The National Weekly of Personalities and Programs

The Radio Polls Select Top Stars and Programs

ONE of the oldest and most informative polls of opinion on radio personalities is that conducted annually by Alton Cook of the New York "World-Telegram." This poll invites radio editors from all over America to express their preferences for radio stars in fifteen different classifications.

This year's results have just been announced and they are interesting. We call them to your attention now because we expect to start our own Star of Stars poll very soon. Those who are new readers will not know that our Star of Stars poll is the only national poll in America in which typical radio listeners are allowed to vote for their favorites in democratic fashion. Its results have come to be regarded so highly that the stars it places in top positions are considered the choice of the general public in broadcasting.

In the meantime, the selections of radio editors from Coast to Coast may point toward winners in our own poll. Let's see.

Selections were as follows:

- Best comedian: Jack Benny
- Best quiz program: Information, Please
- Best news commentator: Raymond Grain Swing
- Best light orchestra: Guy Lombardo

- Most popular girl vocalist: Kate Smith
- Most popular male vocalist: Bing Crosby
- Best sports announcer: Bill Stern
- Best studio announcer: Don Wilson
- Best concert vocalist: Lily Pons
- Best symphonic conductor: Arturo Toscanini
- Best dramatic program: Lux Radio Theater
- Best quarter-hour: Fred Waring
- Best children's program: Irene Wicker
- Best new star: Dinah Shore
- Outstanding single broadcast of the year: NBC's eye-witness account of "Graf Spee" scuttling

Several interesting facts emerge from these ballots. In the favorite comedian group, for example, the listings are: 1. Jack Benny; 2. Bob Hope; 3. Fred Allen; 4. Fibber McGee and Molly; 5. Charlie McCarthy. Last year, McCarthy was at the top. Looking further in the "favorite program" group, we find this:

1. Jack Benny; 2. Fred Allen Star Theater; 3. Information, Please; 4. Bob Hope; 5. Bing Crosby hour; 6. Fibber McGee and Molly; 7. Philharmonic Symphony; 8. Lux Radio Theater; 9-10. Charlie McCarthy tied with the Ford Sunday Evening Hour.

The old stars fade. New stars emerge. Change makes for improvement. In this pastime of listening, we may be grateful that broadcasting's cornucopia is so richly stocked with good things to hear. —C. M.

"THE LADY

Eve"

WEDDING-NIGHT SCENES for the movies have been staged almost everywhere but in a Pullman car, and it remains for precedent-breaker Preston Sturges, director-writer responsible for "The Great McGinty" and "Christmas in July," to stage the big love-scene of "The Lady Eve" between Henry Fonda and Barbara Stanwyck in such a spot. Fonda plays a millionaire who loves reptiles and abhors women. While en route back from the Brazilian jungles, where he has been collecting snakes, he runs smackdab into the irresistible wiles of Barbara Stanwyck, the daughter and sucker-hooking partner of a reprobate card shark. Barbara sets out to induce Fonda to play cards with her and her father, but before the first hand is played she realizes that something has happened to her and that something is love. The selfsame thing has happened to the woman-hating reptile-collector, and when the complications have cleared, we find them here, enjoying their Pullman honeymoon.

PAUL MUNI:

Actor or Act

Hollywood's eternal riddle — Paul Muni — is unmasked here

By John R. Franchey

Paul Muni is the actor who has given biographical films their biggest lift in Hollywood. Born Muni Weisenfreund in Vienna in 1897, Muni considers himself strictly American because he was brought to this country at the age of three. He was educated in New York public schools, but his education was constantly interrupted for professional stage appearances from the time he was eleven. Outside of the theater he is an accomplished violinist, takes long walks, boxes, reads classics. He refuses to make more than two pictures a year, refuses to be typed.—Editor.

There is at least one point concerning Paul Muni on which every curbstone psychologist in Hollywood is agreed: There's no one else quite like him.

To some, he is the screen's first citizen. To others, he is a magnificent ham. One school of thought regards him as the ranking egotist in pictures. Another insists he's covering up a spectacular inferiority complex. Admirers hail him as an inspired genius. Cynics and sourpusses aren't too sure about the genius business, and often wonder aloud if the Muni sun-worshippers don't mean Barnum.

In all probability, some would-be doctor of philosophy will do a dissertation somewhere around 1980 entitled, Muni—Actor or Act? Nevertheless, regardless of this divergence of opinion, Mr. Muni is a man after his own heart—unique, original, and (glory be) provocative.

Who else but Paul Muni would have walked out of a contract with Warner Bros. last summer, a contract which was due to net him $800,000 over a period of time?

Why did he do it?
He explained it thuswise to the press:

"I'm tired of resurrecting history, weary of playing austere, noble, heroic souls such as Juarez, Zola, and Pasteur."

What did he plan to do with himself?

"For the time being, nothing."

Such news, as you might readily imagine, was relayed by all the wire services. Hollywood columnists pummeled their typewriters. Film critics began launching scholarly essays on the theme, "What now, Mr. Muni?"

Two weeks later they got their answer. The incredible Mr. Muni had signed up with 20th Century-Fox to do "Hudson's Bay."

What sort of part was Muni to play? A larruping, lusty, adventure role, custom-tailored for a Spencer Tracy.

And had Darryl Zanuck gotten down on his knees and begged Muni to lend his services? Emphatically not. One of the studio's lesser lights sent the script over more as a gesture than anything else. He was quite bowled over when Muni called up a few hours later and said:

"The script is excellent. I'm sure I'd enjoy doing it."

You guessed it. The deal was closed that very afternoon before the Muni man could reconsider.

Hollywood gasped. It had more reason to gasp when the cameras began to roll. There was Paul Muni—Warners' ex-MR. Paul Muni—plunging into his assignment with the verve of a Mickey Rooney. For once he actually seemed to be enjoying himself. You can guess what this phenomenon was promptly labeled by the excited typewriter geniuses toiling for the 20th Century-Fox publicity department—"The New Muni."

Actually there is some basis to the wheezy stereotype. There's a "new" Muni for every mood that besets him. And these moods are numerous. Also changeable. As witness:

He bought his ranch in the San Fernando Valley after a fifteen-minute inspection. Later he decided what he really yearned for was a beach cottage. Whereupon he piled into his car and drove along the shore until he saw a huge mansion nestled in the Palos Verdes hills. He bid for the house immediately, and bought it. Then he rented the ranch out to more enthusiastic ranch-dwellers than himself and moved into the beach mansion. Barely installed and he realized he had made a horrible mistake. He didn't want grandeur. Nor solitude! Nor peace! What he did want was a place by the side of the road where the race of men go by. Consequently he proceeded to lease a modest place on Toluca Lake.

AND did Mr. Muni settle down and live happily ever afterward. Uncle John? you may be getting ready to ask.

He did not. What Mr. Muni now discovered was that the chummy little villa was too noisy for sleep. Being a man of action, he lost no time in checking in at a hotel.

Alas, here, too, discontent hounded him. The room was near an elevator. The throbbing of the engines annoyed him. He got up at two a.m. and without a word to anyone drove out to the studio, where he spent the night in a dressing-room. And did very nicely, thank you.

The clew to Paul Muni, who is a brilliant student of history yet can alienate more writing gentlemen at one fell swoop than any two other practitioners, can be traced to his "divine dissatisfaction" with himself. It has made him shy. And shyness has made him wary, which in turn has put him on the defensive.

You don't go dropping in on a Paul Muni set anytime you feel like it. No sirree. Not unless it's all right with Mr. Muni. And more often than not it isn't.

A Muni set with Muni in motion is a liberal education. Like the star of Bethlehem on a Christmas tree, so is Muni. About him there is an air of unshakable confidence as he waits for a nod from the director which means "Your scene—take it away." Bit players watch him like a hawk, anxious to pick up a trick or two. When the cameras start grinding, the confidence changes to authority. Mr. Muni isn't ad-libbing. He's thought it all out days in advance. And this is it, sure, deft, and swift.

On a Muni set the director is in clover. Be he ever so pernickety, he is nowhere nearly so demanding as Muni is with Muni. Many a director has barked "Print that," only to have Mr. M. say with that quiet sureness of his: "Would you mind if I did the scene over again? I think I missed the true meaning."

It is no secret that the last word comes from a dark-haired, alert little woman sitting quietly in the background. She never speaks. Every now and then she lifts a finger to her nose. It is the signal that the scene is all right. Her name is Bella Muni. She's the actor's remarkable wife and herself a sometime actress.

Knowing every one of his moods and exactly the effect he is after, she can always tell if he has achieved what he has set out to do. During the filming of "Hudson's Bay," Mrs. Muni never missed a single day's shooting.

This side of Muni—Muni the restless perfectionist—has touched off some of the Hollywood sniping. A man shouldn't take himself quite that seriously, the loyal opposition insists.

No one in Hollywood takes himself more seriously. Muni belongs to the school of actors who "live" their roles, who demand from themselves not only the emotional high pitch of a big scene but mastery of every little technical detail. Errol Flynn playing Jeb Stuart, that wondrous Confederate master of the horse, was as way-down-Dixie in "Santa Fe Trail" as Big Ben or Waterloo Bridge or Solio. Paul Muni will go to any lengths to acquire a vivid and genuine dialect. With remarkable results, too.

He worked so hard in perfecting an Italian-gangsterese speech for "Scarface" that his public took it for granted he was Italian. "Border Town" and "Juarez" required a facility with Mexican palaver. He slipped over the boundary as often as he could steal away and picked up a south-of-the-border accent that won him letters of commendation from Mexican education officials and governmental authorities. In "We Are Not Alone" he astounded even the exacting Londoners with his soft, countryside British accent.

For "Hudson's Bay" it was necessary to manipulate a French-Canadian accent. What Muni did about it was to locate one Marcel de la Brosse, a stage actor, and to get him the portfolio of understudy to Mr. Muni, who had heard Monsieur Brosse's excellent French cadences in the play "Oscar Wilde" and had been enchanted with them.

M. de la Brosse found himself in a dual role when Muni hired him. Before the picture began, the two held long parleys. At Muni's behest, Brosse would launch windy narratives and countless anecdotes. The former would just sit there listening, interrupting occasionally, to ape a phrase that he liked. A fortnight of this business and Muni made several records and handed them to his tutor.

"Will you play them kindly and call my attention to any bad spots?"

M. de la Brosse heard the disks. There were no bad spots. This side of Muni inevitably mystifies the bulk of the cinema practitioners who look upon acting as a job and a pox take Art and Oscar. There are other facets to the Muni folkways that have brought him forward as one of the few men in Hollywood nobody knows. Or understands.

HIS circle of intimates is small. He is a sort of human island. He is not chummy with stars. Two of his cronies are Ben Goetz and Jake Wilk, both in the executive department of pictures. A very serious individual, he will argue with them far into the night, taking any side of an argument and rarely coming out second best.

"I don't know which is the stronger, his logic or his dramatic persuasiveness," Mr. Wilk likes to say.

This same Muni seriousness has scared the girdle off of interviewers. Tenser than ever when he spots a note-book, he frightens the poor lady quizzers into asking him sappy questions and then resents those questions. Which is how come almost every story on Muni has him a cross between a monk and a bogymon.

Not all Muni habits are somber. He likes to lie on the floor. He reads books for hours, sprawled out on a carpet, chin in hand. He plays cards sitting on the floor. He even signed his contract with his agent sitting on the coral carpet in his den.

Too, he is an addict of pool and an excellent player. As a youngster in Chicago, he spent hours with a cue. He likes to demonstrate his prowess with his chummies who come to see him. His trick shots are show-pieces.

Music he's hepped up about, modern as well as classical. He owns a dozen radios that are sprinkled in every room in his house, ranch, and hideout, a glorified shack on the edge of a cliff, nothing in front of it but the rolling Pacific and at the back the rolling hills of the Malibu range. With so many radios cajoling him with pop tunes, it isn't surprising to have him burst out with snatches of such frivolous melodies as "Six Lessons From Madame La Zonga."

But these light moments are the exceptions that prove Muni is, after all, in a class by himself.

He never makes plans in advance. All his major moves, on the contrary, have been made on the spur of the moment. His last extensive trip to Europe was a result of a spontaneous remark made by his wife while they were vacationing at a hot-springs resort in California. The next day they were on the train bound for New York. Four days later they caught a boat for Southampton.

Loathing chitchat, he steers clear of chance acquaintances. His constant companion at home is his wife. They talk for hours at a stretch. Beside them nuzzles the Muni airedale, a dog to whom the master is so devoted that when a minor flood hit the San Fernando Valley while the Munis were abroad, he burned up the cables exhorting his agents to save the dog even if the ranch floated out to the ocean. Not until his agents sent him a photograph of the dog out of the danger zone (a picture certified by a notary) was Mr. Muni relieved.

Master of a walnut ranch, he's no outdoor man at all. He doesn't even bother to pick the walnuts. He gives the crop to a man in exchange for looking after the orchard.

Fascinated by politics, he's a close observer of the world scene and keeps a nervous ear inclined toward all broadcasts by the commentators. Nevertheless, he likes to watch football games. Boxing-matches he prefers even to football games.

He loves to act and yet he's almost limp with joy when the picture's over. He lapses into what might be called, for Paul Muni, a hilarious mood. Neutral observers would describe it as relaxed.

A star whom Warners took the pains to endow with the incredible title of Mr., he abominates the star system. On the set he avoids conversations, gets awfully mad at applause because it takes him out of character.

MODERATELY wealthy, he is not overly hell-bent on making a fortune. He has no regrets at all about giving up the large sum of money represented by his old contract.

"What," he demands, "is all this pother about? After working hard for a number of years, I have saved enough money to put myself in a secure economic position. I can eat, live in comfort, and pay my taxes without any worries. And I don't see what anyone would want more than that."

"It may be that I haven't enough money to afford a big yacht or chateaus on the Riviera when peace is restored, as surely it must. But I don't want those things. What I now have suffices for my needs. So I am adopting the luxury of being in a free and independent position. Part of this luxury is the ability to go along without the necessity of having to make long-range plans for the future. I think that is worth working for."

KEEPER OF THE LION since M-G-M was put together sixteen years ago is Louis B. Mayer, the executive vice president

AT HOME WITH

LEO THE LION

Entertainment, Inc.: At M-G-M you'll find the mostest of the bestest Hollywood has to offer

WHEN Leo the Lion roars at the outset of another M-G-M picture, as he has been doing for these many years, movie-goers grow silent with sheer dazzlement. For Leo is the monarch of all he surveys. His plants are extensive, his resources endless, and press-agents, without too much exaggeration, proclaim his lair on Washington Boulevard, in Culver City, has "more stars than there are in heaven."

For doubters, here is a quick look at the stars who travel under M-G-M's banner—Spencer Tracy, Lionel Barrymore, Norma Shearer, Robert Taylor, Rosalind Russell, Robert Montgomery, the Marx Brothers, Robert Donat, Greer Garson, Clark Gable, Hedy Lamarr, Wallace Beery, Joan Crawford, Nelson Eddy, Jeanette MacDonald, Judy Garland, Mickey Rooney, Katharine Hepburn, William Powell, Lana Turner and Eleanor Powell.

The seventy others listed as featured players might easily, on any other lot where stellar material is not quite so plentiful, wear the crown of stardom . . . and deservedly.

The press-agents, also with reason, call Leo the Lion's lair the "city within a city that's within still another city." The studio is in Culver City, which is also in Los Angeles. One airplane view of the vast plant—or you can substitute the map on opposite page—will amply demonstrate that M-G-M's plant is in every respect a city.

The studio has its own police force of one hundred men. More than 150 arts and crafts are represented in its organization. Four thousand employes labor within its gates, barring executives and actors. The studio phone set-up has one thousand stations and handles more long-distance telephone calls than are handled in the average city of fifty thousand population. During the filming of "Romeo and Juliet" the wardrobe department costumed as high as five thousand extras a day and the make-up department handled 1,200 extras an hour.

The company's own electric plant serves the studio with enough current to meet the needs of a town of 25,000 people. More than 2,700 people are served in the studio commissary each day, and M-G-M runs its own lumber mills, its own railroad, its own mechanical and carpenter shops. There is a well-organized fire department as well as a police department.

In short, M-G-M has everything that any other studio has but in wholesale lots. It's Hollywood's sixty families. Only Leo, the king of the jungle, could possibly serve as its mascot and symbol.

Just as at other studios, one genius more than any other is responsible for this success—Louis B. Mayer. Starting as a theater operator in Haverhill, Mass., Mr. Mayer took a small theater and in almost no time at all had run it up into a chain of powerful theaters with their own film exchange in Boston. He was also one of the founders of the old Metro Film Company, which numbered among its stars Viola Dana, Bert Lytell, May Allson and Mme. Nazimova.

Mr. Mayer's interest in film-making grew out of his own difficulty in securing good films for his theaters, and he was shrewd enough to understand that, with the golden day of the motion-picture theater at hand, others would have the same troubles. So, taking his family, he moved to Los Angeles. There he took over the old Selig Studio, hired Irving Thalberg as an associate, and signed such stars as Norma Shearer, Mildred Harris, Chaplin, Anita Stewart and Renee Adoree to Mayer contracts. He made several box-office hits, among them "The Child Thou Gavest Me," "Women Who Give" and "The Dangerous Age."

Sixteen years ago the Loew chain of theaters found themselves having the same sort of difficulties in getting good film attractions that Mr. Mayer had had. They decided to do something about it—more particularly, to make their own films. They had what it takes—money, the outlet and, by negotiation, Mr. Mayer.

ices, shops, mills, dressing-rooms. The cartoon building, with its special equipment for making animated and color cartoons, is also in this group. Lot two contains a park and the permanent outside sets, like Carvel City, seen in the Andy Hardy films. Lot 3 is for exterior shooting entirely—a wide waste of great outdoors for the few westerns and outdoor pictures it turns out from time to time.

On lots two and three, visitors will find a good cross-section of the world. Streets on lot two are duplicates of famous thoroughfares the world over—New York, Chicago, Singapore, Berlin, London. On lot three, the back lot, is a jungle, a forest, a country estate with rambling green lawns, neatly trimmed shrubs. Next to it, a teeming city, and, farther on, a quaint little village. There is a prison here, with grim, gray walls; a zoo, a railroad station, ships that have never been to sea. Here is a wonderland that would make even Alice sit up and rub her eyes and cause the Mad Hatter to fall in a complete faint.

Mr. Mayer still finds time to take an active interest in the most minute of Leo's doings. He sits in at story conferences with writers, drops in on his producers regularly to check up on production, advises players on the lot. He even tells Robert Taylor what sort of clothes to wear.

Among the M-G-M films planned for 1941 are "Ziegfeld Girl," with Judy Garland, James Stewart, Hedy Lamarr and Lana Turner; Robert Taylor, who has just finished "Flight Command," is making "Billy the Kid"; "Men of Boys Town" will have Mickey Rooney and Spencer Tracy; the Rooney-Garland combine will be seen in "Babes on Broadway"; "The Yearling" and "Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde" are scheduled for Spencer Tracy. More of the Hardy Family series, the Maisie series and the Thin Man series will also be released.

Handling this gigantic production schedule are such producers as Hunt Stromberg, Pandro S. Berman, Milton Bren, J. Walter Ruben, Jack Cummings, John Considine, Jr., Gottfried Reinhardt, Mervyn LeRoy, Joe Mankiewicz, Sam Zimballist and others. Directors on the lot include Busby Berkeley, Harold S. Bucquet, Frank Borzage, Clarence Brown, George Cukor, Leslie Fenton, Victor Fleming, George B. Seltz, Norman Taurog, W. S. Van Dyke and King Vidor.

In charge of the immediate mechanics of picture-making is general manager of the plant, Ed Mannix. Howard Strickling, who has personally known and been the confidant of every star who walked through the M-G-M portals since the studio gates were first opened, handles the great stream of publicity which flows out from this studio to all parts of the world in eighteen different languages. As a matter of fact, few key men have left M-G-M except through death.

In 1927 Marcus Loew, president of M-G-M, died. Nicholas Schenk, who had been associated with Loew from the outset, succeeded him. Mr. Mayer is still vice president in charge of production. And Leo the Lion, who has had his tail twisted by Nazis—who didn't like his anti-Nazi films like "Escape"—and his foreign market cut to a shadow of its former stature, still roars proudly as each new film opens, a symbol that all's better than ever with the colossus of the West.

As executive vice president of this new colossus of the West, Mr. Mayer's first step was to consolidate the Metro Studios with his own modest establishment and a few months later to negotiate the purchase of the vast physical Goldwyn holdings, calling it all Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer.

FROM the very start M-G-M outshone the others with such stellar attractions as Mae Murray, John Gilbert, Lillian Gish, Antonio Moreno, Lon Chaney, Ramon Novarro. Their first super-super-special was the breathtaking "Ben Hur." They followed that with such smashing successes of the silent days as "The Merry Widow," "Flesh and the Devil," "The Big Parade," "The Temptress."

Success begets success and M-G-M—more than a swaddling whelp when it first appeared upon the Hollywood scene—grew and grew. It's still growing today.

The studio comprises 117 acres of soil that is every inch productive. For production purposes, it's divided into three lots. Lot one contains the almost always busy thirty sound-stages, of-

DEANNA DURBIN, youthful Universal singing star, has broken a stellar precedent for Hollywood by making this film her ninth consecutive "hit." Heretofore no other star has managed to achieve more than three "hits" in succession. Tailored to the growing talents of Miss Durbin, who, in real life as in the film, is actually engaged, "Nice Girl" will present a Deanna somewhat different—older and lovelier, yet still the fresh, wholesome type—from the Deanna to whom audiences are accustomed. For example, there is a scene in which the starlet appears in a man's apartment clad in scarlet pajamas, and some of the "fake" kisses administered by Franchot Tone during the course of the film are far from fatherly pecks at a child's forehead. Otherwise all of the ingredients which have gone into Durbin hits of the past are to be found here—tuneful melodies, a strong supporting cast (perhaps the strongest she has yet had) and perfect production at the hand of Joe Pasternak, who discovered Deanna and has handled all of her productions since her film debut. Film will be released this week.

THE LOVE-STORY of Sue Creighton (Virginia Gilmore), daughter of the builder of the Western Union telegraph line, and Richard Blake (Robert Young, left), a young worker, and Vance Shaw (Randolph Scott), scout for the workers, is told against the epic and heart-breaking story of how men pierced the wilderness with wire

EVEN Abraham Lincoln said that it couldn't be done, that it was a wild scheme. But Edward Creighton fought off wild Indians, braved the desert heat and the cold of mountain passes to build 1,100 miles of telegraph line across wilderness where few human feet had trod to link the East with the West. And now Darryl Zanuck has done it again as a brilliant encore to one of the most important feats in the winning of the West. The heroic tale of Creighton's struggle against seemingly insuperable odds is told again in "Western Union," with Dean Jagger (remembered for his portrayal of Brigham Young) in the part of Creighton. When the line was completed to Salt Lake City, the first message sent over it was an assurance to President Lincoln from Brigham Young (again played by Jagger in the brief sequence) that Utah was loyal to the Union in the impending struggle. Again the movies outdid history. It cost Creighton $212,000 to build his line. It cost 20th Century-Fox $1,300,000 to duplicate his feat, and throw in a love-story for good measure. "Western Union" is being released nationally this week.

The Animal Kingdom, where pets of the stars reign

HOLLYWOOD, like any other town, has its pets. Frank Whitbeck, advertising executive at M-G-M, has three elephants which, off and on, work in the films. Katharine Hepburn used to keep a monkey. But, like in other towns, dogs are far and away the most popular pets. Shining example of how stars treat their dogs is afforded by the See-Are Kennels, occupying five acres filled with dog-runs and assorted buildings. These kennels grew out of Charles Ruggles' (he is the owner) love for dogs, and among those who patronize the See-Are Kennels are Barbara Stanwyck and Bob Taylor, Herbert Marshall, Jimmie Gleason, Kay Francis, David Rose, Boris Karloff and Martha Raye. The average dog registration there is one hundred; the cost ranges from fifty cents to a dollar per day, depending upon the size of the dogs. A veterinarian is on duty always.

THE METROPOLITAN OPERA COMPANY PRESENTS "FIDELIO" BY LUDWIG VAN BEETHOVEN, IN TWO ACTS, NBC. The cast: Leonore, Kirsten Flagstad, soprano; Florestan, Rene Maison, tenor; Rocco, Alexander Kipnis, bass; Don Fernando, Herbert Janssen, baritone; Don Pizarro, Julius Huehn, baritone; Marcellina, Marita Farrell, soprano; Jacquino, Karl Laufkoetter, tenor.

Because the libretto of "Fidelio," in which womanly faith and devotion triumphs over political persecution, appealed to Beethoven's liberty-loving soul, he wrote what many consider to be truly inspired music for his only opera. Best-known excerpts from it are the "Leonore Overture No. 3," the third he composed for it, now played between the two scenes of the last act, and Leonore's great aria, "Monster! Whither do you haste?" The music is highly symphonic in character and exceedingly difficult for singers.

The story takes place in a fortress prison near Seville, Spain, in the eighteenth century. Florestan, a Spanish nobleman, has been wrongfully imprisoned by Don Pizarro, cruel governor of Seville, who has spread a false report of Florestan's death. Leonore, his devoted wife, refuses to believe the report, and, disguising herself as a man under the name of Fldello, she finds employment under Rocco, the head jailer. Marcellina, Rocco's daughter, falls in love with the supposed man, to the despair of the turnkey, Jacquino, who loves Marcellina. The two women, Jacquino and Rocco sing an enchanting quartet, "It is so wonderful." Don Pizarro, hearing of the imminent arrival of Don Fernando, Minister of the Interior, orders Rocco to kill Florestan, and, when he refuses, decides to do it himself. Leonore overhears the plot, and sings of her despair in the famous "Monster! Whither do you haste?" aria. She obtains permission for the prisoners to walk in the courtyard and they sing a touching chorus expressive of their joy at again seeing the sunlight. In Act II Leonore has been ordered to dig Florestan's grave. Brought in by Rocco, Florestan is so pale and haggard his wife at first does not recognize him, but realizes his identity when Don Pizarro tries to stab him, and saves him by throwing herself between the men and leveling a pistol at Don Pizarro's head. A trumpet call announces the Minister's arrival. He frees Florestan and duly punishes Don Pizarro.

THE FREE COMPANY, CBS. Premiere of a new special drama series in the interest of democratic freedom.

Everybody talks about subversive activity and alien propaganda. Some people and organizations are doing something about it. "The Free Company," for instance. "The Free Company" is a new volunteer group of American authors and entertaining artists formed specifically to strike another blow at dangerous foreign propaganda.

The group is launching this week a radio series as its chief weapon, donating their services to the cause. Among the literary figures who will write special plays are James Boyd and Robert E. Sherwood, officials in the group. Marc Connelly, William Saroyan, Maxwell Anderson, Orson Welles, Stephen Vincent Benet, Sherwood Anderson, George M. Cohan, Paul Green and Archibald MacLeish. Celebrated actors will also contribute their talent. The vehicle for the premiere is not yet announced.

GREAT PLAYS, NBC. "The Victorian Era."

Not a golden age, but a gilt age was the Victorian era in English drama. While the whirring wheels of the industrial revolution were generating powerful social and economic changes also, playwrights failed to visualize the scope of the realities about them. And the people's thirst for entertainment pushed artistic values backward. Thus was born the commercial theater of today—a theater which asks first, "How long will it run?" and second, "Is it a great play?"

In an original radio script by Welborn Kelley, "Great Plays" will this Sunday sum up Victorian drama.

SILVER THEATER, CBS. Olivia de Havilland, guest star, in "Drawn by Lot," by Robert Riley Crutcher.

There isn't much doubt that Uncle Sam's military conscription program would go over the top by volunteer action if eligible draftees were convinced some lovely lady like actress Olivia de Havilland would "adopt" each of them.

That's something for futile sighing, in reality. But in "Drawn by Lot" potential soldiers and others can get a kick out of the vain sighing. It's the story of an officer's daughter who decides to "adopt" some of the boys in training. The officer's daughter will be played by Olivia de Havilland, recently recovered from an appendectomy.

SCREEN GUILD THEATER, CBS. Bing Crosby, Bob Hope and Betty Grable in "Altar Bound."

It's an event when that balmy and jaunty pair, Crosby and Hope, team up on the screen. Their inimitable collaboration will be a radio event on "Screen Guild Theater" this Sunday. More than that. The pair, supported by Betty Grable, will breeze musically and mirthfully through a script of their own original writing called "Altar Bound."

LUX RADIO THEATER, CBS. Marian and Jim Jordan in "The Whole Town's Talking," by John Emerson and Anita Loos.

Radio's humorous, homy Fibber McGee and Molly (in real life Mr. and Mrs. Jim Jordan) will make one of their very rare radio appearances outside their own mythical Wistful Vista this week. They will visit "Lux Radio Theater" to play in "The Whole Town's Talking," which was filmed several years ago with Edward G. Robinson starring.

Crosby and Hope on "Screen Guild" Sun.; big "freedom" drama series starts Sun.; McGees on "Lux" Mon.

By Don Moore

Soft-hearted, big-talking Fibber should be right at home in the role of the goody-goody guy who pretends to have a lurid past, which is revealed as just a false front—but only after some whimsical but exciting happenings.

Waxwacky is this story of a man and a woman who inherit together a waxworks museum containing reenactments of famous crimes. DEATH VALLEY DAYS, NBC. Starring John MacBryde, Jean King and Geoffrey Bryant in "God's in His Heaven."

Browning phrased it, "The lark's on the wing, the snail's on the thorn, God's in His heaven—all's right with the world." In this week's Old Ranger's story a similar message takes this dramatic form: Seeds of violet and mignonette planted in a desert garden come up according to the measured processes of Nature and restore happiness to an old couple who had begun to think the world was moving too fast for them.

With this touching story as a springboard, the Old Ranger will launch his annual garden-seed offer. The offer this year includes a special feature called "America in Flowers," a packet containing seeds of flowers to represent all of the forty-eight states.

teams with husband Ken as announcing duo; Edward G. Robinson, who plays the starring role of Steve Wilson; Ona Munson, who is Lorelei, Steve's girl reporter; Crane Wilbur, producer of "Big Town" dramas

"BIG TOWN"

ASSIDUOUSLY, in four years, Edward G. Robinson has built the imaginary editor of "Big Town's" Illustrated Press into a stand-out radio character (heard Wednesday over CBS). Editor Steve Wilson and his ace reporter, Lorelei Kilbourn (played by Ona Munson), have attacked every possible kind of racket. Crowded tenement districts, silk-stocking areas, honky-tonks and gambling-houses have been their field. Murderers, dope and card-sharp rings, reckless drivers, racketeers have been their game. Assisting them in this aerial crime-stalking at various times have been Mel Ruick, Noel Madison, Jerry Hausner, Joe Kearns, Elliott Lewis, Paula Winslowe and Don Ryan.

The success of "Big Town" can be attributed chiefly to three or four persons. One of them, obviously, is

Mr. Robinson. Mr. Robinson first won acclaim as a versatile actor on the American stage, then turned to motion pictures, where he has portrayed crooks and gangsters as brilliantly as last year he portrayed the great Dr. Ehrlich. His record speaks for itself. Ona Munson made her first impression in vaudeville and musical comedy, teamed with Robinson on the radio in "Five Star Final." But the starring team's share in "Big Town's" success is hardly larger than is Leith Stevens'—radio music genius who conducts, and frequently writes, the mood music of the drama. The work of producer Crane Wilbur, likewise, is outstandingly important.

"Big Town" has proved its appeal to many listeners—to those who like blood and thunder, to those who like a moral, to those who like good drama.

FIRST FAMILIES OF RADIO

CINDERELLA of SONG

The Met's girl prima donna is radio's Jean Dickenson

LAST year a slip of a girl did what many people have passionately tried to do for a lifetime. She made her full-fledged debut at the Metropolitan Opera at the age of twenty-two. Already she had spent two years as soprano star of radio's "Album of Familiar Music," on which you may hear her Sunday over NBC. Yet Jean Dickenson still is barely more than a schoolgirl, trying, as Cinderella, to realize that the clock isn't going to strike midnight. Jean was born in Montreal, Canada, but she's not Canadian. She was brought up in India, but she is an American. It was when the travels of her engineer-father had led the family to Denver that Jean's lovely soprano voice was discovered. It was to Denver, also, that NBC officials came to sign her for a national broadcast. And when she went to New York as a radio singer, it was Lily Pons who sought her out and guided her along a path which led to the glittering Diamond Horseshoe. These pictures of the slim, dark-eyed beauty tell more romantically than words how Jean Dickenson—still a typical American girl—has become a prima donna, a Cinderella of Song.

LEFT: Here is the Jean Dickenson most people know—a sensitive Kitty Foyle who spends long mornings at music and Italian lessons. It was thus that she won her place on "Album of Familiar Music," which is starring her for fourth year

AS GLAMOROUS PHILINE in "Mignon," Miss Dickenson made her debut at the Metropolitan a year ago. To those who knew this 22-year-old girl, it seemed like a fairy-tale—a Cinderella story

LEFT: Jean is a home body, likes to cook, especially dishes of India, where she was brought up. She lives in New York with her parents, has a prim white room with stiff, frilled curtains. She dresses simply, smartly in college-girl clothes

RIGHT: Girlishly, Jean likes rope-jumping, gymnastics, plays badminton, swims. Although she has adult interests, such as collecting old brass candelabra, tapestries, Mlle. Jean Dickenson, prima donna, is still a typical American girl

BAND OF THE WEEK honors go to old-timer Mal Hallett. Mal was a big-time bandleader when most of today's crop were in knee-pants, and his present outfit boasts two crackerjack musicians—Joe Caronaro, bass, Buddy Welcome, saxophone. The Hallett band broadcasts over NBC

OFTENTIMES we are privileged to witness a bandleader's meteoric rise to greatness—a rise that many times is attended by an equally swift descent into near-oblivion. In no other profession is public taste so fickle. Naturally, there is only one answer to this sort of capriciousness—a bandleader must keep abreast of the constantly changing music preferences. That Mal Hallett has successfully followed this rule is evidenced by the fact that he is still kicking out with the same old-time gusto at one of New York's bigger hotels. Mal was a bandleader when most of the leading batoneers of today were mere kids. In fact, he began his professional music career at the tender age of fourteen, playing the violin with a pianist at a small Boston cafe. Mal, by the way, was born in "Bean Town" in 1903. He still maintains a residence there, although his band duties keep him on the road most of the time. Hallett's first contract was received by winning out over eight other small bands in an audition. He's had lots of radio experience, having broadcast when programs didn't need to be cleared and performers worked with carbon mikes. In those days a band was never timed, often working for two or more hours a night. Mal's first New York engagement was at the Roseland. His band at times has included players who later became bandleaders. Two of them are Gene Krupa and Jack Jenny. Jenny, however, recently gave up bandleading to return to the playing ranks. At present the Hallett orchestra contains two outstanding instrumentalists. Number one is Joe Caronaro, bass. Music experts consider him one of the best in the field. Number two is Buddy Welcome, who plays the saxophone. Buddy directed his own band and was a well-known Broadway personality when Hallett engaged him for his orchestra. The Hallett band in the picture above lines up as follows (front row, left to right): Mal Hallett, leader; Madeline Greye (seated), vocalist; Aukie Menard, Buddy Welcome, Gus Mackey and Simmons Thomas, saxophones; Vic Mondello, guitar; Jerry Perkins (seated), vocalist. Second row (left to right): Dick Wise, trombone; Joe De Paul, Don Durgin, Eddie Stress, trumpets; Lee Grimes, piano. Back row (left to right): Joe Caronaro, bass; Ernie Wright, drums.

For Mal's genius and foresight which has kept the band on top throughout the years, MOVIE-RADIO GUIDE nominates the Mal Hallett orchestra as the BAND OF THE WEEK! Next week: Tony Pastor and his band.

Bandata

In the future any songs that Larry Clinton writes will be published by BMI. His contract with an ASCAP publisher ran out December 31 . . . A lot of the big-name bands are going in for small jive combinations within the framework of the larger band. Among those who have taken up this idea are Woody Herman, Alvino Rey, Will Bradley, Jack Teagarden and Artie Shaw. And of course there's the Benny Goodman Septet, Raymond Scott's Quintet, Bob Crosby's Bobcats and Tommy Dorsey's Clambake Seven, which have been organized for some time . . . Richard Himber has picked up ten of the musicians which Artie Shaw laid off when he went east with the Burns and Allen program. They're now playing with the Himber band at the St. Francis in San Francisco. Himber, incidentally, is reported to be set with a former sponsor for an NBC spot starting March 4 . . . As a result of his exceptional record made at the State-Lake theater, Gray Gordon may return to Chicago in March . . . Carol Bruce is again singing with Ben Bernie, following his return to New York. Theater-appearance contracts kept her from going with him to the West Coast recently. To replace her, Bernie engaged the film lovely Shirley Ross, who is reported to be expecting the stork in May . . . Artie Shaw has literaried a book which bears the title, "Artie Shaw's Clarinet Method." It's on sale now . . . Xavier Cugat is suing the authors of "Mr. and Mrs. Cugat," claiming that the book makes the maestro look ridiculous and presents him as having been drunk at a party. Cugat's wife is Carmen, the band's vocalist . . . Dick Rogers has taken over the baton relinquished by

Will Osborne when he departed for Hollywood to begin a new career as a movie director . . . Cedric Adams, Minneapolis Star-Journal columnist, in presenting the Andrews sisters over WCCO there recently, ran into a tough problem. It seems Cedric wanted the gals to sing a couple of songs, but the station vetoed the idea unless the songs were cleared for broadcast by the New York office. And New York is a long way from Minneapolis! . . . Jimmy Dorsey's New Bedford, Mass., date went sour when someone stole his overcoat. Another maestro had his hat taken. Bandleaders are now cautioning those playing New Bedford dates not to carry anything with them that cannot be nailed down . . . Although Benny Goodman has been a top-flight radio attraction for several years, his new sponsor is taking no chances. Instead of immediately putting him on a national network, his drawing-power is first being tested locally over WJZ in New York.

Going Places AND HEARING THINGS

with Cornelius Vanderbilt, Jr.

THIS fortnight I have been angling up the Rockies from the Mexican border to the Canadian. I have covered 2,800 miles by car and 1,600 by rail. I have been in snow above my head in Sun Valley and have perspired in a winter Texas sun.

Everywhere I've been I've heard the nation discussing testimony given during the Lease-Lend bill hearings in Washington, D. C., first, and next the various forums of the air. The latter are today the cynosure of all ears, chiefly, I believe, because they give the average man a feeling he can do as well as and sometimes better than the big-shots interrogated. Over this he can stick his chest out and lord it over his less brainy neighbors. In fact, so popular have become these forums that in many spots I learned, quite by chance, forum parties are the latest form of polite social entertainment. You-come-to-my-house-and-bring-the-eats-and-I'll-let-you-listen-in sort of things!

The country is perplexed and anxious over Lindbergh's statements. Little love is lost throughout the West for General Hugh Johnson, but Lindbergh has always been a sort of hero. Some few still consider him as such. He might have kept his popularity had he not, either through a slip of the tongue—or deliberately—stated he didn't care which side won the European war. With civilization at the crossroads this was a brutally crude statement. With London undergoing a horrible nightmare and non-combatants subjected to indescribable terror, for anyone to wish a stalemate out of this war is scarcely understandable. The best one hears of Lindy today is, "Well, he was a good pilot."

Crossing Monarch Pass in a snow-storm, the highest highway through the Rockies, Denver's KOA constantly boomed in. At one time it was to announce a new ski and skaters' service—a bus which left the heart of Denver at 5:30 p.m. for Fred Sidles' beautiful Evergreen Inn, and returned again, leaving Evergreen at 10:30 p.m. Six bits for the round trip. At another it was to give complete highway and weather reports for the very territory through which I was about to pass—eleven thousand feet up in the air!

Somewhere thereabouts I became conscious of a local station in the area peeping shrilly forth that "To Drink-Drive Is to Disaster." I think the name of the town was Montrose, Colorado, but reception was unusually poor through the higher reaches of the Rockies.

I am carrying four different portable battery sets with me on this tour and have a Sonotone in my Buick. The latter even fades quite badly, and none of the battery sets is worth its salt away from the big cities, with the possible exception of the Zenith long-distance wave-magnet set. Even it is better on a train than in a car or plane.

Why no manufacturers have come out with a portable set for the traveling man is still a mystery. A couple of million men are on the road all the time selling somebody something. They form a big reserve for the manufacturer interested enough to cater to their whims. They don't have time to go to movies, and often after their day's sales are done they are so all in they simply go to bed and read. Any portable set which must meet their needs is either too heavy to carry, thereby becoming just another piece of baggage, or too small to be worth much in distance reception. I took this up in correspondence with Commander MacDonald, who makes the Zenith, a year or so ago, at which time he told me he didn't think there was a set on the market that was bug-proof. But I still insist there ought to be.

Rev. Harry Emerson Fosdick

A program I like a lot on Sundays comes from Sky Rest in Hollywood, California. It is broadcast by Mutual over the Don Lee station in Los Angeles. It's not preachy, stodgy, die-tatorial. It has a charm and an individuality all its own. A Sunday or so ago it was directed at a U. S. Army camp in Monette, Virginia. The lads there, we learned, were fourteen miles from the nearest post office. If they enjoyed it half as much as I did, careening over the West, they got their money's worth.

No choir of course can touch the Mormon Church's in Salt Lake City. And Dr. Fosdick's sermons are usually praiseworthy, but much of the religious background on the radio today savors too much of high-pressure-go-to-heaven-salesmanship. Each of us has a faith of his own. The wise minister never shoves; he urges.

Down in western Texas the interference from Mexican stations is terrific. One wonders sometimes if it is not purposeful. I remember well the work done by Nazi stations just after the war began.

Our Roving Reporter

CORNELIUS VANDERBILT, JR., who begins here a new series on radio, people and places, turned his back upon Fifth Avenue to carve an important niche for himself as a journalist of importance. Many of his notable scoops were scored through radio listening. We are happy to present this distinguished fan to our reader fans.

clears via Mutual. It is now constructing the third highest tower in Texas, 435 feet high. It will then respond to 5% wave on 1420 kilocycles and will furnish an unusually powerful signal for a local channel station. WFFA's 654-foot and KRLD's 475-foot towers only exceeded it. Construction will be completed by mid-April.

The four hundred sailors from the scuttled German liner Columbus, who are to be self-interred at the old CCC camp on the grounds of the U. S. Marine Hospital at Fort Stanton, New Mexico, will have any number of radios at their command. They will be in touch with their native country via short wave. I had a chat with Capt. Wilhelm Daehne, their wiry Prussian commander as he passed through El Paso the other day. The sailors have been on Angel Island in San Francisco Bay for some time.

From Kansas City—and it faded so badly I couldn't get the station—I learned one evening that the average monthly accidental death toll from automobiling in these United States is about 7,750! Forty years ago the tidal wave at Galveston killed six thousand persons—to that date the greatest disaster in the history of the nation. More traffic accidents occur throughout the country during the winter months than during the summer, chiefly on account of ice on city streets.

On January 26, from Washington, D. C., I listened attentively to William Green, president of the A. F. of L., and members of various trade unions in a discussion with Albert Warner, CBS' ace investigator. Particularly illuminating was labor's pledge not to tie up defense orders through strikes. And a new scheme for "staggering" jobs over week-ends so that there should be no blackouts on production schedules. It seems to me this method has already been suggested by Alfred E. Sloane, of General Motors, who I believe said at one time such a system would increase labor's productivity nearly ten percent.

Unique screwballs of the fortnight: 1. The jerk whom that Inquiring Reporter in Kenilworth, Illinois, singled out during the March of Dimes program the other evening, who said he spent his spare moments "biting dimes" to see if they were real.

"Previous to that what did you do?" the announcer asked.

"I was a sugar-peeper out in California," was the equally inane reply. "But dime-chewing is more remunerative."

3. The Goofy Headlines game, as played by a Chicago milk company.

Fred Bate, NBC's London correspondent who was injured in a December 8 Nazi bombing of the British capital, is now taking a complete rest near Mexico City. As he passed through New York he told newsmen: "I was sitting down to write my broadcast when the bomb hit. Geoffrey Toye, BBC music conductor, had just entered the door and I was getting up to greet him. When it hit all London seemed falling into the room. My only thought was that there was a fire going in the open grate and that it would burn down the building. Instead, everything was sucked down the chimney by the concussion. Neither Toye nor Florence Peart, my secretary, was injured. I was hurt in the left arm and shoulder, left side of my face and the tendons of my left ear were severed. I was not unconscious at any time."

Shed a tear for Colton, Calif., for there there is no live, laying hen . . . Western Union made the discovery. It all happened when Dave Lane, popular singer from WBT in Charlotte, N. C., arrived in Hollywood to appear February 7 on the Al Pearce show. Lane's cronies at WBT wired W. U. at Colton to purchase a large, live laying-hen and present it to the warbler in lower eight, car fifty-four, Sunset Limited, en route to Los Angeles. Accompanying the hen was to be a telegram suggesting that Lane could take lessons from the hen "Maisie" on how not to lay an egg on the Pearce broadcast . . . But the telegraph company couldn't find a hen in all of Colton—in the heart of the orange country—so sorry! But Lane laid no eggs, regardless.

"Andy" Can Now Go Places

When Charlie (Amos' Andy) Correll celebrated a birthday the first of this month, he informed CBS reporters that his gift loot had been bountiful but practically useless. Largest present was an ancient 1919 model touring car fitted with one tire, stationary wheels, lacerated top, moth-eaten upholstery with pecking springs, and the whole wrapped in cellophane and bearing the card: "Happy Birthday to Andy from Amos (Freeman Gosden) and the Fresh Air Taxicab Co., Incorporated." Another package Andy opened revealed a mammoth Daniel Boone coonskin hunting-cap and a "Rabbit Hunter's Diploma" from friends Norman Taurog and cameraman Charlie Salerno at M-G-M Studios.

Roll Out the Barrell

Sharon Douglas, leading lady of the "Second Mrs. Burton" serial over the CBS Pacific network, has changed her telephone number. She wouldn't have, ordinarily, but she got tired of answering and saying, "No, this is not the Blank Brewery!" Seems that a local brewer made a typographical mistake and printed Sharon's phone number on his invoice forms. So Miss Douglas had her number changed to avoid the rush orders for "another keg!"

Taglines

Gene Autry was reelected February 3 to the office of mayor of North Hollywood . . . Bob Hope thumbed down an invitation of the Hollywood C. of C. to become the mythical town's mayor because it would interfere with his playing of the "benefit circuit", besides, said Bob, "If I get into politics, I might be elected President, and look how long they keep you there!" . . . Rudy Vallee has resigned from the Vis-O-Graph Corp., makers of "lookle" juke-boxes; he hasn't enough time to give to the company.

DON MOORE

MORE THAN four years on CBS, the "Bachelor's Children" sketch will go over to NBC, beginning March 24, but will remain also on WGN locally for a while longer. The cast of the much-loved serial is expected to remain intact, with Hugh Studebaker starring as Dr. Graham.

WHAT'S your radio idea? A new radio show bows to the voice of the listener. Starting March 2—subject to final network approval of the idea—a new program called "What's Your Idea?" will be launched on NBC, sponsored by Mars, Inc., the company which brings you "Dr. I. Q." ("I have an idea here, Doctor!"). The program aspires to be a sort of listeners' showcase, presenting radio ideas submitted by listeners. The regular talent will include as emcee tall, light-hearted and handy-tongued Don McNeill (voted best master of ceremonies in last year's Movie-Radio Guide Star of Stars poll), Ted Pio-Rito's band, short Jackie Heller with the high tenor voice (returning to radio after several years' absence) and announcer Lynn Brandt. The show will go into the spot vacated by "Beat the Band," which has been relinquished by its sponsor in spite of a fine popularity record, because the cereal-making company wishes to concentrate on another new product.

Kay Comes Home

Kay Kyser came home to the town that cradled his "College of Musical Knowledge" and celebrated the show's third anniversary before 3,500 excited spectators in the Civic Opera House (Kay told the audience it was the largest they had ever had at one of the broadcasts). The nimble-witted, -tongued and -footed maestro outdid himself with his capers for the homecoming crowd before, during and after the show, and they gave him an ovation that was a tribute not only to his showmanship but also to his sentimental sincerity. Despite his finesse, Kyser's immense popularity stems largely from the fact that you can say, "There's a showMAN!" and put the emphasis wholeheartedly on the second syllable.

Contralto Nancy Martin's Caribbean cruise was highlighted by the discovery of two charming songs; a talk with one of two survivors of a torpedoed British ship about his dramatic seventy-two days before rescue, and a narrow escape from a Cuban masher who took the good neighbor policy too literally . . . Virginia "Helen Trent" Clark will take a Central American cruise late in March—her first winter vacation in many years . . . MBS baritone Lawrence Salerno and his wife, NBC organist Irma Glen, drove to Key West for an extended vacation . . . Joe "Josh Higgins" DuMond substituted for Salerno singing the "Helen Trent" theme song and earned himself a new nickname around the studios. "Ukulele Josh," they call him, because he had to learn to play the uke in a few days to accompany himself in singing the theme song.

Actress Gerson Trails Mink

Betty Lou Gerson (star of "Woman in White," "Mary Marlin") has been poring over police file photos in an effort to recover her mink coat, stolen when she left her seat during intermission at a local theater . . . On a recent week-end hundreds of kids in Chicago and vicinity scanned the sky continuously. Over a hundred planes from the vicinity's airports were dipping their wings as a signal greeting to the juvenile members of the "Captain Midnight" (MBS aviation sketch) "Secret Squadron" . . . After Evelyn Lynne read in her "Breakfast Club" "Dear Diary" a poem about announcer Bob Brown, concluding "Send any old box-top and get him today," she received dozens of assorted box-tops from women demanding Brown in return!

NBC'S INTERNATIONAL ENGLISH HOURS

TODAY the international stations of the United States of America are practically the only sources for accurate information, encouragement and entertainment that eager listeners of besieged Britain and the conquered states of Europe have. Thus, a real responsibility rests with our international broadcasters. To be convinced that they are fulfilling these obligations in a splendid manner you have only to listen to such heart-warming programs as "Friendship Bridge," broadcast regularly over WRUL (about which I will report more fully in an early issue), and the popular "English Hours" of NBC, broadcast daily over WNBI.

The English Hours, broadcast daily over WNBI (17.781, New York City, from 9:00 to 11:00 a.m. CST, are designed primarily to furnish accurate information and cheery entertainment to our friends in Great Britain and the Empire, and to NBC's vast English-speaking audience in all parts of the world.

The most important function of the English Hours is the regular daily presentation (at 9:00 and 11:00 a.m. CST) of unbiased news. Brilliantly edited by Hudson Hawley, news editor of NBC's International Division, and read by Tom Carey and Ken Smith, the daily fifteen-minute news periods of the English Hours are probably the most complete and impartial reports of any on the short waves in that language today. According to letters received at NBC, thousands of listeners abroad—and at home—state that they tune in WNBI to get the latest and the most accurate news. Unhindered by censorship these news flashes often reach foreign listeners long before they are able to read about them in their local newspapers.

There is, however, a lighter side to the English Hours. They include entertainment programs consisting of the best in recorded music, both classical and dance, together with numerous talks on various phases of American life and customs which have proved most popular with English listeners. The period from 9:00 to 11:00 a.m. CST is devoted to music, plays, special features and brief news bulletins. The feature portion of the English Hours opens at 11:00 a.m. CST with the "Star-Spangled Banner," followed by fifteen minutes of the latest news. Then there is a fifteen-minute period of music, followed, from 11:30 to 11:45, by a fifteen-minute talk. Three times a week (Mondays, Thursdays, Fridays) this talk is the Mail Bag, or answers by microphone to letters received during the week, conducted by Tom Carey. Once a week (Saturdays at 9:45 a.m. CST) Mr. Carey presents his very popular Highlights from Hollywood, a sort of Hollywood gossip column with a little music thrown in for good measure. Finally, the Hour winds up with fifteen minutes of Classical Gems, and three or four of the latest news bulletins sandwiched in at the end.

Tom Carey, writer and announcer of the English Hours, twenty-five years old, a graduate of Lawrenceville and Princeton, is the enthusiastic and friendly personality that has done much to make the English Hours one of the most outstanding international programs of the day. Mr. Carey understands the tastes of the British listener since he has spent considerable time there. Mr. Carey is always pleased to hear from listeners (each communication is answered personally and usually read over the air as well) and letters should be addressed to him in care of the English Hours, International Division of NBC, RCA Building, Radio City, New York, New York.

The regular features of the English Hours (time CST) follow:

STARLIGHT on Your Fashion Problems

By Betsy Alden

EMMMA LYON, the cook's devastating daughter who married Sir William Hamilton, ambassador to Naples, and later became the sweetheart of the famous English naval hero, Lord Nelson, was a gal who, from the standpoint of "oomph" or sex appeal or what-have-you, could have put Cleopatra and Helen of Troy and Hollywood charmers in the infant class. Acting was second nature to our Emma, and it is reported that one of her strongest attractions for the opposite sex (and mark this well, girls!) was her ability to pry out of each man who attracted her the type of woman he admired most and immediately cast herself in a similar role. There is no question concerning Emma Lyon's beauty at the time that she became her ladyship and began to pal around with Queen Caroline. There is some doubt of it later on, however, when she became involved with Lord Nelson and began to put on weight and lose the flower-like freshness of her appeal that Romney has immortalized on canvas in his famous portrait of her as Lady Hamilton.

VIVIEN LEIGH, famed as Scarlett, in latest role as Lady Hamilton

We are fortunate, however, in Vivien Leigh's portrayal of this ill-starred heroine, for she gives us the portrait of a girl standing at the very pinnacle of her loveliness, a radiant being with the poise of a goddess, the eyes of a bride, and the assurance of a young minx who merely has to extend one dimpled hand in a gesture of invitation for the object of her affection to come crawling to her feet.

All of which leads up to the question as to whether Vivien Leigh's brilliant impersonation of the ravishing Emma is going to give us a new type of glamour girl, just as her Scarlett O'Hara made us southern-belle-conscious, and ruffles and tiny waists and sloping shoulders and oblique glances through drooping lashes became suddenly and inescapably the charm gestures of the hour.

In the photographs that accompany this article you have two style portraits of Vivien Leigh in the role of her youthful ladyship, the one wearing the frock of pink net showing her at her most enchanting period, fragile, fluttering, a veritable pink bonbon of girlhood, looking much more like a valentine than like an every-day flesh-and-blood being.

The other portrait reveals her in an entirely different mood, mysterious rather than ingenuous, pensive rather than provocative, lovely in a manner that is a fascinating blend of innocence and sophistication.

You will notice that both of these photographs reveal Vivien Leigh as a tiny-waisted charmer, and, if this is to be a fashion "must" in the near future, you'd better think twice before indulging in a modern version of a Lady Hamilton costume until you've whittled down your individual measurements to style and glamour proportions. There's an old saying in fashion circles that your waist-line must be approximately ten inches smaller than your hips if you're going to present a convincing style portrait. How about yours today? Is your spirit eager to wear a Lady Hamilton frock but your flesh too abundant to take it?

For You From You!

One of femininity's most distressing beauty problems—that of hair on the upper lip—is about due for a blackout. Incredible as it sounds, you can get rid of "shadowy upper lip" for weeks at a time by using a new, scientifically prepared lip bleach that not only renders hair invisible but promptly discourages further growth. Think of being able to buy such a little miracle for the price of an ice-cream soda!

The house that long ago originated the idea of utilizing spice as a fragrance has recently created the most fascinating little "post-box" of toilet accessories in the same spirited scent. The set consists of toilet water, soap and talcum, plus a sachet with the appealing motto, "Remember me when far away!" For a bridge prize, a gift for one's mother-in-law, or a schoolgirl chum, this would be a most welcome selection.

Yes and No, Jean

Dear V. O. L.:

It seems that most people who write you are against studio audiences, so I have decided to defend them. I'm sure that if the people who write those letters were given a chance, they would surely be only too happy to see the stars. I know I would. So why try to get rid of those lucky folks who do get to see them?

Jean Jennings (15), Ridgeville, S. C.

• Dear Jean: Yes, there is a Santa Claus. There must be. We have a lot of fine radio programs. And some people get to see the programs, for which they should be happy. And no one should begrudge them the opportunity. And few do. But we're sure, Jean, that neither Santa Claus nor the majority of listeners—nor even you, Jean—appreciate those privileged few spoiling the entertainment for everybody else with too much noise.—V. O. L.

Less "Swell"

Dear V. O. L.:

I wish masters of ceremonies would find a word to express appreciation other than "swell." Too often repeated, it means nothing.

Miss Judy Price, Mahanoy City, Pa.—LEE BENNETT, baritone, started his professional career as a Shakespearian actor. He became a singer after he "found" his voice at college. Lee was born on July 4, 1911, at Lincoln, Nebraska. He was reared in a show-world atmosphere, for, as a boy, he traveled throughout the Midwest with his father, a Shakespearian trouper and director. Lee received his early education in Omaha, Nebraska, then was graduated from the University of Nebraska with an A. B. degree in 1931. He gained his first dramatic experience in high school and college weeks on the road with a Shakespearian stock company during summer vacations. Immediately after graduation, Lee joined the staff of station KFAB in Lincoln, becoming a triple-threat radio man as singer, announcer and producer of programs. He attracted the attention of Jan Garber late in 1932 and was offered the position of chief vocalist with the diminutive maestro's band. Lee is a serious-minded young man. Lee rides horseback the year around, turns to golf and swimming in the summer. He is married, has brown hair and eyes. Lee is six feet two inches tall, weighs 150 pounds.
