On Our Cover

Hollywood's favorite glamour-boy, Cary Grant, meets up with radio's own male fatale (Leave us face it!), Ed Gardner, the inimitable "Archie" of the Blue Network's "Duffy Tavern." Says "Archie" to Cary Grant by way of a welcome: "Mr. Grant, it is with great seldomtude that our door has been harkened by such a tinctured notarian. Rest assured of our humblest Cuisine and supreme reciproticity!"

the nation's leading radio programs, and the entire personnel of our organization, wish you many other successful Anniversary Numbers.

Thank you for keeping an interested public completely informed of the happenings in this important industry.

Maxine Smith, Jean McFarland, Franc Dillon, J. Walter Thompson Co., Hollywood.

Dear Evelyn Bigsby: We'd like to extend our congratulations on Radio Life's anniversary and our thanks, too, for the prominent part we were able to play in so many issues of your newsy little magazine this past year.

We think your anniversary issue is great—and the "awards for distinguished achievement" commendable.

Dear Evelyn Bigsby: May I take this opportunity of thanking you and your magazine, Radio Life, for the honorable mention that you accorded my program? It is very gratifying to be so honored, and makes one want to try his very best to justify the award.

Any little success the program has enjoyed so far has been greatly contributed to by your generous support. Thank you again for the award and the other past favors.

Mr. Art Baker, National Broadcasting Company, Hollywood, Calif.

Gentlemen: Your Fourth Anniversary Number of Radio Life was swell! Congratulations, and good wishes to you and members of your staff.

Blue Network, Western Division, Hollywood, Calif.

Dear Evelyn Bigsby: Shortages being what they are today, we don't have the material to give you an Oscar or a plaque, but we do have this piece of paper on which to give Radio Life the Blue Network's first Distinguished Achievement Award in the field of radio publications.

Although all three of your previous anniversary numbers have been excellent, the fourth anniversary issue tops them all in every way—editorial content, art, make-up, the stock on which it is printed—yes, even the price.

Mr. Les Tremayne, National Broadcasting Company, Hollywood, Calif.

Dear Evelyn Bigsby: What a wonderful surprise to find that our show has won an award—already! Of course, in the phrase 'New Program Likely to Remain,' many have already played around with the play on words—'To Remain' and Tremayne. Nothing's sacred.

Well, I could go on like this but just wanted you to know how pleased I am and what a beautiful issue you turned out. It's a honey in every way. I hope sincerely that I will continue to be worthy of your awards in the years to come.

Mrs. H. J. Wallis, 647 Manzanita Avenue, Sierra Madre, Calif.

Dear Friends: I have been rather slow in writing to congratulate you on your Fourth Anniversary number; it is a wonderful magazine. I wish you lots of luck and hope that when another year rolls around you will have just as good a number for your fifth anniversary. I enjoy Radio Life more than I can tell you, and hope I shall always be able to have it. My radio and your magazine mean a lot toward making life enjoyable. Please accept my thanks and congratulations for your further success.

Mr. Burton C. Granicher, McCann-Erickson, Inc., 114 Sansome St., San Francisco.

Dear Radio Life: A Wow! Better than ever! Chock full of interesting material. Those are just a few thoughts that came to me as I read through your Fourth Anniversary number. Radio Life is certainly doing a grand job for radio listeners. Congratulations and best wishes for years to come.

Mr. Harold J. Bock, Press Manager, Western Division, National Broadcasting Co., Hollywood, Calif.

Dear Evelyn Bigsby: The entire staff of NBC's Press Department in Hollywood joins me in congratulating you on the excellent Radio Life Anniversary Edition. It was one of the finest publications of its type we have seen, and we are happy to note the progressive steps Radio Life is making with every issue. Congratulations again, and we hope you will keep up the good work for a long, long time.

Arthur Eddy, Taft Building, Hollywood, Cal.

Dear Evelyn Bigsby: Congratulations many times on your Fourth Anniversary issue. It's really magnificent and should go far in enhancing Radio Life's prestige, which, of course, is already great. I am proud of you.

FOOD AUTHORITIES AGREE— HOMEMADE JAMS and JELLIES ARE Energy-Rich FOODS!

Make Them Quickly—Easily— Economically with M.C.P. PECTIN

DON'T think of jams and jellies as "sweets"... make them for your family because they are energy-rich foods that help relieve wartime shortages of meat, butter, eggs, etc. Homemade jams, especially, make excellent spreads that save precious "points" and are far more economical than butter or margarine.

To save time, work, and money, use M.C.P. PECTIN... which jells more fruit and sugar than any other pectin you can buy... eliminates guess-work... prevents spoilage due to too short a boil... produces more glasses of jam or jelly from the same amount of fruit. Tested, easy-to-use M.C.P. recipes always assure jams and jellies of championship quality—clear, tender, fine-textured, with true fruit flavor.

Gorcey Knows Better!

LEO GORCEY, WHO NEEDLES GROUCHO MARX on the air every Saturday night, still plays those "Dead End" roles in pictures. He's shown here in a recent Monogram film, "Mr. Muggs Steps Out."

By Coy Williams

With Tongue In Cheek He Talks About 'Altering Incisions' and Groucho's 'Multiple Confusions'

Saturday, 5 p. m.
 CBS-KNX

DON'T let on we told you, but that Leo Gorcey who needles Groucho Marx on "Blue Ribbon Town" every Saturday night, isn't really a Mr. Malaprop.

Leo knows better. When he says Groucho has been in an accident and is suffering from "multiple confusions," he's got his tongue in his cheek. When he insists that "my mind is made up and nothing will alter my incision," don't believe him.

Leo is no longer a Dead End Kid at heart. Brooklyn has ceased to be the "motherland;" it's just a borough of New York. If he still talks out of the side of his mouth, it's only a habit and the words that come out are right from the center aisle, like in Boston.

For Mr. Gorcey, away from the mike, is a deep student of philology, etymology and orthoepy. Linguistics is—or are—duck soup for him.

He'll toss a mess of onomatopaeia at you at the drop of a hat, and any time you hear downright logomachy breaking out in the wings, you'll know Leo is in there pitching.

Five Words Daily

These scholarly attainments are no recent whim of Leo's. He got interested in words—the kind you can find in dictionaries—several years ago when uncouth souls bruited it about that the Dead End Kids could neither read nor write. He set himself the stint of learning the meaning and pronunciation of five new words a day, and he hasn't dropped it. Today Leo's list of two-dollar words at his tongue tip is staggering, and though he uses them sparingly, he can handle them well. He'll bet you can't toss him five words off-hand (which means you gotta know them yourself) that he can't define, and he'll wager again that he can give you the same number that you can't handle.

On the day that this was written, for example, we looked up Leo and asked him what were his five words for the day. Let's see how many you know—and no thumbing the thesaurus, either:

- Oneirocritic.
- Mnemonic.
- Desiccate.
- Necromancy.
- Incubus.

For a guy who mangles the King's English so thoroughly over the air, that's a neat hunk of lexicology, but it's bonds to buttons Leo will be chewing them up expertly before night. He has a way with words—and not the way you hear each Saturday night with Groucho.

Stars as Plumber

Leo probably would never have learned the difference between antonomasia and orismology if that Dead End thing hadn't fallen in his lap. Just out of high school in New York, he settled down to the plumbing business and was already dreaming of owning the biggest plumbing shop in Gotham when his brother got a part in the play "Dead End Kids," then being cast by Sidney Kingsley. Leo went down to visit him and found everyone upset because one of the minor characters was missing

"Why don't you take his place for today?" the brother suggested.

Leo asked how much dough was in it and then immediately lost all interest in the plumbing business.

"If they pay a ransom like that for such a little part," he inquired, "why don't I play one of the leads?"

Well, like when the man sat down at the piano, they laughed; but Leo wasn't kidding. He pitched into the minor role with such gusto that at the finish Kingsley asked him to come back next day. By opening night Leo had one of the fattest parts in the play.

The kids were brought to Hollywood in 1937 to make a screen version of the show, and remained to play many sequels. The war finally broke up the group. Three are now in uniform. Leo was called and turned down by the medicos.

First Regular Aixer

He's still making films regularly, and he's done many radio guest appearances, but his spot with Groucho is his first long-time ether job.

"I like it," he confesses, "though it has caused some altercations in my career." (That Gorcey, you can't get him out of character!)

The fans like him, too. Just the other night when he was introduced to the Thursday night preview audience there was a concerted "ah-h-h" from the folks. Groucho handled the situation in his usual way: "You

▲ THIS AIN'T A BAD RACKET, grins Gorcey. "I not only get Groucho's girls, but I get a salary for it. Leaves me aphonous!"

▼ GROWLS GROUCHO: "I don't like Gorcey grabbing all the girls around here. Come to think of it, I don't like Gorcey."

▼ NOT EVEN FAY MCKENZIE, left, and Guest Lynn Bari can take Leo's mind off his goil, Jennifer Schultz, who hasn't even appeared on the program.

His Natural Self

▲ JUST A COUNTRY BOY—that's what "Grand Ole Opry" star, Roy Acuff, calls himself. "All the work I do on the radio is for the country people," he told Radio Life.

I WAS just a nervous country boy on a Knoxville station and I liked to starved to death," reminisced Roy Acuff, star of NBC's folk song program, "Grand Ole Opry." "Then, one day when I was on the mike, I rared back and sang like I was in the country. When I turned loose, and was my natural self, I got successful."

Roy was being interviewed backstage at Radio City, where his portion of the Saturday night show had been cut in from Hollywood where he was working on his sixth picture. He talked with the drawly tang of the Tennessee mountains. His wiry 140-pound frame, small-boned, five-foot-ten body, his dark, weather-beaten face made one think of a hard-tolling country boy. Ears prominent under a mass of curly black hair, and teeth pearly white, he smacked of the thick woods and a fishing stream. Yet his clothes were those of a Hollywood actor; immaculate white shirt opened at the neck to reveal a blue patterned scarf, beautifully tailored cowboy suit, black stripes on grey, a heavy Masonic ring on his right hand.

Roy Acuff's story is the saga of a backwoods lad who kept on trying until success spilled over the dam of obstacles. Yet he was as surprised as anyone when it did arrive.

Minister's Son

"I was raised twenty-four miles out of Knoxville," he elaborated. "My father was a Baptist minister and we lived on a farm. There were five children, three boys and two girls. I was the middle one and the black sheep.

"I played baseball until I got a sunstroke and had a nervous break-

"Put It Out"

On Monday, May 15, NBC's "A Song Is Born" program featured a bounce torch number titled "Put It Out". It was a jivey number that the audience seemed to like, and perhaps the item would end there were it not for the fact that we found out the story behind the song.

It seems that four years ago an automobile accident cut short the promising stage and screen career of Mozelle Britton.

MR. AND MRS. ALAN DINEHART (Mozelle Britton) as they appeared when the latter's composition, "Put It Out", was aired on NBC's "A Song Is Born". See story in Radio West.

JIMMIE FIDLER, BLUE NETWORK air columnist, takes time out from penicillin treatment at hospital to be cut in on his Sunday night broadcast, handled by Truman Bradley. See story in Radio West.

For months the lovely young actress lay in the hospital, undergoing facial surgery. At last it seemed she had recovered enough to return to her work, and so she attempted a role in a New York stage production written and starred in by her husband, Alan Dinehart.

But again fate stepped in. Miss Britton's strength gave way, and it was discovered that she was suffering severe internal injuries as a result of the accident. And so she said goodbye once more to her career and returned to her hospital bed. And that was the beginning of an ordeal that was to last for a year. For Miss Britton underwent four operations to restore her health, and during much of the time she had to remain motionless except for her arms.

It is a tribute to the courage of this young woman that she would not become downhearted. She took up painting, only to discover that she had no talent for it. Then she attempted fancy-work, and finally turned to writing short stories. And out of one of those short stories came the inspiration for a song. It was a simple little melody, picked out with the aid of a toy xylophone. But from it came other melodies, and then words, and then complete songs.

One of those songs was "Put It Out". And that's how Miss Britton stepped to the microphone the other night to tell how her song was born... a song of courage and one that Radio Life hopes will clear the trail for public acclaim for more of her popular tunes.

Fidler—Penicillin

When we heard that Jimmie Fidler had been rushed to the Hollywood Hospital to undergo the Penicillin treatment for glandular abscess, we decided to visit him as soon as he was better. As far as we know, Jimmie is one of the first persons around here who has taken this miraculous treatment, and we wanted to get first-hand information on its effect.

We called the hospital and were more than surprised to talk to Fidler, himself. He told us to come right over.

When we entered the commentator's room it looked more like the bedroom of some shortwave fan than a sick man's room in a hospital. Jimmie was propped up on pillows chatting with BLUE Network Engineer S. K. Hefferman, who was preparing his equipment for a cut-in to the studios.

Fidler told us, that as far as he could make out, the penicillin treatment consisted of a nurse coming in periodically and jabbing him with a hypodermic needle. His part in the whole procedure was to keep track of which side had been jabbed by the preceding nurse. He kept track of the shots by transferring a little black book from one side of the bed to the other.

We asked Jimmie how he had felt when he entered the hospital. He made a wry face and said, "awful". This we had no trouble in believing, because nobody gets into a hospital nowadays unless he not only feels awful, but looks correspondingly as bad.

In answer to other questions, Jimmie told us after a day or so he was eating and sleeping as well as he does in his San Fernando Valley home. We understood the latter readily. It appears that everybody in that community seems to think he should own one of those new kind of roosters that sleeps all day and crows all night.

At this point the broadcast started. Jimmie landed into the BLUE mike with his customary staccato delivery giving an introduction for Truman Bradley who was carrying the bulk of the commentation from the studios.

Right after the show a nurse came in with another shot of the penicillin. We've seen hypodermic needles before, so we just bid Jimmie goodbye and a speedy recovery.

"Goodbye" he said . . . then . . . "Ouch! That's that dull needle again . . . Oh, well, let 'er go. I guess the needle should be dull after forty or fifty shots! . . . "Then (to me) . . . "I'll be home in another day or so!"

We left the hospital in wonderment. This penicillin must truly be all medical science says it is . . . a miracle drug . . . Jimmie Fidler's experience with penicillin takes major illnesses out of the serious, long-drawn-out treatments of yesterday, and puts them in the category of measles, mumps and belly-aches.

On the Sunny Side

Mark Breneman showed up at Radio Life's office the other day with his ever-ready smile spread from ear to ear. He had just received some gratifying evidence of the success of the "Sunny Side of the Street" policy he advocates each weekday morning on his CBS show of that name.

On a recent broadcast, young Breneman gave forth with a forceful rendition of "I'll Get By", punctuated by some of his pleasant philosophizing. A few days later, he received a letter from a listener who informed him that she and her husband had been contemplating a divorce.

"But after hearing my song," Mark related with a happy grin, "they kissed and made up!"

Von Zell Bows Out

Now that his draft board has reclassified him into the over-26-war-supporting-occupation category, Ralph Edwards will continue to occupy his spot as fun-making emcee of NBC's "Truth or Consequences". Harry von Zell, slated to replace him, has bowed out the show until such time as he's needed.

Edwards is now considering another bond-selling tour.

Helmsman

When the Helms Bakeries recently put a string of brief musical ad spots on various Los Angeles radio stations, the only thing that seemed questionable was the sound effect. Some critics told Paul Helms that it sounded just like a Helmsman's bread whistle; others disagreed. Mr. Helms was never quite sure until he recently got a letter from Francis Price who runs the Quinta

Next Week

Have you ever wondered about Don Quinn, the man who writes that top show, Fibber McGee and Molly? Next week you'll see a story about the clever Mr. Quinn. It will be accompanied by pictures taken at the Quinns' home in Encino. Blondie and Dagwood recently visited a war plant and we give you a picture story about their activities there. Other articles include those on Charlie Cantor (Finnegan of "Duffy's"), Barbara Luddy of "First Nighter" fame, a blind boy who reads his radio scripts by Braille, Ona Munson, and how recorded music is made for radio stations. Pick up your copy of the June 4 issue early.

Ladera Ranch near Santa Barbara and Price told him about how his two ranch dogs were acting.

It seems that before gas and tire rationing curbed deliveries, a Helms bakery coach used to pass the Quinta Ladera Ranch daily on the San Marcos Road. The two Price dogs became great pals of the Helmsman, especially since he often gave them scraps of cake. Then the war came and for the last two years there has been no bakeryman so the dogs seemed finally to have forgotten him.

But just the other night (according to Price's letter) one of the Helms spots came on KFI. The dogs were in the ranch living room. At the sound of the whistle, they almost tore down the front door trying to get out. It was pretty obvious they hadn't forgotten their whistling bread driver friend, even after a lapse of two years.

So it looks as though the sound effect on the Helms spot record is pretty realistic, after all.

Passes Self

Neatest trick of the week: Jack Benny, whose comedy show goes out "live" over NBC-KFI at 4 p.m. Sundays and whose program is repeated by transcription at 8:30 p.m. Sundays over KHJ-Mutual, got ratings on his show and learned that his repeat broadcast here, aired over 36 West Coast stations, had a rating of 16.5—two-tenths of a point higher than the actual live broadcast, which rated 16.3.

Baseball Interest

Baseball will enjoy the greatest popularity in its history this season, according to Frank Bull, who recreates major league games Mondays through Fridays from 3 to 4 p.m. over KMPC for Marshall and Clampett.

Interest in major league games is not only intense in the East, where crowds are breaking all records, but also right here in the Los Angeles area!

Bull bases his observation on the vast amount of fan mail he receives from servicemen and from war workers, now stationed or working in this area, who hail from Eastern mafor league cities.

Here are a few examples of letters Bull receives—

From a navy man: "I am in the hospital in Long Beach and it sure is swell to hear a ball game. Keep it up, and good luck to you. I am from St. Louis."

From Capt. W. J. Bernard: "I am from Brooklyn. It is fine to listen to you in the afternoon and get the Eastern games. Your descriptions are most realistic and not given in the monotonous style so many use."

From a man aboard a crash rescue boat at Balboa: "First, let me thank you and your sponsor for bringing us those major league ball games. We're on an army rescue boat that's alerted 24 hours a day, seven days a week. So you can easily see that the radio is our only relaxation. These reports of yours are about our only contact with the baseball world. We really appreciate them."

Other letters come from servicemen and war workers who call such cities as Chicago, Pittsburgh, Detroit, Philadelphia, New York and Washington their "home."

Farmyard Frolics

When a young Canadian sailor, participating in the overseas portion of a recent NBC "Everything for the Boys" broadcast, requested some homelike barnyard noises, producer Arch Oboler arranged for the sound effects department to supply them. But when the time came for the rooster-crowing, hen-cackling and cow-mooing to be heard, hidden talents were revealed and the sound crew wasn't needed.

The barnyard noises were skilfully supplied by none other than the program's pretty guest star, Olivia de Havilland.

For Sake of Sound

Just before a recent NBC "Amos 'N' Andy" broadcast, sound-effects man Ed Lutis suddenly discovered that he was minus the equipment to produce the sound of the Kingfish's strong-box. Just in the nick of time, he secured the needed article—a battered and rusty ordinary tin lunch-box.

Change of Heart

Tom Breneman, host of the Blue Network's "Breakfast at Sardi's" program, found this letter in his mail-bag last week:

"Dear Sir:

"In this package you will find salt and pepper set, which no doubt you will recognize at once. Last fall when I was visiting in California we had breakfast at your place and enjoyed it very much. One of the girls in our party took this set and on the way home gave it to me for a souvenir, which I accepted very gratefully. But as I have become a Christian since that time they are only a remembrance of sin, so I am returning them and asking your forgiveness."

"Signed:

"A Listener."

Uninvited Guests

Lum 'n' Abner, the Blue Network's laugh-provoking oldsters, unintentionally attended a wedding in New York recently. But the boys didn't know anything about it until the other day when they received a letter from Mrs. William H. Deverman, the bride, of Bronxville, New York.

It seems the young Devermans had a quiet ceremony at home during the time that the bridegroom was on a furlough. As part of the proceedings, a recording of the Wedding March was played on the combination radio-phonograph. Then it happened. Someone pressed the wrong button and out popped the voices of Lum 'n' Abner!

"Ordinarily I would have been nervous," the bride declared in her letter, "but as it turned out, I was shaking all over with laughter!"

His Hero

Most appreciative spectator seen viewing a recent CBS "Silver Theater" broadcast which starred Veree Teasdale and Adolphe Menjou, was the couple's young son, Peter. It was the youngster's first chance to witness a radio show and an air performance by his famous parents.

But the boy kept his eyes glued on the sound man!

Timely Gift

Announcer Bill Goodwin would like to thank the fan who sent him a much-needed alarm clock. It arrived by Red Arrow delivery and set to go off a few minutes after Bill received it.

Can't Afford to Win

Six months ago NBC News Commentator Jim Doyle made a bet with the studio page girls that he wouldn't "fluff" a line during the half year period, the loser to play host at a Sunday beach party. Doyle won the bet this week and the girls bundled him off, via bus, to the Santa Monica beach.

On the way home, however, the bus broke down and Jim spent the better part of an hour helping the driver start it again. When the group reached NBC studio, Commentator Doyle started home in his own car only to have it stall on the road. He finished the last two miles on foot. "I don't think I can afford to win bets," comments Jim, "I haven't the stamina for it!"

Like Father, Like Son

When he and his schoolboy chums were recently making plans for a special school show, six-year-old Bud Abbott, Jr., son of the NBC comic, came with the request that his father and partner Lou Costello make a special appearance on the school program.

"But," the youngster emphasized beseechingly, "this isn't like your program, so please don't be corny!"

Shoe, Shoe

CBS comedy star, George Burns, and his brother and manager, Willie Burns, lost their golf shoes in the fire which destroyed the clubhouse at their Hillcrest Country Club. Golf shoes being rarer than Japs in Southern California, Willie moans, "I wore out one pair of shoes looking for another pair!"

Made E'm Laugh

Carroll Carroll, Bing Crosby's writer, was guest speaker at a recent meeting of the Book and Author Club and gave a behind scenes description of Kraft Music Hall which wowed his audience.

Quip provoking the heartiest laughter: "Bing is so full of energy that vitamin pills take HIM for pep!"

Blondie's Expose

The man who laughs at a woman who uses her handbag as a "catch-all" for odds and ends, should think twice and take a look in his own pockets. CBS' "Blondie" (Penny Singleton) proved this point recently at a rehearsal when she induced all the men present to empty their pockets. Guinea pigs of the experiment were Arthur "Dagwood" Lake, Hanley "Dithers" Stafford, Announcer Ken Niles, Producer Don Bernard and Writer John L. Greene.

Their pockets yielded 2½ pounds of scrap paper (envelopes, notebooks, etc.); 4 pounds of metal (keys, knives) and 2 pounds of miscellaneous material ranging from celluloid combs to plastic poker chips!

KMTR's BIRD

During the Tuesday, May 9 broadcast of her "Eugenia Clair Presents" program, Miss Clair mentioned, among other things, Hedda Hopper's description of the humming bird nest built under the eaves of the KMTR patio promenade. However, Miss Hopper "plugged" the nest in her column but failed to mention that the bird was at KMTR.

Merl Lindsay and his Oklahoma Niteriders are substituting on KMTR for Bob Wills, who is "on tour." Program is heard 12-12:30 p. m., Monday through Saturday.

KGFJ SCHEDULE

Thelma Kirchner, KGFJ manager, looking very smart in red and gray, says she has just completed revamping the station's programming. Aim of the station is to be identified with up-to-the-minute news and best music. Most programs are scheduled six days a week "across the board" so that listeners can count on getting their favorite fare at the same hour each day.

One of the most popular musical programs on the air has just received a thorough going-over from top to bottom. While still retaining that sparkling flavor which has made the "Victory Parade of Spotlight Bands" one of the better listening features on KECA, a new interview highlight has been added making it highly timely.

Still heard Monday through Saturday evenings at 6:30, the "Parade" now proceeds across continents and oceans to bring the voices of our servicemen back home. On each program now, one outstanding BLUE Network news commentator takes a few minutes to interview a serviceman who has in some way made an outstanding record thereby earning the right to send a message home.

Of course, parents and loved-ones of these boys selected to talk via the "Spotlight Bands" program, are notified in advance and are, quite naturally, tuned-in for the happy occasion.

"Hollywood Star Time", that program which has luncheon with stars on a prominent Hollywood picture lot, this week goes coast-to-coast. With only one month behind it as a Pacific coast feature, "Hollywood Star Time" has moved rapidly into big-time and the transcontinental extension is justly deserved.

Retaining its present format, the program continues to feature Gary Breckner and Larry Keating as co-hosts in an informal interview with stars each week-day at 12:15 over KECA.

In a recent column we mentioned "Early American Dance Music" presented each Saturday evening at 8 on KECA, and said, in our opinion, it was an outstanding program since it featured music popular in our grandparents' generation and, where possible, the music was played on the musical instruments used in that early area in American history.

Apparently we aren't the only ones who thought the program was good because in the very near future it will be extended from 15 minutes to a full half-hour.

If you haven't found time to listen to "Early American Dance Music", it is recommended that you do so. We'll bet you'll be pleasantly surprised with this type of music and the manner in which it is presented.

Frances Scully continues to please KECA listeners with her Monday through Friday feature at 2:45 p.m. The letters Frances receives from listeners are proof that she has hit just the right stride to interest housewives, and even an occasional male listener, with her topics of conversation which extend from the kitchen to intimate behind-the-scenes stories from the picture studios.

AMONG SOUVENIRS

Among the many keepsakes that Jean Hersholt, CBS' "Dr. Christian," treasures, is a large magnifying glass with a carved ivory handle, that was used by Ulysses S. Grant during his term as president.

AUTHOR FLANNERY

Harry W. Flannery, CBS war commentator and author of the book, "Assignment to Berlin," is writing the chapter on war news analysis for a new radio textbook to be published this spring.

DINAH'S ROSE

CBS' southern songbird, Dinah Shore, now has a rose named for her. A long stemmed variety, resembling the popular American Beauty, the Dinah Shore Rose will be placed on the flower market in the near future.

SPRING FEVER

Now that Spring has come, announcer David Ross, of the Blue Network's Morton Downey program, likes to spend Sunday afternoons riding back and forth on the Staten Island ferry reading a book of poetry.

JACK TO JACK

Jack Owens not only replaced Navy-bound Jack Baker as the Blue Network's "Breakfast Club" caroler, but also took over the departing tenor's house. Owens, his wife and three children are now comfortably installed in the former Baker domicile.

HOMEMAKER

Virginia Sale, who plays "Martha" on NBC's "Those We Love," is completing the furnishing of her new Hollywood home in spite of wartime restrictions. She is weaving her own living room rugs, making her own curtains and refinishing odd pieces of second-hand furniture.

DANSEUSE

Joan Banks, leading lady of NBC's "We Love and Learn," attended the School of the Russian Ballet, and almost decided to follow a dancing career.

PETTICOAT PRODUCER

Edna Best, film favorite, is producing Mutual's "New Adventures of Sherlock Holmes" in the absence of Tony Hardt, who will be in New York until the last of May.

down when I was fifteen years old. For two years I was flat on my back. That's when I got interested in recordings. We were a musical family. Mother played the guitar and piano and father played the fiddle."

After young Roy had tried to snatch a start in Knoxville, he remained consistent with the idea of crashing "Grand Ole Opry." The greatest program of its kind on the air, "Opry," as you are probably aware, is broadcast every Saturday night from eight until twelve o'clock from the Nashville Civic Auditorium, which seats about 5,000 persons. Typically American folk material, the show rates paid admissions from the mob of ever-eager patrons. Only the period from 10:30 until 11 (7:30 to 8, our time) is broadcast with a smoking tobacco as sponsor.

"I tried three years to get on Opry," Acuff said seriously. "I'd make two or three trips each year. Rode anyway just to get into Nashville. The head man always said, 'Sorry son, we're just filled up,' and never even listened to me."

"Speckled Bird"

What really brought this country boy out of the woods was a song titled "The Great Speckled Bird," a religious folk number based on a Bible passage from Jeremiah 12:9. He ballooned this number to such popularity that Nashville finally had to relent and ask Acuff and his Smoky Mountain accompanists to journey to the big city. That was six years ago when he became an Opry cast member. Today, Roy Acuff is acknowledged America's No. One folk singer and has made so much money that by his own admission he is "fixed for life" and could retire now if he didn't want to help the hometown boys who have strung along up the trail to fame and fortune with him. "I've took it very seriously," he said earnestly, "and tried to help them. Right now I'm awfully tired, but I want to help the boys get set."

Attract Attention

Acuff, who recently turned down an insistent public bid that he run for governor of Tennessee as the people's champion, hews closely to a compact motto: "If you want to do something, attract people's attention. There's two kinds of singers," he illustrated. "Plain singers and sellers. I'm a seller. Lots of people can beat me singin' and singin' purty. I haven't an agent, nor anything. I've played my own little game in my own little way and they come for me."

He has written a number of songs and owns his own publishing company, plays the fiddle, and likes to hunt out old ballads. His repertoire runs around 1500 to 2000 songs. "I could sing all of 'em," he said practically, "if I could hold out." Then, in the next breath, he exclaimed: "I don't know why people took to me.

The station wonders how I come to it, too. But I was raised in the country among country mountain people and all the work I do on the radio is for them. I have never said anything that people couldn't enjoy. I can go back anywhere I ever was. When I'm up on the mike, I play to little children, mothers, and fathers. My audience has grown up with me," he concluded simply.

Personal Appearances

In addition to his popularity on the air and in pictures, he and his "boys," a banjo player, guitar, accordion, violin, and bass, make personal appearances. During their recent stay in Southern California, they played for two week-end nights at Venice Pier Ballroom and drew a record-smashing crowd of almost 20,000, among them parents bringing many tots and babies in arms.

Acuff is married and has a home in Nashville. He is the father of little Roy Neil, nine months old.

He is not sorry that he gave up the idea of running for governor, because he is smart enough to know his singing career would have diminished as his political career took on added importance. "I figger," he said, "that I woulda been tradin' a lotta pleasure for a lotta heartaches."

bobby-sockers are in a little early. Sinatra doesn't use this studio till Saturday night!"

Inside, Leo is full of six-cylinder words, but outwardly he still waves the banner of Dead End Street. He goes to and from the studio on a wheezy old motorcycle. He likes his clothes rumpled and he shaves only under pressure, leading one wag, who had read S. J. Perelman, to remark, "His face looks like it's been slept in."

Cacti Hobbyist

He has another hobby that is as astonishing as his glossological pursuits. In his backyard he has one of the most extensive collections of dwarf cacti in the entire west—more than 150 varieties of the spiny things. Also, he collects rocks of all shapes and colors; they come from every state in the union, though how Leo can tell a piece of Quantico quartz from a Peoria pebble is beyond us.

Leo does not flaunt his orthographic leanings in the faces of his less erudite neighbors, and it was only through accident that we stumbled upon this most unusual facet in his personality. We overheard an argument between Leo and the stage-hand.

"No, no!" barked Leo out of the southwest corner of his mouth, "that ain't right! If two words are pronounced the same but mean something different, they're not anony-

When D Day Comes

*How the Four Major Networks
Will Handle the News Is Told
In the Accompanying Article*

EDITOR'S NOTE

As our troops overseas and those on the home front are poised for The Invasion, radio's interest is manifest in preparations for news coverage of this tremendous event. All dialers have their favorite domestic commentators and newscasters—persons whose voices and whose treatment of the news are familiar. But not many of us know much about the men who will handle the news when D Day comes. Believing that Radio Life readers might like to see pictures of some of the networks' foreign correspondents and become acquainted with their background and qualifications for relaying information and interpretation on the history-making events about to happen, we herewith present brief outlines on overseas personnel of the four major networks—NBC, CBS, Blue, and MBS.

NBC

NBC is planning to give the American public a fireside seat at the most tragic and biggest military show of history—the invasion of the Fortress Europa by the embattled democracies.

All plans for coverage of D Day—which means nothing more than what the name implies. THE Day—have been completed by William F. Brooks, head of the news and special events department of the network and former Associated Press executive.

The news staff has been re-arranged, more newsmen and correspondents added and facilities established, including special pooling agreements with the British Broadcasting Corporation, to give America a complete report of the military operations as they materialize.

In charge of the London invasion staff is Stanley Richardson, who will have on his roster such experienced reporters as John MacVane, David Anderson, W. W. Chaplin, John Vandercook, George Y. Wheeler, Edwin Haaker and Merrill Mueller, youthful veteran of the London blitz and the North African and Italian campaigns.

Francis C. McCall, department operations manager in New York, will be in London to assist Richardson in coordinating broadcasting material and in assigning men where the news will be the hottest.

Lowell Thomas, H. V. Kaltenborn and Robert St. John will also be part of the NBC team covering invasion developments, but will probably operate from the United States. In Washington, Richard Harkness, Morgan Beatty, Lelf Eid, William McAndrew and Captain Thomas Knode, honorably discharged United States Army veteran of the Buna campaign in the South Pacific, will cover details originating from the war agencies in the nation's capital.

For some time NBC has been in contact with the Army and Navy, the British post office (which controls circuits out of England), the BBC and various officials in Washington who will have a part in the censorship and dissemination of news once the invasion gets under way. The news department has prepared background copy, assigned special features to be developed both domestically and abroad, and has booked a number of prominent figures representing various occupied countries, so that when the flash comes, NBC will be ready to give the best coverage possible over the network.

NBC, with other networks, has assigned a recording crew to the Navy, and stories obtained will be pooled in London. With these recording devices, correspondents will be able to bring a front line picture direct to the microphone. What these crews see will be recorded and later broadcast back to the home front.

The "quarterback" for the invasion team will be William F. Brooks. He will operate from his headquarters in Radio City, shifting the men from one key position to another as points of action change. Though but 41 years old, Brooks has been a newspaper man since 1917, covered both the Republican and Democratic conventions in 1928. Later, as executive editor of AP feature service, he covered every state in the union as well as many countries in South America and Europe.

W. W. Chaplin, another member of NBC's invasion team, was one of the first American newsmen to interview Gandhi. A veteran of World War I, his first newspaper job was on The Syracuse Journal, followed by 11 years with the Associated Press. In 1932 he joined the International News staff and was assigned to Washington. His first foreign assignment was in Rome and later Paris, from where he left to cover the Ethiopian War. He returned to France to cover the Western Front until Dunkirk, escaping just before the German army marched in. He covered the Gandhi uprisings in 1942 and the Nationalist Congress in Bombay. After covering the Russian war for several months, he returned to New York.

David Anderson, another member of the London staff, has been doing most of his broadcasting from Sweden. A graduate of the University of California, he went to Sweden in 1939 during the Finnish and Norwegian wars and translated the articles of Sweden's foremost war correspondents for an American news agency. After joining NBC, he was sent to Rome, later returning to Stockholm. He was recently sent to London.

Bjorn Bjornson, who replaced Anderson in Stockholm, was born in Minnesota. A graduate of the University of Minnesota, he served for four years as editor of a weekly and two years as head of the department of journalism at Grand Forks University. After several years on The Minneapolis Tribune he joined NBC and was sent to Iceland and remained there until his recent transfer.

Edwin Haaker, one of the youngest members of the invasion team, was once a guide at Radio City. A magna cum laude graduate of Franklin and Marshall Academy, he first came to NBC in 1933 but left to enter business in New England. After a stint with the Associated Press he returned to NBC as a junior writer in the news and special events department and worked his way to a senior rating.

John MacVane is one of the veteran radio correspondents of World War II. Born in Portland, Maine, he attended Phillips Exeter Academy and received his A.B. Degree at William College and a B.Litt. from Oxford University. MacVane's first newspaper job was on The Brooklyn Eagle and a year later he joined the staff of The New York Sun. MacVane went to London in 1938 as sub-editor of The London Daily Express and then spent two years in the Paris office of The Express and the International News Service. Shortly after he joined NBC, he was assigned to cover the Dieppe raid and was the only radio reporter taken on the mission. He covered the African invasion, and was also at the front in Italy.

Merrill Mueller is one of the few reporters of World War II to receive the Order of the Purple Heart. Though only 27 he is already a veteran of the London blitz, the South Pacific War, the North African and Italian campaigns, and is now back in London awaiting the word to move to the front with General Eisenhower, to whose command he has been assigned by Brooks. Mueller was a member of Newsweek's London Bureau when he joined NBC. He went through 700 raids in London, 72 in Malta and countless others in North Africa and Italy. When the Japs attacked Pearl Harbor, Mueller was aboard a British destroyer bound for Gibraltar. He went to Malta and the Middle East and joined the British in their sweep across Libya. He got to Singapore shortly before the Japs and just managed to get out ahead of them. He roamed the South Pacific for a time, interviewing General MacArthur, and then set out for Africa after a stop-over in London. Mueller covered the American and British sweep into Tunisia and was with the first wave of American troops to set foot on Sicilian soil.

John W. Vandercook, another invasion team member, will carry with him an intimate knowledge of 73 foreign countries he has toured in his capacity as a reporter and traveler. He was born in London, son of John F. Vandercook, first president of the United Press. He was graduated from St. Paul's School, Garden City, Long Island, and attended Yale for a year. He left to try his luck at acting and after a year in stock and with several minor roles in Broadway productions, he turned to newspaper work. His first job was on The Columbus Citizen in Columbus, Ohio. He later worked for The Washington News and The Baltimore Post and in 1923 became assistant editor of MacFadden Publications. Recently reported in Algiers, Vandercook hopes to arrive in London before D Day.

The latest addition to the invasion staff is George Y. Wheeler. Wheeler was born in Washington and was graduated from Princeton with an A.B. Degree in 1937. After a trip to Honolulu he joined NBC as a page in Washington and then, in rapid succession, became announcer, script writer, producer, production manager, and finally assistant manager. His war correspondent duties will see him assigned to the Navy and he expects to do much of his work with the recorder.

MBS

LONDON, Cairo, Italy, Washington and New York will be among the chief news sources when D Day comes. And from these points the Mutual-Don Lee network will have a corps of experienced radio commentators and newspapermen on hand to bring to listeners progress of the invasion.

Headed by veteran John Steele, the London staff includes Arthur Mann and paratrooper John Thompson of the Chicago Tribune, both of whom are known to Mutual-Don Lee audiences for their work as war correspondents in the past. Two newcomers, Larry Meier, feature writer and correspondent who recently covered the Pacific front for Look magazine, and Tom Wolfe, formerly with WOR, Mutual's New York affiliate, and now on special assignment for NEA, are also on hand.

In addition Seymour Korman will cover invasion activities in Italy with Leslie Nichols reporting from Cairo.

Analyzing the news from New York will be Cecil Brown, Boake Carter, Henry Gladstone, Royal Arch Gunnison, Gabriel Heatter, Charles Hodges and Frank Singler. Leo Cherne will discuss the effect of the invasion on the home front.

From the nation's capital Fulton Lewis, jr., and Walter Compton will be on hand to combine news of Eisenhower's push into Europe with activities in Washington.

Supplementing this crew of newsmen will be the Christian Science Monitor news feature "The World's Front Page" heard Mondays through Fridays at 5:30 p. m. over KHJ-Mutual Don Lee.

CBS

WITH the long-awaited flash that the major invasion of Nazi-held Europe has begun, reporters and analysts of the Columbia network will swing into action 24 hours a day, bringing all phases of the epic operations to the American listening audience.

CBS overseas correspondents hope to broadcast eye-witness accounts of the myriad actions as United Nations forces land on the Continent from air and sea. In New York and Washington, reporters and analysts who know the European scene from personal observation will stand ready to complete the invasion picture as it unfolds.

Focal point for CBS will be the network's New York newsroom, where all broadcasts will be coordinated by Paul White, CBS Director of News Broadcasts.

To augment the constant stream of news that will pour in, the Columbia network has added Quentin Reynolds, war correspondent and author to its staff. He, and Major George Fielding Elliot, military analyst, will be on call day and night to interpret the operations.

For the task of interpreting the invasion from the standpoint of the American soldier and the obstacles that must be overcome. Reynolds is particularly qualified. In August, 1942, he accompanied the English-Canadian raid on Dieppe. There he saw the Nazi coastal defenses in operation and knows the difficulty of storming them.

His first-hand observations continued last summer when he was with forces that landed and took Sicily; soon after, in September, he was aboard a naval craft during the difficult landing operations of the Bay of Salerno.

He is the author of the current best-seller "The Curtain Rises," in which he recounts his most recent war experiences, and is narrator on CBS' "Report to the Nation."

Major Elliot will devote periods on the air to analyzing the significance of invasion operations in relation to overall military strategy.

From England, Edward R. Murrow, Chief of the CBS European staff, will direct his six London correspondents. Already correspondent Charles Collingwood and technician Eugene Rider have been assigned to naval units for the invasion. Other members of the staff—Larry Lesueur, Bill Downs, Richard Hottelet and Charles Shaw—are awaiting assignment to specific branches.

All these men have gone through months of extensive training with combat groups; some have trained with paratroopers and airborne units, others with armored and infantry divisions.

From New York, CBS reporters and analysts who have been with our forces overseas will be heard. These include Bob Trout, who was a member of the London staff from 1941 to 1943; John Daly, who covered the United Nations victories in Africa and Sicily and only recently returned from Naples and the Anzio beachhead; and William L. Shirer, one of the few correspondents to have toured the Nazi Continental defenses built by the Todt organization prior to 1941. Other members of the New York newsroom invasion staff include Everett Holles, CBS Assistant Director of News Broadcasts; Quincy Howe, news analyst, and Douglas Edwards, news reporter.

A special installation in White's office will facilitate easy switches from one point in the world to another. Called "The World On A Panel," the installation combines several important radio communications features. By means of the panel, White can check the quality of the broadcast signal from any given point in the CBS communications network; signal to announcers and engineers which point to call in next, and talk personally with CBS correspondents overseas.

When the first news of invasion comes, the Army-Navy news pooling system will go into operation and initial reports of CBS and other correspondents will be available to all major networks. In addition, reports of the British Broadcasting Corporation and Canadian Broadcasting Corporation correspondents will be available to CBS.

BLUE

Radio's youngest network, the Blue, has organized its invasion-reporting staff under G. W. Johnstone, Director of News and Special Events. Stationed in London and in charge of three reporters there is George Hicks, whose staff includes Arthur Feldman, Thomas B. Grandin and Ted Malone. In Naples are Gordon Fraser and Donald Coe, while newly-appointed to Cairo is Fred Lee.

George Hicks, a thirty-five-year-old brawny, tousle-haired man, sailed the seas as a youth of twenty, and was a member of an Arctic expedition. He entered radio fourteen years ago, eventually to become a member of the Blue Network's special features division. He has conducted broadcasts from submarines, flooded areas, South Seas, and European battle zones. He is now manager of the Blue Network's London office.

Thirty-five-year-old Gordon Fraser is a veteran of twelve years announcing and news reporting. He majored in English and history in college, became a radio newscaster, officiating on special events broadcasts from ships, planes and submarines. Born in Lawrence, Massachusetts, he is married and has two children.

Thomas Grandin joined the Blue Network staff on March 1 of this year. He recently underwent the roughest, most gruelling training routine in the U. S. Army and is now rated an official paratrooper, the first American radio correspondent to achieve such a distinction.

Former supervisor of special events for NBC, Arthur Feldman is now assistant to George Hicks in London. Feldman directed the production of the British Evacuee Children series of broadcasts; has covered army maneuvers, the Squalus submarine disaster; interviewed survivors of the "Cavalier" plane accident. He arranged coverage of America's Cup Races in 1936, and the flood disaster of the following year.

Ted Malone, conductor of "Between the Bookends" and "History is Fun," entered radio as a space salesman, then became continuity writer and program director. His real name is Frank Alden Russell. He adopted his pen name because he thought poetry was sissy stuff, and didn't want to be identified with a "filler" program of poetry which marked the beginning of his popular "Bookends" program. He is thirty-five, married and has two children.

Donald Coe is a third generation newspaper man. A graduate of the University of Syracuse School of Journalism, he joined the United Press in 1935, was manager of the Albany, New York bureau, covered the capitol and state legislature. In 1941 he went to New York to cover the United Press cable desk, was made a foreign correspondent in June of 1942.

Death Valley Comes to Life

By Shirley Gordon

An Easterner Becomes Desert Adventurer; Brings the Old West to Life On Airplanes

Thursday, 8:30 p. m.
CBS-KNX

THE stories I like best," radio's "Death Valley Days" writer informed us, "are the simple homespun ones. I like the one about the old woman who lived all her life on the desert, and always dreamed of some day having a new dress."

It is quite natural that stories of such touching simplicity should particularly appeal to this writer of old western tales, for, surprisingly enough, this person who weekly brings radio listeners all the roughness, color, and adventure of early America, is a woman—and a quiet, gentle-bred Easterner at that. Her name is Mrs. Ruth Woodman, and she has been writing successful "Death Valley Days" scripts for thirteen years.

Until 1930, when she started writing them, she had never been out west. She had, however, journeyed around the world. But when Radio Life interviewed her recently, she declared quickly, "Our own West is the most fascinating place of all." When she took on the job as "Death Valley Days" writer, she traveled westward immediately for the first of her annual tours of the desert. Now, because of the war and travel restrictions, her visits are less frequent, but she has become fully acquainted with the desert she writes about and the people whose stories she tells.

"I imagine," Mrs. Woodman observed, "that a person either loves the desert or hates it. I happen to love it." When questioned about the dangers she faces when trekking across the hot, desolate sections of western America, she laughed, "Those who know well of the desert's dangers call me 'Fearless.' I'm not filled with fears, however, probably because I'm an easterner and know very little of what could happen. If our car should ever break down though, I know it wouldn't be very pleasant."

Guide Is "Desert Rat"

Mrs. Woodman's guide on her western trips is W. W. Cahill. (His first name is Washington and he is one of those picturesque old-time westerners familiarly known as "desert rats.")

He knows the desert well and is acquainted with many of the old-timers who have fascinating yarns to spin. But often Mrs. Woodman talks alone to those who have stories to tell, for she finds that the smaller the audience the more readily these silent people of the desert can be encouraged to talk. Many of them seem to suspect that their stories are to be a subject for other people's laughter. One woman declared, "I don't want my life used as an evening's entertainment."

"These wonderful people of the old west," Mrs. Woodman enthused, "are indeed like no other people. They have had so little, and have faced so much. They're so gallant!" She declared "that one is particularly impressed by their humor and their hospitality."

"When I go up and knock on their doors," she explained, "they never reply with the words, 'Who are you?' or 'What do you want?' They always say simply, 'Come in, my dear.'"

One elderly woman of seventy or more (who had been a long-line

A QUIET-MANNERED EASTERNER, Mrs. Ruth Woodman brings to the airplanes vivid tales of the old West. To make her scripts authentic, she journeys westward regularly to trek across the desert and meet the colorful characters whose stories she tells. "They are like no other people," she declares.

WORLD-WIDE TRAVELER, SEASONED SOLDIER, inventor-writer-lecturer, Major Hubert S. Turner has made many amazing predictions of coming events. Today he declares that World War II will end in 1945.

“Truth Is So Simple”

Delle Hunter

MAJOR HUBERT S. TURNER maintains that he is concerned solely with facts. As Radio Life chatted with him one recent afternoon in his charming Beverly Hills home, he pointed out that he endeavors to base all his commentation on simple reasoning and sound logic. He declared that he never states a conclusion without giving the accompanying facts upon which that conclusion is based.

Earlier in the year, when other commentators, not to mention all the persons in fields other than commentation, were making wild guesses and doing wishful thinking concerning the Allies' invasion of Europe, Major Turner gave his radio listeners some plain facts, based on his extensive knowledge of military science.

The earliest date upon which the invasion could possibly occur, he declared in a broadcast of last January, would be the night of April 22. For it was then, and not until then, he reasoned, that the time and tide would be right. The weather would be warm, there would be no moonlight, he continued, and it is accepted military strategy to attack on a week-end when the enemy's defenses are weakest. Major Turner then named the succeeding dates when all climatic conditions would be favorable for a successful channel crossing, with the least risk for the invading forces. The additional determining factor, of course, as he pointed out, was the full completion of military preparations.

Corroboration

More than three months after the January broadcast on which he imparted the above information to his radio audience, the commentator grinned over this item in his morning paper:

Madrid, April 22: The Madrid newspaper, Arriba, predicted today that the second front assault against western Europe will be carried out some time between 10 o'clock tonight and April 30th. The paper in setting that time as the probable period of invasion explained that tides in the channel and North Sea then are the most favorable for military and naval operations.

While others are guessing the date when this world war will end, Major Turner makes this positive statement: "The war will end in 1945. January, 1946, will be the happiest new year the world has ever known." He made this statement during a speech at the Los Angeles Breakfast Club, adding that he would return in January of 1946, and if his prediction had been proven false, his listeners were invited to throw everything that was on their breakfast plates into his face.

He bases his prediction of the war's ending on the things he saw when he was in Europe. He toured Germany and witnessed its preparations for a five-year war. Japan followed suit, he told us, basing its entire strategy on the identical five-year plan. Germany and Japan may want to fight on, he declared, but before 1945 draws to a close, their supplies will be completely exhausted and they will find it necessary to accept defeat—Germany in the spring, most likely, and Japan in the fall or winter.

Other Predictions

In the past, Major Turner has made amazing and uncanny predictions of coming events such as:

When Italy invaded Ethiopia, he (Please turn to Page 31)

"Truth Is So Simple"

stated this was the real start of World War II, which would begin in 1939 by a combined Germany and Italy, with the aid of Russia, though the latter would be attacked by Germany before the war ended.

In a military lecture to Reserve Officers in New York, when the "phony war" was still being talked about, he predicted the invasion of Norway, the Low Countries, Romania and Bulgaria.

The fall of Singapore by a jungle attack through the Malayan Peninsula was predicted by him before Japan obtained rights in French Indo-China, though military experts had stated such an attack was impossible.

Born in Norwich, England, but a naturalized citizen of the United States for many years, Major Turner was educated in private schools in Great Britain and studied engineering in American universities. In the last World War he served with both the British and American armies, in the intelligence and technical fields. He still holds his commission as an officer in the U. S. Army Reserve, and wishes that he would be accepted for active service.

Following World War I's armistice, he was sent to the Balkan countries where he assisted in arranging for the feeding of their starving people. While there, he observed the post-war peace settlements and wrote this startling prediction to the adjutant general's office in Washington, "... there will certainly be another world war by 1939 or 1940." If postwar plans are not properly laid today, he expects the world to be again engulfed in all-out warfare by 1967. Past history proves, he points out, that there has been a major war on the average of every twenty-two years.

Major Turner believes in simplicity. "Verbiage," he declares, "so often conceals ignorance. The truth is so simple." He believes that some day the world will dispense with legal terminology, and be much better off without it. The people will eventually realize the worth of plain facts, and will demand them.

On Another Planet

A confirmed traveler, Major Turner has lived with the cultured and the primitive peoples of nearly all the countries of the world. These travels and his studies have given him a broad knowledge and understanding of world events, enabling him, as he puts it, to stand aside as if on another planet, to present a true, impartial picture of the changing scenes of the day. He considers himself a completely impartial commentator. On every controversial subject, he presents the facts on both sides of the subject, leaving his listeners to form their own conclusions.

After one broadcast concerning a political issue, two of the letters he received seemed positive proof of his neutrality. A Republican wrote that she was happy to know he was a member of her political party; a Democrat wrote that she was pleased to know that he was such a staunch fellow Democrat.

"I simply gave them facts," he explained to us, "and each of them drew a conclusion conforming to her own individual ideas. Too often, people believe only what they want to believe."

The commentator considers his work a sacred trust and a tremendous responsibility. His charming wife, who is also a busy lecturer in her own right, commented, "He always worked to teach people the things that are right and true."

Major and Mrs. Turner have a delightful fifteen-year-old daughter named Rae. The family pet is a dog named "Rags" who has also reached the venerable age of fifteen.

At the close of our visit, the entire family (Rags included) escorted us to the door, and Mrs. Turner's parting comment was, "We only hope my husband's radio audiences like him as much as his family does. We think he's rather wonderful."

teamster in the old days) suggested that the writer should live right there with her in her hut for a spell. In all her years of gathering material for "Death Valley Days" stories, Mrs. Woodman has not found it necessary to carry credentials or to present a calling card.

No War Format

This year, on her journey westward, she found the desert displaying its wartime motif of army camps, soldiers and equipment. But, she declares, the "Death Valley Days" show will not follow suit with a wartime format. People get enough of the war through other channels, the writer reasons.

Mrs. Woodman was educated at Vassar, but has never taken any writing courses. She started her career as a secretary, became a copy writer, then began writing scripts for radio. "It was a new field," she pointed out, "and there was little competition. I got the job of writing 'Death Valley Days' simply because I was more interested in doing it than anybody else at the time." She has also written scripts for such shows as "Dr. Christian," "Believe It or Not," and "Cavalcade."

In addition to her active career, she manages a household consisting of her mother, her husband and her two children—son Billy, aged eleven, and daughter Winthrop, aged seven. Billy is theatrically minded, and hopes some day to take over the writing chores on "Death Valley Days." He loves his mother's show, and is sometimes quite shocked by Winthrop's attitude toward it.

"One night after the children had gone to bed," Mrs. Woodman related to us, "I heard the radio going in Winthrop's room." At first she contemplated reprimanding the youngster, then thought with a smile, "No, the dear is simply listening to her mother's show."

The next morning she asked Winthrop how she had liked it. "Why, I wasn't listening to your program, mother," the little girl replied blandly. "I was listening to 'The Aldrich Family.'"

Brother Billy was shocked and exclaimed unbelievably, "But how could you listen to some other show besides mother's!"

"Because I like 'The Aldrich Family' better," stated Winthrop simply, adding "Besides, mother's program sometimes gives me nightmares."

Treasure Hunt?

One of the most popular types of stories on "Death Valley Days" is that which deals with lost mines and buried treasures. Immediately, a deluge of letters comes from listeners requesting maps and diagrams so that they may search for the hidden wealth.

After one such story dealing with "hidden hills of gold," a man wrote in, stating that he was to have a vacation shortly and would appreciate receiving all the available information on this weathy territory so that he might go in search for it.

Mrs. Woodman promptly replied: "Believe me, sir, if I had the necessary information concerning the whereabouts of those hills of gold, I assure you I would not be sitting here in my New York office. I'd be standing right on top of the biggest hill, digging like mad!"
