Mrs. Eugene Dare, 1980 Maine Avenue, Long Beach, Calif.

Sirs: Can't something be done to have Paul Carson's organ music broadcast at an earlier hour Sunday evenings? It was a favorite program until the time was changed.

What has become of Rodriguez and Sutherland, our favorite commentators? The explosiveness of Sidney Sutherland and the cool and calm logic of José Rodriguez were thoroughly enjoyed, even though we did not always agree with their viewpoint.

To our knowledge, Rodriguez and Sutherland are not heard on the air at the present time. They left KFI when that station altered its policy to permit only news analysts to broadcast.

Shirley Lane, 952 1/2 West 50th Street, Los Angeles, Calif.

Sirs: I have read the comments published against the Lucky Strike commercials. Personally, I think the idea of LS-MFT was a great sales-promoting idea, and I am in favor of its continuation.

Also, I wish to express my desire for someone like Johnny Johnstone to take Lawrence Tibbett's place on the "Hit Parade." I have nothing against Mr. Tibbett, but please get someone who can sing popular songs properly.

Mrs. J. Wignall, 667 Sadler Avenue, Los Angeles, Calif.

Sirs: Why were "Vic and Sade" taken off the air? They were one of the best for genuine humor, in my opinion.

Would like to hear less of "Sonny" on "When a Girl Marries" and also less of Bing Crosby's ad-libbing. He spoils his program by so doing, I think.

"Vic and Sade" is expected to return to air before very long.

Mrs. Harold Ehrman, 2239 No. Beechwood Drive, Hollywood, Calif.

Sirs: I enjoy the KNX program, "Through a Woman's Eyes" so much. The interviews are all so interesting, and the household hints, and Jane Judson of the OPA is so helpful.

We want the "Easy Aces" back!

M. J. Kay, 118 Locust, Long Beach, Calif.

Sirs: Why doesn't radio set up a permanent system by which there are awards given for the "bests" of the year just as the "Oscars" are presented to those of the movie world for their achievements? The nearest thing to this I have heard are various minor awards given to a radio personality or two but there is no formal recognition given by a group at a special time during the year as in the movie awards. The awards could be named "Mikes" and if such a system were made possible, I am sure it would make for better radio listening.

We are actively in agreement with you. Radio should indeed bestow formal recognition upon its finest contributors. As a step in the right direction, Radio Life, last year, instituted its annual Distinguished Achievement Awards.

Douglas Cramer, 15447 Yose Street, Van Nuys, Calif.

Sirs: I'm for the return of two popular programs which have been off the air for some time, "Vic and Sade" and "Battle of the Baritones". Whenever radio news is discussed someone always says "I wish 'Vic and Sade' would come back on". It's the same all over the country. I haven't found one person who said they disliked the program. I know it would be 100 per cent better than the program which is now on by the same sponsor. The 1944 winner of the "Battle of the Baritones" was announced as Bing Crosby. This year, more than last, Crosby is up against stiffer competition. Crosby's older recordings with famous groups, as well as Sinatra's singing with Tommy Dorsey's orchestra makes this program an exciting race as well as

Why can't KHJ have the transcribed program earlier in the evening instead of two times when most people miss it: at 12:15 noon and 10:30 each evening. Between seven and ten would be a good time. Think Radio Life is gaining popularity as the weeks go by, and always watch for Jack Lawson's column "Diggin' Discs."

▲ "RADIO'S NUMBER-ONE BUTLER," Dick Ryan once vee.ed from duties of taking radio's hat and coat long enough to run for New York State legislature.

You Have To Be Smooth

Joe to work on the Vallee program.

Begins "Butling"

DICK RYAN, called "radio's number-one butler," says he knows all of the tricks of etiquette his script writers can think of. You get to be a pretty smooth person after taking radio's hat and coat for so many broadcasts.

Dick's title, "radio's number-one butler," had its origin when he and Joe first started working together. Each week, Dick was assigned a different character part. There was always something for him to do, that is until one day Joe discovered everyone had been written into the script except Ryan. Joe cornered the producer who told him the only role left was that of the butler. "Dick will do it," declared Joe, and thus began the geneology of Ryan, the butler.

Dick is "Plunger," Jim Lawton's butler on the "Hollywood Mystery Time," and has played a butler among other roles in "Big Town," "Lux," "Screen Guild," Joe Penner, Jack Benny, Jerry Rich, and Al Johnson's show. He is also heard currently as "Mr. Trembly," the druggist, on the Fanny Brice program.

He once branched out from butling into New York State politics, an escapade that points up the versatility of one of radio's most delightful characters.

Dick was born August 26, 1896, in New Haven, Connecticut. When he was eight years old he was boy soprano at church and also carried messages for Western Union, but vaudeville got him at thirteen.

Dick's political interest was first aroused during his early vaudeville years when between shows he and his friends would gather at the corner drug store to discuss the "state of the state." These enthusiastic associates one day coerced Dick into running for the state legislature as a gag. Strength of his opponent convinced Dick he had nothing to worry about.

He surreptitiously packed his bags and ran away from home to seek fame on the Great White Way. Fame didn't come at first, just a job with Kirk and Fogerty in their act. Numerous jobs in "tab," and burlesque shows followed and after seven years before the footlights Dick's single act established him as a favorite on the circuits. He appeared in leading musical shows and in 1929 was in the famed "International Revue" with Harry Richman. It was in a vaudeville act that Dick and Joe Penner first met, and that brief association resulted in Ryan's first break in radio, when he came west with

"I was sure it was a hundred to one shot against me," he says, "but when the returns came in I was defeated by only 205 votes. If I'd been elected, heaven knows what might have happened to the state of New York."

When Penner came to Hollywood in 1936, Dick accompanied him and

Sunday, 1 p. m.,

ONE SCORCHING Texas afternoon, two young men stripped to the waist were busily painting a big, round and multi-colored piece of beaver board. Their co-workers of Dallas Station WWL wandered out to watch and heckle. "Hey, watcha makin'? You're getting more paint on you than on the board. You look like walking awnings."

The "walking awnings" were Orval Anderson and his pal, Bert Mitchell. They were making a ten-dollar dart board to use when they auditioned their new show, "Darts for Dough," a few days later.

Today, only a year later, their dart board is one costing a thousand dollars. Their show is heard from coast to coast. And it no longer emanates from Dallas, but Hollywood—which makes Orval very happy indeed because that is where he wanted to be in the first place.

Breezy Mr. Anderson jokingly claims the only way he could get to California was via an air show. But now that he's here he has a little more than he bargained for. With partner Bert Mitchell in the army, he writes, co-owns, and emcees the weekly "Darts for Dough."—"And it keeps me darn busy," he adds.

A little vague on recalling dates—"I'd better be careful or things are going to turn out wrong," he muttered, counting on his fingers. Orval thinks he began his radio career in 1935 for "good old station WRUF at the University of Florida."

YOU KNOW," confided pretty Joan Merrill with a grin, "I've been leading such a quiet life that when I knew I had a luncheon-interview with Radio Life, I hardly slept a wink last night. I was afraid," she laughed, "I'd oversleep and miss it."

What Miss Merrill terms a "quiet life" is her Sunday stint on the "Chase and Sanborn" show. After four years singing in night clubs and theaters, one show a week seems like inactivity to vivacious Joan.

The small, black-haired vocalist thinks this "normal life" is quite the thing. It would be complete if only husband, Tex-Seeger, were home from the South Pacific. "I thought at last I could settle down and have that home I've been missing for the past few years but it will have to wait until the war's over."

In the meantime she's more than contented to continue in the path that began four years ago when her recording of "How Did He Look?" first caught the public ear.

Good Accident

"I'd been singing locally (Richmond, Virginia) when a typical movie scene occurred. It was at a party and an agent heard me and asked me to sing on the radio. From there I went to night club engagements and theater appearances. But my first real hit, "How Did He Look?," came about quite by accident. We were rehearsing the song, which was new at the time, and kidingly corned it up. The orchestra leader liked the patter I inserted and insisted upon its being left in. So you see it wasn't a style I developed or anything, it just happened."

"After that I tried two more songs,

▲ PRETTY JOAN GARBED HERSELF IN EXCLUSIVE CREATIONS, such as the one above, for four long years. Now she wears only street clothes and rarely goes nightclubbing.

'Miss Johnson Called Again Today' and 'As If You Didn't Know,' in the same style. It was then things really began to happen."

With three movies to her credit, Jean admits she is interested in having a radio show of her own and some day doing musical comedy—"I've always been stagestruck."—But singing on the "Chase and Sanborn" show is a dream come true to her. She and Tex were vacationing in Newport when he was home on his last leave. She wasn't interested in doing anything when another one of those "lucky breaks" happened. Edgar Bergen was looking for a vocalist and Joan was signed without an audition. "I couldn't pass up a chance like that, could I?"

Still Searching

Today, she, her mother and sister live in Beverly Hills. They are taking life easy—and house hunting. (Just mention the latter subject to her and Joan holds her head and moans.) "I guess I'm a lazy girl, because I just eat, sleep and sing—and," she grimaced, "search for an apartment."

Joan should be a "natural" for the silver screen. She is small, possesses a lovely figure—"Ah, gowan.

I bulge in all of the wrong places"—and has a fresh, pert face with a generous sprinkling of freckles. Tailored suits and street-length dresses seem like "heaven" to her after four years of nothing but evening gowns.

She confesses to being an avid gin rummy player, listening to the radio, and seeing every movie that comes to town. "I'm not critical. I laugh in the right places and cry when I'm supposed to."

"I wish," she said, "that I didn't get so nervous when I have to read lines or act. As long as I sing I'm fine, but my knees begin to wobble when I have to be plain Joan Merrill. Though," she concluded with a happy look, "I think I'm getting better."

About being Mrs. Tex Seeger, Joan said, "We've had a hectic married life because Tex is home for so few months out of the year. After the war we're going to settle down and raise a family—and I'll get a chance to continue my cooking. I'd never tried before last year in Newport, and," she confided with a giggle, "I gained thirteen pounds. Life will be so active that I'll look back on these 'quiet' months with a sigh. But," she winked, "that, I'll have to see."

IT ISN'T only on the film studio set and in Hollywood's famous dining-dancing spas that fashion stories are written. Radio makes its contribution in a very emphatic voice, and here's proof of it in a "Radio Life" photostory of one of the "Michael Shayne" broadcasts.

Without any advance announcement of its intentions, with no warning to its cast members, just by walking in with a camera a couple Mondays ago, "Radio Life" found a wide assortment of fashion plates at the "Michael Shayne" rehearsal, with some of radio's most popular players as models. You'll note that among radio people, there's no one key to good fashion—instead, there's a delightful mixture of sportswear with tailored dress, and as much sensitiveness to good grooming among the men as with the women. No matter what your fashion preferences are, you're pretty sure to find an example of it here.

WHEN SHARON DOUGLAS joined Maher at the microphone, contrast really stepped into our fashion story. For this beautiful blonde, so well known to dialers for her work in the major radio dramas, showed up in a very handsome slack suit of aqua. Striped multi-colored blouse, with a huge bow tie, made a striking contrast to the pastel. And note here the Maher hat—a famous "Michael Shayne" prop.

CATHY LEWIS, who recently took over the role of "Phyllis Knight," and Wally Maher, who is "Michael Shayne" of the detective series, show a preference for conservative tailored costuming. Miss Lewis is wearing a tile colored wool gabardine, hand-finished stitching outlining the jacket and marking the yoke. Maher's beige suit of heavy twill and his striped tie and white handkerchief peeking from his breast pocket could make him an artist's model for an ad on "what the up-and-coming young business man is wearing."

MORE CONTRAST—WITH CHARLIE LUNG, that man of many voices, GeGe Pearson, and Bob Bruce. GeGe wears a beautiful corduroy jacket of golden tan, piped in yellow corduroy. A yellow skirt and yellow sandals make a fetching suit that would be a fitting companion piece either for Lung's sport jacket of suede with tweed sleeves and collar, or Bruce's dress suit of dark blue.

Radio Mourns Roosevelt

As it has at the time of every history-shaking event since its inception, radio, at the grievous news of President Roosevelt's death, rallied with speed and thoroughness to the job to which it is incessantly dedicated—that of serving the people.

Within minutes after the shocking statement was flashed throughout the world, radio schedules were completely revamped. Costly commercials were eliminated, at the total expense of millions of dollars to the networks. Lively variety and comedy shows were cancelled, and performers and production crews, with heavy hearts but alert minds, set to work immediately on the presentation of a completely "off-the-cuff" schedule of continuous news bulletins, commentaries, eulogies to the late President, and intervals of serious music.

It was the most complete upheaval of broadcasting schedules in the entire history of radio, and in performing it, the industry brought to a stunned world minute coverage of the most vital and tragic event of these crucial years.

Among the voices heard speaking in tribute to America's departed leader were people from all walks of life, from all over this nation and the world—men and women of industry, politics, religion, the theater, the press, military personnel and the simple man-on-the-street. Via radio, listeners heard these voices, and those who spoke also of the courageous man whose job it is to carry on in Franklin Roosevelt's place—President Harry S. Truman. Via radio, listeners heard every reverberation that resounded throughout the world as the initial shock of the news subsided, and its significance was realized. Via radio, the American people heard the mournful sound of the President's funeral train en route to his home at Hyde Park, and from there, the people heard the simple, majestic ceremony with which a great man was given his peace.

Not until the following Monday did radio resume its normal schedule as, with the rest of the allied peoples of the world, its workers went on with the task to which Franklin Roosevelt had devoted his life—the serving of mankind.

Radio — both the industry as a whole, and each of its multitude of individual workers—mourns with the nation and the world, the death of Franklin Delano Roosevelt. The late President, with his characteristic ability to make full and effective use of every power placed in his hands and his ever-predominant desire to remain close to his people, had utilized radio to its ultimate capacity during the dozen years that he served as the Chief Executive, and this modern-day medium had made it possible for him to enter the homes of Americans and their fellow citizens of the world, and become familiar to each of them as the warm, friendly, and richly human person he was.

His Story

Listeners to CBS' "This Is My Story" will remember the true-life tale of Louise Applewhite, little thirteen-year-old infantile paralysis victim who asked her mother to write to President Roosevelt for help when her home state hospitals were so overburdened with polio victims that the equipment and specialists necessary to treat her particularly severe case could not be obtained. Franklin Roosevelt responded to this humble plea with instant action, dispatching a B-17 plane and medical crew to fly the youngster to his beloved Warm Springs Foundation where, today, she is rapidly improving amid pleasant surroundings and the finest medical care.

This story was dramatized on the airplanes last January 27. Just a few weeks ago, word was received from Warm Springs that the President was expected shortly and that he would like to read a script of Louise Applewhite's story. A recording of the program was rushed to the Foundation—but the President never heard it.

NEXT WEEK

Radio Lifers will surely rejoice in the contents of our next week's issue, which will bring our readers fun in pictures of Perry Ward, who delves into ladies' handbags and brings forth all sorts of merry surprises; a revealing assemblage of photos and facts about Ralph Edwards and his famous "Truth or Consequences"; an on-the-spot description of the "Suspense" broadcast that brought Margaret O'Brien and Dame May Whitty to the microphone as co-stars; plus interesting, intimate glimpses of two more of your airplane favorites, Frank De Vol and Ozie Waters, and another page of pictures of other people seen on the radio scene.

The story of little Louise and the President was re-broadcast on the "This Is My Story" program the Saturday following Franklin Roosevelt's sudden death. John Garfield heard it was to be done, and asked to appear on the show to speak these words:

"... all over the world, the hearts of great and humble are heavy with the loss of this man. We believe his greatness is told just as eloquently in this simple story of Louise Applewhite as it is told in the story of Casablanca, Teheran, or Yalta... in this story of how a man in the White House, whose heart was burdened with great world cares, whose own body was often wracked with pain, paused in his labor to stretch out his hand to help a little child..."

Peace Conference

As thoroughly as it is performing its duties in these critical days of war, radio will continue to display its efficiency in playing whatever role it is asked in the plans for a secure and lasting peace. Its part is being initiated now as representatives of the allied nations of the world assemble in San Francisco to formulate and discuss a firm foundation on which such a peace can be constructed.

Radio has extended its every facility and sent to the Golden Gate city a crew of its most capable workers to bring to the citizens of the world complete detailed coverage of this momentous event.

Upon permission for its release, every significant item of news concerning the conference will be sent forth over the airplanes, and in addition, the four major networks have arranged for a wide presentation of special programs to inform their listeners of every phase of interest that takes place as the meeting progresses.

Among the radio men and women now in San Francisco to report their views of the United Nations Security Conference are H. V. Kaltenborn, Lowell Thomas, Robert St. John, Fleetwood Lawton, Art Baker, Sam Hayes and the Richfield Reporter for NBC; Bob Trout, Major George Fielding Elliot, William L. Shirer, Bill Henry, Harry W. Flannery, Dr. Wallace Sterling, Chet Huntley and Webley Edwards for CBS; James Abbe, Walter Winchell, Drew Pearson, Raymond Gram Swing, Baukhage, and Hedda Hopper for the Blue; Rex Miller, Upton Close, Gabriel Heatter, Royal Arch Gunnison, Fulton Lewis, jr., and Elsa Maxwell for Mutual.

Local stations will also be represented, among them, KMPC, which will present a special broadcast daily from 2:15 to 2:30 p. m. for children in school.

last week was "Where did the drinking fountain go?" One after another, thirsty actors filed out of studios, strolled up the artist's corridor, only to be bewildered by the absence of the drinking fountain that has always been there. Eventually, one by one, they got down on their hands and knees and peered under the big "Parade of Stars" bulletins the network had on display in the hallway to discover their water oasis neatly hidden behind two of the giant placards.

Co-Mayors

The San Fernando Valley, where anything happens, has done it again. Not only has it placed honorary mayors in the different towns of its colorful community, but in North Hollywood has installed co-mayors.

Citizens of North Hollywood are wondering how their new "honors," Wendell Niles and Don Prindle, who disagree on everything during their weekly Blue Network comedy show are going to carry out their campaign slogan, "A chicken in every car and a belt around every pot."

When quizzed in regard to this important question, the boys just smiled mysteriously and answered, "You'll see. Have faith, brother, have faith."

Nothing Sacred

Shortly before NBC's "Fibber McGee and Molly" went on the air last Tuesday, a lavish basket of flowers arrived at the studio with a sealed envelope addressed to the Jordans, who are celebrating the completion of their tenth year on the air as "the McGees." At the time of the basket's arrival, Marion and Jim Jordan were in their dressing rooms and their fellow performers were left alone in the studio with the flowers, the sealed card, and their curiosity.

By the time the Jordans strolled in, their curious co-workers had managed to read the name of the sender through the sealed envelope. But when Marion and Jim exclaimed, "Wonder who it's from?", everybody looked innocent amid great nudgings of elbows.

"Well, whaddayuh know," chorused "Fibber and Molly," "it's from Sid Strotz!" (Strotz is NBC vice-president).

"Well, whaddayuh know!" echoed their mischievous cast in merriment.

Turnabout

When writer Margaret Cool, of KNX decided to take a few weeks' respite from her scripting chores, she called on her better half, radio writer Gomer Cool, to take over. So, currently, Gomer is writing the program. It's name? "Through a Woman's Eyes!"

Wonderful Secret

Attractive Eve Arden, featured star of the CBS Danny Kaye show, is breathing a big sigh of relief.

Several weeks ago, Radio Life spent a delightful afternoon with the comedienne in which she informed us of her recent adoption of a baby girl.

"Please," she asked, "don't tell a soul until I am ready to release the story." We promised and we kept our word. Now we find, she has released the news and it's no longer hush-hush. "The best part," Eve happily explains, "is that I don't have to lie to anybody about the strange noises in my house any more. Oh, it's wonderful."

"Gloria" Day

It might have been called "Gloria" Day on the stage of the "Hollywood Mystery Time" airer recently when it was discovered—after considerable confusion—that every feminine cast member answered to the first name of "Gloria," which, incidentally, was also the moniker of the main girl character. In addition to Gloria Blondell, who portrays "Gloria Dean," the cast included Gloria Lloyd and Gloria Holliday. Producer Travis Wells brought order out of chaos by assigning each Gloria a different number for the duration of the broadcast. Thus, Miss Blondell became "Gloria 1," Miss Lloyd "Gloria 2" and Miss Holliday was addressed as "Gloria No. 3." The "Gloria" character in the script was referred to simply as "That Girl."

Observations

Sight-of-the-week: From our office window the other afternoon, we could see little Johnny, the Call-Boy on NBC's Ginny Simms show, attired in his "familiar red coat and brass buttons," standing on the sidewalk directing announcer Frank Graham and his miniature automobile into a two-by-four parking space on Vine Street.

Laugh-of-the-week: We thought maybe one of our witty (!) articles had little Johnny laughing last Tuesday at rehearsals of the Ginny Simms program when we spotted him chuckling over the latest issue of Radio Life, but it turned out to be this amusing coincidental listing in our logs: "Invitation to Learning" — "It Pays to be Ignorant!"

Say It and Sneeze

The jaw-breaking names of some of the Pacific islands now being invaded by the U. S. Marines are giving radio newscasters plenty of trouble. The other day when a Hollywood commentator was announcing that our boys had just landed on Ryukyu, he sneezed involuntarily just as he was about to mention the name of the island. Fellow Newscaster Jim Doyle, standing in the studio, remarked admiringly: "You know, that's the first time I've heard the name of that place pronounced correctly."

Travel Note

As soon as the summer season bids him put the padlock on NBC's "Duffy's Tavern" for the hot-weather months, Ed "Archie" Gardner intends to take off for the overseas war fronts, to entertain our fighting men abroad.

Radio Roundup
from KFI

What with the "victory garden" job now on hand for thousands of city-agriculturists, it's time for radio listeners to get the "twelve-noon" habit on KFI when the NOON FARM REPORTER presents notes and facts on the general theme of fecundity. Aside from this genial reporter's remarks directed to professional farmers which, incidentally, won't be uninteresting to you, he will help you no end with advice on the care of your garden. In real life, the NOON FARM REPORTER is thirty-one-year-old Nelson McIninch who has made quite a name for himself as both a vocalist and tennis player. He took over the tough assignment of serving as Southern California's chief link between radio and a billion and one-half dollar annual agriculture industry about two years ago. Prior to joining the KFI staff McIninch was an announcer on KSL, Salt Lake City. A frequent highlight on the NOON FARM REPORTER'S program is his presentation of a guest . . . usually an authority on some phase of agriculture who has something of real importance to say to the industry. And just in case you are curious about the city listening this program has, you should have been here one day last week when THE REPORTER told listeners that milkers were urgently needed. For one hour after the broadcast the KFI board was swamped with calls . . . not only from experienced milkers but from patriotic city folk who were ready and willing to give the job a try. * * *

When the curtain goes up on CAVALCADE of AMERICA (KFI Monday 8:30) Edward G. Robinson will be the star on a production entitled, "The Philippines Never Surrendered." Technical advice for this particular program was furnished by Major Andre Cruz and his group of 27 Filipino flying officers who had actual experience in guerrilla warfare. Robinson will play the role of Edward Kuder, an American guerrilla leader during the torturous Jap occupation.

For those who have been regular listeners to LONDON COLUMN (KFI Wednesday 11:30 p. m.), we have just received word from BBC that a special program commemorating victory in Europe on the day after its occurrence is in the offing. Included in this special Victory program will be BBC war correspondents' reports from all over Europe bringing actual events and commentaries on Europe's reactions, and the sound of Victory throughout the Continent.

DEBUT AT SEVEN

NBC commentator Fleetwood Lawton made his first public speech at the age of seven before an audience of five thousand in Buenos Aires. It was on the occasion of the visit of the Father General of the Dominican order. Fleetwood had been head of his class at the French school, and delivered his address in English with a poise that amazed his hearers. In England his fluent mastery of Latin brought many scholastic honors

NEW MASTERPIECE

The Duffy Reader finally came into its own and can now be regarded as a masterpiece of history-shaking information. Recently, Ed "Archie" Gardner, host of "Duffy's Tavern," received a request from a station in Muskogee, Oklahoma, asking that the history section of his reader be released for use to the station in a history series that was being readied. Gardner quickly granted the request upon the condition that an autographed script of the broadcast be sent him.

RECOVERED

Ray Porter, NBC war reporter who returned from Chungking suffering with dengue fever, has recovered and been assigned to the ETO. He has just arrived in Paris and was the first radio newsmen to ride a B-29 on a raid over Japan.

HELPFUL HINT

Barbara Tate, heard on the KNX's "Through A Woman's Eyes," offers this helpful hint: When ink is spilled on a cloth or garment, rub at once with lemon juice. Leave the juice on for five or ten minutes, then wash off with milk.

VERSITILITY

Charlie Lung, the man of many voices heard on the KNX "Potluck Party" took inventory the other day. He possesses 15 voices.

SONG HIT

"Confidentially Yours," the theme song on "Hollywood Spotlight," George Fisher program heard over KECA, is fast becoming a national hit. Fisher wrote the number with famed Jimmy McHugh.

FROM THE GAG BAG
Jimmy Durante was complaining, on the CBS "Moore-Durante Show" that he simply could not remember to buy a pair of gloves and his hands get so cold. "Why don't you tie a string around your finger?" asked Garry. "I've tried that—but it isn't as warm as gloves," sez the Nose.

SUCCESS STORY

Dick Aurandt, musical director of Columbia's "Billie Burke Show," and "Hedda Hopper's Hollywood," credits colleague Lud Gluskin and a San Francisco black-out for his debut in network radio. In an interview with Veree Teasdale on "CBS Open House," Dick told the story of how he was set to play in a studio band at the dedication of Station KQW in the Bay City. A few minutes before airtime, the sirens shrieked and Maestro Gluskin was trapped at his downtown hotel. Dick grabbed the baton and filled in until Lud could grope his way to the studio.

TIME OUT

Last minute fishing news, gathered from authentic sources, is a feature of Time Out, a new program over KECA at 9:45 p. m. every Friday night. The program, also broadcast on Monday and Wednesday nights at 9:45, highlights tips on sports and hobbies have roomed together for years, but not until recently did they rehearse on the same show. They both appeared on a "Danny Kaye" program.

SAME SHOW

FARM EQUIPMENT

Bill Goodwin, now in New York with the "Frank Sinatra Show," is spending considerable time shopping for farm equipment for his two ranches near Fresno, California. Goodwin plans to extend his crops this season to help produce food for wartime needs.

RAISES CHICKENS

Helen Wood is not only one of Hollywood's most attractive glamour girls. She's a lady farmer. Helen, who plays Elaine in NBC's "Those We Love," raises chickens in the back yard of her Westwood Village home.

red-headed writer assured Radio Life. "Major Powell, the owner of WRUF was wonderful to the fellows working for him. One day I got tired of waiting tables at school and pestered the Major for a job. I got it."

"We did everything," he continued, "wrote, acted, announced, and edited the news. Oh yea, we were chief floor sweeper-outers and window washers, too. Swell job—but I got fired."

His first and only time at "getting the sack" came as the result of his marriage to school chum, Barbara. "We got married on a Friday and I didn't show up for three days. Result—no job. Then to top it I didn't get a chance to see my wife for a month and a half. Those days were really hectic."

"But we had a lot of fun, too," he laughed. "WRUF was across the street from the State Agricultural Farm and we used to die when the cows would wander into the studio in the midst of our most dramatic scripts. Once I was reading a news-

His Voice Reminds Listeners of Champagne—Just Bubbling Over—Lady Luck Has Guided His Career

HOLLYWOOD'S famed Cocoanut Grove was unusually gala that night in 1931. Paul Whiteman and the Rhythm Boys were playing and singing the old favorites.

Three young high school boys and their dates sat at a ringside table. Their excitement was unbounded for the next night they were to be up there on the bandstand instead of Crosby, Rinker and Barris.

A few days before they had read the date of Whiteman's last night at the Grove. Immediately the three youngsters, who had sung together only for the fun of it, busily began rehearsals. Lady Luck was with them the day they applied for the job and they were signed for $75 a week—a big sum for boys used to school allowances.

One of these lucky young men was Jack Smith who, now as the male singer with Coloratura Patrice Munsel on "The Family Hour" and soloist on "Glamor Manor" has maintained a happy, boyish attitude which is making him one of the most popular singers of the day.

A fan best expressed Jack's singing personality when she wrote: "There's something in your voice that reminds me of champagne, just bubbling over. I always picture you smiling, happy in the joy of your song, and I just can't help but get happy myself. At our house, we actually wait all week to hear your one song" (before "Glamor Manor"), "for in these trying times, we need just the lift you give us!"

Real Devotion

The only explicable reason for his joyousness through song is the old to radio with twelve lines to speak on "One Man's Family." It was a big break for a newcomer, but Rosemary, deep in her dreams of Modern German Impressionism, figured that radio was plenty lucky to get her.

"Nevertheless, I condescended to accept the part—in my own haughty way," Rosemary smilingly reminisced. "I didn't get violently obnoxious until later."

She was brought to earth with a jolt the night she blithely ignored a call to rehearsal for the radio show because she was busy being assistant stage manager, scene decorator, truck-driver and sound effects department for a Martin Flavin play being presented at Carmel.

"I found myself," related Rosemary, "to put it plainly, fired! 'One Man's Family' went its way without me—and got along just fine!"

At that point in her career, Rosemary caught on to the fact that she was far from being the indubitable Genius of the Drama she had thought she was, and settled down to become one of the airlines' most accomplished performers, appearing regularly on the top network shows

IN COLLEGE, Rosemary De Camp was so devoted to the Dr-ah-ma that she even took it to bed with her. Addicted to talking in her sleep, she stood up in her nightgown one night and cried out passionately (much to the entertainment of her giggling roommates), "See the candles—just like good deeds in this naughty world!"

"My old college chums always remember me for things like that," recounted the attractive Miss De Camp when we cornered her for a chat after she had finished her stint as "Judy Price" at CBS' "Doctor Christian" microphone.

"They never speak in awed whispers of my thespian achievements," she remarked with a mock scowl. "I considered myself God's gift to 'The Theatah' in those days, but my pals only remember me as the campus clown. Rather than recall what a peachy performance I rendered as Clytemnestra, they like to remind me of the time my mustache came off in the middle of the 'Queen Mab' speech while I was playing Mercutio in 'Romeo and Juliet'."

The only thing which the actress' school chums will willingly give her credit for is the fact that she emerged from Mills College with an M.A. degree in speech and a B.A. degree in psychology. She locked herself in a room to keep from participating in the pranks of her mischief-making colleagues long enough to complete the required work.

Ousted From "Family"

In 1933, Rosemary De Camp came in Hollywood and New York ("Atlantic Family," "The Goldbergs," "Gangbusters," "Columbia Workshop" and "I Was There").

She teamed with Elliot Lewis on "Hollywood Playhouse," starred in the daytime dramatic serial, "The Career of Alice Blair," after Martha Scott vacated the role for a screen career. Then Miss Scott engineered Rosemary's film debut in "Cheers for Miss Bishop," which was the start of a series of "sad sack" roles assigned to the versatile young actress.

The majority of her screen roles have been "weepy" ones ("Hold Back the Dawn," "Jungle Book," "Yankee Doodle Dandy"), but in "Bowery to

▲ AS THE GUEST of Verree Teasdale on "Open House," Rosemary laughed over the early incidents in her career when she considered herself "God's gift to the theatah." In college, she appeared in Shakespearean dramas, earned M.A. and B.A. degrees, recited poetry in her sleep.

Broadway," she was given a few laugh lines and some song-and-dance routines. Uncertain of her ability to deliver them, she practiced her tap steps behind closed doors on the tile bathroom floor so that her family couldn't watch her, and rehearsed her dialogue sitting up in bed at night after everybody else had gone to sleep. She had someone else do the singing for her on the screen because, in her own words, "I can't sing any tune but those I make up out of my own head." When she hums songs around the house, her little two-year-old daughter looks distressed and pleads, "Would you not sing, Mommy!"

Favorite Topic

Rosemary De Camp is married to John Shidler, a lawyer now serving in the Army Air Corps. Their aforementioned daughter was christened Margaret Mina for her two grandmothers, but is affectionately called "Nana." She is Rosemary's favorite topic of conversation.

Miss De Camp (recently heard on "Lux Radio Theater" with Orson Welles in "A Tale of Two Cities," and currently on the screen in "Practically Yours" and "Pride of the Marines," was born in Prescott, Arizona, and spent her childhood in wild, lonely areas of Arizona and Mexico where her father operated copper mines. As a little girl, she used to read by the hour, blames this practice for her nearsightedness, but continues to read as avidly today. She can't fill up enough on good mystery stories, and especially likes the New Yorker, Life, and biographical books.

Hilarious Indefinites

THAT'S what I like about you, Benjamin, we always agree about everything!" This happy observation by Mantan, accompanied by an infectious falsetto-staccato giggle, completed Carter & Moreland's comedy sequence on Bob Burns' show for another week. For six minutes, radio's newest funsters had been exchanging patter about this and that—rarely completing a sentence and never rounding out a thought. The audience roared at this apparently novel type of humor.

Novel? Is this "Indefinite Routine" a new development in comedy technique? The fact is, it was introduced in 1918 by the famous vaudevillians Miller & Tyles. But it has not been revived in "big-time" show business until Ben Carter and Mantan Moreland brought it back recently in Universal's "Bowery to Broadway." And that really started something!

Rudy Vallee invited the boys for one guest appearance on his show and they were held over for three more. Then came an invitation from Bob Burns for one week and a hold-over for thirteen. A couple of weeks ago they were re-signed for twenty-six more and offered thirty-nine next year.

Ben Carter's moon face, fuzzy hair, dancing eyes, and teeth-showing grin are familiar to most cinemaddicts. Starting with a memorable role in "Maryland," Carter has since played many fine character parts. He is also known as the "Selznick of Central Avenue" because he functions as a successful agent for many important colored entertainers.

Mantan's early training in show business began in Southern carnivals from which he graduated as a singer and dancer into minstrel shows. In 1923 he won a contest in San Francisco as the fastest tap dancer in the world. After appearing with Bill Robinson in Lew Leslie's "Blackbirds of 1928" in New York and Europe, rotund, cigar-smoking, baldish Mantan toured in the famous musical "Shuffle Along." Then came night club appearances throughout the country and roles in all-colored pictures. His first big break in pictures came when he played the part of the first imp in "Cabin in the Sky."

Form Team

After Pearl Harbor the boys merged themselves into a team in Los Angeles for the purpose of playing camps and hospitals. They hit upon the idea of reviving the "Indefinite Routine." This inspired thought skyrocketed Carter and Moreland to prominence in the most spectacular leap to fame and big coin in radio that has been experienced by any personality since Bob Hope came out of Broadway's "Red, Hot, and Blue" and crashed into the Hollywood firmament.

Yes, when brother Mantan says "That's what I like about you, Benjamin, we always agree about everything!" a long lingo has just been completed. Nothing has been said, nothing has been settled, and even though a wide gamut of things has been suggested, we are no further than when we started. But it makes a lot of people howl!

Singer Jack Smith

one—he loves to sing. He and the other two boys sang at the Grove for nearly a year, although they were finishing up their last semesters at Hollywood High during it. It was a hard schedule to maintain—getting good grades and working till the wee hours of morning six times a week. Only genuine love of the work could have pulled the youngsters through.

After graduation Jack and his friends made for New York. Luck was still with them and through their youthful persuasion they broke big time radio via, no less, the Kate Smith program. Other top broadcasts came their way as a trio, with Jack handling the solos.

This past fall, when "The Family Hour" built its show around the charming young operatic singer Patrice, Jack was selected to join her and carry the popular musical portion of the program. Later, when "Glamor Manor" moved to New York in January, his fans' requests to "hear him more" were heeded and he was made a very valuable addition to the day-time variety show.

Other Interests

Singing is not Jack's only occupation. Two years ago he gave vent to his natural technical skills and started an extensive training course at the New York School of Aircraft Instruments. Now he is an instructor there, teaching both day and evening sessions in a regular full time job. The three times a week he is on "Glamor Manor" occur during his lunch hour (the show is broadcast at 12:00 noon, New York time). He arrives at Radio City with a sandwich in one hand, a thermos bottle in the other, and literally rehearses between bites.

Spare time—such as it is—at the Smith household, is spent by Jack and his charming wife, Vickie, remodeling antiques they have bought during excursions into the country. These trips are always on Saturday—Jack's one free day. They load their car with lengths of strong rope, old comforters and packing cases which are used to get their purchases home.

Through the years (they were married in 1936) Jack and Vickie have made their home their hobby. What looks like just an attractive bench in the front hall is really the front seat of a buggy they found gathering dust off a country lane. The lamps are not lamps at all but old coffee grinders or milk jars or butter churns. The most important thing is that every item in their home has meant pleasure to them both—and perhaps it's a newly-discovered antique, waiting for loving conversion to something unusual inside a happy home that puts joyousness into Jack Smith's songs!

More Benny Than Bernhardt

Besides her husband, there are five other men of whom Rosemary incessantly sings praises — Bing Crosby, Danny Kaye, Norman Corwin, Leo McCarey and Joseph Stalin.

The actress, five feet, two and a half inches tall with hazel eyes and dark brown hair, chooses smartly-tailored suits or pretty print frocks for dress-up occasions, always wears earrings, and dons bright-colored slack-suits (red, blues, or gold) when lounging around the house. She invariably goes to bed looking like a paratrooper, bundled up in her husband's pajamas, innumerable sweaters, wool socks and oilskin gloves to cover the cold cream on her hands.

Pill-Peddler

She confesses to chronic absent-mindedness, biting her fingernails, and peddling pills to her friends. "My pals don't mind my taking whatever cure-alls I have a whim for," laughed Rosemary, "but they protest grimly when I try to make them take the stuff, too!"

Whenever she is asked what she likes the least about herself, Rosemary De Camp frowns and answers emphatically, "My nose!" Interviewers usually describe it as "odd—but cute." Rosemary calls it "adequate."

Recently, she received a letter from an old acquaintance who had seen a newspaper article about her. "I knew it was the Rosemary De Camp I had known," the letter-writer explained, "by the way you described your nose!"

After the war, Rosemary wants to go fishing on the Minnesota lakes with her husband, then settle down in a dream-house overlooking the Pacific.

The actress has traveled widely, through England and Europe, Mexico, South America and Hawaii. Several years ago, she trekked across the European continent on a so-called "Peace Tour" with a group of her fellow collegians. "My mother keeps saying that that's why Europe is in the mess it's in today!" grinned Rosemary.

"Whatever I do," she concluded, laughing, "it seems to make me the butt of a joke. I guess I'm more of a Benny than a Bernhardt!"

cast when a sudden breeze scattered my script all over the floor. Of course, nobody would help me pick it up. You should have seen me balancing the mlke on my shoulder and crawling all over the rug on my hands and knees trying to read the right page at the right time."

Orval's first commercial job was for station WDBO in Orlando, Florida. From there he went to Dallas in 1941. "Each step was farther West," he pointed out.

He has tried his hand at everything, including sportscasting, but unfortunately his first chore was a softball game. "Before I could open my mouth three runs had been scored." He considers his most interesting broadcast the time he emceed a show from the "Lepersarium" in Carville, Louisiana.

While in Dallas, he and friend, Bert Mitchell got the idea of revolving their audience participation show around the dart board they had in their office. On a Wednesday they wrote their first script and within a week had sold it to Dr. Pepper. The best thing about the show to lanky, nimble-tongued Anderson is the constantly rising Hooper rating. "A 2.1 to 7.3 in eight months ain't hay," he kidded.

Young, thirtyish Anderson is regarded as somewhat of a wonder by his co-workers. His phenomenal success story and rapid rise aren't looked upon with jealous eyes because if there ever was anyone who deserved it—they feel it's he. He's a hard worker, possesses a never-failing sense of humor, and boasts that his cast is the proverbial "one happy family." The nicest tribute paid to him was by a colleague who said, "We have faith in Orval. We know whatever he does is right because he's doing it."

Won On Flip

His "California dream" came true when he, Barbara and five-year-old Bobbie Zoe found a home in Beverly Hills. "We got it by flipping a coin. I don't know what happened to the poor guy who lost."

Barbara (to whom he proposed four hours after their first meeting) and Orval enjoy staying home, listening to the radio, and playing gin rummy. Orval dabbles in photography, oils, golf, bowling, and billiards. "I won a trophy once—think my mother uses it as an ash tray."

Now that he's finally in California he is fired with ambition. He wants to write and produce . . . and he'd love to tackle a good mystery show. To him, supernatural stories are the piece de resistance. When he gets that far away look in his eyes, you can bet he's dreaming up more tales of blood and gore. And his favorite pastime is comparing notes on ghost stores.

But what young Anderson really wants to do is own a book store with enough money behind it so that he won't have to sell any volumes unless he likes the customers. "Then I can read up all the profits," he grins.
