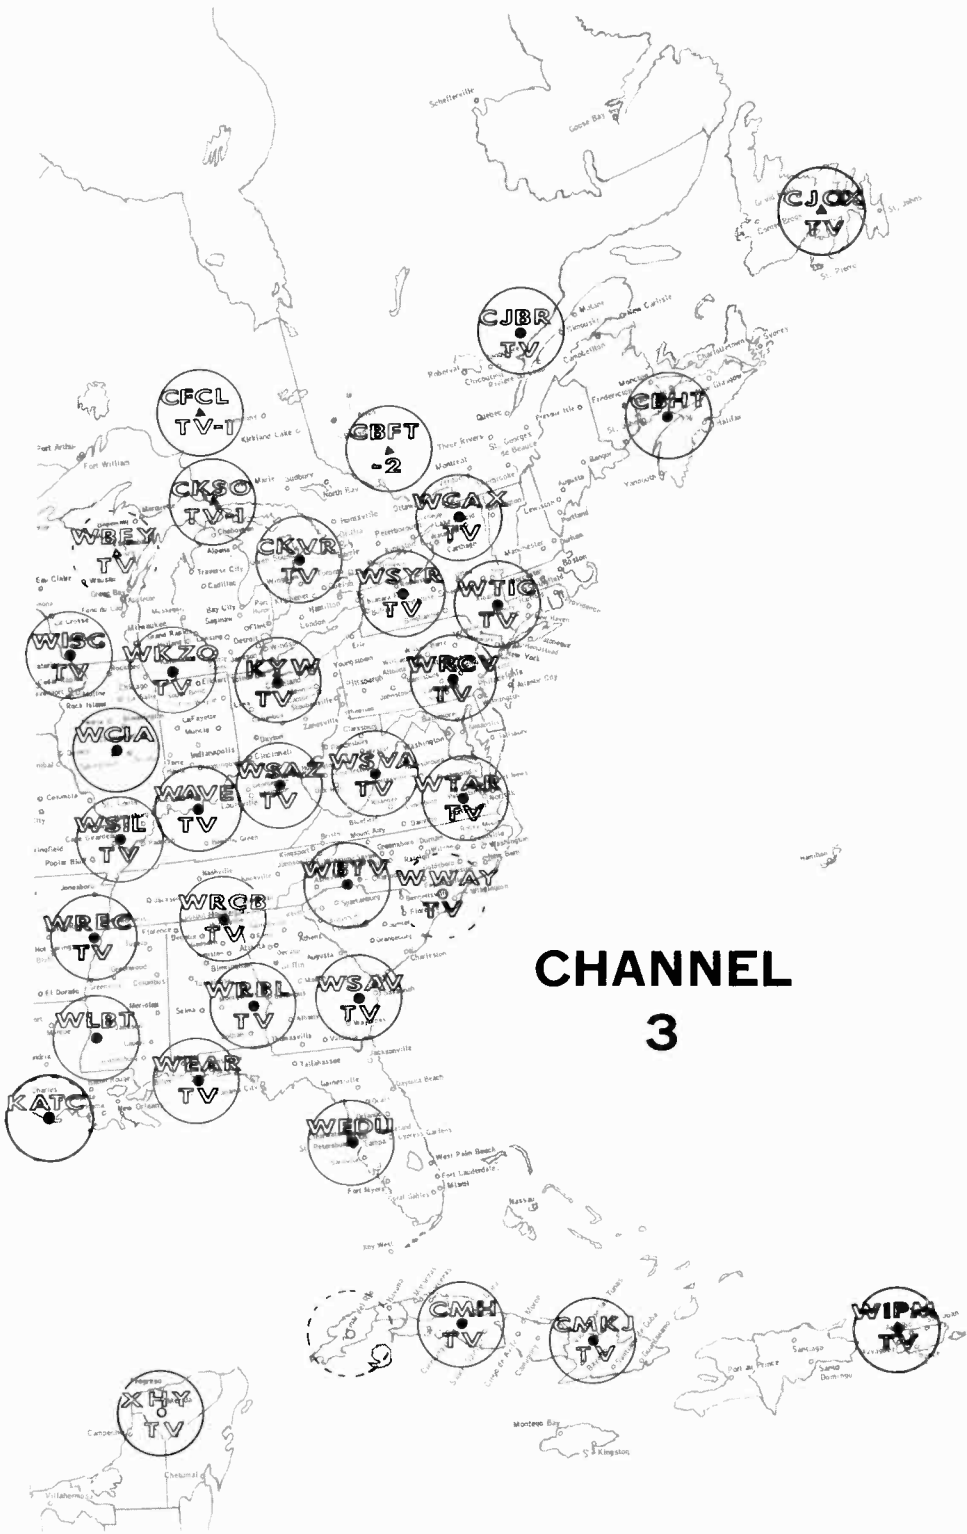

It will be interesting to note in future issues of this map, how the UHF stations expand, as the deadline set by the FCC for manufacturing all-channel TV sets approaches.

NORTH AMERICAN RADIO-TV STATION GUIDE

by VANE A. JONES

ABOUT THE AUTHOR

Author Vane Jones has prepared 4 previous editions of the Radio-TV Station Guide; the first edition was published in 1958, as a result of his DX'ing activity. Since that time, his list of followers has grown rapidly, due primarily to the personal attention he has paid to hairline accuracy and completeness. Mr. Jones is a member of the National Radio Club and the Newark News Radio Club.

This invaluable handy-size book contains over 7,500 listings, including over 5,000 AM radio stations by city, state, and frequency; over 1,500 FM stations by city, state, and frequency; and nearly 1,000 VHF and UHF TV stations. If you want to know the protected area, channel number, call letters, assigned power, etc. for any TV station in the country . . . frequency, call letters, location, etc. for any A. o. M station, keep this book close at hand for fingertip reference while traveling, enjoying your hobby of DX'ing, or working in the broadcast field.

The listings encompass all stations now operating, those which are temporarily off the air, and those which are scheduled to start operation within the year. The entire U.S. and its possessions, as well as Canada, Cuba, Mexico, and the West Indies, are covered. (Such important statistics as frequency, day and night power, network affiliations; construction-permit dates; effective radiated power, and antenna height are all included. For stereo enthusiasts all stereo-equipped stations are indicated.

A special feature is the inclusion of 13 maps. One map for each of the 12 VHF channels shows the location and protected area for every TV station. The UHF TV map shows the locations for both operative and inoperative stations.

North American Radio-TV Station Guide is a convenient reference that will serve a myriad of needs for radio and TV technicians, DX'ers, travelers, broadcast station personnel, radio and TV time buyers, and anyone interested in broadcast station data.
