Sybil Bryant, 2375 1/2 West Avenue, Los Angeles 41, Calif.

Sirs: I think that Tom Hanlon of the "Midnight Merry-Go-Round" deserves a salute from us all for his efforts in the bond drive. As a result of Mr. Hanlon's salesmanship and with the cooperation of his sponsor, the Kelley Kar company, some $150,000 worth of bonds were sold. How about a story on him in the future?

Another program which is consistently good is the "10-24 Time" program with Martha Mears and her boys. This is one program that successfully combines Western swing, old and new music. I'd like a story on them—and especially on "Foghorn."

Hope you saw our story on genial Tom Hanlon in the April 30, 1944, issue of Radio Life.

Fanny Schuelein, 4062 Wilshire Boulevard, Los Angeles, Calif.

Sirs: Last week I went to the Blood Bank to give my sixth donation, and after the refreshments which are served to all donors, I was offered some radio tickets. (They were for "Meet the Missus," which I enjoyed immensely). It is my thought that there is no better way of securing radio tickets than obtaining them through a blood donation for the boys.

Mrs. M. E. Austill, 700 Buena Vista, Pomona, Calif.

Sirs: "Life Can Be Beautiful" is a favorite of mine. It is fine entertainment, true to everyday life. The acting by the entire cast is excellent, and the fine assortment of voices gives the story a lift, with never a dull moment. This world is in such a turmoil, we all need a little of "Papa David's" spiritual uplift, and to get away from the gloomy whine and cry programs that pull down the nerves.

How about a writeup with pictures of the "Life Can Be Beautiful" cast?

If enough readers request it, we shall certainly bring it to you.

James G. Allan, 861 South Fedora Street, Los Angeles, Calif.

Sirs: I cannot agree with Radio Lifers who suggest that we should refrain from criticizing the programs we don't like. We cannot expect improvement if the listeners remain silent.

I have a suspicion that those who claim they like commercials have an axe to grind. Many to whom I talk tell me they very seldom turn on their radio as they feel "big business" has taken over the radio for advertising. As a result, many would welcome the contemplated new "radio service," with no commercials for which a small fee would be charged.

Mrs. S. F. Scoville, 521 Douglas Street, Los Angeles, Calif.

Sirs: I've read so many complaints about different programs that it really disgusts me. Why listen to a program if you do not like it? I think "Bachelor's Children" is one of the best daytime serials I have ever heard. All the actors in this play laugh, talk and visit just like a regular family. Sam, who is now a soldier but still enacts his role, is one of the cleverest actors I've heard. He is always good for a laugh. This story does not have trouble, divorces and so forth. It runs along true-to-life.

Saturday mornings is my show day. As I do not get to go to the theater because of illness, Saturday morning on the air brings many grand plays right into my home.

As long as there are so many good programs on the air, I see no reason for complaining about some I do not like. Wish others would feel the same way.

Sirs: Your Distinguished Achievement Award for being the Most Listenable Commentator has been received. I thank you indeed, and I should like very much to see the issue in which it was announced, if possible.

Radio's Contribution to the Art of Acting

By Les Mitchel

THE OTHER DAY a gentleman asked me what was apparently a simple question, "What has radio contributed to the art of acting?" Suddenly I was made to realize that consciously and sometimes sub-consciously a new technique of acting had been developed thru radio and that, apparently, many actors, directors and listeners have not realized that it is a technique and a distinct contribution to the art of acting.

Basically, acting was developed in the theater. There the audience was separated from the actors by various distances, depending on the size of the theater. Naturally their acting was developed to overcome that separation. Makeup was used to project their features to the audience with as much reality as could be achieved—features were emphasized, colors were used to emphasize the features of the players and to point up their relation to the character being played.

Acting was directed to the last row of seats in the theater since those sitting far removed from the stage must be entertained as well as those in the first row. Consequently the movements of the actors were exaggerated, characterization depended on the bodily movement of the players or pantomime. This, too, was much broader than an exact duplication of real life would have been. Again the actor had to conform to the limitations or should I say expansions of the medium in which he must try to create an illusion.

Therefore, to the observer who was too close to the performer, there was an exaggeration of illustration in the actors' work which was very broad or unnatural. This the onlooker was prone to accept because of his acceptance of theatrical conventions, i.e., the three-sided room, people shouting whispers, murder committed in front of hundreds of onlookers and all the other multitudinous incongruities of the theater.

Through the centuries, the theater underwent many changes. The methods of writing, staging and viewing plays gradually gave forth the development of the theater of today.

Comparatively recently the trend

PRODUCER LES MITCHEL, author of the accompanying article, is cue-thrasher on CBS' "Stars Over Hollywood."

has been to so-called "underplaying." This seeming to mean an uninspired parroting of learned lines and moods. In fact, one well known critic, a few years ago was impelled to say, "Actors today underplay to such an extent that they have ceased to act."

Movies

However, this short manuscript is not meant to be a discussion of acting so let us glance quickly at the technique of motion picture acting before we compare the three mediums of Theater, Motion Picture and Radio.

Actors long-trained in the technique of the theater soon discovered that when they appeared before the camera they had to change radically the methods of interpretation customarily used. The enlarged image of themselves that was flashed on the screen, in most cases, provided each newcomer with a startling shock. Little mannerisms never before realized were held up to the individual in all the impersonalness of the abstract.

Tricks of speech, faults in posture, idiosyncrasies of movement were spread before them and the world in all their nakedness. The custom-

IN JUNE of 1933, an affable young chap with five years of radio experience was assigned to vitanize an ailing early-morning airshow known (and not too well) as the "Pepper Pot." The young man's name was Don McNeill, a fellow who has since proved that an 8:00 a.m. variety program can be as rousing and durable a success as any top-notch evening show.

When McNeill took over, he named his variety hour the "Breakfast Club." As such, it has been going strong ever since! The loyalty and enthusiasm of its vast listening audience are exemplified by one of the letters McNeill recently received in his daily batch of fan mail. Wrote a lady from West Virginia: Two months ago when I was visited by the stork, my first words on regaining consciousness were, 'Is it too late to hear the Breakfast Club?'

The versatile cast of this popular Blue morning airer, in addition to emcee Don, features Jack Owens, Nancy Martin, Marion Mann, Fran

"Three Smart Girls"

The Movies Brought Nan Grey Fame;
Now She Has Formed a Trio of Her Own That's Brought Her Happiness

By Shirley Gordon

Sunday, 11 a.m.
NBC-KFI

NAN GREY's green eyes lighted up happily when she was asked about her first meeting with the man who is now her husband, jockey Jackie Westrope.

"We met in Houston, Texas, in 1933," she smiled, adding, "It was the ninth of December."

"What time?" we put in.

"I don't know," she laughed, "but it was right after the seventh race."

That was when Nan was twelve and Jack was fifteen. Six years later, they became Mr. and Mrs., and today, they are the proud parents of two adorable little girls—twenty-months-old "Pam" and eight-months-old "Jan."

For the past seven years, Nan Grey has been known to a vast audience of radio listeners as "Kathy," the enchanting heroine of one of NBC's most popular dramatic serials, "Those We Love." In addition, although she is only twenty-three, she has some ten years of motion picture experience to her credit.

It was shortly after that first meeting with the youthful Mr. Westrope that Nan, at the age of twelve, came to Hollywood with her mother and made her screen debut.

"I told everybody I was sixteen," related Nan, "and they believed me. I was as big then as I am now!"

An attractive blonde with a trim, smartly-clothed figure, Nan Grey doesn't look as tall as she actually is—five feet, six and a half inches. "I'm as big as a horse," she exclaimed with disgust. "I wish I were short."

Enjoys Daughters

She enjoys going shopping, loves clothes and is looking forward to the day when she and her two little girls can wear mother-and-daughter dresses.

"I can see what's coming, too," she said then. "I saw a cartoon in the paper the other day which made me think of the way things will be before very long. It showed a young girl leaving the house all dressed up in a pretty blouse, and calling

More in the immediate future, however, Nan is looking forward to fixing up a nursery for the children "just as soon as Jan catches up to Pam" and follows the same sleeping schedule as her older sister, so that the two children can share the same room.

The young actress has displayed a flair for interior decoration with the work she has done on the houses which she and her husband have bought and sold. They are now living in a duplex apartment house in West Hollywood.

"I'm kept awfully busy," Nan went on. "I don't seem to have time

Really Can Happen

Another one of those Cinderella stories has happened. This one concerns a little script girl at NBC who wanted to be an actress. It goes something like the original fairy tale. She tried and was turned down. She tried again and was turned down again. But after the "ninety-millionth" try she didn't walk off with the gold ring—she walked off with the whole merry-go-round.

Paula Ikard is no longer a script girl at NBC. She quit. She is now the leading lady in the Drest Star Playhouse's twenty-week production of "An American Tragedy." And it all happened as those things sometimes do. She auditioned for the part and got it.

Says Paula, "It is the most wonderful thing that has ever happened to me. And to think I almost didn't try out that day."

Arf! Arf!

Unseen actor on last week's Ginny Simms' NBC "Purple Heart" program was Earl Keen. He was hidden backstage while he delivered his dialogue; because, if he were in sight, the minute he opened his mouth, the studio audience would guffaw. His lines in the script were—quote—"Arf, Arf!"—unquote.

Keen is one of radio's leading animal imitators, with a repertoire ranging from chickens to mountain lions. It is he who supplies the voice of "Lucky, the dog" on "Mayor of the Town." One of his most difficult assignments was his stint on a recent "Date With Judy" show, when he had to do four different types of canines, and was given no time to practice their individual "Arfs!" For small dogs, Keen pitches his voice high, lowering it according to the size of the pooch he is mimicking.

When he has a cold, all his dogs bark on a lower key and he finds it difficult to do dog fights.

Usually, when he receives a call to work, he practices his part at home. The neighbors don't mind. He says they are used to him now. He's been doing animal noises ever since he was a youngster, and has been performing them on the air for eight years.

He is a man of medium height, stockily built, and of light complexion. He has sandy hair, wears casual tweeds, and looks like a moderately successful business man.

He is married and has a five-year-old daughter who likes to imitate animals, too. The family pet is a husky tom-cat, with whom Keen converses at length in a language known only to cats and their imitators.

Glass House

"The Woman in the Window" came to life last week in the person of pretty Mrs. Elizabeth Ortez. On a recent NBC "People Are Funny" program, the blonde serviceman's wife was chosen from hundreds of applicants to spend a week in a Hollywood store window.

"People Are Funny" offered a $500 diamond ring as a prize to any service wife who would dramatize the plight of servicemen's families who can't find a place to stay. "Sleeping in a store window is better than sleeping four in a bed anyhow," said Mrs. Ortez who had been living with four other Army wives and their children.

The window was equipped with a bed, table, chairs, and electric hot-plate. A sign invited anyone who had a room available for a serviceman's wife to come in and register it with Mrs. Ortez. Scores of landladies did, and now Mrs. Ortez has a long list of rooms from which to choose.

"People Are Funny" reported that the pretty service wife was a very good sport about the stunt. She slept, ate, and entertained her friends in her "Glass House." The toughest obstacle to surmount came in the form of servicemen on a Saturday midnight. But Mrs. Ortez gallantly took her good-natured heckling.

When time came to return to the NBC stage to claim her prize, Mrs. Ortez breathed a sigh of relief and vowed she would never stare at gold fish in a bowl. She knew how they felt!

Radio-ite Melchior

Because he has been heard on several air shows of late, Lauritz Melchior was visited by Radio Life the other day. He lives on a solitary hill-top off Mulholland Highway, where he can practice his Met roles at full lung, day or night, without disturbing any neighbors.

As we entered the Melchiors' modern living room commanding a view of Valley and ocean, the portly singer and his beautiful brown-eyed, brown-haired wife were upset over a script which had been sent out for their approval. "It steenks!" they observed smilingly.

They said they like to listen to the radio, but that they don't like any too much of one kind of program. "It's like a meal," the tenor explained. "It should be varied." Asked if he let out his powerful voice without breaking the microphone, he remarked, "I don't sing on the microphone. I'm not Sinatra. I usually stand a foot and a half from it and when I'm going to hit a high note or loud one, I sing just past it."

The Melchiors have owned their hill-top home for five years. While he visited and pointed out the view ("it's clear, clear, clear, clear!") Mrs. Melchior was busy answering the telephone and flitting in and out of the room with a script. We viewed her with interest because we'd heard that they met when she, a German movie actress, parachuted in one scene into a garden. It was Melchior's garden and that's how their romance started.

He has been extending his stay here because of picture commitments, but soon he'll have to leave for several performances at the Met and then a rigorous concert tour which has stacked up because he has over-stayed his visit in Hollywood.

Radio Life found the great singer and his wife hospitable and gracious, able to see the humorous side of life. "When I'm in the garden, I'm public enemy No. 1," Melchior remarked, "especially when I have gramophone needles on my chin."

"Groaner" Sinatra

On a recent Thursday, CBS' Frank Sinatra came to NBC for a visit. When he dropped into "Kraft Music Hall" where Bing was rehearsing, half of the NBCers dropped what they were doing and followed to watch the fun. Sinatra, impeccably groomed, strolled up to Crosby, in his usual plaid shirt and pork-pie hat, who was harmonizing with the Andrews Sisters on "Don't Fence Me In." Frankie didn't say anything to Uncle Bing or the girls, but listened for a moment. As if the temptation were too much for him, he leaned forward and crooned "ba ba boo" in his best Crosby fashion into the mike—and broke up the quartet.

"Here, boy," said Bingo, "you better take over. I haven't got a chance."

Military Secret

Sara Berner, who usually brings a big kick to the boys in service, got the biggest kick, herself, out of a recent trip to the bay area.

Sara left Hollywood in a Navy bomber at noon on a Friday and returned late Sunday night after having given nineteen performances at Naval and Marine bases. During the trip she was taken aboard a warship, just returned from the Philippines, where the men had not yet been permitted ashore and wouldn't be cleared over the weekend. Among the officers on board was her brother-in-law, and Sara couldn't even tell her sister that she had seen him until after he was permitted ashore two days later.

Rum and —

Every Friday on KMPC's "Swing Shift," Keith Hetherington plays the ten best-selling records of the week in Southern California. Friday before last, the record, "Rum and Coco Cola," was the most popular record for the week, but since it is restricted by radio it could not be played. Keith told the listeners the number one song for the week could not be played because of the restriction, but did not mention the name. He offered a pair of tickets to the Palladium to the first ten people who sent in letters giving the correct name of this hit tune.

In the mail on Saturday morning there were 119 letters and cards giving the correct answer, and total to Wednesday of this past week was 171.

Europe Bound

Fulton Lewis, jr. KHJ-Mutual Don Lee's commentator, is now on his way to the European War theater as Mutual's representative covering the fighting fronts.

The well-known news analyst will collect first hand material for his own programs, and will present special overseas broadcasts for Mutual listeners. Standing by as a substitute for Lewis will be Fred Morrison, who has served as ranking member of the commentator's personal staff and news gathering organization.

On his present tour of the war front, he hopes to bring back on-the-spot information and analyses of happenings from the areas where history is being made by our fighting men.

Birthday Wishes

Young Conrad Binyon, "Butch" of the CBS "Mayor of the Town" show, is proud of the fact that his birthday and President Roosevelt's are on the same day. Instead of having the usual birthday party and receiving gifts for himself, the youngster asked that his guests bring dimes for the Infantile Paralysis Drive. Conrad sent the money to the president, along with his own birthday wishes.

Radio Roundup
 from KFI

One day years ago Throckmorton P. Gildersleeve blew into radio. He has been blowing ever since.

The Great Guy laughed himself into big-time radio when as a regular visitor at 79 Wistful Vista he became identified with Fibber McGee and Molly.

After many, many weeks of matching wits (half and whole) with Fibber and other assorted characters in that popular show, Throckmorton moved into a niche of his own.

That was back in 1941. And ever since, he has been presented by NBC and heard-over KFI each Sunday night at 8—except of course, during short summer vacations.

Still going strong and ably supported by Walter Tetley as Leroy, Louise Erickson as Niece Marjorie, Lillian Randolph as Berdie, Earle Ross as Judge Hooker, charming Shirley Mitchell as lovely Leila Ransome and several others, 'Gildy' is still one of the most popular NBC stars on the air today.

If you've ever wondered just how smart you really are—and if you've ever wanted to test yourself, never have you had a better opportunity than is afforded you by NBC right now.

Each Monday night at 9:30 via KFI, "Noah Webster Says"—and what he says often comes as a complete surprise.

Very often we use words in our everyday conversation which if we were asked to define them would lead to an abrupt awakening. Usually, we use the words correctly, but just try to give a good definition.

Consequently, when Emcee Haven MacQuarrie and the distinguished lexicographer, Dr. Charles Frederick Lindsley, give us the correct definitions, we are all too often surprised—to say the least.

One gal who is just as lovely to look at as she is to listen to is Ginny Simms who is presented by "Johnny" each Tuesday night at 8:30 over KFI. She has a surprising versatility for interpreting songs in the manner you just can't help liking.

Ginny's one outstanding asset aside from her melodious voice is her warm personality and her blues-chasing smile is sincere.

Without a doubt, Ginny Simms is tops in anyone's musical league—particularly the servicemen's league where she is more than popular. Her many tours to entertain servicemen has won her a permanent place in their hearts—just ask 'em. —Adv.

NINETEENTH ANNIVERSARY

This month, Penny Singleton, known to dialers as radio's "Blondie," will celebrate the nineteenth anniversary of her first Broadway appearance. Penny, then a young dancer, at that time was known professionally as "Dorothy McNulty"—her real name—and made her debut on the White Way with Jack Benny in a play titled "Temptations of 1926."

MEREDITH SAYS

Burgess Meredith, narrator on a recent CBS "This is My Best," says although it's hard to get meat, butter, shoes and other things these days, there's one thing we ought to keep in mind—that it's much harder to learn Japanese."

DIALERS' FAVORITE

What's in a name? Singer Larry Stewart, of the "Hollywood Mystery Time" broadcasts, receives no name credits on the ailer—but Larry's identity is no mystery to his fans who recognize his warbling from other programs. Dialers have keen ears, it seems, and since becoming a regular on the show, Stewart's fan mail has continued to grow, many of the letters being addressed to "Larry Stewart, Hollywood Mystery Time program."

BOWLING FOR BONDS

Nora Martin is entering a bowling contest which will be sponsored by her boss, Eddie Cantor. Admission to the contest will be by War Bond only and the prizes also will be bonds.

THAT'S DURANTE

Jimmy Durante, elder half of the Moore-Durante program, is always "in character" either on the air or off. This week when Elvia Allman, featured on the program, left the studio after the broadcast, she said to Durante: "Adios, Jimmy, aloha and au revoir!"

"How d'ya like that," exclaimed Durante, "she didn't even say good-bye to me!"

TETLEY IN CARTOONS.

Walter Tetley, who appears as "Le-roy" on the "Great Gildersleeve" has been signed by Walter Lantz to do comedy renditions of two songs, "More Power to You" and "Reddy Polka" for "Reddy Killowatt," the commercial cartoon which Lantz is producing.

Diggin' Discs

With JACK LAWSON

TODAY WE LAY the lash to the scarred and bloody back of Dave Dexter, editor of a little paper called The Capitol. Dave constantly is being lashed at for things he writes. But we'll say this much for him; Dave is sincere in his convictions. He happens to be a rabid jazz fan. In fact, there perhaps is not a more rabid jazz fan in these United States. So he promotes and defends hot jazz with all the zeal of a fanatic. That is where, often, he sticks his neck out.

IN THE CURRENT issue of The Capitol, Mr. Dexter writes. "Hillbilly and 'western' style music are waning in popularity." This story comes out at a time when the Andrews Sisters' new western-style Blue Network air show is being hailed as "great;" when Bing Crosby and the Andrews Sisters' Decca recording of "Don't Fence Me In" is Number One in national disc sales; when Spade Cooley, the "King of Western Swing," is signed for three pictures; when Tex Ritter, Capitol's own western star, heads Billboard's Western Hit Parade with three out of eight discs—No. 1, "I'm Wastin' My Tears;" No. 3, "Jealous Heart," and No. 4, "There's a New Moon." Well, Mr. Dexter, what do you say to THAT?

BOBBY WORTH, youngest Hit Parade songwriter, who has produced such tunes as "Tonight We Love," "Do I Worry?" "From Taps 'Til Reveille" and "Fellow on a Furlough," now has a new ballad which looks like "Parade" material. It's "Pretty Soon," recorded by Frances Langford for American Recording Artists, and introduced on the airways by Ira Cook on his Lucky Lager Dance Time program over KFAC.

LATEST ANDREWS Sisters disc to take the wax industry by storm is their new Decca release, "Rum and Coca-Cola," coupled with "One Meat Ball." Accompanied by Vic Schoen's orchestra, the former is a take-off on the Calypso style with plenty of rhythm.

MEMBERS OF THE original New York production have recorded the top tunes of "Bloomer Girl" for Decca. Cast includes Celeste Holm, David Brooks, Richard Huey, Joan McCracken and Dooley Wilson. Music is by Harold Arlen, lyrics by E. Y. Harburg. Orchestra and chorus were directed by Leon Leonardi. This is the latest in Decca's distinguished list of original cast albums.

COLLINS IN THE MOVIES

Ray Collins, well-known radio actor and ex-Mercury player, has been signed by Universal for an important part in "A Night in Paradise," now in production. Collins recently completed a role in "Hidden Eye" at MGM.

fame by penning such hit tunes as "Louisiana Lullaby," "Hut Sut Song" and "The Kid with the Rip in His Pants." Then, last year, when "Breakfast Club" tenor, Jack Baker, abandoned his air career to join the Navy, Owens returned to his original singing role on the program.

Jack Owens is married and has three children, ranging in age from nine to three. Jack's off-mike hobby is short story-writing.

Singer-comedienne Fran Allison brings laughs to "Breakfast Club" listeners with her portrayal of friendly, homespun "Aunt Fanny." Fran created this comedy characterization quite by accident one day when an announcer at WMT interrupted his reading of "Hollywood News" when he spied the songstress entering the studio. Over the air, he said, "Why here's Aunt Fanny. Why don't you come over and say hello, Aunt Fanny?" Fran, laughing, stepped up to the mike, and for five minutes, ad-libbed an uproarious "Aunt Fanny" routine.

In person, the clever Miss Allison is a homebody, likes to cook, but loathes keeping house and, in the words of Aunt Fanny, "has never been known to shut a drawer or a door."

Away from the microphone, Don McNeill, genial host of the "Breakfast Club" hour, likes to romp with his three sons—Tommy, nine; Donny, seven; and Robert Patrick, three. The McNeills live in Winnetka, Illinois, a suburb of Chicago. In his spare moments, Don likes to draw caricatures of his friends.

In the beginning, McNeill banned studio audiences at his "Breakfast Club" airings. Then, in 1937, a Marine, fatally stricken with tuberculosis, said that attending a Breakfast Club broadcast was chief among the things he wanted to do before his final hour. For this request, Don relaxed his ruling, and in 1938, he decided to open the doors to all comers. Since then, "Breakfast Club" fans have journeyed from near and far to view their favorite program.

Most of them are amazed to discover that the sparkling, sixty-minute show is unreel without benefit of scripts. McNeill's flair for the adroit retort keeps his cohorts on their mettle.

Recently, a veteran trouper listened intently as the "Breakfast Club" cast volleyed sharp ad libs back and forth. "I'd hate to get into that," he observed. "I'd get my head cut off."

To help her with the housework and care of the children, she employs a colored woman whom they affectionately call "Boo." The actress' mother is also on hand to help.

"With two children so small," said Nan, "we all have to pitch in. Mother and I do all the cooking. I love it."

"What's your specialty?" we asked.

"Red beans and rice!" beamed Miss Grey.

She confessed to a walloping appetite. "It isn't that I eat so much at mealtime," she explained, "but I eat all the time!"

She and her husband are ardent radio fans, with mystery programs their first choice. "Suspense" is their favorite.

"But we listen to them all," added Nan. "Every night that we're home, we look over the radio logs and make out a schedule of the programs we want to hear." Nan also reads mystery books avidly.

JUST A HEADACHE

As it does to many people, "Rum and Coca-Cola" gave the Andrews Sisters a big headache recently—but not for the usual reasons. It seems that the girls planned to sing the number bearing that title on their new Sunday airshow, but the network refused permission on the grounds that referring to liquor on their transcontinental shows is taboo because many "dry" states object to it. Producer Manheim solved the problem by rewriting the lyric and title, making it non-alcoholic. The girls musical cocktail went on the air as "Lime and Coca-Cola."

Earl with the "Erl"

Broadway Columnist Earl Wilson Adds Weekly to His Collection Of "Wilsonisms", Plays Host to Personally Insulted Celebrities

Sunday, 7 p.m.
Mutual-KHJ

WHEN I read that Earl Wilson, the "late knight of Broadway," the "midnight Earl," was going on the air in a regular weekly program series, my heart went out to the Mutual network's continuity acceptance editor. What a job—editing the script of the zany columnist who is famous for his coloratura copy, his analysis of the anatomy, and his frank (to the point of almost being fresh) references to the feminine contour, natural and applied. So you can be sure I marked my radio calendar for Sunday, January 7, 7:00 p.m., when Wilson began his new series on KHJ-Mutual Don Lee. I wanted to be sure to hear the first of the Earl Wilson broadcasts — I wanted to see how this negligee nighthawk would adapt himself to the code of the airwaves.

Well, Earl did all right—and so did the Mutual continuity acceptance editor, courageous critic that he is. For the "Earl with the Erl" controlled his tendency to refurbish the standard contemporary vocabulary with pithy coinages of his own, and the censor allowed enough innuendo to slip into the script to keep intact that inimitable zaniness and little boy smartiness that has brought Wilson fame as a columnist in the New York Post, the Los Angeles Daily News and a dozen other metropolitan papers.

◀ "WOMEN PLAY NO PART in my life—I make 'em work for me", says Earl Wilson, the "midnight Earl" heard Sundays on KHJ. The night-spot reporter and commentator has had ten years of Broadway as background for his air show.

As a matter of fact, Wilson's quarter-hour broadcasts pack in as much variety as he gets into a whole week of columns. With announcer Paul Douglas to volley insults with, Wilson has his weekly guests—first Tallulah Bankhead, then Fred Allen, to give the listener all idea of the invitation list he is setting up. Then, he has his more serious moments when he unveils important highlights about the celebrated in the news, and he has a line or two of gossip to share, despite the fact that he says he is not a gossip columnist. In between and fore and aft all these items are the Wilson quips and gags, the ones he originates and the ones he duplicates.

Who Is B. W.?

One of his most famous gag lines is woven around Broadway's most talked of non-professional, "B.W.—the one woman Mrs. Wilson trusts." Now, Wilson's fans know "B.W." is his own "beautiful wife," his companion on most of his saloon tours because "people might talk—especially my B.W." Mrs. Wilson is also the foil for her husbands' daring quips and comments about the bright lights of Broadway and the personalities upon whom the gleam falls and is, of course, a very necessary, though silent, partner in the broadcasts.

Another point well made on the broadcasts is a bit of biography on Wilson—the admission that he is a yokel boy who made good in the large city. Like so many of the other writers who have risen to fame commenting on the ways and the waywardness of celebrities, Wilson was a small town product. He was born on a small farm near Brookford, Ohio, where about 1000 townsfolk watched him peddle papers before and after school, and heard him vow that he was going to be a real newspaper man some day.

Joins Fourth Estate

He was, in the real sense of the word, too, for a few years on the Washington Post and on the Akron Beacon-Journal, where he made a small bit of newspaper history on one occasion by talking some officers of the law out of arresting the late Heywood Brown.

"The HORN"

Turns to Corn

By Evelyn Bigsby

In Addition to Music, Trumpet Tooting Harry James Has Lines On New Danny Kaye Laugh Show

Saturday, 5 p.m.
CBS-KXN

IT'S A well-known fact that Harry James would rather talk baseball than music. The other day we found out that he'd rather talk about anything than himself.

Lounging his slim six feet one in the den of his Coldwater Canyon home, "The Horn" made the amazing pronouncement that even he and his shapely wife, Betty Grable, do not discuss one another's careers at home.

"Never discuss your work?", Radio Life asked incredulously.

"Why should we?" countered James phlegmatically. "She doesn't know much about my work and I don't know much about hers. If I said anything about her work it would embarrass her and I know the same would be true of me."

We'd heard that the Jameses weren't what one would call "publicity hounds" . . . that they recognize publicity as part of fame's obligations, as something important for a star to do in line of career-duty. Harry made no pretense about it when we asked him how he and Betty spent their leisure time.

It seems they stay home a lot because they can't go out like any normal young couple without having their clothes torn and a mob of people demanding autographs. That's why you'll sometimes stumble on Mr. and Mrs. James eating dinner in some out-of-the-way restaurant where the steaks are good and thick, but the fans are few and far between. Or hear that they're playing poker at the home of friends.

In his brown mixed suit, yellowish shirt, and brightly speckled tie, Harry faced his interview in quiet, business-like manner. At first he answered questions briefly and politely, later, when tea and peanut butter sandwiches arrived, relaxed and chatted easily. Not too enthusiastic was his reception of our story angle, "Horn Turns to Corn," based on the idea that in addition to being the orchestra leader on the new Danny Kaye show, James also carries comedy lines.

Perhaps he was just being loyal to the flashing trumpet that has brought him overflowing fame. But he did admit that he'd begun having lines in his fourth movie, "Two Girls and a Sailor," had carried dialogue in "Bathing Beauty," and was playing the role of an orchestra leader in "Do You Love Me?"

As far as his lines in both movies and on the radio are concerned James made one point clear. "I've been working as an orchestra leader for six years and whatever I do, I want to be myself!"

He did just that on the opening Danny Kaye show, where "Mr. Pabst," the sponsor, was written into the script as meeting members of the cast.

KAYE: And you know our orchestra leader, Harry James?

PABST: Yes, of course. That's my blow-ribbon boy.

JAMES: That's very cute, Mr. Pabst . . . and corny!

And to climax another spot:

PABST: Now singing and comedy are fine in their place, but as for me, there's no greater symphony than a smooth-flowing series of pear-shaped words about the product . . . oftentimes crudely referred to as a "commercial." Mr. Niles, I wonder if you would be so kind as to . . .

NILES: (MOST EAGERLY) Gladly, Mr. Pabst. It's a pleasure, Mr. Pabst. It's an honor, Mr. Pabst!

KAYE: Also a living, Mr. Pabst.

PABST: Oh, Mr. James, before Mr. Niles proceeds, would you mind blowing us a short fanfare?

JAMES: Gladly, Mr. Pabst. It's a pleasure, Mr. Pabst. It's an honor, Mr. Pabst!

KAYE: You, too, James?

Admits Humor Sense

Lines are fun to almost anyone, and to James they should prove very interesting because he admits to a sense of humor, in a dry way. "I kid a lot," he confessed, "but only with people I like a lot. No, I don't go in for joke gadgets because I haven't time to go to the store to pick them out."

Cartoons are one of his favorite forms of humor and he's especially fond of Parcher's. He's so busy with radio, recording pictures, and his band that he leaves the family's reading up to Betty by remarking: "If I ever had time to read, I would write music." He remembers songs with a photographic mind and can recall some of the arrangements when he was with Benny Goodman.

Music is one of the interests Harry and Betty have in common, and they have many, according to Harry, who likes to collect Ravel and Debussy records. Your reporter saw their main interest—Miss Vicky James, eleven-month-old, curly-locked pinup girl with blonde hair like her mother's.

Betty also shares her husband's fervor for the diamond. Until James had to give up shortstopping when he broke his foot, he'd always be found with his band-team, at the La Brea field, with Betty, official mascot, watching from the bench. So avid is James' interest in the game that he attached one of Hollywood's stock jokes to his name: When interviewing a new man for his band, James asks him what he plays.

Man: Second fiddle.

James: (Impatiently) No, no. What do you play in baseball. Second base?"

Gag writers on the Kaye show, casting about for lines for "The Horn," could do no better than take advantage of a rabid situation existing on the program. The tip-off is—James is a St. Louis Cardinal fan and Danny Kaye is a Brooklyn Dodger roofer.

▼ MUGGING TRIO comprises facial contortionist Kaye, announcer Ken Niles, and "The Horn". James admits to a sense of humor "in a dry way", but only with people he likes.

Play by Play

Saturday, 5 p.m.
NBC-KFI

WITH THE 1945 Rose Bowl Game behind him, Rube Samuelsen reminisced over a coke with Radio Life about the past happenings of the Kickoff Luncheon, traditional pre-Rose Bowl Game banquet. Samuelsen is KFI's Saturday sportscaster, whose sports views reflect the human side of events.

Samuelsen has never had "mike fright," but he claims he came mighty close to it when he had to interview a top coach before a pre-war Rose Bowl Game. All during the Kickoff Luncheon the coach looked half-frightened to death and was beset with the most terrible case of "mike fright" Samuelsen had ever seen.

"I finally convinced him to pretend he was talking to me and to ignore the fifteen hundred people filling the banquet hall. After the broadcast was finished, I think I was more nervous than the coach, who swore he was cured of 'mike fright,' thanks to me," grinned Samuelsen.

In addition to keeping abreast with present sports news, Samuelsen believes that what G. I. Joe is doing and thinking is the biggest news in the world. And this is what he keeps in mind when he relays to the radio public descriptive, philosophical, and humorous happenings and opinions from the overseas mail, which is a featurette of his program.

"It behooves us to know of what they're thinking," Samuelsen says. "We're going to have a lot of post-war problems which will closely tie in and become one with the problems of G. I. Joe. By learning what's going on on their side of the fence, we can work on their problems right down the line and better understand just what others we're going to have to meet in the future."

Is Newsmen

Samuelsen is a newspaperman from way back—he's sports editor

Rube Samuelsen, Confidant of Coaches, Believes What G. I. Joe Is Doing and Thinking Is Biggest News in War World

SPORTSCASTER SAMUELSEN LIKES TO PRESENT letters from privates and generals, gobs and admirals, recently featured a personal letter from General Patton to his sister. of the Pasadena Star-News and Post—and attempts to bring into his program those "human" things the newspapers are forced to overlook because of space limitations.

He's a big, heavy-set man, topped by an iron-gray thatch, and he possesses an attention-holding manner and a radiogenic voice. Fairness and squareness seem to be as much a part of him as breathing.

For the last four years, in addition to his duties as an editor, he has been sportscasting on the airwaves. Before he started his current NBC show, he did several broadcasts devoted to "Letters From Servicemen" which was in content exactly the reverse of his "A Letter To The Service." He has always specialized in messages from former athletes and regularly conducts a roll-call of ex-gridiron favorites.

Like all good newspapermen, Samuelsen likes people, and has tremendous faith in human nature. "People want to know the funny and interesting things about other people and what happens to them," he says. "But a sportscaster has the important responsibility of being doubly sure of what he says and only presenting fact, not fiction."

Gag Backfired

Returning to the subject of the Kickoff Luncheon, Samuelsen recalled a gag that boomeranged.

Back in Durham, N. C., he and some pals were kidding sportscaster Bill Stern and casually mentioned that they heard Cornell coach Snavely was going to fill the vacated spot for USC. In the excitement of the game, Samuelsen forgot to retract the statement—in fact, he forgot all about it. The rumor got around and the Associated Press sent the false story out over the wire before anyone had a chance to deny it. Samuelsen laughed and said that the payoff came when he flew home only to find the hoax headlined in his own paper.

From buck privates and admirals, famous names and comparative non-entities—Samuelsen receives letters from the high and low in the military hierarchy. He recently featured a personal letter from General Patton to his sister. This was the first direct word from Patton since his historic drive into France.

"Sports With Rube Samuelsen" is a half-hour show dedicated to reporting current sports news. Samuelsen specializes in bringing his listeners the story behind the story. He has not deviated from the style of presenting humorous backstage happenings or letters from prominent athletes.

"I believe there is a lot of big news in this war that radio and press war correspondents cannot give to the people because of time and space and censorship—human things that are every bit as significant as terse war communiques and a lot more understandable to the folks back home." These are some of the things he likes to bring listeners in his report of sports.

Radio's Contribution to the Art of Acting any stage reaction suddenly assumed the magnitude of distortion. An eyebrow raised a half inch in the manner of the stage suddenly jumped a foot on the screen. Eyes that could be opened and closed at will on the stage suddenly appeared to be possessed of St. Vitus when batted before the camera.

In fact, all movement had to be adjusted to the preemptory demands of the all-seeing eye of the camera and the magnification of that all-seeing eye of the camera and the magnification of the movie screen. Consequently, the actor had to acquire a method of pantomimic expression reduced to a great extent from that formerly used. Inasmuch as the enlarged screen focused attention on the picture there has appeared to develop a casual treatment of expression in the use of dialogue to such an extent that when one closes one's eyes while viewing a motion picture, the dialogue is, in most cases, unintelligible.

This leads to a direct comparison with Radio where the actor must have everything in his voice in order to portray a character convincingly.

Medium of Radio

Radio has bound the dramatic actor in the narrowest limits of any of the dramatic mediums ever used. The radio actor has no scenery except music and the small descriptive help of a narrator or announcer. From there on the meaning of situation and dialogue depends on the skill of the actor in using his voice and to characterize and dramatize with his voice and his knowledge.

If the feeling that is inspired by the dialogue is not manifest in the tone and inflection, pacing and general deportment, the radio actor cannot hope to convince.

Another deciding factor in determining the difference in technique for radio, theater and screen, is particularly true in the matter of perspective. As I have remarked earlier in this discussion, the physical limitations of where the acting is performed must of necessity follow the technique with which the actor portrays.

For some strange reason the average actor, and it may be said many directors, has not come to realize the physical quality that determines accurate repression of the air. By this I mean, an actor, while he apparently is doing his acting in a studio, is heard and realized under entirely different circumstances.

As Clarence Menser, a network program head, pointed out in an article a couple of years ago, "The radio actor isn't, as many seem to think, addressing himself to an audience of a million or twenty million, but in actuality is addressing a million audiences of one or two people." This is not an exact quotation, but it is an accurate re-statement of his ideas and if it is not, I do hereby apologize to him. However, the fact which should be all too apparent is constantly ignored.

The radio audience is just as close to the actor as they are to their loud speaker. The actor is in exactly the same position when emoting on the airways as he would be were he declaiming in the living room or the kitchen of his listener's home. I wonder how many actors would consider sitting or standing in a small apartment of twelve or fifteen feet, and ranting and shouting to their audience which is seated four or five feet away.

Yet, virtually every radio program that is heard, allows the actor to indulge himself and his pseudo-emotions to the limit.

Daytime Acting

Much has been said pro and con concerning daytime radio and the inevitable stories which run for years. However, I would like to point out that the majority of daytime radio shows offer performances far truer and in much better taste than most of the big shows starring leading figures of stage and screen. These people, much at home in their own medium, for the most part do not adapt themselves to the limitations of radio.

In the main they read in stiff declamatory style and since in their medium acute attention is not paid to dialogue interpretation, they do not give the fineness of performance in handling their radio dialogue.

Now we come to the question originally asked by my friend—what has radio contributed to dramatic art. I am completely convinced that radio and fine radio actors have brought to the art of dramatic interpretation the finest interpretation of dialogue that the theater has ever known. They have given a new meaning to the art of repression by incorporating in their voices all the explanatory inflections necessary to make an unseen audience completely understand and sympathize with whatever characterization they are doing.

A new technique which can be characterized as the finest example of creating tone and word pictures. In my opinion this is not an art that is fully developed as yet, but it is one which holds great promise for the future and offers a distinct challenge to the serious and artistic actor.

EMCEE'S RETURN

George Erwin has returned to his emceeing chores on KMPC's popular "Music Box" and "Off the Record" programs. He's been honorably discharged from the Army.

Earl with the "Erl"

About 1936 Wilson went to New York and combined his inspection of the Great White Way with earning a living—he became night club editor of the New York Post. When Post readers expressed their delight in the amusing and quotable Wilsonisms he developed, he was given a by-line and began the famous "It Happened Last Night" column now syndicated throughout the nation.

A devotee of gags, Wilson packs his broadcasts as well as his column with them. One of his favorite routines is the expression that his interviews, all conducted on a very personal basis, by the way, are by request. His own request. Accused of being a snoop with two stomachs, three chins, and a poisonous personality, Wilson counters that his is a compelling personality — "when I compel them, they stay."

Wilson thinks repetition is merely a sure way of giving a good gag plenty of opportunities to be appreciated, and points out that any similarity between his quips and those of other funny men can be accounted for by the fact that great minds often "sink to a common low level."

Again like so many other columnists, Wilson's private life is combed for material with which to entertain his fans, and probably to save the wear and tear on his arches. The classic Wilsonism en famille is being used as the dedication to his new book, "It Happened Last Night." On the frontispiece is this note "To the woman who cooks my meals, mends my sox and minds my son — my mother-in-law."

ie and stage actress. Nan, however, has had no dramatic training. "I just went to dancing school," she told us, "but Hollywood never gave me the chance to dance."

Her first film break was "Three Smart Girls," the initial Deanna Durbin picture.

Considering the success that the young actress and her husband have attained in their respective professions, we were curious to know what plans they shared for their children's future.

"Right after Pam was born," related Nan, "I made the emphatic declaration that I didn't want her to be an actress, and Jack said that he certainly didn't want her to ride. He never likes to see a girl ride a horse.

"My mother laughed when she heard us," Nan continued. "She told us that Pam would probably turn out to be a leading lady in westerns!"
