HOW TO BE

Beautiful

The gracious art of living combined with fashion, beauty and culinary hints are presented by pretty Dorothy Gardiner on her popular Milady program.

For women only . . . KTLA's Dorothy Gardiner reveals some basic beauty hints.

DOWN through the ages women have been obsessed with a quest for beauty. Trying to satisfy this predilection for the how-to-be beautiful females is lovely Dorothy Gardiner, gracious femcee on KTLA's Milady series.

Dorothy, who is a former Conover model, has compiled a treasure chest of beauty and fashion hints which she presents on the program when she isn't sharing the spotlight with visiting home economist Corris Guy.

Prefacing her comments on basic rules for makeup, Dorothy remarked, "Remember good health habits and well balanced meals go along way toward making milady beautiful.

Hair

"I have found that hair is the most important feature in good grooming and attractiveness," she advised. "All experts agree that older women look better with short hair. However, do change your hair style often. It gives you such a lift. Cleanliness keeps hair healthy and with all the shampoos on the market there is one suitable for each of us. Daily brushing also helps to keep your hair well groomed.

Eyes

"Eyebrows are your most expressive feature. They can make you look cross or perplexed if you do not apply your eyebrow pencil correctly. Using quick short strokes apply your pencil, then use an eyebrow brush to blend the pencil strokes together. The brows should start from the corner of the eye and follow your natural line.

"Eyes are the liveliest feature. They are the windows of the soul but don't forget it's a two-way mirror. People can look in and see what kind of a person you are.

"To make your eyes appear larger outline them carefully at the base of your lashes with an eyebrow pencil. And use mascara on the upper lashes only. If your lashes do not curl up naturally use an eyelash curler. But always check the rubber on the curler to see that it's not split. The protruding metal through the rubber cushion will break your lashes.

Mouth

"Your mouth is another important feature. Always take the time to use a lipstick brush. This beauty hint is a must. It's the only way to clearly outline the mouth. The full part of your lips can be filled in with a lipstick tube. Use the right shade of lipstick to complement the color of your dress. If you should want to affect a very sensuous mouth for evening try using a darker lipstick as an outline, then fill in your lips with a much lighter hue.

"All of these tips will help make a person more attractive but most important of all is to remember that beauty comes from within. If you have pleasant thoughts and are happy and gay inside, that's just how you're going to look on the outside. With a sparkling smile and smiling eyes how can you but help to be beautiful."

WHAT YOU SHOULD KNOW ABOUT Your Child

Dr. Benjamin Spock, noted child care authority and author of the fabulous best seller, "Baby and Child Care," in an EXCLUSIVE two-installment feature for TV-Radio Life answers questions of interest and importance to all parents. You won't want to miss reading this scoop!

1—What phases of child care will your program stress?

a. Whatever interests parents, since they will usually decide just before going on the air what topic they will discuss. Past experience with a similar program would suggest such topics as feeding problems, toilet training, play things at different ages, grandmothers, sleep and sleep problems, physical growth, adjustment to school, college and career choices in adolescence, jealousy of a new baby, traveling with children, children's questions about the facts of life, quarreling, contagious diseases, parental worries about the first baby, methods of discipline. We will generally steer away from rare and serious diseases, both physical and psychological because of their limited interest and because they can't be clarified or cured by a general discussion.

2—Are too many parents prone to raise children by "the book" instead of meeting the individual needs of the child with parental love and common sense?

a. Trying to get help from a book or articles or lectures is one of the ways in which modern conscientious parents show their love and devotion to their children. I think that printed material is most helpful in technical matters, such as formula making or preventive inoculations, least helpful in discipline.

Parents from the beginning of time have probably wanted to get advice or compare notes, especially with their first child. Parents used to get it chiefly from the grandparents. Nowadays in America, there is so much moving around that the young parents often live hundreds of miles from the grandparents. Also, many young people feel like proving their independence by not asking for advice and help from the grandparents or by being skeptical of what is offered. Another factor has been the popularization of scientific studies on child development, whether they concern the value of spinach or the effect of spanking. The news of such findings tends to unsettle the convictions of some parents, particularly those who do not have great self confidence. The effect of these various trends is to make parents more dependent on doctors, public health nurses, and books.

How much dependence on books is too much? We know in a general way that parents who love their children and have a natural confidence in their own common sense are the ones who most easily rear their children well. (Worrisome parents can bring up sound children too, but the job is harder.) I would always encourage parents to trust themselves, their horse sense and their convictions. But it won't help those who need to depend a lot on doctors and books, to scold them for it.

3—Eliminating the fads and frills, have there been many fundamental changes in the basic pattern of child raising since the beginning of man? If so, what are the major ones?

a. I don't know enough about past periods to answer this one exactly. Certainly there are very different attitudes about bringing up children in different parts of the world today. The attitudes depend on what a particular nation or tribe thinks is most important—whether it's friendliness or fierceness, hardiness or enjoyment of life, devotion to the common welfare or each man for himself. One group of Eskimos is described as definitely sweeter natured, more generous, more trusting than the average American. On a certain South Sea island, children are taught to mistrust almost everybody and they grow up to become members of a rather mean, quarrelsome tribe. Parents who have been brought up with certain attitudes transmit them to their children.

TV-RADIO *Life
Exclusive

But some of the discussions of the conflicting theories that we Americans hear so often (strictness versus permissiveness for instance) make the differences in our own land sound greater than they really are. All human beings have been brought up with a combination of strictness and leniency, and there's always been a lot of argument about it. A hundred years ago some people were saying that youth was being put in a straitjacket and others were alarmed because youth was soft and going to the dogs. The Greek literature of 2000 years ago shows exactly the same opinions. Parent attitudes change a little from generation to generation, but not as much as we think.

The pendulum has a tendency to swing back, but never to exactly the same spot. Our grandparents of the Victorian period were brought up with more emphasis on strict manners (children at table should be seen but not heard) but they didn't turn out so different from us. It's more a matter of style than of fundamentals.

Children need the love of devoted parents. But that love, when normal, always contains, among other things, a mixture of indulgences plus a firm insistence that the child do his share and conform to the requirements of society. The balance varies a little from generation to generation and from family to family. Twenty-five years ago it was taught that to be healthy and civilized a baby must learn from the start to eat and drink a certain amount of certain foods at certain hours, whether he was ready or not, and that he should be trained to the toilet at an early age. Now that we have learned more we realize that this rigid scheduling was not necessary and was often not wise. But a few parents nowadays, confused by the emphasis on flexibility and permissiveness, have been hesitant, for instance, about putting a baby to bed at bed time—even though he was obviously sleepy—because he objected, and have ended up with a real sleep problem. Babies and children still need parents with enough sense and enough firmness to be definite about what's really necessary, even though the parents are at the same time making allowances for age and for individual differences.

To be more specific about No. 3 I believe that the greatest discovery or rediscovery we have made in the past 50 years is that children don't grow up and adapt to civilization mainly by being compelled to, but because they want—more than anything else—to be like the parents and other adults they love. Firmness and correction still have to be used to keep any child in line but he does most of the work himself. He wants to learn table manners, he wants to learn to read and write and figure. This realization has begun to influence the attitudes and methods of parents and school teachers and I think it will do so even more in the future. It won't revolutionize the human race in a hurry but it will make parenthood and teaching pleasanter.

4—How reliable as a guide is the instinct of the mother in raising and caring for a child?

a. The instinct of a reasonably happy, reasonably well adjusted mother and her experience in having grown up herself will not teach her all the essential elements in her child's diet or how to diagnose his appendicitis, but it's all she needs to manage him from hour to hour of the day.

5—To what degree and in what ways do the relationship of the parents and emotional tone of the home affect the development of the child?

a. The basic relationship between the parents and the emotional tone in the home are, of course, of great importance in the development of a child's character. But the impact on each child is always somewhat different depending on his place in the family and, probably too, on the temperament he was born with, whether for instance he has been, from birth, a vigorous, assertive, eager beaver or a quiet, compliant type.

But this doesn't mean that parents have to be perfectly harmonious with each other or endlessly sweet with their children. There is no such parent. All parents have conflicts and quarrels, at least at times, whether open or suppressed. The main thing is that the parents generally love and respect each other, and that each be fairly well satisfied with his role in life (even if he grumbles about it a lot.)

All good parents get irritated and resentful toward their children at times—that helps to prepare children for life as it is.

"Put Legs To Your Prayers!"

By Bill Weber

THE LONESOME GAL, otherwise known as Jean Rousseau, and her family. Left to right, husband Bill, Patricia and Fargo. Jean has built a new life through faith.

PUT LEGS to your prayers. Don't just sit back and wait for something to happen. You can't expect action from prayers unless you act, too."

The speaker was a tall, willowy girl who knew whereof she spoke. As a child a bone disease confined her to long stays in hospitals. When other teen-agers were buying their first high heels for school dances, she was being measured for braces. Instead of the usual banter with school friends, she was addressed, "Hi, cripp," as she sought to join their activities.

Today this girl, radiating abundant vitality, possessed of good, strong legs, is known to radio listeners as The Lonesome Gal, heard nightly five times a week over KABC.

The Lonesome Gal (or Mrs. Jean Rousseau in private life) first learned the power of prayer as a child through the religious teaching of her family.

"But I learned it from experience as well as teaching. The failure of too many people today lies not in the fact that they do not pray, but that they lack an inner faith that miracles can and do happen or that they can achieve the impossible. Doctors once said I would never walk again. God said I could.

"Unfortunately, our competitive world teaches self-sufficiency. However, this does not carry over in relation to God. Too many times we see the apparently self-sufficient person who approaches God only when his back is to the wall and the heat is on. However self-sufficient we may imagine ourselves in conducting our lives, we are simply deceiving ourselves. For when the cards are down, man instinctively turns to a higher power. How much simpler an individual's life would be if he daily lived with an awareness of a higher power.

"Too many people are seeking God without realizing that he is at your side at all times. There is no need to search. Speak from the heart. A prayer uttered in the midst of the turmoil of a busy city street is heard as surely as the one said in the quiet of a church. One's approach to God is not so much a matter of time and place as it is an inner faith.

"No, I'm not trying to save souls. I can only speak of my own experience with prayer and religion that has become a way of life. It's only when I don't practice what I preach that I get into trouble.

"That's what laid me low last March and kept me off the air until July. It was simply a case of a young gal being in too big a hurry, too ambitious for success. Doctors had warned me the pace would get me. I knew better. So I thought. And then I collapsed. And there wasn't much consolation in being able to figure out that from 1947 until that day in March, I had done over 46,000 broadcasts. I couldn't see it at the time, but I think this misfortune was meant to happen. For in the intervening months I had a lot of time to think, to realize I had forgotten a lot of things that I had once known so well. I think we should learn to recognize that misfortunes come to us as warnings, which, if heeded, save us from complete disaster.

"If I could give any word on faith, religion or prayer, it would be that parents should see that their children receive a strong and comforting religious background. Childhood being one of the most trying periods of life, it is then the individual most needs security. Parents often inadvertently fail their children as do other childhood relationships with school or friends. But an inner structure of religion and dynamic faith will never fail a child during his difficult years of growing up. And, of course, such early training is the most important bulwark against the later trials of adulthood. It is the surest preparation for a joyous way of life, the strongest insurance there is against the disappointments and heartaches that are bound to crop up in later years.

"Religion as a way to happiness?" Jean smiled. "Well, I've never seen a truly happy person without some form of religion."

And a happier person than Jean Rousseau would be hard to find.

... to the interesting and informative Hobo Jungle insert on You Asked for It. Art Baker visited a jungle off Route 99 and the interviews he conducted with a handful of hoboes mirrored the thoughts of the men who were unable to adjust to society and preferred the aimless life of a roamer. The answers to Baker's frank questions came straight from the shoulder. ... to Leonard Bernstein's treatise on jazz on a recent Omnibus telecast. The noted composer's methodical discussion and demonstration were inviting for even non-jazz lovers. Omnibus would do well to have Bernstein back for a repeat visit.

Show Biz

Sunday, 3:30
NBC-KRCA, Channel 4

In this season of television spectacles, the most auspicious telecast to date was NBC's adaptation of Joe Laurie Jr. and Abel Green's historical tome, "Show Biz."

The 90-minute color spread traced the exciting era of the entertainment industry from vaude to video, roughly from 1900 to 1955. Selecting the highlights to illustrate the various periods in show biz history was in itself a mountainous chore, one ably executed by producer Ernest Glucksman.

Groucho Marx, who was on camera most of the time, proved as much at home as he is perched on a stool quizzing contestants. Groucho was at his best as medicine man, comedian of the 20's and as a leading man of the period.

Beatrice Kay belted her songs in fine style—first as Eva Tanguay, then Texas Guinan and finally herself. Lovable Buster Keaton revived his old vaudeville act to the delight of many an old-and-young timer.

Dennis Day gave one of his best television performances as a song-plugger of the early 1900's, as Harry Lauder, a contemporary GI and as a recording star. Bert Lahr was the great Bert Lahr and nothing more be said.

Eartha Kitt, who doubled in brass when Shirley MacLaine had to withdraw from the cast, was tops as a Charleston-shimmy-Black Bottom dancer of the 20's. Miss Kitt is one of the few vocalists who can sing off key and get away with it. This she did and very nicely with a torchy ballad.

Paul Gilbert's amusing audience participation sketch was one of the funniest in the entire production. Jay C. Flippen, subbing for the ailing Phil Harris, was a standout in his role. And lovely Rosemary Clooney was in top vocal form.

The choreography and staging of Show Biz was one of the slickest jobs done on a live musical variety show. The technicians, crew and craftsmen added their special talent to those of the stars to make Show Biz an outstanding hit. M. R.

Person to Person

Still in time for most viewers to catch this week are the special guests on Person to Person.

Person to Person (2) 6:30 p.m. Friday, October 28. Notre Dame's Terry Brennan, youngest college football coach in the country, and General Maxwell D. Taylor, Army Chief of Staff, will be visited by Edward R. Murrow.

Loretta Returns

Christmas will have a special meaning for Loretta Young this year. The star, who has been absent from the video lanes for several months because of illness, has selected Christmas night to return to the television screen in a story appropriately titled "Christmas Stopover."

Closed Circuit

In the near future pampered guests of the Beverly Hilton Hotel will have the added luxury of closed circuit television. In addition to major sports events and other special closed circuit shows the guests will get inviting glimpses of the floor show from the Bali room.

Sheriff Ebsen

Buddy Ebsen steps out of his "Georgie Russel" role in the Davy Crockett stories to create the starring role of Sheriff "Matt Brady", in the new series Corky and White Shadow.

Tradition

The Green Room, long a tradition in the heyday of Lux Radio Theater, has become part of the Lux Video Theater trappings. The Green Room, now a permanent set on the television show, is presided over by the program's host, Otto Kruger.

Green Room idea originated in England, back in the days of playwright Sheridan and the fabulous Mrs. Siddons. Because of ill-equipped theaters during that era, it was necessary to have a room off-stage where performers could wait for cues, drink coffee or tea and visit with their friends.

ON THE SAME DAY JOHN HODIAK DIED, CBS-New York received black and white pictures of the actor taken the previous week-end in Hollywood in anticipation of his role on the November 19 "Caine Mutiny Court Martial" telecast. As soon as the sad announcement of Hodiak's death was comprehended, Harry Ackerman and his aides gathered their thoughts to obtain a substitute. A decision will be reached this week, with a possibility that Hodiak's part will be carried by Steve Brodie, who was with the drama's road company.

BEN ALEXANDER CAME HOME LAST WEEK from a junket and plans to stay put until Dragnet resumes shooting the middle of November. He wants to enjoy that adored baby girl with which wife Lesley presented him just a month ago. In an interesting chat I learned how Ben has taken off more than 20 pounds and how Lesley dropped to 110. In an upcoming TV-Radio Life story I'll tell more about this accomplishment and its possible connection with the Alexander family.

ENTHUSIASTIC IS THE WORD for Ernie Glucksman, producer of Betty Hutton's NBC-TV show. "That girl is a human dynamo," Glucksman told TV-Radio Life during rehearsals. "She's the embodiment of life, vivacity, and she belongs in television. After seeing the show I think everyone will agree with me," Glucksman affirmed.

ERNIE KNOWS WHERE OF HE SPEAKS . . . in case you don't place him, he recently produced the Show Biz "spec" which made quite a splash. It was his own idea to adapt the Show Biz book for TV . . . he worked so thoroughly on the subject that he used only half his material for the telecast and claims, "There's enough left over to do another show and maybe I will!"

MAIL BAG: FROM NO NAME, Kenmore Ave., L.A. "You said it—why do we have to listen to otherwise fairly good programs completely ruined by those awful, asinine outbursts called 'laugh tracks'? Also, how much longer are we viewers to be forced to watch—or switch off—re-runs of re-runs and Petes of Repetes?"

MORE MAIL: FROM MRS. C. "No, you are not wrong and it has hit us—that filmed shows do have much too much irritating laugh tracks—and applause. We feel like shouting 'Be quiet!' when the applause comes forth."

MORE: FROM N.L., L.A. "I read your article on Hedda Hopper and I certainly would disregard my feelings if I didn't list the name of Elza Schallert, whose charm and personality get over even on radio. With her good looks, pleasant voice, poise and fine sense of humor, she would have been ideal for such a (Beverly Hilton) setting. Her coast-to-coast broadcast, a number of years ago, brought joy to many a listener." In a letter from Glendale, B.G.L., noting my comment that Betty White might have been a Page Eight happy choice for emceeing the hotel opening, wrote: "Betty is the most refreshing personality ever to be seen on the television screens or anywhere at any time and those Hollywood and New York producers are passing up the greatest box office pay-off of their careers in not signing her up to a BIG show—but it will have to be Betty's show alone."

WHEN MARLIN PERKINS OF ZOO PARADE swung into town last week, NBC gave a party in the Nordic Room of that new hotel in Beverly Hills where someone seems to be giving a press party every day (and how's about frequenting some of our old haunts for a change?). Anyway, embellishing the party was a baboon, a couple of monkeys, and a python, curled up in a cage. Things got a little "skeery" when the snake was released and allowed to slither along the floor. While Perkins showed color film of his recent African junket, looking on was Ransome Sherman, who told me he and Perkins had been friends ever since the days when Perkins headed the St. Louis zoo.

SINCE IT'S HALLOWEEN, it's the time to drag out some of the stars' superstitions, so Director John Lucas passes along the following jinxes: Hal March lives in fear of the day the automatic question machine won't work. . . . Ronald Reagan shuns walking under ladders. Once he ignored one and ended with three stitches in his noggin. . . . Jack Webb thinks the number seven is good luck. . . . Donald O'Connor always wants at least one child on his show—also good luck notion. . . . Bob Cummings avoids eating scenes—once he had his mouth full of steak, had to yell a cue line, and choked. . . . Don DeFore stays clear of back doors—once hurt his hand on an Ozzie and Harriet set when he thought the back door was open and it wasn't. . . . Ever since she gulped a cocktail which was supposed to be tea but turned out Bourbon, Eve Arden is afraid of sipping pekee on the set. . . . Lucille Ball dotes on her good luck number, nine. . . . Richard Carlson thinks a lost script signals bad luck. . . . George Gobel says he has no bugaboos and adds, "I'm just me."

James Dimitri, Santa Monica

After a lapse of seven weeks, one of the sweetest personalities in television made her re-appearance on my TV set last Saturday evening. A person with her sincere pleasantness should be seen more often than just once a week.

While Lawrence Welk is trying to get himself elected Mayor of Hollywood, let me nominate as the sweetest and most pleasant personality on television . . . ALICE LON.

Mr. James M. Schwabl, Lynwood

It was a great surprise to see the feature story about my army buddy, Ralph Portner. The original Johnny Doughboy justly deserved every word of it and much more. The article neglected to mention all the wonderful shows he gave for the lonesome GI's in Northern Ireland. Portner was the originator of the well known "Kwiz-Kapers". It was a quiz show emceed by Portner. All GI's and friends were able to participate. He would conduct community songs, and with his unusual likeable way had the gift of weeding out many unexpected and surprised performers. Everyone had a wonderful time and always left with the flavor of the good old U. S. A.

Sure! some of his isms were corny, but what show isn't? Let's face it—Portner always knew when to use it. I'm sure the viewing public as well as the listeners would appreciate this new, different and ever popular personality, Ralph Portner. Incidentally, here is a secret that many of his friends don't know—he has a very remarkable singing voice.

An Angry Teen-ager, Pasadena

I am writing in regard to a letter that was published in your magazine a few weeks ago.

There certainly is nothing "smutty" about "Oh, Sweet Mama, Tree Top Tall," or "Teach Me Tonight" and any pop fan can tell you that "Dry Bones" was danceable. As a teen-ager, I dislike being tied in with "filthy" or "smutty" songs.

If you look for something, you can find it, and the writer of that letter must have the wrong outlook on things to find out the so-called "smutty" lyrics.

I cannot picture any teen-ager dancing to music such as "Melody of Love." Any music popularity poll (the one in this magazine is a good one) will show that the people of today do not care for such dreary music. My advice to the writer of said letter is this—don't look for "dirt", and you won't find it!

George Rony's "Background to Battle" took the foreground in a legal battle this week.

A Mr. Herman Axelbank served Mr. Rony, station KCOP, the National Broadcasting Company, and the Fox West Coast Theaters with a complaint alleging that his rights had been infringed upon as a result of certain films used by Mr. Rony.

Until the legal difficulty has been straightened out, Mr. Jack Heintz, general manager of KCOP, has temporarily cancelled the second-run of the series.

The withdrawal of "Background to Battle" by KCOP has no bearing on the ultimate rightness or wrongness of the case, but it was decided by Mr. Heintz to be the "safe and sensible thing to do until the matter is completely settled."

New—Color

4, 10 Matinee Theater—60m.

NBC's new block buster in daytime programming, hour-long dramas broadcast from the Burbank color studios. Albert McCleery acts as executive producer for the series which will incorporate his "cameo" technique, calling for a minimum of stage props. This week's schedule:

MONDAY—"Beginning Now," adapted from a short story by John P. Marquand. Directed by McCleery himself, this is the story of three generations of wealthy but decadent men who have extricated themselves from various escapades through their money, their power or their persuasion. It remains for the youngest of the trio to face up to life and accept the responsibility for the disappearance of college funds.

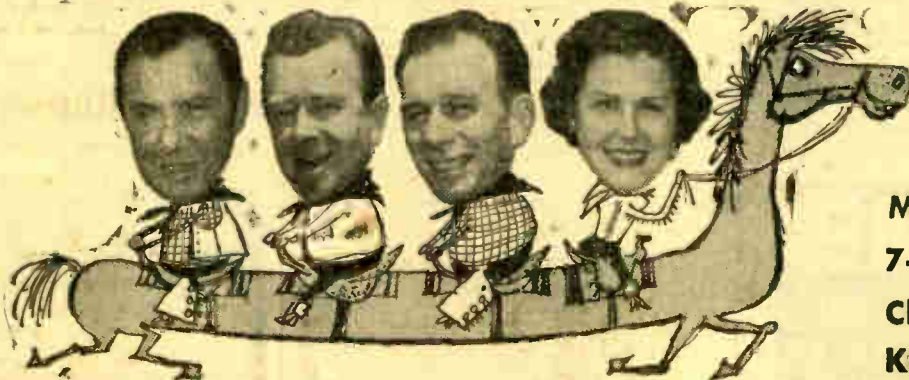

TUESDAY—"The Make-Believe Mother," adapted from an unpublished short story by Ricky Zurer. A childless couple find a small boy in pajamas one night on a street corner. He is crying for his mother, whom they discover in a near-by bar in the company of a sullen young man. They learn the young woman had been deserted by her husband and offer to be "second parents" to the boy until one night a policeman calls on them and tells them the mother's boy friend has been in a fight and has a police record. This in turn brings out a secret the young mother has kept and brings the story to a climax.

WEDNESDAY—"The Persistent Image," from a new novel by Gladys Schmitt. John Reiber is a small businessman, owner of a record shop, who has lost his girl to a handsome army captain. However, after the birth of a daughter, Sissy, the marriage breaks up and John wants to win the mother back. But Sissy proves to be his stumbling block, for she bears an intense resemblance to her father. When the captain returns at a compromising moment, he and John become involved in a tavern brawl. Afterwards the captain tries to take Sissy away, which brings John to the realization that he loves the young girl.

THURSDAY—"I'm Straight With the World," an original teleplay by Theodore Apstein. Annie and Sid Berger are a couple in their fifties who are still in love after years of marriage despite one outstanding difference in temperament. Sid believes in taking a chance, whereas Annie wants security. The difference comes to a head after Sid's linen shop goes bankrupt and he wants to buy a rug mill in Georgia. To finance the new venture, they would have to sell their house, which is to Annie a symbol of security.

FRIDAY—"Progress and Minnie Sweeney," starring Ann Harding, from a story by Ed Kellso. Minnie Sweeney is an old-fashioned schoolteacher who is at odds with the powers in a small town. They want her to retire so they can introduce progressive methods of education. The crisis comes when Minnie disciplines an unruly student who happens to be the son of the superintendent of schools. The boy's mother is outraged and demands that Minnie be ousted immediately.

Pick of the Pix

By Aubrey Dahl

Channel 9 and Channel 5 both switched their major movies at the last minute a week or so ago and jammed up logs all over town. I'm assured there were good reasons. OK. I'm weary of complaining, anyway. I'd much rather tell you about the television situation in Las Vegas as I saw it during my recent visit there. Except that I didn't see any. (Editor's Note: He was on his honeymoon.)

"Notorious Gentleman." (7) Oct. 30, 7:30. Originally titled "The Rake's Progress" when it was first released in England in 1946, this TV premiere offers Rex Harrison as another of those characters he portrays so well, a charmer without scruple. We first see him as a tank officer walking across a bridge which just might have been mined by the Germans, a suspenseful situation resulting in the inevitable flashbacks. It seems he was sent down from Oxford for a series of unsavory pranks and then proceeded to become involved in some unsavory love affairs, some unsavory business deals, and a spot of auto racing, without which no gentleman can be considered a proper sport. He is an ingratiating cad through all this and only redeems himself slightly in the war. Lilli Palmer plays a Viennese beauty who wants to marry Rex primarily for a passport and it might seem that he has a few reasons for treating his fellow humans with such disdain. The film is amusing in a flippant sort of way but possesses nothing of the earthy wickedness that marked Hogarth's immortal series of paintings, "The Rake's Progress."

"Casanova Brown." (9) Beginning Nov. 1, 9:00. Gary Cooper has at times been just about the cutest thing anyone ever saw and he is given full rein in this 1944 opus to demonstrate his particular brand of boyishness. He plays a college prof who goes to New York and becomes embroiled with Teresa Wright, marries her, has a fight with his in-laws and goes home to become engaged to Anita Louise. Then he hears there has been a child of the marriage, kidnaps it, holes up in a hotel room and has his own little struggles with formulae, diapers and the like. There is, of course, the final reconciliation with Teresa and I thought everything was too precious for words . . . or even pictures.

"New Mexico." (5) Oct. 30, 7:30. The time is 1860 and it seems to be a period of peace between the red and white man, but cavalry captain Lew Ayres knows better. He has information that the Indians are plotting an uprising and he tries to secure a truce with Chief Acoma (Ted De Corsia). As a condition of the truce, however, the chief wants the army to give up a rock on which the Indians have stashed their ammo. Lew refuses and decides to defend the rock, a situation the Indians view with reservations and they attack. There is lots of shooting and the rock finally is blown up, along with most of the principals in the picture. Marilyn Maxwell is a dancehall singer named Cherry who inflames men's passions and the film was made in 1950, a good year for domestic root beer.

"Heat Wave." (13) Nov. 1, 8:30. Alex Nicol and Hillary Brooke, two American actors, went to England and made this movie in 1954. Gadabouts who have given us nothing to be glad about. Hillary is tired of her wealthy husband and prevails upon Nicol, a struggling writer (tie too tight?) to help her dispose of him. He does, becomes conscience stricken and confesses all to the first available detective. Channel 13 recently bought a flock of J. Arthur Rank films and I expect that things moviewise will improve considerably here in the near future.

"Gay Dog." (Look it up in the logs . . . what do you think we print 'em for?) Why not? He's a Scottie with wet strength.

I recently found out that one of the many impractical ideas tried by early day railroaders was what they called a "sailing car." These early railroad men thought that they could harness the wind to move a railroad car in exactly the same manner as it moved sailing ships. Such a car was actually built and it worked fine, but only when the wind was behind it; a head wind would push it back in the wrong direction, and it was feared a strong wind would simply blow the whole thing off the track.

Many years ago, throughout the country each railroad ran on its own time. Of course, this created a great deal of trouble insofar as time tables and operating schedules. During 1883, all of the major railroads got together and adopted standard time. This time divided the country into four areas with standards of time (the four time areas were and are Eastern, Central, Mountain, and Pacific). As a result of this, on November 18, 1883, nearly 100 railroads went on the standard time setup. This time division is still used to this very day.

We've been coming out to meet all of you for nearly a year now, and it sure is wonderful to see all of you, especially those who have been coming to our appearances since the very beginning. This Saturday, October 29th, I'm going to be out in Garden Grove once again. This was the location of one of our very first appearances. I hope I'll see all my old friends at 9858 Garden Grove Blvd.

WHICH NAME TODAY?

In Southern California, two names that stand out among cooking enthusiasts are Jane Sterling and Corris Guy. Did you know that they are one and the same person? Corris Guy is the name Jane Sterling uses on her KTLA telecasts.

HOLLAND'S TUNNEL

DUG BY JACK HOLLAND

A lot of people are going to be considerably surprised when they see Liberace in his first picture, "Sincerely Yours." Having been considered primarily a personality—and a different one at that—Lee proves himself to be an accomplished actor in his first acting job. The same warmth and sincerity so obvious to those who know him come across with real effect in the film. It is not a superficial role he plays. Rather, it is a dramatic and compelling character—a musician who goes deaf. Lee handles the more emotional scenes with conviction, for the most part, and his playing of the lighter moments is entirely believable.

In fact, he has a rare sense of humor. As for his piano work, it is in true Liberace style but with just the right emphasis on the purely classical. However, in one scene Lee explains the reasons for his TV popularity. After he had finished playing the Tschai-kowski Concerto in Carnegie Hall, the manager of the Hall told him he had a new audience now and that he could forget the other types of people for whom he had been playing. Lee remarked that he couldn't see why he couldn't have both—and he went out and played, naturally to a terrific response, the lighter kind of music. At any rate, "Sincerely Yours" opens a new career for Lee—and Warner Bros., who produce the picture, should reap a harvest of greenbacks.

Went out to Disney's to watch "Corky and White Shadow" being filmed—and unless I miss my bet a young girl by the name of Darlene Gillespie is going to be very, very hot when this new series for the Mickey Mouse Club is released. She's fourteen, an amazing little actress, a very funny comedienne, and she can sing. She is set to go into a picture with Fess Parker next. The news here is that Darlene is the first child star to be brought into prominence strictly by TV. Her work in the Mouseketeers brought her to the attention of Disney—and she went on from there. At any rate, keep your eye on her. You'll be seeing the series sometime in December or January.

George Putnam is well known as a crusader and fighter—and as the town's most popular newscaster on KTTV. But you should see him in the guise of father. He has a four-year-old girl named Jan Noel who keeps things humming at the Putnam house. Jan was supposed to be born in January but she arrived Christmas Eve—hence her name. According to George, she is an especially intelligent child, so much so that when Gene Fowler, author and friend of George's, heard her talk he said, "I'm going to hock my typewriter, get a recording machine, and just take notes from her." Jan's closest friend, outside of her mother and father, is Irene Dickerson, her governess and closest companion. Miss Dickerson has a master's degree in Education and has taught Jan all she knows. Too bad you can't drop around and see George trying to keep up with his daughter and her friend. You'd be seeing a new Putnam for sure.

Maybe it's accidental, but what gives on $64,000 Question? A couple of times now so many minutes have been devoted to chatter with the contestants that there's little chance to ask any questions. Then, recently, a contestant got in the isolation booth and before he could be asked the pay-off question, time was up. Yet—there was endless time for commercials and long listing of credits. Does this sort of thing just happen or is it planned? We'd like to know.

Those of you who saw Carmen Miranda's last show before her death—the one with Jimmy Durante—must have had the same mixed feelings I did. It was probably right to show the film. Carmen would have wanted it that way. But it was still a strange, eerie feeling. You may remember the scene where Carmen fell down after doing the dance. Well, this was the first indication that there was something wrong. Those on the set have said that at that moment her face was lined with pain and that only the whites of her eyes showed. And yet she bounced back to finish the show, after which she went home and did the whole program again for some friends. It was a tragic thing to see Carmen Miranda go, for here was a woman who loved every moment of living. She will be missed.

Ted Post, who has directed Waterfront, Medic, Screen Gems, and other TV shows, is now turning in a corking job on his first motion picture, The Peacemaker, a Hal R. Makelim production. He has found the demands in movies much bigger than those in TV. Where he once shot fourteen pages a day in television he can only cover about seven in the picture because of the larger scope necessary. But he's doing his usual excellent job, and the cast and producer have been more than impressed with his know-how. Ted is another example of how valuable experienced TV directors can be to the movies.

Label Talk

By TERREA LEA

How would you like to win a 1956 television set for yourself or $250.00 in cash for your club or organization? I think the answer is fairly obvious.

Nearly everyone could use a new or second TV set and most everyone that belongs to an organization is interested in increasing their treasury. Well, here's how it can be done.

Label Bank is running a big CASH FOR CHRISTMAS CONTEST for clubs and organizations. $250.00 in cash will be awarded the club that turns in the largest number of complete sets of Label Bank labels. A complete set for the club must include one each of the following labels: American Beauty Macaroni Products, Austex Chili Products, Baker Boy Confection Roll, Canada Dry Beverages, Case-Swayne Canned Foods, Doodle Dandy Pickles & Relishes, Chicken of the Sea Tuna, Nu-Trishus Meat Balls, Dr. Ross Dog & Cat Food, La Victoria Mexican Products, Fels Naptha Soap, Diaper-Sweet, Nutt Bros. Cookies, Reddy-Fruit Pie Filling, George Super Cleaner, Pacific Crackers, Rupert Frozen Fish, Sioux Bee Honey, Rain Drops Water Softener, Morton House Canned Foods, Spencer Olives, Onions, Cherries, Tom Sawyer Foods, Tropical Jams & Jellies, TV-Radio Life Magazine, White House Dressings, Buisman's Coffee Blender, XLNT Foods, Shady Oak Mushrooms, Chun King Oriental American Foods, Orabella Olive Oil, Kaiser Aluminum Foil, and Woody's Bar-B-Cue Sauces.

Label Bank is also running a big CHRISTMAS BONUS CONTEST for individuals. A 1956 television set will be awarded to the person who sends in the largest number of complete sets of Label Bank labels. A complete set for the individual must include one each of twenty of the Label Bank brands listed above.

To be counted in this contest, all labels must be turned in at Label Bank, 727 No. La Brea, Hollywood 38, Calif., no later than midnight Tuesday, Dec. 6, 1955. For further information call WEBSTER 8-2438.

Make this a merry Christmas for your club or your family. Start saving your label sets right now. These are products you use every day and probably have on your kitchen shelf now . . . so let's enter the big contests with enthusiasm.

Don't forget to come to the big opening of Tops Market at 11246 E. Whittier Blvd. in Whittier. I'll be there Nov. 5 at 2:00 with some wonderful prizes for the big drawing.

More Label Talk next week . . . 'bye for now.

Man's Values, Beliefs, Dignity And His Love of Freedom

This is the gigantic theme which KFI's "American Adventure" delves into each week.

By MILDRED ROSS

ADVOCATES of educational broadcasting are justly proud of the University of North Carolina's American Adventure series. It's entertaining, informative, and the dramas are based on the highest of principles.

The theme of American Adventure is that man under God has dignity and deserved freedom. The programs reflect the basic values which underlie and are part of man's dignity.

Because the series is produced on grants-in-aid from the National Association of Educational Broadcasters made possible by the Fund for Adult Education and the Educational Radio and Television Center there is no catering to sponsors or networks. The university dramatizes the facts as it sees them.

John S. Clayton, director of the series, bluntly states, "There is no fear of offending minority groups, or catering to the prejudices in any of our productions. We have no sponsors or agency to worry about. And we never make a conscious effort to win approval from national audiences. Our programs have been done on grants and presented, mostly, on non-commercial stations throughout the country."

The university was highly elated, if not somewhat surprised, when NBC decided to carry American Adventure. One spokesman expressed the reaction on campus with: "We thought they (our programs) might be a bit controversial for a major network. But this didn't seem to concern NBC in the slightest."

The diversified dramas on American Adventure narrow down to the most interesting subject of them all—Man, his values, his characteristics, his beliefs, his dignity, his love of freedom.

Casual Preparation

Although the dramas in this series are oftentimes weighty, their somewhat casual preparation would throw a New York or Hollywood producer into a frenzy.

The writer of the series, John Ehle, and his assistant, Dorothy O'Sullivan, research an incident in American history which seems to them to reveal a basic value to the American people. Ehle writes a radio drama based on their findings and sends it out to nine professors of the university who read it and discuss it with him. What one of them likes, another might dislike; the favorite script of one professor is inevitably the least liked of another. Ehle collects these different points of view and rewrites his script with an awareness of what a critical audience might like.

When he completes his revised script, and there are no deadlines to be met, he turns it over to John Clayton, who incidentally obtained his master's degree from the University of North Carolina. Clayton takes care of the casting in a most leisurely fashion. He'll phone a few actors and ask them if they have some free time on Thursday nights. If they do, he schedules the show, selects the music for the bridges and background and looks around for an ambitious student who might know something about sound effects.

On Thursday evening the students, professors and townspeople who have agreed to take part drop by the radio station about 7:30. They read through the script with Clayton making suggestions. After one or two mike rehearsals the dramas are recorded. Out of this unhurried process comes a top-notch product that professionals could well envy.

Frequently American Adventure takes up controversial subjects, such as political witch hunts or the Negro questions. "We try to develop all sides of an issue," explains Ehle, "or at least represent them. Of course, if we have a point of view we express it. It does little credit to an audience to deal with a subject of importance and leave the impression that we think the two points of view have equal value. On one of our programs a critic felt that we had dealt unjustly with a subject, and we could not agree. But we did offer to delete two or three minutes from the show, or whatever time he needed to record his criticism of the program so we could incorporate it at the close. We were rather happy with the idea but disappointed when he decided not to take us up on our offer."

What better example could radio have of democracy at work?

HOOVER PROFILE

An hour-long autobiographical TV profile of Herbert Hoover will be screened on NBC, tentatively set for November 6. NBC's news cameramen have been shooting film of the interview between Ray Henle and the former president at his Palo Alto home.

The film will highlight Hoover's very active life, covering not only his presidential years but many other facets of the famous octogenarian.

Commanders Palladium Performance

Disc jockeys of radioland are spinning quite a few of Eddie Grady and the Commanders' tunes this week. And for good reason.

Eddie and the Commanders are currently playing before a packed house at the Hollywood Palladium. It's the first appearance for the Decca Recording Artists at the famed Sunset Boulevard ballroom.

It was actually at the request of Southern California disc jockeys and the dancing and record-buying public that Sterling Way decided to bring The Commanders into the newly-decorated Palladium.

So in a way the deejays are on a spot. But judging from the reception—especially the good turnout on opening night—their expectations are being fulfilled.

Radio fans can hear The Commanders "live" on KFI radio direct from the Palladium on Thursday night, 11:30 to 11:55 p.m., and Friday, 9 to 9:30 p.m.

Rourke Reports

Jack Rourke, a familiar face and voice in Hollywood, has a new show on KABC from midnight to 2:00 a.m., Monday through Saturday.

One of the novel features of Jack's program is the telephone calls he makes to the Hollywood police station to get news of crime. Very often he scoops the morning papers with the news he gets from the police blotter. Other recorded phone calls include conversations with movie stars and other celebrities. Jack also calls hospitals and unusual places of interest for stories. Between interviews Jack spins sweet music.

Rourke in Hollywood is sponsored by the Shop-in-Hollywood Association, a group of some thirty leading business men who feel that more people will shop in Hollywood if they are reminded to do so often on an entertaining show such as Jack's.

Rourke has been active in both radio and television for several years. He produced the Horace Heidt Show, Music from Hollywood, Presenting Sonja Henie, Beauty Parade, I Want to Get Married and Ladies Matinee. He has also produced and emceed several telethons.

If it's post-midnight interviews and music you like, Rourke In Hollywood is a program you'll enjoy hearing.

From Mrs. L comes a note about summer shows: "When you were talking about summer shows I feel you came in 'out of the money'. I think programs like Climax that continued right through the summer and didn't jam re-runs down our throats should receive a pat on the back and a bit of appreciation. . . . I have one major complaint—Producers' Showcase. We are forced to miss its every performance because of the early time and with its usually good reviews we hate to miss it. Here's hoping it will someday go on a little later."

(Mrs. L. is right on both counts. Climax does deserve a pat for not doing re-runs. Other shows should be as imaginative. I do hope, however, that Climax goes back to doing more of the suspense type of production which was its original premise. As to the early time on Showcase and other spectaculars, this is a ridiculous state of affairs that should be corrected fast.)

Calm Wild Bill

"Wild Bill Hickok" stars, Guy Madison and Andy Devine, tired after a day of personal appearances in Dallas, were waiting for the hotel elevator when an affable but inebriated fellow who introduced himself as Fred approached them and insisted they join his party.

After declining several times, Guy and Andy caught the elevator to their tenth-floor suite. A few minutes later there was a loud knocking at their door.

"Who is it?" asked Andy.

"It's Fred—I just won't take no for an answer!" came the reply.

"We've gone to bed," yelled Andy. "Come around to the window!"

TELEPHONE HOUR, KFI, 9:00 p.m. Barbara Gibson, soprano, is guest with Donald Vorhees and the Bell Telephone Orchestra. Her selections include "Una Voce Poco Fa" from "The Barber of Seville," "If I Were on the Stage" from "Mademoiselle Modiste" and "Possettled" by Dellbes.

REVIEW

Edgar Bergen

Sunday, 4:05 p.m.
CBS-KNX

Radio, the good old-fashioned kind, is exemplified by Edgar Bergen's new show on CBS. Listening to Bergen and the gang is an hour well spent.

The sharp-tongued Charlie McCarthy, slow but sure-witted Mortimer Snerd, humorously diversified Jack Kirkwood and the musical talents of Gary Crosby, Carole Richards, the Mellomen and Ray Noble's orchestra are an unbeatable combination.

Repartee between Bergen and his dummies sparkles. He did a very funny bit with Charlie who was reluctant to study his history lessons. Charlie dubbed Henry VIII the originator of Queen For A Day.

Program has been formatted into various categories, the poet laureate corner, special events and the round table for square heads. Interspersed with all this humor are the delightful efforts of a wonderful music crew.

Carole Richards' rendition of the simple ballad "Love and Marriage" was top-notch; Crosby's "Learnin' the Blues," was delivered with sock; and the Mellomen harmonized with plenty of verve.

Bergen's special guest was Professor Jan Popper, of UCLA's Music Department, who announced his new CBS-TV opera series, Spotlight on Opera.

Yes, Bergen is back and radio really needed him. Scripting by Hilda Black, Zeno Klinker and Sy Rose was never put to better use. M.R.

I was thinking the other day (admittedly no habit of mine) how lucky we are in Southern California to have three outstanding football teams. And, I hope you fans follow the progress of this trio through our KHJ broadcasts of the games.

As of this writing, the Rams are tied for first place in their division of the National Football League . . .

UCLA is rated 5th nationally . . . SC 9th. No other city can make this statement . . . three of the nation's top teams wearing the label of one city.

Detroit has the Lions . . . but cannot claim Michigan and Michigan State as local college entries in the gridiron galaxy. Cleveland has the Browns, but no Ohio State. Chicago has the Bears, but Northwestern, ugh. Philadelphia has the Eagles . . . and Penn . . . but would rather be rid of the latter, I'm sure. So . . . Los Angeles alone can boast of three top clubs.

Though the season is just at the halfway point, this is about the time conjecture begins of what players appear good enough to make the all pro and all America elevens. Actually, if fans knew how far in advance the ballots were counted, these 'dream' teams would command far less attention. But, it's tradition . . . and regardless of when or how they're selected . . . we'll have them each season.

Unfortunately, deserving western players don't receive the national support they merit, for most of the syndicated columnists and wire service headquarters are in New York City . . . and they fill the nation full of glowing reports about the players they see most frequently . . . which, naturally, are those who play east of the Mississippi. But, maybe this will change gradually as the western powers etch more deeply their conquests into the football charts.

It would be a shame, I think, if SC's Jon Arnett and Orlando Ferrante were overlooked on the All America selections this season. They certainly rate with the best college players of 1955.

Westwood would be shocked, and rightfully so, if Bob Davenport and lhardiman Cureton didn't receive berths in the majority of the post season elevens . . . for they, too, have no peers on the college gridirons this season.

Professionally, the Rams have several candidates for the all pro eleven. For rookie of the year offensively, Ron Waller must be assigned a high spot on the list of those considered. He's come along surprisingly well, and is a big reason the Rams got off to such a fine start.

When you begin to think of defensive Rams who demand attention . . . the list could become quite lengthy . . . yet it's hard to narrow down to one or two the members of the defensive squad who've made broadcasting the Rams' games on KHJ and the Don Lee Network such a genuine pleasure. For instance, safety men Burroughs and Sherman—corner backers Hughes and Haynes—linebackers Richter, Griffin and Morris (see what I mean about numbers) . . . the entire front line of Miller, Robustelli, McFadin, Elena, Hauser, all key men in the defensive brilliance the Rams have displayed this season.

I wouldn't care to pare this list for fear I'd arrive at an impasse . . . but this serves as an example of how many Rams should have their names on these lists of those who vote the all-pros 'In.'

But, getting back to our fine football fortune here in Los Angeles. We have without doubt one of the greatest places in which to view a game. The Los Angeles Coliseum stands out with the finest in the nation . . . with hardly a bad seat . . . even though it might be high and removed from the field . . . the vision is vastly better than some choice seats in other stadia. Bill Nicholas runs one of the most efficient plants in the country . . . which certainly adds to your enjoyment during the games.

Naturally, I could ramble at length about the radio, TV and press facilities at the Coliseum, but, frankly, you fans aren't concerned over our comfort unless you're listening over KHJ and Don Lee or watching on TV. But, take it from me, Nicholas here, too, has set a standard for others to copy.

Yes, we're lucky, football-wise here in Los Angeles. In fact, we're pretty fortunate, I think, to live in such a city . . . smog or no smog. I'm not a native, but, man, I'm an enthusiastic convert.

'And, there's the final gun.'

CHUCK CONNORS

Actor-athlete Chuck Connors stars in the Community Chest's promotional film, "Boy With a Knife," which Richard Widmark narrates. Chuck plays a social worker who goes out to contact juvenile gangs at their source, gaining their confidence and thereby effecting rehabilitation. The film will be shown on TV during the Chest's campaign.

Utilizing television in another aspect, the Chest uses KTLA's facilities to instruct and inspire its 75,000 volunteers. The Yale Puppeteers will humorously present the do's and don'ts in going from door to door for the Community Chest on Channel 5, Wednesday, November 2 at 10:00 a.m.

Maurice Evans, the theater's most successful actor-manager, turns his talents to TV as producer of Hallmark's new play series.

Art

and Showmanship

By Bill Weber

THE PREMIERE production of Maurice Evans Presents the Hallmark Hall of Fame series, scheduled by NBC, is a clue to the success of the American theater's most astute actor-manager.

And that brings up that old saw—Are such productions “too arty” for television?

This first production will be Alice in Wonderland, the Lewis Carroll classic that has become as much a part of a child's growing up as the legends of Santa Claus and the Easter rabbit. Dramatization of the beloved classic is by Eva La Gallienne and Florida Friebus, noted actresses. Caliber of the production is also heightened by the appearance of Miss La Gallienne in this starting play of the Hallmark series. Costume design is based on the famed John Tenniel drawings for the first edition of Alice upon which readers ever since have based their pictorial concept of the Carroll characters.

Although Evans will not appear, the naked details of such an announcement bring a whiff of theater magic always associated with Evans as a theater and television star. Functioning primarily as producer of the series, he will appear at a later date in two or three productions.

Too arty?

Although such an argument probably first arose when the first actor trod the boards in ancient Greece several thousand years ago, the time-resistant question now haunts television, although at this point in art's history, “too arty” has boiled down to a more or less sliding scale of personal values—that is, what is “too arty” for Joe Blow may be something else again for Josephus Blough.

Weighing heavily, and indisputably, in the Evans ledger of art vs. box office take is the final balance sheet. Whatever the findings of others in attempting to juggle art and money, and the path is liberally and literally strewn with disaster, the Evans record is something else again. Briefly, he has found gold in art.

Sharp business acumen and sensitivity as to how much the public can take in the realm of weightier drama has put Evans in a very special niche as the only extant actor-manager. And while functioning in this dual capacity he has emerged as a startling phenomenon of the theater. Not one of his productions has failed at the box office, artistically or financially.

This sensitivity to public taste has also led him wisely to diversify his own talents as an actor. Although establishing his first success as a Shakespearean actor, he has since achieved notable success in Shaw's Man and Superman and more recently Dial M for Murder, a modern murder mystery. This nimbleness in refusing to let himself be typed in the public mind is, of course, a gilt-edged security in television where many top performers exhaust their bag of tricks within one or two seasons.

Though the general public is familiar with Maurice Evans, the actor, they are not so familiar with his role as a manager and producer, although the success of Evans, the actor, correlates directly with the success of Evans, the manager. As an actor-manager Evans is a holdover from the earlier days of the theater when an actor was not only a great star, but his managerial and business abilities went hand in hand with his artistic talents. This actor-manager was as sensitive to the cartage costs of moving scenery as he was to the nuance of a line—a far cry from the actor of today who cannot write a check without an okay from a watchdog manager.

In addition, Evans has a sixth sense, that rare genius for reaching audiences on two levels—appealing to Joe Blow who likes blood and thunder in his drama, and appealing equally to Josephus Blough who is seeking an artistic interpretation of a playwright's poetry and philosophy. Perhaps more than any other factor, this is Evans' touchstone for transmuting art into gold.

Evans sharpened his native instinct for audience communication when as a major during World War II he not only played Shakespeare for GIs, but showed them that instead of being a bore, the Elizabethan playwright was lively entertainment worthy of the most culture-resistant GI's attention.

Too arty?

Not if you're out for top entertainment put on by one of the shrewdest showmen in the business—or art world!

Myron Floren tosses around a few impressions of Lawrence Welk, who not only is his boss but also can squeeze some nice-sounding notes out of an accordion.

Boss Man

By Myron Floren

MYRON FLOREN

I SHOULDN'T really call Lawrence just my boss—he's also a good friend. It's something to work for a man who takes such a personal interest in everything the members of his band do. He is almost as concerned about us as he is about his own family.

Any of us can come to Lawrence when we have anything on our minds—and most of us have done that at one time or another. If we have problems he doesn't close his ears but he tries in every way possible to help. It's easy to listen to any advice Lawrence may give, not that he fashions himself a counselor. He is one person who practices what he preaches and preaches what he practices. For instance, he is a sensible man about money. He is not at all "tight" with a buck and yet he doesn't squander his money. He looks ahead to the future and, subtly, encourages us to do the same. We have a club we call the Champagne Club. Each of us in the band puts in five dollars a week. I'm president—why, I don't know. This money is deposited in a bank and then it is invested in gilt-edge securities. This was an idea of Lawrence's and has been a sound proposition.

Hard Worker

Lawrence had to work hard to get where he is, so it is natural for him to be wise in the way he spends his money. Yet, he can become quite extravagant in gifts to us in the band and to his friends. Last Christmas, for instance, he gave each of us an insurance policy.

(Editor's Note: When Lawrence Welk decided to hire Myron Floren to play with his band, his advisers thought he had lost his marbles. Myron was a terrific guy with the accordion—and that was the instrument Lawrence played. Lawrence admitted Myron was a lot better on the instrument than he was—and that was why he wanted him.)

As a leader of a band, Lawrence is a perfectionist. He works long and hard. In fact, most of the time we have to remind him to take a ten minute break. He has set high standards for himself—and for us. He believes, first and foremost, that the public is our only consideration. Never do we fluff off the public. As a result, we don't look upon our work as a job. Rather, it's an obligation to the public.

I've watched Lawrence keeping an eagle eye on a crowd at the dance hall. He can sense immediately when the crowd isn't getting what it wants. For instance, we may be playing some novelty numbers but if Lawrence sees the public is getting a little tired of them he'll do a switch to the reliable "Josephine" number and get them right back into a dancing mood. This remarkable awareness of the public's demands has had much to do with the success he found on a recent road tour and on his shows for ABC.

Lawrence never tries to be the whole show. He delegates responsibility and gives everyone a chance. Often, when he's not on the stand, I'll direct the band and I arrange the programs for our ABC radio show.

New Talent

Because he doesn't want to be the main focus of attention he is always interested in encouraging and discovering new talent. Take Larry Hooper, for example. His recording of "Oh, Happy Day" is a big hit. Lawrence heard him singing with the boys one night, liked his bass voice and asked him to do a solo. Larry balked at that, so one night Lawrence got all the band singing a number and then we all stopped just when Larry came in for his little spot. Larry had to go on singing then. There was nothing else he could do. And he was a sensation.

Then there is Jim Roberts. Jim asked Lawrence one day if he could audition for a singing spot in the band. Lawrence listened to him, liked him, and signed him at once. Jim is now our featured singer and the only man in the band who doesn't play an instrument.

Band life, they say, is tough and demanding. That may be so in some cases. All I can say is that working with Lawrence Welk isn't even work. It's a pleasure. I hope we'll be together for years.

It Sure Paid Him To Be Married!

Bill Goodwin is one emcee who really believes and lives up to the principles he advocates on his NBC-TV show.

BOTH IN HIS private life and on his NBC-TV show—where he awards plenty of money to married couples — Bill Goodwin has proved It Pays To Be Married. Congenial Jay Stewart pulled a switch on Bill and interviewed him and his family on the daytime show. Bottom row: Mrs. Goodwin, Sally Lou, and Lynn. Top row: Bill, Jr.; Bill, Sr.; and Jill.

EMON FELLAS, let's quit the kidding. Let's be serious for a few moments. Let's bury the oh-you-lucky-bachelor routine.

Despite the hundreds of jokes to the contrary, the institution of marriage is not only a very sacred one, but it can and usually does turn out to be a pleasant and even profitable venture for all concerned.

As most daytime TV fans know, popular Bill Goodwin, veteran of stage, screen and particularly radio for many years, is the emcee of NBC-TV's It Pays To Be Married.

Naturally, the sponsors, network, agency and all others concerned with putting on It Pays To Be Married wouldn't be playing it very smart if they selected an emcee who beats his wife daily, or gets divorces as regularly as Tommy Manville, or drinks like an alcoholic fish.

In short, they need (to use the clinche') "a good solid citizen."

A Day With the Goodwins

If you spend a few hours with Bill and his family, as we did one afternoon at the NBC studio in Burbank, and then at a quiet lunch, you soon discover that Bill is just about as "solid" as they come.

As it should be, Bill's lovely wife, Philippa, was primarily concerned with the way her four children—

Jill, 16, Bill, Jr., 13, Lynn, 11, and Sally Lou, 10, looked and acted. Both Bill's mother and mother-in-law, who live with the Goodwins—were able to take care of themselves. A matter of fact, the two ladies, almost stole the show from the professional Goodwins.

"Philippa, you know, was one of the original Goldwyn girls," Bill explained. "She vowed she would never marry an actor—and look what she ended up with!" he laughed.

At the time they were married back in 1938, Bill had had some share of success in the radio field, but nothing really sensational.

Success

Shortly thereafter, everything seemed to click for him—including movie assignments and announcing chores on the biggest shows in radio, such as Joe Penner, Burns and Allen, "Blondie," Charlie McCarthy and of course, Bob Hope.

"I almost had to make good," Bill explained. "Philippa and I had bought a house in North Hollywood which was really too big for us then and too expensive. After being married a year, we also had our first child, Jill. And houses and children cost money, you know. I will have to admit, however, that getting married was certainly the best thing that ever happened to me, and in the long run has saved me money," he smiled.

While It Pays To Be Married concentrates largely on fun for the family, it does have its most serious and dramatic moments.

"I think the most dramatic story we've had so far on our show was the case of Ray Norman. He is a musician, and only a short time ago a helpless narcotics case. But with the help of his wife, Vera, he was able to come back. It was really something to see this man on our stage display so much emotion on a subject that you just knew he had kept inside of himself for so very long.

"Each day I think the people who appear on our show tell some wonderful stories. Sometimes they're funny, sometimes sad, but always very warm and human. It certainly gives me a great deal of satisfaction to be doing this sort of a program," Goodwin said.

As a sort of final proof of just how happy Bill, Philippa and their family have been during the past 17 years, they still live in the same house which was originally too "big" and "expensive" for them.

"We've grown so attached to it by now, I don't think we'll ever move," Bill concluded. "And with eight of us in the family now," instead of the original two, it certainly isn't too "big" anymore!"
