something special!

In troubled times, the nation's need for an alert, informed citizenry takes on special urgency.

Aware of their unique ability—and responsibility—to communicate en masse, last year (as in years past) the five CBS Owned television stations originated an impressive number of locally-produced prime-time "specials," whose contents ranged widely, and incisively, across community, national and international affairs.

There was, for example, WCBS-TV's "Junkyard by the Sea," an indictment of drug trafficking in the nation's largest city; WBBM-TV's "The Other Americans," a two-part exposé of Communist activity in Latin America; KNXT's "Meet the Officer," a candid study of local law enforcement in action; WCAU-TV's "Dead End 1975," an eye-opening report on today's steadily-worsening traffic crisis; and KMOX-TV's "The Concrete Curtain," which dramatized the importance of increased civil defense in an atomic age. And there were many more!

In 1961, the five stations devoted almost 15 million dollars' worth of station time and facilities to non-network public affairs programs and announcements. This amount—an all-time high!—is one more example of exceptional service rendered to communities for whom the words "CBS Owned" have always signified something special!

FOREWORD

COMPILING AND EDITING a volume such as this all-embracing 25th Silver Anniversary Edition of The Radio Annual and Television Year Book represents an almost never-ending search all over the world for highly pertinent information of all kinds and description for the enlightenment and edification of the many thousands who find the information and data spread over its pages to be of indispensable help in the pursuit of their daily business chores.

THE ever-increasing diligence and care exercised by those who compile and edit this encyclopaedia, and the widening circle of experts who write for its pages, increase its value constantly as a work of reference and insight, not only into the great institution of the American Broadcasting Industry, but the international industry as well.

THE almost countless lists, compilations, tabulations and records of the entire industry, and fields related thereto—a service feature without parallel—reflect a very thorough revision. Several new features of this nature have been introduced in the 1962 Edition.

A MOST interesting and revealing series of articles and special features authored by outstanding industry personalities, presented along with a far-reaching compilation of statistical pages, spell out, clearly, the many highly significant developments of the entire year. It all truly represents a most authoritative history of the business of broadcasting.

TO all those whose untiring efforts are represented in this volume, our deep appreciation and thanks for a job well done.

The Score for a Memorable Commercial

It happens to be the musical score for one of the more than 50 radio and television tracks we created for the 1962 Hamm's Beer Campaign.

It could equally well have been one of the melodies we produced for Alcoa, Brylcreem, Dove Soap, General Electric Christmas Bulbs, Kool Filter King Cigarettes, Lifebuoy Soap, Mercury Automobiles, Molson's Export Ale, Nabisco Shreddies, Silvikrin Shampoo, or our many other clients.

Memorability is the extra quality that insures the selling power of music in commercials. It is what we strive to give our clients.

And it is the reason we hope to be able to add your name this year to the client list of which we are so very proud.

sell deep

In 6 of America's Top 10 Markets

Deep is RKO General's double exposure – extra penetration. Deep is the combined use of both RKO General radio and TV in the same area . . . to give your message a one-two punch at less cost.

For example, with RKO General radio you reach the "mobile market". . . hit the breadwinner on his way to and from work. And at the same time, in most of these same areas, RKO General radio and TV team up to deliver a large, lucrative home audience.

RKO General serves areas with a total of 67 million big market consumers.

RKO General Stations sell in more top markets, with more power, than any other independent chain. That's why they're basic to any national advertising buy.

Call your local RKO General Station or nearest RKO General National Sales Office for details on selling deep in America's Target Markets.

1961 AND THE FCC

Commission Activities Set Tone for 1962

By NEWTON N. MINOW, Chairman
Federal Communications Commission

DURING the past year, the Commission was again active in the field of broadcast programming. It proposed extensive revisions in the nature of the programming information which it requires applicants for broadcasting licenses to submit. After full hearing, it denied a permit for an FM station to an applicant who had no knowledge of, and had made no effort to ascertain, the programming needs of his community. And it put all broadcasting licensees on notice that they are expected substantially to carry out the program proposals on the basis of which their licenses are granted, or present adequate justification for departure from those proposals.

A total of 20 short-term licenses were issued in 1961 where the Commission was unable to find that the past operation of the station merited a full three-year license. Additionally, an Examiner's Initial Decision recommending that a radio station license not be renewed on the ground that the licensee was "woefully inadequate" in discharging his broadcast responsibilities regarding "indecent and obscene" programming, abuses with respect to the total amount of time devoted to advertising continuity as well as the frequency of regular program interruptions for advertising messages, was pending review by the full Commission at the end of the year.

Under recent Congressional authority, the Commission now requires applicants for new stations, renewals, sale and major changes (also when set for hearing) to locally advertise that fact. Congress also enabled the Commission to fine stations for violations not warranting revocation proceedings.

In television, the Commission has taken actions to promote the use of UHF to extend and augment competitive TV service not possible with the limited number of VHF channels. These include proposals to relax certain UHF technical requirements, make certain areas either UHF or VHF, test UHF for large metropolitan area coverage, and has recommended legislation to require TV sets to also receive UHF broadcast.

The continued squeezing in of new AM facilities is accompanied by mounting competition and added interference which demonstrate the acute congestion in that band.

The long-pending clear channel proceeding was concluded when the Commission opened the way for assigning one additional secondary station on each of 13 of the 25 clear channels to benefit certain unserved or underserved areas.

Mounting interest in and competition for FM broadcast facilities made it necessary for the Commission to undertake revamping the rules for that service and, meanwhile, adopt an interim procedure for processing FM applications. All FM stations have the green light to engage in stereophonic broadcasting if they so desire.

These represent only some of the activities in which the FCC will continue to be active during 1962.

TEST OF BROADCASTING

How It Conducts Itself Despite Criticism

By LE ROY COLLINS, President
National Association of Broadcasters

THE past year has been one involving much criticism of broadcasting. The test of the industry in the coming year will be not in how it reacts to such criticism, but how it conducts itself despite criticism. By and large the industry has taken its lumps in stride with a high degree of maturity and dedication.

The progress of broadcasting has been phenomenal. The quality of American broadcasting is not even approached elsewhere, but all good broadcasters know they must always be a part of a strong, continuing struggle to develop a better broadcast product.

There is no limit to the heights broadcasting can reach. There never will be a plateau we can gain, and then rest satisfied. This is true because of the breadth and depth of the impact of broadcasting and its importance to the advance of our culture and free society.

We should, therefore, not only expect but welcome critics. We should accept the fact that in a free America, because of broadcasting's inherent greatness, it will never know tranquility.

In a climate where criticism is noisy and frequent, there is a natural inclination on the part of some to develop almost a fear-complex. There are those who fear the basic freedom to broadcast, which is secured by the First Amendment, is now in jeopardy because of federal government policies.

I do not treat the matter of improper governmental regulation lightly. At the same time, I do not believe the facts justify the extreme fear which has been expressed by some.

While the Federal Communications Commission is anxious to see program improvement, I am convinced it wants to see this achieved not through governmental coercion but through a greater awareness of need and exercise of responsibility by broadcasters, and in ways broadcasters devise.

The FCC cannot legally coerce broadcasters to put specific programs or categories of programs on or off the air because it may approve or disapprove of them. If the day ever comes when it should try this, we at the National Association of Broadcasters will employ every resource at our command in striking down the efforts of any who would trample on the rights of broadcasters to be free.

Every licensed broadcaster in America who is responsible and seeks in good faith to serve the public interest of his community has the sole right and responsibility to determine and control what he programs. So, instead of wasting time and energy crying about the possibility of a governmental censorship which in fact does not exist, we in broadcasting should be devoting ourselves to the responsibile exercise of the freedoms we have.

This is the approach we are taking at NAB—and it is the way of life for the great majority of our American broadcasters. The critics we should be most concerned about are our own consciences.

SHOPPING CENTER

What is a TV station?

it is a theatre...newspaper...political forum ...concert-hall...field of sport...school...church... shopping-center...all in one!

What a TV station is, and what it does in America, is shaped by something Benjamin Franklin pointed out, in the infancy of our country: "The opinions of Men are almost as various as their faces."

We remain a nation of great differences, as well as of great freedoms—a people who, more than any other, feel free to criticize what we wish, whatever the man next door may like!

This is where a TV station's biggest challenge begins; for a leading station serves more families in its area, more often, by their own election, than any other community institution.

How, then, can it best serve so many people, with their extraordinary combination of different backgrounds and tastes, occupations, education and cultures—within the framework of our freedoms and our needs? This is the constant challenge.

To meet this challenge, the TV station combines within itself all of men's powers to speak, to show, to teach, to entertain. It moves words and pictures...ideas and goods...persons and events...almost instantaneously, out to the widest boundaries of the community it serves.

For television is life itself transformed into light.

The TV station must resolve this glow into what's important to its viewers, so they can measure, for themselves, the nation's leaders ...can follow the day's history... study, worship, shop...find their favorite laughter and sports...in one place!

Small wonder, the American TV station has become today's prime mover—bringing its audiences face-to-face with their community and the far-off world, all within the home.

From such great powers to communicate follow great obligations.

We know a TV station can never be measured by any one part of its service, but only by the balance and breadth of its schedule, as it fulfills its community's needs.

And we also know that we cannot hope to reach our highest capabilities unless we help our viewing audiences to reach theirs.

STORER BROADCASTING COMPANY

35 years of community service

WHEN DO YOU FREEZE A FORMAT

The answer is simple – never!

At least, in 35 years, no Storer Station has been able to manage it.

Public preference changes too fast and so do each community's needs. That is why every Storer Station is locally oriented to the particular community it serves.

Only by knowing community problems from day to day have we been able to help solve them. Only through constant check on listener and viewer preferences have we been able to build loyal, responsive audiences

Keeping the public informed and entertained, and working for a better community is a day-to-day, often an hour-to-hour, even minute-to-minute job.

We've never found a way to format community service. It's too big... too fluid...too much of a responsibility to be frozen – even for one day.

IS ANYBODY in the research business

VISITING PEOPLE

in their homes and asking them what they're watching or hearing

AT THE TIME of viewing or listening

PULSE IS-

For many years professional and scientific boards of review have pointed to personal coincidental interviewing as the optimum (though costliest) technology. Now Pulse has developed the technology that makes it possible. For the first time in a continuing broadcast audience survey operation, Pulse is conducting personal, house-to-house coincidental interviewing. At the moment, 9% of our sample is so studied. Now we are entering a second phase of this program—"paired coincidental" which will double the effectiveness of our personal coincidental. For you who wish to read more about the technology involved, let us send you our Technological Bulletin No. 2.

For full information, write, wire or phone for a Pulse representative.

THE NAKED EYE

In most instances is not sufficient to observe printing quality. Our foremen are trained in the use of magnifiers to detect flaws in printing that are not visible to the naked eye.

This procedure has been introduced in our plant as part of a continuing process of quality control in order to achieve a printing product of which you can be justly proud.

This is just one of the extra ingredients that Barnes offers without regard for additional economic consideration.

TELEVISION'S HOT WAR

It's Time to Fight Back with the Facts

By WILLIAM B. LEWIS, Chairman
Kenyon & Eckhardt, Inc.

THE television industry and advertising business share one big problem in common.

For a number of years now both industries have been under incessant attack on a bewildering number of fronts — from critics, educators, parent groups, politicians, intelligentsia, the government, and from the bootblack down on the corner. Talk about a cold war; we are in a hot one!

And what have the two industries done to fight back? Not much; certainly not enough; at best a series of delaying actions and orderly withdrawals to none-too-well prepared positions.

Is this the best we can do? Is our case so black that it is futile to defend it? Have we no leaders wise enough or bold enough to regroup our considerable forces and mount a strong counter-offensive? Hasn't the time come to fish or cut Minow?

When you examine the facts, television has not done a bad job: it has done an almost miraculous job with the time and resources at its command. And I believe it is time for television leaders to start saying so, to talk back loudly, clearly, and with conviction to their many and vociferous critics.

It costs roughly 100 times as much to fill an hour of TV time as it did to fill an hour of radio time 25 years ago. When you multiply the single program cost by the number of programs the networks telecast weekly, and add the additional programming costs of the affiliated and independent stations, the total program bill (as nearly as TvB can estimate) becomes a staggering half a billion dollars per year.

And television must fill all those hours or lose its franchise. What other medium of information, education, or entertainment is required by law to meet such stringent and costly requirements?

The average TV station must telecast approximately 250 programs each week. Yet, despite the staggering magnitude of the task, TV gets more vocal brickbats for its shortcomings than praise for the almost unbelievable fact that it fills over 380 hours a week.

It is totally unrealistic to expect the creative talent pool available to us at this point in history to fill 380 hours a week with strictly first-rate, top-grade television programming. Even if pay TV one day adds the quarters, halves and dollars of the listening audience to the present enormous pool of money contributed by advertisers, there will be no nirvana in TV, anymore than there has been in motion pictures, the stage, or publishing.

TV serves too many masters. Yet it must be all things to all people.

TV also must serve the mass audience and this is a matter of economics! Advertising pays the bill for all the good things on TV, as well as those considered bad; advertisers, to survive and build the economy, must have mass audiences to build mass markets. Without the nearly two billions advertisers now spend annually in TV, where would the money come from for the programs that even the critics and special interest groups like?

These days, the price of a turkey is too darned high

You know that overrating ratings can lead to a hit show that reaches a costly quantity of non-prospects. And the cash register will ring up a turkey.

Also you know that even if you reach the right prospects—but with the wrong commercials—it's another kind of turkey. Equally costly.

You know, too, that the advertiser who does not move swiftly to get the right show, at the right time, may see his competition get the business. And he gets the bird. In these days of spiraling costs, choosy consumers and speedy competitors—who can afford a turkey?

Don't you want a combination of smart programming, swift daring, and creative selling commercials?

Don't you need an agency which is best equipped, on all fronts, to bring down your cost per sale – and bring up your profits from television?

BROADCASTING'S IMAGE

Are We the Good Spokesmen We Should Be?

By DON CURRAN, President
Broadcasters' Promotion Association, Inc.

THE broadcasting industry is now 67 years old, and though it is relatively new—compared to other major industries, millions of words have been dedicated to describing and depicting its inner workings. The basic reason behind this is that broadcasting is an interesting, glamorous business that captures the imagination of the general public as well as of those who work in it. One of the most vibrant and healthy stimulants broadcasting has is that it is the subject of discussion and criticism from many objective sources.

The public looks to broadcasters for information about our industry because, and only naturally so, we are its only real spokesmen. No one else knows the broadcasting business as well as broadcasters. This is simple logic and yet, I doubt we live up to this responsibility of being as good spokesmen as we should. The question I pose is, are we representing broadcasting to our fellow men on a personal, first person basis as successfully as other professionals represent their industry or profession?

The title, broadcaster, has many interpretations. It varies with the market size. With the smaller, isolated market the station personnel automatically represent our entire industry to all. Multiple stations in larger markets share the responsibility, but at the same time represent their industry to the city in which they operate.

This business of image is old hat to the public and industrial relations people. It is simply the ability to mold and maintain a good public image. The talent to do so is the public relation man's stock and trade. I advocate that every person working at a station must have the ability to help create good public relations for the broadcasting industry. In most stations the bulk of this task rests with those meeting the public, from the manager down through the sales team and programming people. A complete reappraisal should be made regularly on the effectiveness in selling the broadcasting industry to the people of each community. It must be considered an important part of operating a successful broadcasting station.

The one man best equipped to contribute the professional public relations advice within the regular table of organization of most stations is the promotion manager. He is, of course, the advertising manager, market strategist and publicist, as well as public relations man. I propose that all station managers allow their promotion manager to strengthen his public relations activities. When he asks to represent your station and the broadcasting industry at various civic functions, please follow through.

Seek out opportunities to represent the broadcasting industry to your public. Prepare yourself by staying up-to-date on industry affairs. Ask your promotion manager to gather facts and figures to give you direct, up-to-the-minute impact. Above all, represent the best interest of the broadcasting industry to the people whom you meet on a daily basis.

LET'S TAKE INVENTORY

Radio Time Should Not Be "Over Sold"

By ROBERT R. PAULEY, President
ABC Radio Network

A BUSINESSMAN in most any industry takes inventory at least once a year. Regardless of his method, he counts his product on hand and subtracts that from his total purchases plus his previous inventory to see how well he has done. From the year's total inventory — divided by number of purchases—comes "average inventory" which, divided into total sales, provides "stock turn," an indication of how efficiently capital was put to work during the year. He has probably also capitalized his plant and equipment at a desired net return on investment to give him a guide to pricing policy and to see how close his sales during the year have come to achieving his goal of return.

All this may be somewhat foreign to the general activities of the broadcast businessman, but should it be?

Our product is programming and it is quite appropriate to consider it as inventory. We at the network are very careful not to "over-inventory" (program too much) while maintaining the best possible news service to our affiliates and providing special events of interest plus variety and public service. For example, we do not add programs simply to satisfy an expediency. Regardless of whether a new program idea may be supported by sponsor money, we look first at our inventory both from total quantity, degree sold and breadth of listener interest. This, after all, is a responsibility of a network to stations, to advertisers and to listeners.

Locally, in many cases the station's license grants the opportunity of programming up to 24 hours a day. The station manager who feels compelled to provide commercial programs to the extent of his license may be making a mistake. If the economics of his market will not support maximum commercial programming, then isn't he guilty of "over-inventory"? By furnishing maximum inventory, stations sometimes feel obliged to sell it . . . and at any price, thus mitigating the value of radio generally and his station specifically. Would it not be better to concentrate on community service programs and build the image of the station in the area of public relationships and responsibilities?

On the other hand, we may have the station which is "sold out," and when a manager tells me this happy news, I suspect that he has not priced his inventory correctly regardless of local competitive factors. The station manager can capitalize his plant and equipment at a desired return, balance this with the rate that he can hope to get competitively and adjust his commercial inventory to achieve this goal. In so doing, he is protecting the basic value of his investment, enhancing his image and upgrading radio.

Let's consider "taking inventory." Balance the product on hand with the sales potential and endeavor to price in relation to this and to your investment. I know the latter is difficult in light of competitive factors, but if radio managers try constantly to be better local businessmen, our entire industry will benefit.

NETWORK RADIO

Designed for the Sixties

By ARTHUR HULL HAYES, President
CBS Radio

WHAT'S BEEN GOING on in network radio while some have been looking the other way? A great deal. So much, in fact, that if you are not familiar with the many exciting things in a current network radio schedule such as CBS Radio's, I consider it an obligation (and a pleasure) to bring you up to date.

Remember the stars who used to delight audiences? Like Arthur Godfrey, Bing Crosby, Rosemary Clooney, Garry Moore, Art Linkletter? They're still here—on the CBS Radio Network. There is music in abundance — from the jazz piano of Erroll Garner, heard frequently on "Arthur Godfrey Time" to the full concert season of "The New York Philharmonic."

In the field of news and information, the new developments are noteworthy. Radio has always excelled in the delivery of news. Given a man with a microphone or tape recorder—and listeners go everywhere in the world that news is made, frequently within minutes of the event.

But more important than radio's excellence in news is the need of our people to be well-informed in these difficult and dangerous times. An article in the "Journal of Broadcasting," taking a backward look at the days of Pearl Harbor, concluded: "In a world where the pace has accelerated many fold in 20 years, the real message of Pearl Harbor may be that our need to survive is inextricably linked to, if not dependent on, our need to know."

And the CBS Radio Network, for one, has moved strongly in the direction of increased news and information. We recently completed our first year under a schedule more than half of which is devoted to such programming. We expanded from five to ten minutes of news on the hour. We introduced a broad range of informational programs, regularly taking listeners to London, Paris, the Far East, bringing them the latest developments in space, science, medicine, business, in short, opening up a world of ideas and information. These programs, under the over-all title, "Dimension," comprise 47 different broadcasts a week.

Of special interest, too, is NetALERT, the new system whereby this network alerts its stations to major developments and special broadcasts at any hour, whether stations are on or off the air. In its first four months, NetALERT was used 70 times, enabling our affiliated stations to bring their communities first word of important news with a round-the-clock consistency never before possible.

CBS Radio, of course, continues to present a variety of special broadcasts. These include documentaries, sports events, Presidential news conferences and discussions by experts on matters of vital interest. During 1961, we provided our affiliates with 133 such programs.

So in brief summary, it is clear that network radio, far from standing still, has been building a new design for living. A design which puts its unique capacities as a personal medium, as an entertainment medium and as a news medium into a new mold to serve our society in the Sixties.

RADIO MEETS DEMANDS

Of a Constantly-Changing Mass Market

By SIDNEY J. WOLF, President
Keystone Broadcasting System, Inc.

THE ever-changing form and shape of America's mass market and national character, detected at the start of each new decade by census statistics, has never been reflected more directly than by radio in 1961. Radio continues to be as flexible as the people it serves and as diversified as their own tastes and character. That's why radio is productive for listeners and advertisers.

Industry surveys as well as our own continue to support the long-established fact that radio is the most adaptable of all communications systems to the rapid changes in mass populations.

As these people move and change, the Keystone "grass roots" affiliates and their local radio operations with strong community identification command new attention and respect from national and regional advertisers. There were two significant population reports last year.

The facts of this past year point to a steady decline in urban population. And — even more important to stations and advertisers—they indicate the change and growth of the Negro as a significant consumer.

A KBS study based on state-by-state data from the U. S. Dept. of Commerce shows the dramatic advance of the so-called Negro market. Total U. S. Negro population rose 25.4% in the past decade — from 15,044,937 in 1950 to 18,871,831 in 1960.

At Keystone, this increase had special significance for our Negro Network of 360 affiliated stations that program directly to Negroes in their communities. We found that, in the 23 states where these Keystone Negro Network affiliates are located, the average Negro population gain was 32.2%—7.7% above the national average. Together, these same 360 stations reach 53% of the total U. S. Negro population.

The Keystone Broadcasting System's radio network of 1,125 stations cover 83% of all U. S. counties, according to a study we conducted.

Our stations now reach listeners in 2,547 of the nation's 3,069 county divisions. We register an even deeper penetration, 85% in the valuable "grass roots" areas — the C and D counties with 100,000 population or less. In the C counties (30,000 to 100,000) Keystone affiliates reach 80% of the national total; in D counties (30,000 or less), our stations reach 88% of the total.

The changing patterns of U.S. marketing show that "grass roots" radio is more vital than ever to advertisers whose trade depends on the U. S. consumer. Radio is far better geared, through personal and community acceptance in these C and D counties (many have one radio station), to do the selling job needed by national and regional advertisers. This is evident to the dozens of Keystone's national advertisers in 1961, who have demonstrable sales proof that these markets are musts for national product traffic.

Network sales in 1961 leveled after 1960's dramatic 25% increase. Prospects for 1962 are optimistic, with 85% of Keystone affiliates reporting they expect billings to rise.

POPULATION EXPLOSION

A Boon to Radio Station Owners & Operators

By ROBERT F. HURLEIGH, President
Mutual Broadcasting System

AMERICA'S POPULATION explosion, which has been creating city-like population centers in fringe sections of the nation's metropolitan areas, has been a boon to radio station owners and operators. But it has caused mayhem for big-city newspaper publishers.

The reason is simple. Radio-waves have no geographical, topographical or delivery limitations for reaching listeners. But newspapers, dependent on trucks and rails for their distribution find the going rough and getting rougher as metropolitan areas expand.

This situation is far from limited. It is probably best exemplified in such metropoli as New York, Los Angeles, Boston, Philadelphia and Chicago, to cite the country's most densely populated marketing areas. But it is happening wherever people are shifting from restricted living centers to areas where they can flex their own muscles and those of growing children. It has, too, caused the phenomenon of fringe-area dailies apparently destined to being stronger, financially, than many of their big-city brethren, since they are beginning to siphon advertising revenues formerly limited to the big-city publishers.

Radio has fared even better with this explosion pattern, and the wise person continues to take steps to effect programming changes to meet this challenge. True, another causative was the mass acceptance of television. But it was recognition of the needs for broadcasting services in the outer areas of metropolitan centers — areas building strongly and steadily and, in particular, swelling with persons occupying top niches in consumer buying charts — that is whipping big-city broadcasters into direct, positive action. Proofs of the successes of their patterns are indelibly revealed by the high prices for metropolitan licenses.

Radiomen realized the new post-World War II population clusters in their primary listening areas needed specialized broadcasting services. Though these areas are linked with the "big-city" economically, diverse other factors govern their living patterns. Ethnically and socially they differ from the city mass.

The point has now been reached in this year 1962 where radiomen, having corralled their audiences, are taking positive creative steps to withstand any and all attempts to woo listeners to other media — or other radio stations. The end result here, too, is outstanding service to the listener — services, in many cases, in excess of those demanded of licensees by the FCC.

We at Mutual realized this communications side-effect from the population explosion when we pioneered our services concepts to affiliates five years ago. Our philosophy is simple: give affiliates the basics they need for integration into their programming schedules, and leave full-time programming to them.

Mutual, I feel, has played an important part in this realistic divergence from old-line traditionalism. We will continue to think along these lines as our country grows.

PUBLIC SERVICE RADIO

Public Interest Programming Means Profit

By WILLIAM K. McDANIEL, Executive V.P.
NBC Radio Network

THE radio networks' answer to the critics is not only are we doing more public service-public interest programming, but there is an opportunity to make a profit on this type of programming.

Network radio, particularly the NBC Radio Network, probably devotes more hours to public service-public interest programming than any other communications medium. During the first half of last year nearly 1,500 hours of all types of programming were broadcast on NBC, and of this approximately 57 per cent consisted of news, information, and public service programming.

How have we fared with programs regarded as within the realm of public service and public interest? It is with pride that I say that our Network maintained its position as the number one radio network in 1961, accounting for nearly half of all sponsored network time. Approximately 100 different advertisers, many sponsoring public service and public interest programs, used NBC Radio during 1961. The top five advertisers with the largest weekly audiences were all on NBC Radio.

Through such programs as "News on the Hour," "Emphasis," "News of the World," Sunday Night Frank McGee Segment of "Monitor" and NBC's Instant Specials covering noteworthy news events, it is our feeling that network radio as a communications medium has progressed to the point where it has given the American people an unparalleled opportunity to become intimately familiar with the character of almost all the leading personalities of our day; with the events that are shaping our futures; and with the issues that engage us all. While all these programs are financially successful, here at NBC we feel that we are providing a service to our listeners who, because of these trying times, demand to be better informed. We are also providing our stations with programs which could not normally be economically produced by the individual stations, and we pioneered stressing news and public affairs.

Six years ago we introduced our revolutionary weekend program — "Monitor." In January, 1937 — NBC Radio shifted its weekday programming concept to news, beginning the industry's first series of network news programs, on the hour, 17 hours a day. The full facilities of our News Corps, were marshalled for this unprecedented project which today is the anchor of our network radio operations. In January of 1960—NBC Radio added a companion program to "News on the Hour"—a five-minute essay-type program utilizing all members of the news broadcast staff, and presented eight times daily Monday through Friday. This is "Emphasis," which varies from off-beat observations on the life and times of an American newsman overseas, to commentaries on the most urgent news events.

As a communications medium, it is quite evident that network radio is going to play an even more significant part in information, news, and public affairs programming in the future.

MATURITY

Maturity makes haste slowly . . . channeling youthful vitality in sound, sure directions. While serving clients successfully for more than sixteen years, we've built an organization with this perfectly balanced asset.

To you it means thoughtful initiative . . . reasoning activity . . . justified tenacity.

We've found it pays to help others choose between hasty decisions . . . and wise ones.

SRA, INC.

Station Representatives Association

By LEWIS H. AVERY, President

THE Station Representatives Association, Inc. was founded in September 1947, by a substantial group of radio representatives, for the purpose of promoting the use of radio advertising among advertisers, and agencies, as well as protecting the welfare of the representative firms themselves. Later the association was extended to include television representatives as well.

Over the years, the association has been involved in a number of projects and activities beneficial to its members, their represented stations, and the rest of the radio and TV industry. Below is a partial list of some of the major projects and activities with which the association has been identified:

Successfully initiated action before the FCC to get the network spot representation organizations out of the representation business.

Prepared and issued a Spot Radio Estimator, which enabled agencies to determine the cost of a spot campaign.

Prepared and distributed a booklet titled "Spot Broadcasting Lets You Decide."

Conducted spot radio clinics among stations represented by member firms.

Actively campaigned and established standards now almost universally accepted for TV ID commercials.

Established and carried out a crusade for spot radio campaign.

Instigated and actively campaigned for the formation of what is now TvB.

Worked with the AAAA on the Nielsen coverage studies.

Prepared and presented a slide presentation on spot radio to agencies, advertisers and stations.

Actively worked with NARTB Code Review Board on Television code matters.

Established a projection formula for use with Nielsen reports.

Instigated a campaign and worked closely with the AAAA in establishing standards of art work in TV commercials.

Established a system of reporting dollar volume figures in spot radio, whereby it was possible to estimate total dollar volume for all Radio.

Established a timebuyer and advertiser mailing list, which is currently maintained by SRA, and is regarded as one of the most up-to-date lists in the business. (4000 agency personnel; 100 advertisers.)

Has actively campaigned against the bartering and brokeraging of time in both radio and TV.

Has devised new contract forms for both radio and TV, and is currently conducting a campaign to establish these common or standard forms.

A campaign started by SRA is currently under way to get stations to adopt a one rate policy.

Has endeavored to establish a central source of information for competitive advertising on a current basis, and has campaigned to enlarge samples and reduce the number of ARB and Nielsen reports.

Filed comments with FCC in recent hearings dealing with revision of FCC Broadcast forms.

A TIME OF RENEWAL

Broadcast House, new four-story home of WTIC TV-AM-FM is the first unit to be completed and occupied in Constitution Plaza, an area of urban renewal which boldly foretells of Hartford's bright future. The challenging opportunity to serve the vigorous, enterprising mind and spirit of the people of Southern New England has been ours for 37 years.

"THE BROADCASTER"
An original bronze by Frances Wadsworth, was commissioned for the lobby of Broadcast House and symbolizes the act of broadcasting which sows the seeds of service.

"The Broadcaster Suite," an original musical work by Robert Maxwell, was commissioned for the dedication of Broadcast House. Its premiere performance under the baton of the composer took place on November 27, 1961, following the unveiling of the bronze by Governor John N. Dempsey of Connecticut.

A TIME OF REDEDICATION

With a deep awareness of our history-filled past, we now dedicate ourselves anew to the fulfillment of that greater service which Broadcast House and its facilities make possible.

Paul W. Lawrence

From the State of salty waters,
Pretty girls and Latin bands,
Oranges without "color added"
Lofty palms and sparkling sands,
Comes a sound that's new and different,
Bright and shiny as the sun,
Hooper shouts it . . . Buyers echo*
In Miami WFUN won one!

In New York, nothing takes the place of fine music, nothing takes the place of

WQXR

AM 50,000 WATTS, AND FM

Where do New Yorkers turn for the best in music? To WQXR, of course. America's Number One Good Music Station is the favorite of more than 1,300,000 metropolitan area families. And a favorite of many of America's biggest advertisers, too. They use WQXR to make profitable sales to better-income families in the world's biggest market.

CANADIAN GROWTH

Highlighted by New Private TV Network

By JULES LAROCHELLE
Radio-TV Daily, Canadian Bureau

THE YEAR 1961 was a stupendous one for the Canadian radio and television broadcasting industry, composed of the crown-owned Canadian Broadcasting Corporation on the one hand, and the independent broadcasters on the other.

The major event in industry in 1961 was the start of the privately-owned TV stations in the major cities of Canada (heretofore the monopoly of the CBC). The entry of these stations resulted in the founding of the country's first privately-owned TV network, and the first time that the CBC had rivals, on a network basis.

CTV Television Network, Limited links eight stations. The CBC meanwhile continued to grow, operating two television networks, English-language from Victoria, B.C., to St. John's, Nfld., 4,000 miles, or longest in the world; French-language network which extends from Sturgeon Falls, Ontario, to Moncton, New Brunswick—in every respect the number one French-language network in the world.

In radio, great activity and good results prevailed for both the publicly-owned CBC and private stations. The number of stations grew as both CBC and private interests added other outlets. The pattern of radio broadcasting changed somewhat during the year. Broadcasters, who generally maintained favorable advertising revenue, offered greater variety of "domestic" programs with more and more emphasis on news reports, either local or national and international.

Country-wide coverage of both radio and TV by the CBC and privately-owned stations attained a wider level. The CBC national service is now within reach of 98 per cent of the population for radio, and 90 percent or more for TV. Extension of this coverage to areas not already served is steadily progressing.

The independents also have plans in mind for extending coverage. At recent hearing of the Board of Broadcast Governors, Spencer Caldwell, president of CTV Network, said his eight-station private chain must have more stations if it is to gain revenue needed to produce good Canadian programs.

The independent TV stations, as was expected, operated at a loss despite obtaining substantial advertising. S. M. Finlayson, president of Canadian Marconi (operator of Montreal's CFCF-TV) said that 1962 should see a considerable improvement in operating results and that the firmer establishment of CTV network in the Canadian Scene will take place.

As for color TV, the situation in 1961 remained unchanged and start of color telecasting still seems quite in the distance. The CBC is proceeding with caution on the matter, although keeping in close touch with developments in the U.S.

FM radio made some headway during the year, and many in the industry felt that long-term prognosis for it is excellent. FM with its great possibilities for high fidelity and stereo may enjoy unprecedented popularity in the near future.

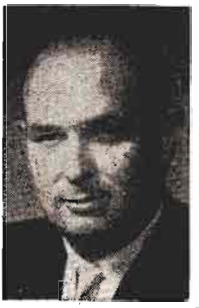
LOCAL PRODUCTIONS

Come of Age Through Program Exchange

By DONALD H. McGANNON, President
Westinghouse Broadcasting Company



THE broadcasting industry is watching the coming of age of locally produced television programs. The station manager who simply switches the network on with one hand and old feature films with the other is becoming an antique exhibit useful only for presentation in some electronic museum of the future.

Local stations are seeking out new sources of talent and programs; the search will be successful, I believe. To succeed, television requires vitality and the public demands variety. There are no national programming sources capable of completely fulfilling the needs of viewers, despite the excellence of their service. Other sources are necessary. One of the most important in the years ahead, in my opinion, will be the local station.

There is a national trend beginning in television that will permit program exchanges between stations of the best locally produced programs; of an educational informational, and cultural nature, to begin with, but ultimately involving the whole spectrum of television programming that is local in origin.

The total effect of station exchanges will be a widespread enrichment of the medium.

The word "local" is almost a misnomer. True, many programs are limited in appeal to the immediate area served by the station, but many go far beyond that. What captivates viewers in Baltimore may also often demand their attention in Boston, Cleveland, San Francisco or Pittsburgh. They have regional interests which frequently become national concerns. An exciting program debating the pros and cons of capital punishment in Southern California, though the circumstances may be of local origin, can dramatize a subject of interest to Americans everywhere.

Every community at one time or another has been involved with the crisis in education: adequate classroom facilities, decent salaries for teachers, and the problem of why Johnny can't read. With the exchange of high quality programs and the resultant national dissemination of local experiences, there is every possibility that we Americans will be discovering solutions for each other's problems in a way possible only in an electronic age.

The audience in Westinghouse Broadcasting Company markets possess international interests, and so on numerous occasions the WBC stations have produced international documentaries. The news assignment may be Formosa, Korea, Africa, or West Berlin. A major international news event is generally of national interest. It matters little to the viewer who produced the documentary on South Vietnam or East Berlin. The widespread emergence of station production at the local, regional, and international levels will mean a new programming dimension and enrichment for viewers everywhere.

TOMORROW'S RADIO NEEDS

Are Demanded of Radio Today

By CLIFFORD J. BARBORKA, JR., President
Better Broadcast Bureau, Inc.

NATIONAL spot radio faces an unparalleled opportunity for growth in tomorrow's expanding advertising world. But to capitalize on this challenge its selling needs must be attended to today.

National advertisers and their agencies will continue to find it difficult to relate spot radio's many values to their own sales problems as long as they fail to understand the medium's many aspects.

In order for spot radio to be implemented within the concepts of creative advertising, its many parts must be understood and placed in their proper perspective — programming, promotion, production, personalities and community identification. And perhaps the most important feature of all, the great ability of spot radio to operate and function at the local level for a national advertiser.

Now is not the time to make excuses for our poor position in the advertising spectrum. It is the time to take advantage of the advertiser's need to move goods off the shelf at the point of sale as well as his hunger for fresh ideas to accomplish the sales objective. Radio's great responsibility is to demonstrate the power of spot radio as a medium, a marketing tool, a copy vehicle and for its merchandising reliability.

Let's not forget that no one medium is a panacea for product selling ills. The basic ingredients of any medium can serve specific purposes. The demonstrable difference in media selling is not sitting back in confusion over a competitive medium's advantages, but in critically reviewing our own disadvantages and problems. And not to look upon them as problems, but as creative opportunities.

Over the past 20 years, in spite of enormous advertising advances, spot radio has remained a captive of the status quo. Advertising volume has risen from $2 billion in 1940 to $12 billion in 1960, while spot radio's share has decreased from 2.4 to 1.8 percent. Many experts predict a $25 billion ad expenditure by 1970. Let's ask ourselves, "Where will we be then?"

Radio can take heart over one major misconception. It is not true that most agencies or advertisers have little interest in radio. What is true is that radio has not been sold properly nationally. We have found, in fact, that most agencies and advertisers are not only interested in radio, but are seeking new, fresh ways to use the medium. They recognize radio for at least two of its greatest values— cost efficiency and the memorability and impact of sound.

But to move an advertiser and his agency to the dotted line in any important way requires ideas and sales thinking geared to the advertiser's side of the fence, based on his needs. Also, it requires that radio salesmen at all levels hold the line against deals and maintain integrity for their rate card and profession.

In its short history, the BBB has assisted in the development of spot radio as counselors specializing in new and creative uses of the medium on behalf of advertisers, agencies, representatives and stations.

'BEEPER PHONE'

Vital to Negro News Leadership

By HARRY NOVIK, President
Station WLIB

NO aspect of a local news operation is more important to a community radio station than the beeper phone. It not only provides the station with a valuable image, but properly exploited gives vitality and leadership to a news department impossible to achieve through normal use of wire service or rewritten local copy.

At New York City's leading Negro Market station, we invest a considerable part of our annual expenditure for news in beeper coverage. It is the only way to angle a top news story toward the special interests of our community. When independence for the British West Indies was discussed in London, we were able to bring the story to our community by direct beep phone calls to England. Similarly, the release of the reputed Mau-Mau leader in Kenya gave us special prominence because we interviewed him by beeper phone direct to Africa.

The technique of interviews, as developed by us, involves a system of questioning to connect the person interviewed with the interests of our community. The tape is recorded in "takes" so that portions may be used on various programs during the day. The completed tape is then filed for future reference.

Significantly, the statements obtained in such beeper interviews form the basis of exclusive stories frequently used in newspapers with credit to us as the source. Thus, on occasion, portions of the beeper interview which we are unable to use are nonetheless of important promotional value in establishing our overall operation as a reputable source of news. Many of the tapes are reused in documentaries, as was done in the "WLIB Freedom Ride" program.

Our station has "world-community news reports" every half hour. It is the policy of our news department to include at least one beeper, or on-the-scene interview in each such program. Without this addition, our news would be entirely adequate since it is reliably gathered, both by our own reporters and through the press association. But it would not be leadership news, the quality that distinguishes a station in any market.

Whether sponsored or not, the use of beeper and on-the-scene interpolations carries over into every aspect of station promotion. Thus, top stories are always given highlight promos in our daily schedule during which we call attention to up-coming exclusive stories.

During 1962, we hope to expand our beeper coverage with the additional use of feature material. We are now planning to supplement our United Nations News, in addition to the weekly report of African Nations prepared by our UN correspondent. We also plan a "Quote of the Week" series based on our beeper tapes.

During the past year, we totalled 1,826 beeper interviews with calls throughout the United States, parts of of Europe and Africa. The telephone toll costs have been the smallest part of our budget, averaging not more than $250 a week, but the pay-off in prestige, leadership and community impact has been incalculable.

JOURNALISM'S VACUUM

Pubservice Opportunity That Nets $-Return

By ARTHUR PERLES, Editor
Radio-Television Daily

WHAT does it take to jolt most radio and TV station operators out of their complacency — or could it be a fear-induced mental paralysis?

On every side, they have been explicitly told and advised by experts that:

"They cannot afford not to editorialize" (LeRoy Collins, president, NAB 39th convention).

"Pointing up problems, giving leadership to solutions" is the station's prime role in a community (Daniel W. Kops, WAVZ, June 1, 1960).

" . . . the licensee is required to devote a reasonable percentage of broadcast time to discussion of public issues of interest in the community." (FCC, June 6, 1949).

Precedent and opinion are legion and should long since have propelled every broadcaster into the spectrum of editorialing over his channel. So, you inquire, what's been the net result?

The answer is astounding: practically nothing! As this is being written, there are relatively but a handful of sight or sound outlets that measure up in maturity to their franchise stature.

Some oppose publicly expressing opinions because to do so might cause them to lose advertising revenue — even though their own NAB is prepared to demonstrate that editorials on the air will heighten a station's prestige and, as a consequence, actually increase its revenues.

While license-holders collectively fight off Federal tendencies to regulate them into flaccid submission, the rundown of call-letters in both electronic media is literally loaded with examples of station management which pigheadly refuses to make a decision that could put them only on the side of the angels.

These reactionaries of broadcasting — still hiding behind the 1941 Mayflower decision — would be doing themselves and their industry a great service and bring it honor if, for example, they examined the effectiveness of editorializing as demonstrated by Harry Novik, WLIB, New York, president.

Catering to a Negro market and audience, he realizes the criminal cruelties in penning multitudes of colored families within the Harlem slums, where avaricious landlords charge enormous rentals for foul dwellings. WLIB has trained its editorial guns on state and municipal indifference to get action on a bill that has been a political football for years. The measure would compel the city to make tenement repairs and, if the owner refused to foot the costs, seize the property.

After the second World War, we experienced a wave of newspaper consolidation. Today, there are fewer than 80 cities in the whole country which have more than one printing-press voice.

Here is the vacuum of journalism that must be filled by station broadcasting. It is an opportunity for unparalleled public service that pays rich dividends in the assurances of service faithfully rendered and—unmistakably, in dollar return.

Mr. Station Owner, what are you going to do about it? Now . . . please.

END OF THE (MASS) WORLD

Rise of the "Specialized Mass Markets"

By RALPH N. WEIL, President
Key Broadcast Management, Inc.

JOHN CROSBY, in a column called "Century of the Uncommon Man", found some memorable language with which to say something that we have insistently been trying to tell the industry and its advertisers since 1959, when Arnold Hartley and I devised the term, "Specialized Mass Markets", to describe the two audiences of WOV in New York—Italian and Negro.

Crosby says we have to stop thinking in ordinary "mass" terms. "Mass movies", he says, "are finished." "Mass magazines are in terrible trouble". "Even in aggression, the very latest thing is the specialized war!"

If for mass we equate the word "undifferentiated", we can join with John Crosby in reciting the obsequies for a day and age in radio that are over. No station today can be "all things to all men", and with the bounty of facilities available in America, there's no reason to try.

But "mass" has another connotation: that of large numbers. It's in this sense that we use the term "Specialized Mass Markets".

San Antonio, Texas, is a city where 53% of the population is of Latin-American origin. Its Spanish traditions are the principal component in the city's charm. Our station, KCOR, is dedicated to serving this Latin majority day and night—in Spanish, because the Latins of San Antonio and South Texas generally, speak Spanish first — learn English later — and proudly continue to think in Spanish all their lives. A specialized radio service, for a mass audience — 53% of the city. Hence: a Specialized Mass Market.

In St. Louis, where we operate KATZ, the Negro population approaches one in three. KATZ is devoted 100% night and day, to Negro programming. The Negro market in the area is evolving rapidly, attaining new high levels of purchasing power and cultural achievement. Since the Negro population is growing at a rate 57% greater than the white, we can look forward to a large, highly developed community whose importance will increasingly be felt in the metropolis as a whole. KATZ's appeal is qualitatively specialized, quantitatively mass.

We could say something similar for our station in Meriden, Connecticut, WMMW, which is specialized in this sense: it is intimately integrated with the day-to-day life of the Meriden - Wallingford - Berlin - Cheshire - Southington enclave in central Connecticut. WMMW stresses alert reporting of everything that goes on in the area. I hesitate to apply the "Specialized Mass Market" nomenclature to WMMW, but it does come back to the theme of John Crosby's column—in a world where a colossal process of "undifferentiation has been going on, men resist by finding ways of declaring their own special interests, and one of these is intensified interest in the locality in which one lives and works, and with which one can identify. It is American individualism reasserting itself in its own way against the onslaught of the deindividualized "mass" concept."

The result is WMMW, a station that lives the lives of its community.

From the composers of today flows the music that reflects our life and our time. Many of the composers who make significant contributions to the music of our time license their performing rights through BMI. In many different ways, BMI fosters and supports the many worlds of contemporary music.

Since 1940 the publishers, composers and authors affiliated with BMI have built a large and diversified repertoire... music of every kind to fill every need. They continue to provide a flow of music that serves the challenging needs of the film and television industry.

WORLD-WIDE TV GROWTH

U. S. Experience Adapted to National Patterns

By MERLE S. JONES, President
CBS Television Stations Division

ALL of the interest in world-wide television will yield only minimum results unless and until the individuals and organizations involved understand its meaning and work hard at continuing to understand it.

For example, it is wrong for anyone in this field to approach international TV with the attitude that Americans have a monopoly on intelligence or know-how. We have the benefit of experience, but it is surprising how quickly our foreign friends can analyze this experience and adapt it, without our mistakes, to their national pattern.

The American TV system, the most successful system in the world, is not being adopted generally abroad. Therefore, although the universality of TV abroad is almost unbelievable, the patterns of its use and development are quite varied. In many areas, particularly in what we unfortunately refer to as under-developed areas, the medium is employed and developed solely as an educational tool. This is true in Africa, the Far East and some parts of the Middle East.

Commercial involvement appears in varying degrees. Some nations permit private enterprise commercial operations, some have adopted quasi-government control and in some cases the government competes commercially with privately owned stations.

The opportunity for experienced American participation abroad falls into three categories.

First, there is the opportunity for the American television film producer and distributor to lease his film abroad. In the public affairs program area alone, CBS Films, in the past 12-months, has sold 11,000 program half hours originally broadcast on our TV network. These programs are seen in 40 countries with more than 36 million TV homes.

Another opportunity is that of investment—as a pure dollar investment—or as dollars coupled with know-how. These are not easy opportunities. Many governments will not permit foreign ownership of TV operations in any amount. Furthermore, national business customs and temperaments vary, making it difficult to successfully translate know-how. But this area presents the unique opportunity for applying the broad philosophy of "helping the other fellow."

Thirdly, the foreign broadcaster must program according to his national interests and the likes and dislikes of his audiences. However, he can save many errors by calling upon a backlog of know-how through our international business affairs department, which supplies advice and, sometimes, capital.

In Trinidad, Buenos Aires and Lima, we are in partnership with local interests who are familiar with national likes and dislikes. We have supplied our technical know-how but have not imposed our philosophies.

As a result of the various activities of the American broadcaster on the international scene, it is obvious the U. S. is occupying a position of leadership in the development of a world-wide TV system.

TV REVOLUTION

End of the Farm as Separate Market Entity

By NORMAN E. CASH, President
Television Bureau of Advertising

WITH the advent of television more than a decade ago, there came a series of upheavals in the marketing area. Companies dropped old-time metropolitan area concepts to sell their products within the boundaries of the TV signal, big city newspapers one by one gave way to suburban papers as advertisers sought to find better ways to reach the rapidly growing new communities outside the city limits which now fell under TV's power, and mass magazines splintered their editions regionally in their battle to ward off the flexibility of spot TV. These are but a few of the examples. Almost unnoticed is yet another revolution: for all practical marketing considerations, the end of the farm as a separate entity.

This is not to say of course that farms no longer exist or are unimportant to the marketer. It is to say, however, that farms have been integrated completely into the national selling pattern and are indistinguishable from other segments of the economy. Because of TV, the farmer today is not unlike his big city cousin.

Dr. Clinton L. Folse of the U. of Illinois puts it this way: "Farm life is gradually assuming a character that's typical of many suburban areas." With eight of ten farms equipped with TV sets, only slightly lower than the national average, farm families are sold the same products through TV that residents of city and suburban homes use.

While the number of farmers has declined sharply because of increased productivity possible through mechanization—farm income has gone the other way, making the market ever more valuable to the seller of goods. With increased leisure time, farm families also have more time to watch TV.

Local television stations have taken note of this situation by becoming a primary source for information. For example, more than 150 stations telecast news and data for farmers and often provide the impetus behind local improvements in agriculture.

Newspapers in the farm areas and farm magazines, to cite two cases, have clearly failed to meet the challenge. Newspaper circulation is heaviest in city zones while weakest in retail trading zones surrounding metropolitan markets.

From a high of $28.6 million spent by advertisers in farm magazines during 1957, revenue declined to $22 million in 1961. In the first half of 1961, the top 100 advertisers spent but $4.4 million in farm magazines, against $5.6 million in 1960.

Rural families have welcomed TV into their homes. It has made them feel just as much a part of the American scene as any other citizen, certainly not singling them out as being different from anyone else.

The sociological implications brought about by the end of the farm market are vast, but at the same time, good. For no longer is the farmer at any disadvantage with the city dweller.

And the seller's problems have been simplified: he is able to reach both city and farm audience with a single approach.

TELEVISION PROGRAMMING

A Constant Search for New & Better Concepts

By THOMAS W. MOORE, Vice President in Charge
ABC Television Network

ONE area of industry which has received more and more attention from companies over the past few years has been research and development. Manufacturers know that product planning and improvement lead to company progress. Product planning and improvement is as important in broadcasting as it is in manufacturing.

Our research and development is a continuing endeavor which results in pilots and formats for new entertainment concepts. The money invested in this programming area represents a major expenditure in the millions.

And it is well worth it. Programming is our basic product.

There are many factors that advertisers look for in selecting programs and networks. They have many and diverse needs to fill in their selling efforts.

A network has the essential task of seeking the interest of its primary customer—the viewers—and that is with appealing programming, of all kinds, that will strike a responsive chord. It is in the search for this responsive chord that new forms of television are created.

"The Flintstones" opened up a new type of programming; animated situation comedy with a built-in appeal to adults as well as to youngsters. Extensive preparation produced "The Flintstones" and gave it success.

Without a doubt the programming sensation of the 1961-62 television season has been ABC-TV's "Ben Casey," a truly powerful dramatic series. "Ben Casey" is not "just another television series." It is, in a very real way, a dramatic anthology within a basic frame of reference. It has drama, humor, sympathy and action. But above all it has style. A continuing dramatic style that came, again, out of creative planning.

I believe that next season, "Going My Way," starring Gene Kelly, should be among the other successful shows founded on similarly creative planning.

Just as there are many kinds of cigarettes, automobiles, and detergents, with marked differences, there are different kinds of programs. And research and development is not limited to entertainment programming.

Some of the most creative work in news and public affairs programming is now being done by Jim Hagerty and his ABC-TV staff.

Howard K. Smith's Wednesday night program of commentary and analysis, the Sunday afternoon "Adlai Stevenson Reports," the "Bell & Howell Close-Up!" series of outstanding documentaries and the four daily ABC-TV news programs are prime examples of penetrating television programming that is the result of active minds always looking for better ways to serve the television public.

Some believe that television's "millennium" occurred years ago. They should observe more carefully. Television is progressing. It has made the American people a better informed people.

It has not only increased their knowledge, it has made them vitally aware of the world they live in.

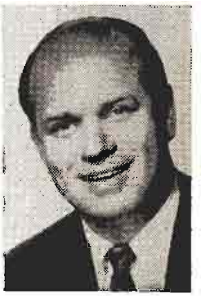
THOMAS W. MOORE

ABC Vice President in Charge of TV Network



Joining the American Broadcasting Company in November, 1957 as Vice President in Charge of Sales, Mr. Moore made the unusual shift from sales to Vice President in Charge of TV Programming only four months later. He assumed his present position in March of this year. He came to the American Broadcasting Company from the Columbia Broadcasting System where he was General Sales Manager of CBS-TV Film Sales. Mr. Moore joined CBS Films in 1950 as an Account Executive. Born in Meridian, Mississippi, Mr. Moore attended Mississippi State College and the University of Missouri, from which he received a bachelor's degree in journalism in 1939.

JAMES C. HAGERTY

Vice President in Charge of News, Special Events and Public Affairs

News Secretary to former President Eisenhower during his administration, James Hagerty took over the top ABC news job on January 23 of last year, three days after leaving the White House. A top news reporter for the New York Times from 1934 to 1943, Mr. Hagerty became former New York Governor Thomas Dewey's Press Secretary in 1943. In 1952 he took leave from his New York State position to work with General Eisenhower, then became his News Secretary when Eisenhower was elected President.

GIRAUD CHESTER

ABC Vice President in Charge of TV Daytime Programming

Former Director of New Program Development with Ted Bates & Company, Mr. Chester joined the American Broadcasting Company Television Network in 1958. Previously, he had been head of Daytime Programming for the National Broadcasting Company Television Network since 1954. Mr. Chester is the author of several books including the college text, "Television and Radio," and was the winner of a Ford Foundation fellowship.

ECONOMY STIMULATION

A Vital TV Service in the Public Interest

By JAMES T. AUBREY, JR., President
CBS Television Network

IT IS CUSTOMARY in discussing television to point out the unique aspects of the medium. I should like to suggest that what is fundamental about our television is its combination of three vital services to the public interest. Each of these services is strong and worthwhile by itself. Together, they make television even more valuable as a national and—in a growing sense—an international asset.

The three services rendered by television, in the public interest, reflect the broad scope and impact of this mightiest of communications media. No other medium, for an example, can make the individual in his own home an eyewitness to the great events of his time. No other medium can bring the world's greatest entertainment talent right into the sight and sound of the family living room.

Generally when we discuss U. S. television we emphasize these two objectives in the public interest—information and entertainment. There is a third, tremendously important, which I can best describe as stimulation of the economy.

Of course, we must and we do move ahead in giving the American public information. We do this on a tremendous variety of subjects, ranging from the formal higher education offered on "College of the Air" to the pre-school public of "Captain Kangaroo" to the family audiences of CBS Reports, "Eyewitness," "The Twentieth Century" and many other CBS News programs of both spot news and documentary nature. We do it with entertainment of equally broad range, in a balanced flow of variety, comedy, drama, good music, adventure and so forth. Some entertainment evokes recognition of basic American standards of respect for our fellow men and for our nation's ideals and ideas. Some entertainment encourages awareness of our cultural heritage. Some entertainment serves the public interest purely by entertaining, as do some of our greatest books, plays and music. There is no need to categorize. Leonard Bernstein and the New York Philharmonic—or "The Defenders" or Red Skelton or "Candid Camera"—cannot be topped as entertainment; yet each in its own way contributes something more for us.

Earlier I mentioned a third objective of television, which I described as stimulation of the economy. I believe very strongly that television plays a major role in promoting the development and sale of consumer goods, in creating and maintaining mass markets which enable so many products to be priced within the reach of all. It is no accident that the major upsurge of the American economy has come precisely in the years when television became the major marketing force in shaping our economy as it exists today.

At the CBS Television Network, we look forward to the day when what television has done for America can be extended to every corner of the world. It will be a better world to live in.

TELEVISION'S GROWTH

Meets Desires and Needs of "Customers"

By WALTER D. SCOTT, Executive Vice President
NBC Television Network

TELEVISION'S FANTASTIC growth has been achieved by an ear-to-the-ground attunement to the desires and needs of its two groups of "customers": audiences and advertisers.

Providing a new service was the impetus; adapting that service to the changing needs of our viewers and clients was the motivating factor in building TV into the most powerful communications force in history.

More people are watching, and more advertisers are placing more money in TV than ever before. The reason for this continuous upward curve is service.

We are in the entertainment and information business, and also the selling business. Patterns change so rapidly in both these areas that we must anticipate needs, set trends, and provide a service.

At NBC, more than a dozen years' experience in network programming have resulted in what we believe to be the finest TV service offered. To advertisers we bring a flexibility which permits them to use network TV as it fits their needs; to our viewers we bring a schedule of balance and diversity.

Flexibility for advertisers has long been part of the NBC Television Network service. As pioneers in such areas as participating programs, color and specials, we have successfully opened new horizons to advertisers.

Our participating programs have been used by major advertisers for year-long campaigns, by seasonal advertisers and small new advertisers which have used these programs to sell products at such a rate that they have later become multi-million dollar clients of NBC-TV.

As the only network which provides regular color programming, we have reaped the rewards of this service. Many advertisers now request or insist their shows be done in color and, in the case of the automotive industry, a major share of their business is placed on NBC-TV.

The specials concept, originated here in 1954, has evolved into a flexible medium designed to fit the needs of a variety of advertisers. Hallmark uses specials to sell greeting cards at holiday time, Lincoln-Mercury and Chrysler use them to sell cars, Purex to sell soap.

Our regularly-scheduled programs, too, are well-equipped to contribute to NBC-TV's overall flexibility. In daytime programming studies have shown that product demonstration by the star provides much higher impact than the average commercial. Bill Cullen, Art James, Jan Murray, Merv Griffin, Hugh Downs, and others — regularly give this added plus to our advertisers.

The position of NBC News as the leader in broadcast journalism has made the purchase of our news-public affairs programming an attractive buy for many advertisers. With prime time informational programming at an all time high, audiences have responded in great numbers.

We will continue to strive to make the power of network TV available to as many product manufacturers as possible, while serving our viewers.

BRITISH TV IN THE U. S.

Overseas Programming Interest Encouraged

By DENNIS SCUSE
New York Office, BBC

BBC TV enterprises department was set up in March 1960 to handle all international aspects of our activities, specifically to promote the sale and distribution of our programmes abroad and to develop the co-production of film television series with other organisations and producers.

Considerable success has already been achieved in both fields: our programmes have been sold in over 50 different countries throughout the world including the United States. Major sales in America have included "An Age of Kings" and many other major drama productions (including several Shakespearian classics and plays by Jean Anouilh, Ibsen, Sheridan and Ben Jonson). Many documentary series and programmes have also been seen on American TV screens.

Eighty percent of our domestic TV programming is now transmitted "live," but up to two years ago, little of it was recorded or filmed. In consequence, much of it was seen only once—in the United Kingdom—and although some limited distribution had been achieved by a small "transcription unit," it was obvious that not only would this high quality programming be of interest and use in developing TV in other countries, but that wider distribution represented an important source of revenue to our organisation.

In the field of co-productions "Royal Canadian Mounted Police" has now been sold in over 150 American markets; a second series of the highly successful "Third Man" is in production, and a new series called "Zero One" is currently being made in association with MGM-TV. Discussions are well advanced with networks and producers on several other co-production projects.

What of the future? 25 years ago the BBC began the world's first regular high definition TV broadcasts. It pioneered, and has led the way in what is now perhaps the most important medium of mass communication ever discovered.

Our function at the New York office (one of seven overseas) is to encourage local interest in the BBC in general. We provide advice and help in programmes for the home listener, promote good relations with local broadcasters, and keep the BBC informed of any new developments which may arise in our area. This applies to both radio and television broadcasting.

To this end, we have maintained an office in New York for over 35 years, but the last two have seen a considerable increase in TV activity.

In a world that is growing smaller, and with international TV nearly a reality, BBC TV intends to continue to be among the leaders through greater exposure of its programmes and by increasing the knowledge of our own viewers about what is going on in the world. In all this "BBC TV in the United States" will play an ever increasing part.

Are Your Sales Keeping Up With Indianapolis?

Marion County—43% faster growth rate, 1950-1960, than the nation . . . plus WFBM-TV's unmatched area coverage in Mid-Indiana to double your sales potential!*

This vital central market economically controls many specific areas that are retail trading centers in their own right. In fact, these satellite markets total 15% richer and 30% bigger than the 18-county Metropolitan trading area itself. Where else will you find such a rich, fast-growing and widespread marketing area covered from one central point . . . with no overlapping penetration in the area by basic affiliates of the same network? Only on WFBM-TV, the only basic NBC coverage for 734,000 TV set owning families. Call for the facts. Let us show you how to test regional marketing ideas in Mid-Indiana with amazing results!

INSIDE STORY

TV Series Views UN in Human Interest Terms

By MICHAEL HAYWARD, Chief
United Nations Television

"FASCINATING STUFF!" — "Had no idea the United Nations was doing this sort of thing!" — "More people ought to know about it!" These comments came from leading figures in American television as they viewed some UN films while visiting United Nations Headquarters.

Almost on-the-spot, these executives volunteered to take an active role in seeing to it that people did get to know more about the UN's work in combatting hunger, disease, poverty and ignorance. The spontaneous response came from men like Fred Kugel of Television magazine, Buddy Sugg of NBC, Leslie Harris of CBS, Wrede Petersmeyer of Corinthian, Bob Dunville of Crosley, George Storer of Storer Broadcasting, David Moore of Transcontinent, Roger Clipp of Triangle Publications, Don McGannon of Westinghouse, Tom Shull of Program Services, Fritz Gilbert of Time, Dody Sinclair of WJAR-TV, Jack Harris of KPRC-TV, C. Howard Lane of KOIN-TV, Louis Read of WDSU-TV, Harold Grams of KSD-TV, E. K. Wheeler of WWJ-TV, and Benedict Gimbel of Metropolitan.

So, at the initiative of the U. S. television industry, a cooperative venture, to widen public understanding of international problems when there is perhaps the greatest need for such understanding, inspired the founding of the U.S. Broadcasters' Committee for the United Nations.

To activate the project, the Committee undertook to distribute a non-profit television series that would tell the United Nations story in human interest terms. Program consultants were sent to the UN for an exchange of ideas. Alistair Cooke, noted international correspondent agreed to produce and host the half-hour specials, wheels were set in motion to gather actuality material from every corner of the globe — and "International Zone" made its bow on television channels throughout the United States and overseas.

Areas explored on "International Zone" include such varied subjects as: crisis in the Congo; world-wide hunt for a small-pox carrier, a killer-at-large; priceless Egyptian antiquities threatened with inundation by Aswan Dam; peaceful uses of atomic energy; African independence.

With 104 UN member nations from which to draw authentic material, "International Zone" has brought a new dimension to public service programming. Today, the series is being carried by almost 70 major television stations — and its original schedule of 13 programs has become 26.

Reflecting the thought and background of the entire world community, "International Zone" examines all sides of world issues. It does not show agreement if there is none. It does point up the many real problems for which solutions must be found if we are to build a durable peace.

Thanks to this cooperative effort between the U. S. Broadcasters' Committee for the United Nations and UN Television, Alistair Cooke—through "International Zone" — is bringing us a close-up of the realities of today and a glimpse of the potentialities of tomorrow.

GAME SHOW IDENTITY

Means a 'Best Buy' for Advertisers

By BILL TODMAN, Partner
Goodson-Todman Productions

THERE'S ample evidence that audience participation programs are a "best buy" for advertisers. Why?

For one, game shows almost invariably outrate the opposition — opposition shows, by the way, which more often than not cost a great deal more. A recent 24-market Nielsen proves this point. "What's My Line?," for example, with a 22.9 and 23.6 rating, comfortably passed the nearest opposition, "Adventures in Paradise." The latter drew 18.9 and 16.4 for the respective 15-minute periods. "To Tell the Truth," according to the same Nielsen survey, attracted ratings of 21.4 and 21.9 versus 18.0 and 20.6 for the hour-long "Cheyenne," its lone network competitor in that time period.

Experience has shown that sponsor identity is strongest and more lasting with game shows than with any other type of program on television. Ordinarily, a show is considered a hit if it runs a year. When they run longer it's considered a miracle. Look at the longevity record of some of the game, or audience participation shows on the air. "What's My Line?" has celebrated a dozen birthdays, "I've Got a Secret" has been on CBS since 1952, while "The Price Is Right," "Who Do You Trust" and "To Tell the Truth" are in their sixth years. Art Linkletter's "House Party" debuted on radio in 1946, and has been a daily television feature since 1952. "Queen For a Day," in April, began its 18th continuous year in broadcasting — first on radio, then television.

Sponsors who stick with these shows — and a large majority do — become as closely identified with the programs as the shows' panels and/or emcees. This sponsor identification factor is a powerful plus.

Game shows are unique to radio and television broadcasting. You find comedy and drama in the movies and in the theatre. You can see news events in newsreels and read about them in the papers and magazines. But only on television can you find the likes of "The Price Is Right" or a "To Tell the Truth"—game shows with the unique quality of "nowness" and immediacy. What the viewer sees is a real situation involving real people with whom he can identify vicariously.

We are now concentrating greater efforts in an attempt to match its success in live television with top quality film programs. At the same time, however, the company isn't ignoring 15 years of outstanding success in the specialized area of live, audience participation programs. We will continue to produce live shows. But we intend, also, to present filmed programs and thereby increase the "best buys" for both audience and advertiser.

We in the industry needn't be apologetic about this phenomenon of the game show. We should defend it for what it is . . . a bastion of reality on television and a unique entertainment form native to the medium.

MUSICAL COMMERCIALS

A Unifying Impact of Book, Lyrics & Music

By PHIL DAVIS, President
Phil Davis Musical Enterprises, Inc.

AT THE RISK of inviting blasts of blasphemy, I believe that effective musical commercials share certain basic characteristics in common with musical plays that unite book, lyrics, and music into an organic whole.

The musical plays associated with the name of Oscar Hammerstein — from "Show Boat" to "South Pacific" — illustrate the inseparability of book, lyrics, and music in creating a unifying, dominant impact that advances dramatic plot, situation, or purpose, inspires memorability, and portends longevity.

Producers of effective musical commercials, though limited by the minute hand, also aspire and strive to unite book (advertiser's purpose), lyrics (advertiser's copy) and music to reinforce the principle that the purpose of the commercial creates the song.

If either purpose, lyrics, or music is separated, it courts fragmentation and dissipation of a unified, continuing, memorable dynamic whole.

Carling's Black Label Beer has "Hey, Mabel — Black Label," but what does Miller's High Life, Schaefer, or Ruppert have that compares with the sales impact made by "Mabel?"

Unfortunately the "philosophy of waste" enters advertising when an agency or sponsor discards a musical commercial on a whim, fancy, or a rationalized reason before it has reached its maximum usefulness or potential.

A special province of music is that it provides a more intimate and concomitantly a more effective identification for a sponsor or his product than a printed logo or trademark.

As an illustration, take "Hey, Mabel — Black Label" that helped propel Carling's from a regional brewery in 1949 to an international one in 1961; and from numbering 62nd among the nation's breweries in 1949 to the fourth largest in the nation.

Contrary to minority opinion, effective musical commercials are not the result of freak accidents or miracles, but of honesty, experience, and research and analysis that yield a check list of basic principles. Reducing these to the bone, I consider the following to be the most important:

1: An effective musical commercial commands attention, establishes emotional acceptance, and individualizes the product image within the first 12 to 15 seconds. (Frequently musical commercials make companies look like nursery rhyme factories that manufacture products for a moppet public). 2: Its lyrics reveal a knowledge of the flesh and bones of words — the vowels and the consonants — and the importance of phonetics. (Frequently printed words or slogans designed to enchant the eye disenchant the ear. Advertisers planning to use both print and broadcast media, especially radio, should carefully consider and plan visual and audio reception of campaign slogans). 3: Its music enhances and punctuates the sales message with a perfect wedding of words and music.

SYNDICATION CHANGES

Require Adjustments and Diversification

By SAM COOK DIGGES, Administrative V. P.
CBS Films, Inc.

THE trade press, for the last couple of years—and especially for the past few months—has been filled with stories about the woes of the syndication business. But what is the true state of syndication?

We're all familiar with the fact that there are fewer time periods potentially available on stations for the use of syndicated product. It's also true that it has become economically unfeasible to produce first-run product for syndication — first, because of the lack of available time periods; and, secondly, because stations and local sponsors were not willing or not able to keep pace with rising production costs by paying equitable prices for first-run syndication product. Does that mean that the syndicator, therefore, must go out of business? Not at all. It simply means that the syndicator must adjust to the changing business conditions of the syndication market.

In October, 1961, there were seven new first-run properties offered in syndication compared with 29 new properties in 1956. Five years ago, with comparable product, the distributor would probably have opened with 150 markets. Last October those companies offering first-run syndication product opened with far fewer markets.

Today the industry's top syndicators are offering more than two and one half times the off-network product they were offering five years ago. Thus, the emphasis has swung from first-run syndication product to off-work first-run syndication.

Whereas dollar volume in domestic syndication has held up reasonably well over the last five years, the product that is being bought today, for the most part, is off-network product. There is great appeal in a proven property for the station operator.

Programming is still the backbone of any broadcaster's schedule, and the astute broadcaster will find time for top-flight product, be it first-run syndication, or off-network.

In addition to making an adjustment in terms of the type of product offered, there are other ways of achieving important film revenue.

The international sales market is developing rapidly. For example, in 1961, gross foreign sales were 32 per cent over 1960 and were 74 per cent over 1959 for us. More than 78,000 CBS program half hours were telecast overseas during 1961. At the year's end 74 of our program series, dubbed or sub-titled in 12 different languages, were being telecast in 55 foreign countries. Our international sales department now covers every important area of the free world.

Thus, by adjusting to the changing market in domestic syndication, by capitalizing on increasing potential in the foreign market, and by diversification in allied fields, it is possible to not only maintain a strong position but to achieve growth through new ways and developments.

If, however, there are indications in the future that there is a market for first-run syndication product at prices that are equitable, then we, along with other syndicators, will undoubtedly produce for that market.

QUALITY SELLS BEST

Syndie Market Demands Superior Product

By MORRIS RITTENBERG, President
NBC Films, Inc.

IN the current television film syndication market there is a strong demand for network quality product. Today's syndicator knows that the television audience is not only growing, but becoming more sophisticated with each passing season. Viewers will not blithely accept bad direction and bad writing under a "sock 'em" title as they did some years ago — and station managers, sensitive to their audiences' reactions know this best of all. In the wonderful world of television there is no substitute for quality, and the syndicator who offers it will be as successful in sales results as the shows are with audiences.

The history of entertainment shows that there is always a market for superior programming. Audience taste changes and develops but is always attracted by first rate shows. Quality sells—and lasts. Today's knowledgeable television film distributor competing for sales and audiences in the nation's top markets, must have programs which will attract and hold an audience used to seeing the best television in the world.

We feel that the recipe for success in syndication calls for offering stations and viewers the highest level of entertainment and informational programming which is available. This product must be backed by a skilled, fast moving sales organization and service and distribution facilities which can meet their responsibilities fully. In a changing market the emphasis at NBC Films will be on hard hitting, flexible operations geared to providing distinctive programs.

Our sales staffs in the nine broad geographic divisions of the United States are staffed with men who know these markets as well as they know the station managers they call upon.

We will syndicate four or five programs each year which have just come off their network runs and which have had rating and sales success as network properties and promise the same success to stations who use these series.

Properties like "The Best of Groucho," the best of "People Are Funny," "The Deputy," and Celebrity Golf" are typical of our series. These shows meet the test of excellence which is essential for success. They provide sales opportunities for stations which are soundly based and readily exploitable. We know that only station success can assure the long, continued, prosperity of a syndicator. We mean to build on the base of our successful career an earned and growing reputation for offering the best to viewers throughout the nation.

As television develops, reaching into more and more American homes and playing a larger influence in the lives of each community and each family, it is necessary for the syndicator to find his place in this scene. We think that nailing our colors to the mast of quality gives us a well earned place in the center of the picture. From that position, we will grow as television continues to develop.

FIRST-RUN SYNDICATION

Its Irresistible Movement Is Upward

By M. J. RIFKIN, Executive V.P., Sales
Ziv-United Artists, Inc.

THE irresistible movement of first-run syndication is up. That movement is a natural law of the television industry, economically and artistically, operative no less for advertisers than for stations.

For the advertiser, the strength of a medium in the long run rests on the breadth of its stance. Television as the most popular entertainment force in history is naturally not a topheavy giant among media, but rather a mature champion distinguished by its potential for flexibility and fine muscular snap at the regional and local reaches.

That means syndication. Not syndication alone, but as a healthy member circulating sales and vitality back to network, while together the two contribute to the growth of American business that nourishes all of TV.

Stations are daily expressing concern to us lest this blood-stream of non-network programming dry up; and increasingly they express determination even as we are determined to provide the product for them in fresh and imaginative forms.

Now what, uniquely, does first-run syndication offer at the local and regional levels that makes it so natural a force in television? Take, for example, our latest syndication release, "Keyhole", produced for us by Jack Douglas. What can "Keyhole" accomplish for the local and regional advertiser that no other form of TV advertising can match?

Generically, sheerly as first-run syndication, the series offers the sponsor a "texture" of advertising impossible to effect with the spots and participations which at present are his only access to prime time. It provides him with the richly prized element of sponsor identification while affording a focus of unity and pride for all his employees and a touchstone of enthusiasm for his sales force. It radiates lines of personal goodwill and sympathetic emotion that double back not in individual sales but in habitual customers. That is, persisting impact.

And as a particular series, "Keyhole"—the first of Ziv-UA's "documatic" releases under its policy of custom-distribution — communicates an extra-ordinary plus-factor generally reserved to the aristocracy among national advertisers — prestige: that residual benefit whose unique effect is the capital enhancement of the enterprise it promotes.

How then will this valuable natural resource of television—first-run syndication — resume its expanded place in the TV economy? In normal course it will do so by the sheer pressure and breakthrough of the natural need for it. Or, it may return by action of the networks themselves.

As a matter of working economics, the networks may choose to concentrate their sales and programming into a smaller segment of prime time at a net gain to themselves and to non-network programming.

But however it will come about, there will be an expanded market for syndicated programming because there must be. The issue is really nothing less than the continued good health of TV itself, and we are content it will stay healthy.

OVERSEAS MARKET

Holds Exciting Expansion Prospects

By JEROME HYAMS, V.P. & General Manager
Screen Gems, Inc.

KNOWLEDGEABLE sources tell us that this year—for the first time—the combined total of television sets throughout the world will be greater than the total number of sets within this country. Other sources predict that within seven years this country's gross export volume in programming alone to foreign markets will climb from its present $43,000,000 to a total of $100,000,000.

Obviously television is making rapid strides overseas. This truly impressive progress presents both opportunities and responsibilities to our TV industry.

Screen Gems has been in the foreign TV business since 1954, when we opened offices in Canada and England and sold the re-runs of "Ford Theatre" in both countries. The money was practically non-existent —but it was a start.

Our series are presently being telecast in every free-world nation having TV—more than fifty countries. We plan to keep and expand every one of these markets. But in each nation, as television develops, so does national pride. Nations want to see more and more domestically produced programs on the air.

We have become accustomed to quotas, trade balances and frozen dollars. We must now become accustomed to awakening feelings of nationalism as it pertains to TV entertainment. We must re-invest foreign earnings into foreign production —our money, our top supervisory personnel plus their talent, technicians and facilities. And the programs we produce will be for their markets.

We are presently producing three programs in Canada: "Pick A Letter," "By Pierre Berton" and "Showdown," the latter two of which are now on the air. Because Canadian tastes are so similar to ours it is quite possible that one or more of these might be seen in this country.

We are well along in exploratory talks in three of our major export markets—Japan, Germany and South America. In no one of these would it be likely that a series produced there would get an American run. Nevertheless, the probability is that we will eventually produce programs in those areas for consumption there. Only in this manner will we be able to maintain the good-will of these countries and thus keep and expand our export markets there.

This kind of international cooperation can lead to interesting and exciting prospects in years to come. Although it's not likely that a Japanese or German family situation comedy would have a great deal of appeal here, a weekly series of variety shows produced in various countries might have great appeal. So, too, might a series of foreign-produced documentaries which would give our audiences the opportunity to learn about Japan, Argentina, Germany, Italy and Brazil to the same extent that the people in those countries know about us.

Much of this is years away. But where once we only exported, now we're producing. And one day we'll be importing. And we'll all benefit.

NOW'S THE TIME

To Catch the Brass Ring

By ABE MANDELL, V.P., Sales & Administration
Independent Television Corporation

IN a recent symposium on the prospects for television syndication in 1962, all of the participants were optimistic, even though the production curve of new syndication product over the past half-dozen years has been downward, rather than up. Some may have been whistling in the dark. Others may just have been whistling. Still others, just in the dark.

The sad fact is that some of the syndication industry's leaders quoted have permitted their sales representatives to give away product, contributing to the instability of syndication prices. Sales opportunism has become a cancer on future sales opportunity.

The economics of programming production specifically designed for television is falling more and more into the pattern which has challenged the motion picture industry. The pattern is that economic success depends upon worldwide production and distribution for finest quality to be made available here in our own country. For example, the entertainment industry utilizes the principle of political economy's Common Market. The artificial barriers which have tended to delimit production or distribution in the worldwide market are being broken down. If a series calls for a setting in Australia, as was the case in "Whiplash," it makes a lot more sense and a more realistic production when it's produced on location, as was "Whiplash."

Supermarionation is a British invention. The use of electronic solenoids for synchronization of lip movement of marionettes has helped to set rating records for the 'Supercar" children's series, not only in other parts of the world, but also in New York and in our other American markets.

"Danger Man," which stars American-born Patrick McGoohan, and which was produced with location crews touring the world's capitals, has been a worldwide success. "The Beachcomber," produced here in the States with all-American talent, is getting top ratings and attracting attention in other markets in both hemispheres.

Most important, global distribution, and the global production which makes global distribution possible, is the answer to the deteriorating syndication market in America. With distribution all over the world, it is possible to meet the costs of quality production, which is a prerequisite to uniformly quality product.

In our plans for the future, ITC is providing for every type of product to be produced wherever it can best be produced, to be sold in all markets of the world. Already in production are hour-long specials like "The Jo Stafford Show," with stars like Bob Hope, mysteries like "Espionage" and "Ghost Squad," adventure series like "Sir Francis Drake," drama like "Man of The World," cartoons like "Kozmo —The Kid from Mars," etc.

The world of entertainment has been spinning around for a long time. We think that only those who realize that it is really a "world" will catch the brass ring in 1962.

SYNDICATION'S TROUBLE

It Isn't a Business, It's a Gamble

By RICHARD CARLTON, Vice President
Trans-Lux Television Corp.

IT all depends on where you sit. If you're a station manager you're likely to feel that syndication men are a bunch of film peddlers. They're here today and gone tomorrow. There's never been a price which couldn't be negotiated. They have no code of ethics — they'll sell their property to the first one who is willing to pay the price!

Or maybe you're a program director. Then, from where you sit, the syndication business is one vast merry-go-round of properties. They never disappear completely—they just turn up under another title or at another company. You can only wonder what these fellows have in mind when they take out that fancy, new, four-color brochure profusely illustrating a program which has been around for seven years and which you've turned down at least 18 times before from three other distributors.

Now you're a TV director of an advertising agency. You've just sat through another screening of another pilot. You're about to hear the pitch that this is the show most likely to succeed in 1962 — or '63 — or you-name-it! Sure, it's well put together—and it's cute, or fresh, or clever, or funny. But tell me, friend, how am I going to buy five minutes of time in the evening on 37 stations in the top 50 markets when there are no five minutes slots available?

If you happen to be sitting behind your desk at home going through some old stock certificates, then you may be a shareholder in one of the syndication companies which has "gone public" in the last few years. You probably have no idea at all what's wrong with syndication but you know that you've received no dividends and that your stock is worth far less than when you purchased it. Your outlook is decidedly downbeat on the subject, for, in addition, your original investment may have declined in value as well.

It all depends on where you sit. If you're a syndicator, you were sitting pretty about five years ago—and today you're sitting on a hot seat. You'll be quick to point out that network option time has made it almost impossible to risk important money in the production of new programs which are likely to sell in "B" time—if they sell at all! And you'll make a note of the increasing quantity of network shows coming into the market every selling season. Then you can always point out that probably no other business in the world has only a few hundred potential customers and, to make matters worse, if you don't sell the important forty or fifty of these customers, you might as well give up at the very beginning, before you've started.

The trouble with syndication?—it isn't a business. It's a rat race. It's a gamble. It may well be the only business in the modern world in which you have no idea of what you're doing until you do it. It has been that way for twelve years. I'm afraid it will continue to be that way for twelve more and twelve more after that!

ASCAP

By STANLEY ADAMS, President

THE American Society of Composers, Authors and Publishers is a performing right organization, founded in 1914 by the late Victor Herbert and a group of his colleagues. The Society functions as a clearing house for the performing rights of the creators of music and their publishers.

The performing right is granted by the United States Government under the Federal Copyright Law. This right entitles composers, authors and publishers of musical compositions to payment for their works whenever they are performed publicly for profit.

Through ASCAP, any user of music may obtain from a single source the right to perform the works of more than 6200 writers and 1850 publishers who are members of the Society, at a minimum expense and without the necessity of negotiating for each separate use.

ASCAP's extensive repertory covers every phase of American music literature. In addition to the best-loved popular and show music, it includes the finest country and western music, church and sacred selections, and a catalog of much of our contemporary classical music: symphonic, chamber and choral works and recital selections.

Radio and television broadcasters have access to this entire repertory when they obtain an ASCAP license. This license guarantees them a clearance on all ASCAP composers' and publishers' music; at the same time it provides for the writers a sustained livelihood from the works of their own creation, and a means of enabling publishers to invest in the exploitation of new works.

The Society's Board of Directors consists of twelve writer and twelve publisher members elected biennially by the writer-and-publisher-membership respectively. Its officers are elected annually. Headquarters are located at 575 Madison Avenue, New York 22, New York. It maintains twenty-three branch offices in major cities throughout the country.

BROADCAST MUSIC, INC.

By CARL HAVERLIN, President

THE United States copyright law provides that the authors and publishers of music have the right to be compensated when their music is performed publicly for profit. This right also exists under the laws of every major country of the world.

Broadcast Music, Inc. — BMI — acquires these perofrming rights from independent writers and publishers, collects license fees from the organizations which perform music for profit, and, in turn, makes payment to the creators of the music which is used. As a performing rights licensing organization, BMI serves the composers, publishers, and users of all types of music. BMI's services are available to all persons who perform music and who wish to avail themselves of BMI's repertory and to all writers and publishers who desire to grant performing rights to it.

BMI licenses the music of composers and publishers who are resident in every one of the United States. Through agreements with performing rights societies in other countries, it makes American music available throughout the world and brings the music of foreign countries to America.

The past year marked BMI's twenty-first year of service to the creators of music and to the enterprises which bring music to the public. It was a year that saw the number of our affiliated composers, authors, and publishers and of the compositions we license reach an all-time high.

For the future, BMI looks forward to serving many thousands more of the creators of music and many more of the businesses which use music as part of their service to the public. It will continue to deal justly and fairly with those enterprises which enable that music to be heard. It will continue to maintain its open-door policy for the benefit of all persons who wish to gain the public ear and to be rewarded if their works win favor. It will continue to serve the public by making music from every part of our country and from all quarters of the world available for public performance.

SESAC, INC.

By PAUL HEINECKE, President

ONE YEAR AGO, I had the privilege of announcing an important milestone in SESAC's history—its thirtieth anniversary. Now that the year has drawn to a close, we realize that 1961 and the years which preceded it, were but a challenge to the future . . . a future that will continue to bring music users everywhere a diversified and expanding SESAC repertory of material from active publisher affiliates.

During 1961, we more than doubled the number of mechanical licenses issued in any previous year. Numerous recordings of works in the SESAC repertory including Tex Ritter's "Hillbilly Heaven," Jack Scott's "My Dream Come True," "Steps One and Two," and Jackie Wilson's "Please Tell Me Why," found their way to top positions on the trade paper and station charts. SESAC selections were included in hundreds of 1961 commercial album releases by such artists as Elvis Presley, Pat Boone, Sy Oliver, Noro Morales, the Statesmen and the Blackwood Bros. Quartets.

The expanding use of SESAC music has resulted in increased SESAC performances all over the world. To keep pace, we have already begun expanding facilities in the Americas and overseas. Recently, we concluded agreements with several foreign performing and mechanical licensing societies who will administer performance and/or mechanical rights in their respective territories. Foreign performing rights societies now representing the SESAC repertory are PRS in England, SACEM in France, GEMA in Germany, BUMA in Holland and SACM in Mexico. Foreign representation for SESAC's mechanical rights are presently in effect with MCPS in England, GEMA in Germany and BIEM for additional world-wide representation. We are negotiating with JASRAC in Japan, SADIAC in Argentina, AGADU in Uraguay and SABAM in Belgium for the administration of mechanical and performance rights.

In 1961, the SESAC RECORDINGS label presented such artists as Hank Garland, Jack Scott, Bobby Hackett, the Four Amigos, Til Dieterle, the Allentown Band, the Frankenland Orchestra, Mozarteum Orchestra, etc.

In our "DRUMMERS" series, we introduced five new albums including "Musical Sales Effects," an album of Christmas "DRUMMERS" and three new albums of the big sound general sales intros and programming aids.

To meet the demands of the growing number of radio stations featuring country and western music, SESAC produced a series of "DRUMMERS" performed by leading country and western artists. The first three albums were an immediate success and were followed by a fourth release featuring the Statesmen and the Blackwood Brothers.

Our anniversary year brought some 500 additional AM and TV stations to the SESAC RECORDINGS LP Program Service roster.

NEW TV SYSTEM NEEDED

Present 25-Year-Old System Is Obsolete

By PAUL ADORIAN, Managing Director
Associated-Rediffusion, Ltd.

IF WE had to start a television system today from scratch, I am sure it would be entirely different from the one we have now. Many people forget this when talking about how many lines or extra colors we should add to our picture. The real problem today is the much more basic one—have we got an efficient system?

I think the answer to this question is a categorical "No." During the next 10 to 15 years, we could develop and put into practice a completely new system which would, of course, run parallel with the existing system as would a color or a higher line system.

At present, we send out 25 complete pictures a second. The view of a person speaking, for example, is scanned 25 times a second, even though the background has not changed. In fact, less than 10 per cent of the average information in a television picture is new—90 per cent of the information we transmit is repetitive and wasteful.

This is because we have inherited a system which is 25 years old. It was extremely good 25 years ago, but with all the scientific knowledge available in this country today, it is possible to develop a new system which would certainly compress that useful signal twofold, even if not tenfold.

If this were done, it would enable us to double the channels available for television transmissions in the limited range of Bands I and III—despite the fact that we could still make use of Bands IV and V.

Several suggestions have been made for the future and several new lines of thought are already being developed. I believe that if we are going to have a change, we should have a real change which will allow us to make the maximum use of the wavebands available. There is absolutely no reason why such a new system, using 625 lines, should not be interchangeable with other countries. In this way, we would get the full advantages of a 625-line system while at the same time making better use of our available bandwidth space.

If Britain led the world in this, I am sure that other countries would eventually follow. It will cost us between 750 and 1,000 million pounds to make any sort of change. Between half and three-quarters of that expenditure will be incurred anyhow, due to sets becoming obsolete, but probably between a quarter to one-third will be incurred whatever alternative is decided upon. That will involve millions of pounds, so we might as well have a good change.

I believe that the idea of adopting this system is the most materialistic and realistic solution. Just as we in this country produced the first working television system in the world, so we now have the chance to produce an even more efficient system, firstly to our own good and subsequently to the general benefit of the whole world.

THE PILKINGTON GAME

Britons Await Special Report on TV's Future

By PETER C. DAVALLE
Radio-TV Daily, London Bureau

BRITAIN'S most keenly discussed TV quiz game is not on the small screen. It is being carried out in plush offices, around conference tables and across the cocktail bar. And it is a quiz game with a big difference. Everyone is asking questions—and nobody is answering them; not until the middle of 1962 anyway.

It is the Pilkington Committee game. This Government-appointed body of experts has been dissecting the entire British TV system, and—this is where the quiz game comes in—preparing to recommend what paths it should follow in the immediate future.

What will Pilkington have to say about the merits of the 625-line system, as compared with the current 405 lines still adopted in Britain? What about colour TV? Who should have the third TV channel? Is the hated ten per cent tax on TV advertising to be lifted? Is toll-TV to be unleashed in Britain? Will commercial radio get the go-ahead at last?

These are just a few of the many vital questions that the Committee will answer in their momentous report.

Whereas "Pilkington is Watching You," a much-quoted and sinister slogan could well have had a stultifying effect on the enterprise of the TV companies (or, at the other end of the scale, it could have sustained them at an artificially high level), there has been an admirable absence of sychophancy among program planners.

The year 1961 was, in fact, a year of expansion, both at home and abroad, despite the fact that the independent companies were engaged in a long and bitterly contested war with Equity, the actors' union, on the question of relating pay rates to the complex system of program networking.

What were the highlights of the British TV scene during 1961. It saw the 25th anniversary of the BBC's TV service, for one, with increasing success in selling filmed series.

Four new commercial networks—Westward, Grampian, Border and Telefis Eireann—were opened. With the opening this year of the remaining two networks, Wales Television Association and Channel Television, there will be no more blank spots on the ITV map of Britain.

BBC gave Britons their first large-scale view of colour TV at the Radio Show at London's Earls Court. Then, in their annual report, the Corporation revealed their plans (subject to Pilkington) for regular colour transmissions, a second TV service and local sound radio broadcasting.

It is in the field of local radio that commercial interests see a new and highly profitable opportunity. Already, several companies have been formed to translate commercial radio from theory into fact once (and if) Pilkington favors the venture.

The Pilkington Committee will undoubtedly open the gates to many hitherto undreamed-of innovations, and a review of the 1962 TV scene will reflect an exciting new pattern.

PROFIT OPPORTUNITY

Offered by TV Revolution in Great Britain

By BILL FROMM, Director of New Business
NBC Spot Sales (Representing TWW
TV for So. Wales & the West of England)

WHILE THE RUSSIANS were building a wall in Berlin, the Free World has been busily engaged in knocking down some walls—walls of artificial tariffs and other barriers to international trade.

American business will shortly find itself in a strange new world. Every month new foreign enterprises are born in the bustling industrial centers of Europe, Japan, South America . . . many of them coveting the U. S. market. By the same token, an increasing number of U. S. companies are beginning to realize that "thar's gold in them thar hills".

Norman Strouse, president of J. Walter Thompson, recently observed that "just as major marketers moved in this country from local, to regional, and then to national distribution, many will come to recognize that they must move outside the U. S. to other free world markets if they are to realize their ultimate potential".

To these new-comers, Great Britain offers a logical first step. Here you will meet conditions quite similar to the market and marketing characteristics you have in the domestic arena. There is no language barrier. With minor exceptions, your men and advertising materials will be equally comprehensible to the English.

The British family, like his American counterpart, has already undergone a kind of consumer metamorphsis. Leisure time was transformed by a TV set. Eating and food preparation habits changed, as witnessed by a 31% sales rise in the past five years of "convenience" foods such as canned and highly processed items. The aspects of mobility were added by vastly increased ownership of autos.

Opportunities for profit do exist in Great Britain and it is apparent that the most effective and powerful selling force is the same force that revolutionized advertising in America: television.

There are a number of important differences between British commercial TV and our own TV system, but the American advertiser will perhaps be most interested in two. First, the British viewer in each region can select programming from only two sources: A government-owned BBC, or a commercial program contractor. Compare this with the six TV outlets in New York. Second, British TV is spot TV. You buy announcements or participations in varying lengths.

For any consumer product manufacturer interested in opening up the British market, TV is a must. And, if strategy calls for the selection of a single area for testing the pressure required to meet performance objectives, Television for South Wales and The West of England (TWW Limited) has much to recommend it. Two large metropolitan centers, Cardiff and Bristol, lend themselves naturally to the testing of different prices, different premiums, package designs, etc.

Program contractors like TWW are most eager to help new American products establish themselves in England. It is the American company that must choose . . . to wait and see the markets develop, or to act now and reap the rewards of getting in on the ground floor.

THE PLANT IS PROFIT

Broadcast Studio Design Must Convey 'Image'

By SOL CORNBERG, President
Sol Cornberg Associates, Inc.

TO ALERT STATION management, the image begins with the plant. As do the people who work in, or represent the broadcast plant, so does the plant, whether it is a building, studio or mobile unit, convey the image. The exterior of the plant may be left to the broadcasters' favorite architect. This should in no way impede the purpose of the plant, especially the new broadcast plant.

As designers of communications facilities, we have in the past year worked for ABC, Granada-TV, the USIA, Columbia U., Hampton Institute, and Broadcasters' Promotion Association, among other clients.

We acknowledge that the industry is in the capable hands of the broadcast engineering fraternity. We further acknowledge that operating personnel, pressed between time and temper, are meeting minimum obligations. To pass the responsibility for new plant design to either of these groups is to invite reproduction of existing conditions and procedures.

We submit that the new plant must: 1. Convey the image; 2. reduce operating costs—the key to speedy amortization of capital expenditure; and 3. most important, place the engineer, operating personnel and the plant, as putty in the hands of program broadcast people, be they personality, performer or professor.

As designers and consultants, we advocate change, but not for the sake of change alone. We are mindful of management's obligations—to craft and guild contracts, financial commitments, and service to client and public.

In creating a movable audience seating arrangement for ABC-TV, New York, the problem was — how may the plant include a television theatre, without having to support a facility whose rate of amortization is a maximum of two air-hours per week? As installed in a television production studio, the 280-seat 'live' theatre — the walking surfaces and underpinning, carpet, seats, walls, ceiling and lobby, store in the studio, encroaches on only four times 64 square inches of studio floor. The transition from theatre to studio, or vice versa, is made well within a four hour minimum call.

The TV theatre, when in place, meets all requirements of public assembly, fire protection and air conditioning. A plus permits the color correcting of the TV theatre, using studio lighting equipment already installed, thus creating a mood for the 'live' audience, which is there as another 'production tool', and not to be entertained or bewildered.

In the USIA-TV Service Plant, Washington, D. C., we consolidated studio audio and video control as part of the equipment and rack rooms, rather than as splinter services to individual control rooms.

As designers and consultants, we lead toward mechanization and automation; these couple with proper space allocation, proper space relationships and proper space use, so that the plant and its equipment may best serve the few whose emotional expression is necessary to vital program production.
