The Ear Inspires the Pen

Mrs. R. F. Knoll, 2259 Roswell, Long Beach, Calif.

Sirs: If all the mystery fans feel like I do, their wails and moans should be heard from coast to coast. I refer to the dropping of "I Love A Mystery" and substituting that very un-funny show in its place. Even without the original Jack Packard and Doc Long, "I Love A Mystery" was a Grade A show. Here's hoping all other "I Love A Mystery" fans will make enough noise to bring the show back—and soon.

I also hope "Hawaii Calls" will soon be heard over Mutual. At present, I manage to pick it up over short-wave, but it isn't so clear.

I also want to join other listeners in their complaints against drawn-out serials. "Sandra Martin" seems to be fairly fast-moving, so wish more would follow this example. Maybe if seven of the fifteen minutes used for commercials were cut down to two or three minutes, the serials could move faster.

"Hawaii Calls" is back on Mutual—Saturdays, 3:30 p.m.

Mrs. George E. Teehan, 834 Golden Avenue, Los Angeles, Calif.

Sirs: I have read the Editor's Note on the pseudo-hero, Dick Brown. In my opinion, it is a real disgrace when a man, evidently brought up in a religious home, can stoop so low to steal a job or career from a real hero veteran.

MARY O'BRIEN, The Broadway's fashionist, takes listeners behind seams every Wednesday. Miss O'Brien says there is romantic lure in the words, "designed in California," but thinks we, here, do not take due cognizance of our local fashion creators.

Behind Fashion Seams

★ Radio Profiles of California's Outstanding Designers Saluted ★
By The Broadway's Mary O'Brien

Wednesday, 1:15-p. m.
KHJ

RADIO PROFILES of California's most outstanding fashion designers and manufacturers comprise the unique and highly listenable feature of Mary O'Brien's Fashion Forum, now back on the air for its second session. From week to week, Mary salutes such famed fashion-creators as Louella Ballerino, Marjorie Montgomery Lutz, Max Koob, Margaret Krantz, Mabs, Margit Felligi, Charles Merkin and Murray Goldstein.

With the full approval of her sponsor, The Broadway Department Store, which has pridefully featured California-made fashions since their infancy, Mary O'Brien not only tells about the achievements of California's top-notch designers in the field of fashion, but gives intimate glimpses into their personal lives.

"In my trips east," says Mary O'Brien, "it has become apparent to me that women who live in California know less about California fashions, and the talented group of designers who create them, than they do elsewhere in the country, where the word "California" has romantic lure.

"I know most of these designers
personally, they're doing a grand job, and I am proud to give them recognition on the Fashion Forum. I feel that all of us who live here in California have just as much reason to be proud of our wonderful California fashions, as we have to take pride in our glorious climate, our glamorous movie studios, our great war-time industries."

As another novel innovation on her fashion forum, which takes listeners behind the seams of fashion, Mary O'Brien urges women to send in for their "Fashion-scopes," prepared by famous historian, teacher and philosopher Manly Hall. The Fashion-scope relates the personal characteristics of individuals born under each sign of the zodiac, indicating types of fashions considered most becoming, favorite accessories, flowers and jewels.

In addition to glamorizing California fashions, Mary O'Brien also answers listeners' queries regarding clothes etiquette, and gives personal reports of various previews and fashion teas which she attends in her capacity of fashionist for The Broadway.

GHAT'S ONE THING about me," pointed out Fred Brady. "I've always got to be doing something." At the moment, in the cramped office quarters we had camped in to conduct our interview, he was pacing back and forth across the limited floor space with quick, nervous strides. It was less than a week before the premier airing of the new Gracie Fields show on which he appears as the program's featured comic. He had been working all morning on script changes.

"I got a swell gag I want to use for the opening show," he told us excitedly. "It goes like this: It's the day after the election, and there's Dewey sitting in the White House. He's writing a postcard. It says, 'Having wonderful time. Wish I were here!'"

Brady grinned, and resumed his pacing back and forth.

"Do you pace the floor like this when you're writing your material?" we questioned him.

"Yeah, just about," he acknowledged, "stopping just long enough to type."

Fred Brady is the gag writer who decided he could deliver his own jokes. He proved his point when he wrote himself into the script of "Uncle Walter's Doghouse," the Chicago airshow on which he debuted as a radio funnyman. Since then, he has been starred on his own program for several series—once to take over Kate Smith's air time during the summer, and in 1943, to replace Bob Burns in the hot weather months.

In appearance, Brady is a towering, muscular six feet, one inch, one hundred and eighty pounds. He is youthful, fair-complexioned, has blond hair and blue eyes. He loves sports, plays tennis or golf almost every day, and likes horseback riding and swimming as well.

"I love California," he beamed, adding in exaggerated golden, pear-shaped tones, "because I am such an outdoor man."

Was Bread-Winner

Brady was born in New York City and got his start in show business there, as an actor with the Greenwich Village Players. Before that, he had attended Columbia University, and worked at odd jobs (everything from ditch-digging to aerial photography). His father, a New York stock broker, died in 1929, and Fred was called upon to support his family—his mother, twin sisters and a brother.

No other member of Brady's family is theatrically-inclined. "They all think I'm terrific," smiled the writer-comedian in answer to our query. "In fact," he added, "if all my audiences were as enthusiastic as my mother, I'd be the biggest success in the business."

While he was performing with the Greenwich Village group, Brady began batting out radio scripts—eventually as many as five a week. "I've always written, ever since I was a youngster," he told us. "I used to write poetry—serious stuff."

But his radio-writing was comedy material, and soon he followed a suggestion to try out as a scribe for an up-and-coming young comic named Red Skelton. That writing chore took him to Chicago, and in time, to that spot at the mike on "Uncle Walter's Doghouse."

Movie scouts spotted Brady too, and in 1942, Fred wrote his own screen test and won a film contract that sent him to Hollywood. Moviegoers have viewed him in such screen offerings as "Stage Door Canteen," "Swing Shift Maisie" and "Stepping Out."

His initial scene before the cameras found him panicky, Brady admits, but since then, he hasn't been nervous. As for going out on a stage for a radio show, "It's my life's blood," he enthused, "Getting out in front of an audience is great!"

His Ambitions

Brady has two chief aspirations in regard to his work: A) to develop his character of "Rhinstone Fred Brady" (an unreasonable facsimile of Diamond Jim) on the air in situation comedy, and B) to sell the screen plays he is now preparing.

As for a personal ambition, he has thoughts of a Hollywood home: "I'm going to get a swimming pool, and build something around it."

Brady admits a passion for clothes. "I love to buy 'em," he exclaimed. But he never wears a hat.

"Somebody once told me I'd go bald if I wore a hat, so I never put one on my head," he went on, rubbing his fingers through his luxuriant red-blond thatch. "My hair hasn't stopped growing since!"

Fred Brady has two youngsters—five-year-old Fred, Jr., and three-year-old Christine. He calls his daughter "a little doll," and says his son is "the spittin' image" of himself. "He is like me in a lot of ways," Fred continued proudly. "He already swims, rides a horse and likes sports."

"Is he a comedian?" we asked.

"He sure is!" beamed Brady.

Fred Jr. has one passion his father doesn't share, however. "He's hat-happy," smiled Fred Sr. "He has every sort of hat in the world, and loves them all." Fred told us he loves to buy clothes for his youngsters, too.

Asked to confess his eccentricity, Brady admitted that he can never throw away a piece of paper. "I always think there might be a joke on it," he told us. "I keep an extensive file."

Brady does most of his writing at night. When he's working on a picture, he has to be up at seven in the morning, but when he's not making movies, he added quickly, "Don't ring me before eleven!"

He eats just two meals a day—always bacon and eggs for breakfast. "Something simple for supper," added Fred. "Say—just a steak."

Asked if he would call himself lazy, Brady answered, "Yeah, I sure am, although I seem to be working a lot of the time. And when I'm not working, I'm out running around a tennis court or a golf course."

"Hey, whaddayuh know," he did a double-take, "maybe I'm not lazy."

▲ GRACIE FIELDS GIVES OUT WITH A GAG, and Fred Brady prepares to provide the topper, as the two share laughs on their Blue network airshow. Before becoming a gag writer, Brady did everything from ditch-digging to aerial photography. In school, he composed serious poetry.

▼ FATHER OF TWO LIVELY YOUNGSTERS, the comic describes daughter Christine, aged three, as "a little doll," and his son, five-year-old Fred Jr., as "a comedian." Father and son are alike except for one thing. Fred Sr. never wears a hat; his son, he says, is "hat-happy!"

PHIL SPITALNY AND HIS ALL-GIRL ORCHESTRA, with Evelyn of the "magic violin" seated in center of front row. Since this picture was taken, several additions have been made to the organization, which is a unique body, according to the accompanying story.

Thirty Five Girls With No Secrets

By Evelyn Bigsby

Sunday, 7 p. m.
NBC-KFI

ONE MAN, who thinks one woman can be difficult, should change places with Phil Spitalny, director of thirty-five girls in the "Hour of Charm" orchestra. One man, who blows his top when the little lady picks up a bargain sale dress, should see Spitalny's ladies spend (as did the Charmers recently), a cool $18,000 on one set of evening dresses.

But wait, gentlemen. Don't pity Phil Spitalny. He likes his work and he's making a fair-sized pile of money in it. "It's easier to handle thirty-five women than one," he remarked knowingly the other day while your Radio Life reporter was watching the orchestra play before the cameras at Universal City. "With one woman, it's a personal matter," he continued. "With thirty-five, it's commercial."

Rugged-faced Spitalny, who came to America from Odessa, Russia, when he was nine, won't tell his age but says he has been in the entertainment business since he was eight years old, has hit upon something unique and certainly money-making in his all-girl orchestra enterprise. While maestros with male music-makers have seen the draft knock irreparable holes in their organizations, Spitalny has rolled on unworried with an abundance of expert material at hand—in fact, he's increased the number of girls in his orchestra.

Excel Men

Commenting on the superiority of women musicians over men, he continued: "Girls are loyal. They never come late to rehearsal. They don't drink as much as men. They take more pride in their success than men."

The orchestra, which has been in operation for eleven years, still has five of its charter members: Evelyn of the "magic violin," who is also assistant manager; Velma, first trombonist; Jenny, assistant concert mistress; Maria, trumpet player; and Grace, guitarist.

Smart Spitalny has handed the government of the girls over to the girls themselves. They have a committee of five which passes on important matters and which decides whether or not the girls may date. "They know where a girl's going to eat and who with," said Spitalny. "Everybody knows where everybody is tonight."

Own Stock

Each girl owns stock in the enterprise, her number of shares being commensurate with her position. For example, Evelyn owns four shares, the drummer has three; at the end of the year the stockholders cut their

Christmas Gift

Little did Ensign Bill MacIlwinen dream that the story of his song would be dramatized by his favorite actress over a coast-to-coast network and even shortwaved to the fighting fronts.

On the barren beaches of Saipan, Ensign MacIlwinen reminisced about the wonderful holiday seasons he had spent at home. He longed to be there this Christmas but knew it was impossible. A melody kept spinning around in his head and at last he sat down and penned the notes he visualized. He called it "My Gift To You This Christmas" and sent it to his favorite actress Ida Lupino.

Upon receiving it, Miss Lupino was so touched that she endeavored to learn the circumstances surrounding the song. Through her efforts, attention was called to the "Christmas Gift" and the events which prompted its writing. She had the story fictionalized and presented it to Ensign Mac Ilwinen as a radio drama in which she took part. On December 22, it was enacted by the actress and a stellar cast on Erskine Johnson's CBS show, and broadcast, via transcription, to a worldwide audience. It was Ensign MacIlwinen then, who, after all, received "My Gift To You This Christmas."

Pan-Americanism Symphony

Here is a contest in which radio listeners have a say in the choice of prize winning selections.

Prizes totalling $32,500 have been posted by Henry H. Reichold, president of the Detroit Symphony Orchestra, for composers in North and South America submitting the best "Symphony of the Americas."

Each of the twenty-one nations in this hemisphere is to contribute an unpublished symphony under the plan, with judges from each of the republics selecting the final contestant to compete in the hemisphere finals. The opinions of radio listeners will be a factor in the determining of the grand prize winner. For several weeks prior to the announcement of the winning competition, finalist manuscripts will be played on the orchestra's Saturday KHJ-Mutual broadcasts.

Frankie's the Cause of It All

Actress Jo Gilbert had a lot of fun with her chums at the Studio Club on Christmas. She presented five of her friends with different-sized boxes which she said they would be wild about. Upon opening each present they found an autographed picture of Frankie, The Voice. And underneath Frankie's flicker reposed one pair of every-color bobby sock.

P.S. The girls were wild and Jo thinks if things don't quiet down she may have to seek a new home.

NEXT WEEK

The world's most famous wooden-head, Charles McCarthy Esq., takes the spotlight in our issue of January 14 when Radio Life relates its delightful visit with the engaging little red head "Up in Charlie's Room." Just wait until you see the cute pictures of him, too!... Jeanette Nolan and John McIntire are considered by many "the Lunt and Fontanne of radio," but more important to this charming couple than fame and fortune is their "little gray home in the west"—a homesteaders' cabin in the wilds of Montana. They're going back there soon, but while Hollywood still has them, we cornered them long enough for an enjoyable, intimate interview and some swell photos of the two of them and their two adorable children, Holly and Tim... Remember Pat Friday, the college student who got her first big break when Bing Crosby selected her to sing with him on his radio show? Well, she is back on Radio Row now, as the feminine star of the Roy Rogers program, and you'll enjoy meeting her informally as we did... Frank Graham's deep voice is familiar to almost all of you, so you will surely be interested in our personality-profile of this popular actor-announcer... Jack Kirkwood's show has just gone transcontinental, and Radio Life salutes this laugh-maker with a story intriguingly titled, "Mr. Anthony of Comedy"... That completes a big line-up of features you won't want to miss, so be sure to get your January 14 issue of Radio Life early, before they're all sold out!

Mother's Helper

Mrs. Bob Andersen, wife of CBS' popular announcer-newscaster, told us this amusing anecdote about the couple's cute little two-year-old daughter, Kristen. It seems the youngster took a notion to help her mother do the washing the other afternoon. Summoned out of the room by a telephone call, Mrs. Andersen returned just in time to find little Kristie standing happily beside it, chanting, "Help Mommy! Help Mommy!"

"That's nice, dear," smiled Kristen's Mommy, making every effort to remain calm. "What did you do?"

"Help Mommy," replied Kristen proudly. Mrs. Andersen peered inside the wash tub filled with boiling hot water. There, amid the suds, reclined six pairs of "Daddy" Bob's best wool socks.

"I pulled them out of the tub as fast as I could," related Mrs. A. "But it was too late. By that time, they looked just like a baby's booties!"

Paging Umbriago

In addition to his other chores, Umbriago may become a gag writer!

There's no dearth of radio joke-writers in Hollywood these days, and nobody is more conscious of that fact than gagster Leo Solomon. Leo's partner in gaggery on the Moore-Durante show, Alan Woods, takes his physical this week, and if he passes, Leo will be looking for another buddy to help him make with the gags.

Closest solution to date has come from the master comic, Jimmy Durante, who suggests that Solomon team up with Durante's pal, Umbriago.

Fame

Rosemary De Camp, who plays "Judy Price" on CBS' "Dr. Christian," is currently working at MGM, filming "Weekend at the Waldorf" and is beaming over the reception she is accorded when she walks into the studio commissary each day.

"Clark Gable or Hedy Lamarr may be eating right at the next table, but the waitresses hover around me," grins Rosemary. "It seems they all listen regularly to 'Dr. Christian,' and to them, I'm 'Judy Price,' the doctor's secretary. They all want to know what 'the doctor' is really like, and if I'm ever going to get married!"

Christmas for McNeill

Each Christmas morning for eleven years, Don McNeill, emcee of the Blue's "Breakfast Club," arose early and trudged to the studios for a rigorous round of Christmas chores.

Each year McNeill had resolved that the next Christmas morning would find him at home with his wife and children, unwrapping gifts, mending broken toys, and, in short, doing all the things that fathers do on Christmas morning.

But this year! Ah, this year!

Came Christmas morning and McNeill arose early and trudged to the microphone—but the microphone was set up right in the living room of his home! And gathered round it for the "Breakfast Club", broadcast were Jack Owens, and his three children, Sam Cowling and his small children, the three McNeill youngsters and sundry other small fry to the total of thirteen. teen.

All of which proves that if the mountain won't come to you, why, then, go to the mountain; or, that radio is the only profession that enables a man to have his cake and eat it.

★ ★ FRANCES MACCANN

Making her first appearance on the Inglewood Park Concert of "Melodies America Loves," Frances MacCann, nationally known lyric soprano, will be heard Tuesday evening, January 9 over KNX from 7:30 to 8:00 o'clock. She will be presented with the orchestra conducted by Earl Towner, and the Inglewood Park Quartet.

Frances MacCann's musical career began with starring roles in light opera productions at Los Angeles Junior College. Gaining the attention of producers, she joined the "Rosalinda" company in New York and soon stepped into the leading soprano role. Since returning to California, she has made two guest appearances on Nelson Eddy's transcontinental broadcasts over CBS.

STATE OF THE EDITORIAL: We're writing this on December 28. The Christmas glow is still warm, but hard work is rearing its ugly head and around Radio Life's editorial office there's a grim determination characteristic of New Year's. Shirley is typing doggedly on Radio West and Betty is valiantly trying to finish a year-long job—filling the hundreds of pictures which pour into our place every month. In a supreme spurt of resolution we've just decided to start the New Year with cleaned-off desks and brilliant ideas for scores of new stories to be written. Also to mend that dilapidated top drawer of Betty's desk that divulges what a cross-section of a reporter's thinking processes are like.

FIRST ON AGENDA: Our best efforts as we start 1945 are turned toward Radio Life's Fifth Anniversary Number. Yes, we'll be five years old on March 17, and thereabouts, we plan to produce a super duper issue commemorating the event. Last year we stopped at ninety pages. This year, by the grace of Cully's ad selling and the paper quota, we hope to make it one hundred. Our best stories will smile from the special's pages, we hope, and to that end we'll devote our earnest efforts during the coming days.

NINETEEN HUNDRED FORTY-FOUR was good to Radio Life. Although we didn't grow in circulation (we're stuck, unless we cut more pages) we know we grew in readers, because more and more fans passed on their copies after they were through with them. We're pleased to hear so many of you say our stories were better last year than before. We know we spent more time formatting each issue with the idea of bringing you a more varied and up-to-the-minute picture of what's happening in radio.

PERSONAL HIGHLIGHTS: The grand party NBC gave for Fibber McGee and Molly at the Trocadero on the start of their tenth year on the network... The day we shot Andy's and Virginia's cooking layout and when it was over, adjourned to Casa Chiquita to consume the cream pies... Interviewing Sir Charles and Lady Mendl at their fantastic Beverly Hills home... Dinner with the Quiz Kids... Getting up at 5 a.m. to cover "Sunrise Salute"... KMPC's opening... Eating John Scott Trotter's hand-made luncheon... Wearing the hat Hedda Hopper gave me for Christmas.

YULE ECHOES: Clever present was Shirley Dinsdale's. She recorded her's and Judy Splinter's greetings... Girls around the office are so happy over the gross of pencils Maggie Ettinger sent me. I won't snatch theirs, but mine have my name on them, hah!... Radio Life office received well over one hundred cards and we thank everyone who remembered us. Nice note from Les Tremayne, now in New York, who wrote: "Received a copy of Radio Life the other day, the first in a long, long time, and it made me miss the Coast more than ever if possible"...

LOOKING AHEAD: Time out for a flying trip to the Harry James home, where we interviewed The Horn preparatory to writing a story for the Feb. 4 issue of Radio Life. Saw little Vicky and some of her many presents, mostly dolls... They're celebrating Jack Kirkwood's going transcontinental with a party tonight at the Terrace Room of the Beverly Hills Hotel... A Western party will mark celebration for debut of the Andrews Sisters' new Blue show... Betty just came back from an interview with Peavey of the "Great Gildesleeve" show and reports that the Le Grands (he's the "well-I-wouldn't say that" character) have a lovely home and that Mr. Le G. is a suave gentleman and his wife very attractive. (He gave her a platinum fox for their first wedding anniversary a short time ago.) Sent Shirley out to interview Michael O'Shea and she came back! Betty says she wants a similar assignment. We-l-l, Happy 1945!

NEW YORK INFLUENCE

Edgar Bergen's six-week stay in New York influenced his sartorial habits so much that he showed up for a recent broadcast in a black double-breasted suit, black top coat, and black homburg, with suitable accompanying embellishments. Charlie McCarthy topped him by wearing spats, as well.

GOOD ATTENDANCE RECORD

Virginia Payne, who plays the title role on Columbia's "Ma Perkins" series, hasn't missed one broadcast since the show was launched in 1933.

Radio Roundup from KFI

After Jack Benny and his gang complete their NBC program on KFI this Sunday (Jan. 7) afternoon at 4 and evening at 9:30, they'll all head East. They're going back to New York to spearhead the March of Dimes campaign.

Jack Benny

To do a bang-up job, Jack has scheduled three special shows from Gotham, Philadelphia and Boston. Benny will act as emcee of star-studded programs at Carnegie Hall on January 20, at the Philadelphia Academy of Music on January 23, and at Boston Symphony Hall on January 29.

Incidentally, Jack will have luncheon with President Roosevelt on January 30 and will return to New York from Washington for a four-network broadcast that same night.

Of course, the regular Sunday shows will be heard as usual and will originate in New York's Radio City or at service camps nearby.

Starting on Sunday, January 7, "The Eternal Light," presented by NBC at 8 a. m. via KFI, turns next to "Great Men and Women in Jewry."

Set for a five weeks run, this sequence is entirely biographical and will dramatize the lives of Louis D. Brandeis, Solomon Schechter, Theodore Herzl, Waldemar Haffkine and Mordecai Noah.

The only religious program to feature weekly dramatizations, "The Eternal Light" is presented by NBC in cooperation with lay and rabbinical representatives of all groups of Jewry in the U. S.

The January 7 schedule for the "Stradivari Orchestra," directed by Paul Lavallo, will feature Sarasate's "Zapateado," Carmichael's "Stardust" and "My Heart at Thy Sweet Voice," by Saint-Saens.

The latter selection will be a Stradivari solo.

Another Carmichael selection to be presented will be "One Morning in May" and spotlights the singing of Harrison Knox.

Violin solos feature Jacques Gasse-lin.

Here's one for the book! A lot of songs have been worth a million dollars, but to Carlos Ramirez (Heard each Thursday night at 8:30 when the Frank Morgan show is presented by NBC over KFI) goes the honor of selling one for $1,300,000. A delegation of visiting manufacturers made the purchase after Carlos sung the song at a recent War Bond rally.

THREE-PART HARMONY
"To what," a fan magazine interviewer queried the Andrews Sisters, who open their new air show December 31, "do you owe your success?" "To three-parts harmony,—and ninety-seven parts hard work," replied the girls.

GOODWILL DOCTOR
Betty Winkler, star of CBS' "Joyce Jordan, M.D.," is proud of the letter she received from a colonel-psychiatrist who compliments her on their recent meeting at an Army Redistribution Center. Betty plays a competent medico on the air and was trembling prior to her meeting with the psychiatrist lest she make any boners, but she didn't.

GOODWIN'S THEORY
Bill Goodwin thinks he will just send his earnings to the Government and let them send him back what he is entitled to, rather than try to figure out his income taxes.

CAUTIOUS DOWNEY
Add this to your superstitions Department! Blue's Morton Downey was about to be late for an important appointment, yet he let three cabs pass him by. When questioned, he answered, "It's not that I'm superstitious, but there's luck in odd numbers. Each of those cabs had a license that ended in an even number." He got there on time.

APPROPRIATE

Sponsors of "Hedda Hopper's Hollywood" sent a Christmas card to business associates which featured a picture of La Hopper in her latest "Holiday Hat." The bonnet is trimmed with Christmas ornaments and even has a miniature tree on top.

"THE THROAT"

Dick Haymes' fans finally have a name for their idol. Just as Bing Crosby is The Groaner and Frank Sinatra is The Voice, now the star of NBC's "Everything for the Boys" is "The Throat."

WHAT'S IN A NAME

The Archer's dog, Moronica, who barks agreeably on CBS' "Meet Corliss Archer," is really a prototype of author F. Hugh Herbert's own dog, also named Moronica. The name is a combination of moron and Veronica—moron, because Herbert claims his dog is not quite bright and Veronica, because one ear droops over one eye.

TRAVELING "ALTER EGO"

"Umbrigo," Jimmy Durante's "alter ego" on the Friday CBS Moore-Durante ailer, is seeing action in all theaters of war. "Umbrigo" is the nickname of a submarine, a General Grant tank, a fighter plane, an LCI (Landing Craft Infantry) and two jeeps.

The screen's "Nick Carter," portrayed by William Powell, is seen reading a "Nick Carter Detective Magazine" in the newest "Thin Man."

SWING THERAPY

Vincent Lopez, one of bandom's favorite leaders, has been experimenting at institutions with mental patients and claims that strong, fast rhythmic beats of swing help break through the unsocial shell surrounding many of them. If 'tis true, it's a wonderful thing.

Paul Whiteman, maestro of the "Radio Hall of Fame," aired Sundays over Blue, expects to complete negotiations for the filming of his biography.

MEET THE CELEBRITY

Recently when emcee Jack Bailey of CBS "Meet the Missus" sent one of the "missuses" out into the audience to find a "celebrity," the celebrity turned out to be screen actress Shirley Temple, seated all the time in the audience.

NEW BOBBY-SOCK IDOL

Van Johnson is rapidly finding that he is replacing the "Voice" in the affections of the bobby-sock brigade. Poor Van, who recently appeared on CBS's "This Is My Best," lost part of his clothing to fans before he could be rescued by the police.

Diggin' Discs

With JACK LAWSON

Here's the way the nation's leading music stores pick 'em. How would you select the Ten Top Songs of the week?

1. "Don't Fence Me In"—Bing Crosby and the Andrews Sisters.
2. "I Dream of You"—Andy Russell.
3. "I'm Making Believe"—Ella Fitzgerald and the Ink Spots.
4. "The Trolley Song"—Jo Stafford and the Pied Pipers.
5. "Together"—Dick Haymes and Helen Forrest.
6. "I'll Walk Alone"—Martha Tilton.
7. "Dance With a Dolly"—Russ Morgan's orchestra.
8. "You Always Hurt the One You Love"—The Mills Brothers.
9. "Too-Ra-Loo"—Bing Crosby.
10. "Tico Tico"—Ethel Smith.

First recording made by Victor after its 27-months' lay-off was "The Trolley Song," with Vaughn Monroe's orchestra, backed by "The Very Thought of You."

The Merry Macs' latest Decca disc looks like a hit. It's "Thank Dixie For Me," coupled with "Ten Days With Baby." The "Dixie" side is billed as the "B," but is really terrific. Perry Botkin accompanies with a sharp group of Dixieland swingers.

Bing Crosby has recorded for Decca for years, but it happens to be Columbia which comes up with an album of Crosby Classics. Here are ten songs recorded at the height of Bing's first rise to fame, including "Please," "Some of These Days," "My Honey's Lovin' Arms," "Down the Old Ox Road," "How Deep Is the Ocean" and "Shine." These songs are collectors' items.

Jimmy Dorsey's newest Decca duo is reminiscent of the Ray Eberle and Helen O'Connell combine. Only this time it's Teddy Walters and Patti Palmer singing the Americanized version of "Te Quiero Dijiste," popularly called "Magic Is the Moonlight." Its companion is "I Dream of You," with vocal by Patti Palmer.

Benny Goodman's latest four Columbia sides are "How Deep Is the Ocean," "My Old Flame," "Fiesta In Blue" and "I Can't Give You Anything But Love." The old maestro remains plenty solid on that stick with a strong 4-F band.

ACCOMMODATING FAN

Cass Daley is seeking the name of the fan who sent her several spools of linen thread and the address of an Akron firm where additional linen could be procured. Cass wanted to weave a linen rug for her living room, but couldn't find the linen. She now wishes to thank the fan if she can find her or him.

HEDDA'S LUCKY LETTER

The numerologist who persuaded Elda Furry to change her name to Hedda Hopper started an "H" string alliteration which has brought Hedda all sorts of luck. She came to Hollywood, established offices on Hollywood Boulevard, acquired a manager named Dema Harshbarger, and became famous as "The Hat."

Thirty-five Girls With No Secrets

melon—last year it was $40,000 to be apportioned among the group. Replenishing the exchequer are radio appearances, movies (each girl received $270 for her work at Universal) and concert appearances (they cleaned up a gross of $101,000 during a twelve-week tour last season).

On the other side of the ledger from money and glamor are fatiguing travel and interminable rehearsals. The girls have done fifty-eight camp shows from coast to coast. It usually takes two train cars to accommodate the large organization and the 200 pieces of baggage generally require a special car. When they are on long trips, the orchestra members must practice energetically, especially the brasses, who must keep up their wind. The powder room is a favorite place for such rehearsing.

The amount of rehearsing depends, of course, on the show. "There's no limit until its perfect," Spitalny said grimly. "Usually five to fifteen hours."

He chooses the numbers comprising each week's program. "My style of music is between symphonic and popular," he stated. "It's music everybody would like—even bobby sock kids can't say they don't like it. This style is the conclusion of all my experience. At one time I wanted to play a variety program. Open with a symphonic number and then do 'Wabash Blues'. We've tried all popular programs, and all musical comedy programs. But from the mail and from our rating, which, I believe, is tops for a musical program, I've come to the present style, which also includes never playing an unaccepted number" (one not on the 'Hit Parade' or otherwise known).

Arranging the numbers is the work of three of the girls in the orchestra. Limit of the difficulty of arrangements, said Spitalny, is not the skillfulness of the musicians, who are all tops, but the selections themselves, which are usually simple. "I like to keep things simple," the maestro said. "That's why I ask the girls to wear their hair down—no fancy up-swept hair-does."

The group now boasts a tremendous musical library, one of the largest in existence, according to Spitalny. "We repeat numbers only for definite reasons," he observed. "A few Sundays ago, we switched

★ *Young Larry Stevens Never Had A Lesson in His Life, Thinks
He Owes Singing Break to Luck* ★

Sunday, 4:00, 9:00 p. m.
NBC-KFI

THEY SAY that the story of Cinderella only happened in a fairy tale—and that was a very long time ago. They say that Hollywood is no land of magic—that's another fairy tale, too, dreamed up by press agents. But somebody forgot to account for the story (all true too!) of young Larry Stevens, Jack Benny's new singing discovery.

Larry is the twenty-one-year-old, handsome six-footer who was introduced to the coast-to-coast Jack Benny audience early in November. His script introduction was as Aladdin-like as his real introduction to the ether waves. Guesting that night on the Lucky Strike show was Dunninger, the "master mentalist." Written into the script as reading Benny's mind and assuming Jack was looking for a singer to replace Dennis

Day, now in the United States Navy, Dunninger advised him to hasten to a filling station at the corner of Third and La Cienega where he would find the answer to his prayers. Jack, accordingly, found singer Stevens as the station's attendant, and listening to him sing while he worked, offered him the job. Poor Jack had been 'auditioning' everybody on the program, even John Charles Thomas and Frank Sinatra, only to find they were already working. Funny as this may seem, it's even funnier to realize that Larry's introduction in the script was almost based on truth. It nearly happened that way.

"Golly, it's so wonderful, I have to pinch myself to see if I'm awake," enthused Larry. "I just can't imagine this happening to me—why, I'm just like anybody else."

Is Different

Looking at Larry over a small table

◀ WITH THE EXCEPTION OF THE FACT that he is a high baritone instead of a tenor, Stevens fills the traditional role of Benny singers.

in one of NBC's deserted script rooms, Radio Life decided that in spite of what he says, he isn't like everybody else. He's different because of what he calls his "gift"—his high baritone voice. He's different because he is that success story that happens to one out of a million people.

On February 23, 1923, Larry was born in San Francisco. When he was a one-year-old, his family moved to Los Angeles, where they have lived ever since. Larry, his brother, mother and father, used to form their own quartet and sing for pleasure. Although Larry never had any music lessons, his mother, who once sang professionally, encouraged him to develop his voice.

He lived a very normal childhood, went to Fairfax High in Los Angeles, where he was more interested in athletics than singing, and appeared in all of the school's extravaganzas. From high school he went to work for the Turnabout Theater, opening with it in 1941 as a puppeteer. Although he longed for a singing career, he was contented to wait and gain experience through singing with the Turnabout's chorus. This lasted for a year. Then came the manager-ship of a filling station—yes, the same one at Third and La Cienega. This lasted until he was called into the Army Air Forces in 1943. He was discharged seven months later when his father died, and he became the sole support of his family.

Happened at Grove

Larry went to work in a defense plant—and then it happened! One night he and a party of friends went to the Cocoanut Grove where maestro Freddy Martin conducted a weekly bond drive, "Melodies for Uncle Sam," via the Blue network. If one bought a bond he was entitled to perform in any way he wanted. Larry sang—and a star was born. The audience wouldn't let him sit down, and he sang encore after encore. Agent Lou Irwin asked him if he would like to meet Mary Livingstone, who was in charge of finding a new singer for the Benny show. Mary liked Larry and wanted Jack, who had just returned from overseas, to hear him. He was signed and now fills the singing spot.

"Mary and Jack are the most wonderful people in the world. I owe everything to them," he smiled. "I have always listened to their program and finding myself a part of it is almost unbelievable."

Asked if he were scared on his opening night, he laughed and said "Sure," but guessed everything went well. With the exception of the fact that he is a high baritone instead of a tenor, he fills the traditional role of Benny singers. He is red-headed, has blue eyes, and weighs 165 pounds.

AS TWIN SISTERS on "The Whistler" dramatization of "Death Sees Double," Lurene Tuttle portrayed both the murderess and her victim. Doing six pages of solid, rapid dialogue with herself, she used two almost identical voices, varying their pitch by perspective, working at two microphones and changing the positions of her head in relation to them. CBS-Ben Polin Photos

Air Actress Does the Sensational!

NOW I'M MONA—I mean MARTHA." Lurene Tuttle frowned and wrinkled her forehead in deep perplexity. "Mona, Martha, Mona, Martha," she muttered. "I'm mixed up!"

Lurene was rehearsing for her dual assignment on the November 20 airing of CBS' "The Whistler," a drama of murder entitled "Death Sees Double." The actress, who is one of radio's busiest and most versatile performers, was tackling the difficult acting chore of portraying identical twin sisters.

"I've been in radio since 1925," producer George Allen informed us as he guided Lurene through her initial reading of the script, "and, to my knowledge, this is the first time an actress has attempted to do a dual characterization demanding two identical voices."

sponsorship of the Slavick Jewelry Company that KFAC consented to sell its time. And in turn, through the courtesy of KFAC and the sponsor, Dr. Weker found a channel through which to express his thoughts in musical form on the air.

His Appearance

The listening audience might visualize the eminent Dr. Weker to be a somber-faced, reserved individual, but Radio Life, calling on him at his Hollywood Boulevard office, found him possessed of an unmatched sense of humor. He is tall, spectacled, has dark hair streaked with gray, and is a constant smoker.

He actually started his musical career at the age of ten with aspirations to be a concert violinist. But with the paralyzation of one finger his interests turned to conducting. Upon graduation from the Cincinnati Conservatory of Music he took up the duties of a symphony conductor at Grand Rapids, Michigan. After seventeen years of constant conducting, he gave up the work and devoted his time to "musical education."

"Music belongs to all people. It is a democratic art and should be accepted as such. I should like to see everyone enjoy music for itself and not for its fine settings. Highly paid artists barricaded behind admittance fees are not good for the art."

He went on to explain that it was this factor which appealed to him about "Musical Masterpieces." He endeavors to present the most enlightening facts in the briefest possible time.

He feels that a person who enjoys popular melodies possesses as much appreciation of music as the symphony lover. He intends to present on the program some of the most representative contemporary works.

Some Pop Tunes Fine

Dr. Weker smiled and said, "Of course I fail to see the elements of beauty in such pieces as "Cow Cow Boogie" or "Lost My Sugar In Salt Lake City" but I do find "Star Dust" as hauntingly beautiful as the opening strains of Schubert's "Unfinished Symphony." He thinks that someday "Star Dust" will be given a symphonic treatment and made to live forever as an example of American folk music.

In addition to his various activities in musical education, Dr. Weker is the managing Director of the Hollywood Bowl Association. He has been in California only since 1940, but looks upon it as the "finest place in the world." He claims that for thirty years he has been contriving to make California his home. "Even if it meant giving up everything and

For Over Thirteen Years KFAC's Oldest Recorded Program Has Brought Public Music It Loves

Monday-Saturday, 6 p. m. KFAC

EACH DAY music lovers receive the crisp, concise commentary of Dr. Carl Weker on KFAC's oldest recorded program of classical music, "Musical Masterpieces." Perhaps here is one of the foremost authorities on musical education, a man who knows his music as well as the rest of us know our ABC's—but do you know what Dr. Weker likes to call himself—"The poor man's Milton Cross"?

Last October station manager Cal Smith jokingly advertised for a "reasonable facsimile" of Mr. Cross to conduct the daily doings of "Musical Masterpieces." Dr. Weker seriously answered the ad and explains that upon filling the requisites he has become the "poor man's Cross."

Since 1931, when "Musical Masterpieces" began to break precedents by starting a trend toward presenting recorded works of the old masters rather than modern music, it has accumulated fans who know they can count on hearing the music they want.

KFAC regards "Musical Masterpieces" as the forerunner of recorded classical programs for local stations in the city. Its popularity has grown throughout the years and not long ago the station received its first proof of this. A San Francisco agency wanted to buy the "Masterpieces" time, but before the station would sell they asked the public's opinion on the matter. Thousands of telephone messages and letters of protest poured in, convincing the station it would be foolish to relinquish the time.

It was not until the advent of the combination of Dr. Weker and the amazed airplane audience with her dual portrayal of Arch Oboler's presentation of "Alter Ego," but, in that instance, the two voices she employed could be as different as night and day. The "Alter Ego" script presented a problem in one scene in which Miss Davis was to be heard crying with one voice while talking with the other. On that occasion, Lurene Tuttle was called in as a voice double to do the crying.

Now a radio veteran, recognized as one of the airlines' most accomplished actresses, Lurene encountered a similar problem in the script of "Death Sees Double" when one sister is heard laughing hysterically while the other is talking. Producer Allen solved the situation by having Lurene record the laughter before the broadcast—the recording to be skillfully inserted on cue by the soundman, Berne Surrey. Sound girl Becky Barnes assisted Surrey during the show, and supplied the sound of feminine footsteps in the initial murder scene when one sister kills the other.

Particularly difficult for actress Tuttle was this death scene, during which, with the pitch of her voice and the position of her head in relation to the microphone, she had to switch the sisters' personalities—making the previously positive character become the negative one, as the weaker girl became the stronger of the two. In enacting the murder, Lurene found the death struggle of the victim written on the bottom of one page of her script, while the dialogue of the triumphant murderess continued immediately at the top of the next sheet.

The Impossible

"I don't think I can manage," the actress protested, "to choke myself and turn the page at the same time." So the sheets were stapled together to form one long page. In all, Miss Tuttle did six pages of solid, rapid dialogue with herself!

She worked with two microphones, holding her mouth close to one for the role of "Martha," turning her face toward the other mike, placed a few feet away, when speaking as "Mona." The intricate task of engineering the show was handled by Robert Anderson.

The dual role necessitated a five-hour rehearsal for the broadcast, in contrast to the usual three hours spent in preparation for a "Whistler" airing.

"The extra two hours," smiled producer Allen, "were spent in seeing if this could be done."

It Could Happen to Him!

He prefers sport clothes and wishes he could always wear the old pair of blue jeans he has had for years.

He likes to relax on the dance floor or over a gin rummy game. He doesn't smoke or drink and is a regular member of the Hollywood Presbyterian Church where he used to sing in the choir. Larry likes to read although he has no favorite authors, and is fond of all types of music.

Foremost in his thoughts is the security of his family. His mother, his brother, who attends UCLA, and he live in a house in Beverly Hills. His ultimate ambitions are to own a convertible Cadillac and a motor boat—and maybe someday to act.

But he is so thrilled over his present good fortune that he plans never to worry, but let fate have its way. Bing Crosby is his idol, although he thinks Sinatra is good too. He thinks it's "swell" that he can meet the people that he's heard about all his life.

"Hey, let's go have a hot dog. I love hot dogs, eat 'em every day. You do like them, don't you?" he questioned, jumping up. "Yeah, I love 'em with everything and a great big generous helping of onions. See, I'm no different from anybody else!"

burying myself in the hills with a shack and a couple of goats," he laughed.

Dr. Weker states that he finds himself more active now than in the past ten years, but is thoroughly engrossed in the work he is doing. His family, consisting of two daughters and his wife, resides in Los Angeles. "My daughters are devotees of popular music and won't go near a symphony," he laughed. "Poor kids, they were forced to listen to me all of their lives."

the entire program to be in keeping with the President's chat."

Memorable Broadcast

The girls still talk about their broadcast from the North Carolina as their most impressive. It took place on the deck the evening before the vessel was launched.

Members of the orchestra have proved themselves fine bond saleswomen. In Cleveland they sold $30,000,000 before they performed their concert. Each girl was allotted a quota of $100,000 and had to make her amount before the program began. One little musician couldn't sell past $40,000.

"Who'll help out this girl?", Spitalny pleaded.

Up shot a hand in the center of the auditorium and up spoke a gentleman: "I'll buy $60,000 and let's get on with the music!"

Some of the girls' appearances have been at hospitals where wounded from World War II are trying to piece broken bodies together again. One of the most touching experiences occurred at Treasure Island where a Negro whispered to Evelyn: "If you'll just play 'Deep River' for me I'll be ready to die."

Stern Taskmaster

Although he is a strict taskmaster, Spitalny is obviously proud of his orchestra's achievements. He told about one girl, his tuba player, Jan Baker, who can perform on sixteen instruments; and about Ruth Winchell who can play "practically every instrument." In order to maintain the maximum of efficiency, Spitalny bars all visitors from rehearsal and how amazed he was to discover that Radio Life had sat through one session after obtaining authority from a certified source! "Why, I've even kicked a big NBC executive out of rehearsal," Spitalny said vehemently.

The maestro is an avid collector of ties and has more than two thousand in his wardrobe. He is especially fond of neckwear made specifically for him by a New York haberdasher (cost, $25) and was wearing one specimen the day Radio Life interviewed him. It was a handsome brown satin figured in red with the various instruments in his orchestra. Speaking of ties reminded Spitalny of the blue one with gray stripes he was sporting the other day on the set. Members of the company broke for lunch and when they returned, the leader couldn't find his tie. The entire group of two hundred hunted for half an hour, at a cost of thousands of dollars in waiting time, until a similar tie was unearthed that would allow the shooting to proceed without a discrepancy.

A hard-working man, Spitalny claims he has no secretary, no agent, and no lawyer. He hates to write letters, usually using the phone or a wire. "I have written only ten letters in my life," he laughed.

He stands travel well, because he says he is hardy and seldom sick. "But I was sick the other night after my birthday," he grimaced. "We've got girls from all nationalities in the orchestra and each set made me a birthday dinner at their rooms at the Knickerbocker, where we were all staying. I was sick for four days afterward—oh, no! Not the cooking! The mixture!"

When he's not traveling with his thirty-five girl musicians, Spitalny lives in New York at the Park Central Hotel. He said he is not married.
