I sat there glowing!

When my husband said I made pancakes better than his Mom's—I couldn't help beaming with pride. I'd never made pancakes before. But I'd heard about Fisher's Pancake Mix No. 27. I used it . . . for pancakes . . . and as a dusting flour for frying fish and chops.

Yes—I'm a Fisher fan. You will be, too, when you try . . .

Seen On The TV Scene

ARMAND LaPOINTE is achieving recognition in Hollywood as a new type of entertainer — a movie jockey. Armand introduces KLAC-TV's movies garbed in various costumes. At times, viewers have to stretch their imaginations to grasp the association between Armand's getup and the movie; but regardless it's all in fun. But it's certainly a novel way to introduce a movie, as evidenced by these three poses.

*His Zany Antics Have Made
Many People Stop and Ask*

Is Hawthorne Really Wacky?

HAWTHORNE wacky? Not on your life! He's a smart, intelligent businessman who has a product—zany comedy—to sell.

Ask anyone in Studio City about Hawthorne and you'll quickly be told that he is not only a very serious person in real life, but also a hard-working and conscientious civic leader.

Hawthorne is honorary "active" mayor of Studio City, a non-paying job he has held for three years. He takes it seriously, devoting much time and energy to civic matters. While most comedians seek complete privacy away from their job, Hawthorne prefers to be a contributing factor in Studio City's community life. As honorary mayor he has crusaded for civic projects of all sorts and has been instrumental in having the city of Los Angeles make many necessary street improvements.

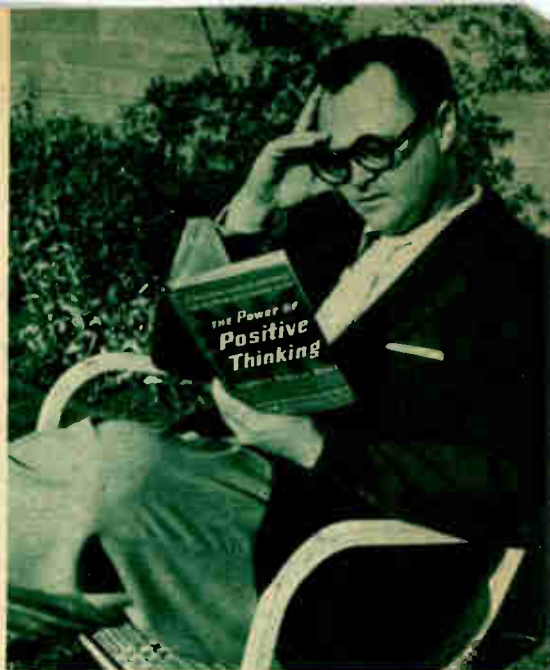

Home

At home, he is a serious-minded father and husband who feels that the upbringing of three small children is not a task to pass along to nursemaids or tutors. He is a family man who enjoys playing with the youngsters, and who earnestly is interested in their development.

His wife, Lee, shares many of her husband's interests. They both enjoy good books, light symphonies, operettas and museums. He is intensely interested in early California history and collects books on the subject. In art he prefers landscapes and seascapes, and for diversion he enjoys going to the movies and to stage plays.

The fact that he doesn't display any of his familiar, owl-eyed antics off camera or mike isn't particularly strange. This metamorphosis isn't unusual among comedians. Practically all of the top comics of show business are equally serious off-the-screen. Fred Allen is almost a morose individual in private life; Groucho Marx, Red Skelton, Jackie Gleason and Red Buttons are likewise dead pan off stage. Hawthorne sums it up this way: "Being funny is a serious business. We work at it for years, just like anybody else works at a job. We hope to improve. We learn the tricks of the trade. It becomes a serious matter with us. That's why, when we quit work and go home, we like to leave our job behind us; forget the problems and cares of making a living and enjoy being ourselves."

Hawthorne is a firm and long-time believer in positive thinking. He credits his success in show business to his attitude. "I once was a negative thinker and nothing happened to me. So I made myself become the world's most ardent advocate of positive thinking. Almost immediately everything good started to happen to me. Now it's a natural philosophy on which I base my entire life."

Pretty deep stuff for a supposedly wacky guy.

▼ THE OWL-EYED COMIC gets around. His humor is aired on KNBH, KLAC-TV, and NBC. Hawthorne owns a fabulous collection of records, and despite his zany programs he has a great love for good music.

▼ THERE ARE THREE LITTLE HAWTHORNES: Darr, age five; Dana, age three, and infant Deone. The family enjoys simple pleasures like picnics and romping on the beach. Hawthorne's wife, Lee, shares his belief in community pride and helps the honorary mayor of Studio City in his many civic projects.

JACKIE GLEASON IS ONE OF THE STARS who got his first real break on Ed Sullivan's show. His first appearance on "Toast of the Town" wasn't so successful, but his next few resulted in his being given his own CBS program. With Jackie and Ed is Marlow Lewis, co-producer.

ED TRIED FOR MONTHS TO GET MARGARET TRUMAN on his "Toast of the Town." Through Mimi Benzall, another concert singer, he was able to sign the personable Miss Truman for a telecast, her first. Ed still regards her as one of the most charming stars to appear on his show.

He Changed

Ed Sullivan Is Star-Maker par-excellence. He has introduced many stars of today on his very successful "Toast of the Town" show. Here's a guy with REAL humility.

ED SULLIVAN is not only one of TV's most astute producers, but he is also responsible for the current success of many of today's leading stars. Among his discoveries are Toni Arden, Theresa Brewer, Jackie Gleason, Wally Cox, Johnny Ray, Frankie Laine, Eddie Fisher, Faye Emerson, Rosemary Clooney, Bobby Van, Roberta Peters, Anna Maria Alberghetti, Frank Fontaine, Sam Levenson, Audrey Hepburn, Guy Mitchell, Victor Borge, and even Martin & Lewis.

"Toast of the Town" has been on TV for five years now," Ed commented during a rehearsal in New York, "and frankly I'm proud of the personalities we've introduced. We may have helped them up the ladder a little, but they had very real talent to begin with.

"Toni Arden was brought to me by her manager. No one had given her a chance at all. In fact, very few would even hear her. I gave her an audition and immediately spotted her on 'Toast of the Town.'

"On the same show that night was another newcomer, Theresa Brewer. She is now a famed recording personality. I had heard her first at a benefit on Long Island. She had a bad cold that night but I could see that she had real talent. Not long after this, I did a show at the Roxy Theatre in New York featuring all new talent. I put Toni Arden on first, and then presented Theresa. Both girls were sensational!

"As for Jackie Gleason, I had seen him perform and had thought he was the best book comic in the business, so I put him on 'Toast.' Everyone connected with the show thought he was a sensation but the audience didn't go for his monologue. Jackie felt the monologue was the wrong material to use, so later when CBS signed him, I used him again on one of the summer 'Toast' shows. He did what he wanted to do and was so great that not only did CBS find a sponsor for him but we used him on three other shows that summer.

"As for Johnny Ray, Nancy Comp-ton, a dancer who had been on our show, told me of a young singer who was playing at a club with her who was creating a riot among the teen-agers with his singing. She asked me to come see him. I heard him and thought he was quite terrific so I called his agents and casually mentioned Johnny while I was talking about other clients. The agency wanted to know where I had heard of him and I didn't go into details. He came on 'Toast' just about the time his song, 'The Little White Cloud That Cried' came out and rocked the place. The kids loved him but the parents thought we were crazy to present such a personality.

"Margaret Truman was my big coup. I had repeatedly tried to get her on the show but got nowhere. Then one day I was lunching with Mimi Benzell, opera star, who appeared on 'Toast.' Mimi said, 'Have you been trying to get Margaret Truman on the show?' I told her I first several years ago. My daughter, Betty, had seen them and liked them a lot. They were as funny then as they are now. I'm still grateful to Betty for insisting I use them on the show.

"I met Audrey Hepburn about two years ago in London. She told me she was planning to come to New York and I told her that if she did a play I'd at least give her a good notice. She finally arrived in 'Gigi'—and it was after she appeared on 'Toast' that Paramount signed her. She is now a real star.

"Frank Fontaine also got his start from our show. He was playing in Boston at the time and going no place. He was on 'Toast' four or five times and clicked from then on.

▲ ED HAS BROUGHT many of the nation's most famous sports figures into TV prominence. One of his most interesting guests was "Sugar Ray" Robinson. The fighter hasn't gone into show business but he proved he could do all right if the TV bug ever bit him.

▼ LONG BEFORE HOLLYWOOD heard of Audrey Hepburn, Ed introduced her to the country on his show. She is now Paramount's hottest bet after "Roman Holiday." It was through her appearance with Ed that she got her Paramount contract.

Their Lives

By Jack Holland

had and she said she thought Margaret was about ready to try TV and arranged for us to meet. I thought Margaret was a charming girl—and when she offered to sing I was amazed because I hadn't planned on suggesting this, even though I had wanted her to sing. I was especially impressed by the fact that Margaret asked me to make no reference to the White House connection—so I simply introduced her as Margaret Truman. Everyone loved her.

"Wally Cox was on 'Toast' three times. The first time he did a weird little song. He made his big hit on our Oscar Hammerstein biography show. This was in 1951.

"Martin & Lewis got about $125 when they appeared on our show

"In looking back over the performers who got their chance on 'Toast' I realize how much I owe to the astuteness and imagination of the West Coast showmen. The top men there used to see the talent on our show and call the talent scouts here to sign someone. You see, the men here just wouldn't waste time watching TV. They thought it wouldn't last."

Ed Sullivan will undoubtedly continue to create more new stars—just as his "Toast of the Town" will continue to be a show that can be depended upon for good taste and really great entertainment. This Sullivan man is TV's most amazing individual, at least for our money.

▲ ROGER WAGNER not only composes but he also conducts. His Roger Wagner Chorale is one of the country's most famous vocal groups. It supplies the background music heard on "I Married Joan" as well as supplying good music for other shows.

IT'S A SAD state of affairs, but it's true. Good music—the classical type—is losing popular favor so fast it may soon find no market on TV and radio at all. After all, what other conclusion can be drawn when you think how seldom the classics are heard any more—and when the 'William Tell Overture' is known simply as the 'Lone Ranger' music? What has happened to the public's desire for good music?

And so spoke Roger Wagner. This noted musician-composer knows whereof he speaks. His Roger Wagner Chorale is a regular favorite on TV, radio, and in the recording and concert field. For a long time it was synonymous with the "long hair" kind of music. But recently, to fit the demand, it has turned to the more popular field. A recording of "Impressions of Brazil" on Capitol label has, in fact, been a steady sell-out.

"However, don't think that the Chorale or I have turned our backs entirely on the classical field," Roger said. "We recently recorded a big work for Capitol records. It was the Faure 'Requiem' and we used a thirty-seven piece orchestra and thirty-three singers. We have big hopes for that.

"I think the trouble with the public's tastes in music is that the people have been radio-educated. They turned on the radio and all they heard were the popular ditties of the day. Most of the time such offerings haven't been musically worthwhile—and they certainly have shown little invention. One type of song is popular and immediately you get dozens of imitations. Take 'I Believe,' for example. There must have been about eighty attempts since then at the same kind of number.

Does the Public Want Good Music?

In which Roger Wagner, noted musician-composer, makes the startling claim that good music will soon be a lost art on TV.

By Jon Bruce

"I don't think I realized how much we have turned away from the classical music until I went to Europe with the Chorale this last summer. I saw people there plowing the fields and singing the theme from Brahms' Fourth Symphony. In London one day I was riding in a taxi with a friend. He and I were discussing a certain theme from a Prokofieff Symphony. He said it occurred in the second movement. The cab driver suddenly turned around and said, 'Oh, no, it doesn't. It's in the first movement and the melody goes like this.' He then proceeded to sing the theme.

"I'm afraid we're still an uncultured audience here. We're afraid of anything that is remotely 'long hair.' We stay away from good music in droves and go on asking for more of the same pop stuff.

"For a long time I was associated with the classical field, Roger went on, "but I soon realized, as have others, that if I wanted to make a living I would have to start doing more popular things. My group has worked in several motion pictures but it wasn't until I did some work in 'Let's Do It Again' and in 'Happy Time' that Hollywood realized I could do something beside the classical.

"There have been a few steps of late toward increasing the public's musical knowledge. Andre Kostelanetz did much to make the classics more familiar to people, and Stokowski certainly made Bach more interesting with his free-wheeling interpretations.

"You know, it's a funny thing about music. So many regard the long hair variety as a stigma, and yet all good 'pop' men have an extensive classical background."

Just as Roger has. Born in Paris, he was early put in contact with choral work since his father was a choral director. His musical career began as an organist. He then turned to composing and arranging, and seven years ago organized the Chorale. He took twenty-four singers with him to Europe at a cost of $30,000. He is the only person in the country who keeps sixteen singers under personal contract. They get their weekly salary whether they sing or not.

Most of the Chorale's TV work is done on the Joan Davis NBC show, "I Married Joan."

Roger Wagner still hopes for a re-birth of the better music, but in the meantime he confesses he has written a number called "Sing Boogie." If anybody can re-educate the public musically, however, he may very well be the person to do it.

This Week in TV

In & Out of Focus (General Comment)

Around TV Row

Gale Storm's performance at the RTRA dance last week had people talking. She presented the act she had previously introduced in Las Vegas and, believe us, this gal can sing anything from boogie to opera. Lucy and Desi did their Cuban Pete routine and Lucy's bumps and grinds practically stopped the show.

Nancy Wible, ventriloquist on the KNBH's Tex Williams show, expects her baby in January. Each telecast finds Nancy and her talking doll, Can-Sy Sugarpine, further and further away from the cameras . . . Sheriff John, Beany, Cecil and Thunderbolt are slated to help launch the Marines' 1953 "Toys for Tots" drive.

Rumors in the wind are growing stronger and stronger that Dr. Baxter's KNXT course in Shakespeare will be telecast coast-to-coast before too long.

. . . Dixie Thompson, on NBC-TV's "Glamour Girl" staff has written three Christmas songs. . . CBS-TV's newsmen from all over the world are scheduled to join Ed Murrow for his fifth annual "Years of Crisis" broadcast January 3. . . Art Linkletter is on his annual trek to New York for the Pillsbury Bakeoff at the Waldorf-Astoria. During his absence, Jack Slatery, his regular announcer, will substitute as emcee on the Houseparty show.

Tallulah Bankhead is scheduled to do heavy emoting in the starring role of "Hedda Gabler" on the U.S. Steel Hour. . . KNBH's Cleve Hermann is tabbing Friday "Fighter's Night," featuring past and present heroes of the ring. Davey Gallardo, California's featherweight champ, is Cleve's debut guest. Gallardo is scheduled to fight in Madison Square Garden the early part of January.

Repercussions of RCA's demonstration of their new magnetic recording tape (records both audio and visual simultaneously) were felt by Technicolor and Eastman. Their shares dropped 1½ and ¼ respectively the day after the Princeton, New Jersey, demonstration.

Ray Bolger (nee O'Bolger) had an unusual role in the early days of his career. The Irishman played a Chinaman in a Jewish play and talked Yiddish. We're told that Bolger talks Yiddish as well as James Cagney. . . Bolger by the way is working on a rigid schedule so he can have enough shows filmed by early June for a well deserved vacation.

Mrs. Edward Arnold makes over her husband's hats for herself. One of her remodeled chapeaux caught the eye of a millinery manufacturer who wants to copy it and put it on the market.

Our logs are loaded with Christmas shows but one program that will give children a special bang is the hour-long "Big Top" Yuletide circus extravaganza Christmas Day. Santa Claus and circus fun are a hard combination to beat. —M. R.

Unpeaceful "Patrol"

The members of "Space Patrol" usually involve themselves in some sort of struggle between the planets. This week, however, one member of the cast is having her own troubles right here on Earth, and right here in Hollywood.

Nina Bara, as "Tonga," has been a member of the "Space Patrol" gang ever since March, 1950. She is no longer with the show. According to Nina, she recently got a phone call. The voice on the other side said, "You're fired."

"Tonga" didn't like it. She didn't like being out of a job in the first place, especially with Christmas so near. And she didn't like the manner in which it was done. "Also," Nina explained, "after being in a definite 'type' role such as 'Tonga,' it makes it difficult for me to get other kinds of acting jobs."

Mike Devery, executive producer of the "Space Patrol" package, had a different version to the story.

"The role of 'Tonga' has always been just that of a bit player in our show," he explained. "Space Patrol" is a regular one-half-hour show on the ABC network. The daily show will be cancelled soon. As a part of the regular program, 'Tonga' has only appeared in about one out of every four shows. 'Tonga' was never under contract. There was nothing personal involved when we decided to drop the role of 'Tonga.'"

"I informed Nina of her dismissal in my office. That's my side of the story and you can believe whichever version you choose." Devery said. He also declared, that despite rumors, Ken Mayor as "Robby" will not be dismissed and will resume his regular role.

Nina Bara says she is going to sue "Space Patrol" for having her picture on the various bits of "Patrol" merchandise on the market. "It is hurting my career and my chances of getting other jobs," says Nina.

On this subject, Devery declared: "I am non-committal."

Maybe Mars would be a pretty good place to live after all.

Roberts Wins Support

Some sponsors do and some don't! We are referring to the comparison between Drew Pearson and Clete Roberts. Pearson lost his show when his sponsor bowed to pressure groups who were not in accord with his opinions. On the other hand the Barr Manufacturing Company, which sponsors newsman Clete Roberts, has gone on record supporting Mr. Roberts and his views regardless of the reaction from pressure groups trying to get Mr. Roberts kicked off the video screen. It's good to know there are some sponsors who withstand the pressure boys. If television resorted to a one-sided interpretation of the news we'd be in a sorry state of affairs. —M.R.

Second Glances (Critical Comment)

We Point With Pride

. . . to Ruth White's performance as "Madame Aphrodite" on the "Good-year Playhouse." Her magnificent portrayal sustained the story, which had a rather weak plot, throughout the hour-long telecast.

. . . to Lilli Palmer and Rex Harrison in their television of "The Man in Possession." The whimsical couple deftly recreated their stage roles for televisioners. Incidentally the stunning gowns Miss Palmer wore on the teleplay were made at a reputed cost of $5,000.

. . . to Helen Hayes's classic performance as "Mary Queen of Scotland" on the Arthur Godfrey show. Frankly, we were surprised to see Miss Hayes appearing on the Godfrey show; however her distinctive performance is welcome anywhere, any time and on any program.

Ear, Eye Inspire the Pen

Margaret Johnson Sands, Westwood, Village

This letter is written by twelve homemakers—who have met together every two weeks for the last ten years. Naturally television and radio is one of the subjects of conversation that we have thoroughly worked over. So to your "Ear, Eye Inspire the Pen" department we wish to state our praise as well as our criticisms.

We all watch the Peter Potter Juke Box Jury with pleasure, but wish that Beryl Davis would always wear "covered up" dresses. She is a lovely person but her bony structure is too pronounced for her dresses.

We wish there could be some continuity to Godfrey's daytime television shows. We are aware that we only receive part of his shows, but to receive part of Tuesday and Wednesday on Monday, and then to receive part of Monday's and Wednesday's show on Tuesday seems poor planning.

We feel that CBS made a mistake in using Masquerade Party as a summer replacement only. It was amusing and kept us guessing.

We feel that Al Jarvis has been trying so hard to develop a good show. This is evident in his speech and manner of presentation. It seems he changes some format every day—we wish him all success, but feel his biggest appeal was back on KLAC—maybe he can again capture some of the old appeal.

We all hope that some station will wake up to the fact that they have a duty to the children. In the last twenty years many wonderful travelogues and instructive films have been made that would be so suitable to show between the hours of 4 to 6 p.m. Some of the comedies that are shown on the children's programs are in bad taste and the double meanings are sometimes not too well hidden.

We all agree that we would like Betty White to be the girl our brothers would bring home—that the "easiest-wearing" men on TV are Art Linkletter, Bert Parks, Garry Moore, Arthur Godfrey and Perry Como. This is strange that the above males are all from CBS—but we do watch the other networks also.

As for the "I Love Lucy" show, we never miss it. Of course we just represent twelve families, but I am sure our number can be multiplied a million fold—therefore we feel that Dennis Day is bucking odds that are too big.

W. Whitham, Los Angeles, Calif.

I am surprised at the numerous attempts to discredit "Cheeta," on "Western Varieties." It seems that some people do not have as good sense of values as a chimpanzee.

"Cheeta" is interested in her job, is keen, and lovable. She is still young and gay, seemingly a little rough at times, but she is taught to do those tricks to amuse her admirers. I've seen neighbors' children who did not mind half as well as "Cheeta" and who were more destructive. She has curiosity and a desire to learn.

I love dogs and have enjoyed "Cheeta's" dance with the dog. When doggie gets tired she even carries him off the stage, and the way she rocked the puppy shows what a fine little lady she is.

I am sure there are far more people who admire her and think her a great addition to the show than her critics. You will never miss the few who don't want to listen. Let them watch wrestling or murder mysteries if they think "Cheeta" is too rough. Although I'm a spry business woman, I am in truth an elderly old maid. I suppose I should be dead or critical, but I thoroughly enjoy the whole show and especially "Cheeta." It is refreshing at the end of a busy week.

As a fan of the Late Show, your article on Bob Longnecker (a most unusual personality) was much enjoyed. After the Late Show, then comes bed and Radio—KFI, Ben Hunter and his associate, OTHER SIDE OF THE DAY, 1 a.m. till 5:30 a.m. I consider Ben Hunter a "budding" Steve Allen and fear the West Coast will also lose him to the East (and greater potentialities) when someone recognizes his most unusual and diversified talents. Any one who can keep his audience for four and a half hours, almost making one fight sleep for fear of missing something outstandingly interesting, has that "spark" for which there is no adequate description.

I am not only a subscriber to TV-Radio Life but have given (as gifts) many of your trial subscriptions, which I think a WONDERFUL way to interest new readers. I also subscribed to FRAUDS, which also is most interesting.

Mrs. H. B. Leo, Anaheim

... We think "Amos 'n' Andy" are priceless. The casting is just perfect. Red Skelton's new show is a big improvement over his old one. Danny Thomas's return to TV is more than good news, and his show is so good. One more thing — our entire family appreciate KTTV's putting "Beany" and his gang back on at 6:30.

Anna Ranco, Los Angeles

We think Jim Brown on the "Dude Martin Show" is the most handsome guy on TV to come along in a good long time.

FANS FORMAT

Cleve Hermann makes a practice of talking sports with everybody from NBC page boys to people on the street. He asks what they would like to know about sports and what they would ask any one athlete during an interview. Then Cleve patterns his telecasts along the lines of the information he has gathered.

ERN WESTMORE

Monday-Friday, 1:30 p.m.
ABC-TV (KECA-TV)

Ern Westmore, Hollywood's famous beauty consultant, has entered daytime television with a show that is sure to catch a segment of the housewives.

The beauty exponent capitalizes on his many years of experience in the glamour capital and disperses his knowledge in standardized fashion. Westmore may know his business, but he is not a showman or an emcee. He overworks the words "honey," "dear," and "wonderful" to a ridiculous degree.

He divides the show in three parts, first bringing on the woman selected the day before, who's been done over. Then he strolls through the audience, selecting at random an unsuspecting subject. Without further ado he conducts an on-the-spot and, incidentally unsolicited, beauty clinic. Many of these "captive subjects" seem visibly embarrassed by Mr. Westmore. Finally he interviews two candidates who are vying for the beauty treatment. After listening to their "sob stories" the audience picks the winner.

Assisting Westmore is his wife Betty, who presents the gifts to the various ladies participating on the show, and Dick Hyde, who sings and handles the announcing chores.

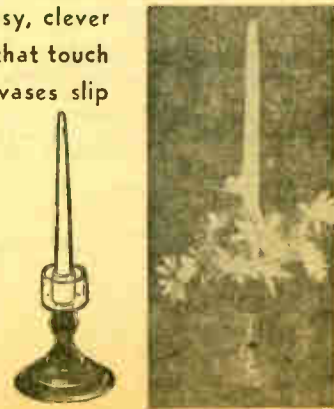

Westmore calls his show "the original Hollywood glamour program"; regardless of his tag, he had better give his stanza a glamour hypo. No amount of hard looking makes it entertaining and the beauty hints expounded are not enough, in our opinion, to sustain the program.—M.R.

SMART HOSTESSES are discovering this easy, clever way to combine flowers with candlelight for that touch of extra beauty! These clear lucite candle vases slip down to the base of any candle; then fill the circular vases with water, and add flowers of your choice.

Ear, Eye Inspire

Mrs. Anna M. Patterson, North Hollywood
Thanks a lot to Jack Holland for letting us in on the Godfrey-La Rosa deal. I can't see why Godfrey is so good that he can tell his people how to live. I commend Julius for the spunk he has in letting him know that the kids have a mind of their own. I wonder does Art think that he is boosting his popularity by the thing he has done. I, for one, have turned my back on him, and I have heard several others say the same thing. I am glad that Julius has a spot on radio and I look forward to those three ten minute periods of real enjoyment. I do hope that he won't be too long in getting TV so that we can have some more real enjoyment.

Roger Green, Escondido

I am only fourteen and I don't think that "disgusting ape" on "Western Varieties" is unfunny. I think the chimp is cute.

Mrs. E. P. Dickinson, Los Angeles

It seems unlikely to me how "Bos-ton Blackie" on his show recently could possibly have been pushed over the edge of a quarry, fall half-way down, dangle from a limb of a tree, and still land with his hat square on his head!

No imagination?

San Diego DIAL DATA

By Maurine Skinner

San Diego (Special) — Santa Claus will greet boys and girls on the Smokey Rogers Show every afternoon beginning Monday, December 14, and continuing through December 24. Parents are invited to bring their children to Channel 8 to visit Smokey and also see Santa Claus. There is no admission charge, but each adult is asked to bring an item of food or clothing for the collection for needy families. Contributions will be welcomed regardless of how small. The food item must be a staple rather than something perishable, or if the gift is clothing it should be in good usable condition.

Again this year on Christmas Eve Channel 8 will televise Christmas Midnight Mass from St. Joseph's Cathedral here in San Diego. The telecast will start at 11:30 p.m., December 24 and carry through to approximately 2:00 a.m. The Christmas Festival Hour of Music to be presented Christmas Day at 2:00 p.m. will be devoted to an original operetta based on Christopher Morley's Yuletide fairy tale, "The Tree That Didn't Get Trimmed." On Sunday, December 20, at 6:30 p.m., Chevron Theatre presents its Christmas program, "The Dancing Tree." It's a heart-warming tale of a modern Christmas, which reflects all the spirit and tenderness of the holiday season. Young Tommy Rettig stars as Joe, whose main desire this Christmas is to surprise his hard-working mother with an extra-special gift.

PICK of the PIX

by Aubrey Dahl

In answer to thousands of requests from Christmas gift shoppers all over the country, my sock size is 11, shirt size, 15-34, I wear knit ties, spats, drink sarsaparilla, play parchesi, am crazy for Kold Kist Frozen Foods (adv.), read indelicate literature, and believe that Christmas is for the kiddies. Now, where the hell's my space suit?

"The Titan." (2) Dec. 21, 11:15. This is a television first, as far as I know, and quite a first it is, too. It is a documentary film relating the life of Michelangelo in terms of his works of art, the camera prowling and nosing through the Sistine Chapel, St. Peter's in Rome, roving 'round his great sculptures, the "David," "Night," and "Day," and altogether giving a more interesting and lucid account of the master's development and maturity than if live actors had been used in a dramatization. The excellent narration is spoken by Frederic March, another reason to watch this engrossing, graphic study of the life and time of the greatest religious artist and one of the most remarkable men in history.

"Rocket Ship X-M." (5) Dec. 19, 9:00. A group of scientists, among them Lloyd Bridges, John Emery and Osa Massen, set out for the moon in a space ship and treat us to a fairly authentic version of the rigors and travails such a trip would entail. They float off into space, duck passing meteors, and finally, on the moon, encounter a race of people completely ravaged by the glories of atomic warfare. The picture thus has a message, and I'm all in favor of messages . . . especially if they say something.

"Lost Continent." (5) Dec. 25, 10:00. Here is another science-fiction "Thriller." Cesar Romero, John Hoyt, Hugh Beaumont, and a couple of others explore an uncharted island in search of a rocket and run into prehistoric monsters, earthquakes, uranium fields which turn everything green (still black and white on your set, and in this case just as well), finally winding up in a boat gently awash as the island blows up. At this point, Hoyt observes that he hopes the world doesn't also blow itself up, and I couldn't help agreeing with him.

"The Long Voyage Home." (13) Dec. 20, 3:30. Still one of the best films to be seen on TV, this is a filmization of a group of one act plays about the sea by the potent American playwright, the late Eugene O'Neill. A John Ford production with John Wayne and Thomas Mitchell.

"The Quiet Woman." (2) Dec. 19. 12:00 noon. Shhh . . . don't make a sound.

TV-RADIO Lifelines

BY EVELYN BIGSBY

EVERY NOW AND THEN YOU STUMBLE across a Los Angeles success story, and, less frequently, across one involving the success of a woman (or women) in business. The other noon I had the happy assignment of lunching with three gals who have made the grade and rate a hefty mention.

THESE SUCCESSFUL WOMEN are Gwen and Lorraine, familiar to viewers as the "Pink Ice" girls, and radio's "Lonesome Gal" who last week cancelled her program on forty-two radio stations across the continent to go exclusively with the "Pink Ice" girls. From here on out, L.G. will do the radio plugging for this fabulously successful cosmetic, while Gwen and Lorraine will do the TV pitches. "Lonesome's" husband will direct and produce the stunts.

"PINK ICE," ACCORDING to its partners, Gwen and Lorraine, will do about half a million dollars' business this year in contrast to 1952, when the wholesale gross was $1000. This certainly establishes "Pink Ice" as a success.

GWEN AND HER MOTHER HAVE struggled with their brainchild since the mid-30's. Gwen, who was in the movies and worked alongside Lucille Ball as a Goldwyn girl, got lead poisoning from the makeup. Her mother, who was in the business of making and selling small cosmetics, concocted a soothing beautifier for her daughter's use, and results were so spectacular that Mrs. Seager was practically forced into making up little containers of her product for Gwen's chums at the studio. Word-of-mouth advertising was responsible for the early success of "Pink Ice." However, the enterprise went through two serious flops and as recently as 1949 Gwen and her mother were forced to sell their business for $10,000. Mrs. Seager, however, retained the rights to the name and formula.

THINGS WERE SO BAD THAT Gwen set out to get a job somewhere else. She ran into Lorraine, whose fortunes had taken a similar dip when her thriving dance studio had been forced to close during the war. The two gals hit it off instantly and in one inspired moment, casting about for something they could make a success of together, decided to try "Pink Ice" as a joint business.

LORRAYNE FLEW TO NEW YORK to borrow money and came back with $2,000 earmarked for promotion. On the day the girls were supposed to start their big sales drive, Lorraine's father died and $600 of the $2000 went for funeral expenses. After deducting trip expenses, the girls started their promotion on KTTV with about $1,200.

IT WAS SLOW CUTTING "THE ICE" but eventually sales started to pick up. Early this spring, Gwen and Lorraine knew they were "in business." Orders started running into hundreds, and then thousands. They themselves were making as many as thirty TV appearances weekly.

Gwen and Lorraine, familiar to viewers

THE GIRLS WERE PUSHED TO CAPACITY, filling all the orders themselves, then lugging the boxes to the post office. Some days they would sit with their hair in curlers and "Pink Ice" daubed over their faces preparatory to going on television to plug "Pink Ice," meanwhile filling cartons and sealing them for shipping. This was strictly a mail order operation. The money rolled in so fast they could scarcely take care of the orders, let alone deposit the bills. Said Gwen, "I remember that one time I had over $6,000 in cash under my bed. I was just too busy to go to the bank and deposit it." They hired a girl to help them with business details and a young man to help Mrs. Seager with the packing.

IN JUNE THIS YEAR, their wholesale sales were $20,000; in July they climbed to $30,000; in August they were $40,000; in September they had $98,000. Stores which now stocked "Pink Ice," couldn't keep the product on their shelves, the demand was so brisk. Gwen and Lorraine flew to San Francisco and arranged to outlet the product there. Right now sales have leveled off, Los Angeles at about $60,000 a month, with San Francisco running neck and neck. Early next year the girls expect to go to New York to arrange for national distribution of the product. Their enterprise, which consists of six separate companies, now employs about twenty persons. They "farm out" the manufacture of their cosmetic; their own bonded chemist, however, taking charge of the formula.

THOUGH "LONSOME GAL" had been on the air for several years, and only recently unmasked and revealed her identity, it wasn't until a matter of weeks ago that Gwen knew that this personality was no other than her long-time friend, Jean Kling, who also used to work in the movies. The contract Jean has signed to broadcast exclusively for the "Pink Ice" girls is a long term and exclusive one. Jean is thoroughly enthusiastic about her new undertaking. In fact, Jean is so enthusiastic she has taken to wearing pink sweaters and is painting all of her garden furniture pink. "It's my favorite color, anyway," she told me.

HOLLAND'S TUNNEL

DUG BY JACK HOLLAND

There seems to have been some divergence of opinion on the merits or demerits of Jack Benny's appearance on "Omnibus" a few weeks ago. If you saw it, you will remember that the master comedian did a version of his much-maligned and kidded movie, "The Horn Blows at Midnight." As far as this columnist is concerned, it was far and away Benny's best effort. He did a notable acting job in a script that was a standout. What impressed me was Jack's adroit handling of the more serious moments in the show—all of which proved that he is much more than just a comedian. As for the script itself, it was something to note the deep spiritual values that made it something above the ordinary. Maybe the writer didn't know he was giving a spiritual meaning to the story but it was there—and refreshingly so. Everyone concerned with this show deserves a big bow. "Omnibus," already a fine adult show, took another giant step ahead.

Talked to Barbara Stanwyck recently. She thinks Jack Benny is the master showman of them all—and she doesn't seem to be far wrong. She made one TV appearance with Jack in a take-off on "Gaslight" and has done a repeat of the same show with him. She said she would work with Jack any time because he knows how to treat guests but that she was not in the least interested in doing TV on any regular basis. "It's just too much work," she commented.

As for the second version of "Gaslight," it has been sitting in the archives pending a court action brought against Benny and company by MGM. Seems that the studio doesn't like a TV satire of its movie version of "Gaslight." Can't see the logic here. Why was the first telecast permitted then? And wouldn't a second show give a lot of good publicity to the movie in case it was ever re-released?

It's not new but it's still depressing—this business of seeing TV stars giving commercials at the end of their shows. So many people resent this that it's hard to see how plugs by the stars could help sales. It's more than ridiculous to see people like Jack Webb and Ray Bolger and Danny Thomas spout out the merits of the products after playing such specialized characters in the show. This is completely without dignity. And there should be an end to it!

A big bow to Lucy, Desi, Gale Storm, and Charles Farrell for giving that big party last week at the Paladium for all those who made pledges to RTRA. The organization, serving many charitable groups, was overwhelmed at the action of these four stars. As were the several thousand who attended. From us at TV-Radio Life, a big, big thank you and a heartfelt cheer to these stars.

Odds and Ends: Last week we said we didn't get KECA's Bill Davidson's message on his afternoon show. Seems that most of the ladies not only get it but love it, so guess we're the only one out in left field. . . . John Clair has not been getting the credit he deserves for his directional job on "Life With Father." So here's a salaam to him. . . . Claude Gordon, who has been with CBS and with Lud Gluskin for some years, has formed his own band and will hit the road with it. His recording of "Carnival in Venice" is already a big-size hit.

Radio Ramblings

The Don Lee Broadcasting System celebrated its twenty-fifth year in the broadcasting business. . . . Walter Scharf has resigned as musical director of the Phil Harris-Alice Faye program in order to concentrate on motion pictures. Currently, he is musical director on the Martin and Lewis picture, "Living It Up."

Two radio favorites are back on the airlines: Art Baker's Notebook returns to KFI and The Mickey Katz Show is logged on KECA. . . . Paul Hesse, Solly Bianco and Perc Westmore are the judges who will select the "Cinderella Queen" on KHJ's "Queen For A Day" program. The "Cinderella Queen" is slated to ride on a lavish float in this year's colorful Rose Bowl Parade.

NBC's Christmas Festival broadcast December 19 highlights "Symphony for Christmas," "Christmas in Holland," Handel's "Messiah," "Peace on Earth," a documentary about United Nations activity, and "Christmas Fills the Air." NBC will also carry midnight mass from St. Patrick's Cathedral Christmas Eve.

Tom Harmon winds up his 1953 "Pigskin Predictions" with a review of the football season on his December 30 broadcast. Ed Murrow's radio newscasts will emanate from Korea and Japan during Christmas week.

Frank DeVol has a collection of all the music he has written on 16-inch platters and figures that the whole collection could be heard if you played the records twenty-four hours a day for one full week.

Morgan Beatty narrates NBC's annual "Voices and Events," a documentary report on the major news events of 1953 December 27. . . . Parents can learn what subjects besides the "Three R's" are being covered in the city's schools by listening to KECA's new program, "Know Your School." Moderator of the series is Adele Ullman, Editor of Public Information for the school board.

Edgar Bergen is on the verge of switching to a full-hour format with Kraft picking up the tab. . . . Ralph Storey vacations for three weeks. Mel Baldwin will fill a portion of his early KNX airer, and Harry Babbitt will sub on "Ralph Storey's Backyard Fence" stanza. . . . NBC's Willard Waterman and his family believe in the old-fashioned kind of Christmas. The Watermans are making their own decorations including popcorn balls and cranberries strung end-to-end. . . . Dinah Shore is taping her NBC airer ahead so she can hop to New York for a colorcast of her TV program.

Jimmy Stewart's "Six Shooter" stanza is presenting a western version of Dickens' classic "Christmas Carols." Imagine Scrooge with a western drawl! —M. R.

Playbacks (Critical Comment)

We Point With Pride

. . . To announcer Ralph Portner for his original, sometimes corny but always cute introductions to the musical selections of Lawrence Welk's orchestra over KECA. "Champagne Music" with Portner as a chaser always provides pleasurable and relaxing moments on the airwaves.

Record Notes to You

By ANDY MANSFIELD
(KFI, Monday through Friday, 8:45 a.m.)

Did somebody say, "Let's give albums of records this Christmas"? With the variety that is offered in new items alone, there's bound to be something to please the most avid record fan. From the film sound tracks, there's MGM's "Kiss Me Kate" with its fine Cole Porter score sung by Kathryn Grayson, Howard Keel and Ann Miller. On Capitol, Mister Banjo Eyes himself sings fifteen oldies he made famous from "The Eddie Cantor Story." Mercury steps out with five songs and two dramatic sequences from the sound track of "Miss Sadie Thompson," starring Rita Hayworth and Jose Ferrer, and nothing but terrific (especially after you've seen the picture).

In the classics field, there's a lovely MGM album by Menahem Pressler playing the most melodic of all Debussy compositions in excellent interpretations at the piano. Also on the same label, pianist Fabienne Jacquinot gives a magnificent reading of "Concerto No. 5" by Saint-Saens, and D'Indy's "Symphony on a French Mountain Air."

There's a continental touch to a new Decca album by Bing Crosby simply called "Le Bing"—but here are eight popular song hits of Paris sung in French like a native and the most charming you ever heard.

For dance music, Columbia presents the sophisticated swing of Les Elgart, and what a band! Progressive enough to be interesting, yet melodic enough to listen to, and with a beat that can't be denied for dancing. . . . New Orleans jazz? Decca has a jazz concert album recorded in that birthplace of Americana, that features the bands of veteran George Lewis and the younger generation's Freddie Kohlman with that deep South flavor.

In the pop vocal field each label has featured its singers in album collections that are tops; MGM has a great one by Billy Eckstine singing intimate songs with a small combo, and a new Joni James collection that'll win friends and influence people. New albums by Columbia's Helen Ward and Lee Wiley will be welcome in many a library this Christmas.

Yes, for the record fan who has everything—or nothing—you won't go wrong with any of the above items. Meanwhile, that you have a record Christmas in all three speeds is the wish of . . . A.M.

On the Ball

With Ted Hilgenstuhler

JIM HEALEY

There are two types of sports fans in Southern California. Kelley haters. And Kelley lovers. Naturally I'm referring to Bob Kelley, the Angel, Ram, and regular KMPC sports announcer.

Actually though, Kelley only deserves half of the ridicule or raves. The other half belongs to his partner in crime and criticism, Jim Healey.

Many people know of Jim Healey, but few know about him. Or how he got hooked up with Ole Kel. Or exactly what his relationship is with battling Bob.

Except for the first six years of his life in Spokane, Washington, Jim is strictly a local product. Attended Beverly Hills high school. Then to UCLA, where he really got interested in the brawny boys as Sports Editor of THE DAILY BRUIN. Next stop was the HOLLYWOOD CITIZEN-NEWS, where he pounded out sports copy for two years.

Although Jim had run into Kelley on various assignments, it wasn't until a Christmas Eve party in 1942 that the Jekyll-and-Hyde of L. A.'s sporting world finally got together. Ole Kel was having a ball. Really enjoying himself. Suddenly he realized it was time to get to the KMPC studios and write his regular show. Half-kiddingly, half-seriously, he turned to Jim:

"Healey, ole man, why don't you display the true Christmas spirit and write my sports program for me tonight?"

"Okay, I will," Jim replied. (For three years, 1946 to 1949, Healey had helped Dick Furcell at KFVB with his program, so he knew how to handle a radio script.)

"You're not kidding, are you?" Kel asked.

Jim wasn't. He was off to the studio, wrote the show, and had it ready when Kelley came in. Impressed with Jim's work, two months later Ole Kel made it legal. He hired Jim as his regular writer.

Probably the most amazing fact about the Healey-Kelley combo (and they have four years working together to prove it) is that they agree on practically every controversial topic that comes up. In sports, even more than matrimony, this is unbelievable.

Of course there have been a few exceptions. While writing copy on the eve of the Billy Graham-Art Aragon battle, Jim honestly thought that Graham would win. But it would have been bad policy for Ole Kel to turn his back on "his boy," the Golden

Wrestling Is My Business

By Jules Strongbow

What happens to wrestlers when they quit wrestling? How do the fellows who have lived well by their brawn get along when, for reasons of their own, they no longer work by strength alone? This question is continually popping up from wrestling fans who ask about former favorites and their whereabouts. Wrestlers are known to be among the most intelligent of the professional athletes, and the methods by which they earn a living when they retire are as diversified as their personalities.

Probably the best known of the ex-wrestlers is Herman Hickman, former Yale football mentor, and more recently a television personality and writer. Herman has done very well for himself since he left the grappling fraternity.

An unusual occupation was chosen by Paul Jones, known during his wrestling days as the "figure four scissor king," who went into the florist business and made a very profitable venture of it.

Former world's champions have done all right for themselves in other fields. The Golden Greek, Jim Londos, has made more money in real estate and oil investments than he ever realized out of his wrestling career although he was one of the top money-earners.

Ed "Strangler" Lewis, five times world's heavyweight champion, has a health equipment manufacturing company which sells to such department stores as Marshall Fields in Chicago and Macy's in New York.

Ed Don George, both amateur and professional heavyweight champion, made a name for himself in the stock market. He is never without the Wall Street Journal tucked under his arm.

Former Olympic champion and a successful professional champion, Perry Marter, is one of the largest owners and operators of heavy duty road construction equipment. The Alaskan Highway is one of his many achievements.

Wee Willie Davis is a mink rancher. He not only had a large mink farm

Boy, so when the final script was turned in, Aragon was picked as the winner. (He lost.)

This past week, after Ole Kel had finished reading on the air some of Healey's hot copy on whether or not Jess Hill should remain as USC's grid coach, the KMPC staff announcer finished the program in the usual manner:

"The opinions expressed on this program are not necessarily those of the station or the sponsor."

"Or of Bob Kelley, either," Ole Kel yelled within the studio walls. He and Healey laughed, slapped each other on the back, and left the studio looking for the nearest Coca-Cola stand.

but even bypassed the middle man and had the skins made up into coats. Remember Dr. "Dropkick" Murphy? He is now owner of a large psychiatric treatment sanitarium just outside of Boston.

Another doctor, Dr. Freddy Meyers, found that he could do better in government surplus and junk than he could yanking teeth. He has a business in Glendale.

Prince Mahalakais, well remembered favorite, is an inventor, designer and manufacturer of a lot of the modern gadgets that are found on your new cars.

Some fans think that refereeing is a full time occupation. Many of the officials wrestled at one time or another but most of them have interesting jobs and only referee to keep a hand in their favorite sport. Tiny Roebuck, all time favorite, gave up the ring to preach and minister to the Indians in Arizona.

Mike Ruby owned a string of delicatessen stores in the East before coming to California to operate a successful wholesale and retail tire business. Did you know that Mike used to wrestle?

Gregory "Pappy" Boyington, World War II Marine ace, is a top salesman for a local Brewery. Used to wrestle too.

Baron Benny Ginsburg invented and sold the rights on the first automobile lube rack. The modern hydraulic hoist which you see used today is an outgrowth of Ginsburg's design.

Wrestlers don't wait until they retire to go into other businesses. Lou Thesz has accumulated quite a bit of property along the Sunset Strip. Danny McShain has a large apartment house in Santa Monica. Baron Michele Leone converted an old castle into a modern apartment house, and Wild Red Berry has dipped his finger in politics clear up to the elbow.

If there are any of your favorites that you would like to learn about, let me hear from you.

Wild Red Berry informs me that free copies of two of his most-widely read poems—"I Refuse to be Beaten," and "Wrestling With Trouble"—are now available, along with a picture of Wild Red himself. For copies write to Wild Red Berry, Hollywood Legion Stadium, Hollywood 28, Calif.

HOW SINCE the '50s, boxers swooned for Sinatra has any entertainer been taken to the hearts of teen-agers as has CBS-TV's new comedy discovery, Red Buttons.

While Red appeals to all ages, there can be no question that it is the teen-agers who have contributed a great deal to his success. It is the teen-agers who have picked up such expressions as "ho, ho—he he!", "You I Like," "I'll give you the horns," and "Strange Things Are Happening," and made them everyday expressions.

Part of Red's appeal to the teen-agers is that he looks like one of them. His closely-cropped hair, his youthful expression and his ever ready grin belie his thirty-four years. Red evokes an immediate response from his audience and he is the only comedian who does a "quiet-down" instead of a "warm-up" for the studio audience just before his Monday night CBS-TV show. Red's overly enthusiastic audience likes to join right in and show him they know all of his expressions. Last year Red's studio audience, always well filled with teen-agers, would get a little out of hand and Red found they tended to spoil his timing and interfere with the show generally to the detriment of his vast unseen audience. Consequently, Red finds it advisable to spend the warm-up period explaining to his audience that while he wants them to enjoy themselves, he'd appreciate it if they wouldn't talk to him while the show is on the air.

Red's mail bears evidence of the esteem in which teen-agers hold him. Here are a few quotes from some recent letters: A teen-ager in Stamford, Conn., writes: "I am one of you — and never miss a program. In school all the children are saying 'horns to you' so I know they watch your program too."

Another young viewer from Ohio writes him: "I am fourteen years old and watch your show every night. I think you are the greatest. Every Tuesday morning while walking to school you hear, 'Did you see Red Buttons last night?', and then we all start singing the Ho-Ho Song."

From Brooklyn comes the following: "I have been a great fan of yours since your first television show. A great many of the girls in my class belong to your fan club."

A teen-ager from Rochester writes: "I sing the Ho-Ho Song so much all my friends are calling me 'The Ho-Ho Girl!'"

And a young lady in Hollywood writes Red: "I am so happy to see you back on television. Your show is really tops. It seems that everyone out here loves your show and I wish it originated from Hollywood."

Two of the characters that Red's teen-age fans seem to like best are "Mugsy Buttons" and the "Kupke Kid." Mugsy is a young man who is forever deflating his elders, especially those who represent authority in the person of a judge, a policeman or a truant officer. No matter how much they push him around, Mugsy always seems to get the best of them.

The Kupke Kid, on the other hand, is a naive, hard-working youngster who gets pushed around and gets into scrapes because he is at the right place at the wrong time.

Perhaps there is a little bit of "Mugsy" and the "Kupke Kid" in every teen-ager and that's why they find these two characters especially endearing.

WARREN HULL, personable emcee of "Strike It Rich," debates the issue of whether or not TV is taking unfair advantage of human troubles on some shows. And he has plenty of ammunition for facts.

Is There Too Much Sob Stuff on TV?

Are TV and radio programs emphasizing human troubles too much? Are they pouring out the emotional problems without thought for persons involved? Warren Hull of "Strike It Rich" gives his views on this much-debated matter.

MORE AND MORE programs have been hitting the channels and radio lanes putting great stress on the sufferings and troubles of people throughout the country. It's taken on the aspects of an emotional whinging.

It's probably true that such programs do some good—if they are handled in good taste. But what about those who present such offerings without any semblance of dignity or consideration for the people involved?

One TV and radio show that specializes in the problems of the ordinary person is CBS's "Strike It Rich." It deals strictly in sentiment—but with a difference. And it was to learn how this program feels about sob stuff that Warren Hull, the capable emcee, was contacted for some blunt and honest opinions.

"I'm a bit prejudiced about this subject," Warren commented before going into the studio for his New York show. "We don't devote our whole time to sob stuff. Instead, we try to be constructive. In fact, we go to great lengths to keep our show from becoming maudlin. Sure people do break down on occasion but we always try to cheer them up. However, they don't come to us as a rule until they have no place else to turn. In most cases, there are no agencies in their home towns where they can get the needed help. And we're proud that we've been able to help—honestly—so many people.

"There was one girl who lived in the hills in Kentucky. She wanted to study as a doctor so she could be of assistance to her people, but she didn't have the money for such training. Through 'Strike It Rich' she was able to start her career, and is now in Kentucky giving aid to those who were never able to afford a doctor before.

"When it comes right down to it, the sob stuff comes more from the viewers than from those on the show. I'll never forget the reaction from our audience to the case of a little boy who had an incurable disease and only had a few months to live. We didn't mention once that the boy wouldn't live long. He was such a cheerful little guy and this impressed everyone. He was asked a certain question and gave the wrong answer. He was so upset about the mistake he started to cry, but since his parents knew the right answer we didn't count his a miss.

"If we had wanted to stress the boy's suffering we could have played up his illness, but we did all we could to make him happy instead. We try to make people happy when they're on our show.

"We have had some on the show who tried to play up their troubles, but we have found audiences resent this. Those with a basic dignity get much more response than those who feel sorry for themselves.

"There was one seventy-eight year old prospector from California who needed to have cataracts removed from his eyes. He won the necessary money and had the operation. I saw him later and he said, 'You'll never know what this means to me.' That, incidentally, is a remark we hear more than anything else—and it does make us feel as though we're doing a worthwhile job.

"The prospector never for a moment felt sorry for himself. He had real courage—and as a result everyone was pulling for him.

"Everyone on the show is anxious to help the people who appear—even the crew. This is a wonderful thing because if all of us didn't honestly believe in the good we try to do we would certainly get bored with the whole deal.

"Naturally, hearing of such troubles does affect all of us on the show. Often I go home at night very depressed. And the only thing that keeps the spirits up is remembering that in our own little way we are being of service to the needy. Also—when you hear of what others go through, it reminds you to count your own blessings.

"Too much sob stuff on TV? Only if a show is just out to get the sobs and only if it completely takes away a person's own basic right to dignity."

It's too bad there aren't more people like Warren Hull conducting certain programs on TV.

ONE OF THE FEATURES on "Strike It Rich" is "The Helping Hand," in which a famous personality answers questions for a contestant in need of help. Benay Venuta is the willing helping hand in this scene.

Stalwart Jon Hall, Hero Of Many Adventure Movies, Takes Video In His Stride And Says:

"TV's A Natural"

By Mildred Ross

RAMAR of the Jungle" is a natural for Jon Hall. The handsome actor has been associated with the great outdoors ever since childhood.

He was raised on the beautiful South Sea Island of Tahiti, where he learned to swim almost as soon as he learned to walk. As a matter of fact his skill in aquatic sports, developed during his boyhood in Tahiti, won him his first movie role in "Hurricane" which incidently was written by his uncle, James Norman Hall, in collaboration with Charles Nordhoff.

Subsequently, most of Hall's films were outdoor sagas. Even the lush jungle surroundings on the "Ramar" set remind Jon of Tahiti. It also reminds him of Florida where he owns citrus and avocado groves.

It is quite understandable, therefore, that when Jon contemplated television he wanted a series with an outdoor flavor. He left Columbia pictures, where he was under contract, and gambled on "Ramar." It was a gamble that paid off, inasmuch as the popular series is seen in almost 100 markets.

Actually "Ramar" is a Western played in the jungles. Jon, on the side of law and order, always wins out. The series, however, has been educational for both its star and its viewers. Jon claims his knowledge about jungle life has increased ten-fold since starring in the series. Even the characteristics of the various tribes in Africa form familiar patterns for the TV-adventurer. Through the medium of TV film, Jon Hall has become the modern Martin Johnson.

"Ramar" also sharpens Jon's memory processes. The studio shoots three scripts in six days, and that takes a heap of memorizing. There's no time for idiot sheets on this busy schedule. John explains that it's a matter both of learning and forgetting as quickly as possible.

Whenever Jon makes public appearances the small fry flood him with questions about the jungles, and he is becoming quite an authority on the subject. There was one sharp moppet who baited Jon with an impudent, "How come you showed tigers in your show last week and there aren't any tigers in Africa?" With a sigh of relief, Jon informed the youngster that he had undoubtedly missed the first part of the program which explained that the tigers had been on a boat which capsized off the shores of Africa.

"TV's great," Jon exclaims, "but you certainly have to watch your p's, q's, and tigers."

▲ JAMES FAIRFAX, Ray Montgomery and Jon Hall are about to invade the evil witch doctor's hut to rescue a hunter who was trapped by a sadistic tribesman in the Belgian Congo.

▼ JON HALL'S love of adventure is witnessed on his KTTV series, "Ramar of the Jungle." As a youth, he was raised in Tahiti where he had adventures unlimited.

▲ NATURAL-SCENE-TYPE decoration. Hunk of wood (picked up in San Gabriel Canyon) was nailed to a wood base. Dead branches stuck in a pin-frog were heaped with cotton. Two dime-store deer set it off.

▲ RELIGIOUS THEME. Common non-bearing holly was stuck into pin-frog on a piece of wood. Whole was liberally covered with "snow." Small church for about $1 has light in it. Never fails, say the Loyds, to draw comment.

▲ MANTEL ORNAMENT. To give candles height, secure them on tin cans, advises Lloyd. This piece combines pyracantha (red-berried shrub) and magnolia. Clear shellac or plastic spray gives gloss. In place of cotton you may use flour, sugar, starch, or soap flakes to simulate snow.

How to Make Your Own Christmas Decorations

KECA-TV's GARDEN EXPERT, Gordon Baker Lloyd, is stressing "do-it-yourself" decorations this Christmas. Gordon, who is a great believer in using things which Nature has placed at the decorator's disposal, has been collecting pieces of driftwood, old branches, rocks and weeds for years. Even though he gives away most of what he gathers, he still has a treasure-house of more than 2,000 items. In making the accompanying Yuletide pieces, Mr. Lloyd pointed out, "There is practically nothing to buy. Anybody can make them."

▼ TABLE ARRANGEMENT. Place on over-sized white candle in center, then bank pine cones and Christmas balls around it. Dibs of snow make fine contrast, especially if you're using the arrangement on a dark-finished table.

▼ DOOR ORNAMENT. Lloyd, if you will note, does not use ribbon or similar fragile materials apt to become sad in rainy weather. Any good, long branches wired together, plus pine cones wired into top of cluster will do.
