MOVIE-RADIO GUIDE:

The National Weekly of Personalities and Programs

A Letter From an Editor

DEAR Friends...

The notion that the readers of a publication are also the friends of its editor is old-fashioned by all modern precepts. Perhaps that is true in the case of some of our modern and more pushing periodicals, but I shall never admit it in connection with Movie-Radio Guide. So to my friends who are the readers of Movie-Radio Guide I address these words.

The simple fact is that I have resigned as editor of Movie-Radio Guide.

In a career devoted to editing, I have never met elsewhere such intelligent and appreciative readers. Nor have I read so many letters of helpful criticism and honest approval. In conducting a publication devoted to serving the listening needs of this nation, I have intended that Movie-Radio Guide should live up to its implied promise of providing complete information on all musical, dramatic and entertainment broadcasts. Your letters have told me how well we have succeeded. Your letters have inspired every member of our staff to do everything possible to insure accuracy and complete details.

I want you to know that my resignation does not affect this determination. Fresh hands and able brains will direct future policies designed to make Movie-Radio Guide a greater publication. Your own pleasure with it will be increased as its value becomes multiplied.

In dropping a responsibility which has been both inspiring and satisfying, I surrender to a personal ambition of long standing. The world is aghast as one crisis succeeds another. The challenge of great service confronts every one of us who believes in America. Today calls for dedication to that service; tomorrow calls for action. Whatever the morrow brings, I shall be ready. In that at least I feel that this ending of my editorship is a worthwhile step.

Curtis Mitchell

Whatever the morrow for Movie-Radio Guide, likewise I know my associates and successors will assure to you its proud boast that it "doubles your radio enjoyment." How much has been accomplished in these past six years only old readers will recall. First, we added rotogravure and its beautiful pictures; then came marvelous four-color covers, then the motion-picture section. As I write this, full of gratitude, the sun is turning crimson in a sky that stretches above a spring-touched earth. For both your publication and for myself, tomorrow is another glorious day.

Thanks,
 Curtis Mitchell.

EVEN though the late Florenz Ziegfeld does not appear as a character in M-G-M's "Ziegfeld Girl," the famed producer whose name is synonymous with feminine beauty and gorgeous melody would beam with pride at the sheer beauty of this film done in his memory. The story by William Anthony McGuire, who wrote many Ziegfeld shows, tells of a trio of youngsters who come to New York from different walks of life to be glorified by Ziegfeld, and what befalls them. Judy Garland, Hedy Lamarr and Lana Turner are cast as the girls. Others in the cast include Jimmy Stewart, Tony Martin, Jackie Cooper. Revived for the film was the famed musical-comedy team of Gallagher and Shean, shown at right. Al Shean (right) plays himself, but Gallagher, deceased, is Charles Winninger.

LIKING That Man

Kibbee's a grand guy who's never won an Oscar or turned in a poor performance

WHEN pudgy Mr. Guy Kibbee takes the time and effort to punish his expensive stomach by stooping over to tie his shoe-laces, it means he's going somewhere special and will be on display like a Polish ham in a delicatessen window. Mr. Kibbee doesn't like to tie his shoes or go on display.

There is an affinity between him and shoes. He likes the soft, mellow kinds of shoes that slip on easily and come off easier. His appreciation of old shoes is an insight into his character. A man who likes old shoes and old hats usually likes good tobacco and a good life. It would be only natural now, and properly trite, to say that Mr. Kibbee is as common as an old shoe.

But he's not common in Hollywood, where folks generally like tight, shiny shoes and fancy dolings. If Mr. Kibbee is common, then so are all the good things of life—families, food, fun and friends. For Mr. Kibbee is what Mr. Damon Runyon would call "a right honorable guy."

The first time I saw the gentleman he was standing in front of Warner Bros., staring tolerantly at a crowd heading for the premiere of "Virginia City." He had on a brown suit and a pair of old shoes. Many of the photographers snapping his picture looked more important than Mr. Kibbee. One of the photographers wore light-blue pants and a scarlet jacket. He looked like the master of the hounds who slipped on his coat and forgot to take off his pajama pants. Mr. Kibbee posed for the photographer and said, "Son, you must have sold a picture to Esquire and must have taken the sale out in trade."

The photographer didn't get it, so Mr. Kibbee said, "You look like proof of the mating of the rainbow and aurora borealis."

The photographer said pertly, "And you look like an old shoe. Where's your glamour?"

"Don't get personal. And don't be immodest. I'm a family man."

I remember turning to a friend and remarking, "That guy looks like he came from Texas. He looks like a Texas politician. He stuffs papers in his pockets."

Well, Mr. Kibbee is from Texas. El Paso, out where men wear wrist-watches and women wear pants and everybody wears boots that you don't have to tie.

He was born in El Paso in 1886. That makes him fifty-five, and he's too old and too smart to mess with the foolishness of glamour. His parents moved to Roswell, New Mexico, while he was very young and he stuck close to home until he was fourteen.

Then one day he buttoned his shoes, adjusted his gulluses, fingered the crease in his peg-legged britches and went to New York, where his brother, James, managed a small road company. Brother Jim gave little Guy a job as property-man's assistant and the boy hit the road. He learned mathematics by figuring out time-tables, history by seeing where things happened and sociology by living. And he learned tolerance and good-fellowship and a way of life that is beyond the understanding of less fortunate men who wear tight, shiny shoes and never enjoy belly laughs.

One night Brother Jim needed a new man in his cast and Brother Guy stepped into his first role, a bit in "Convict's Daughter"—a stirring old melodrama. He was sixteen.

Since then he has worked in more than three hundred thirty shows. Some good, some bad, some excellent and some downright inappreciable.

"Roaming around like I did," he said, "taught me what little I know. I was sometimes up and sometimes down, but I learned that man is a pretty good animal under most conditions. He's a social animal and usually honest. In knocking around I formed my philosophy that life pretty nearly always gives back what you put into it."

Mr. Kibbee has the most expensive stomach in Hollywood and calls for such delicate trifles as roast pheasant with sauerkraut, macaroni and cheese, stuffed chili peppers, Philadelphia scrapple and trilled chicken. He's a trencherman. In Hollywood they call him a gourmet, but he's a trencherman. He never watches his weight and his idea of fun is to untie his shoes and sit down to all the food he wants.

He was dining recently at the home of a friend who served fried chicken. Finally, satisfying his appetite, which is like a vacuum cleaner's, Mr. Kibbee said, "I'd like to kiss the rook who did this."

His host said it could be arranged, and a few seconds later a huge, grinning face of the colored cook loomed in the doorway. "Heah Ah is, Mist' Kibs," she said.

Mr. Kibbee blushed and kissed her on the forehead.

Usually he's the first person in Hollywood to go to bed and he's usually the first one up. When working, he hits the hay about seven-thirty and is up at five. By six he has his morning paper and his stack of wheat cakes and syrup.

Recently his eight-year-old daughter, Shirley, was having breakfast with him and asked, "Daddy, when are we in heaven?"

Between bites Daddy said, "Well, if we're happy and make everyone else happy I reckon that's heaven."

Shirley said, "I don't know about making others happy, but if being happy means you're in heaven, then you look like an angel when you eat wheat cakes."

WHEN not working, Mr. Kibbee can be found by seven a.m. at the Lakeside Country Club, where he golfs. And he golfs for fun, not publicity. His cronies include Clarence Budington Kelland, the old master who does the Scattergood Baines stories and who has applied the mass-production technique to literature; Grantland Rice, the patriarch of the sports-writing fraternity; Chubby Henry Mc-Lemore, the Georgia Cracker and one of the few really funny men in the world; and Johnny Weissmuller, who's just Johnny Weissmuller.

You can tell a man by his friends. I do not know Mr. Weissmuller, but the other fellows simply never waste their time on uninteresting people. I dare say there is not another movie star in the world who can number among his cronies such an array of good guys.

Scattergood Baines is going into the movies with Kibbee as Mr. Baines.

In 1927 he married Brownie Reed and they live in Beverly Hills. There's a wide lawn where he romps with his two youngsters, Guy, Jr., five, and Shirley. Between pictures he usually runs away for week-ends to hunt and fish.

A visitor on the Scattergood set cornered him the other day and asked the inevitable question, "Tell me, Mr. Kibbee, is it true that Hollywood stars lead a wild life?"

Mr. Kibbee wrinkled his brow. "Well, I for one have been leading a wild life. Monday I had quail; Tuesday, wild duck; last night, venison; and tonight I'm having pheasant from Nevada."

He is what romantic but generally bachelor and spinster writers call the pal type with his children. As a matter of fact, Mr. Kibbee is intelligent enough to know that the best way to get along with children is to treat them as equals, take their problems seriously, demand obedience but let them speak their minds.

At a luncheon with his son, Papa was munching on a piece of chocolate while the boy struggled with his spinach. (And California can pound its chest and shout about its vegetables, but it's still spinach.)

Anyway, the boy looked at his father a long time and finally said, "You sure take good care of yourself while I mess around with this stuff."

Mr. Kibbee is a great story-teller and the funny ones usually are on himself. Anybody can tell funny stories about the other fellow, but it takes a good man to kid himself. One of Mr. Kibbee's favorites is about his daughter. She was at a summer camp and one day the following letter arrived:

"Dear Daddy:
"They told me I couldn't have anymore horseback lessons until I wrote to Daddy and Mother. Here it is.

"Love,
"Shirley Anne."
Most of his stories are about him and his children. He laughed the loudest one evening when he was clowning for his children and Shirley said, "I get tired of Daddy always being funny."

Mr. Kibbee is the only man in the world who ever tried to insure himself against making a hole in one. He had been laying them close to the cup and inasmuch as his club had a standing rule that every hole-in-one must treat the club, Mr. Kibbee tried to protect himself.

And it wasn't just for a gag. He's a conservative man with his money. His wife helps with the budget and his money is soundly invested. There has been a report that he might retire, but it's not true. "If I retired I'd starve to death," he said. But Mr. Kibbee will never starve. He has a lifetime contract to portray Scattergood Baines.

He's in perfect health because he refuses to worry. "Live and let live," he says, "and nature will do the rest."

One of his funniest stories about himself concerns the day he drove into a gas station and an attendant rushed out with a camera. Obliging, Mr. Kibbee got out and stood by his car, waiting to have his picture snapped. "Oh, no," said the attendant. "I want you to take my picture. I want one in my new uniform to send to my mother."

Next to staying up late, his pet hate is dressing up. Mrs. Kibbee says it's a career to get him into a tuxedo.

"Two years ago," she said, "I wheeled Guy into wearing a tuxedo to a premiere. When we got there I discovered he was still wearing golf shoes and they were not laced."

He simply refuses to stoop over and lace his shoes unless it is absolutely necessary. Shirley came in the other day and said, "Daddy's going somewhere big. He's just laced his shoes."

The children have become movie-conscious. Shirley even thought once that her father should go in for a bit of glamour and asked him to reduce, take fencing lessons, learn how to kiss ladies' hands and wear a toupee. Instead of laughing at the child, Mr. Kibbee waited several weeks and came home from the Scattergood set wearing a wig. Shirley hollered blue murder at the stranger in their midst and has never pestered her father again.

He is one of the best all-rounders in town. He met Victor McLaglen one day and they shook hands. Mr. Kibbee's chubby right dsappeared into McLaglen's massive mitt. "Good Lord," said Mr. Kibbee, "a black-out!"

Despite his many travels and varied experiences, he suffers nostalgia for his childhood when he went to school in a tent under the hot New Mexican sun. As a boy he also hunted antelopes with greyhounds and enjoys talking about it.

He likes Hollywood but says that seeing himself on the screen is like watching a stranger. He came to the Coast from a Broadway show called "Torch Song," and his first picture was "Man of the World," which featured Bill Powell.

HE IS best known as a comedian, but his finely drawn characterization of Editor Webb in "Our Town" really proved his genius. The boys who think seriously in Hollywood realize that among the good actors are Mr. Kibbee, Thomas Mitchell, Albert Basserman and Walter Brennan. They seldom are starred but they usually are good.

Warners typed Kibbee as a sugar-daddy, but his best role was Editor Webb. He was pretty good in "Chad Hanna" but is expected to do his best work as Scattergood.

His one remaining ambition is to portray the life of Benjamin Franklin. I'll lay odds that if and when Hollywood does Mr. Franklin it'll be hashed up, and the great sly, crafty statesman will not be pictured as he really was—a behind-the-door schemer, something of a philanderer, a bit of a wastrel and a man who carried his honor on his sleeve.

They say in Hollywood that Mr. Kibbee has studied Franklin's life closely. If so, he knows that the old boy was quite a rounder, so we hope that if Mr. Kibbee does do his life, he

Academy Award Banquet

The Winners! Here are the "bests" of the year in films

TOP statuettes for acting ability in 1940 were awarded to Ginger Rogers, for "Kitty Foyle," and Jimmy Stewart, for "Philadelphia Story," at the thirteenth annual banquet of the Motion Picture Academy of Arts and Sciences. More than twelve hundred studio employes, directors, actresses and others affiliated with films cast ballots which resulted in the final selection. For the first time in its history, the banquet was signally honored by having President Roosevelt address it by radio. Assembled celebrities at the Biltmore Bowl heard the President praise the film industry for its part in preserving democracy. Other awards made were: For best supporting roles, Jane Darwell and Walter Brennan (this is his third);

THIS WEEK IN HOLLYWOOD

WHILE her flaming heart, actor Bob Sterling, wants Gene Tierney to elope, and rumors are that she went east last week to ask her Wall Street insurance-broker father for permission to wed him, the 20th-Fox starlet brushes conjecture aside with the quote, "He is a friend and an awful nice guy, but I have too much to do right now" . . . However, Lee Bowman made good this weekly's promise that he would elope with Helene del Valle; he did, and wed her February 22 at Tia Juana . . . George Brent celebrated Ann Sheridan's birthday by giving her a beautiful motor-car and taking her to the Seven Seas Cafe . . . Madeleine Carroll has plans to fly east to be with her Lieut. De la Rosierre as soon as she finishes "One Night in Lisbon" for Paramount . . . Oil on the Chaplin-Goddard waters: Charlie is planning to star her in a new picture, and recently gave her a llama robe and a fancy new stationwagon . . . Alice Faye declares it's only friendship for rich oilman Charles Wrightsman . . . Priscilla Lane and Victorville newspaper-editor John Barry are checking over wedding dates . . . The affectionate greeting Dorothy James, pretty twenty-five-year-old daughter of Governor Arthur H. James of Pennsylvania, gave Bill Lundigan when he met her at the train last fortnight was not romance, she said; Lundigan and Margaret Lindsay, former steadies, are said to have made up recently.

Shall Andy Hardy Go to College?

Leo the Lion is roaring over the question, to be or not to be? And the query in this case is, shall Andy Hardy go to work or to college? Having been graduated, with some difficulty, from high school in the currently playing "Andy Hardy's Private Secretary," the Hardy Family writers must figure out Andy's next most logical step. His screen dad, Judge Hardy, has been hoping Andy would study law at the Judge's alma mater. Then there's the national defense question to be considered, and perhaps Andy should become a dough-boy for a year. The latter possibility would offer many comical situations, and serious likewise. Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's story department, Culver City, California, would like to hear from Andy Hardy fans what to do with Andy. Send your letters there, and mention Movie-Radio Guide. Meantime, Mickey Rooney is having a swell time in Hawaii.

Portentful Potpourri

Bing Crosby is arguing with his studio to permit him to characterize veteran minstrel Honey Boy Evans on the screen . . . Within the year there's a good chance that Clark Gable and Norma Shearer will be teamed for the first time since "Idiot's Delight" to remake "Cimarron" for Metro . . . Answers to an actress' prayer: Ginger Rogers has forty-seven costume changes in RKO's "Tom, Dick and Harry" . . . Hedda Hopper will soon be seen in a series of short films dramatizing highlights of Hollywood . . . It's back to blond hair for Gene Raymond because of fans' protests at his brunette dye . . . Columbia Pictures has signed Lois Andrews (Mrs. George Jessel) . . . Half of Hollywood attended the cocktail party Nancy Kelly's parents tossed to welcome home daughter and new hubby, actor Edmond O'Brien . . . Intimates say that the wife of writer-producer Preston Sturges has invited the stork . . . John Carroll resumes his singing career in "Sunny" (for RKO), and does it so well that his home lot, Metro, has upped his price per picture from twenty thousand dollars to fifty thousand dollars; his next outstanding director, John Ford for "Grapes of Wrath"; outstanding production, David O. Selznick's "Rebecca" (last year Selznick's "Gone With the Wind" captured almost all Academy honors); a special award was made to Bob Hope—an award of merit for achievements in humanities—for his many benefit and charitable appearances. Hope, incidentally, served as master of ceremonies at the banquet. Annually attempts are made to keep the results of the balloting secret until actual announcements are made. This year the private auditing firm handling the tabulations didn't prepare results until just before banquet time, so secrecy was maintained. Oddly, the only male leading man among those nominated who was present was the winner, James Stewart. Both Stewart and Miss Rogers were surprised at the announcements and deeply moved. They both gave credit for their honors to the motion-picture directors who had schooled them, while Miss Rogers paid a special tribute to her mother, who is her closest adviser. Another interesting fact is that Jane Darwell, who was honored here, hasn't worked in films in the past seven months. Interesting also is the value in future contracts and earnings of an Academy Award winner as tabulated from past winners' performances. It is placed at the impressive figure of one hundred thousand dollars.

AWARDS FOR BEST SUPPORTING ROLES went to Jane Darwell, for her valiant mother of "Grapes of Wrath," and to Walter Brennan with her, for his keen and rib-tickling Judge Bean of "The Westerner"

OVERCOME AT BEING NAMED the best actress, Ginger Rogers was at a loss for words, felt real tears well up in her eyes. She closed her speech of thanks with "This is the greatest moment of my life" at M-G-M is "Lady Be Good" . . . 20th-Fox producer Kenneth Macgowan has shelved his weekly $2,500 salary to work for the government with Jock Whitney, improving Pan-American relations . . . Robert Montgomery is the 1941 president of the British War Relief Association of Southern California; auditor's report on the association for 1940 shows $412,032.27 received and only five per cent spent administratively . . . Patricia Dane is being given a new name and the promise of a long-term star build-up by Metro.

Saroomph Girl?

Either Warner Bros., Paramount, or some other lot soon is about to make peace with Ann Sheridan; most current story is that Paramount wishes to take over her contract from Warner Bros. with an idea of starring her in the South Sea Island screen play, "Dildo Cay," momentarily mentioned for Dorothy Lamour. Annie has been away from the screen for nearly six months now.

Important Castings

Metro will pair Lana Turner and Tony Martin, that real-life romantic duo, in "I Want You" . . . Warner Bros. has set Charles Laughton for the Alexander Woollcott part in "The Man Who Came to Dinner," and is seeking Rosalind Russell for the feminine lead . . . New plans call for two Johnny Weissmuller "Tarzan" films this year, and annually hereafter . . . Marlene Dietrich's stock rises: With "Flame of New Orleans" (Universal) finished and readying for release, Marlene is working in Warners' "Handle With Care," after which she is to return to a romantic comedy and star in "Miss Madden Is Willing" for Mitchell Leisen at Columbia . . . Don Ameche turns blacksmith for 20th-Fox in "Lazy Galahad," Joseph Schenk's tale of New England and the man picked as the nation's worst failure . . . Imagine W. C. Fields in a nursery! Co-starring with him in his next picture will be Gloria Jean and Baby Sander . . . Rita Hayworth's sudden demand since her break at Warner Bros. and at 20th-Fox (in "Blood and Sand") has earned her the star part in John Stahl's "Our Wife," soon to start at Columbia . . . Brazilian rich man Nelson Seabra contemplates starring Kay Francis in his first production effort . . . There is talk of casting the Miranda sisters, Carmen, twenty-six, and Aurora, twenty-three, in the same picture, "The Girls from the Amazon," at 20th-Fox; obstacle to be hurdled is the borrowing of Aurora from M-G-M, where she is under contract . . . Republic Studios has signed Ray Middleton, stage and opera-singing star, to a term and made him third lead in the John Wayne-Ona Munson $750,000-budgeted "Lady from New Orleans" . . . Eddie Foy, Jr., who clicked in "Scatterbrain," plays the comedy lead in Republic's "Rookies on Parade" . . . Change in plans: French actress Michèle Morgan will star first in "Journey into Fear" for RKO.

Sunny California Overflows

The steady downpour of rain for the past fortnight in southern California has cost the motion picture industry thousands of dollars in delays and played many tricks of havoc on its stars. Badman Barton MacLane was awakened one night by a rumble, got up to check on the sound, and narrowly escaped a huge boulder which crashed through his home's roof and onto the bed in which he had been sleeping. Fanny Brice's "Baby Snooks" birthday was postponed again on account of the mud. Lionel Barrymore was flooded out of his Chatsworth ranch and dubbed by his pals "Admiral of San Fernando Valley." John Litel suffered the loss of his beautiful new lawn and shrubbery, and holders of property in Canoga Park have been viewing it from rowboats. Gene Autry, planning a three-day vacation in northern California, was stymied by the rainstorm and floods, and Bob Hope, called for work on three successive mornings and then told that the weather would not permit making pictures, capped the situation by remarking, "Look, before you call me again check with the" (Please Turn to Next Page)

Story Market

"Louisiana Purchase" goes to Paramount for a reported price of $150,000 . . . Hollywood Theater Alliance is considering the offer of $250,000 in private capital for the picturization of its hit musical play, "Meet the People," broken in in Hollywood for over a year and now successfully playing the East . . . Warner Bros. is readying "The Gay Sister" for Bette Davis, and seeks Mary Astor under a long-term contract to co-star. The pair of actresses are excellent in the yet-to-be-

This Week on the Screen

"Tobacco Road"

Cast: Charles Grapewin, Marjorie Rambeau, Gene Tierney, William Tracy, Elizabeth Patterson, Dana Andrews, Slim Summerville, Ward Bond, Grant Mitchell, Zeffie Tilbury, Russell Simpson, et al. A 20th Century-Fox picture directed by John Ford, who also directed "Grapes of Wrath." Screen play by Munnally Johnson, from the play by Jack Kirkland.

"TOBACCO ROAD" took a detour at the direction of the Hays office road commission and turned from heavy, realistic drama to light burlesque and comedy.

Evidently John Ford's effort in "Tobacco Road" is to make the movie-goer laugh. This he succeeds in doing with the car-wrecking sequences following the acquisition of an automobile by Duke Lester (William Tracy) after his marriage to Sister Beatie (Marjorie Rambeau).

In the film, despite the restrictions imposed upon the screen adaptation by censorship limitations, the performances of the entire cast are truly dramatic-school lessons. But none rise quite to the heights of Academy Award timber.

WHAT THEY THOUGHT OF IT: Los Angeles Times (Edwin Schallert), ". . . slightly less robust study of life in the Georgia backwoods than the stage play . . ." Variety, "A magnificent job of picture-making."

Stanwyck and Fonda in "The Lady Eve"

Cast: Barbara Stanwyck, Henry Fonda, Charles Coburn, Eugene Pallette, William Demarest, Eric Blore, Melville Cooper, et al. A Paramount picture, produced by Paul Jones; written and directed by Preston Sturges, who also wrote and directed "The Great McGinty."

"THE LADY EVE" is the best picture Barbara Stanwyck or Henry Fonda ever made . . . but Preston Sturges, the Paramount writer-director phenomenon, had much to do with its manufacture. Essentially, this is a romantic comedy, and into it Sturges has injected those dramatic punches which made his "The Great McGinty" a standout.

The story: A card-shark (Charles Coburn) has an accomplice daughter (Barbara Stanwyck) who meets a snake-scholar (Henry Fonda) aboard ship on his return from an expedition. She falls in love with him, prevents her clever-fingered dad from fleecing him; he discovers her past, and the showdown calls off his romance. But Fonda is not safe. Miss Stanwyck sets the stage and crashes eastern society in America as a titled Englishwoman, the Lady Eve, and becomes the toast of a party at Fonda's father's house; he falls in love with her all over again, not realizing that it could be the same girl! He falls deliriously and happily in love, marries her at a formal wedding, after which—but to tell you would spoil what probably is one of the greatest light comedies to be screened during 1941.

HENRY FONDA, BARBARA Stanwyck in "The Lady Eve"

"The Lady Eve" has everything a romantic comedy should have, and more. Take the entire family to this picture.

WHAT THEY THOUGHT OF IT: Edwin Schallert (Los Angeles Times), "A funny comedy in any man's language, but extraordinary in its breathless vitality." Hedda Hopper, "Will wind up as THE comedy of the year, I'll bet you a big red apple."

"Nice Girl"

Cast: Deanna Durbin, Franchot Tone, Walter Brennan, Robert Stack, Robert Benchley, Helen Broderick, Ann Gillis, Anne Gwynne, et al. A Universal picture produced by Joe Pasternak and directed by William A. Seiter, who also directed "Hired Wife." Based on the play "Nice Girl," by Phyllis Duganne.

IN THIS picture, Deanna has her first drink of champagne on the screen, and even a sort of tepid affair with an older man.

Miss Durbin is one of the three daughters of a professor (Robert Benchley) who is a scientific author at heart. He is completing a book on vitamins and diet which he hopes will win him a fellowship to finance further research. Needless to say, Benchley turns in a terrifically funny performance. Franchot Tone arrives to check up on Benchley for the Foundation considering him for an award, and he is immediately set upon by Miss Durbin as a romantic ideal, to the disgust of boy friend Bob Stack. Her reactions make rare comedy.

Character actors Walter Brennan and Helen Broderick enhance this clever comedy.

WHAT THEY THOUGHT OF IT: Hedda Hopper, "Deanna Durbin's 'Nice Girl' as far as Deanna is concerned is charming." Jimmie Fidler, "A letdown for Deanna, but still head and shoulders over average fare."

WHIMSICAL, moody, a fighter at heart, Miss Fitzgerald has the stuff of which drama is made

FOR FUN AND FIGHT

Geraldine Fitzgerald is Irish to the core—and exciting!

By Lupton A. Wilkinson

EXCITEMENT in the star area of Hollywood hit its season high with the return to the screen of russet-haired, green-eyed Geraldine Fitzgerald. Miss Fitzgerald, a pet of the public since she appeared in her first American picture, "Dark Victory" with Bette Davis, had been absent many months, due to the advent of Michael Edward, her son, and a subsequent illness that forced her out of "South of Suez."

Geraldine is highly dramatic in her personal life—and lucky. She rehit the screen with Thomas Mitchell in "Flight From Destiny." (Tip-off: It's Tommy's picture, though; the male role predominates.) The colorful Irish girl went immediately—opposite the sensational James Stephenson who some critics think stole "The Letter" from Bette Davis—into A. J. Cronin's "Winged Victory," retitled "Shining Victory." Here's hoping that she there at last finds the meaty lead that the public's hunch has long demanded for her.

American audiences sense that some way this girl is the stuff of drama—all mixed up by nature with things exciting.

That hunch is right!

Even a few phases of this star's lively character and disposition will warrant the public's feeling. Geraldine is:

A superstitious person. She and her husband, brilliant and attractive young Edward Lindsay-Hogg, won't rent their rambling Irish home, because they believe it's a "good" house and might be affected if some unhappy or evil person should live in it.

A moody person. She can't stand rainy days. (You'll see why, when we glance at the crisis-times in her life.) And Geraldine is much affected by external things. The touch of garments of certain colors depresses her. You may wear them around her; she doesn't mind seeing them. But on her they plummet her spirits down, just as other colors, as soon as she puts them on, raise her to gaiety and optimism.

A patriotic person. It required all the persuasion of her American friends, and home pressure from Ireland, to prevent her return there last spring. She wanted her son to be born "on the sod of his forebears."

A generous person. She is a close friend and deep admirer of Orson Welles. The day she told me that I asked, "Isn't Mrs. Welles—back yesterday from a Las Vegas divorce—your house guest?" Green eyes snapped. "Certainly! Upstairs. She's my friend, too. Do you give up friends when they differ? I never give up one."

A fighting person. Hollywood found Geraldine startlingly belligerent till she began to understand the place. Interviewers discover her quick to flare at any attempted invasion of her privacy. And very forthright to tell you about it!

Though her "crises" have been illumined with gaiety, this young woman couldn't be anything but a fighter. What a childhood! What a life!

In the primary school at Greystones, thirty miles along the coast from Dublin, flourished what Geraldine calls "a delightful game." She chuckles describing it: "The entire lower grades each Monday at noon recess chose sides. We lined up, each child facing one of equal size. Then we just banged away until all on one side or the other were down." Asked about rules or purpose, her eyes shine: "I don't remember the details—just the grand fighting. And the winners were Bosses all week."

The Irish are remarkable people! Mrs. Fitzgerald, like the teachers, accepted this weekly, school-child war as normal fun. Nevertheless, the mother made one exception. Every so often she would write the principal a note: "Geraldine is not to be struck on the nose."

Geraldine wasn't satisfied with vanquishing the boys of her own size. By the time she was eight she had fought every boy in the lower grades except one. ("It's important," she makes clear, "that none of us fought because we were angry—only for fun.") Victor, the biggest boy, refused all challenges,

"'Fight with your brother?'"

"'Yes.'"

"'You should know better than to start a fight with someone so much bigger than you.'"

"That was all."

Geraldine dramatized herself—as an artist. She "painted, painted, painted. I never thought of any other future."

The family belief in freedom of action went to the child's head. "I talked like a grown person of established success. At eleven and a half, having started to attend the theater with older girls, I resented being told to come home at a given time. More than once I disobeyed."

DURING three years of convent life, drawing and painting were her solace. Home vacations seemed like heaven, but, true to family tradition, Geraldine didn't whine. She grew thinner and thinner, her eyes dark-ringed. In London, when she couldn't sleep at night (lights were out at 8:30), she would take pencil and paper from under the bed-cover and draw in the dark.

At fourteen and a half illness intervened; mother and father had a London talk with the sisters; Geraldine came home. "The family held a council and decided to treat me exactly as a grown young lady." Among those responsible for this decision was Shelah Richards, Mrs. Fitzgerald's sister, a leading woman at the famous Abbey. (But the theater, up to this time, had meant only recreation to Geraldine; acting as a career—the thought had never crossed her mind!)

Responsibility for her own conduct steadied the child, indeed too frail to practise much "hardy individualism." The family still regarded her as flighty, though—except in one thing: Every day of the next three years she studied art. "Drawing and painting were what I steered by; they were the solid part of me; certainly that I had them gave me my strength."

She had built her psychological house on sands!

Just turned seventeen, Geraldine delivered eight canvases to her teacher, John Keating. (He was afterwards to design the Irish pavilion at the New York World's Fair.)

He looked at them and said:

"I've taught you all I can."

"All right," exulted Geraldine, excitedly, "where do I go next? Paris or Rome?"

"I'd advise you"—Keating's voice was both light and blunt—"to go and get married."

Geraldine still shivers. "I knew what he meant, all right. No talent. I walked all that rainy afternoon in the hills. After all my confidence, my assumption that I was an artist!

"That afternoon I knew complete despair."

Suddenly came a hysterical feeling of relief—a release. Geraldine recalls: "I said to myself, 'I'll never have to draw or paint again, except for fun!'"

That night she gave up—it had rained all day, like that day when Keating's verdict had bopped her—Geraldine, who thought she knew what bottom was, reached a new low. "I had the worst toothache of my life. Nobody needs adjectives to understand that. A terrific thunderstorm raged—I'm terrified of thunder."

At 4:30 in the black morning, "huddled in my bed and wishing I might die," she suddenly, without any warning at all, "knew I'd be an actress."

This is the first of two stories about Geraldine Fitzgerald. How she began her career—and fought her way to the top in pictures—will be told in MOVIE-RADIO GUIDE next week.

PROHIBITION days may have been the good old days to others, but to Hollywood's property-men they are just a pain in the neck. For the opening scene of "Penny Serenade," in which Irene Dunne and Cary Grant stray from their beaten comedy path, a typical party of the prerepeal days was required. Propmen searched high and low for the musical jugs which played tunes of those halcyon days; for the counterfeit bootleg-liquor labels in vogue then. Finally, after their search proved unavailing, one propman on the lot found just what they needed over his own garage. For three lucky individuals, this film does plenty. Edgar Buchanan was an unknown dentist in Altadena a year ago; Ann Doran, an obscure contract player on the Columbia lot; Arline Jackson and Miss Doran have the most important supporting roles in "Penny Serenade," and tiny Arline Jackson plays a juvenile part in a scene—of all places—in an orphanage. Film was released in March.

CO-PICTURE OF THE WEEK

MOVIE-GOERS have become so accustomed to seeing Errol Flynn swashbuckle his way through costume pictures, the sight of the well-dressed Flynn but a picaresc one. In "Dark" may come as a shock—tinkled at being able to wear modern clothes for a change, he went out and bought $1,500 worth of duds for the film, in which he plays an investment broker who wanted to be a writer and ended up as a detective. This is Brenda Marshall's second picture with Flynn. Her first was "The Sea Hawk." She likes this assignment much better, attributes that mainly to the modern wardrobe. Flynn, too, found the respite from swashbuckling a welcome relief. Studio workers accustomed to his hit-or-miss-learn-it-on-the-set style of line rehearsal were amazed when he went through one long scene after another of rapid-fire dialog without missing a line, fluffing a word or muffling a cue. "Footsteps in the Dark" was released nationally by Warner Bros. during March.

THE METROPOLITAN OPERA COMPANY PRESENTS "CARMEN" BY GEORGES BIZET, NBC. In four acts, in French. The cast: Carmen, Gladys Swarthout, mezzo-soprano; Don Jose, Charles Kullmann, tenor; Micaela, Licia Albanese, soprano; Escamillo, Leonard Warren, baritone; Frasquita, Thelma Votipka, soprano; Mercedes, Helen Olheim, soprano; Dancaire, George Cehanovsky, baritone; Remendado, Alessio de Paolis, tenor; Zuniga, Louis D'Angelo, baritone; Morales, Wilfred Engelman, baritone. Conductor, Wilfred Pelletier.

"Carmen" has everything it takes to make a popular opera: A good rousing plot, plenty of tuneful music and an omph girl as the heroine. Taken from a famous novel by Prosper Merimee, French author, it was the best-known work of its composer, French Georges Bizet (1838-1875). It tells the tale of a beautiful and heartless gypsy of Seville, who works in the tobacco factory. Across the street from the factory is a barracks, and Carmen has managed to captivate most of the officers. Only one remains indifferent, Don Jose, who is faithful to his home-town sweetheart, Micaela. Carmen sings her famous Habanera, and flings him a rose before running into the factory. The crowds watching the scene drift away, and in comes Micaela, bringing Don Jose a letter from his mother. They reminisce in a duet and Micaela leaves him. He is about to throw away Carmen's rose when a commotion is heard in the cigarette factory. Carmen has stabbed a girl in a fight. She is arrested, her hands tied, and Jose is left alone to guard her. She sings to him softly, making a rendezvous for that night at a local tavern. Fascinated, he loosens her bonds, and, as the soldiers come to take her away, she gives them a push and runs. Act II is in the tavern of Lillias Pastia. Carmen is waiting for Don Jose, who has just been released from prison after his arrest for letting her escape. While she waits, Escamillo, the bull-fighter, comes in, followed by a crowd of admirers. He slugs the brilliant Toreador Song, and Carmen is greatly impressed but still faithful to Jose, who, in a deeply moving aria (Flower Song), sings of his love for her. She persuades him to join a band of smugglers and leave the army. Act III finds the band in the mountains, with Carmen losing interest in Don Jose. Escamillo has followed her and he and Jose fight. Micaela comes with a message that Jose's mother is dying, and he decides to go with her, but warns Carmen that he will return. In the last act, outside the Seville bullring, Carmen has arrived with Escamillo, in spite of the warnings of her friends that Jose is looking for her to kill her. Escamillo goes into the arena, but before Carmen can follow him, Jose stops her. He begs her to return to him, but when she refuses, he stabs her to death, and afterward bends over her body crying bitterly the famous words, "Carmen, Carmen, I loved you!"

THE FREE COMPANY, CBS. Specially written plays by renowned writers and starring celebrated artists in the interest of American democracy.

Burgess Meredith, well-known actor of stage, screen and radio, will be the narrator for an original story dealing with one of the basic liberties guaranteed Americans under the Bill of Rights but now under fire from hostile quarters that question the strength of democracy.

GREAT PLAYS, NBC. "The Swan," by Ferenc Molnar.

As a newspaper correspondent during World War I Ferenc Molnar had the unusual distinction of seeing his war news column published in two of the enemy papers, the London Morning Post and the New York Times. But it is as a playwright that the Hungarian is most notably remembered, though he was also a brilliant conversationalist and an accomplished musician.

Molnar himself was an easy-going and colorful personality. His plays reveal this characteristic as well as the inherent romanticism of the Hungarian temperament. John Gassner in "A Treasury of the Theater" says:

"A scrupulous neutral in politics, a romantic cynic in a passion-ridden world, Molnar has remained faithful to the dictates of feeling..."

First Families of Radio

"DEAR JOHN"

STORIES have been told successfully in the form of letters in many novels and magazine yarns. Now Irene Rich is doing a radio serial with letters. Each Sunday evening she writes a letter to "Dear John," but the letter fades quickly into a dramatic episode, which, in turn, fades into some such words as these, "And so, dear John, that's the way things are . . ." Miss Rich, as Faith Chandler, writes of her married life with Josh Chandler (Norman Fields). Josh's first wife is dead. He has two grown children, Noel (Ray Montgomery) and Carole (Betty Moran). Stumbling-block for Faith is the children's nurse, Poindexter Brice—or Bricey, as they call her. Before Josh married Faith, nurse Bricey was able to influence the children's thinking and actions pretty much without interference. When Faith comes, both Noel and Carole turn to her for advice. So Bricey is madly jealous. Her retaliation is a sly attempt to make trouble between Josh and his new wife. Meanwhile Josh's brother, Michael (Mel Ruick), comes to visit and becomes friendly with Faith. Josh believes that she is really in love with Michael, which is, of course, untrue but a part of Bricey's plan to separate the Chandlers. Another problem for Faith is Noel, who has worried his father with youthfully reckless larks. Under Faith's influence, he calms down, turns into a swell boy. Only trouble is that Noel is being blamed for acts of a boy who resembles him. But now Josh's illness is overshadowing all the family joys—and troubles

NEWS FROM the MUSIC FRONT

Idea of the week: Bomb Nazis with Bach. Met bassos go easy on feud

BRUNO WALTER may have ushered in a new era of starring conductors at the Metropolitan when he made his debut amid an unprecedented storm of cheers and applause

THE Metropolitan Opera has rarely seen such an ovation as was given to Bruno Walter after conducting "Fidelio" on February 14. It was his debut in this country as a conductor of opera, and the brilliant audience that turned out for the event stopped the performance several times with prolonged applause, cheered, stamped and generally behaved like a Tommy Dorsey jam session. This may mean a new era for the Metropolitan, with star conductors featured as well as star singers. Anyway, it's fairly certain that Bruno Walter will conduct again next year, and possibly will take over some of the Wagnerian repertoire.

Keep an ear out for a new music program scheduled to begin shortly. It will be a new idea in radio, with a big-name singer starred. Watch this column for the first announcement.

Charles MacArthur, conductor and accompanist of Kirsten Flagstad, has joined the ranks of the Metropolitan, and made his debut leading "Tristan and Isolde" on February 17. Radio listeners will hear him conducting the same opera April 12. His mother, a Denver school-teacher, wanted to be present at his Metropolitan debut but was unable to make it in time. She philosophized about it by saying, "Lindbergh's mother taught school the day he flew to Paris."

Emanuel List and Alexander Kipnis, Metropolitan bassos, have been feuding lately, and their friends worried when they were cast as the two giants in a performance of "Das Rheingold" in which they were armed with clubs. However, no casualties were reported.

A timely thought comes from an English pianist, who suggested that English musicians club together and buy a bomber, name it the "Johann Sebastian Bach" and send it over the Thomas Church in Leipzig, where Bach spent many years as an organist, in retaliation for bombings of Westminster Abbey, where are buried many prominent composers. He further suggested rigging up a loudspeaker on the plane so it could broadcast "With Thunder, With Lightning (Blitzen)" from Bach's St. Matthew's Passion. To the pianist's surprise, his suggestion was listened to with enthusiasm by English musicians, so don't be surprised over an extra special bombardment. —Viva Liebling.

MUSICIAN of the WEEK

An amazing Hungarian wields the NBC Symphony baton this month

GEORG SZELL

DURING a party last year, given by a musician, one of the guests present was asked to play. Another guest immediately offered to accompany him, sat down at the piano and read at sight, with virtuoso brilliance, an incredibly difficult modern score for flute and piano. The listeners almost ignored the exceedingly able flutist in their concentration on the pianist and his very evident enthusiasm and extraordinary ability. His performance was all the more amazing because he was a conductor and not a pianist, although he started life as an infant prodigy of the piano at the age of three.

Later on some of the guests started an impromptu music quiz, and the conductor again starred when he volunteered to recognize any symphonic composition by being shown merely one printed bar of the music. Out of eight pieces he missed only one and then only because of its similarity to something else.

The hero of this startling exhibition of musical expertness was Georg Szell, Hungarian conductor, who conducts the NBC Symphony Orchestra during the month of March. The advent of a new conductor is always something of an event, and even more so when it concerns a man of Szell's outstanding reputation. After making up his mind to be a conductor at the age of seventeen he became in rapid succession assistant to Richard Strauss and then principal conductor of the Strasbourg Municipal Theater, and later the Court Theater in Darmstadt and the Municipal Theater in Dusseldorf. For five years he headed the orchestra of the Berlin State Opera and the Berlin Broadcasting Symphony Orchestra, then became general music director of the German Opera House, and the Czech Philharmonic in Prague, Czechoslovakia. In 1937 he succeeded John Barbirolli as leader of the Scottish Orchestra in Edinburgh. On his way back from an Australian tour in 1939 Szell was caught by the war in New York, the Scottish Orchestra was disbanded, and he has been here ever since.

However, it is not Szell's first trip, his American debut having taken place in 1931 with the St. Louis Orchestra. Nor does he feel strange in this country. When asked how he likes living here, he stares in surprise and says:

"That's the kind of question you ask a foreigner, but I don't feel like one. I feel as though I'd never lived anywhere else but here." The fact that his English is grammatically faultless, only slightly accented, that he has taken to the American way of living like a duck to water, and that most of his European musical friends are now over here may have something to do with it. He and his chic and charming Czech wife have taken out their first citizenship papers, and with "beautiful efficiency" have already seen the Grand Canyon, Boulder Dam and Hollywood, which makes him more American than many Americans.

Szell finds that Americans respond to the best and resent anything less, and his view is upheld in the programs which he has planned for his NBC concerts. —Viva Liebling.

Going Places and Hearing Things WITH CORNELIUS VANDERBILT, JR.

Senator Burton K. Wheeler

HEAR very little sympathy throughout radio circles in various sections of the nation this past fortnight with Senator Wheeler's Interstate Commerce Commission Committee's investigation of radio propaganda among commentators.

Anyone who really knows anything about radio knows how difficult it is to get anything controversial on the air as it is. Wheeler's stab at the men who report the news is considered unfair and unjust. Especially when he directs it so pointedly at commentators.

Wheeler's letter to Fred Weber, the general manager for Mutual, asked for a copy of talks of "all radio commentators during the past year." Similar letters were sent to NBC and Columbia, it was said. The Senator's unflattering hint of propagandized airplanes will not bring him any added laurels from a fraternity whose esteem and good-will he has often wooed.

Wythe Williams is out of bed again. Was hospitalized recently and left bed only long enough to broadcast, then back to bed he would go. Find Williams and John Vandercook favorites among the news analysts today throughout the Ohio and Pennsylvania valleys.

Odd no one picked up Larry Lesueur's note on fashions of British women in the war, as broadcast from London the other day. Lesueur was most graphic in his description of the lack of blondes, since there is a scarcity of bleach!

Miss Thompson Sounds Off

Listened in to Dorothy Thompson's views as expressed on "American Town Meeting of the Air" the other evening as the Broadway was zooming across corners of Illinois, Indiana and Ohio. For the next few days through this part of the country, on all the railroads on which I was traveling, conversation flew fast on this subject. Most of it seemed to center on Miss Thompson's unfortunate reputation of being a meddler. Not that Americans don't want to help England all they can. But many Americans, particularly in our vast Midwest, object strenuously to an American-dictated peace; or to an American participation in a world federation with the British Empire. What some Americans seem unwilling to acknowledge, however, is that Miss Thompson has too often been right in her volatile public expressions.

Toscanini Highspot

Toscanini's recently completed series with the NBC Symphony were standout radio as always. His "Magic Flute" overture came through with an especial quality not often heard over the ether lately. This, of course, is one of Toscanini's highspots, but anything he does is tops with most true music-lovers.

Incidentally, though my own tastes are more modern, I still do enjoy fine music in this day of juke-boxes and jitterbugs. All through Kansas last week I picked up the Viennese String Ensemble over NBC through station WREN in Lawrence. I know of little in the line of a sustaining program which is so soothing.

If you missed Stokowski's conducting of the Los Angeles Youth Orchestra this past fortnight, you missed something exceptionally fine. Stoki took these sixty-odd youngsters and melted them into a perfect ensemble which seemed almost incredible. These youth organizations are composed of would-be musicians from seventeen to twenty-four years of age. Most of them have practically no experience in symphonic work, but it would have been difficult to distinguish it if one hadn't known.

Sometimes at queer intervals I am able to pick up the Metropolitan Opera easily. At others, try as hard as I might, it just does not seem ever to come through. But the other evening while motoring at seventy per across Missouri, I distinctly heard Flagstad and Melchior in "Tristan and Isolde." For the sake of the record, this was, I was told, Lauritz' 171st rendition of this fine old opera and it was superb.

Famed Radio in Hock

One of the New York gossip columnists made much ado about finding one of Sherman Billingsley's radios in a pawn shop on Second Avenue in the 40's in Manhattan. And why not?

Billingsley is New York's foremost nitery operator. His Stork Club has had a longer run than any other similar New York establishment, with the possible exception of "21." From the word go, Billingsley is a modern P. T. Barnum. He muffs nothing when it comes to publicity. The columnists know it. A lot of them have existed at Billingsley's expense for lots of years. But wise boy that he is, he is ever his same sociable self. A couple of Christmases ago he sent out portable Crosley radios to some of his more steady customers.

Evidently one of them needed a little spare cash; and what is more natural than to secure it on one's most valuable belongings?

Nazis Wear Wrist-Watch Radios

Sat beside Countess Mercatti, the American-born wife of Greece's major-domo, in New York the other evening. She is just back from unoccupied France. Told me a most amazing story, which I pass on here. Says Nazi soldiers are all equipped on their left wrists with tiny radio loudspeakers in the shape of wrist-watches. Orders are given them thrice daily at certain specific hours, and wherever they happen to be they are able to pick them up. If any special orders are to be given, a high-pitched signal is sent out in the dot-and-dash manner, and soldiers report at once to their post!

The head of an American newsreel company who was in Paris at the time of the occupation told me last summer a somewhat similar story. Appears the German signal corps carries a device known to them as a "listening post." It is a collection of wires which may be affixed to a building by means of rubber suction-cups, and the conversation of the occupants therein may be clearly heard!

Crossing Russia on the Trans-Siberian Express back in the summer of 1937, I remember well a device which then caused me much concern. Each compartment of the train was equipped with a radio loudspeaker, and a "radio listener." We correspondents had been warned by American consular agents in Harbin, before we boarded the train, that anything we said might be held against us, as the interpreter spent all of his free time lying in his bunk at the head of the streamlined train listening in on conversations. Each morning at six and each evening at eight the radio-control booth put on an American record for our edification. If they played them once they played them a dozen times—"The Peanut Vendor" and "Yes, We Have No Bananas."

Ilka Chase Sticks at Waldorf

Dope is that Ilka Chase is to do another thirteen weeks at the Waldorf. Which of course is not hard to take. Ilka is a clever girl, who has made good whether in Hollywood, on Broadway or in Radio City. Unfortunately her personal chic is not visible over the air, and won't be until we have television, so there are some who don't appreciate her cryptic comments. Down in Princeton, Ill., where I was speaking before a district school teachers convention, I heard a lot of sassy talk about this program. Some of the educators wanted to know what possible good it could do to any coffee program to have a woman on it. Women, it appears, they associate only with tea!

Matty Malneck's smooth rhythm up at the Ambassador East's Pump Room in Chicago will soon be transferred to the Muehlebach in Kansas City. Tough on Lake Michigan swains. Incidentally, that chanteuse with the Malneck band is Maggi. Now that she's bound for the Rainbow Room, the wags have it Boots—Matty's spouse—will take over.

Never saw Duggie Dawson look so happy. And why shouldn't he be? The noted West Coast commentator was just married to winsome movie-star Jean Parker at Dawson's family's home in San Diego. May this be the beginning of that everything we all wish young people in love.

ON THE BANDWAGON

WHEN a group of University of California students decided to pool their resources and musical talents under Horace Heidt's direction, they launched an organization which has thrived for seventeen years. Horace, the leader, became interested in music after a severe back injury forced him to give up his first-string tackle position on the California Bears football team. The band which he led during student days was a busy one. The boys never suffered for lack of fraternity or sorority playing dates. After graduation the band went on a tour of California cities and their rise was sensational. From California they moved eastward, winding up with a week's engagement in the Palace Theater in New York, the mecca of vaudevillists. Following this engagement they toured Europe, playing in Paris, Monte Carlo and London dance spots. Upon the band's return to the U. S. they went straight to San Francisco, where they secured a three-year contract to play in a large picture theater. It was while there that Horace got the idea of making the band a radio sensation. To this end he revamped his organization, practicing in a real studio, purposely chosen to acquaint them with radio technique. When they finally did go on the air they were an immediate success. The band's peak of popularity was reached in 1938 when they introduced the song "Ti-pl-tin," following it with a catchy arrangement of the smash hit, "Little Sir Echo." Their great popularity with the listening public was the reason they were chosen for the new "Pot o' Gold" program. The band will soon appear in a movie based on the "Pot o' Gold" idea. Members of the band which appear in the picture below are as follows: Left-hand side (left to right, first row): Larry Cotton, tenor; Mimi Cabanne, soprano. Second row: Red Ferrington, comedian; Ronnie Kemper, novelty vocalist; Art Carney, announcer-mimic. Third row: Frankie Carle. Fourth row: Bernie Mattinson, drums; Don Swihart, tuba. Foreground: Horace Heidt, leader. Middle of picture (left to right, first row):

Bandnote

The great Hal Kemp band is a thing of the past. I'm sure many readers will regret its demise, and so will the writer. It is a fact that Hal Kemp's music came near to pleasing more people than that of any other musician. Reason for the disbandment was due to the terrific overhead which every big band must meet. Without a personality whose name spelled box-office, the band had to give up the ghost. . . . The Andrews Sisters were selected as the "most frightening act in motion pictures in 1940" by the editors of the Harvard Lampoon. Not to be outdone, the gals' retort was, "Just let us sing together at a Harvard prom—we'll scare those guys to death!" . . . Wayne King is again giving away diamonds on his weekly radio program. This time it's for the most interesting love-letters which the feminine listeners have received from their admirers. Wow! . . . Those of you who have enjoyed listening to the Four Ink Spots on the air and on records will get a chance to see as well as hear them in the forthcoming flicker, "The Great American Broadcast" . . . March 13 will be a day to be long remembered by the patrons of New York's staid Town Hall. On that date swingstress Mildred Bailey, trumpeter Teddy Powell and an assorted group of swingsters gave rare treatment to Otto Cesano's "Symphony in Swing" . . . Glen Gray's picture contract with Columbia Pictures calls for the band to appear in "Show Business," starring Joan Merrill and Rudy Vallee . . . In New York swing fans may foregather at Cafe Society (both uptown and downtown), but the Mecca of the musicians is Kelly's Stables on 52nd Street! . . . Although Bob Crosby's band will appear in "Birth of the Blues," starring his brother Bing, nevertheless Bob will not be seen. Reason is that the Crosbys do not wish to be seen in a flicker together . . . A couple of weeks ago your correspondent reported that the sponsors of Benny Goodman's new radio program were testing it on a local station in New York, prior to going network. The sponsors are hoping it clicks, as they believe swing is on the wane. Do you?

Purely Personal

Ben Bernie's son, Jason, has been drafted and will report soon . . . There's talk of Benny Goodman and Mia Frances taking out a marriage license . . . At the President's Birthday Ball recently, Helen Forrest, Goodman's vocalist, met her hubby for the first time in four months . . . Carol Bruce's picture contract with Universal won't begin until the Broadway stage show, "Louisiana Purchase," closes . . . When Ronnie Kemper's record sales of his song "Cecilia" passed the two hundred thousand mark, the Horace Heidt vocalist began telling the world about it by signing his name to all correspondence, viz., "Cecilia Yours, Ronnie Kemper."

Song-Titling Contest

Last week we announced a contest for the readers of MOVIE-RADIO GUIDE who could think up screwy song titles. In case you didn't get that issue, here are the rules. MOVIE-RADIO GUIDE, in collaboration with Leeds Music Company, publishers of "Beat Me Daddy," "Scrub Me Mama," "Rhumboogie" and other oddly titled songs, is offering a first prize of fifty dollars for the reader sending in original and screwy song titles. The winner's song title will be used for an original song to be introduced by the Andrews Sisters. The next eleven entries selected will be awarded one dozen recordings of their own choice. Send as many entries as you wish. All titles become the property of MOVIE-RADIO GUIDE, and the decision of the judges is final. In case of duplicate winners, two similar prizes will be awarded.

The titles mentioned above will give you an idea of the type which is desired. Address your entries to Song-Title Contest, MOVIE-RADIO GUIDE, 731 Plymouth Court, Chicago, Ill. Good luck!

Recordmended

On the VICTOR label: Artie Shaw's "Dancing in the Dark"; Wayne King's "In Apple Blossom Time." BLUE-BIRD: Glenn Miller's "You Stepped Out of a Dream"; Dick Todd's "Rose of the Rockies." DECCA: Bing Crosby's "Chapel in the Valley"; Connie Boswell's "I Hear a Rhapsody"; Johnny Long's "When I Grow Too Old to Dream." COLUMBIA: Album of Boogie-Woogie music; Will Bradley's "Bounce Me Brother With a Solid Four"; Kate Smith's "It's Sad But True." OKEH: Gene Krupa's "Drum Boogie"; Ginny Simms' "I Know a Secret."

THE MAN "BEHIND THE MIKE"

Joke-writing was too tame for Mort Lewis; he aimed to do something big

By Lorraine Thomas

BRAINY MORT LEWIS is a humorist and a dramatist, but his forte is ideas. One is "Behind the Mike," heard Sunday afternoon, NBC

MORT LEWIS is either a very clever or a very naive young man. He admits, "I got into radio by being fired from a job as sales-promotion writer in 1932."

Mort Lewis is responsible for the Sunday afternoon NBC program called "Behind the Mike." He also is a humorist and a dramatist. We will examine later whether or not his being fired in 1932 was an act of Providence.

"Behind the Mike" is one of those shows of which MOVIE-RADIO GUIDE delights to write because its content is close to all those who are radio enthusiasts. For example "Behind the Mike" makes a special feature of its "Oddities in Radio" in which the "Buffs" of the world's most meticulous enunciators, radio's star announcers, are laid naked before the eyes of a tittering public.

Past broadcasts of this program have revealed that . . .

Millon J. Cross, years ago, announcing a program of the A & P Gypsies said, "You will now listen to the music of A & G Pipsies."

David Ross, introducing Tito Guizar and his guitar said, "And now we present Tito guitar and his famous Guizar."

Ralph Edwards, emceeing on "Truth or Consequences," introduced a singer as follows: "Here is one of radio's most charming and lovely young sinners."

As must be obvious, Mort Lewis has an energetic sense of humor. Before 1932 he was unaware that his funny-bone had a commercial value. Listening to a Burns and Allen program, he wondered wistfully if people got paid for writing stuff like that. More in sorrow than anything else, he knocked out a script, and saw that it reached Burns and Allen. They bought it like a shot for twenty-five dollars and Mr. Lewis was ruined forever as a sales-promotion expert.

In the following years he wrote for Jack Benny, Ed Wynn, Willie and Eugene Howard, Olsen and Johnson, Ben Bernie, Pick and Pat, Molasses and January. In that apprenticeship he learned the value of unintentional humor. Typical are these recent letters presented on "Behind the Mike" as coming from radio fans.

"Dear National Broadcasting Company: Please ascertain whether I, or someone claiming to be me, ever appeared in any broadcast, since I have been told so. To my knowledge I have never been on the radio, and I would appreciate your enlightening me if it is so."

Another, "Gentlemen . . . Friday, while listening to your early morning program, I heard a song which went 'la dee da, dee da, la do.' Will you please sing it again on Monday?"

Mort Lewis was entranced early by the stories he heard and the things he saw in radio's "backstage." One evening, listening to a program which examined Hollywood's star-studded wonderland, he decided that people would be equally interested in hearing about things which happen in broadcasting studios. So "Behind the Mike" was born. So, also, was the public treated presently to a surprising variety of radio information.

For instance, what happens when an ambitious young man applies for an announcer's job? What is said? What is the situation? Just recently listeners heard Bill Huck, a member of Radio City's guide staff, as he was auditioned by Pat Kelly, head of all NBC announcers. It was a stunt, done for entertainment. But on the following day Bill received an offer from station WGAC in Augusta, Georgia, offering him an announcer's berth. He took the job.

STUDIO audiences learn through experience how they are "warmed up" by comedians before a broadcast. "Behind the Mike" entered a warm-up session and put that on the air. It presented an actual try-out for a part in a radio play. Broadcast producers are meticulous in their selection of proper voices for whatever parts they seek to cast. Quite frequently they listen to scores of applicants in order to select the one which fits best. "Behind the Mike" presented such an audition. To prove the resourcefulness of radio actors who are sometimes put on the air without having read their script beforehand, three well-known radio actors were brought to the "Behind the Mike" studios and put on the air. Their scripts were given to them as they stepped on the stage. Unhappily the stunt worked too well. The actors were so good that most people listening refused to believe it.

Mort Lewis' early years of joke-writing soon converted him into a fugitive from Joe Miller. Radio has a stubborn habit of "typing" its creative workers. A man is good at writing soap operas, or at writing humor, but in this highly specialized age, not at all three. Mort Lewis' career with various comics reached a climax when he served Molasses and January and Pick and Pat. These are two teams who are white boys with the same cottonfield dialects. Mr. Lewis served them well for three happy years. The work was pleasant and he ate well.

But his soul was uneasy. He knew that people referred to him as a Negro-dialect comedy writer. Whenever he turned he found himself thrust into that meager niche. The space was too small. He searched for release and found it when he got the idea for his first non-comedy series which last year's listeners remember as "If I Had the Chance." Here were presented such celebrities as Lauritz Melchior, Giovanni Martinelli, Fred Allen, Clifford Odets, Louis Bromfield and others. Here was drama in the unfulfilled desires and in the might-have-been imaginings of the world's great. He loved it.

Now drama is grist for the Lewis mill as well as comedy. There must be a thrill when he presents such an episode as . . .

Captain Tim Healy, famed stamp expert and spy authority, delivered a broadcast months ago which told the story of a German barber living in England who acted as a clearing-house for a spy ring during the first World War. This barber received letters from Germany, remailed them with English postage to the secret espionage agent for whom they were intended. Shortly after England entered the war British officers broke up the spy ring and arrested the barber. Presently he was placed against a stone wall and shot. The day following his broadcast, Healy was approached by a young man who asked to see the script. After checking events and names, the stranger said:

"Captain Tim, this man, the barber of your broadcast, was my grandfather. He disappeared in England more than twenty years ago and we never found a trace of him. Your broadcast of last night told me for the first time what actually had happened."

A good story resulted from a broadcast made by that early radio pioneer and good fellow called Cheerio. Among the contributors to Cheerio's fan mail was a soldier who sent him a poem, asking him to read it. According to the soldier, that poem had been given to him by a nurse who had helped him right after the war.

Cheerio read the poem on the air.

Two days later he received a letter from a woman who told him that she was the nurse of whom the soldier had spoken. She had been nursing in a base hospital in Paris in 1919. A badly wounded man had come in, and she attended his wounds. As she fixed the dressing, the soldier told her that he was more grateful to her than to any person he knew except his buddy. He told of how his company had been ordered over the top to take a machine-gun nest. Half-way across No Man's Land, he had been shot. Most of the company had been wiped out and those who survived had retreated to their own line. He lay in agony between the lines. Hours later he felt himself being lifted and pulled back toward the American trenches. It was his buddy who had come after him. They got through the wire, reached the sand-bag parapet, almost in safety. A German machine-gun opened up and the bullets thudded into his buddy's body. But the other soldiers got the wounded man into the trench. There in the hospital, this wounded boy said, "There never was a braver, finer guy than ———." The nurse paled, and asked if his buddy had been tall, with coal-black hair and a crest star on his forehead. The description was accurate. "How did you know?" asked the soldier. "We were to be married," replied the nurse.

SO THE two became friends back in 1918, and she gave her patient the poem which expressed the feelings of women in war who lose those whom they love most dearly. That was the poem which the soldier had sent to Cheerio.

Early in this story we said we would examine the fruits of Mort Lewis' efforts to escape from the tag of joke-writer. Those who have heard his programs or those who have read these anecdotes must agree that his struggle has not been in vain.

Mort Lewis' "Behind the Mike" may be heard Sunday over an NBC network at:

MST 2:30 p.m. ——— PST 1:30 p.m.

Bob Hope was overcome with surprise and joy when he was given a special movie Academy Award

TRUST THE MCGEES—With to the core—to give St. Patrick's Day a play on their show Tuesday plaque last week for his "achievement in humanity"—meaning his extreme willingness to serve the needs of the public welfare by appearing at benefits, et cetera. Hope was emcee of the Academy banquet and very funny indeed. But witty screen writer Donald Ogden Stuart, after he had accepted his award for the script of "Philadelphia Story," drew a laugh, too, when he turned to Hope and said, "Thank you, Mr. Benny!" . . . Ceell B. DeMille proved a good forecaster of the Academy's selections. He sensed Ginger Rogers would win the best-actress prize—as she did—and so pre-viously signed her up to appear on "Lux Radio Theater" in "Kitty Foyle," the movie which brought her the honor.

Scalpers Sell Benny Tickets!

Scalpers entered the radio picture during the past two weeks when Jack Benny took his broadcast to Palm Springs and the Plaza Theater there, and were openly selling tickets at ten dollars each to wealthy Easterners who "just had" to see the comedian at work! Jack, who rented Harry Richman's home at the resort, practically was given the town, and his aids, Phil Harris, Bill Morrow and Ed Beloin, all donned similar colorful cowboy regalia in the spirit of fun. On the air, you will recall, Benny was supposed to be stopping at a mythical Tee Pee Motel. Right after the first broadcast, TWO Palm Springs motor courts changed their names to Tee Pee Motel to cash in on the air advertising!

Kyser to Entertain More Camps

So pleased was the American Tobacco Company with Kay Kyser's broadcast February 26 from the San Diego Marine Corps base that they have asked the bandleader to plan to do every other broadcast from some West Coast army, navy or marine encampment. The stunt, which cost the cigarette company an added six thousand dollars, brought special honors to Kay and Ginny Simms, who were made honorary sergeants in the Marine Corps by Col. John Groff. After the ceremony, Kay was dumbfounded when he tried to get laughs from the assembled corps but earned nary a chuckle. "How," Kyser asked the colonel, "do you get these devil dogs to timber up their muscles?" Groff laughed and gave an "At ease!" command, whereupon the marines guffawed.

(3) John Hadjuk, for being one of the fastest-rising young actors in radio (Neil Holden in "Guiding Light," Steve in "Wings of Destiny," occasionally in "Knickerbocker Playhouse," formerly "Lil Abner"). (4) "Josh Higgins of Finchville" for landing a rebroadcast spot over Chicago's WENR in the late afternoons, providing one more step forward in our crusade for "Everybody's Neighbor." (5) The new Sunday NBC show, "What's Your Idea?"—for providing a challenge and an entree for the many listeners who cry that radio is stagnant and that they have big ideas for its improvement.

The valiant rescuers were piqued—especially the one who got scratched—but they were somewhat placated when Les promised to show them the movie he took while they were in action.

MOVING a broadcast out of town, even when that broadcast presents only one star, involves a lot of people, as evidenced when Mary Margaret McBride presented her February 28 program from the General Electric Institute in Bridgeport, Conn. Special wires had to be installed to carry the program from Bridgeport to New York and thence to the network. A telephone representative had to stand by in case anything went wrong with the wires. A radio engineer made the trip to handle the portable controls. The program opens with a piano theme and so the pianist had to go along, as did the announcer. Also the production man, a representative from the advertising agency that manages the program, Miss McBride's manager and her research woman, who dug up facts to be used on the program. Eight persons, plus Miss McBride, for the fifteen minutes on the air—not so simple as it seems.

Also behind the scenes, to make the activities surrounding the occasion a success, were many workers—newsmen, photographers and the staff of the G-E Institute. At noon a luncheon was served to fifty guests—a luncheon unique in that every course featured the fruits which Miss McBride advertises on her program. Tables were decorated with orange blossoms which were sent by air from Florida for the occasion.

The idea of the program was to show the great contrast of Miss McBride's early days, when she cooked over hot wood-stoves and washed clothes by boiling them in iron kettles, with the modern days when most all housework is done by electricity with the push of a button.

On Short Waves

Programs from foreign countries subject to change without notice

BROADCASTS FROM THE MEDITERRANEAN AREA

TAKE a map and draw a large circle enclosing the Mediterranean Sea and those countries bordering on it or closely adjacent to it and you will have roughly staked out the general war zones which have been furnishing the major portion of the headlines during the past few months. The Greco-Albanian conflict, the Libyan campaign and the diplomatic moves in the Balkans are only side issues, but inasmuch as they do have an important bearing upon the whole problem. Movie-RADIO GUME reader-listeners are manifesting a lot of interest in short-wave broadcasts direct from the Mediterranean capitals. Here then is a brief summary of what to listen to and where and when to find it.

Rome may be heard daily with good signal strength. Tune for the "American Hour," broadcast nightly from 7:00 to 9:30 p.m. CST over 2R019 (7.31), 2R03 (9.63), 2R018 (9.76) and 2R04 (11.81). Of these 2R018 is best at present. English news bulletins are read at 7:00 and at 9:30 p.m. CST. The balance of the program consists of music (predominantly classical), short talks of a general or of a propaganda nature, and plays. Announcements are in English or Italian.

Budapest broadcasts to North America daily from 6:30 to 8:00 p.m. CST over HAT4 (9.125). The program is heard consistently with fair signal strength, although during summer months static and atmospheric often ruin reception. An English news bulletin is read nightly some time between 6:45 and 7:30 p.m. CST. A good deal of music is included in the Budapest program and almost all of it is semi-classical, operatic or of a folk nature. Announcements are in English or Hungarian.

Belgrade. This capital has a powerful 10,000-watt station, YUG (15.24), that broadcasts to North America regularly from 8:00 to 9:00 p.m. CST. Yugoslav broadcasting authorities have always seemed to display a singular lack of foresight in that this program, while designed for reception in the United States, does not include a single English announcement and is radiated on a frequency suitable for summer reception only.

Tirana (Albania) has a small short-wave station, ZAA (7.85 or 6.085), which has been heard in this country a few times but which has not been reported for several months.

Athens has a 10,000-watt transmitter which, installed some months ago for commercial service, is now being used for daily broadcasts. Using the call SVM (9.935), it is on the air daily from 1:40 to 2:00 p.m. CST in English for Great Britain, and from 5:00 to 6:00 p.m. CST for North America. The last-named transmission was officially inaugurated on March 1, after several days of tests. This program, heard with excellent strength, includes an English news bulletin, propaganda and general talks, variety music and acknowledgments of reports received. Reception reports are urgently requested and should be sent to Radio Athens, Athens, Greece.

Ankara (Turkey), TAP (9.465) broadcasts daily from 8:00 a.m. to 2:30 p.m. CST, using an omnidirectional aerial. The latter part of this transmission is sometimes heard in eastern North America. Using an aerial beamed on the United States, TAP relays short programs to American networks frequently between 6:00 and 6:30 p.m. CST. These pick-ups are usually made on Sundays, Mondays and Thursdays and the Turkish station is well heard at this hour.

Syria. Two low-power stations are definitely known to be on the air. These are heard only when conditions are favorable and by expert listeners. "Radio Francais Libre d'Orient" (8.045) broadcasts an all-French program daily from 11:30 a.m. to 12:10 p.m. CST. "Radio Levant" (8.03), first heard in this country by Norman Kriebel of Ambler, Pennsylvania, is being heard nightly from 11:30 to 11:53 p.m. CST with an all-French program.

Cairo. SUX (7.865) broadcasts an all-Arabic program daily from 11:30 a.m. to 2:30 p.m. CST. Eastern listeners sometimes hear the last half-hour or so of this transmission. American network pick-ups from Cairo can often be heard Sunday evenings from approximately 6:00 to 6:30 p.m. CST over SUX (7.865) or SUV (10.05).

Algeria. "Radio Alger," at Alger, broadcasts all-French programs daily from 1:30 to 2:15 a.m. and from approximately 12:00 noon to 5:00 p.m. CST, simultaneously over TPZ (12.13) and TPZ2 (8.96). TPZ is quite well received in the United States.

MR. FAIRFAX REPLIES

Mr. Fairfax will give personal answers to all readers who send self-addressed stamped envelopes. Remember that he must confine himself exclusively to network personalities and programs. Address Arthur Fairfax, MOVIE-RADIO GUIDE, 731 Plymouth Court, Chicago, Ill.

Mr. Warren Morris, Washington, D. C.—ANN SHEPHERD, heroine of "Joyce Jordan, Girl Interne," was born in Chicago, January 15, 1916. She attended local schools and at the age of eleven joined the Jack and Jill Players in Chicago. While still in high school she was offered her first radio role. Between semesters at the University of Chicago she continued her radio work. Later Ann joined the Institute Players and appeared as lead in many productions. She was awarded a scholarship in the Goodman School in Chicago and obtained the lead in the Chicago company of "Girls in Uniform." After this Ann was given a screen test for ingenue roles and sent to Hollywood, where she appeared as the female lead in "Wanted Jane Turner" with Lee Tracy, and also with Victor McLaglen in "The Magnificent Brute" and "Parole." She left Hollywood for New York where she joined the road show of "Having a Wonderful Time," and later took over the lead role in "Gentle People." Ann has dark, wavy hair, blue eyes, weighs a scant hundred pounds, and is five feet one inch tall. She likes sports clothes, redecorating her home, and going without a hat.

ANN SHEPHERD portrays "Joyce Jordan, Girl Interne" on CBS

Mrs. L. E. Campbell, Dayton, Ohio.—In "Woman in White" BOB GRIFFIN is Crandall Boone, and he also portrays Joe Marlin in "Story of Mary Marlin." . . . However, PAT MURPHY is Scoop Curtis in "Girl Alone," not Bob Griffin. . . . BETTY LOU GERSON is Karen Adams Harding in "Woman in White." She also has the role of Mary Marlin.

Mr. A. Thompson, Kankakee, Ill.—In "Our Gal Sunday" SANTOS ORTEGA is heard as Oliver Drexton; CHARITA BAUER portrays Loretta; FLORENCE ROBINSON has the role of Rose Hunt; Madelyn Travers is played by JOAN TOMPKINS; DELMA BYRON plays Vivian Graham; Gavin Murray is portrayed by HUGH MARLOWE; the role of Prudence Graham is handled by ANN SEYMOUR, and SPENCER BENTLEY is the character Fred Castelson.

Mr. Ralph Olswang, Wheeling, W. Va.—CHARLOTTE HOLLAND was born in Chicago, Ill., February 9, 1917. Her family later moved to Canada. Charlotte attended the Loretta Academy, Toronto, and Hyde Park High School, Chicago. She moved to California, where she completed her schooling at Los Angeles, all the while thinking of the stage. After high school her family sent her to Vassar's experimental theater, hoping to effect a cure. It didn't work, so Charlotte went into the Goodman Theater School in Chicago for three and one-half years. She spent two seasons with stock companies in Beverly Shores, Ind., Fish Creek, Wis., and Woodstock, Ill. In 1939 she auditioned at NBC in Chicago and immediately jumped into radio serial acting. Charlotte is five feet and one-half inch tall, weighs 116 pounds, has brown hair and eyes. Her favorite amusement is watching wrestling matches or attending carnivals and circuses. In her spare time she paints, reupholsters old furniture, plays the violin. She likes to read biographies and enjoys swimming and horseback riding.

Miss Joyce Martin, Los Angeles, Calif.—WILL BRADLEY, trombonist-bandleader, was born in Newton, N. J., on July 12, 1911. He inherits his musical talent from his father, who could play several instruments well, but informed his son that the trombone was too difficult to master. Bradley began his career at the age of sixteen, touring in a Herman Timberg vaudeville unit with Fred Berend's orchestra. Later on he played with Mill Shaw's Detroiters and Red Nichols' band. Then followed three years of "house" work with Freddie Rich at CBS, an invaluable experience in perfecting the all-around musician. After long periods of free-lancing with conductors such as Kostelanetz, Paige, Shilkret and others, plus a session with Ray Noble, Bradley decided the time was ripe to form his own band.

Miss Marjorie Hickey, Auburn, N. Y.—The agency handling "YOUNG WIDDER BROWN" does not reveal the author of this show. However, send your letter to Blackett - Sample - Hummert, 247 Park Avenue, New York City, and the proper party will receive the communication. . . . You may address FAYETTE KRUM, author of "Girl Alone," in care of the National Broadcasting Company, Merchandise Mart, Chicago, Illinois.

Miss M. Tron, St. Marys, Pa.—ERIK ROLF has the role of Dr. Hans Simons in "Joyce Jordan, Girl Interne." RUTH WARRICK is not heard regularly in this serial, but does have bit parts from time to time.

Mrs. Howell, Clarksburg, W. Va.—In "Life Can Be Beautiful" JOHN HOLBROOK has the role of Stephen Hamilton, CHARLES WEBSTER is Dr. Markham.

Miss Hilda Leary, New Bedford, Mass.—The cast of "Adventures of Mr. Meek" follows: Mr. Meek, FRANK READICK; Agatha, ADELAIDE KLEIN; Peggy, DORIS DUDLEY; Louis, JACK SMART; Mr. Barker, CHARLIE CANTOR; Mrs. Barker, JEANETTE NOLAN; Mr. Apple, BILL ADAMS.

Mr. Martin Findur, Rockaway Beach, N. Y.—MATT CROWLEY portrays Walter Manning in "Portia Faces Life" . . . In "This Small Town" FLORIDA FRIENDS has the role of Velma Hodges. TED JEWETT has the role of George Randolph on "Ellen Randolph" . . . JERRY TUCKER is King in "King Arthur, Jr."

YOU CAN'T HELP LIKING THAT MAN

does it right. In some ways the movies have not come of age and still tell us bedtime stories when the world is quite capable of understanding the truth.

Mr. Kibbee has never won an Academy Award and often laments that he is not the best of anything.

"I'm a sort of jack-of-all-trades," he says. "I'm neither the best nor the worst looking man in town. I play good bridge, but there's always Culbertson."

He is not the worst-dressed man in Hollywood, but he's in the race. He visited a set one day and a stranger said, "Isn't your costume for this picture remarkable? So old and so quaint." Mr. Kibbee walked away. He'd actually tied his shoelaces and thought he was dressed up.

His son apparently disdains show business, for when asked if he expected to follow his father's path he said, "No, I'd rather work for a living."

Mr. Kibbee had to put on twenty pounds for his role as Scattergood, and figured he'd have a Roman holiday with rich foods, but his doctor put him on a diet that contains mostly bread.

His earliest ambition was to be a printer and his first job was as a printer's devil in his father's newspaper plant. He still thinks he'd like to own a newspaper.

Chided recently on the fact that he has never played a great lover, he said, "I was always too fat to play lovers. You know, girls don't seem to like fat men. But while I'm on the subject, let me put in my bid—that there's a lot to be said for a little extra avoirdupois. I'm not taking any bows, but did you ever notice how much more fat people seem to enjoy life than the average person? It's because we let very little bother us—we're easy to get along with. You might say our nerves are well cushioned. And we're generally affectionate. Well, anyway, my wife always says so . . ."

Another Marge

Dear V. O. L.:
I think Clarence and Lil did a wonderful job in the "Myrt and Marge" story the Monday after the real Marge died just a few days before. They deserve a lot of credit, considering the tragedy that has befallen the cast. I hope they will find another Marge for the story—and good luck to her.

Lorraine R. Curran,
Whitestone, L. I., N. Y.

She Hates Fibber's Closet

Dear V. O. L.:
Can't something be done about that awful closet on Fibber McGee's program? He should lock the door and throw away the key, for I know he'll never straighten it out now. To his studio audience it may be a laugh; but to his listening audience it's just a big noise. There's too much repetition in radio comedy.

Mrs. Clara Morton,
Eureka Springs, Ark.

She Liked Fibber's Show

Dear V. O. L.:
The incident I'm going to relate should interest Fibber McGee and Molly as well as their fans. Recently the President and Mrs. Roosevelt gave a reception at the White House for the Army and Navy set. My father, who is a cab-driver, picked up an officer and his wife as they were leaving the Executive Mansion, and he overheard their conversation. The officer asked his wife if she had enjoyed the party. She replied that she had, but that she hated to have had to miss the Fibber McGee and Molly show that evening.

Frances Conover, Washington, D. C.

Batting for Bing

Dear V. O. L.:
I feel I must reply to a recent letter in your column criticizing Bing Crosby for the way he handles his radio work. If he owes the public loyalty, what about the loyalty the public owes him for so many years of musical pleasure?

The music war will work itself out all right eventually, so why pick on the radio artists?

Mrs. Margaret Winifred,
Hamilton, Ont., Canada.

New Shuffle

Dear V. O. L.:
Last June you published an article on how the F. C. C. would allot new wave-lengths to most radio stations. Why has this not been done? As was said in your article, it is time the wave-lengths were given a new shuffle, especially since Mexican stations and other interferences are causing much confusion.

Wm. E. Cox, Southern Pines, N. C.

● The date for the wholesale readjustment of frequencies has been postponed several times. It is now set for March 29. MOVIE-RADIO GUIDE will publish at that time a new log of all stations in the United States and Canada to keep listeners abreast of the changes.—V. O. L.
