Happy Listening

GUGLIELMO MARCONI, the genius who gave us radio, is dead.

At first glance, these mournful words fit badly under the title, "Happy Listening." But, on second thought, do they? Guglielmo Marconi's gift to shut-ins, to those in remote places of the earth, to persons bored with themselves and their own families, to folk too poor to afford other sorts of entertainment, broadcasting can never be anything but "happy listening."

Before Senor Marconi died, he said: "It is good to know that I had a small part to play in giving to the nations of the world the means to talk to each other and to understand each other—and thus to bring about lasting peace."

David Sarnoff, who did much to bring radio to America, said yesterday: "The world has lost a great man. Science has lost a great genius. And I have lost a great friend."

Those words, we believe, echo sentiments in the hearts of millions of listeners. When the networks paused in their busy days last Wednesday to observe one minute of silence at the time of the funeral in Italy, uncounted prayers must have risen from homes the world around to accompany Guglielmo Marconi's soul.

In this issue, on pages 8 and 9, is a new Radio Guide service to listeners which we launch herewith amid a considerable amount of editorial enthusiasm.

For a long time, we have been peppered with letters from our best friends and severest critics urging us to "tell us more about the best broadcasts of each week." Our answer to those requests is in your hands this week. We shall not sleep, not even with the help of Little Orphan Annie's Ovaltine, until your letters reach us.

One more note about local improvements. Inspired by summer sunshine and a fortnight of rest, our program editor suggested that we discontinue the page called these many months, "The Radio Week," and place our provocative list of guests, special events, and premiers on our program pages where they would be completely useful. Reluctantly we bowed to his superior judgment. In this number, you will discover boxes at the top of left-hand pages in the program section. Those are your old "Radio Week" listings in brand-new summer clothing. Will you let us know if our program editor is really a genius or just sun-struck?

The last crack: We don't want to become involved in any discussion of W. C. Fields and his nose, but we'll at least be willing to wager that he didn't get it drinking his sponsor's coffee.

MAGICAL SALZBURG

BY KEN W. PURDY

IN 1916 four men came calmly together in Austria, in the center of the hell that had burst over Europe two years before. They had gathered to talk of a dream that seemed at that time and that place the height of folly: they were planning a festival, the greatest festival of music, of opera and spoken drama, of all the arts, that the world had ever seen. The whole universe, it seemed, was in flames; the most disastrous war in history was occupying the attention of half the world, yet this small group of men, with the confidence of greatness, talked of peace, of art, of music.

The men were Richard Strauss, one of the foremost living composers; Hugo von Hofmanstahl, the playwright; Max Reinhardt, ruler of the world's theater, and Franz Schalk, Viennese conductor. They lived to see their dream come true, for in 1926 the first Salzburg Festival was held.

AS THIS is written the little Austrian town on the banks of the River Salzach is once again humming with activity. Thousands upon thousands of visitors are pouring into Salzburg. They range from simple country-folk and tourists to the great and near-great of half a hundred nations. There is a saying in Austria which runs, "Sit in the Peterskeller in Salzburg in the summertime, and you will see everybody who is anybody in the whole wide world." Americans have been going to Salzburg this summer in boat-loads; and in a wider sense, everybody in America, everybody is going to Salzburg—for on Monday afternoon (EDT), August 2, the National Broadcasting Company will offer the performance of "Don Giovanni," with Bruno Walter conducting, and on Thursday afternoon (EDT), August 5, "Die Meistersinger" will be aired, with Arturo Toscanini, one of the greatest conductors who ever lived, on the podium! Toscanini opened the great forty-day festival—Saturday, July 24—by conducting a performance of the immortal Beethoven's only opera, "Fidelio," and then returned to the podium on July 30 to direct Mozart's opera, "The Magic Flute."

THIS is a work-a-day world we live in—hard, practical, realistic. We have few shrines, and we tell ourselves there is little time to spare for worshipping at those few. But of the world's artistic centers, Salzburg, for all its comparative newness, is one of the best-loved. There is every reason why it should be so. In the first place, think of what is done in Salzburg! This year, ten operas are being given at Salzburg. In orchestral concerts, the works of Haydn, Schubert, Weber, Beethoven, Strauss, Mozart, Verdi, Bruckner and Brahms will be heard. Max Reinhardt will stage the great drama "Everyman" as only Reinhardt can stage it. There will be an open-air performance of "Faust." There are so many smaller concerts and recitals by cathedral choirs, orchestras, string groups, and individual artists that one can hear them all only by traveling at a mad pace through the crooked little streets of Salzburg from the time the Festival opened until it closes!

People who have been in Salzburg during Festival time are never quite the same again, and they cheerfully admit it. They spend a month listening to the greatest music man has made, played by the greatest artists. They leave the Mozarteum after a concert dazed by the beauty they have seen and heard, to hurry to the Festspielhaus, the center of everything in Salzburg, for another treat: they go from there to the great Palace of the Archbishop, perhaps, to watch a spectacle in the courtyard. From the time they breakfast on hot rolls and jam and coffee buried under a mound of whipped cream, in a little restaurant high on the Monchberg mountain, until the last bottle of wine is popped open in the Peterskeller at three o'clock in the morning, they are never quite still.

People live anywhere in Salzburg during the Festival, but whether they pile their luggage in a little Gasthaus room with one window and no water, or in the old Osterreicher Hof, doesn't matter much. There is too much to be seen, too much to do. The house where Mozart was born and spent much of his life must be seen, of course. There is the great fortress of Hohensalzburg, once the strongest in all the Germanic countries, looming 400 feet above the town with a precarious little cable railway climbing up to it. There is the river, running through the center of Salzburg, the sloping foothills and the snow-capped mountains that hem it in. There is the great Cathedral, consecrated in 1628; the Benedictine Abbey of St. Peter, founded in 696, and the Castle of Mirabell. Then, when one is tired—and Salzburg's delights will tire the hardest—one can always sit in a convenient kaffeehaus and watch the passing parade of the world's great artists. Nowhere else in the world will you see so many of the men and so many of the women who rule the world of art today.

ALTHOUGH actually of recent date, the Festival can be traced back for hundreds of years. In the days of the Renaissance, Europe was ruled by men who cherished the arts, did everything in their power to foster them. Every court, no matter how small, had its regular staff of musicians, of actors, of writers. The great wars that had devastated Europe were over, and noblemen turned from fighting to vie with each other in the arts. There was no need for a paying audience, with its attendant complications; the magic words "box office" had yet to appear. The princes of the state and the church footed the bills, and never blinked an eye at astronomical figures. There were often more performers than people in the audience; a cast of from ten to sixty thousand was not out of the ordinary, and the costumes and properties used were the most valuable obtainable, often actually priceless. And of these ancient-day impresarios, the noble prince-bishops of Salzburg were among the greatest. It was natural that their traditions should survive, natural that the Austrian people should have hoped, down the centuries, that some day the glories of Salzburg would be revived.

Too, at Salzburg at least three of the great cultures of the past come together. It is in the center of the country, and therefore convenient. The Austrians have preferred since time immemorial to stage their dramatic events out of doors—the market-place is a common setting—and the natural beauties of Salzburg form a setting no mind could conceive and no hand execute anywhere else.

There is yet another reason why Salzburg was chosen as the site of the Festival, and this is one of the most important: Wolfgang Amade Mozart was born in Salzburg. The house still stands. In the Mozarteum there are preserved innumerable relics of his life. The key-note of Mozart's music has been called "Eternal Sunshine," and where could the man himself be venerated more deeply, or his music better played, than in sunny Salzburg?

EVERYONE goes to see Mozart's house in the Dollfusplatz. The little street was the Getneidgasse on that bitterly cold Sunday—the date was January 27, 1756—when the little boy was born, to be christened with a name much too big for a baby so frail. Johannes Chrysostomus Wolfgangus Theophilus, the priest intoned to the little group huddled around the holy-water fount in the cold, barren cathedral. And thus began a life that was to flare like a meteor, pitifully short, but unbelievably brilliant, across the sky, its in O'Neill a kindred spirit. The device which O'Neill used so tellingly in "Mourning Becomes Electra"—that of having the characters speak aloud the thoughts that were in their minds—is one that is familiar to every radio listener.

BY

O'Neill was born in a Broadway theatrical hotel on October 6, 1888. His parents were both actors, his father, James O'Neill, widely known for his enormous successes in the title role of "Monte Cristo." This dashing, romantic play was ideally suited to the temper of the times, and James O'Neill toured the country with it. And young Eugene Gladstone O'Neill, destined to thrill the English-speaking world with plays of far greater significance, spent the first seven years of his life traveling up and down the land with the troupe headed by his father. These seven long years formed the base of the intense dislike for the theater as a physical environment that was later to rise so strongly in Eugene O'Neill.

THE O'Neills were devout churchgoers; when young Eugene passed his seventh birthday, he was sent to a Catholic boarding-school—the first of a succession of them. Later, full of youthful confidence, he entered Princeton University, from which august institution of higher learning he was expelled in his freshman year—not, be

Eugene O'Neill (above) and his wife. Below: A tropical manse at Sea Island in Georgia is their retreat from the world's worrying

HE IS the greatest playwright living today. Millions of people of almost every nationality have thronged the world's theaters to see his plays—but he has seen only three of them, and those three reluctantly!

When he sent his first two plays to a New York producer they were rejected—not because they failed to come up to standard, but because the producer wouldn't even look at them!

Newspaper reporter, small-time actor, sailor before the mast, he was a ne'er-do-well until broken health sent him to a sanatorium—and to fame!

He was born on Broadway—actually!—but he hates the Great White Way, is happiest in a lonely shack on the shore of the sea!

He spent the most formative years of his life in the theater; his was a theatrical family, his life and his life-work have bound him irretrievably to the theater, yet he dislikes all theaters, can barely be persuaded to go near one!

His name? Eugene Gladstone O'Neill, foremost living dramatist, three-times winner of the Pulitzer Prize, winner of the 1936 Nobel Prize for Literature—and newest recruit to radio!

For, beginning Monday night, a cycle of four plays by this notoriously radio-shy dramatist will be presented to the American listening audience by the National Broadcasting Company. "Beyond the Horizon," first of O'Neill's plays to win the Pulitzer Prize, will probably be the first on the air, followed by "The Straw," "Where the Cross Is Made," and "The Great God Brown." And when, on the night of August 2, you tune in the first play in this unique O'Neill cycle, remember that this is more than a broadcast—it's an event!

Eugene O'Neill's niche in the Hall of Fame of the American stage is secure. Greatest of American dramatists, he is also the best known—but still not as well known as he should be. It is this deficiency which the National Broadcasting Company plans to overcome with the presentation of its "O'Neill Cycle." Tremendously effective on the stage, moving and impressive on the mere printed page, the works of Eugene O'Neill are expected to prove sensational radio drama. Says John F. Royal of NBC, "The fine dramatic intensity of O'Neill's work is admirably suited to radio projection!"

CHIEF reason, perhaps, for the radio adaptability of O'Neill's plays, as well as for their essential greatness, lies in the fact that he has always scorned convention, has always expressed a hearty contempt for useless, hide-bound traditions of whatever kind. O'Neill is the greatest experimenter in the field of drama today, ever on the alert for a new twist or an unexplored by-path. It is only natural that radio, which has been forced to make its own rules of dramatic presentation as it developed, should find it recorded, for scholarly deficiency, but as a result of a prank, the exact nature of which is still a mystery.

In 1909, succumbing to the wanderlust that has always held him enthralled, O'Neill went off on a gold-prospecting trip to the Honduras. He didn't find any gold, and he was shortly back in the United States. Soon O'Neill left America again. This time as a sailor bound for Buenos Aires. Many of the plays that have made O'Neill famous are founded on the sea and on sea-faring people, and they all have their genesis in this 1910 voyage to South America. But while O'Neill enjoyed the sea and ships and sailors, they didn't loom large in his own scheme of things: he didn't like working aboard ship any better than he had liked clerking in the New York mail-order house. He wanted only to spend his time with sea-faring men, storing their lives away in his mind for use years later.

THE pattern of O'Neill's life seemed pretty well fixed in those early days. Inevitably, after every foray into the world outside, he returned home, went to work for his father. On his return from South America, in 1911, it happened again. This time, he actually joined the O'Neill troupe as an actor! But acting wasn't in his blood, he didn't like it and knew he never would. The writing-bug was beginning to stir him. After a few months on the stage he tried for a reporter's job on the New London, Connecticut, Telegraph—and got it. O'Neill liked that better, particularly when he was allowed to write a column of his own in addition to routine reportorial duties.

But the strain of the hectic, irregular life he had led almost from birth caught up to Eugene O'Neill before he had time to settle down into his new-found groove as a newspaperman. His nervous, unsettled temperament, the strain of long hours and creative work, had undermined a constitution never very robust; and too, few newspapermen and fewer sailors are teetotalers, and you can't live with them and not drink with them. Eugene O'Neill had lived and worked and drunk with them. Doctors told him that if he continued to work, tuberculosis would find him a ready victim. And so the next five months he spent at a sanatorium in the wooded countryside of Connecticut.

It was a blessing in disguise. Pronounced past danger and discharged in 1912, Eugene O'Neill went to live on the Long Island estate of some friends. For a year he slept out-of-doors, exercised religiously, and, perhaps most important of all, spent endless hours alone with his own thoughts. He wrote a one-act play, "Wife for a Wife." It was the first of a series of eleven one-act dramas, has not yet been produced. When he sent two plays he had written to a New York producer, that worthy read the accompanying letter, sent them back unopened with the explanation: "Plays by actors' sons are never any good!"

Maybe they aren't, thought Eugene O'Neill. Wondering, he packed up and went off to Harvard, expressly to study dramatic writing in the famous "47" Workshop. From Harvard he went to Greenwich Village, in New York, in those days the center of American intellectual activity, and from Greenwich to Provincetown. In Provincetown, Eugene O'Neill and the famous Provincetown Players came together and history was made. "Bound East for Cardiff," a touching one-act drama of the death of a veteran sailor on a fog-bound ship, was produced in 1916. Later it and other plays were offered in New York, and finally, in 1920, "Beyond the Horizon" was presented by a professional company. It won the Pulitzer Prize, the first of three O'Neill plays to do so. "The Emperor Jones," familiar to millions not only as a play but as a film and an opera as well, quickly followed, with "Desire Under the Elms" next.

Americans who had never heard of the rising star of Eugene O'Neill thrilled to "Anna Christie" when Greta Garbo brought it to the screen. To the name of one of the all-time greats of the American stage—George M. Cohan—was linked the name of Eugene O'Neill's only comedy—"Ah Wilderness"—and the play and the film have been seen in almost every country in the world. Only radio can spread Eugene O'Neill's fame wider, and that radio is about to do!

It will be a bigger gain for radio, and for America, than for Eugene O'Neill. Of money and fame he has more now than he cares for. Nearly all of his plays have been successes, and many of them six-figure successes at that. Royalties have come to him from England, France, Germany, Japan, and half a dozen other countries. He has a fat royalties check waiting for him in Russia if he wishes to go there to spend it!

THREE times married, O'Neill has three children. Most of his writing he does on the seashore, on Cape Cod, in Bermuda, or the coast of France. He writes in longhand in great cardboard-covered notebooks, has his next thirty plays completely outlined, waiting only to be written! He is intensely shy, hates the bustle and rush of city life, really enjoys solitude, doesn't worry in the least about the gyrations of the world outside. It is said that in 1920, when "Beyond the Horizon" was awarded the Pulitzer Prize, a friend of O'Neill's found him walking on the beach.

"Gene, you've won the Pulitzer Prize!" he said.

O'Neill looked up, startled.

"What in hell is that?" he asked.

CAPTAIN HENRY
BRINGS ROMANCE
TO THE RIVER
THURSDAY NITE

The original Captain Henry of "Show Boat," Charles Winninger (right), answered the call of Ol' Man River recently, after being away for three years. The white-haired skipper was glad to get back and brought a brand-new crew with him!

These people (below) all have broadcast tickets for "Show Boat"—now docked in Hollywood. The door leads the way to 3 studios, and "Show Boat" is aired from the largest, over KFI on NBC Thursday nights

Choral work heard on the new "Show Boat" is provided by this group of excellent singers (below) under the direction of Max Terr. Terr has earned a reputation on the Coast for his fine work in this field. Maestro Meredith Willson is largely responsible for the enlisting of Terr's services & the selection of these vocalists

Maestro Meredith Willson & "Mammy" Hattie McDaniel (above) exchange ideas on how to put over a number. Hattie's been acting since she was twelve!

Captain Henry (left, below) and Warren Hull. Now that the jovial Skipper is back, he's again recreating romantic moments reminiscent of the deep South's Old River Boat days—he's again thrilling millions of listeners with his old-time verve and color

"TAMING OF THE SHREW"—MON.

MONDAY night brings the drama of the week! That drama this week is Shakespeare's stab at slapstick—"The Taming of the Shrew," with "Little Caesar" Edward G. Robinson starring as Petruchio. Frieda Inescourt will portray Katharine. Broadcast by CBS as the fourth drama in its Shakespeare cycle, "The Shrew" demonstrates better than any other of his works the Bard's appreciation of the type of fun he found at taverns near his Globe Theater.

This common-man's classic is as new today as it was over 300 years ago when it was written. The broken head of the music-master might have been conceived for a Mack Sennett masterpiece; the shrewish tongue of Katharine might be that of "Tizzie Lish" of Al Pearce's Gang; Robinson might be acting the part of a character created by Charlie MacArthur, as well as by Shakespeare.

The plot of the "Taming of the Shrew" is really two love stories—of Bianca and her suitors, and of Katharine and Petruchio; the first in a serious vein, and the second in the comic, but they are so well interwoven that they become doubly interesting. Baptista, a rich gentleman, has decided not to allow his daughter Bianca to receive any more suitors until her older sister, Katharine, is married. Katharine is known to have such a violent temper as to make her unapproachable. Bianca is banished to the house, but her father consoles her by suggesting she may amuse herself with studies, and promises to get her a master. Lucentio, also wealthy, has overheard all this, and having fallen in love with the lovely girl, decided to disguise himself and become her Latin instructor.

Petruchio arrives in Padua seeking a wealthy bride, his father's death having made him a man of means. Bianca's suitors eagerly suggest that he espouse Katharine, warning him that however rich she might be, she has the reputation of a shrew. Petruchio deems himself competent to cope with any woman's temper and enthusiastically declares he will woo and win her.

Petruchio calls on Baptista, says he has heard of his beautiful daughter Katharine and he wants to marry her. He forces the father to name the dowry, and so anxious is he to rid his household of the troublesome Katharine, the father makes it very high. Petruchio wants the contract drawn up, but Baptista prefers that his daughter be won. Just then the music-master rushes into the room wailing because Katharine has broken a musical instrument over his head.

Katharine appears and makes cutting remarks, but when she finds she cannot disturb Petruchio's amiability, she hits him. He begs her to marry him—then, despite her denials, tells her father he will marry her the next Sunday. The matter of Katharine's marriage being settled, the suitors for Bianca's hand urge their claims.

Petruchio arrives late for the wedding, thereby irritating Katharine into saying those famous words about he who woo'd in haste means to wed at leisure. When he finally appears, it is in disreputable clothing and on a poverty-stricken nag. He calls loudly for his bride, makes a big fuss at the wedding, even striking his newly-made wife, and finally refuses to allow her to remain at her own wedding feast.

When finally the bridal couple arrives at the groom's home, wet and weary, the food arrives, but Petruchio declares it isn't fit to eat, and throws it on the floor. Merchants come with gowns, but he will have none of them. She finally gets so that she agrees with anything he says.

In the meantime, Lucentio's persuasive ways have gained Bianca's affection, displacing the other suitors in her eyes. They slip off secretly and marry. The last scene is at Lucentio's house, and the men make a wager as to the obedience of their wives—and Katharine's promptitude wins the money for Petruchio. Petruchio has her get the others and give them a lecture on wifely obedience.

"The Taming of the Shrew" has long been a favorite—its plot is simple, the story is well told, the action is rapid. There is no let-up of amusing scenes.

Robinson, who will play Petruchio, is most famous for his gangster roles, such as "Little Caesar" and "Scarface," although he never played underworld characters until he went into the films. He prefers good parts—the characterization is most important to him—and Petruchio is just the sort of a role in keeping with the cinema characters he played—that of a dominating, "never say can't" sort of a person.

BERKSHIRE FESTIVAL AND KOUSSEVITZKY — THURS.

DR. SERGE KOUSSEVITZKY, conductor of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, will lead the organization in two of the summer season's finest musical presentations, to be given August 5 and August 12 over the NBC-Blue network from the Young Berkshire Symphonic Festival.

The Berkshire Festival, now in its fourth season, is composed of two series of three programs, given on successive week-ends. NBC will broadcast the first of each series in its entirety from the permanent site of the festival, "Tanglewood," a delightful 210-acre estate between Stockbridge and Lenox, Massachusetts, overlooking Stockbridge Bowl (Lake Mahkeenac).

Here the famous Boston Symphony Orchestra, most of whose members participated in the Boston Pop Series, broadcast over NBC earlier this summer, will assemble under their conductor, Serge Koussevitzky, who will return from Europe to conduct.

Dr. Koussevitzky, latest of a long series of eminent conductors of the Boston Symphony, has long been known for his scholarly readings of the finest in symphonic literature. His radio programs have been uniformly of the highest order, embodying a nice balance between the familiar classics and brilliant compositions by contemporaries. Among the composers whose works he has introduced, as a conductor in Russia, are Debussy, Ravel, Fanelli, Paul Dukas, Stravinsky and Scriabine. His career at Boston has been equally notable.

Born in North Russia in 1874, Koussevitzky received his first musical education at home. At twelve years of age he became the chef d'orchestre in the theater of his native town, composing whatever music was needed for the plays put on at the theater.

The brilliant boy set out for Moscow when he was fourteen to continue his studies. Here he made a choice that later resulted in his becoming a performer rare in music—a double-bass soloist (the "bull fiddle"). He not only became the double-bass soloist in the orchestra of the Imperial Opera, but succeeded his teacher as professor of the instrument at the Conservatoire. For ten years he toured Russia and western Europe as a contrabass virtuoso, and composed a number of works for the instrument. Shortly after he became conductor of the Boston Symphony, he astounded New York critics by his amazing performance as soloist at Carnegie Hall.

Koussevitzky's main ambition, however, was to become a conductor. In 1907 he formed, out of the pupils of the Berlin Hochschule fur Musik, an orchestra with which he worked for two years. Then he returned to Russia and organized the famous Koussevitzky Orchestra.

He continued his brilliant career as conductor right down to the early years of the World War. He was appointed director of the Russian State Orchestras after the Russian Revolution of 1917 and continued in that post until he left Russia in 1920.

In the disturbed years following the conclusion of the World War, he conducted orchestras in all the leading cities of western Europe—Paris, London, Barcelona, Madrid, Rome, Berlin and many smaller cities. He became conductor of the Boston Symphony Orchestra in 1924 and has continued there with great success since.

SUNDAY'S TREAT WILL BE CORNELIA OTIS SKINNER

GUEST treat of the week is the air appearance of America's premiere character actress, 35-year-old Cornelia Otis Skinner.

One of the most important stars to appear on the horizon of the entertainment world, Miss Skinner has carried her already-famous family name to still greater heights, has been known and loved for years, both here and abroad, for the convincing manner in which she presents character sketches in monolog. As a writer she has had many articles and poems published in the leading magazines of this country. In radio, although her performances on the air are comparatively few in number, she has established herself as a top-ranking star, eagerly awaited by millions of listeners. And on Sunday night (EDT), August 1, she will be on the air over CBS on the "Good Gulf Summer Stars" program.

Born in Chicago on May 30, 1902, while Otis Skinner and his wife, Maud Durbin, were playing Shakespeare, little Cornelia literally grew up in the theater. From her earliest childhood she "played actress," and in 1921 she made her Broadway debut at the Empire Theater. For the four years that followed, Cornelia Otis Skinner was an established actress.

Then, late in 1925, she gave up acting in plays entirely. The urge to express herself that she had felt in her early youth had revealed itself once more—but this time she wanted to play on the stage alone, unsupported by a cast.

Putting into practise a form of dramatic expression seldom used since medieval days, Miss Skinner devoted all her time to the monolog, and with the series of character sketches that resulted, she made a triumphant tour of the United States. Then she went to London, and her success repeated itself there.

Applauded by two nations, she had already won herself a lasting place in the theater. But still she wasn't satisfied. As suddenly, as decisively as she had given up play-acting, she gave up straight monolog and yet retained both by creating a new form of dramatic art, the solo drama. This called for a full-length play—but differed from all others, featuring only one performer.

A new idea in a field where new ideas are suspiciously received and seldom used, the solo drama was in every sense a pioneering venture. Miss Skinner, unguided by precedents, had all the odds against her when she set to work on this new stage technique. But she wrote such a play while she was in London, and after receiving the whole-hearted approval of the British, it won the applause of Broadway. So did four others that followed.

Author, poet, playwright, producer, a troupe in herself, Cornelia Otis Skinner in private life is Mrs. Alden Sanford Blodgett, mother of 7-year-old Otis Skinner Blodgett.

Although Miss Skinner has had a sponsored radio program in the past, her theatrical work has taken so much of her time that lately her air appearances have been infrequent. Unfortunately, there will not be time on Sunday night for her to give a complete solo drama, but she again will give radio's millions an opportunity to hear the monolog type of acting which has made her a part of the American stage tradition. It will be one of the high spots on the dial this week.

WOMEN CAN MAKE MUSIC—TUES.

LISTENERS within hearing distance of any of the up-and-coming stations connected with the Mutual Broadcasting System will not wish to miss the performance to be given on Tuesday night by a remarkable organization, directed by an even more remarkable woman.

The organization is the Woman's Symphony Orchestra and the woman is Ebba Sundstrom. The occasion is the regular Tuesday night Grant Park Concert which is being broadcast by MBS.

Men probably won't like this broadcast. Or if they do, it will be admitted grudgingly. For the Woman's Symphony is a thoroughly feminine organization without an atom of male direction about it, and Miss Sundstrom is the sort of young woman musician who, despite being told by innumerable males that she was stalking straight ahead to disaster, proceeded to steer her own course so wisely that she got what men had told her was unattainable.

What she got was the directorship of an all-woman orchestra. Listeners can measure its worth on Tuesday. But first, measure the woman who is the orchestra's director and driving force.

Tall, blond, and lithe in the special way that seems to be characteristic of persons of great talent, she has come a long way since her birth in Lindsborg, Kansas. That Kansas background is a challenge to the male pundits who supervise our American culture and insist that a Middle-Western background chokes the genius from those unlucky enough to be born there.

In Lindsborg, Kansas, was Bethany College and the celebrated Bethany Oratorio Society. Miss Sundstrom's parents were both charter members of this organization. It is not completely surprising, then, to find little Ebba picking up her first violin at the age of seven and playing it with remarkable juvenile skill. When her parents moved to Oklahoma (more of that fatal Mid-Western background), she was thirteen and she organized a trio. Had there been a Major Bowes Hour then, she would have scorned it, for her group was strictly for hire—professionals!

From one musical stepping-stone to another, she made her way with the unerring drive of her Norse ancestors, a blond Brunhilde alone in a musical world ruled by men, entirely unaware as yet of her destiny as a great artist.

In 1925, Chicago womanhood surprised music-lovers with an idea which brought mingled huzzas and jeers from bystanders. They decided to form a woman's symphony. It wasn't a new idea, but a woman's symphony had never been successful and critics cried loudly that it never could succeed. Nevertheless, a handful of determined young women who found their careers in music blocked by the fact that all regular symphonic organizations employed only men, decided to attempt the impossible.

In 1925, the Woman's Symphony Orchestra of Chicago made its debut, "manned" by women, with the exception of the conductor. He was Richard Czerwonky. But the concertmeister was Ebba Sundstrom.

In some orchestras, a concertmeister is a figurehead; in others, he is the power behind the throne. How much of a power Miss Sundstrom was became apparent only when Conductor Czerwonky had been succeeded by a woman conductor, Ethel Leginska, and she in turn had given way to Ebba Sundstrom.

Many visitors to Chicago's Century of Progress in 1933 and 1934 carried away stories of Sally Rand and her fan dance or the startling sights of the Streets of Paris, but just as many spent rousing hours in attendance at the Floating Theater and the Ford Gardens where Miss Sundstrom and her triumphant organization gave to hundreds of thousands of listeners a vigorous demonstration of the "man-sized" repertory of her orchestra.

Tuesday night, millions will be able to hear what other thousands have already heard—and to be convinced that Ebba Sundstrom has not yet reached the end of the trail which is blazoned, "For Men Only—Women Keep Out."

Lindsborg, Kansas, and Bethany Oratorio Society are proud of Ebba Sundstrom, and so are the artists of the Woman's Symphony Orchestra of Chicago. So too will be those women everywhere who glory in the success of their own sex in fields where men are customarily unchallenged.

DURING a recent concert engagement which Alec Templeton, the blind pianist, managed to squeeze in between broadcasts, a breathless lady rushed to him after the performance and sprang the question that people are always asking, "How did you overcome your handicap, Mr. Templeton?"

"What handicap?" Alec said. "I have no handicap." That simple answer sums up Alec's attitude toward himself.

When Alec first appeared with Richard Bonelli and Rex Chandler on the Saturday evening "Universal Rhythm" program, it was announced that no tickets would be available for the broadcast. Immediately the whispers spread that this was because Alec didn't want to play before an audience; the poor boy was sensitive. Alec then was playing twice nightly at the luxurious Rainbow Room to a slightly smaller but much more formidable audience than he would have had to face at the studio, and he didn't seem to be shaken by the ordeal. The reason for the "No Visitors" sign was both simple and final. It was merely that CBS had no large studio available.

AS A matter of fact, Alec Templeton doesn't know the meaning of self-pity; he is less self-conscious than anyone else I have ever met. The reasons lie in his own nature and the common sense of his parents.

Alec was born in South Cardiff, Wales, on July 4, 1910. Two things set him apart from the thousand other babies coming into the world:

The first, he was blind.

The second, he was a musical genius. His parents knew that as surely as they knew he had a nose, a mouth and two hands.

But it was the second quality, rather than the first, which made the task of rearing Alec Templeton a complicated and delicate one.

Blindness, while a handicap, is not insurmountable. It can be coped with. But the trouble with genius is that it is essentially alone. The most you know is that it is there; you can only hope to understand it. Steered in the right direction, it can give to the world; misplaced, it can cause much frustration.

No story is more amazing than how Mrs. Templeton first became aware of her son's great gift. One afternoon, four years after Alec was born, Mrs. Templeton called to her daughter, who was practising at the piano: "Olive, will you leave your lessons and go to the grocer's for me?"

The playing ceased. Mrs. Templeton went back to her work. In a few moments the music continued. Annoyed at her daughter's disobedience, she went to the living-room. What she saw there both startled and thrilled her. Baby Alec was perched precariously on the piano-chair, his chubby fingers repeating, note for note, the sonatina his sister had just played. The music streamed into the room, enclosing the child in a world of his own. Mrs. Templeton tiptoed out.

HIS parents might have succumbed to the temptation to place him on exhibition as an "infant prodigy." The Templetons could have used the money. They were well-doing farmers, not wealthy. But Andrew Templeton had a conservative English backbone and Sarah Templeton was a music-lover; the thought of exploiting their son's gift repelled them.

As a child, Alec was exposed to the danger of adulation. Not only were the neighbors over-solicitous because of his blindness, but it was difficult to restrain them from gushing over the child who was the shining light of every church and school musical. But Alec's parents had anticipated that problem. They wanted to teach Alec to build a full, valuable life. He must be taught to give all he could, rather than take all that people rushed to hand him. He must never be considered as in any way handicapped.

him acutely aware of his blindness?

At first he had a tutor to initiate him into the intricacies of school. Later, when the tutor left, Alec relied upon Braille books and occasional assistance from some of the other students.

But the barrier which separated Alec from the other boys was soon dissolved. Making friends has always been the least of Alec's troubles, and played at dances until he discovered that he liked to dance. No amount of coaxing could keep him at the piano when he wanted to take a turn on the floor.

He is an indefatigable and obliging guest. At an afternoon tea in London some five years back, he was delighting the guests with those clever piano arrangements that you now hear on the radio. When he had finished, a young woman approached him:

"I wonder," she said wistfully, "if you would play some more. My husband just arrived and I'm so anxious for him to hear you. Won't you please . . ."

"Why, I'll be glad to play for him," Alec said enthusiastically. He went back to the piano and played two hours for the newcomer. The newcomer was Jack Hylton, England's foremost bandleader. Hylton listened, marvelled, then signed him up as the star attraction of his Continental Revue. Later he took Alec to America, and Alec stayed to become internationally known in concert and radio.

ALEC'S musical accomplishments are as astounding today as they were twenty years ago, when, as a child of six, his mother took him to London to hear "The Tales of Hoffman." When they returned home Alec ran to the piano and played the entire "Barcarolle" as though he had the score.

He has duplicated that musical feat hundreds of times, but never quite as dramatically as he did at a recent party given for Nathan Milstein, the famous violinist. Milstein asked Alec if he would accompany him in Lalo's "Symphonie Espagnole." "I have never played it," Alec said, "but I heard it at your concert yesterday, and if you'll bear with me I'll try to play it from memory." Milstein sighed but decided to chance it. To the complete amazement of the great violinist, Alec accompanied him flawlessly!

And yet there is nothing of the prodigy about Alec. His mind is quick, but his tastes are not inordinately highbrow. Possessing an imposing classical background, he derives a gleeful pleasure out of swing music. The slightly inane "Swing, Swing Your Mother-in-Law" is his favorite.

Alec never allowed blindness to keep him from physical activities. He has a slight, wiry build and swimming is his favorite form of exercise. In school he was a member of the rowing team. He dances, not expertly, but enthusiastically.

The world he has created through sound and association is a true one. He has an almost infallible intuition—a sixth sense—which makes him see people as they are, stripped of veneer.

LIVING in a world without sight, he relies upon his imagination and amazing memory to see for him. He can remember a name and identify it with a voice the second time he meets anyone.

Writers who interview Alec, hoping to find a placid, resigned young man spouting inspirational philosophy are disappointed. He has no words of cheer to give those who feel that life has given them a raw deal. Alec Templeton is very happy. He becomes very much annoyed with people who think he is handicapped, like the breathless young lady introduced at the beginning of the story. Others, please note.

Alec Templeton may be heard Sundays on Universal Rhythm over a CBS network at:

EDT 9:00 p.m. — EST 8:00 p.m.
 CDT 8:00 p.m. — CST 7:00 p.m.
 MST 6:00 p.m. — PST 5:00 p.m.

Happy Handicap

FROM ALEC TEMPLETON'S DARKNESS
 SHINES A BRIGHT LIGHT OF GENIUS

Alec Templeton gives away about $3,000 worth of his time at every party he attends. He loves to play as much as others love to hear him

Their job was more difficult because Alec was an imperious little boy. He formed the habit of ordering his two sisters and his friends around. His sisters catered to him, and Alec was taking advantage of it. Once, his sister was playing with a large ball. "Let me have it," Alec said. She gave it up immediately. The mother, watching, told Alec to return it. He must not get into the habit of having things his own way. Which was a beginning in the right direction.

When Alec was twelve, his parents decided to send him to Worcester College, a boarding-school which housed normal-visioned boys. Up to this time he had been educated by private tutors. Also, in spite of those strong resolves, Alec was being coddled a bit by those who loved him. He was assisted when he dressed, and had little things done for him.

Mr. and Mrs. Templeton wondered if they were doing the right thing. Trembling with the fear that they were inhuman parents, they sent him off to school. How would he get along alone, thrust into a dormitory of strange young men who might make it was an important asset there. He is one of those rare persons who charm people to his side.

Today there is still something unrestrained about him. Before he sits down to play, he jumps up and down, like a child who is delighted about a new toy. The fact that he does this as part of his exercises, to limber up before playing, does not detract from its impression of spontaneity.

Always encouraged to be natural and frank, Alec hates false modesty. When he was seven years old he played in the school auditorium. The young audience was very enthusiastic and applauded with much gusto.

"Play another, Alec," they squealed noisily. "Come on, Alec, please do."

Alec turned a faintly annoyed face. "Of course I'll play another, so shut up!"

The childish bluntness is gone, but he still displays short patience for exaggerated modesty. He loves nothing better than to have fun at the piano, and with justifiable egotism he knows that people enjoy listening. He plays almost ceaselessly at parties without having to be cajoled. At school he

INSIDE STUFF

LEWIS

IN THE issue of RADIO GUIDE dated July 27, 1935, this column paragraphed a prediction that Hollywood was destined to become the second largest radio center. I had just returned from a two-week vacation spent in the flicker city and this prognostication was based on the fact that so many radio stars were already out on the Coast at the time making pictures and many more were slated to follow.

Looking back two years, it doesn't seem that I was wrong. As a matter of fact, if you look through the program schedules you will notice that practically every big-name radio show, with the possible exception of Rudy Vallee's, originates on the Coast. At that time, the few NBC shows originating in Hollywood were put on in a small theater studio on the RKO lot. Months later the network had to build four new studios to take care of the influx of radio shows to the Coast. At the present moment plans are being made for additional studios, and from where I'm sitting, it seems that in 1935 I under-estimated a bit, for I firmly believe that by next fall Hollywood will be the largest radio center.

On September 4, Milton Berle will take his Sunday night show back to the Coast for an indefinite stay. During the week, the comic will be working on the RKO lot making another picture.

Also headed for the West Coast to do some work before the movie cameras, will be Shep Fields and his Rippling Rhythm orchestra. The bubble-blower will appear in Paramount's "Big Broadcast of 1938."

Enough about programs going to the Coast—here are a few notes about some eastern airings. B. A. Rolfe's "Magazine of the Air," heard over CBS, will be aired five times weekly starting August 31 . . . The Louis-Farr heavy-weight bout will be broadcast over the NBC net with Clem McCarthy giving out the word-picture . . . Universal Rhythm switches back to its old Saturday night spot when the auto sponsor's Sunday Evening Hour returns to the airlines . . . Cal Tinney, who was heard on the air several seasons back as editor of the Ooligah, Oklahoma, newspaper, returns to the air in the fall to emcee a new variety show.

Irene Rich switches her airings from Friday nights to Sundays starting August 15. On that date she will have made one hundred and fifty consecutive weekly radio appearances without even taking time off for a vacation.

Walter O'Keefe wishes to make it known that he is discarding his title of Broadway Hillbilly. This trademark has been his for the past five years and it all started when his gag-writer pinned the title on him in 1932, when negotiations were on for a new radio series which never went on the air. Incidentally, you may have heard Harry Von Zell address Walter as Michael and wondered if Harry didn't make a mistake. Well, he didn't, because the right name of the Town Hall

Tonight headliner is Michael Walter O'Keefe.

Which reminds me to tell you that the correct name of the emcee on the Sunday night Fireside Recitals heard over NBC is Charles K. Field, as announced, but most radio listeners know him better as Cheerio, who has been broadcasting for ten years under this name without being identified.

Walter Winchell came back to New York from the Coast, but stayed only long enough to do one broadcast from the East. They tell me Walter likes California so much that when he got back to New York he appreciated Hollywood all the more.

His friendly enemy, Ben Bernie, will be Coast-bound in a couple of weeks to work on his next picture, and I'm told that upon arrival he will enter a dramatic school for a few easy lessons on how to be an actor. Winchell please note.

John Royal, program chief at NBC, left for foreign shores last week and they tell me the real reason behind the trip is to get Paderewski's signature on an NBC radio contract.

Wendell Hall writes that his song "Rhythm of State Street," which was aired for the first time on RADIO GUIDE's program last fall, has been adopted by the State Street Council as their official Chicago song and that Arthur Murray has devised a new dance called, "The State Street Shag." May I have the next Shag with you?

They tell me that Richard Himber's former auto sponsor is planning to put on a special one-hour broadcast in tribute to Marconi, that will feature some of the earliest stars to face a microphone.

If Bing Crosby ever loses his job as emcee and crooner, he can always get some work describing a horse race. Several Fridays ago, Bing broadcast a description of a race from the Del Mar track of which he is part owner and did a grand job. The race was called "The Motion Picture Handicap," and was so close they had to take a picture of the nags crossing the line, which prompted one of the movie directors to tell Crosby that it was ideal to end "The Motion Picture Handicap" with a photograph finish.

Jose Iturbi, eminent Valencia-born conductor-pianist, will conduct the Robin Hood Dell Concert this Saturday night (EDT), on NBC

Glamorous Screen Star Irene Dunne: She'll co-star with Film Actor Randolph Scott in "Hollywood Hotel's" preview of the picture, "High, Wide and Handsome," Friday night (EDT). Irene's a native of Louisville, Kentucky—came to motion pictures by way of the musical stage

Three generations—Myrtle Vail (left); her daughter, Donna Damerel; and her daughter's son, Baby Rikky. Myrtle and Donna, who are "Myrt and Marge" to thousands of listeners, will change air-time on CBS this Monday, moving from afternoons (EDT) to mornings

This Wednesday night (EDT), Connie Boswell will guest-solo on the CBS Ken Murray show. Connie's one of the famous Boswell Sisters

PLUMS and PRUNES

BY BEN
BYERS

WHILST Evans Plummer is fighting the dust somewhere between Chicago and Hollywood, we'll do our best to pinch-hit. To begin, there is a little yarn about the Barrymores that has been told in Hollywood recently:

Seems that John and Elaine were rehearsing for one of the Shakespearean shows and the photographer from a national magazine was present shooting pictures. During the process of putting the Barrymore images on the negatives, a bulb exploded with a resounding whack. Elaine jumped and screamed, as did others in the studio. John remained calm. Eventually turning, he said to the photographer:

"You can't scare me; I've been married three times."

You won't be hearing little Ella Logan on the Cantor show, as the songstress has resigned. It seemed a bit funny, so RADIO GUIDE did a bit of investigating and found the following:

It appears that Ella, when the first summer show went on with her name on the list of the cast, did not show up for rehearsals. The producer was forced to pick a song for her, and she sang it rather poorly, as you will remember, because of the lack of rehearsals. It was then decided to let Ella have her own way, and attempts were made to soothe that well-known bugaboo known as temperament.

Things did not go on too smoothly after that, and it was finally decided that the only thing to be done was to convince Ella that she was trying to do too much . . . she was convinced and resigned from the production.

Time Marches On! . . . and now we relate the incident that happened about five years ago with Ken Murray playing the lead. Ken at that time signed a contract with Universal studios for four weeks for $3,000. Since then he has stepped right up in radio, and recently signed a contract with Rufus LeMaire at the same studio . . . but this time it was for seven weeks, and the price reported to us is $35,000.

And while we are talking about Ken, it seems only fitting and proper to award him a basket of those plums he deserves for a bit of kindness that he has performed. Marlyn Stuart who is the seventeen-year-old taking the part of the little girl on the program, has but one line to say, program after program, week after week . . . and it is a bit tiresome. Her contract calls for $50 a week, but she has a loan-out clause of $75 a week. To keep her happy, Ken arranged for her to appear with Edgar Bergen at the Coconut Grove. Bergen's budget only allowed $50 for expenditures of that sort . . . so Ken is paying the other $25 out of his own pocket!

Lum and Abner, those Arkansas boys who certainly know how to "dicker," have put over another of their famous deals. The plummy dicker just completed was with their sponsor. The lads have signed a new contract that calls for eighteen months' work . . . but it is reported to call for $335,000 for the two boys!

Irene Saltern, whose name is pronounced like the French wine, is an internationally famous fashion expert from Paris. Until recently she has been the technical fashion adviser at Universal Studios. Now she is going into radio.

Miss Saltern has prepared a fashion program of half-hour duration that will knock the network moguls right off their swivel-chairs! It will be built around a family, and will contain guest appearances of fashion experts from all over the world. The program, which has five sponsors bidding for it now, will be released through a network here and sent to foreign countries via the transcription route.

Much ado has been made over the tentative deal between M-G-M and a sponsor to take over the entire studio for radio. At the time of this writing, the deal has NOT been definitely set . . . but Bill Bacher, one-time producer of Hollywood Hotel, is set for seven years with the studio. He will handle all its radio commitments as well as an executive job with the studio.

Arlene Harris, of the Al Pearce program, was rumored by the great Walter Winchell as anticipating. It so happens that Arlene, who is married to Doctor Harry Harris, is NOT expecting an arrival. You can mark that down in your stork column.

Alice Faye, who is rumored off-again on-again with her many romances, isn't so definitely off with Tony Martin. There may have been a lovers' quarrel, but she was seen at the boxing-matches at the Hollywood Stadium just two days before this went into writing . . . and her escort was Tony Martin . . . and they DID look at each other that way.

Frances Langford, who was tops among women in RADIO GUIDE'S Star of Stars election, is romancing again . . . this time with the same George Jean Nathan. They were bowling together recently at the Beverly Hills alleys . . . and that reminds me, wonder what became of Gil Kuhn, USC football captain . . . you know, the one that used to go here and there with Frances but who wasn't invited to her party given for the graduating players of USC? . . . But then Frances is a fine trouper and a wonderful little gal, so she probably has her own reasons for saying nothing about that incident.

ROWENA WILLIAMS

BY JOHN SMILEY

ROWENA WILLIAMS, starred as the soprano soloist on the new WGN and MBS variety airshow, "Your Parlor Playhouse," which is heard every Sunday evening from 9:30 to 10 p.m. (EST), was born in Buffalo, New York, June 14, 1906.

Both parents had high hopes that their daughter would become a singer. Rowena's mother possessed a beautiful voice, but circumstances prevented her from attaining her ambition to become a concert star. She was bound, however, that nothing would keep Rowena from having a musical career, providing the child possessed the ability and the desire. Evidently she had both, for at the present time she is considered one of the best sopranos on the air. In this, Rowena is rather unusual. It seems in most cases that when parents plan some specific career for their child, things don't work out according to the plan. Often parents who had some particular ambition which they never fulfilled for some reason or another, are determined to have their children accomplish that same thing—and the results are usually unsuccessful, even tragic. There are, for example, many doctors, lawyers, people in other professions who are there because it was the wish of their parents that they take up such a life work—regardless of the fact that in many cases they were not well suited for it. It's unfortunate—but it's true. But Rowena Williams is one of the rare exceptions to this general rule. She was destined to be a singer, to become an opera star—and it is little more than a coincidence that her parents had that sort of a career figured out for her. With a voice such as hers she undoubtedly would have ended up as a singer regardless of what sort of work she might have started out to do.

At any rate, she has an unusual voice, a strong desire to become a great singer, and the backing of her parents who also want her to reach the top by means of her vocal cords. With such a combination, it is little to be wondered at that she has gone ahead in her singing the way she has. She has had every incentive, every possible background advantage—and she's made the most of them all. Determined to get ahead, she has never let up in her efforts at any time.

Miss Williams has a noteworthy background in concert, operatic and popular music. She attributes her liking for all kinds of music to the fact that she is a direct descendant of Margraff, famous German music critic. Shortly after her birth, Rowena's parents moved to Chicago and later to Minneapolis. She received her education in the schools of Chicago, St. Paul and Minneapolis. Rather than attend a university, she elected to take a business course plus a musical education. In high school she was the leading member of the glee club and the dramatic society.

Her first appearances as a soloist were made in a Minneapolis church where she sang for ten years. During this time she was frequently featured in a number of concerts, in Twin City supper clubs and with various chorale groups. She made her operatic debut in 1930, and these and other theatrical engagements fell to her lot until 1934, when she deserted the theater to take part in the Hollywood Hotel auditions staged by the Columbia Broadcasting System.

THAT step began her real career in radio, although she had appeared in various air shows previous to that time. Miss Williams won the Chicago district audition, and then in the nation-wide finals held in New York she was adjudged the national winner. As a result she was signed to appear as leading lady opposite Dick Powell on the first series of the Hollywood Hotel broadcasts. That program definitely launched Miss Williams' career as a first-rank radio songstress.

During the past winter she was the only guest star to make a repeat performance on the WGN and Mutual network show, "Listen to This," and she had also been starred on the "Fire-side Theater" and the "Northerners" broadcasts over WGN. Her air debut was made on WCCO, Minneapolis.

Rowena Williams is not married, she enjoys travel but keeps out of airplanes, is a good golfer, a rabid football fan and goes completely berserk over wire-haired fox terriers.

ALTHOUGH she doesn't speak any foreign languages, she has sung operas in German, French and Italian. She says she prefers singing before a studio audience rather than in a closed broadcast program. Another thing, Miss Rowena Williams: Everything adds up to 13 for her—so she's happy!

Williams believes that three programs a week is about right for her. She loves to sing the Jewel Song from "Faust" and absolutely despises four-flushers. She is flaxen-haired, has eyes that seem to change color, has lost thirty pounds during the last couple of years, is "easy going," has a likable "studio disposition" and takes her music very, very seriously.

SHE says that thirteen is her lucky number. When she was thirteen years old she earned her first money working at the ribbon counter of a Minneapolis department store, making $13 per. She got her first radio break in 1930 (the numbers add up to thirteen). Her given name is Rowen Williams (contains thirteen letters) but she felt that Rowena sounded better for radio. Today, at 31 (13 reversed), she feels she is at last really going places. Her height, by the way, is 67 inches, the two digits of which add up to thirteen. Page Mr. Ripley!

Miss Williams is a rabid football fan and seldom misses a chance to root for her home team of the University of Minnesota. Last year at the Minnesota-Northwestern game she worked so hard trying to get the Gophers across that last white line she sprained her shoulder in the urging.

Incidentally, one of her radio fans writes her two letters a week, each of them simple, friendly, full of honest criticism and praise. From time to time he sends her gifts such as handkerchiefs, scarfs, candy and the like. And yet, strangely enough, he's never seen her except in pictures.

BY CARLETON SMITH

SOONER or later you are certain to tune in—the beautiful sister of Jose Iturbi, Mlle. Amparo Iturbi. She made her radio debut May 2, playing the Haydn Concerto with Howard Barlow and his Little Symphony. Later in the month she made her concert debut in America. Detroit critics were laudatory: "Beyond any question, an artist of gifts above the average . . . and those gifts have been brought to a splendid maturity. A full-spirited vitality seems to be a family trait. Amparo Iturbi does not need to hang to her brother's coat-tails, for she clearly belongs to the top flight of pianists of her sex."

However, her lively brother was observed scampering between backstage and out-front and he is going to see that she has the proper build-up. She is strikingly like him in appearance, sturdy of stature, dark of complexion, grave of manner, and she answers applause with the same kind of graciousness that Jose displays—glad, but seemingly a little astonished that she has pleased so much.

She was born in Valencia, Spain. Her musical education, she says, was most informal, "a little savage!" No professor, no conservatory, no patrons, no prizes . . . only one teacher, her only Brother Jose. He was playing and teaching at eight. His little sister followed him about whenever possible, imitating everything he did. Later she worked with him when there was time, modeled herself musically on him as she grew up, and finally developed into a pianist with the same clear touch as he. Of course, she can never hope to be as great. For hasn't her brother announced to the world that, in music, women can never be as good as men?

THERE must be some mistake about the news that Lawrence Tibbett will return to the airlines in September. That month Mr. Tibbett will be touring the continent of Europe, appearing for the first time in his life in opera and concert, in countries as far apart as Roumania and France. In October he will go to England and will return to American shores only in time to join the Chicago Opera Company in a performance of Verdi's Otello. Mr. Tibbett leaves immediately after his Metropolitan season for a five-month concert tour in Australia. However, he does have a Sunday broadcast scheduled early in December.

Mr. Tibbett had a mixed reception in his first European appearance. London critics were a bit reserved. They resented the fact that he was advertised as "the golden-voiced baritone." They found his metal seemed harder than gold. They were incensed, too, that he announced before a song: "I will now sing you a beautiful Handel air." Since Handel spent the better part of his life in London, they feel they know better than any American which of his airs are beautiful.

One London critic thought he should have been a tenor instead of a baritone, and another felt he was a bass. He was accused of "just bawling" and of being "a bit theatrical." The erudite scribes took pains to show everybody that, although he might be good enough for America, he couldn't quite make the grade in London.

Another artist whom the London critics have found difficulty in accepting wholeheartedly is Kirsten Flagstad.

Both Mr. Tibbett and Mme. Flagstad, however, find themselves in good company. For it was no less a personage than Arturo Toscanini whom the London critics disparaged six years ago. When he took the New York Philharmonic-Symphony on its tour of Europe, they refused to believe that there was such a great man as Toscanini. "He was good, oh, yes!" they admitted, but nothing exceptional. Nothing better than what we have here at home." Now, after the whole world has been chanting his praises, he is counted exceptional even in London.

America's "Golden-voiced baritone," Lawrence Tibbett, plans an extended concert tour of Europe in September

William S. Paley for Columbia and John F. Royal for NBC are scouting about Europe for exceptional artistic affiliations. Mr. Royal attended the opening of the Salzburg Festival and arrange the final details of the maecoonfered with Arturo Toscanini to tro's coming to America.

According to present plans, the series will begin in late October. Mr. Toscanini will arrive about Christmas for ten weeks. Additional guest conductors are under consideration. Whatever hour and evening is selected for this event, you must plan to be in front of your loudspeaker. No other musical program will compare with it.

NEW! SCIENTIFIC AERIAL

Use the
With the Dual Connection

The DUAL CONNECTION, a new feature exclusively our own, gives better distance and positive performance on all electric radios (pat. pend.). This aerial can be installed without tools by anyone in a minute's time. Goes right inside the radio completely out of view and it does not use any electric current. No climbing on roofs. For short or long waves.

NO OSCILLATING OR WHISTLING

This DUAL type aerial uses a new scientific principle which completely eliminates this annoyance as commonly experienced on inside aerials. It also eliminates lightning hazards, unsightly poles, guy wires, etc. Enables the radio to be readily moved when desired. A complete aerial in itself—nothing extra to buy. Permanently installed and requires no adjustment. Ends aerial troubles forever. Send order today.

In many odd little ways, the life of Mozart, who is largely responsible for the Salzburg Festival, and Beethoven, whose own "Fidelio" opened it this year and who always occupies an honored place in its repertoire, twisted across each other. Both had their great triumphs, both lived in grim tragedy and died in despair—and once, for a time, they were master and pupil! When Mozart was 28, an acknowledged master idolized by all Europe, the young Beethoven was brought to him, a short, stumpy, ugly, shy, pock-marked boy, arrogant, proud as a Castilian. He played, and Mozart marked him for posterity with the words: "Keep your eyes on him; some day he will make a stir in the world!"

Mozart's father was a capable musician, and when the boy's older sister, Marianne—Wolfgang called her Nannerl—was seven, she had her first piano lessons. Wolfgang was sent away to play, but he could not be kept from the old pianoforte. He insisted that he should learn too, and he prevailed. His father lifted him to the bench, placed his chubby little hands on the keys—they were black keys, instead of white as we know them today—and the boy immediately began to fumble for pleasing chords. He knew instinctively, at the age of three years, what many of us are never able to discover!

AT FIVE, Mozart played the violin, too. One day, when the group of happy Salzburg musicians who gathered regularly at the Mozarts' for informal concerts Sunday afternoon were setting up their music-racks, Wolfgang demanded that he be allowed to play second fiddle. Ordered from the room, he still insisted, until finally the kindly old man who regularly played second fiddle interceded, with a wink to the elder Mozart, as if to say, "No one will hear him, anyway; let him amuse himself." But Wolfgang was heard. A few bars were played, and the old violinist lowered his instrument with tears in his eyes to allow Wolfgang to play on alone! At six, he wrote a concerto that was much too difficult for anyone to play. The first of his forty symphonies he produced when he was a child of eight!

When Mozart had reached his sixth birthday, musicians who had spent their lives in study acknowledged the boy their peer, and his father decided that this valuable little property must be exploited promptly, before it was too late. For while people would pay well for wonders performed by a six-year-old, their generosity would decrease with every inch he grew. So Papa Mozart, Nannerl and Wolferl set out on a tour of Europe. They went everywhere, Vienna, Prague, Munich—even to London. And everywhere they were wildly applauded. For Nannerl, though handicapped by her sex, was a great genius too, and when she appeared with her brother, the impact of their brilliance overpowered commoner and king alike. The tour lasted three long years, and while it gave Wolfgang a long head-start toward the fame and power that were to enrich his life finally, no one can say what it did to shorten that life. Travel was by coach; the roads were wretched, and when even the castles were cold, unsanitary and primitive, one can imagine the state of road-side inns.

TRIUMPH and bitterness crowded hard on each other after the Mozarts returned to Salzburg. Their friend, Archbishop Sigismund, was gone. There was a new archbishop now, and the Mozarts found him cold to their pleas for the aid all artists expected in those days. Wolfgang went to Italy. He wrote the opera "Bastien and Bastienne" at twelve. He was made a Knight of the Golden Spur by the Pope. He performed the incredible feat of copying—from memory—the great "Miserere" of Allegri, the most jealously guarded piece of music in the world at that time, after hearing it twice! His artistry grew faster than his body ever could. Mozart was a little man, short. His hair, honey-colored, hung loosely about his head. He was alternately wildly happy and dreadfully depressed. He sometimes worked in solitude and at his leisure, and he sometimes composed immortal airs on urgent commission, in the bedlam of a musicians' practice-hour. In short, he was a spirit living in a world made for lesser men. His life rushed to its close, hurried by ever-present poverty. He had married Constanza Weber, and there were two children. In September, 1791, he finished "The Magic Flute," and a few months later he started the "Requiem" on commission. He never finished it. One day he was very ill—it was as if his soul had suddenly collapsed—and he died quickly. The day was December 5, the year, 1791.

Beethoven's life lapped Mozart's by some twenty years. He was born in 1770, recognized as a prodigy before he was four, and, like Mozart, brought to the attention of the great of his time. His life ran a slower course than his great predecessor's had run; he did not appear in public until he was thirty. Like Mozart, he was haunted by poverty and unhappiness. He too had great triumphs, of course, but he suffered great tragedies too, the greatest of which was the loss of all hearing. The deafness came in 1819, and of course it scarred his mind immeasurably. He finished the last piece of work to bear his name on October 31, 1826, and died, in the midst of a terrific thunderstorm, March 26, 1827. There will be thunderstorms in Salzburg this summer, and there will be days of bright sunshine as well. And thus, perhaps, will two great masters be united, in a musical setting which they could not have bettered, nor even dreamed of seeing, in the time and place in which they lived.

VOICE OF THE LISTENER

The "Voice of the Listener" letter-forum is a regular feature in Radio Guide each week, offered to the readers as a means for expressing and exchanging opinions about radio.

Each week Radio Guide will publish letters deserving our readers' attention.

A THREAT

VOL: I'm very sorry to disagree with you in the Star Poll Vote. You know very well who started variety programs and then all others copied.

I've taken RADIO GUIDE for years, but you can rest assured I'll take it no more, unless you put R. Vallee in his rightful place. Just because he is on top and over you want to shove him down. Why so? Put those who copied his ideas where they belong. I think his pictures should be in your publication along with a few well-written articles.—Mrs. Ann Crookton, Watkins Glen, N. Y.

P.S. Please look the matter over. It's about time he got a medal. I'll take one more RADIO GUIDE and if he is better written—well, that will end it.

P.P.S. Excuse pencil, I have a broken arm.

RADIO GUIDE readers alone determine the Star of Stars Election results. The editors keep hands off.—Ed.

HE DOESN'T LISTEN . . .

VOL: In the Ten Commandments of the Bible, there is one which states: "Thou shalt not take the name of the Lord, Thy God in vain; . . ." In our country today, there is a song called "All God's Chillun Got Rhythm." This, I believe, is taking God's name in vain, just as much as swearing. When orchestra leaders play this song in swing-time, it is desecrating the commandment which I have quoted above. No true Christian would listen to this song—which I do not!—E. Bullabough, High Point, N. C.

DON'T WE ALL

Voice of the Listener: I wonder why . . . I don't turn the dial or snap off the radio entirely when I don't like what is offered. (Sh-h-h, I do.) It's easily done and thousands do it. (Sponsors please take note.)—Mrs. H. Q. Fortney, Sterling, Ohio.

RAH, RAH, RADIO!

VOL: The radio offers an education all its own. It is not a college but a university; its variety of subjects is sometimes amazing. History, language, science, cultural subjects—they are all offered. Even athletics have not been neglected.

Sometimes the subjects offered are not to our liking, but the curriculum is flexible, and the courses always elective. There may be a professor or two whom we do not like, but we need not meet them.

However, the faculty is usually made up of professors who are well fitted for their chairs, who are good in their line of work. The cynical say, "Why shouldn't they be good? They get paid enough." But those of us who are appreciative say, "Yes, but we don't pay them. Anyway, they earn their salary, they work hard, they try to please, they don't charge us tuition, and our hats are off to them."—Jean Thompson, McAfee, Ky.

BACH TO BARN DANCE

VOL: Since so much discussion has arisen regarding the popularity and superiority of classical music over swing, and vice versa, I submit the following suggestion:

Why not have, instead of or in connection with your next "Star of Stars" poll, another poll to determine what type of music is really the most popular and best loved? I suggest that you list in the ballot at least three or four classes of music: classical, semi-classical, straight popular music, and swing. Perhaps it would be best to have the reader list his first, second, third, and fourth choice. In this way there could be no dark-horse to spoil the battle between those two extremes, classical and swing.

I'm betting on the semi-classics and classics to stay on top.—W. A. Palmer, Jr., Brookhaven, Miss.

TRY THIS ONE

VOL: There is a program on the air which is scarcely ever mentioned in magazine articles; photographs of its participants are rarely published; it is unsponsored and therefore must give way to other broadcasts often not half so interesting. It does not even have that label which seems to be growing more and more necessary if a program is to be considered good—"Hollywood."

Yet, I get more real pleasure from it than any other I can name. I am referring to the "Radio Guild's" program every Friday afternoon from three to four over NBC.

For several years I kept a small note-book record of their plays and casts and have counted no less than 125 famous plays that they have given, and that does not make up the complete list by any means.

I owe NBC and the fine actors on this program many an hour of real enjoyment and I sincerely hope they will see fit to keep this a permanent feature of their broadcasting schedule. It is too fine a performance to be lost.—Florence I. Buxton Chatwood, West Chester, Pa.

MINORITY REPORT

VOL: Isn't it time Jack Benny was pronounced "hors de concours," or is he going to "hog" the first place forever?

At the beginning of the "Star of Stars" election contest Nelson Eddy had the majority of votes, but suddenly Mr. Benny climbed to first place and there he stayed.

Whatever the reason for this, he should be satisfied with three years running, and stay out of the contest next year; so that it can be plainly revealed, by a real majority of votes, that the real "Star of Stars" is Nelson Eddy: today the greatest singer over the radio, concert, screen-actor and idol of the American people, whom he so genuinely represents at its best—Americana, Habana, Cuba.

REPLACEMENT

Voice of the Listener: During the winter months listeners are privileged to hear the Grand Opera broadcasts Saturday afternoons. There is nothing to replace that full afternoon's entertainment in the summer time.

Wouldn't it be possible to get the full two hours' entertainment furnished each Sunday afternoon by the Golden Gate Park Band, of which only a half-hour is broadcast? Music lovers could take time to listen Sunday afternoons. And I might add that the announcer of that program has the most musical, unaffected speaking-voice on the air.—Harriet Schindler, Topeka, Kansas.

Time given is CST; for MST subtract one hour. Short-wave programs of American stations are shown along with the regular listings beginning on page 27. These are indicated, for example, by (sw-11.87) in parentheses following a program listing. This means that on 11.87 megacycles the same program may also be heard over an American short-wave station. Please note that foreign stations do not always adhere precisely to their announced program schedules.

GENERAL Electric's short-wave stations W2XAD and W2XAF will become the strongest in America and probably in the world upon completion of the new 100,000-watt transmitter, permission for the erection of which has just been granted by the Federal Communications Commission. The new transmitter will be a linear, radio-frequency amplifier and may be used by either of the two short-wave stations.

"The previous strength of 18,000 to 25,000 watts for W2XAD and W2XAF, respectively, has rivaled the world's strongest short-wave stations, and the greater signal strength should permit worldwide reception throughout the year," according to B. W. Bullock, assistant broadcasting manager of the General Electric Company.

W2XAD now broadcasts approximately 220 hours a month and W2XAF 290 hours. It is anticipated that this will be increased as the result of the greater range of the new transmitter, which is expected to be completed by the early part of next year.

R. B. Oxrieder of State College, Penn., is hearing a new Cuban, believed to be COCW of Havana, on a frequency of 6.324 meg. The announcer usually includes broadcast stations CMW and CMHX in the announcements.

A MATEUR radio came through nobly last month in an emergency call. On a small island in the Pacific Ocean, 75 miles from Los Angeles, Calif., a tiny four-months-old girl was in need of medical attention. Amateur station W6JLF, operated by I. P. Elliott, the only contact that San Nicolas Island has with the mainland, established contact with an amateur in Redondo Beach, Calif., who called the police, who in turn notified the Los Angeles police and the Coast Guard. The latter had a boat ready to sail by the time a doctor arrived, and before morning the boat, carrying the doctor, hove to on the lee side of desolate San Nicolas Island, and another mark was chalked up on the already enviable record established by amateurs.

The new schedule of broadcasts from short-wave stations LRU and LRX, "Radio El Mundo," Buenos Aires, Argentina, is as follows: Over LRU (15.29), daily from 7 to 9 a.m. EST (6 to 8 a.m. CST); over LRX (9.66), daily from 9:30 a.m. to 11:30 p.m. EST (8:30 a.m. to 10:30 p.m. CST). On July 1, these short-wave stations were used in relaying the inaugural program of the new blue and white network of "Radio El Mundo," comprising key station LR1 in Buenos Aires and affiliates in Rosario, Cordoba, Bahia Blanca, Tucuman, Mendoza, Resistencia (Chaco) and San Juan.

Mr. Jardillier, Minister of Posts, Telegraphs and Telephones for France, is reported to have recently stated that the new short-wave transmitter of "Radio Coloniale" was nearing completion and that experimental broadcasts would soon be carried on, with a power output that would be gradually increased until the station's ultimate maximum power of 50,000 watts had been reached. Reception of the French station should be greatly improved.

In a letter from Leonard Sawyer of Woodstock, N. H., I learn that DJP (11.85) of Zeesen, Germany, may be heard Mondays at 7 p.m. EST (6 p.m. CST), relaying a program from Belgrade, Yugoslavia, for the benefit of Slavic emigrants in North and South America.

Ashley Walcott of San Francisco, Calif., sends the following informative notes: A station on 9.415 meg, the same frequency as PLV of Bandoeng, Java, has been relaying the Javanese NIROM programs intermittently each morning from 5:30 to 9 a.m. EST (4:30 to 8 a.m. CST) . . . Erlanger & Galinger of Manila, Philippines, tested their new short-wave transmitter on 11.84 meg for two weeks in June and then it went off the air. On the first of July the station resumed broadcasting on an announced frequency of 9.57 meg and it may be heard daily on this frequency from approximately 4:30 to 9 a.m. EST (3:30 to 8 a.m. CST). A slight heterodyne from W1XK may be noted . . . OPM (10.14) of Leopoldville, Belgian Congo, may be heard phoning in straight speech, irregularly from 8:30 to 9 a.m. EST (7:30 to 8 a.m. CST) . . . "The Addis Ababa, Ethiopia, station on 15.43 meg verified for me in May as IUG, not IUD as reported by several other short-wave listeners. As for the code signature being IUD, not IUG, nearly all operators of the Italian Colonial telephone stations have notoriously poor fists for code and it would be extremely difficult to tell the difference between a dot and a dash" . . . FZE (17.28) of Djibouti, Somali Coast, is heard calling Paris on phone, once or twice a week near 8:30 a.m. EST (7:30 a.m. CST).

The owners of broadcast station KSTP in St. Paul, Minn., have been granted a permit to erect a 1,000-watt apex station to operate on 25.95 meg . . . The Knickerbock Broadcasting Company of New York City, N. Y., will erect a 100-watt apex station to operate on 26.55 meg.

The "Government Radio Station," Rangoon, Burma, is still being heard on the Pacific Coast daily from 9 to 9:35 a.m. EST (8 to 8:35 a.m. CST), on an announced frequency of 6.007 meg. A letter from W. J. Byrne, engineer-in-charge of the above station, states that the broadcasts are merely experimental, are intended primarily for reception and report by various radio stations in Burma, and not for the entertainment of the general public, although reports from listeners who may happen to pick up the broadcasts are most welcome . . . A new station, ZGB of Kuala Lumpur, Federated Malay States, whose announced frequency is 13.643 meg, may frequently be heard between 7:30 and 8:30 a.m. EST (6:30 and 7:30 a.m. CST), phoning PLQ of Bandoeng, Java, in inverted speech.

3 Above: The Grand Foyer, showing the 60 x 30 foot Ezra Winter mural and the only central lighting fixtures in the theater. Each of the two chandeliers is 29 feet long, weighs two tons, has 98 bulbs, uses 3,920 watts

2 Right: The plush chairs of the theater have individual lights for guests, fold automatically when not in use, seat 6,200. By means of 3,000 reflectors in the curved ceiling, the audience is always under colored lights

4 Organist for the Music Hall, Dick Liebert (left), has his own program over NBC thrice weekly, broadcasts from this console. Since its opening on Dec. 27, 1932, more than 22 million people have visited the theater!

5 World-famous precision dancers are the Rockettes (above). There are 46 of them. Alternating, 36 perform while 10 take time off. They are paid $40 a week, give 4 shows on week-days, 5 on Saturdays, Sundays, holidays. Ballet girls also get $40

6 For their dances, the Rockettes (right) sometimes wear elaborate costumes, sometimes plain gowns. Invited by the French government to dance at the International Dance Festival, the Rockettes, 12 chaperones sailed to become the toast of Paris

7 The Radio City Music Hall is also on the air—under the same name. It is aired over NBC on Sundays. Above is the 24-voice glee club. Director Vin Lindhe is shown seated at piano

8 Above: The stage on which the 36 Rockettes dance is 144 x 80 feet, consists of three hydraulic-plunger elevators, operated by a push-button. They can either be raised together or separately

9 World-famous Composer-Conductor Erno Rapee (above) leads the 70-piece Symphony broadcasts over NBC every Sunday

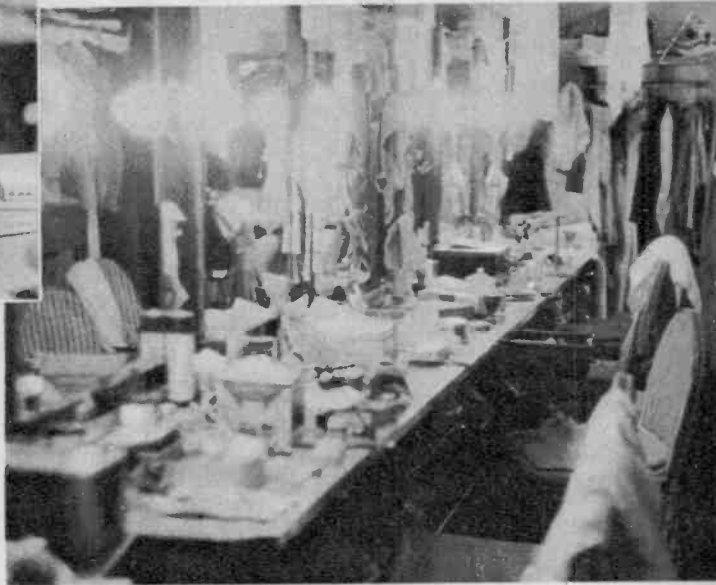

10 Above: Soloists—Robert Weede (left) studied in Italy; Viola Philo was in the "Met" two years, Jan Peerce was asked to join, but couldn't because of his contracts

14 While some of the girls use their spare time for sleeping, others sew, knit, crochet. That's what Ballet Girl Rosalie Spatcher (above) does between performances

15 Part of the time between numbers, however, must be spent on costume fitting. Hattie Rogge (left) is in charge of the costumes—all of which are made here in the building

(1) Built into the top of all three elevators is a sectional revolving stage. This revolving stage can be set with several scenes, and when it is turned the scenes are changed almost at once!

(2) In addition, there is an orchestra elevator. On it is a movable platform run by storage batteries and motors. Thus, in the sub-basement the band can quickly be switched to the stage!

(3) All lighting effects in the Hall are controlled by a switchboard that looks like a low upright piano. The mechanism has 4,305 handles which can be worked separately or as combined units

11 On the 50th Street side of the building, back-stage on the 6th floor, the Music Hall has its own library and reading-room for the girl performers

12 The ushers—100 of them—are employed by the Music Hall, have their own club room (above). Altogether, more than 600 people work in the theater!

13 Between performances, ballet girls have 1½ hours to themselves. Some of them catch up on sleep then (above)

17 In the basement of the Music Hall there is a fine cafeteria for employes (above). Its prices are about the same as anywhere else

18 Below the giant stage is the property department (left). All the props used are made here

19 The spacious roof playground atop the Music Hall is enjoyed by the ballet girls (above)

N. B. C. NIGHT CLUB

A REAL NIGHT CLUB
ON THE AIR—WITH A BAND, TABLES-FOR-TWO, A MASTER OF CEREMONIES—AND EVERYTHING'S FREE!

From NBC's Chicago Studio "A," the "Night Club of the Air" recently was given its first airing, met with immediate approval, is now a regular feature. Guests are the first 50 couples to write in. Above: Morey Amsterdam (left), m.c.; Clark Dennis (right), NBC tear

At a special celebrity night held recently, many of radio's great came, enjoyed the free dancing, refreshments, floor show. Above: Announcer Bob Brown dancing with Betty "Girl Alone" Winkler

Evelyn Morin, who sings on the hair- tonic-sponsored program featuring jingles and the Morin Sisters, was also there, danced with Howard Keegan, NBC production man (above)

Mr. and Mrs. William Carroll were in evidence, too. Mrs. Carroll is Loretta Poynton, "Donna" of "Dan Harding's Wife." Mr. Carroll is a Chicago attorney

Even here there may have been some shop-talking—for Loretta Poynton was seen dancing with Hugh Rowland (above). He takes the part of "Stooge Lowe" in the "Dan Harding's Wife" cast Chicago's brunet songstress, Annette King (above), who is the "NBC Breakfast Club" contralto, who is featured with "Bachelor Poet" Norman Pearce on a tea-sponsored program, sang, made a hit!

Music for the dancing feet of the Night Club guests is furnished by an orchestra directed by Maestro Harry Kogen (above). Kogen also handles the baton for "Kaltenmeyer's Kindergarten" and the "NBC Jamboree"

The Dean Brothers, Jimmy and Eddie (left), who have been in radio since 1929, often heard on the "National Barn Dance," sang. Eddie's the mandolin player

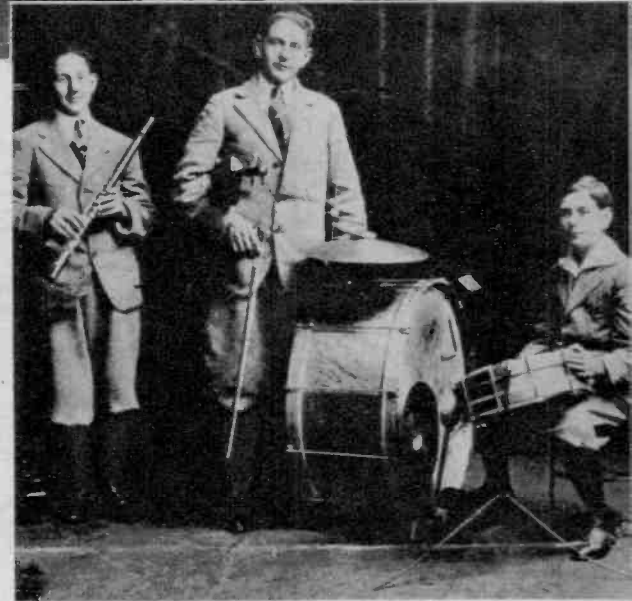

Announcer Norman Barry of NBC's Chicago studios and Pauline "Birdie" Morin of the Morin Sisters (above) were among the celebrities who attended

THE BROTHERS LOMBARDO —and HOW THEY GREW

THEIRS IS THE STORY OF A SMALL ORCHESTRA, THE DISCOVERY OF A NEW DANCE RHYTHM, OF RADIO—AND FAME

Left: Bandman Guy Lombardo, eldest of the famous four Lombardo brothers, was born in London, Ont., the son of an Italian tailor. Guy began his musical career at the age of 6, studied violin, organized a band of his own—while still a schoolboy!

Below: From Chicago, the Lombardo band went to Manhattan's Hotel Roosevelt in New York—where they've just completed their 7th spring engagement. It was 1929, along came a radio sponsor, & Victor, youngest Lombardo brother, joined the group

Above: Vaudeville snatched up Lombardos & Co. and christened them "Royal Canadians." On reaching Cleveland, they were held over for 3 weeks. Next came Chicago, where their subtle, syncopated rhythms soon made them favorites at a none-too-prosperous club—the Granada Cafe. Gangsters shot up the place, but it was here they first went on the air

Below: The Lombardos & Co. They were getting $15 for playing at private dances. Canadians were beginning to talk of this personable band & it led to their first real triumph at a Lake Erie resort—where they drew record crowds!

Above, left to right: The Lombardo boys—Carmen, Guy and Lebert. Their first appearance was at a mothers' club in London, Ont., in 1918. Guy was 12. He played the violin, Carmen tooted the flute, Lebert handled the drums

With the arrival of Joan Houston at Lake Wau-neah-tau-wau-wa, the family decides to allow young sister Dot to remain at the lake with her, while they move on in their trailer. In the meantime Michael, Joan's heart interest, has arrived at the lake. This disturbs Joan, as she doesn't know just what Michael may be planning, and she has received a letter from Dave, the blind man to whom she is formally engaged. She joins in the day's sports however, and today finds her and Michael in an interesting sailboat adventure with Dot Houston and her boy friend, Dick Martin.

The second in a series of three dramatic broadcasts by Irna Claire, brilliant American comedienne, will be the late James M. Barrie's "What Every Woman Knows." Osgood Perkins, who has co-starred with Miss Claire in recent Broadway successes, will again head the supporting cast. The famous Barrie play tells of the development of a humorless young Scotchman, whose great political success is due entirely to his wife. The radio version was adapted by, and will be directed by, James Church, of the NBC production staff.

A word picture of the colorful scenes at England's famed Brighton on Bank Holiday will be given by Edward Murov, of Columbia's Department of Public Events' London Bureau. Brighton, about three hours drive from London, has been described as an English "Coney Island-Atlantic City." Bank Holiday derives its name from a custom established by English banks of closing down on a Monday in August to give employees a week-end vacation opportunity. Inasmuch as the closing of the banks affects all business, the custom has spread to include every branch of industry. Thousands flock to resorts for the week-end, with Brighton far the most popular.

To start on the four-week series of Eugene O'Neill plays never before heard on the air, Helen Hayes will be starred in his "Beyond the Horizon." This play was the first of O'Neill's works to be awarded the Pulitzer Prize. In presenting this comprehensive series, which will embrace both the formative and mature periods of the playwright's development, NBC is giving the radio audience a first opportunity to hear a group of plays by America's foremost dramatist, and is also providing an opportunity to contrast modernity with Elizabethan genius by following the recently presented Shakespearean dramas with this O'Neill cycle.

Because it felt that it would be more timely, the Museum of Natural History has temporarily replaced its "Adventures in Exploration," children's series, with "Drama of the Skies," a series discussing planets and stars. The current broadcast of the series will be "Broadcast from Mercury and Venus." Miss Dorothy Bennett, brilliant astronomer and assistant curator at the Hayden Planetarium, who has just returned from observation of the eclipse of the sun at Tern, will conduct the series.

UNCLE EZRA

BROADCASTING

from Station E-Z-R-A

EVERY MON.-WED.-FRI.

NBC — Coast-to-Coast

You'll enjoy the philosophy and quaint humor of this old man with young ideas. One of the best loved characters in radio, in a program that's DIFFERENT. Never a dull minute. The Hoosier Hot Shots supply the music. 'Nuff said.

of JACK HALEY in the current flicker titled "Wake Up and Live" is that of BUDDY CLARK of radio and "Hit Parade" fame.—Mrs. B. F. S., San Diego, Cal.
"Fats" Waller is not broadcasting at present. He and his band are on an extensive vaudeville and dance tour. Phil Harris has been airing over the CBS web Sunday afternoons from Dallas, Texas.—Y. T., Havre, Mont.
Irna Phillips, author of "Today's Children," portrays the characters of Mother Moran and Kay Chase in that show.—H. M., Haddam, Conn.
The frequency numbers you should dial for the broadcast stations Radio Guide lists are shown in the daily "Frequency Listings." You'll find one on each alternate program page.—M. H., Chicago, Ill.
The National Broadcasting Company, New York City, may be able to give you information as to where and how you may be able to secure a photo of Edith Dick, songstress.—M. M., Opelousas, La.
For information as to the whereabouts of Pat Binford of the "Corn Cob Pipe Club," write direct to radio station WRVA, Richmond, Va.—M. E., Powell, Pa.
If you write to the Lux Radio Theater, care of the Columbia Broadcasting System, Hollywood, Calif., they will give you the names of the dramatic presentation for each Monday evening.—M. W., Wichita Falls, Texas.

Freddie Martin will resume rendering melodies at the Aragon Ballroom in Chicago beginning September 3.—(In answer to many queries.)
Members of the daytime sketch, "The O'Neills," are not related to each other.—P. R. R., Philadelphia, Pa.
EDDY DUCHIN and his orchestra supply sophisticated dance rhythms nightly over WGN (720 kilo.) and the Mutual network from Chicago's Palmer House. This engagement will terminate about August 8 with Eddy making a probable tour to the West Coast. The theme melody used by the band is Chopin's "Nocturne in E Flat." They also very often use the melody "Be My Lover."—C. W. O., Hamilton, Montana.

Barbara Stanwyck

soon to appear in Samuel Goldwyn's production of "STELLA DALLAS"

She spends $\frac{1}{3}$ of her life before the sound truck

BARBARA STANWYCK TELLS HOW SHE FOUND LUCKIES GENTLEST ON HER THROAT

"WHEN THE 'TALKIES' came to Hollywood," says Barbara Stanwyck, "my previous stage experience on Broadway gave me my chance in pictures.

"Taking care of my voice became serious business with me. I decided I had to treat my throat well, so I changed to Luckies, a light smoke. They made a big hit not only with my throat, but with my taste as well."

Consider what Miss Stanwyck says. Then ask yourself "Shouldn't Luckies be best for my throat, too?"

Your answer would be "Yes!" if you could see with your own eyes how the exclusive "Toasting" process takes out certain harsh throat irritants found in even the finest tobacco!

Enjoy the finer taste of Center-Leaf Tobaccos
—"The Cream of the Crop"

A light smoke—easy on your throat—"It's Toasted"
