Medal of Merit

A Weekly Award for Excellence in Broadcasting

AWARDED TO RADIO STATION WQXR

RADIO has the greatest power of any medium on earth to sway thought, to communicate ideas, to entertain. Yet like Harriet Beecher Stowe's "Topsy," radio "jes' grewed"—for, a few years ago, nobody knew who would listen to the gadget; many wondered whether anybody would, after the novelty wore off; none had a clear idea of what the public would accept and appreciate.

Experimentation has shown some paths not to be followed—as when Miss Mae West inflected a syllable or two too many; purposeful observation has shown which offerings have been well received—and others have been fashioned from the same pattern. Through it all, the scientist's system of trial-and-error has served radio, and well. Through it, broadcasting has developed both variety and quality.

The daring of the bolder broadcasters has brought many a triumph. Today a new one seems ready to thrust itself across our threshold. At New York's Station WQXR, an idea is awaning; soon it may mature into a radio revolution!

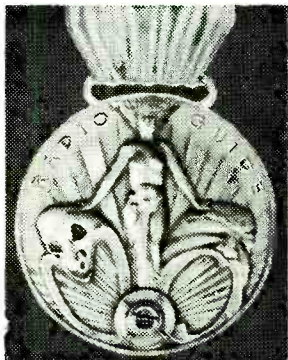

WQXR was licensed as a regular commercial radio station in 1936. About five years before, it had been licensed to conduct television experiments. Inventor John V. L. Hogan, who had been responsible for such developments as single-dial control and the improved heterodyne receiving system, used recordings to accompany his attempts to solve the mysteries of visual transmission. The records he played were those he enjoyed himself—arias from the operas; passages from the great symphonies. There was no ballyhoo on the programs—there was nothing but unadulterated entertainment.

Shortly, letters began to come to the little outpost on science's frontier—but not from television receivers. The letters came from people who said that the station's programs were messages from heaven; that they kept their dials tuned to WQXR's fine music as long as the station was operating. As they became even more expressive in their appreciations, Hogan obtained his commercial license—with a widespread audience already built! Stringent advertising requirements were laid down. The program content remained approximately what it had been before: eighty per cent are still recorded music; other programs include comments on books, the theater and cinema, music, the ballet and other cultural interests.

WQXR is the first "specialized" radio station—perhaps the forerunner of stations which will concentrate on drama; others which will broadcast the news so promptly that newspapers will disappear, and so on.

Because it has scrupulously avoided all the tricks which sometimes leave radio open to criticism, because it has found a new idea and developed it where everyone else has hesitated, and because it offers the possibility of a whole rearrangement of radio, this week Radio Guide's editors award to John V. L. Hogan and his station WQXR the Radio Guide Medal of Merit.

HAPPY LISTENING

"Con" Queen

TWENTY-EIGHT years ago, for its romance, youth didn't retreat to conveniently darkened rear rows of motion-picture palaces or go driving like mad about the highways in long, sleek roadsters. No, life and love then were a bit simpler, and indeed, much more beautiful and tender, if a member of this younger generation may dare to say so. Personally, we rather wish that as did Tell Taylor, we could stroll down along an old mill stream, look into eyes of blue, and call someone our "village queen." But not with the consequences that befell Tell Taylor. True, he did find in his experience the magic of an immortal song, but the old mill stream became muddy and poisonous, the eyes of blue took on a hard, steely glint, and the gingham of his "village queen" turned into the tawdry silks and satins of a penthouse cheat.—But let James Street tell you on page 2 about the strange career of Buda Godman, alias Helen Smith, "con" girl and ex-convict, in whose glory was written "Down by the Old Mill Stream."

Pen Partners

PARTNERS whose temperaments were opposite and who considered their work and each other beneath their talents, William S. Gilbert and Arthur S. Sullivan flashed across the nineteenth-century scene as twin masters of operetta. Today hardened theatrical producers still expect every season to be the one that will see the return of Gilbert and Sullivan. Herald of that glad day is the MBS operetta series, which this week presents "The Gondoliers." Little is known of the wrangling and temperamental outbursts that beset these two famous collaborators. You'll find an illuminating story about all of this on page 4.

The "Met" Set

WHEN Lauritz Melchior, Ezio Pinza, Lotte Lehmann and their playmates appear on the stage that marks the center of the world's opera, audiences gasp at the grandeur of their voices and costumes. Beginning on page 19 this week, Radio Guide essays a jaunt backstage at the "Met" to find that opera is little less a matter of perspiration versus inspiration than any other art. Perhaps it's disillusioning; certainly it's interesting. Come with us, won't you?

"Lux Radio Theater" plans to feature Actress Bette Davis—Monday

This Week!

PREVIEWS OF SOME OF THE BETTER
REGULAR AND SPECIAL BROADCASTS

Rustic comics "Lum (left) and Abner." They begin a new series—Mon.

SUNDAY, FEBRUARY 27

Rose Pauly . . . Hungarian soprano
Philharmonic-Symphony Society—CBS, 3 p.m. EST.

Mme. Pauly, who invaded America for the first time last year, was a highlight of the current Metropolitan Opera season. Hailed for her Strauss interpretations, she'll be heard in an all-Strauss program featuring the closing scene of "Salome."

Kirsten Flagstad . . . for Ford
"Sunday Evening Hour"—CBS, 9 p.m. EST.

When Flagstad made her "Met" debut two years ago she sent New York critics scurrying to their typewriters to hail the arrival of the greatest Wagnerian soprano of all time. Wife of a lumber-dealer, she's Norway's gift to music-lovers. Conducting Sunday will be Sir Ernest MacMillan.

MONDAY, FEBRUARY 28

Ted Malone . . . network change
"Between the Bookends"—MBS, 4:15 p.m. EST.

Malone, who has been associated with CBS for the past year as writer, producer and narrator of "Between the Bookends," has joined the Mutual continuity staff. Beginning this week, his show will be heard Monday through Friday over MBS.

Chester Lauck
Norris Goff . . . network-and-sponsor switch
"Lum and Abner"—CBS, 6:45 p.m. EST.
(For the West, 8:15 p.m. PST.)

Lum and Abner, those Arkansas rustics who have put rural philosophy in the higher-income brackets, begin a new series in the interests of Postum. Formerly on NBC three nights a week, they'll now be heard Monday, Wednesday and Friday over CBS.

Stars . . . on parade
Brewers' Association—CBS, 8 p.m. EST.

A brand-new show, starring Richard Himber and his orchestra, sultry Singer Connie Boswell, Comic Lou Holtz and Ace Announcer Ted Husing, makes its bow Coast to Coast. Well-known guest stars will also feature this half-hour of gala entertainment.

Bette Davis . . . Lux's star
"Radio Theater"—CBS, 9 p.m. EST.

Born in Lowell, Massachusetts, in 1908, Miss Davis grew up to amaze movie-goers with her "bad-girl" roles in such successes as "Of Human Bondage" and "Bordertown." Although Miss Davis' appearance is tentative, announcement has been made that Lux plans to star her in "Forsaking All Others." Also famous for her romantic portrayals, she'll soon be seen in Warner Bros.' sensational production "Jezebel."

Lauritz Melchior . . . superb
Philadelphia Orchestra—NBC-Blue, 9 p.m. EST.

Praised for his grand characterizations of the title roles of "Tannhaeuser" and "Siegfried," Melchior is hailed as the greatest Wagnerian tenor of the world. A Dane by birth, he made his "Met" debut the same day as did Kansas City's Marion Talley. He'll be heard singing Monday under the direction of Charles O'Connell.

South America . . . on display
"Brave New World"—CBS, 10:30 p.m. EST.

In its presentation of "Wings Over South America," Brave New World brings in dramatic form glimpses of Miami, some of the West Indies, the beautiful Latin-American cities, South America's great coffee plantations, its rivers, its mountains.

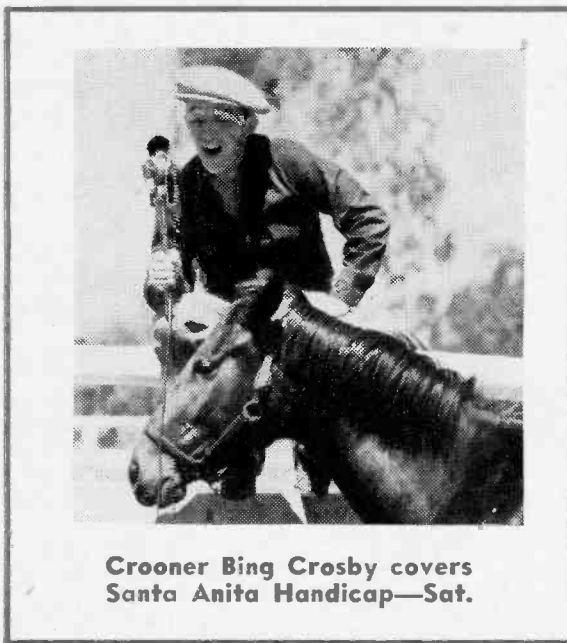

V. F. W. . . . "Hello America"
Veterans of Foreign Wars—NBC-Blue,
11:30 p.m. EST.

A four-point pick-up, from Washington, Hollywood, Chicago and New York features this program. Speaking from Washington will be Senator Wm. G. McAdoo, and Scott P. Squyres, Commander-in-Chief of the V. F. W. In addition to music by various "name" orchestras, listeners will hear the United States Navy Band.

TUESDAY, MARCH 1

Student editors . . . In round-table meet
"American School of the Air"—CBS, 2:30 p.m. EST.

Each year student editors of school newspapers throughout the country gather in New York for a meeting at Columbia University of the Columbia Scholastic Press Association. Tuners-in will hear these editors discussing, "What Actually Constitutes a Good School Paper?"

Crooner Bing Crosby covers Santa Anita Handicap—Sat.

WEDNESDAY, MARCH 2

Anne Sullivan Macy . . . her story
"Cavalcade of America"—CBS, 8 p.m. EST.
(For the West, 9 p.m. PST.)

The life of Mrs. Macy, partly blind teacher-companion of Helen Keller, will be the subject of Cavalcade's dramatization. Through her work with Miss Keller, Mrs. Macy actually revolutionized teaching of the blind and deaf. She died in 1936.

Methodism . . . 200 years old
National Family Dinner—MBS, 9 p.m. EST.

In celebration of the 200th anniversary of the Methodist Church, Jeanette MacDonald, glamorous Hollywood singing star, will be heard. Speakers will be Congressman Bruce Barton, Dr. Edwin Hughes, senior bishop of the Methodist Church, and Dr. Arthur Compton, Nobel Prize winner.

SATURDAY, MARCH 5

Women . . . at work
National Federation of Business and Professional Women—CBS, 1 p.m. EST.

There will be a discussion of a study just made by the organization on "Why Women Work." Speaker will be Miss Earlene White, national president of the Federation; Miss Emma Hirth, secretary of the national board of the YWCA, and Maxwell S. Stewart, editor of the Public Affairs Committee.

Funfest . . . from London
"The Palace of Varieties"—MBS, 3 p.m. EST.

Another presentation of this popular British broadcast will be heard direct from London. In addition to a galaxy of London Music Hall stars, the program will feature George Robey and the BBC Variety Orchestra directed by Ernest Longstaffe.

Brian Field . . . from Hialeah Park
Widener Cup Race—CBS, 4:15 p.m. EST.

The $50,000-added Widener Cup promises to be one of the season's important races, because War Admiral, winner of the Kentucky Derby, the Preakness, and the Belmont last year will be running.

Bing Crosby
Joe Hernandez . . . $100,000-added
Santa Anita Handicap—NBC-CBS-MBS,
7 p.m. EST.

Hernandez, "voice of Santa Anita," and Crosby, stable-owner-sportsman, are two of the West's most noted turfmen. In addition to interviewing notables, Crosby will join Columbia's Hernandez in a pre-race description of horses entered in the year's richest turf event. Covering the event for NBC will be Ace Announcer Clem McCarthy, assisted by Sports Commentator Buddy Twiss.

Richard Bonelli . . . American baritone
Indianapolis Symphony Orchestra—MBS,
9:30 p.m. EST.

A native of Port Byron, New York, Mr. Bonelli's Metropolitan Opera debut came in 1932, when he sang the elder Germont in Verdi's "La Traviata." Saturday he'll be heard singing Massenet's the "Vision Fugitive" aria from Herodiade.

Arturo Toscanini . . . held over
NBC Symphony Orchestra—NBC-Red and Blue,
10 p.m. EST.

Aware of the great popularity of the eminent Italian conductor's series, NBC officials have prevailed upon Toscanini to lead the orchestra in one more broadcast. This final program will consist entirely of the works of Richard Wagner.

STORIES OF THE SONGS YOU LOVE

"DOWN BY THE OLD MILL STREAM"

MORE than one hundred million persons have sung to the glory of the eyes of blue of Buda Godman, the village queen who became the empress of the charlatans, the little girl who traded her gingham dress for prison garb, who broke a man's heart but who gave the world a tender melody, and tender memories, although she had none for herself.

So this is the saga of a moody, melancholy man who loved not wisely but who put his sentiments to music down by the old mill stream, and of the woman who inspired him, then cast him aside.

He died in his sleep, and the nation passed to honor him.

She reports each week to a parole board, for the prison gates still are ajar, waiting for her should she step back to the primrose path she trod so gaily.

She holds her coat collar over her face as she walks down the street, so none will know that she is Buda Godman, the village queen. Her hair is white. There are many lines around her mouth, and there are crows' feet around her eyes, but her eyes still are blue.

And as she shuffles along, afraid and unknown and lonely, she often hears the multitude singing of her—"with your eyes of blue, dressed in gingham, too."

I wonder what Buda Godman thinks about when she hears "Down by the Old Mill Stream?" Buda Godman, the cheat, the "con" girl who took her fun where she found it.

Somehow, it doesn't seem to matter any more that she was a fraud—the song wasn't. It doesn't seem to matter any more that her life was wasted, for to millions and millions she always will be the little girl in gingham who walked along a stream, holding hands with Tell Taylor and inspiring him to write that gentle tune!

SHE is forty-seven now, but she always will be sixteen to all who have sung her praises in bars and barber shops, or even in the moonlight. She has been the foundation of friendships of congenial comrades who have toasted her beauty in beer, and then cried in it.

Next to Sweet Adeline, her eyes of blue have caused more headaches than anything except income taxes. Some day, somebody is going to build a bar in tribute to Sweet Adeline and the Village Queen. That's the only monument they'll ever have, but they deserve one, for they have worked for the house for many years and got nothing out of it except a few press notices and a hang-over.

Lovers owe a debt to Buda Godman too. Who hasn't walked along some stream and sung and hummed the melody about her blue eyes to a sweetheart, a village queen? The chances are odds-on, however, that the village queen never wears gingham and doesn't like to walk along streams, because her high-heeled shoes might get muddy, or the weeping willows and luscious grass might prick her stockings and cause a run.

But Buda Godman bothered not

THE BEAUTY OF THE BLANCHARD RIVER AND OF A GIRL'S BLUE EYES WAS LOST AFTER IT INSPIRED A SONG OF LOVE

BY JAMES STREET

about her shoes when she strolled along the Blanchard River in Ohio with Tell Taylor, and he sang to her and asked her to be his wife. That was thirty-one years ago, and Buda wore cotton stockings, and then she changed to silk, and to keep in silk she stole, and then she changed again to cotton stockings. Tell Taylor changed and the Blanchard River changed, and the willows were cut away and the grass died, and factories spewed their filth into the old mill stream.

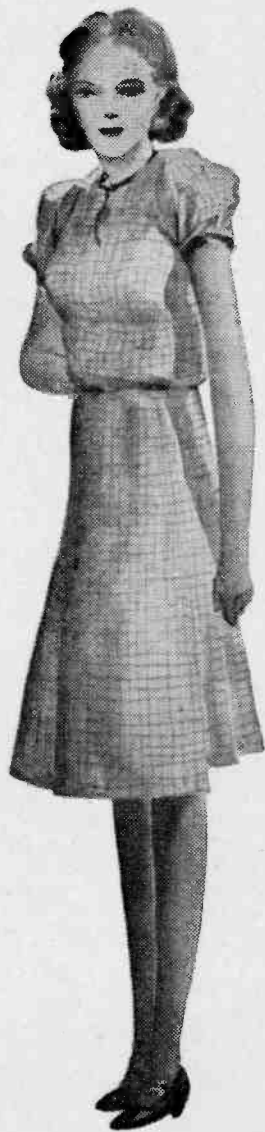

Only the song did not change.

The Blanchard River is a tiny thing, so small it has been snubbed by gazetteers. It is born west of Ottawa, Ohio, and meanders about fifteen miles west of the town. For a hundred miles it roams. It's only a fork of the Auglaize River, an insignificant thing, watering the land and doing its chores.

Thirty-five years ago it was a beautiful little river, gay and clear, and trees trooped along its banks and fish played in its deep pools, and children swam in it and lovers strolled along its banks.

The Misomore water-mill was near a bend in the stream, and every day the river turned the wheel and the wheel ground corn for the farmers—every day except Sunday, and then the day of rest was upon the land.

Tell Taylor lived on a farm near the river. Everybody knew Tell. He was born on October 14, 1876, at Vanlue, in Ohio's Hancock County. He went to town when he was a boy, to Findlay, and sold shoes. Then he taught school in the country, but he was not happy. There was music in his heart so he moved to the Blanchard River and tried to write music. The inspiration was not there. He sat for hours by the old water-mill and tried to create. Then he met Buda Godman. She was sixteen, and he met her at the water-wheel.

Buda Godman was never a small-town girl. She looked demure and gentle. It was easy to fool a poet like Tell Taylor. But she came from a reckless clan, race-horse bookies, gamblers.

Back in Chicago, where she was born, her father was a race-track figure, and Buda knew all the answers before she was fifteen. She simply didn't fit into the Blanchard River scene. But Tell didn't know—all he saw were her eyes of blue and his village queen in gingham.

Buda Godman in gingham! Madame Pompadour in rags! Cleopatra in muslin! It just doesn't add up!

Taylor told her he loved her, and she murmured consent to a marriage. Maybe she wasn't to blame. After all, sixteen is a silly age. But they were married, and the villagers shook their heads. In 1907, Taylor took his bride to Chicago, where he tried to eke out a living writing songs. Buda wasn't used to work, not as long as the ponies ran.

Taylor loved her hopelessly, desperately, and in 1910 he went back to the Blanchard River, seeking peace. She went there too, and one day they walked along the stream.

"With your eyes of blue—you were dressed in gingham, too," he laughed as he reminded her of their first meeting. Then he paused—"That's it! That's it. I've got it—my song!"

And "Down by the Old Mill Stream" was the result.

Buda divorced him the same year, and crossed the river. Taylor never recovered from the blow.

"It was there I knew, that you loved me too"—what mockery. So he, too, crossed the river and went to Chicago to write songs.

His one hit swept the nation. It was a real love-song back in pre-war days. Everybody sang it. Then came prohibition. Sweet Adeline was rolling across the country from Massachusetts, gathering disciples as she rolled from speakeasies to the gutter. Adeline was the belle of the bars, but the Old Mill Stream was a runner-up. It was natural for the boys to get full of raw liquor, and sing Adeline and then wander off to the Old Mill Stream. It was a shame that Adeline and Buda Godman never met—they had a lot in common.

THERE is a certain swing to the Old Mill Stream that simply fits in with beer and cheese and good fellowship. Often, however, in the speakeasy days of the gilt and goofy era, the boys tried to make the old stream roll to the clang of highball glasses. Then the stream flooded over until the population prayed fervently that Adeline would fall in the mill-stream and get it over with.

But nothing could kill Adeline. There was a gal who could take it. And nothing could stop the old stream. It just kept rolling along until more than four million copies of the song were sold and Tell Taylor got prosperous.

He married again, and was divorced again. His friends said he never forgot Buda, but he didn't know where she was. He bought a big farm near Findlay, and raised horses. He had learned about horses from Buda. He had a golf course on his farm.

Prohibition came and went, and the Old Mill Stream kept right on rolling. But the Blanchard River had changed. Factories went there, and the old water-mill was torn down.

The village queens went to work in the factories, in the hamburger joints and hot-dog stands. Smoke from a hundred stacks wrote a new alphabet in the sky, and the Blanchard River turned green, then yellow with the poison and refuse from the mills. The fish died, and the swimming-holes became useless. A sewage plant was built not far from where the old water-mill had stood.

TAYLOR protested, and health authorities went to the river to see if it could be returned to its healthful beauty. But when they saw it, they shook their heads. It was beyond redemption, as Buda Godman was beyond redemption.

Taylor was heavy-hearted. The only gay time of his years was his annual visit to his pal, Roger Lewis, a Chicago druggist who tried to write songs. Lewis had written "Oceana Roll," and he and Taylor visited together and talked of happier days.

Taylor was writing another song, "On the Banks of the Old Mill Stream," and he and Lewis planned great things. Tell was well off, for as late as 1935 his Old Mill Stream was played 5,532 times on the two major networks. But he wasn't happy. He kept wondering where Buda Godman was—his village queen.

He would talk much of her, and then he would doze in his chair. Last October 23, he rocked in his chair and talked to Lewis about their plans to write a new hit, and about Buda. He had been visiting his crony for several days. Then he dozed off to sleep. Lewis tiptoed away, fearful of waking his friend. And when he tried to awaken him, Tell Taylor was dead. His heart had stopped while he slept.

They took him back to the Old Mill Stream and buried him, where the soot from the factories could fall on his grave.

BUDA GODMAN read of his death in the newspapers, and there were tears in her eyes of blue. The picture of her life must have spread before her eyes, an ugly picture, as ugly as the factories and grime and soot that had changed the Old Mill Stream from blue to green to yellow.

After she divorced Tell Taylor, she returned to Chicago to the race-tracks, and there she met Dapper Dan Collins. Chicago was bustling in those days, jammed with big men and big money. Buda was such a sweet-looking girl, big blue eyes and a soft voice.

She was the kind of girl men would confide in, pour out their woes to, so she became the queen of the badger game, that venerable racket in which a girl lured a man to her apartment, then screamed. And a fake husband would run in, and the victim would pay off. The victims seldom appealed to the police. They were ashamed.

She became soiled, as the river was soiled by soot. The refuse of the world passed by her, as the refuse passed down the old mill stream.

In 1916, she was indicted for "shaking down" Edward R. West, a Chicago coffee importer. Several of her male pals went to prison, but Buda disappeared. Obviously, powerful influences were on her side. She knew a lot about many men, and they didn't want her to talk.

For fifteen years she was "lost" to the world.

HELEN SMITH had eyes of blue and a soft voice when she came to New York. She knew the ropes, and her trim figure was prominent in the night clubs and speakeasies. She always smiled when the boys put their heads together over a schooner of suds, or a hooker of "red eye" and sang "Down by the Old Mill Stream."

She was seen often with a prominent millionaire. She lived in a swanky apartment that cost $175 a week—the village queen in silks and satins.

She traveled everywhere. She stopped walking down the primrose path and began running.

The dream ended in 1932.

Jewels valued at $305,000 had been stolen from Harvey C. Glemby. The giddy era was dead, and America had sobered up. The underworld was no longer glamorous, but police showed it for what it is—a sordid world of cowards.

Helen Smith was indicted for a part in the robbery. Her millionaire stepped forward and said he would assure her future if she were given her freedom. The police shook their heads. The courts said no. More powerful influences were brought to bear in Helen's behalf, but the courts held fast.

Helen confessed. She said a pal, Sam Entratta, had given her the jewels to sell. She tried to sell them to her "benefactor"—to the man who had been kind to her.

And she asked of him $10,000 more than the thieves had told her to ask! The village queen wanted more than her share!

When Entratta was convicted and released on bail pending an appeal, he killed himself in her apartment.

HELEN SMITH told almost everything. But she fibbed about her age, and never told that she was Buda Godman—the girl in gingham with the eyes of blue.

The court was not lenient, and ordered her to Auburn prison in New York for from four to eight years. She took off her silks and satins and went back to gingham.

In Auburn she was a good prisoner. Her comrades called her Helen. And they told her how pretty her eyes were. And during recreation hours when the radio played "Down by the Old Mill Stream" Helen would smile wistfully and look beyond the prison at the river that flows by there.

The parole board freed her in 1935, but she must report once a week. It was a few days after Tell Taylor's death that she walked to her parole officer. No one noticed her. No one cared. She was just a white-haired woman, with blue eyes and lips that quivered.

And when she was released again after a good report, an officer told a newspaper man:

"Know who she is?"

"Nope," said the newsman, "but she's got pretty eyes."

"That's Buda Godman."

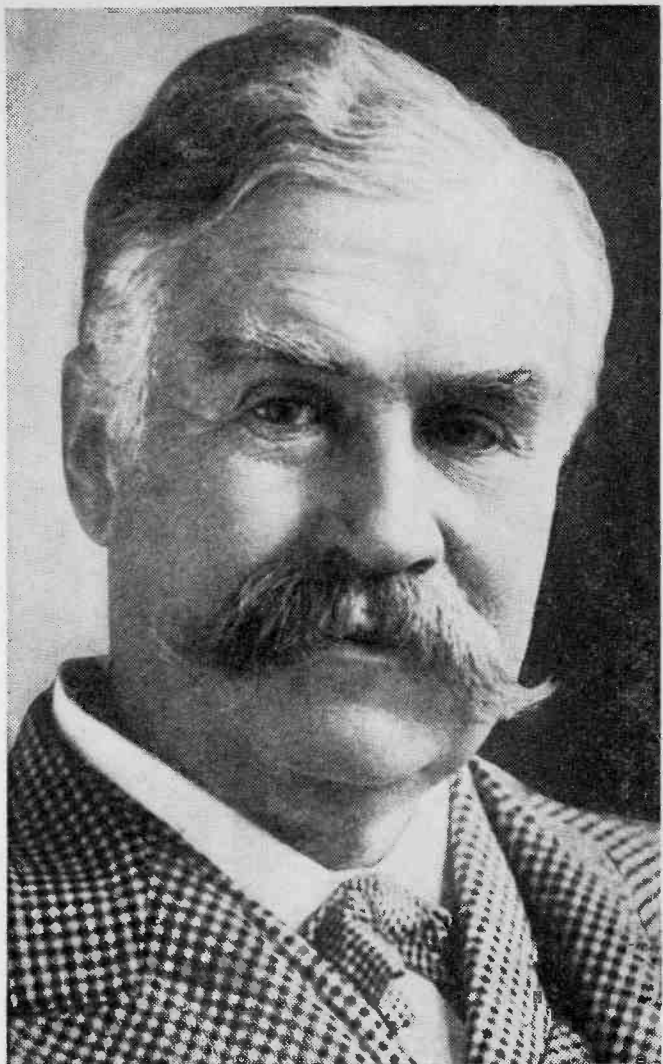

The parole board refused to tell more, or even where she is.

"Regulations of the board," said a parole officer, "do not permit us to reveal her whereabouts. Under our policy of protecting the past lives of paroled prisoners, we cannot consistently approve of any personal publicity in connection with Miss Godman."

But she's somewhere in New York, for she must not go away. If she should try to run away, she could be found easily.

Anyone would know Buda Godman anywhere—well, because her eyes are so blue.

Sir William S. Gilbert (left), playwright, humorist, and Sir Arthur S. Sullivan (right), musical composer, were partners for over twenty years. Together they gave the world wholesome pleasure, bubbling melody

WORDS and MUSIC

MASTERS OF LIGHT OPERA, GILBERT AND SULLIVAN WROTE
"THE GONDOLIERS" IN 1889. FRIDAY MBS WILL AIR IT

IT IS remarkable that Fate should have brought together two men whose talents were as well matched as were those of Gilbert and Sullivan. But it is even more remarkable that men whose personalities were so different should have been able to survive clashes and quarrels and work together for a quarter of a century.

Gilbert was irritable and short-tempered. During his career as a dramatist, he fought frequently with the actors, producers and critics of his plays. He is said to have walked into a drawing-room once and exclaimed in mock amazement: "Hm! A dozen men here, and I'm on good terms with all of them!"

Sullivan was good-natured and amiable. He had little difficulty in finding and keeping friends, and he was beloved for his social graces almost as much as for his music. He was the most popular composer in Victorian England, honored and admired both by royalty and commoners.

Gilbert was the dominant figure in the duo. Sullivan followed his lead. It was he who set Gilbert's words to music. But there were times when it was plain that Gilbert's arrogance annoyed Sullivan.

Neither Gilbert nor Sullivan was satisfied with his lot. Gilbert, probably until his dying day, entertained a haunting ambition to be remembered as a serious dramatist, but although he wrote some seventy plays in his time, they have been long forgotten. Sullivan, likewise, felt that he was wasting his talent on light music, and often tried to break away.

Gilbert is remembered mainly for his comic operas and for "Bab Ballads," the verses he wrote and illustrated as a contributor to the magazine "Fun." Sullivan, however, wrote serious music which outlasted his lifetime.

SULLIVAN'S "In Memoriam," motivated by his father's death, and "The Lost Chord," written shortly after the death of his beloved older brother, Frederic, are still played. His incidental music for Shakespeare's "The Tempest" is enduring, and his hymn-tune, "Onward Christian Soldiers," is familiar everywhere.

William Schwenck Gilbert, who wrote the words of the Gilbert and Sullivan operas, was born in London on Nov. 18, 1836, the son of a retired naval surgeon who put in his spare time writing voluminous novels and pamphlets.

Arthur Seymour Sullivan, born May 13, 1842, was the son of a poverty-stricken Irish musician, Thomas Sullivan, who taught and copied music for a living. Arthur's mother was Maria Clementine Coghlan Sullivan, a penniless girl of Italian descent.

SULLIVAN said later that after he had reached the age of five he cared for nothing but music. Even as a small boy he could play every instrument in his father's band.

The man who brought Gilbert and Sullivan together was Fred Clay, a facile composer of popular music, who had followed Sullivan as a student at Leipzig, and who had written the music for several of Gilbert's early operettas.

The first Gilbert and Sullivan collaboration was "Thespis," an extravaganza, produced on Dec. 23, 1871, and not notably successful. It closed after a month's run, and the pair separated —Gilbert to go back to the drama and Sullivan to the composition of sacred music.

Richard D'Oyly Carte appeared on the scene in 1875. Carte was convinced that there was money to be made out of a marriage of talent between Gilbert and Sullivan, and he was a shrewd producer. For many years he had run a theatrical booking agency in London, the best of its kind.

Gilbert had already suggested another operetta to Sullivan, and under D'Oyly Carte's prodding they turned out "Trial by Jury," the music for which Sullivan composed in a period of two weeks. It was produced at the Royalty Theater on March 25, 1876.

"Trial by Jury" was an instant success, and Carte quickly formed the Comedy Opera Company, financed by himself and four others, two of whom were music publishers, and moved into the Opera Comique Theater.

THEN came "The Sorcerer" in 1877, and in 1878 "H. M. S. Pinafore," which ran 700 nights in London, and was so popular in America that toward the end of the year it was being produced, in pirated versions, in eight theaters in New York.

Gilbert, Sullivan and Carte hurried to the United States in 1879 with a Pinafore Company of their own, and in 1879 brought out "The Pirates of Penzance" in New York.

"Patience" came out in 1881 at the Opera Comique, and was later shifted to the Savoy, where all the rest of the operas were produced. "Iolanthe" appeared there in 1882; "Princess Ida," in 1884; "The Mikado," in 1885; "Ruddigore," in 1887; "The Yeomen of the Guard," in 1888; "The Gondoliers," in 1889; "Utopia, Limited," in 1893; and "The Grand Duke," in 1896.

Even after the success of "Trial by Jury," Gilbert and Sullivan were lukewarm toward further collaboration.

In America, where the partners had found such popularity, Sullivan had suffered from Gilbert's quips and gibes at social functions. Some authorities say Gilbert was jealous of Sullivan's music. He himself knew nothing about music, and was frank to admit it, but he was irritated that Sullivan should be able to create such melodies.

IN 1883, Sullivan was knighted, but Gilbert, whose biting satire had wounded official feelings in high places, was overlooked. This, too, may have had something to do with the Gilbert and Sullivan difficulties. Gilbert wasn't honored with knighthood until 1907—seven years after the death of his collaborator.

Frequent wrangles between the partners reached a climax in 1890, when Gilbert quarreled with D'Oyly Carte because Carte, he said, had exceeded his authority in purchasing some 500 pounds worth of carpeting for the Savoy Theater. Carte forthwith dragged Sullivan into the fray by writing to Gilbert that he (Carte) and Sullivan were tired of Gilbert's interference in matters that did not concern him, and that if it were kept up they would get a new librettist.

There was a terrific uproar in Carte's office when Gilbert called to tell Carte and Sullivan what he thought of them and stomped out furiously to begin a law suit, filed while "The Gondoliers" was at the height of its popularity. Gilbert tried to throw the Savoy into receivership, but did not succeed, although he did win an accounting and "THE Triumph of Sensibility" is a peculiar title, and peculiar too is Krenek's opus, except for those who are conversant with the radical school of musical expression. The Czechoslovakian composer leading the orchestra should realize his intent after it has been explained by the official commentator.

Krenek's "Johnny Spielt Auf," supposed to be based on American jazz, had phenomenal success in Central Europe but failed at the Metropolitan in New York, where, it seems, the natives prefer jazz written by Americans. Arensky's arrangement of themes by Riabinine is glamorously contrived.

THE greatest living German composer, Richard Strauss, is enjoying a season of wide vogue on our shores. Aside from frequent symphonic production, three of his operas find haven at the Metropolitan at present.

"Don Juan" and "Till Eulenspiegel" are extreme contrasts, the one passionately romantic, the other sparklingly humorous. The former was Strauss' first published tone-poem. His Don is one who restlessly seeks in one woman all the enticements of femininity. His amorous quest fails after trials glowingly voiced in the orchestra, and a final trumpet passage proclaims his summons to death.

"Buerger als Edelmann" (Commoner as Nobleman) is a little separate com-

NEXT December Kirsten Flagstad will observe the twenty-fifth anniversary in her singing career. The quarter-century moved rather uneventfully for the Norwegian vocalist after her debut in her native city of Oslo, until a few years ago when a Metropolitan Opera talent-scout "discovered" the world's leading Wagnerian soprano and captured her for that institution. What followed is musical history and needs no new telling. Whether or not the Metropolitan will observe the Flagstad anniversary with any special honors is undecided at this moment, but the New York Times guesses humorously that "she probably will celebrate quite unostentatiously with performances of 'Tristan,' 'Walkuere,' and 'Siegfried' in one week—or something equally simple!"

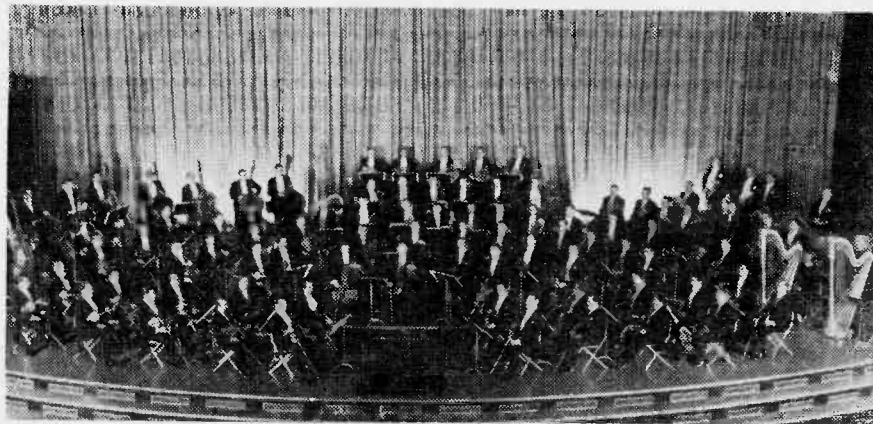

No matter how much fun the scoffers poke at the ample figures of the singers who appear as Isolde and Bruennhilde, the fact remains that those roles call visually for heroic build and vocally for tremendous physical endurance. Listen to "Tristan and Isolde" or "Goetterdaemmerung" and marvel how the heroine is able to supply such volume of tone for hours, in companionship with a large orchestra mostly emphasizing sonority and stress. Such artists, known as dramatic sopranos, are exactly the opposite type of their lyric sisters, the Manons and the Mimis; and even further removed from the coloratura speedsters who negotiate agile trills and runs as the Lucias, Gildas and Violettas.

Some sopranos have set a deadline against Wagner throughout their careers and could not be induced to include even his lighter roles in their regular repertoire. Marcella Sembrich made an exception in the case of Eva (youthful heroine of "Meistersinger") and often assumed the part, prettily, to be sure, but not in the traditional style of German romanticism. Nellie Melba once told me that "Wagner ruins the voice," and explained that she suffered throat-strain and thought her best tones gone forever after making a single essay in Wagner, when she tried Bruennhilde in "Siegfried." It was at the Metropolitan in 1896, and the glorious Australian soprano failed dismally. The canary attempting to be an eagle!

However, at least two coloraturas triumphantly bridged the gap between florid flights and the weighty utterances of Wagner. They were the great German, Lilli Lehmann, and our own Lilian Nordica. Both started as purely decorative warblers and ended as famous Isoldes and Bruennhildes.

Apropos Mme. Melba's belief that Wagner is a voice-destroyer is easily refuted by the fact that many of his singing interpreters have continued in opera successfully after passing their fiftieth year.

One of the most inspiring Tristans I ever heard was Heinrich Knote, when he did the role with the Wagnerian Opera Company at the Manhattan Opera House (New York) in 1923—the year that brought his fifty-third birthday.

Next Saturday the 92-piece NBC Symphony Orchestra will bid farewell to its guest conductor, Arturo Toscanini, who will sail for Europe March 9 edy inserted by Strauss in his opera "Ariadne auf Naxos." He jibes orchestrally at the bourgeois host and even parodies the dinner he serves at a sumptuous banquet.

The "Salome" excerpt deals with the gruesome moments when the sadistic princess caresses the dead Jokanaan's head, but Strauss finds radiant music with which to soften the appalling incident.

His ultimate fame, as some competent judges prophesy, will rest upon his songs, two of which Mme. Pauly has programmed. They are not as generally known as Strauss' "Caecilie," "Tomorrow," "Dedication," and "Serenade," but nevertheless they have the same merits of tuneful themes and meaningful treatment, with especially opulent accompaniments.

AN ENGLISHMAN is our distinguished conductor at this concert. He has gained particular fame as leader of the Toronto Orchestra. He exhibits no chauvinism, for only one short English composition by Landon Ronald come to hearing this evening.

Rimsky-Korsakoff's example is an introduction to his early opera, "A May Night," and offers exotic airs garbed with instrumental brilliancy.

The glories of the Flagstad voice and interpretative powers are not called upon for the stress of her usual Wagnerian performances. But she is no less appealing in the gentler offerings.

There is nothing more moving in concert coalism than Mme. Flagstad's interpretations of her compatriot, Edward Grieg, whose strongly national flavoring must of necessity come close to her heart. Her singing of the ever popular "I Love You" gives that composition a character not heard as a rule from other artists. They usually make it a passionate declaration; Mme. Flagstad transforms it into a tremulous, tender avowal. The number she presents for Ford listeners, "Thanks for Thy Counsel," is not nearly so well known as "I Love You," but possesses all of Grieg's flowing lyric quality and deep expressiveness.

CONDUCTOR O'CONNELL'S selections show the result of that young American's wide experience as a pianist, organist, chief of Victor recording and associate leader of the memorable Philadelphia Orchestra tour last year.

In the attached roster there is infinite variety, the latitude extending from the medieval English Purcell to the McDonald of our land, voicing the rhumba rhythm of the moment.

Other nationalities represented are Russian, French, Spanish and German. At both ends of the program (the opening consisting of five dance numbers) charming light matter surrounds the epic and sonorous utterances of Wagner, one of whose most melodious outpourings is sounded when the compelling Melchior does the fervid "Prize Song" from "Meistersinger."

CHARLES GRIFFES' untimely passing robbed America of one of its leading white hopes in symphonic music. As a susceptible youthful student in Paris, he naturally acquired modern Gallic touches, but it is reasonable to assume that had he been spared to develop in America, he might have found a style and idiom expressive of our people and life.

His symphonic poem, concerning the sybaritic Khan, is worthy of a Debussy or Ravel and in places matches their facility in orchestration and command of subtle instrumental colorings. The mystery and voluptuousness of the Orient combine tellingly in the suggestive "Khan" score.

It follows a composition worlds removed from such suffused and luxurious writing, and to hear it after Haydn is to realize how much further music goes today in descriptiveness than the direct melodizing and arbitrary counterpoint of the classical period.

Massenet is represented by an ingratiating vocal episode sung by Herod and envisioning the seductive beauty of Salome whom he madly desires.

Bidu Sayao is heard as Gilda, while Jan Kiepura portrays the incorrigible Duke in the Metropolitan's presentation of "Rigoletto" Saturday afternoon

The foregoing paragraphs are in consonance with the welcome announcement made by NBC that Toscanini, following the last of his ten scheduled radio concerts on February 26, has been prevailed upon to add another broadcast on March 5, and with a program entirely devoted to compositions by Wagner. It is familiar knowledge that those works could not well be revealed with more understanding and eloquence than when they come to life under the leadership of the insuperable Italian. Toscanini's sailing for Europe on March 9 ends his wonderful Saturday evening communications for American music-lovers, but they should feel expectant over the rumor (unconfirmed at this writing) that he will return next season for twenty broadcasts.

One of the current thrills at the Metropolitan is Richard Strauss' "Salome" with Marjorie Lawrence in the role of the seductive and sinister Judean princess. However, this Sunday will witness Rose Pauly's assumption of the part, but not at the Metropolitan or even in costume, for her appearance takes place at the New York Philharmonic concert. Nevertheless, the event should be stirring, for Mme. Pauly has a way of being so realistic in her vocalism that she almost makes a television set of your radio. Sunday she is to do the closing scene of "Salome." It promises tremendous outpouring of tone and emotion when she apostrophizes the severed head of the Prophet.

Perhaps the most effective explanation of the difference between music of the lower and higher grades is that of Ruskin, art critic who wrote: "The best music, like the best painting, is entirely popular; it at once commends itself to everyone and does so through all ages. The worst music, like the worst painting, commends itself in like manner, to ninety-nine people out of a hundred, but after doing them its appointed mischief, is forgotten and new modes of mischief composed."

In her new book, "From Jehovah to Jazz," Helen L. Kaufmann points out that our real musical start in this country was based "on the fear of God." She might have added that now it rests partly "on the love of George Gershwin."

The Metropolitan Opera Company

Presents

"RIGOLETTO"

by Giuseppe Verdi

The Cast:

- Duke of Mantua Jan Kiepura
- Gilda Bidu Sayao
- Rigoletto Carlo Tagliabue
- Sparafucile Ezio Pinza
- Maddalena Irra Petina
- Giovanna Thelma Votipka
- Monterone Norman Cordon

Conductor, Ettore Panizza

VERDI'S "Rigoletto," second in worth and popularity to his "Aida," has of later years been the vehicle for epochal solo debuts in America. The forever-luminous Caruso sang his first tones for us as the Duke, at the Metropolitan Opera in 1903.

"Rigoletto," based on Victor Hugo's drama "The King Amuses Himself," has a tremendously active and compelling libretto.

ACT I

The Ducal Palace in Mantua, Italy, during the sixteenth century. The Duke, an incorrigible rake, ruling a debauched court, tells a confidant about his pursuit of a young girl.

A song, "Questa o Quella" (This One or That One), voices the Duke's admiration of Count Ceprano's wife, with whom he dances so fervently that her husband's jealousy is aroused.

Rigoletto, malevolent hunch-backed jester, arranger for many of the Duke's amours, taunts Ceprano. Rigoletto has been discovered indulging in a regular nightly rendezvous with an unknown charmer.

ACT II

The end of a deserted street. Rigoletto's dwelling. Gilda, the jester's daughter, greets her father. Of course, she is the "mysterious" one of the Duke, and the "charmer" of Rigoletto. The Duke, lurking outside in the courtyard, learns of the relationship. Rigoletto leaves and the maid and her ducal admirer (whom she knows only as "Walter") sing their love duet.

Alone she delivers her aria, "Caro Nome" (Dearest Name). Masked courtiers, led by Ceprano, appear for revenge, and tell the returning suspicious Rigoletto that they wish to abduct Ceprano's wife (who lives across the street) for the Duke. The jester joins the plot, is masked and blindfolded, and unknowingly holds the ladder against his own wall.

ACT III

Salon in the Duke's palace. Gilda has been brought to the next room, where the Duke joins her. Rigoletto seeks his daughter, trying to hide his grief under assumed jauntiness. Gilda enters and the pair utter their devotion and distress, Rigoletto ending with his resolve for revenge upon the Duke.

ACT IV

The inn kept by Sparafucile and his sister Maddalena. Rigoletto and Gilda are outside, the latter disguised as a young cavalier, to aid her intended flight from Mantua, which her father decrees after he is convinced she still loves the Duke. That noble intriguer, in soldier attire, comes for a drink and sings his great cynical air "La Donna e Mobile" (Woman is Fickle). Maddalena flirts with the willing Duke, Gilda overhearing his ardent declarations.

Sending off Gilda, Rigoletto hires Sparafucile to murder the Duke and deliver his body in a sack. Maddalena, now another victim to the Duke's wiles, makes her brother promise to slay any other guest who might come, and deliver his body instead of the Duke's.

There is a storm. Gilda, drawn irresistibly, returns, knocks, and is stabbed. Rigoletto receives his gruesome booty, but as he drags the sack away he hears the Duke singing "La Donna." The horrified father opens the bundle, finds his daughter's body.

John Barbirolli conducts the eighth season of symphony concerts on CBS every Sunday at 3 p.m. EST

"Great Plays" Moves To Cathedral Studio

Saturdays, NBC-Red, 5-6 p.m.

"Everyman," the second presentation in the National Broadcasting Company's current series designed to trace the development of drama through the ages will be broadcast from the magnificent nave of New York's famous Cathedral of St. John the Divine at 5 p.m. Saturday afternoon.

Cast and equipment forsake the work-a-day confines of the Radio City studios in the interest of absolute authenticity in setting and color for this program—as Church and Stage renew a cooperation that has been clouded with misunderstanding for four hundred years.

Sending a radio troupe "on location" is a fairly unique, certainly commendable stunt. And while it will provide the actors with less rather than greater opportunity to perfect illusions of action, the locale may well inspire and reflect greater sincerity and feeling in the portrayal. Listeners will be carried back into the very atmosphere of the original "Everyman" presentations in the cathedrals of England about 1529.

Listeners who heard the first of the great plays, Aristophanes' "The Birds," are familiar with the unusually effective and informative treatment that Director Blevins Davis has created for the presentation of his revivals. A commentator assumes the role of a candid spectator of the period in which the play was first presented—unfolds after the manner of a special-events broadcast a complete word picture of the original theater, stage-settings, the entrance and reactions of the contemporary audience, reports important facts concerning the author and the play and inserts sidelights of interest with regard to other dramatists of the theater of the day.

The current presentation "Everyman" is the best known of the old morality plays—so called because they were designed to illustrate for the simple medieval folk the workings of Vice and Poverty on lives unredeemed by love of and adherence to the Church-taught principles of conduct. As a group the morality plays grew out of a still earlier form of ecclesiastical drama, the mysteries, based on Holy Writ, and originated as little more than animated tableaux to illustrate sermons and lesson-stories from the Bible.

NBC's series of "Great Plays" is most heartily recommended. "Everyman" should prove to be a novel, imaginative and especially worth-while listening experience.

Comment from the Past...For Today

ONE sultry day, about 2733 B. C., the God-Emperor Cheops was bored. The royal family was at the summer palace down the Nile. It was too hot to try a spin in his new chariot. So he just sat in the garden, sipped spiced wine and brooded on affairs of state.

"Egypt's in a fair way these days," thought Cheops. "Good harvest... only the usual amount of wrangling among the priests. That's healthy, I suppose... I'm fed up with conquest. Yep, everything is fine... except perhaps those stupid rumors questioning my divinity, and those rumblings in the army about another raid over Palestine way... H'mmm..."

"By Ra! I've got it! I'll build a great pyramid... something to prove I'm a god—a job to keep the field marshals from fretting."

So it was decreed. The astronomers, mathematicians and engineers went to work on the plans. The priests huddled with the oracles to decide on the proper day for breaking ground. And the army was tickled pink with its job of rounding up a host of slaves and all the land tenants who were behind in their taxes—for the construction gang. Horse and foot—officers and men, they could strut and order and curl the lash to their heart's content.

"Let the core be of granite and the outer part of marble," said Cheops.

So the granite was brought from quarries down the Nile. And the marble from... historians would like to know—and where it later went, stripped from the Pyramids when Cheops was a mummy.

The desert was filled with a great bustle of building, but progress was slow—for engineering was mostly a matter of muscle. And for every block that was put in place a man wore out his life.

About 1267 A. D.—and according to Coleridge—

*In Xanadu did Kubla Khan
A stately pleasure-dome decree,
Where Alph, the sacred river, ran
Through caverns numberless to man
Down to a sunless sea.*

*So twice five miles of fertile ground
With walls and towers were girded round*

... and for every foot of wall and tower—a man wore out his life.

Today a small electric motor reharnesses the energy the sun stored up a million years, or ten million, before old Cheops or Kubla trod the Orient—and men, tossing up their pyramids of dam and bridge and building, live on to build again. Live on to enjoy the pleasure-domes they have wrought with brains—not muscle only.

This is progress of a sort—and the drudge is doomed. For "beneath the march of armies... and above the common lives of... incurious men, we note the beginnings of what is becoming at last nowadays a dominant power in human affairs, the free intelligence of mankind."

Who will remain incurious? Who will deny himself the freeing intelligence inquisitive dialing can bring?

Electricity has played a major role in freeing men's minds as well as muscles. Its story is this week's design for listening—who will remain incurious?

Abram Chasins, composer-virtuoso, is heard in the current NBC-Red piano series every Saturday

Fine Music Simplified in Chasins Music Series

Saturdays, NBC-Red, 12-12:30 p.m.

Abram Chasins is a brilliant exponent of the idea that one need not be a graybeard with a dreamy look in the eyes and no interest whatever in the practical, busy world to understand and enjoy good music—and NBC happily promotes this theory by turning him loose for a full thirty minutes each Saturday noon to prove his contention.

As in the past, Chasins endeavors to explain the life and works of the great composers in a simple and entertaining manner. His aim, explicitly stated, is to get away from the stereotyped pedagogical viewpoint and put both story and music in language anyone can understand.

His method is to play a selection, then comment on its style and meaning. He takes the procedure of the classroom and makes it perfectly at home in your library or living-room—a place where you'd welcome him as you will welcome his music.

Saturday's program will be devoted entirely to the works of the late Maurice Ravel. Chasins takes his cue for a discussion of Ravel, the man, and his place in the musical scheme of things, past, present and future, from his presentation of two of the composer's most famous works. Each was composed for the piano. The first "Pavane"—the second "Sonatine," selections rated by musical critics as Ravel's "most popular" and "greatest piano work," respectively.

Dean of Medicine Joins March of Science

Wednesdays, NBC-Blue, 7:45-8 p.m.

To your Wednesday evening listening "Science on the March" brings a highly interesting and informative forum and manages well the problem of keeping scientific fact phrased for easy understanding by the layman.

This NBC educational feature currently shifts the scene of its informal investigations to the medical laboratory, with Dean Earl McKinley of the school of medicine, George Washington University, on the professional-answer side of the inquiring microphone.

With this new focus of emphasis the program enters a field of broad public and personal interest—medicine; it covers the subject of health and the medical profession's eternal fight against disease with personal profit and real entertainment for listeners.

Inventor of Cotton Gin is "Portrait" Subject

Saturdays, NBC-Red, 9:30-10 p.m.

The radio spotlight of the New York University Hall of Fame turns to the land o' cotton and falls on the man who created the cotton gin and paved the way for the greatest single revolution in the history of the cotton industry. This occurs on the fourth program in the series "American Portraits," to be heard Saturday night.

There's surprise in store for listeners as radio unfolds the life-story of Eli Whitney, for history and popular belief accord him fame for an invention while the real story of his success leads away from Dixie to a noisy shop in Connecticut—to his creation of a fortune in the manufacture of products but little related to the pursuits of plantin', pickin' and ginnin' cotton.

Hear the story of Eli Whitney—dead nearly forty years before the Civil War—but the man whose inventive genius gave the South added strength, yet provided the North with the instruments that forged the Union victory.

College Heads Tell How to Choose a College

Saturdays, CBS, 2:15-2:30 p.m.

A foursome of eminent college and university presidents have teamed up to bring high-school students and their parents a practical set of guides for choosing a college. They will be heard on successive Saturdays starting this week over the network of the Columbia Broadcasting System and their advice may well save thousands of parental dollars as well as many a future heartache for prospective college men and women.

This Saturday Harvey N. Davis, president of Stevens Institute of Technology, will discuss the considerations that should govern an individual's selection of a career in engineering or scientific work and the opportunities offered by schools of technology for furthering ambitions in these fields.

Following President Davis, President H. M. Wriston of Brown University will deal with the purposes, functions, and opportunities to be found in universities—institutions whose purposes and curricula are too frequently confused in the popular mind with those of colleges.

President Charles F. Wishart of Wooster College will discuss the liberal arts college. President A. D. Anderson of Antioch College will broadcast a summation of the problem: "Shall I Go to College, and Where?"

Robert Graham, Jr., calls stamp collectors in the NBC-Red philatelic series Saturday at 4 p.m. EST

Theme of the Week:

The Story of Electricity

Few natural phenomena have intrigued inquisitive minds for a longer period of time than electricity. Its successful harnessing is one of the most fascinating stories in the great saga of modern science.

The ancients knew electricity as the eerie ability of a particularly obnoxious eel to jar or "shock" the arm of anyone who touched it. Later they recognized the same force as the strange cause of repulsions, attractions and sparkings which occurred when amber, glass and similar substances were rubbed with certain kinds of cloth. And indeed this queer property of amber was responsible for the name we give this amazing form of energy—amber to the Greeks, was elektron.

Seeking an explanation of these actions and reactions, the early scientific investigators arrived at a theory of electricity as a fluid which passed between "charged" bodies under the compulsion of the still unknown force. And only as recently as the era of the American Revolution were the positive and negative factors of electricity proved and defined—the result of Benjamin Franklin's leisure-time experiments.

Today we take this mysterious phenomenon in our casual stride. No longer are we awed by the gigantic dynamos that flank our waterfalls or nestle next to huge furnaces down on "the other side of town."

We are awed no longer—until the scientists themselves stand forth and say, "Yes, we can make and ship and resolve electricity into many forms of energy—use it to drive ships across the seas—but what is it? We do not know, exactly, even yet."

Sunday. Hear how scientists grasped the thunderbolt and changed the history of the world. The Old Timer tells the story on the Smithsonian Institution's program, "The World Is Yours," NBC-Red at 4:30 p.m.

Friday. Learn of electrical energy that remains at rest until some such handy conductor as your radio set provides it with quick access to the earth. You know what it does—do you know why? You'll get the answer to "What is Static?" as the School of the Air "Science Club" continues its series of classroom and kitchen experiments at 2:45 p.m. over the Columbia Broadcasting System.

HOLLYWOOD SHOWDOWN

BY EVANS PLUMMER

DESPITE the national crisis excited by Mae West's appearance December 12 on the Chase & Sanborn Hour—or perhaps because of it—the listener-rating of that Sunday program jumped remarkably during the past two months. This sudden increase in popularity while Congressmen and certain organized crusading groups were turning the heat on Mae and the program's coffee-selling sponsors piqued the curiosity of your Hollywood correspondent. What does the public want? The way to find out was to ask. Therefore, on Sunday, February 13, at the exact hour of Charlie McCarthy's airing, a crew of telephone girls was employed to ask certain questions of listeners. The results that follow are indeed surprising:

Five questions were asked: (1) Are you listening to Charlie McCarthy's broadcast? Sixty-nine percent were. (2) Did you hear Mae West when she appeared on this program? Seventy-two percent did. (3) Did you approve or disapprove of her appearance? Fifty-four and seven-tenths percent approved. (4) Are you a regularly attending member of a church? Fifty-two percent said they were. Finally, (5) would it make any difference to you if radio provided a few more risque situations? Sixty percent responded that it would be okay with them if radio had additional blue scripts and gags!

Taking only the listeners who actually heard the Mae West sketch into consideration, it is interesting to note that the majority (59%) of these approved, and of the latter, most (56%) were church-goers, while of those (41%) disapproving, only one-half attended church. Furthermore, of the group (28%) who did not hear the Adam and Eve playlet, yet were opinionated enough to approve or disapprove, 57% disapproved, and of these, 67% were church-goers. It is difficult to imagine how anyone who didn't hear the sketch would be in a position to judge it one way or another!

Noteworthy also is the fact that only half (54.5%) of the Mae West "hear-disapprovers" stuck by their guns and were not listening to Charlie and his crew on February 13, but perhaps they may be excused by saying they had other things to do. However, for a comparative "other things to do" factor, only one-fifth (19%) of the Mae West "hear-approvers" were not tuned to Charlie on February 13.

Analyzing the fifth question—whether or not radio today should be a little more tolerant of risque material—of the majority (60%) favoring tolerance, roughly one-third were church-goers; of the minority (40%) opposed, approximately two-thirds attended church regularly. In closing, I venture to conclude that this private, impartial survey conducted by Hollywood Showdown will cause many sponsors, radio producers, ministers and reform groups to stop and think. At any rate, your Cinema City snooper declines to comment—either way!

March 28 marks the last appearance of Ray Noble with Burns and Allen. The English batoneer will do a personal-appearance tour in England and on the Continent and is to be replaced starting April 4 by Jan Garber. Meanwhile, Gracie Allen is shopping for three race-horses to start a stable of her already selected colors, brown and white, and George, timorously, is hoping her nags won't run backward.

Rom-Antics: Frances Langford, Hollywood Hotel's "Moonglow Girl," has finally weakened to those love-song lyrics, and through the abetting of his sister, Louise Locher, soloist with Les Parker's band, managed a meeting with Movie Romeo Jon (Charlie Locher)

Hall of "Hurricane" fame. Now the Langford-Hall twosome is a steady one. Jerry Cooper continues to squire about lovely Starlet Joan Mitchell; was last seen with her February 13 at the Beverly-Wilshire during the Phil Baker-Charlie Tobias guested CBS "Melody Shop" airing, listening intently to the plump Connie Boswell rendition of the Baker-Tobias tune, "With Love to You, My Darling." Jerry, by the way, is anxiously awaiting word from a recent test at Warner Brothers. Ken Murray, who rates plums for his excellent job of knitting Hollywood Hotel together in his new job as m.c., is now courting Benny's first broadcast February 13. Reason was that his girl friend, Barbara Stanwyck, was rehearsing in an adjoining NBC studio with Don Ameche. . . . which pair rang the bell with their enactment of O'Neill's "The Straw" But at the later (West Coast) Benny rebroadcast, Taylor was noticeably more at ease—for Barbara was seated in the audience. Miss Stanwyck is Bob's radio mentor; is nearly always on hand to observe his "Good News" rehearsals and his broadcast Thursday nights.

If Garbo returns from Sweden in time, she may volunteer to broadcast

Durbin is in the news, too, with the purchase of a new home in the Los Feliz district of Los Angeles near that of Cecil B. DeMille. It will be redecorated and ready for occupancy on her return from the East with the Cantor troupe.

Believe in astrology? Three leading radio comedians observed birthdays St. Valentine's week—Jack Benny and Stu Erwin on February 14 and Edgar Bergen on February 16. Benny hosted Erwin and other friends at a birthday party at the Cocoanut Grove.

Keeping up with the McCarthy: Charlie is being honored everywhere these days. Milwaukee citizens have nominated him for mayor—so cast your vote April 5. He has been selected by the Louisiana Tech annual editor to judge the college's coed beauty contest. Roderick Davis, full-blooded Thimishian Indian from Alaska, saw the dummy during a recent San Francisco appearance and wanted to take Charlie back north with him—to be used as a totem pole! Aside from the honors, Bergen is keeping McCarthy happy by refurbishing his boudoir.

Lanny Ross, now preparing to make his Columbia picture, "Paris on Broadway," won't necessarily be off the air (or not for long) after the final Hollywood Mardi Gras show March 1. The agency handling the latter program has placed Ross under option for a proposed new series.

Backstage Stuff: Ted Fio-Rito finally evened scores February 12 with Jack Haley for all those trick words Haley has been giving Ted in the Log Cabin scripts. On the eventful night, Jack was amazed upon turning page seven of his script at the microphone, to find that page eight was missing! Fio-Rito had swiped it. . . . Louis Calhern almost missed his cue during his appearance February 14 with Ginger Rogers in Lux' "Brief Moment." Alert Producer Frank Woodruff saw what was about to happen; beckoned frantically for Calhern to come to the mike. . . . The Donald Duck on Joe Penner's show is not the original—Clarence Nash—but Harry Lang, veteran vaudevillian whose impersonation is nearly perfect. . . . And the anonymously billed guest star of Feg Murray on Sunday, February 13, introduced only as the voice of Porky Pig, is really Mel Blanc, better known to you as the hiccupper on the Mickey Mouse Theater airings.

What two movie stars—one on the radio also—are being played as a nightly double by a gorgeous little red-haired model? And wouldn't both be burned to know that she dated one for dinner, had an auto ride later in the evening with the second, and was squired home still later by the first!

Jeanette MacDonald had a well-earned rest and honeymoon with Hubby Gene Raymond Valentine's week at Palm Springs, now that both are on leave from the movie lots. The songstress just finished "Girl of the Golden West" with Nelson Eddy, and Raymond completed "Stolen Heaven."

Tag Lines: Mrs. Carmen Lamour, Dorothy's mother, back from hospital observation and ordered to take a rest at Palm Springs. . . . That overcoat of Tony Martin's that Alice Faye wore to Oakie rehearsal February 7 was an emergency measure. Just before going to the studio, the newlyweds discovered their home had been burgled; all Alice's furs stolen. . . . The Edward G. Robinsons returned from New York well loaded down, Ed with a batch of new pipes and several paintings, his Missus with new furs, and Junior with a new stop-watch.

On February 8, Radio Guide's Singing Cameraman, Gene Lester, visited "Your Hollywood Parade," snapped Walter O'Keefe as the "Broadway Hillbilly" interviewed him as one of the program's "dramateurs"

Shirley Ross, fickle fellow. . . . Cross off the Clarence Stroud-Barbara Brewster romance, but watch Brother Claude and Sister Gloria.

Sports- and horse-lover is Al Jolson. No one follows the fights or races more intently. In fact, Jolson is reported to pay a first-rate handicapper a yearly salary of $10,000 merely to figure and place the Jolson wagers.

Bob Taylor, one of the most patient and likeable guys in Hollywood despite poorly advised studio publicity releases about him, was a nervous fellow during his appearance on Jack

March 7. That's the date of Jean Hersholt's 25th anniversary broadcast over CBS—and several of his closest friends will appear with him. In the Hersholt pal circle are Ed Robinson, Mary Pickford, Bob Montgomery—and Greta Garbo.

Eddie Cantor, still formulating plans for his coming Camel series, is drinking in all the California sun he may at Palm Springs these days, for on March 10 he'll be entraining for the East. Because of his planned trip, the demand for tickets to his Hollywood airings has more than doubled during recent weeks. Cantor Songbird Deanna

AIRIALTO LOWDOWN

BY MARTIN LEWIS

MARCH 11 is the date set for the premiere of the new George Olsen-Tim and Irene program to be heard over the NBC-Blue network. Graham McNamee will be the announcer; a quartet of "spiritual swingers" and Uncle Happy will complete the cast.

Sports fans will be interested to learn that later the same evening and over the same network (NBC), they will be able to hear a description of the fifteen-round bout between Max Baer and Tommy Farr. Listeners in the East will hear the fight reported by Sam Taub and Bill Stern, while the audience in other sections of the country will hear the familiar voices of Clem McCarthy and George Hicks. The reason for this double broadcast is that the Taub-Stern portion includes plugs for a hat sponsor while the other portion is non-commercial.

In case you've been wondering what has happened to Ted Malone and his popular "Between the Bookends" program, know ye by these presents that Malone can now be heard over the Mutual network every afternoon, Monday through Friday.

Reed Kennedy, currently heard on the "Songshop" over CBS on Friday nights, gets an additional singing job starting March 6. On that date he joins the Heinz "Magazine of the Air," which is one of the better Sunday afternoon broadcasts.

Haven MacQuarrie has left the Radio City studios and is back in Hollywood. According to reports, the return to the West Coast was caused by a suit brought against MacQuarrie by a person who claims that he was the author of some scripts used on the "Do You Want to Be An Actor?" program, but never received remuneration for it.

It was quite a shock for this scribbler to learn that the popular team of Stoopnagle and Budd had decided to split up and pave their own individual paths in the future. Although their comedy bordered on the silly side at times, one must give them credit for being clever and original, and I for one will miss this pair. Which reminds me that quite a few of the former stars of radio are being missed.

Letters come in constantly from listeners who wonder why some sponsor doesn't bring back to the air such names as Harry Horlick with his "Gypsies," the Mills Brothers, Ralph Kirbery, Richard Maxwell, Anthony Frome, Jessica Dragonette, Morton Downey, and a host of others. Who are your favorites that you would like to hear again? Let me know and I will publish the list.

After Lawrence Tibbett winds up his current series on the Andre Kostelanetz program, he leaves for an Australian tour and he will be gone until next fall. Upon his return he will go direct to Hollywood, where, I'm told, he will start working in the Warner Brothers movie studios, making the "Desert Song."

Several weeks ago this column and that of my good friend and colleague, Evans Plummer, suggested ways and means of procuring tickets for radio broadcasts. The NBC and CBS moguls in Hollywood will learn here for the first time how a smart lad put one over on them. This person was on a short visit to Hollywood and tried to get tickets for the more popular shows, such as Jack Benny, Rudy Vallee, Chase and Sanborn, and Lux Radio Theater, but he was unsuccessful. He even had friends who knew people in the studios intercede for him, but to no avail. Finally he called the networks himself and represented himself as a big official with an oil company just in on a short visit and anxious to witness the above-mentioned shows. He was told to send over for the tickets, and when the ingenious one appeared himself in the name of the exec, he was handed the precious ducats.

It was neither a prearranged performance nor a kidnapping, but Irene Wicker, "The Singing Lady," had an unusual experience recently. It was this way: After leaving the Ritz-Carlton Hotel in New York, Mrs. Wicker got into her car, with Chauffeur Fred waiting patiently as the

If he hasn't already done so, Don McNeill should enter the RADIO GUIDE "Snappy Comeback" contest, for it seems that the Breakfast Club emcee has a comeback for every occasion. One day last week Don was stopped by a fan in the corridor of the NBC studios. "You look just the way I pictured you," chirped the worshipper. Quick-like, Mr. McNeill replied, "Oh, that's because I was out late last night and haven't had much sleep."

Guy Lombardo was away from work for quite a few days, due to the effects of what can be termed a battle royal that took place recently in a popular

Another ribbing took place last week at the private premiere of a musical picture, but this one happened to be prearranged. Preceding the picture, a new movie short was shown, featuring Richard Himber's orchestra. Buddy Clark was among those present in the audience, and Buddy's dislike of shorts is generally known along Radio Row. Sooo, in the middle of the first musical number he gave out with a loud raspberry . . . or Bronx cheer, if you prefer.

It was timed perfectly: the music stopped and Himber turned around (don't forget, this is a movie) yelling, "I heard that, Buddy Clark! Don't be a wise guy. I saw your short and it wasn't much better, so keep quiet and let the others enjoy this one!" It was at least ten minutes before the surprised audience stopped howling and the laughter subsided. Of course, this scene will be cut out when you see it at your local theater, as it was just made for this one performance.

Now let's go to some broadcasts. First stop—Horace Heidt's programs: The most outstanding thing about them is the fun everyone seems to be having. They all act as though they're playing, not working. Heidt and his troupe are always smiling and, in fact, their enjoyment is so great that they don't stop once the off-the-air signal is flashed. They give a full half-hour show for the studio audience. Horace Heidt does a juggling act or two—and some night he's a-gwine to hit one of his fans with a good solid Indian club. He and the very cute little King sister, Yvonne, threaten the laurels of Astaire and Rogers with a soft-shoe routine that is really hot stuff . . . The three femme Kings and Brother King do a square dance, and—as if that isn't enough—the whole band gets up and does "The Big Apple." By the time they get through, the audience is having as good a time as the band. In fact, a good time is had by all!

Hollywood introduced another movie star to real radio dramatics when Ralph Bellamy appeared on Kate Smith's broadcast recently. The real dramatic artists of radio get little or no recognition, as you may have noticed, and that fact only adds to Bellamy's genuineness as revealed by this incident: Betty Garde, the actress who is heard with Al Pearce and as Mrs. Wiggs of the Cabbage Patch, as well as on many other programs, was Ralph's leading lady. She usually takes that role when Kate Smith's guest is an actor, and she is used to not being mentioned on the air even though her leading man receives plenty of publicity and build-up. Imagine her surprise, the night of the broadcast with Bellamy, when she arrived at the studio and was greeted by a beautiful corsage of orchids, sent by Ralph Bellamy to his leading lady of the evening!

Purely Personal: Fibber McGee assumes a new role. He is now manager of a promising young Chicago welterweight boxer . . . NBC Announcer Howard Clancy struts down Fifth Avenue on Sundays, swinging a cane . . . The wife of CBS Announcer Charles Stark looks enough like Movie Star Virginia Bruce to be her double . . . Claire Sherman, CBS songstress, has just purchased a miniature piano and installed it in her apartment. Maybe she wants to break her lease . . . Gabriel Heatter has hired a new assistant. It is his seventeen-year-old son, Bud, who quit school to help his Dad with the "We, the People" program . . . Parks Johnson and Wally Butterworth listen to all the audience-participation broadcasts such as Professor Quiz and Uncle Jim's Question Bee, to make sure they don't repeat any questions already asked on these programs.

When Actress Beverly Roberts (left) met Opera Contralto Gertrud Wettergren at "Kraft Music Hall," they went through this unusual act. In Swedish it means good luck. Swedish Gertrud insisted upon it doorman helped her in. The latter gentleman, decked out in his fancy blue coat, gold braid and shiny gold buttons, stepped into the car in order to place the car-robe over Irene's lap, and as he did so, the door behind him swung to. Fred thought that the door was being closed from the outside, and he started off with an extra passenger! Frantically, Mrs. Wicker shrieked to Fred, but they had gone a block before they could stop. There was the doorman, sprawled across Mrs. Wicker's feet, still trying to smile graciously and to retain that Ritz-Carlton dignity! Fred turned around and returned the doorman to the hotel.

Broadway restaurant. According to my informers, it seems that Guy and a friend were sitting opposite Phil Regan (he used to sing with Guy's ork, remember?) and his friend, who happens to be a fight manager and quite a "guy" himself when it comes to using his dukes. Anyway, I'm told that Guy was ribbing Phil by saying such things as "What did you ever do" . . . etc. Regan's friend jumped up, thinking Lombardo was insulting his pal, and proceeded to sock Guy. Then Guy's friend joined the melee. They tell me that Lombardo's nose and eyes were badly bruised . . . and all because of a rib! No pun intended.

LOCAL color in the Empire will be the keynote of "World Cruise," a new weekly variety feature from Daventry, starting on Friday, March 4, at 3 p.m. EST. The setting of "World Cruise" will be the quarterdeck of that mythical and melodious vessel, H. M. S. St. George. Simonstown, South Africa, will be the first port of call on an imaginary world trip that takes in the Antipodes, South Seas, and West Indies.

A scientist who made a discovery that has saved countless lives but himself died under the guillotine, will be commemorated in "The Breath of Life," to be broadcast from Daventry on Tuesday, March 1, at 7:15 a.m. EST, and on Friday, March 4, at 10:50 p.m. EST. This program, the first in a new series entitled "Great Scientific Discoveries," tells the story of Antoine Laurent Lavoisier, the French scientist who perfected the discovery of oxygen . . . On Saturday, March 5, at 8:10 p.m. EST, listeners to Daventry will have the unusual experience of hearing folk-songs and dance music of the Mendes, played by a quintet of natives from Sierra Leone, in West Africa.

On Tuesday, March 1, at 8:15 p.m. EST, the engineers at 2R03 in Rome, Italy, will give some details about the new short-wave transmitters now under construction to make the Rome short-wave center one of the most powerful in the world.

Arthur Johnson of New York City reports that HBO (11.402) and HBJ (14.535), both of Geneva, Switzerland, transmit a special program for New Zealand every Saturday morning from 3:30 to 4:30 a.m. EST.

The new Ecuadorian station, HC1GQ (9.175), operates Mondays, Wednesdays and Saturdays from 8 to 10:30 p.m. EST. Frequent English announcements are made and the station signs off with the "Blue Danube Waltz." Send your reports to P. O. Box 159, Nariz del Diablo, Quito, Ecuador . . . HCJB4 is another new station in the same country, which operates nightly on a frequency of 7.41 megs. The exact location has not been definitely identified due to bad code interference.

The Saturday afternoon operas from the Metropolitan are broadcast by Cuban Stations CMQ (9.74) and COBZ (9.02). The NBC Symphony Concerts under the baton of Arturo Toscanini can be heard from the same Latin outlets, as well as TGWA (9.685) of Guatemala, Guatemala. It seems our Spanish neighbors share our appreciation of fine music.

The Roman Catholic Broadcasting Association (K. R. O.) is presenting a special program for North America on Sundays from 8 to 9 p.m. EST, over PCJ (9.59) of Hilversum, Holland . . . The regular American Hour from Rome, which is heard nightly from 7:35 to about 9:15 p.m. EST, is now being relayed by 2R03 (9.635), IRF (9.83) and a new station, IQY (11.9), which joined the network on February 6 . . . "Canada, 1938," that country's most elaborate program, broadcast by a network of Canadian stations reaching from Coast to Coast, including Short-Wave Station CFCX (6.005), Montreal, is now being heard on Fridays at 10 p.m. EST.

For news in English from the Nationalist headquarters in Spain, tune to "Radio Nacional" (10.37), Salamanca, at 9 p.m. EST . . . For news in English from the Loyalist headquarters in Spain, tune to EAR (9.488), Madrid, any night at 7:30 p.m. or on Mondays, Tuesdays and Thursdays at 9:30 p.m. EST.

Program Selector Time Is Eastern Standard. Use This Table to Find Yours

The Program Selector is a classified index of network programs—listing each program in complete detail under its particular classification and that of any one of its individual stars. For example: if the program as a whole is of a varied nature you will find it under "Variety." However, should there be a comedian or concert star on the same program it can also be found under "Comedy" or "Classical." Look for your favorite program in the Selector in Eastern Standard Time, find your time in the table above, then turn to the RADIO GUIDE program pages to find your station carrying the program.

Feverish? Grippy? SEE DOCTOR AT ONCE

WARNING! DON'T NEGLECT A COLD!
Cold germs may go UP into the sinuses or DOWN into the bronchials and lungs and lead to a serious illness. If feverish or grippy, see doctor at once!

FOR "RAW" THROAT USE THIS "FIRST AID"

Doctors warn that colds can lead to serious illness—to ear and sinus infection, and even pneumonia. So don't take a chance. Treat the symptoms of a coming cold effectively and without delay! If you feel feverish or grippy see your doctor at once!

TAKE THIS SIMPLE PRECAUTION
For the most effective "first aid," kill the cold germs that cause raw, dry throat. At the first sign of a raw throat cold, gargle with Zonite. Zonite does 3 jobs for you: (1) Cleanses mucous membranes. (2) Increases normal flow of curative, health-restoring body fluids. (3) Kills cold germs present in the throat as soon as it comes in actual contact with them.
In a test to find out the germ-killing powers of the nine most popular, non-poisonous antiseptics on the market, Zonite proved to be actually 9.3 times more active (by standard laboratory tests) than the next best antiseptic compared! This means economy because you use Zonite diluted! Zonite goes farther—saves you money.

Use 1 teaspoon of Zonite to one-half glass of water. Gargle every 2 hours. Zonite tastes like the medicine it really is. Soon your throat feels better.

DON'T DELAY—BE PREPARED
Get Zonite at your druggist now. And at the first sign of rawness in your throat, start gargling at once. But remember: If you are feverish, consult your doctor! Don't risk a serious illness.

ZONITE IS 9.3 TIMES MORE ACTIVE THAN ANY OTHER POPULAR non-poisonous ANTISEPTIC by standard laboratory tests

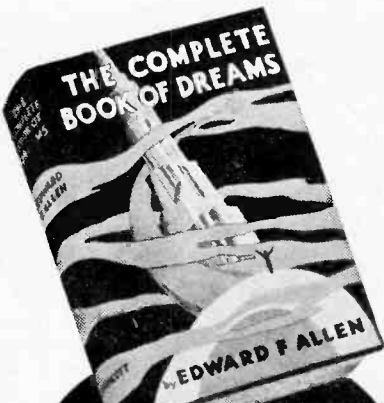

Gargle with Zonite

YOUR DREAMS AND WHAT THEY MEAN

Are They Omens of Good Luck or Misfortune? What do they prophesy?

SUPPOSE you should dream of a clock striking. Would you know what it signified? Would you know whether to avoid certain people or contact them? THE COMPLETE BOOK OF DREAMS contains the meanings of thousands of dreams. It interprets your dreams, showing you how to tell when they are omens of good luck or bad luck, in business, love or in marriage. It defines and points out dreams that might have some very vital influence on your life or those near to you.

How Dreams Influence Our Lives
But how do dreams influence our lives? The Bible tells us of numerous cases when dreams meant life or death, when they were of great significance in the very course of the world! History records that some of its immortals were guided by dreams and what they saw in them. Abraham Lincoln was interested in dreams. He dreamed of his assassination a week before it actually happened!

DO YOU KNOW:

That it is a good omen to dream of attending a funeral?
That seeing an unlighted lantern in your dreams signifies sadness and ill-fortune?

That to dream of riding a horse without a saddle forewarns of an approaching sin?
That to dream of an arrow shot straight to the mark means the achievement of some great desire?

That to dream of the color orange means that you will own your own home?
To dream of blue means long, healthy life?
To how many of the thousands of different dreams do you really know the real meaning and significance? THE COMPLETE BOOK OF DREAMS.

Backstage at the Metropolitan Opera

HARD WORK, ARDUOUS PREPARATION PRECEDE ITS GREAT PERFORMANCES!

This is no masquerade—it's a serious rehearsal of a group of Metropolitan songbirds. The opera they are preparing is "Die Walkuere," the great Wagnerian work. Because they must learn to handle their spears and shields with complete ease and skill, they carry them now, but it's not a dress rehearsal

Most people, when they think of opera performers, think of the great stars, the Melchioris, the Flagstads. But the basis and backbone of every opera company always has been and always must be these supporting players, little known, many of them perhaps just short of greatness, who sing non-star roles

Opening night at the "Met" brings out the most brilliant audience in America. This photograph, taken from the great stage, shows the whole glittering spectacle: orchestra, boxes, three balconies

At least as important as the stars themselves, some people say, are the hard-working wardrobe mistresses who are in charge of their costumes. Here "Jenny," of the Metropolitan, dresses Vina Bovy for "La Traviata"

OPERA, as a distinctly individual means of musical and dramatic expression, sprang, like the modern-day literary drama, from the works of the great dramatists who flourished in the Golden Age of Greece. In those immortal plays, the actors were supported by a chorus, the function of which was to sketch in background material, and, often, to furnish music. Opera had its real beginnings in Florence, about the end of the sixteenth century, and the first public production was "Eurydice," by Jacopo Peri, in 1600. Italy, the home of opera, still leads the world, and no opera singer feels that he has reached the pinnacles until he has sung before an Italian audience. Next to Italy, France and Germany have produced the most great operas. America has contributed but very few.

Photographed by Wide World

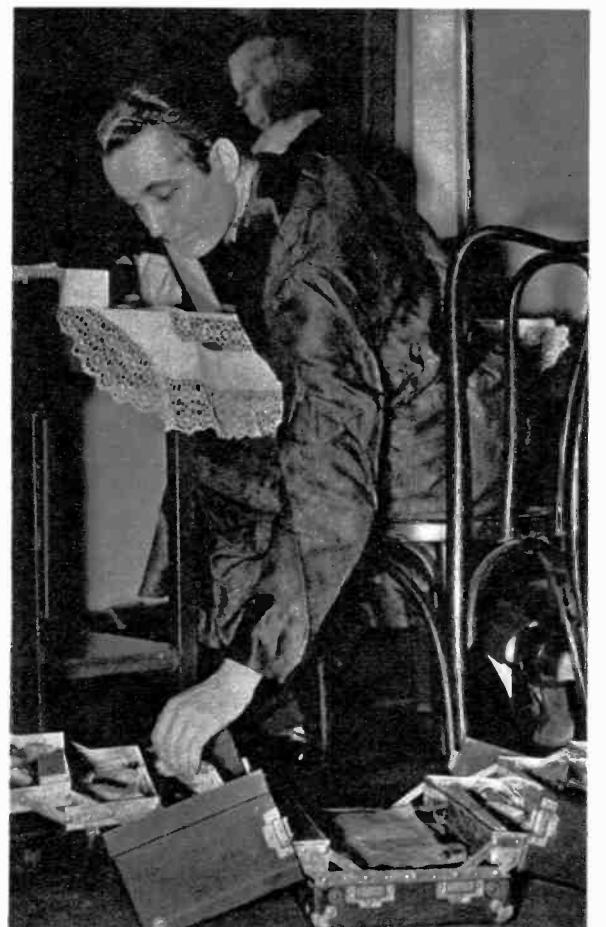

Careful attention to every detail before the curtain rises on a Met performance is the inviolate rule. Here Ludwig Hoffman, painstakingly made up, runs over his role for the last time before going onstage. Perfection is the "Met" order

Lauritz Melchior, greatest heroic tenor, relaxes in his dressing-room before the performance as his wife gives him throat-soothing pineapple juice

When this make-up man gets through with Ezio Pinza, he'll have added years to his age. No single detail is ever overlooked by the Metropolitan staff!

Nino Martini, who combines an excellent voice with personality and dramatic ability that have made him a world favorite, prefers to do his own making-up

Long hours of rehearsal may annoy some members of the Metropolitan company, but to these ballet dancers, trained from childhood in one of the most difficult of arts, it's all in the day's work. When the curtain rises on this scene, they'll be clothed in the traditional fluffed skirts, bathed in soft-colored lights. But at the moment, they're working—and it's hard work! Dancers of the ballet live lives of arduous discipline and restraint

Metropolitan Star Friedrich Schorr takes his time making up for a lead role in a Wagnerian opera. He is applying eye-shadow at this point!

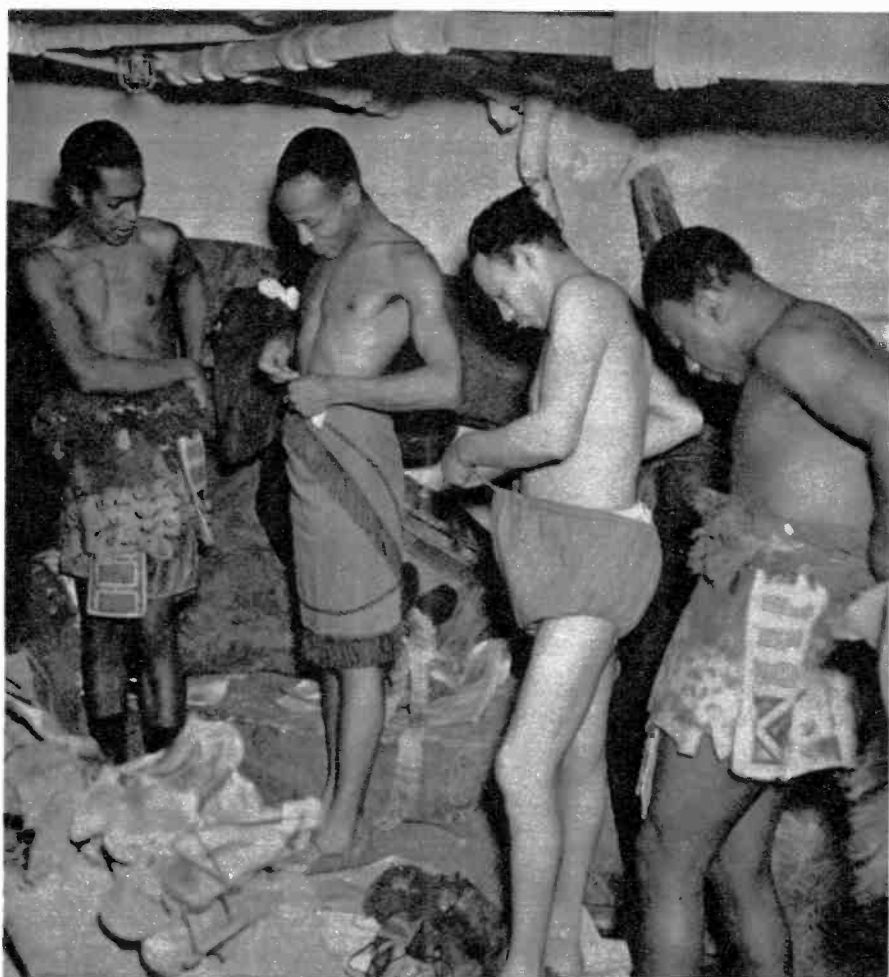

Mme. Lotte Lehmann, one of the Metropolitan's top-flight stars, practices the "Marshallin's" famous "Mirror Aria" from the opera "Der Rosenkavalier"

This man is an extra, and from this table, piled high with miscellaneous costumes, he will select equipment of his own proper size—or thereabouts!

The Met Is Tops: It's Fame, But It's Hard Labor, Too...

There's no gold star on the door of the dressing-room used by these extras, but that doesn't lessen their pride and enjoyment in supporting some great star by singing in a Metropolitan opera chorus, though theirs is not the glory

Over and over again members of the Metropolitan corps de ballet must rehearse this scene, until it is pronounced letter-perfect. This particular scene shown above is from the opera "Samson and Delilah" by Saint-Saens

An opera rehearsal is a serious business, must be so treated by everyone participating. Above: Director Artur Bodanzky is tense in the orchestra pit

SENATOR FISHFACE Grabs A Hurried Lunch

Elmore Vincent (above), alias Senator Fishface, rose to fame in California on "Carefree Carnival," migrated to New York to join Don Johnson, alias Prof. Figgibottle. Their program is broadcast on NBC-Blue Sundays at 6 p.m. EST

As funny offstage as on, the stuttering-stammering-stumbling comedian is the center of attraction everywhere

Because he lives a life of laughs, Mr. Vincent does most anything to bring smiles to a worry-ridden world

In public places, laughs always result from Vincent's great ado about eating as illustrated here—starting with dessert, ending with appetizer. His specialty is retrieving the lost cherry, a process as entangled as his famous speeches

NANCY KELLY "Script Screamer"

Should Nancy Kelly drop her radio acting and her role in Broadway's "Susan and God," she could still make a living by screaming. To this 17-year-old go most all screaming roles in "March of Time," "Gang Busters,"

"Thrill of the Week," "Front Page News" and other script shows. Screaming has its own peculiar technique. Says Nancy: "To be a good screamer it's imperative to feel your part more so than at any other time"

THE LONE RANGER

RADIO'S POPULAR HERO FIGHTS FOR JUSTICE IN MOVIE SERIAL VERSION

RADIO'S popular character, the "Lone Ranger," whose deeds rival Robin Hood's, made his debut on the movie screen Feb. 19 in a thrill-packed 15-episode serial, produced by Republic Pictures. The identity of the original Ranger is supposedly secret, but he is Earl Graser of WXYZ, Detroit, heard over the Mutual Broadcasting System. He is not the screen hero whose identity, too, is unknown until the final episode.

Radio Guide presents exclusive pictures from the movie version.

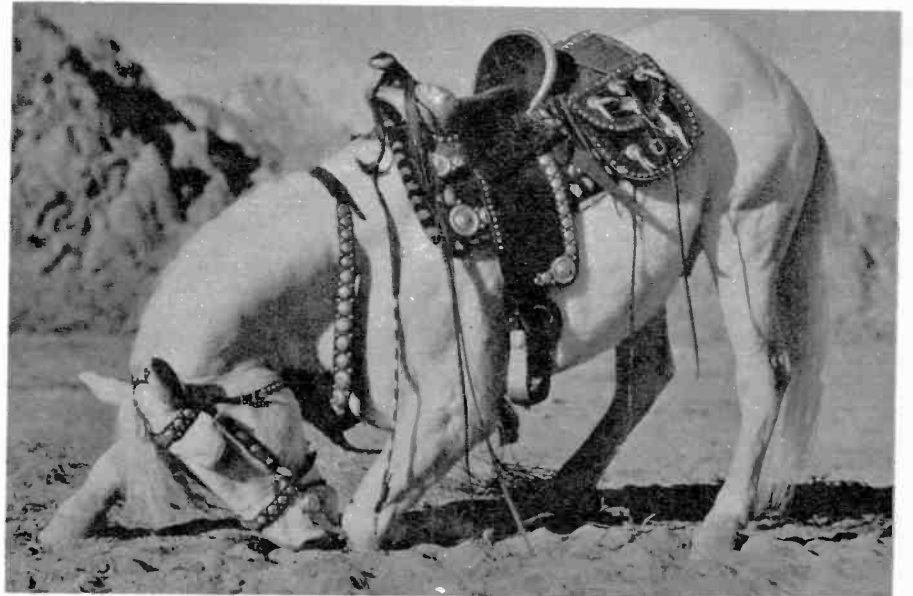

Chief companion and ally of the Lone Ranger is his Indian friend, Tonto, who joins the fight along with four fellow rangers recruited by the film's hero

Republic's serial portrays the Lone Ranger in a battle to end the one-man rule in Texas following the Civil War when the renegade Jeffries seizes control of the State

The Lone Ranger is the sole survivor of a massacre of rangers which Jeffries instigated. The avengers are approximately the same description (above), which prevents Jeffries from discovering the leader of the band and murdering him

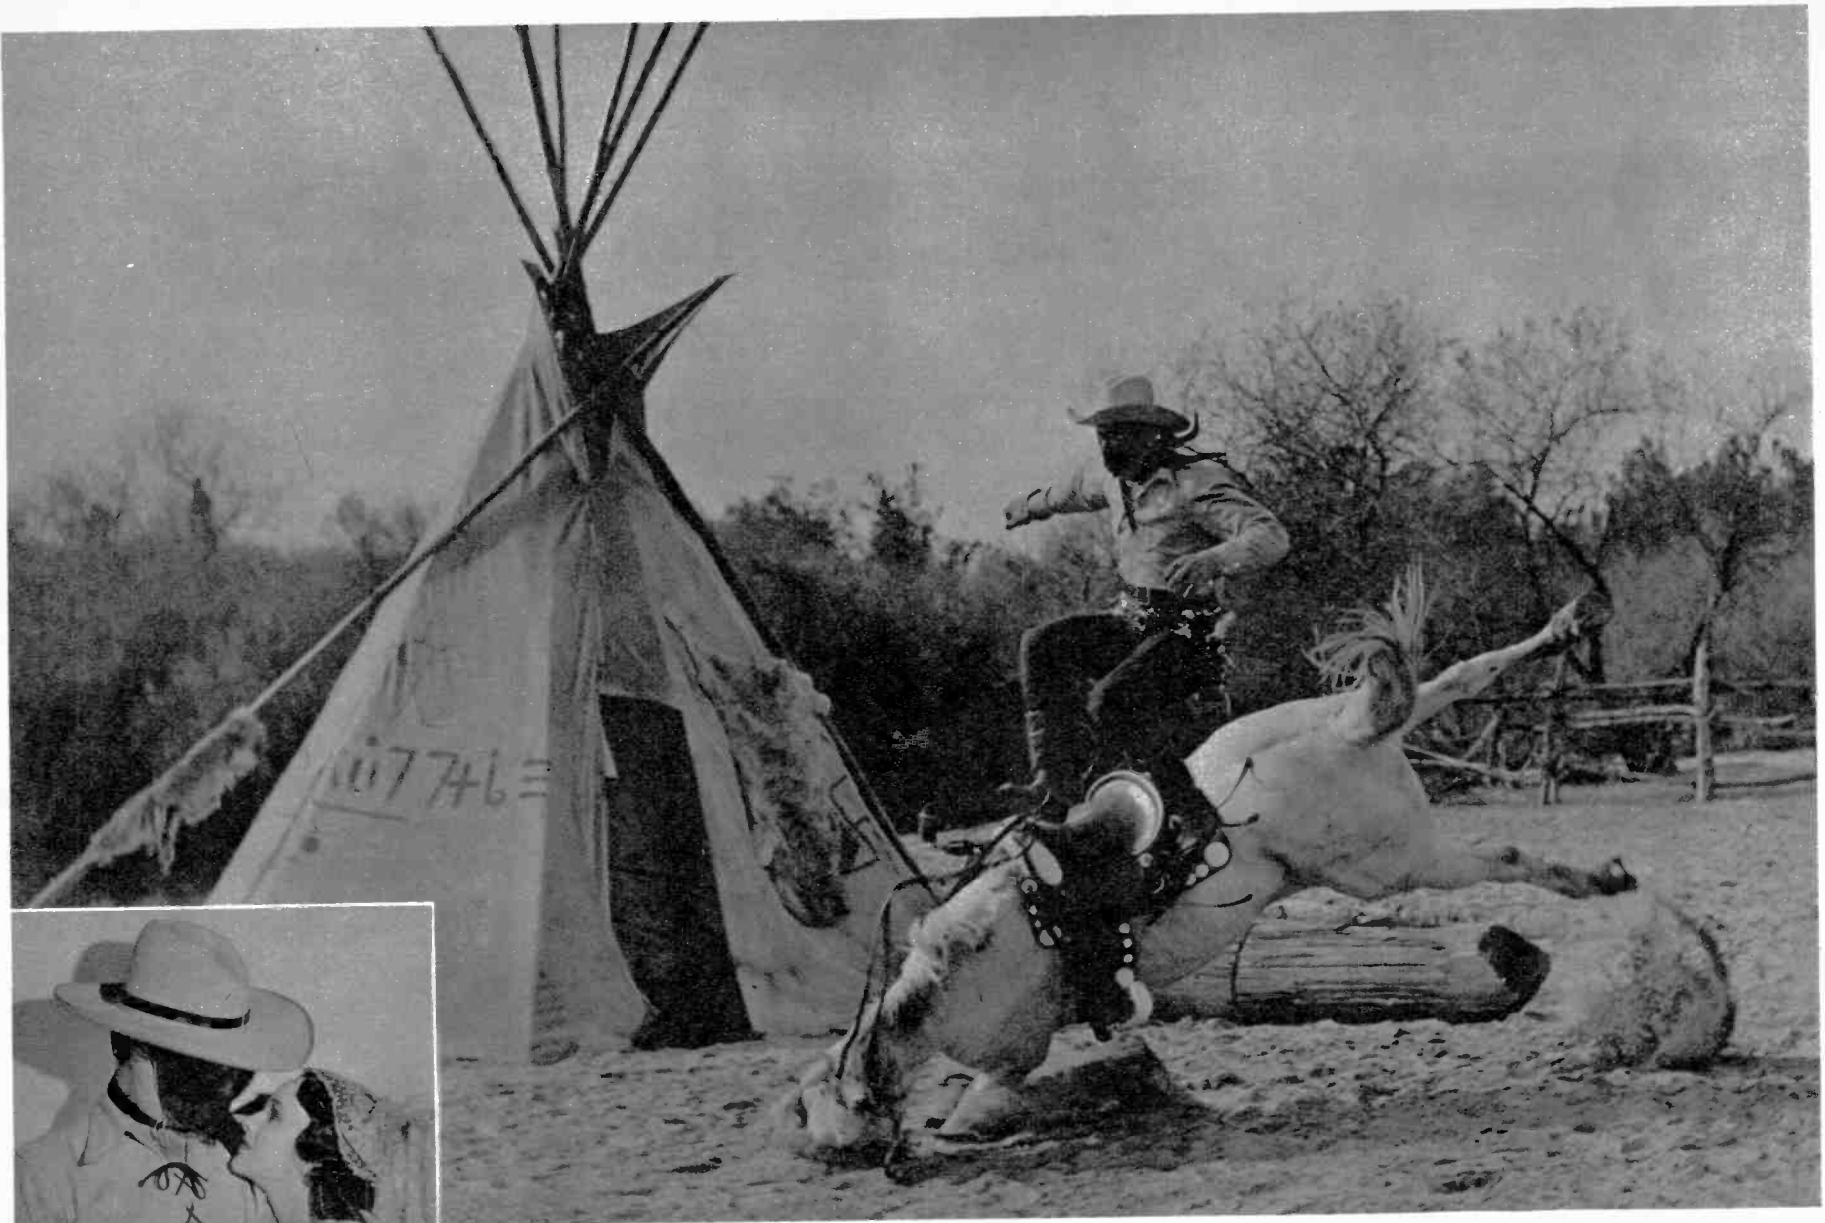

Thirty-six white stallions were examined before the horse above was selected for the part of "Silver," trusty steed of the Lone Ranger. Incidentally, the horse comes from El Paso, Texas, was flown to California for casting try-out

Renegade Jeffries secures power by killing a Federal officer, impersonating him. In trying to track down his avenger, he finally is driven to mass murder

Members of the Lone Ranger's band are killed one by one, but two survivors, of which the hero is one, secure enough incriminating evidence to trap him

Below is pictured one of the many thrilling scenes in the serial. Heart interest is provided in movie by daughter of one of the victims of Villain Jeffries

Lynn Roberts, as Joan Blanchard, is almost forced to marry Jeffries, when the Lone Ranger effects a rescue

Packed with excitement and gunplay, the serial includes such scenes as the spill pictured above and the battle between the Ranger, Jeffries (below). Ranger is victorious

On the radio the serial has proved popular with both adult and young listeners. Shirley Temple was disappointed when her request for an autographed picture was turned down

$1,000.00 "SNAPPY COMEBACK" CONTEST

Based on Scenes from "Hollywood Hotel"

YES, it's your last chance, but it's still a good chance, and there's still time to get into RADIO GUIDE's big "snappy comeback" contest and to share in that $1,000.00 in prizes which will go to the winners. This means, though, that you'll have to act now!

Think—if you haven't already thought—of what one of those prizes might mean to you, of the luxuries you could buy, of the deposit you could make at your bank, of having your pockets bulging with extra cash. All this is possible, but you'll have to hurry!

The photographs printed above are the last installment in a series of sixteen pictures published in RADIO GUIDE, beginning with the issue of January 15. All the pictures are scenes from the movie hit, "Hollywood Hotel," now running at theaters throughout the country—and "Hollywood Hotel," by the way, is a show you can't afford to miss.

|-------------------------------------|-------------------|
| First Prize | $500.00 |
| Second Prize | 250.00 |
| Third Prize | 100.00 |
| Next Ten Prizes, $10.00 Each | 100.00 |
| Next Ten Prizes, $ 5.00 Each | 50.00 |
| TOTAL | $1,000.00 |

In each scene reproduced in RADIO GUIDE there are two or more characters. Your task in the contest is to place in the artist's "balloon" above the silent character's head a "snappy comeback" to the remarks of the one who is speaking.

The pictures have been run in sets of two over a period of eight weeks. If back numbers of RADIO GUIDE are not readily available to you, you can obtain them from the Circulation Dept., RADIO GUIDE, 731 Plymouth Court, Chicago, Ill. Don't waste time!

RULES: 1. In each of eight issues—January 15, through March 5—Radio Guide will publish two photographs of scenes from Warner Brothers' motion picture, "Hollywood Hotel." Each picture will have a blank conversation "balloon" to be filled in with a "snappy comeback" to remarks printed in other "balloons." Suggested "comebacks" will accompany each picture.

2. A complete set of sixteen filled-in photographs or reasonably accurate facsimiles of them, constitutes an entry. Replies must be written in spaces provided on pictures. For the sets of pictures selected by the judges, prizes amounting to $1,000.00 will be paid according to the schedule on this page.

3. Entries will be judged on appropriateness—in consideration of the story of the motion picture—neatness, originality, and directness of thought. Elaborate entries will receive no special consideration.

4. Do not send in any entries until your set is complete—sixteen pictures in all. Back issues of Radio Guide may be obtained from the Circulation Dept., Radio Guide, 731 Plymouth Court, Chicago, Ill., or examined at its offices or in public libraries. Sign your name on each picture or affix it securely in some way. Send entries to "Snappy Comeback" Contest Editor, Radio Guide, 731 Plymouth Court, Chicago, Ill.—first-class postage, prepaid. Entries with insufficient postage will not be accepted by the addressee.

5. To be eligible for prizes, entries must be postmarked before midnight, March 13, 1938.

6. No entries will be returned. In fairness to all participants in the contest, judges will not enter into any correspondence concerning any aspect of this contest. All entries become the property of Radio Guide.

7. This contest is open to everyone in the United States and Canada, except employees of Radio Guide and their families. The editors of Radio Guide will be the contest judges. All persons agree by entering to accept the decisions of the judges as final. In case of ties, duplicate prizes will be awarded.

8. Anybody eligible to compete may enter as many times as he likes—and may win more than one prize if his entries merit such consideration.

DISCARD YOUR OLD AERIAL

It is Most Likely Corroded and Has Poor or Loose Noisy Connections
NO MORE BUZZES, CLICKS and shorts from summer rains and winter snow and sleet when using an F & H Capacity Aerial Eliminator. Anyone can connect it in a moment's time to the radio set—occupies only 1 1/2 inch by 4 inch space behind the set, yet enables your radio to operate without an aerial and tune in stations over the entire broadcast band frequencies and short wave channels.

ELIMINATE THE AERIAL FOR GOOD
Attach this unit to your radio—make your set complete in itself—forget aerial wires and troubles—move your set anywhere—no more roof climbing, unsightly lead-in or aerial wires.

NOT NEW—VALUE ALREADY PROVED
On the market five years. 100,000 customers in U.S. and foreign countries. In use from the Arctic Region of Norway to the Tropics of Africa. Each factory tested on actual long distance reception. Cannot harm set—Easily connected to any radio. Including radios having no ground or radios for doublet aerial. Note: It will not operate on battery or automobile radios.

5 DAYS TRIAL Mail coupon at once. Pay postman $1.00 plus a few pennies postage on delivery. If not entirely satisfied, return within five days and your dollar will be refunded without question.

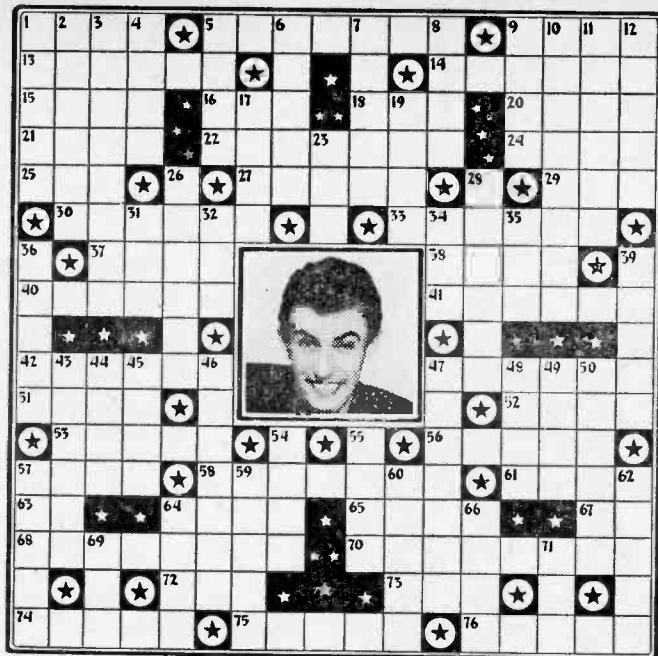

JUST MAIL THIS COUPON.

F & H Radio Laboratories, Dept. 78, Fargo, N. Dak.
Send F & H Capacity Aerial. Will pay postman $1 plus few cents postage. If not pleased will return within 5 days for $1 refund. Check here if sending $1 with order—thus saving postage cost—same refund guaranteed. Check here if interested in dealer's proposition.

WHAT USERS SAY
LaPorte, Tex. After using the Capacity Aerial Eliminator over a year on my 1935 small 7 tube set can say it brings in reception with fine volume and clarity, pulling in stations from Japan, Europe, South America, and broadcast stations from all over the U. S. Efficiency proven, I took down my old outside aerial.

financial settlement from Carte. In 1893, after going their separate ways for a little more than two years, the three—Sullivan, Gilbert and Carte—were back together again. They produced "Utopia, Limited" on Oct. 7 of that year. By comparison with the earlier works, it was unsuccessful, and had only an eight-month run. "The Grand Duke," their last cooperative effort, opened on March 7, 1896, at the Savoy, but survived only 123 performances. The golden era was gone. Sullivan, in poor health for many years, died of heart trouble in 1900. Carte died a few months later, in 1901. Gilbert lived on until 1911, became a country magistrate, and was drowned while trying to save a young girl from drowning.

Part II of a two-part version of "The Gondoliers" may be heard Friday on "Operetta Series" over an MBS network at:
EST 9:00 p.m. — CST 8:00 p.m.
MST 7:00 p.m. — PST 6:00 p.m.

The next work in the MBS "Operetta Series" will be "Trial by Jury," to be broadcast Friday, March 11, at the same hour. Other Gilbert and Sullivan operas will follow.

So You Like Contests?

ORIGINALITY, something which is at a terrific premium in contesting, takes many forms! This week a gentleman in Peoria, Illinois, wrote that he had an idea for a new kind of contest service—a "Contesters' Exchange." The idea is that people are always winning smaller prizes they never thought they'd get when they looked at the major prizes. Often the prizes are worth nothing at all to them, though they might be to someone else. This Mr. Nullineyer wants to do something about it. If you're interested enough to write to us, we'll forward the letters, and he may do something.

Another fellow whose contest interest has taken an unusual turn is Mr. Joseph Csida, of New York City. According to the morning's mail, Mr. Csida, who writes detective stories, has mated his hobby and his art to produce "Mike White, the Contest Detective." Mike is at work on his first case in a story in the March issue of Black Mask magazine.

The day's mail brings other news, too. For instance, a few weeks ago we were getting used to having a lady write that her friends called her "Second Place Maltaner." Her little private woe was that she won lots of second prizes, but no firsts. Our advice was that the situation probably wasn't so bad. But then she wrote again, and enclosed a clipping. In one week, in the three New York Post contests, she won two first places and a ninth place! Next day she won a first place in an A & P contest! Result: We're sending her name to Mr. Gilson Willets, with a recommendation that he begin watching the growth of one of his next All-American Contesters!

Commentary: "Speaking of contests, my husband is an independent druggist, therefore I do not patronize chain stores. However, I was so attracted by the A & P Ann Page food products contest recently conducted that I entered six of the weekly contests . . . I won two grand prizes—and both under the same name and address! How's that for fair contesting?" That's a note Mrs. B. T. Smothermon, of Chattanooga, Tenn., passes on to cheer us all!

Lucky Strike is making an inconspicuous overture to contesting with the "Melody Puzzles" broadcast Mondays on NBC at 8 p.m. EST. If you can write a puzzle around the name of a popular song not already broadcast, giving a clue to the actual title in the words the actors speak, you'll get a carton of Luckies and $25 in cash. Send the entries to Melody Puzzles, 111 Fifth Avenue, New York City . . . The De Laval Separator Company has started a $3,500 contest for farmers, believing they have more time during this slack season to consider their entries. First prize is $1,000 cash. Requirement is a 100-word letter answering the question, "Why do you like the new world standard De Laval separator?" The contest is open only to farmers and members of their families who have one or more cows. Rules and entry blanks may be obtained from local dealers. Closing date: March 31.

Joan Lambert, formerly Wilmer Shepherd's assistant, has opened her own entry-criticism office in Philadelphia . . . A reader complains that she receives smaller prizes which have been shipped without insurance in pitiful shape—broken, bent, irreparable. Is this common?

Roy Harris, the seventeen-year-old South Carolina youth who won the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer motion-picture-title contest, is touring the country, with the contest sponsor paying expenses. He submitted the title "Of Human Hearts" for the movie previously titled "Benefits Forgot." The sponsor promised no tour when the contest was announced, but Harris has turned out to be good publicity, so he's winning more than the $5,000 prize! He had never entered a contest before, but thinks he may from now on! "Of Human Hearts" was his only entry, written after twenty or thirty minutes' thought about the story as described on the air. There were over 150,000 entries—but there would have been more if it had not been so brief.

Gilson Willets' articles in Contest News are his best and contesting's most authoritative, because there he writes as a reporter in the finest interpretation of that title, and as a reporter only. National Contest Headquarters' voluminous facts are at his command, and they serve him well . . . Many statement-contest sponsors are hearing from their public that the "standard" openings are little, if any, help. Some say they prevent originality.

Helen King: Polls recently gave her top position as contesting's most popular judge (Admiracion Shampoo was her most recent one)
