They Asked For It!

It was a good idea on a national scale . . . and the station managers of the West Coast felt it was a good idea for a regional setup. That was the genesis of Don Lee Radio's Newsreel.

By Ross Williams

THE WHEELS WHO MAKE NEWS-REEL SPIN—John Bosman (right) editor-in-chief, and John D. O'Connell who does the reporting from the Greater Los Angeles area. (Ralph Widman photo.)

GOOD IDEAS in radio programming are hard to come by these days—so when a good idea is dropped on a national scale, an alert management will pick it up for a regional setup.

Such was the case with the Don Lee Newsreel, heard locally on KHJ at 5:15 five evenings a week.

According to Norman Ostby, Don Lee vice-president in charge of station relations, it was the affiliated station managers who wanted the show reactivated on the local level.

"Mutual Newsreel," he recounts, "was for years one of the most popular news shows on the air. When it was finally canceled, our affiliates started plugging for Don Lee to do it through our 59 outlets in the West.

"We pointed out that they had asked for it, that its success was up to them and that it wouldn't work without their co-operation. We asked the stations if they would supply news, and they did—like crazy."

Don Lee Newsreel is patterned after the original Mutual show, even to having the same editor-in-chief, John Bosman, co-ordinating the material from Hollywood.

Bosman has as his assistant on local coverage John D. O'Connell, former AP correspondent and for the past two years news director at

Radio and TV Station KENI in Alaska.

O'Connell covers the Greater Los Angeles area with a fully equipped mobile unit which includes a direct line telephone to the KHJ newsroom and the latest in recording devices. He and his unit can be on the spot of a news break within minutes.

Added to this are the news staffs of the affiliated stations, some of which also own mobile units, stretching from San Diego to Alaska, from Arizona to Hawaii. Tapes from these outlets are flown into the KHJ newsroom where Bosman evaluates and edits them. In the case of a rush story, the local newsmen phone in the material which is taped locally and then rebroadcast.

"We are not doing stories of Mrs. Jones being hit by a taxicab on Main Street," says Ostby. "We are disseminating the news that is of the most interest to the most people on the West Coast. We can get the feel of that news best through the voices of the people involved at the scene and at the time it is being created. We are not interpolating our own thoughts or our own commentary on the events—merely getting the words on tape of the people who have made or witnessed the news.

Regional Basis

"Newsreel operates on a regional basis, and only if national or international news is of paramount importance is it included in the broadcasts. However, we have arrangements with the BBC in London and other overseas services to tape events of magnitude for us in the case of a major news break.

"We are confident of the success of Newsreel," he adds, "because people are more interested in news today than ever before. Everyone expected news interest to fall off after the war, but the opposite has proven to be true. People are more interested. I think the various military incidents and the general state of the world today have made the populace more conscious of news.

"And in that respect, that monster television has helped radio. TV is now where radio was 20 years ago. Radio doesn't require the bulk of equipment and technical assistants that TV does. Consequently, radio can cover the news faster, more thoroughly and more efficiently than any other medium. More and more, people have come to rely on radio for the news."

This grapevine of news broadcasting is not being done anywhere else in the country, and the men at Don Lee are justifiably proud of the way it has operated. Proud, but probably not surprised—for if there is one thing the western net has proven, it is that they are the experts in news-casting.

Danny Can Take It!

The popular comedian of the Danny Thomas Show can well sing, "I Got Plenty of Trouble." But he has his own way of fighting back when the roof caves in on him.

By Jack Holland

DANNY THOMAS, his broken ankle in a flesh-colored cast, was sitting on a chaise longue on the set rehearsing for his KABC-TV Danny Thomas show.

"Know what they're telling me now?" Danny cracked. "They're wanting me to stay in this cast a couple of weeks longer than I have to—because they have scripts all set for then. Every hear the adage, 'Funnier than a crutch?' Well, here's a great example."

Danny was in a rare good humor in spite of pain and inconvenience. Trouble had piled upon him for sure, what with Jean Hagen's earlier bow-out as his wife, thus necessitating a change in format, and then his broken ankle. But Danny has been used to trouble, to crises in his life. He has met each difficulty in his accustomed way.

"When any disaster strikes me, I fall apart temporarily," Danny said. "But then I slowly rebuild and go back to work. I'm like a city that has been blasted during a war, and then the citizens come back to it and start a new life."

Danny gripes about trouble—like any normal person. He has been kiddingly referred to as "All-American beeper." Yet, always his griping has a humorous touch to it. In fact, one of his most popular night club routines is his diatribe of the common man against the stings that constantly assail him. He ends this by shouting, "Down with the stinkin' bosses!" This always gets a big laugh.

For years, Danny and his family lived next door to poverty—and then came the break.

"So what happens?" Danny laughs. "When I get lucky, big income taxes start. All the years I was broke—no tax. But just as I began to make money—POW!"

He then tells you of those early days when he ran up a milk bill of $115—and didn't know how he was going to pay for it.

"Now that I'm what you call a success, I'm in debt about $275,000. How successful can a man get?"

Danny has always viewed trouble as a tie between comedy and tragedy.

"My uncle was so funny," Danny said, "that he was barred from funerals. He had enough personal tragedies to see the ironic humor in the most pathetic situations and he expressed this humor at times during funerals.

"My uncle lost his entire fortune and went to work as a street cleaner," Danny continued. "When he got into an argument with a friend, he pulled out a fat roll of bills, slammed them authoritatively on the table and shouted, 'Put up or shut up.' But everyone knew that Uncle Simon cut newspapers into strips exactly the size of money, then wrapped a single $1 bill (often borrowed) around the outside.

"Funny? Sure it's funny. It's so funny it tears your heart out.

Show Troubles

"I could see nothing funny at all about beginning my new season of shows. First of all, I was a widower—and I was on crutches. So where's the comedy in a widower on crutches? We found the answer.

"When Jean left us, I was terribly upset and disappointed. We had built up a large following among American families. We couldn't just come out and say a new actress was going to play the part from then on. This would be too superficial. We all thought almost at the same time of the possibility of putting a real tragedy into Danny Williams' life—that of the death of his wife.

"But there were those who said we couldn't do that. When I asked why not, I was told, 'Because it hasn't been done.' 'So that's all the more reason to do it,' I replied.

"However, we did ask the help of the press in getting opinions of viewers. We got over 40,000 letters and the majority said to carry on like any American family would—let me be a widower.

"Our first show, then, of the new season wasn't a laugh riot. It had more pathos but also some comedy. I even kidded my busted ankle when in the scene where Rusty and Sherry are about to go off to boarding school, at my insistence, I cry out, 'That's right—leave me, a cripple.' It got a big laugh."

When Danny was doing his warm-up before his audience at the filming of this first show, he said solemnly, "I hurt, I'm in pain, I'm tired." Gasps of sympathy went up. "But don't be sorry for me," he said immediately. "Think of all the money I'm making."

NOW A WIDOWER with two children, Danny has his problems, but he and screen daughter Sherry, get along great.

It is this kind of philosophy that has helped him to get over trouble.

His friends have reacted in the same way. When he arrived on the set the first time after his accident, there was a replica of a basketball court rigged up with a sign reading: "UCLA, 72; Danny Thomas, 0."

Abe Saperstein, close friend of Danny's and owner-manager of the Globetrotters, professional basketball team, was in Paris when Danny broke his ankle. He immediately sent out a wire reading: "You lovable idiot. If you have to break your leg playing basketball, why didn't you do it with the Globetrotters? You would have gotten paid besides."

Danny walked out on the lot for a minute and he passed by a friend who asked how he was.

"Just great," he said, as he hobbled along on crutches. "Ran into a burning building to save a little girl, jumped out of the second-story window with her, and that's how I broke my ankle."

Wheel Chair

"When I started this new season, I couldn't see how we could do a funny show," Danny went on. "I was all for staying off the air until January. How could I play the combustible Danny Williams from a wheel chair? And then I found a strange answer to the parable of the bread cast upon the waters.

"A picture had been taken of me leaning against a wheel chair and looking as though I were in pain—which I was. One day Mr. David Carroll of Petersen-Daniels, Inc., called me from his Montebello office and said he had seen the picture of me and remarked, 'We have an electric chair here. Would you care to use it?'

"I have one already," I told him. "But this man still wanted me to have the electric one. He asked if he could bring it out. I told him it would be okay.

"I liked it at once and asked, 'You mean you're giving me this with no charge?' The man said, 'Yes.'

"But why?' I asked logically. 'For charity?'

"Yes," he said. "You've done a lot for charity in your day."

"I could only mumble a humble 'thank you' to that. Then I asked, 'Do you want me to pose in it for advertisement?' To which David Carroll replied, 'Yes, if you want to; but this is not one of the conditions under which we're giving it to you.'

"I told him I'd pose in it and I'd even use it in the first show if his company would give it to me—so I could give it to a paraplegic later." He agreed.

"Well, we used that wheel chair in every scene in the show—and we found that without it we wouldn't have had a show. Ben Lessy kiddingly referred to it once as the 'Bellevue Hospital Rickshaw,' and I answered, 'Don't kid it, boy; we'd be dead without it.' And I wasn't kidding."

Mr. Carroll not only got all kinds of publicity for his chair but Danny also gave him a 16-millimeter print of the first show so his company could show it as an exploitation idea.

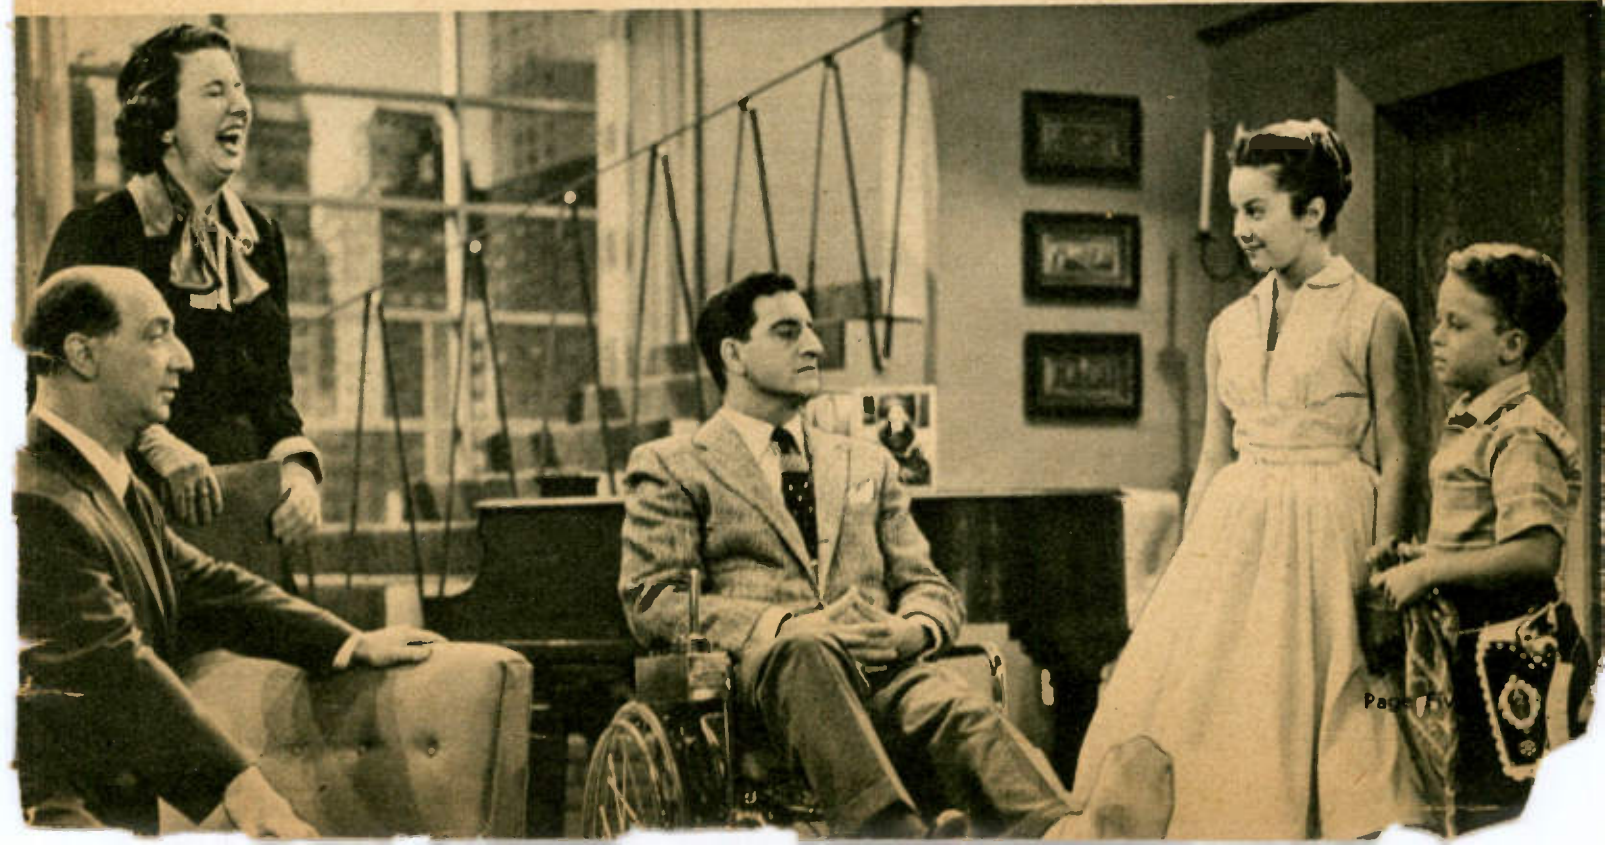

Danny then said seriously, "I'm a sentimentalist, you know. I even cry at basketball games. I've had some real bad trouble in my time, and yet I know many have had more difficulty than I have. If you can find something about your trouble to laugh at, you're okay." Quietly and sincerely he added, "But, please, God, I don't want to be tested any further."

Danny Thomas is not only unique in the annals of entertainers—he is unique among human beings.

▲ BEFORE HE BROKE HIS ANKLE and complicated things for his ABC-TV show, he was sitting around on the set like this. The sooner he gets back to a normal state the better he'll like it.

▼ IT WAS A NEAT TRICK giving some humor to Danny Thomas' broken ankle. With him in this episode are regulars Ben Lessy, Mary Wickes, Sherry Jackson, and Rusty Hamer. There's quite a story about that wheel chair of Danny's too.

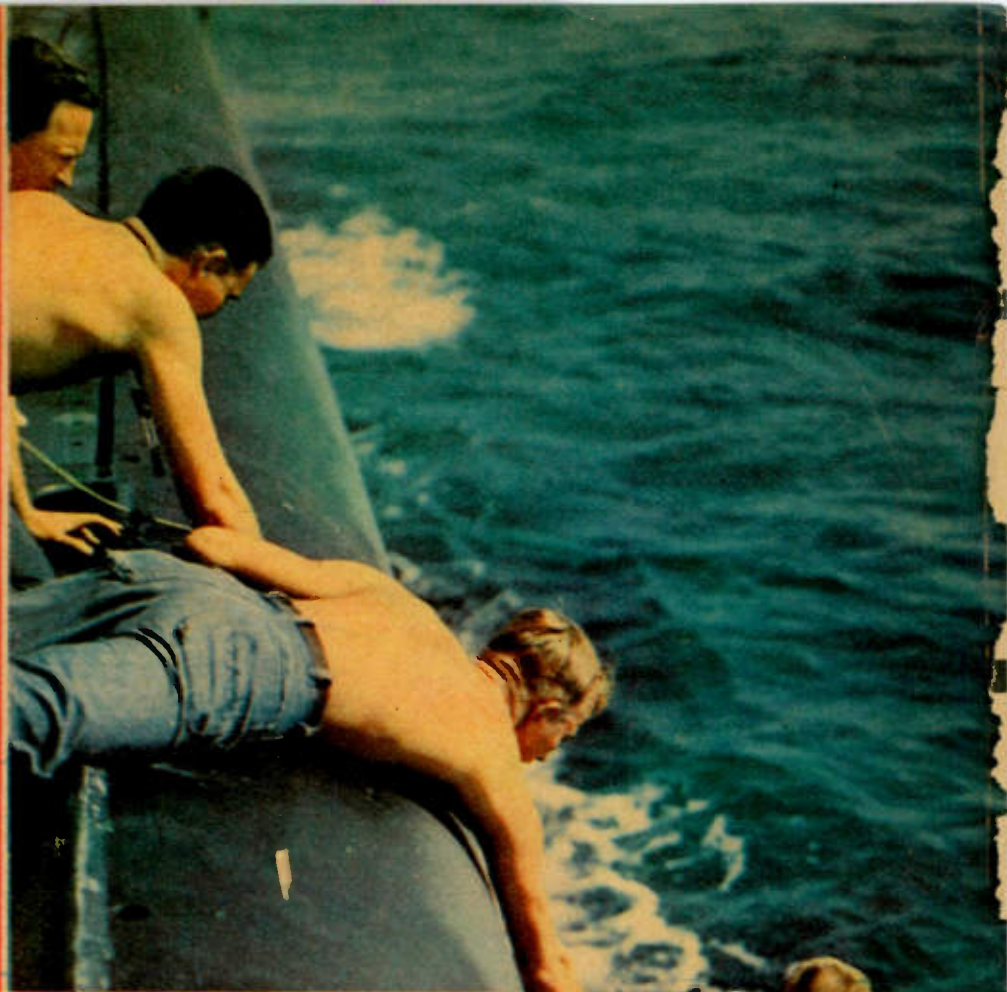

Navy Log

HAS ITS PROBLEMS

Unlike most TV programs, the newly-acquired ABC-TV program has more than just the sponsors and the public to worry about.

By Ted Hilgenstuhler

ALL TV programs present problems to the producers. That's only natural.

Navy Log, however—the CBS-TV property which has moved over to ABC-TV—puts producer Sam Gallu in a class all by himself.

From beginning to end, he doesn't have to worry just about sponsors, actors, stories—the usual, and expected problems that any producer has to contend with. No, not poor Sam. He's got the entire Navy Department, Medical Department and even the U. S. State Department to worry about!

Let's start at the beginning. First, he has to get story material. Ideas for Navy Log can and do come from any and all sources: the Navy, Mr. Gallu himself, his regular staff of writers, and even viewers, particularly ex-Navy men who know of some good story that hasn't been done yet.

In Person

After weeding out the ones he wants to use, next comes the job of assigning a writer, getting all the facts straight, and then writing a script.

"This year, more than last," Sam explained in his Hollywood studio office, "we are going to try to have the person who had the experience right on the program. Admiral Nimitz will be one of them. We do reserve the right to use some dramatic license, but all the stories are definitely based on facts."

Finally, after the script has been revised, re-written, (often by Gallu himself), and approved, copies are sent to CHINFO (Chief of Information for the Navy), and all departments who are involved.

"Many times we're working long hours on a script, and various departments will be a part of the show. Their reasons are usually valid and understandable, and I make the alterations." Being a former Naval officer, Gallu understands the psychology and reasoning behind most naval decisions.

TV Fleet Maneuvers

Next, an over-all production meeting is called and a schedule is set up. Since different actors are used in each episode—mostly unknowns—the casting problem alone is an enormous one.

"We shoot two pictures in five days. Sometimes we may be shooting as many as five pictures at a time. And about 80 per cent of our shows are done on location, rather than in the studio. So you can see what a complicated operation it is."

On some occasions, the Navy has even changed the "orders" of various ships in order to have them available for the ABC-TV program.

"Yes, it is a problem trying to keep the Navy, the sponsor, and the public happy," sweating Sam explains. "But so far," he smiles, "we've been in God's right-hand pocket."

WHEN NAVY LOG wants to rescue a pilot from "the drink," the scene is not done in the studio—but out at sea. The rescued pilot: Frank Donohue during the "Day for the Stingray" program.

OUTSTANDING DRUMMER Shelly Manne got his first break with Stan Kenton. Is big brother to many struggling musicians. This week the program will have presented a total of 146 performers, 18 vocalists.

STARS OF JAZZ...A LENSMAN'S DELIGHT

SHELLEY MANNE'S GROUP plays mostly jazz clubs, which have sprung up all over this area (10 in Hollywood alone). Movement started in 1949-50, has snowballed last two years.

RED NORVO IS A STUDY AS he performs as jazz's great vibraphonist. Starting with xylophone, he was first man to make a non-jazz instrument a vehicle of this art.

★ GREATEST FAN OF STARS OF JAZZ is talented Julie ("Cry Me A River") London, meditatingly awaiting resumption of rehearsal at Television Center. She has appeared on program.

NOW in its 22nd week on KABC-TV, Stars of Jazz is a musical show synonymous with action. It is also a local program of extreme promise and intriguing taste, especially with lighting effects. Consequently, ever since its debut last June it has been a magnet for lensmen who have appeared in such numbers (20 per evening) that Producer Jimmie Baker has had to limit attendance to three photographers.

Crack Hollywood cameraman to cover every one of the 22 programs is Ray Avery, who uses triple X film, a 35mm Japanese Canon camera, and (for most shots) f4 at 200th of a second. Some of the biggest names in jazz have been Ray's subjects (Teagarden, Whiteman). Show's key personnel from producer to writer, director, cameraman, executive producer and technical director are all jazz enthusiasts, former jazz d.j.'s or musicians. This makes show a real labor of love.

Each program rehearsal is plotted on paper by Producer Baker, former jazz drummer and leader, who lays out individual performer's solos bar by bar. Director Norman Abbott is then able to arrange camera angles and special shots without time and cost of full rehearsal. Result is often far better than much-rehearsed stanzas, has won critical acclaim for local program "with bigtime network look."

In addition to Teagarden and Whiteman, special guests have included Howard Roberts and Al Viola. Booked for future shows are Georgia Carr, Chico Hamilton, Charlie Mingus and Frances (Mrs. Edgar) Bergen.

★ PROGRAM'S EMCEE, POPULAR BOBBY TROUP, quips with soloist June Christy, biggest name in vocal jazz. She's married to Bob Cooper, one of top jazz tenor saxmen.

DANNY THOMAS CELEBRATES 100th BIRTHDAY

...of his TV Show, that is

THE 100th filming of the Danny Thomas Show at the Motion Picture Center Studios recently was significant for various reasons.

First, and probably most important of all, it was a convincing proof that Danny has definitely found the "right format" for himself. Remember several years ago when there was speculation whether or not the popular comedian would find the proper showcase for his undeniable talent?

The show was also significant because it was the first in which Danny worked without the aid of crutches, which he has used since he fractured his ankle late last summer.

No. 100 (to be seen on December 3) also has an ironic title: "Danny's Comeback."

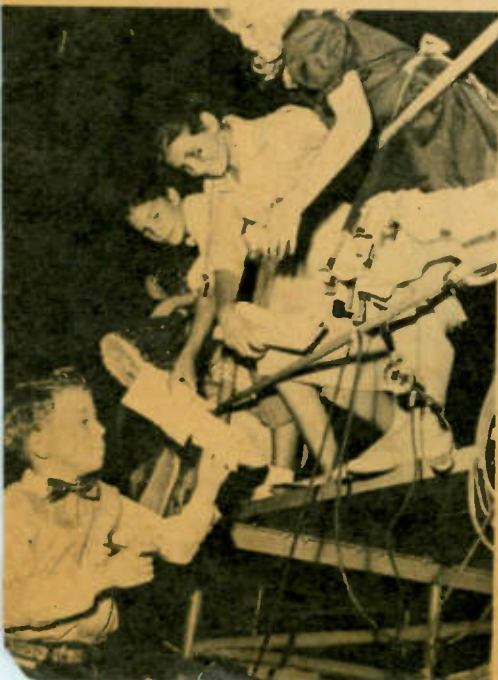

IT WAS ONLY RIGHT that those who share the work should share the cake, too. Helping Danny celebrate 100th (from left to right): Sheldon Leonard, producer-director-writer and actor on the ABC-TV program; Amanda Randolph, "Louise" the housekeeper, who has been on show since its inception; Danny, Rusty, and Sherry; Ben Lessey, Danny's accompanist and also an original cast member; press agent Mary Wickes; and executive producer Lou Edeleman. A happy and prosperous TV family!

BECAUSE OF FRACTURED ANKLE, Danny continued hectic schedule, doing nine shows on wheelchair and crutches. Helping Danny (who is now literally "back on his feet") is personal wardrobe man, Harold Johnson. (ABC-TV photos).

DANNY'S "TV CHILDREN," Rusty Hamer and Sherry Jackson, help him consume huge 100th birthday cake on the Hollywood set of the weekly ABC-TV program.

DURING "BREAK," RUSTY signs autograph for a group of his fans. Rusty was all in favor of having a party every day!

Will you please tell me where Liberace is at this time and if he will be back on TV soon? We enjoyed his half hour show so much with his fine music and entertainment.

At press time, Liberace is in Europe and will return shortly to resume his personal appearances. At present, there is no news when, or if, his TV show will return to local channels. We'll keep you posted, as always.

S. F., Canoga Park

A recent letter panned Liberace. All I can say is to lay off Liberace. He's got EVERYTHING. Looks, brains and personality.

Why can't we have Dick Lane and his Showboat on the air again?

Judging from recent events, KTLA — where Dick's show was featured — has been going easy on live variety shows. They still have some, but not nearly as many as when the late Mr. Klaus Landsberg ran the station. The reason: too costly to produce on local advertising budgets.

B. C., Glendale

I like to watch commercials but there is no need for an interruption on a program every ten minutes. I like to watch wrestling but in between the matches there are four and five commercials. It gets sickening and just plain lousy.

I. H., Los Angeles

Why in heaven's name is the spotlight used on the television? Hasn't anybody told everybody, or everybody told anybody, that it doesn't improve the looks of anyone on the screen?

In fact, it blurs their features and most of the time their eyes look like holes in their heads.

Are the shows on TV for the millions of watchers or for the few hundreds in the studio audience?

There are a few programs that use the spotlight on their featured singers — the Ed Sullivan Show, Perry Como, and the Lawrence Welk Show. I hope they will soon realize that they are certainly spoiling it for the TV watchers.

Mrs. J. E., Alhambra

I, as a mother, resent the way Del Moore spoke recently to a little 4-year-old named Kirkie on his morning show. Since when is it amusing to scare a child or refer to a puppy as a "monster"?

TV-RADIO. Lifelines

BY EVELYN BIGSBY

CAPSULE COMMENT ON LAST WEEK END'S viewing: Jack Benny and the Ronald Calmans again demonstrated they're tops as a trio (aided and abetted by John Sutton). One of Jack's most gratifying TV shows... What's My Line with N.Y. columnist and several local jokes was just too cozy and I'm sure sparked resentment in viewers elsewhere... Garbo was magnetic in "Ninotchka." Now the rising generation who watched must realize how beautiful and talented she was... Ralph and Barbara Edwards were outstanding on Person to Person. I'd think so even if I didn't adore both of them. Lookers had a chance to see what a warm, capable person Barbara is and how much she is integrated into's Ralph success... Ed Murrow didn't find Joe E. Lewis as easy to interview, but this segment was interesting if only by contrast. Murrow seemed to find Joe extremely amusing and for a while it looked as if the comedian's remarks were going to make Murrow "die laughin'" right on the air.

HAVE HAD SEVERAL COMPLAINTS from parents who feel that "Wizard of Oz" screened from 9:00 to 11:00 p.m. was too late for their youngsters... Hal March is set to do the George M. Cohan role in a Spec about the famous entertainer... Am just dipping into Steve Allen's new book of verse, Wry on the Rocks, and am finding it not only delightful reading but a revelation as to Steve's personality. He's quite a guy!

I AM DEEPLY APOLOGETIC that such a lengthy period has elapsed since two amateur radio operators wrote, following a Lifeline column in which a reader complained that "hams" were causing reception interference. Both letters are absorbing but too long to print. Hence some meaty sentences.

FROM FRED JENSEN, K6DGCW, South Gate: "I and every other station in the U.S. is licensed by the Federal Government. There are strict laws which we must obey or face the results. The faults of a transmitter that will cause interferences are prohibited by law. Therefore it is the fault of the receiver. Now every 'ham' in the U.S. with very few exceptions is most willing to cooperate. Much can be done to cure the interference, but no amateur is going to do anything when he receives no cooperation from the listener and is called a 'pest.' If one will talk it over with the ham I am sure some remedy can be worked out. It might interest some to know that their TV sets interfere with us."

REV. RICHARD HEWITT of Long Beach, another "ham," pointed out that "FCC rules regarding TV interference are strict — and I mean STRICT. If it's been proven that an amateur is causing such interference, FCC orders him off the air until it's remedied. If he goes back on the air without clearing it up, FCC lands on him hard. In other words, they 'don't fool around, boy.'" Considering the huge and varied assortment of electrical machinery equipment and appliances in use in this area from the standpoint of TV interference, the average amateur transmitter and receiver are as pure as the driven snow. It's quite well known that TV sets often kick up TV interference with other sets. Certain of the lower priced receivers actually will radiate energy back into the air while receiving a picture and the re-radiated energy will show up on other picture tubes as interference. I've known of more than one case in which an amateur worked hard to eliminate interference for a TV watcher when he knew beyond all doubt that he wasn't guilty of causing it."

PARTING THOUGHT on the elections: TV did a superb job the night of Nov. 6. To me it displayed its stature and the full impact of its immediacy when vanquished and victor were able to be seen coast to coast while the news was red hot. Here was big history in the making and we were there!

THOUGH I TRIED to catch a glimpse of several channels, I came back often to 4 because two "home town boys," Bill Henry and Chet Huntley, were playing important roles and I was proud of them.

AS A WOMAN I was also proud of the vital role played on TV by the women near and dear to the four leading candidates. I don't believe that ever before such prominence has been attached to husband-wife political teamwork as was connected with Mamie Eisenhower, Pat Nixon and Nancy Kefauver. True campaigners all. Without losing their feminine charm.

CANDID Views of Weekend Viewing: Ray Bolger's Washington Square had moments of charm and distinction but it still doesn't seem to be the answer for Ray. Highlights were the little girl's singing of "Mr. Wonderful," Sammy Davis, Jr.'s act — at least half of it — Ray's own loose-limbed dancing. Yet, these weren't enough to lift it into a solid hit category. It was almost as though no one was quite certain which way the show was going, which format it was going to choose. Perhaps after a couple of more productions are on the air, Washington Square will make much more sense than it does now. . . . Alfred Hitchcock's "Toby" was well performed by Jessica Tandy and others in the cast, but it tipped its hat much too early for there to be any punch surprise at the end. "Hitch" himself was definitely the more intriguing personality on this show. . . . The MGM movie, "Ninotchka," was just as delightful as it was the other four times I had seen it. Interesting how good productions never seem dated.

The Dodge and Plymouth people really threw an elegant soiree to unveil their new cars recently on the Lawrence Welk show. Fortunately, the cars were worth all the fuss. It would have been awful if they had been something less than they were touted to be. Lawrence managed to keep a show moving in spite of the fact that the interest was centered more on automobiles than music.

Ever sit down on a Saturday or Sunday afternoon and try to watch TV? Not that this is the ideal TV viewing period, granted, but there might be some souls who might be in the mood. Well, a couple of weekends I tried to see what was worth a look — and up came the most gruesome mish-mash of old westerns, old-old-old movies, even older cartoons. It was like watching the regular TV fare in the old days of the ten inch screen. Even kids who will look at most anything turn their noses up at such programs now. So what will be the answer to this one from programming heads? No one will watch anything good in these time slots. Answer to the answer: maybe so, but it might be worth a try.

Speaking of programming, some complaints have come in about Groucho's radio show being on Saturday afternoon, which one reader complains is a bad time. Her argument is that she's never home at that time. Well, I didn't set up this time slot for Groucho but I have a hunch the master minds figured that Groucho would catch a lot more listeners on Saturday afternoon by nailing all those car radios. Another reader complains about MGM's movies running during the week at too late an hour. She insists apartment dwellers and early risers just have to miss these pictures, some of them good. This is a problem that certainly exists, but to get the movies in at an earlier time would mean so much rearranging of the station's schedule it would be like unraveling the secrets of the H-bomb. Getting the Friday night time slot cleared for the Colgate Theater was a real headache for KTTV officials.

One reader, Mrs. R. L. Bergman, wrote a refreshing letter anent my comments that running of good old movies would hurt theater box office. She disagrees in a healthy fashion, pointing out that there are many sections of the country where TV cannot operate and plenty of people who prefer movies. She then adds: "Possibly the movie producers know and realize, even though the critics don't, that there is a great, large audience potential remaining in spite of television." She then adds that she has seen about nine or ten movies in the past year. "I'm not a movie-goer," she said. "I'm a television fan." Interesting letter. She may not see many pictures but she has faith in them.

TREASURE ISLAND" (11) Nov. 23, 8:00. 1934. Robert Louis Stevenson's wonderful story and colorful characters are here brought to life in what is probably the best movie version of the adventure classic. Wallace Beery catches all of the rascally elements of the bold pirate, Long John Silver, while Jackie Cooper, as Jim Hawkins, and Lionel Barrymore, as Billy Bones, are proper incarnations of these long remembered creatures of fiction. All of it is here . . . the buried treasure, the talking parrots, the eye patches, and the cutting of throats. I have a feeling this picture is going to stand up very well.

"Devotion" (5) Nov. 18, 7:30. 1946. A great deal of legend surrounds the Brontë sisters and their moody lives and this film incorporates much of the myth with the reality. Olivia De Havilland is Charlotte, Ida Lupino is Emily and Nancy Coleman is Anne, and their rivalry in love and letters is exploited to the full in a tale involving Paul Henreid, as a common object of affections, Arthur Kennedy, as the beloved drunken brother, and Sydney Greenstreet as Thackeray. A Warners first run which tries to give some indication of the environment that produced such works as "Jane Eyre" and "Wuthering Heights."

"Flowing Gold" (2) Nov. 23, 11:00. 1940. John Garfield is on the lam from a murder rap, you see, and he comes to this boom town to get a job as an oil worker, you see, and he meets foreman Pat O'Brien, who is in love with the boss's daughter, Frances Farmer, and soon John is also in love with Frances but he doesn't want to cut Pat out, you see . . . so . . . and then the law . . . and then a gusher comes in . . . and then a fight . . . and then . . . you see?

"On Borrowed Time" (11) Nov. 20, 10:15. 1939. Adapted from the play by Paul Osborne, this film advances the delightful and desirable premise that death is an individual who can be trapped in a tree and kept from performing his appointed chores, even to causing the death of a ty. Bobs Watson thus captures death, Cedric Hardwicke, to save grandpa, Lionel Barrymore, and what happens when death ceases to exist in the world makes for a thoughtful and entertaining movie.

Pick OF THE Pix

BY AUBREY DAHL

"Hudson's Bay" (11) Nov. 21, 7:30. 1940. The third of the 20th Century Fox supers to reach the TV screen and all I can say is that this super is annuated. A great deal of talk in a phony French Canadian accent from Paul Muni, a performance by Gene Tierney, and no action. Geez, you'd think that with trapping wild animals, the cold north country, some villainous French and a gaggle of Indians, you could get a good fight or a little suffering along the line, but no . . . lots of talk, though.

"Killer McCoy" (11) Nov. 19, 10:15. 1947. In 1937, MGM made a pretty good fight picture, entitled "The Crowd Roars," with Robert Taylor. Ten years later, they did a not very good job of remaking it and this is it. Nearly ten years have passed since the remake. Brace yourself. Mickey is a fighter who kills his long-time idol in the ring and has a deuce of a time getting over this improbable turn of events (in the original, it seemed fairly plausible . . . Why, I wonder?) and also has his troubles with society girl Ann Blyth, whose father doesn't want her mixing with fighters. Mickey finally gets his mitts on her, though.

"Golden Salamander" (7) Nov. 17, 7:30. 1951. Trevor Howard is an archaeologist who breaks up a smuggling ring after he has read an inscription on a golden salamander he finds in the desert. Leapin' Lizards, but this is sandy.

Label Talk

by TERREA LEA

LABEL TALK by Terrea Lea pickup hd
With Christmas just a few weeks away many of you folks are going to be running your legs off shopping, going to parties, and doing the many other things called for at this time of year. You are going to need every ounce of energy you have or can build up. So . . . I have a tip for you . . . KEVO-ETTS.

This is a brand new Label Bank product and believe me when I tell you that Kevo-Etts is one of the greatest quick energy foods you can eat. They are little round chocolate-like flavor wafers that you can carry in your purse or pocket and when you start to slow down on that shopping tour they are so easy to eat, while on the run. You'll be amazed at the pickup you'll receive from Kevo-Etts.

And here's something else . . . Kevo-Etts contain no drugs or harmful ingredients. They are a health food and contain only the things that are good for you. You and your children both would be much better off to substitute Kevo-Etts for some of the candy. Eat them like candy and grow healthy doing so. And above all . . . don't forget to save the box tops and labels. They are worth 4 points at Label Bank. (Except the 5c packages.)

If you don't have that new catalogue or Label List of the Label Bank products . . . better send for it right away or call Kathy or Paula at the office. The phone number is WE. 8-2438.

Now it may be too late for you to shop and save for this Christmas but what about next year? What about those birthdays that come up throughout the year? And what about some of the things you'd like to have for yourself that you can't go out and buy? Label Bank can be the answer. So send for that free catalogue and label list so you can start saving now. Then next Christmas you can do your shopping for gifts at Label Bank. Believe me, it's the best way in the world to shop and save.

Oh yes . . . almost forgot to mention the new record album I've just made. It's an LP album on the HI FI Label and it should be released by the time this is in print . . . however, I'm not sure it will be. Anyway . . . I hope you will take time to listen to it and perhaps take it home with you. There are sixteen folk ballads and songs in it you folks seem to like including, "Mary Hamilton", "I Wonder As I Wander", "Red Rosy Bush", "Billy Barlowe" and several others.

Remember the radio program Monday thru Friday nights at 10:30 over KABC for the latest Label Bank news. I'll have more Label Talk next week. Until then, bye for now.

More Label Talk next week . . . bye for now.

WRITE A LETTER AND WIN A COMPLETE COURSE IN SLEEP TEACHING

Record Notes

by Andy Mansfield

Lovers of traditional jazz will welcome the new Audiophile Long-Play albums featuring the popular Doc Evans' Band of Wisconsin. In addition to the old-time feeling these boys inject in their playing, there's the added keyboard artistry of "Knocky" Parker. Both LPs were made following a jazz concert in Minneapolis, and the resulting sounds and hi-fi quality speak for themselves. Especially pleasant to the ear are the Doc Evans versions of "When The Saints Go Marching In", "Sugar Blues," "Jelly Roll Blues," "See See Rider" and "Frankie and Johnnie". We have always felt that the cornet artistry of Doc Evans deserved more solo spotlight as compared with his group playing. If you like your jazz cornet on the sweet side, give a listen to the Audiophile LP provided by Doc's cornet and quiet rhythm backing, for "Memories Of You" and "Stars Fell On Alabama".

If you're one whose music tastes say that rock-and-roll is all right, BUT — listen to the new Zephyr LP "Easy Jazz On A Fish Beat Bass" provided by Greig McRitchie's Orchestra. Realizing the opposition to rock-and-roll as customarily heard, McRitchie combined its distinctive rhythm and bass figures with the light jazz sounds of vibes, alto, flute and guitar, plus a goodly number of brass. The result is some of the happiest swing we've heard in years and the dozen tunes included should be thoroughly welcomed rock-and-roll examples for people who, to date, hate rock-and-roll. . . .

If your memory includes such items as flappers, plus fours, super-heterodynes and Mah Jong, listen to "The Roaring Twenties", — a pair of Grand Award LPs played by Enoch Light and the Charleston City All Stars. These top recording musicians must have had a ball when they recently recorded the authentic arrangements of the great song hits of the Twenties that were considered "hot stuff" at that time. Wailing clarinets . . . wah-wah mutes . . . ricky-tick piano . . . and plenty of cymbal bring back "Varsity Drag," "Five Foot Two," "Collegiate" and many more as they were originally played until the stock market crash and the Twenties roared no more.

In a more serious mood, Coral's "James Dean Story" should be a top seller. Featuring musical themes from his three films ("East Of Eden," "Rebel Without A Cause," and "Giant") in instrumental form, each is introduced by narration of disc jockey Bill Randle, and tributes to Dean by Gigi Perreau and Steve Allen. It's lovely, but with a sombre note . . . and yet, it's a tribute in word and music that James Dean's thousands of fans have long awaited. . . .

KEPT BUSY

Bob Cummings, starred in his own series on CBS-TV Thursday nights, has been packed to star in One Left Over, the filmed (Schlitz) Playhouse of Stars.

HARD WORKER?

Not all of the gags on quiz shows are supplied by the quizmaster. On a recent People Are Funny telecast Art Linkletter asked a contestant, "What do you work at?" And the guy replied, "At intervals."

WITH PHIL

Jackie Loughery, former Miss United States, has been signed for a role in a Phil Silvers Sergeant Bilko show on CBS-TV sometime in November.

REGULAR COLOR

Reaction to the full week of color telecasting of The Big Payoff on CBS-TV has been so good that the network looks set to schedule it in tint on a regular basis.

GOOD ADVICE?

George Brent of Wire Service observes that you'll always stay young if you live honestly, eat slowly, sleep sufficiently, work normally, worship faithfully and lie about your age!

Around The Harness Racing Circle

▲ THEY'RE OFF! A familiar sight at Hollywood Park where the Western Harness Racing Association is now in its final week of the 1956 season. All the pacers begin from behind this specially built A. C. McDowell starting gate.

▲ CALLING the stride-by-stride at both the track itself and on television, is veteran announcer Roy Shudt. Originally from Troy, New York, Roy has called all of Western Harness Racing Association's meets since the first back in 1946.

▲ DONNIE HALL, the driving sensation of the 1953 meeting when he turned in three two-minute miles, is back again thrilling the Hollywood Park racing fans.

▲ COMING IN as the winner, Hillsota driven by Earle Avery, one of the big favorites in this year's meet and the winner of last year's $75,000 American Pacing Classic.

▲ SHARP NOTE, 1952 Hambletonian winner, was the first harness horse ever to win over $100,000 in a single season. And little wonder—with those legs! (The horse's, we mean.)

... particularly the men!

The Most Beautiful Girl in the World

"GIRLS. POOF. They don't bother me," says Hal March, emcee of NBC-TV's new quest for The Most Beautiful Girl in the World. (NBC-TV photo.)

EVERYONE you meet these days has an idea for a television show. Thousands of times every day throughout the United States someone is cornering a friend and exclaiming, "Say, how's this sound for a TV show...?" Then follows a detailed description of a usually involved and complicated format.

The trouble with most of them—including the hundreds which flood the desks of network and agency officials is that they are too complex. NBC-KRCA's new program, The Most Beautiful Girl in the World, is a perfect example of what we mean.

What could be simpler? A show

OUR NOMINATION for the Most Beautiful Girl in the World: our own Miss TV-Radio Life, lovely 18-year-old Dorene Georgeson.

featuring gorgeous girls. From Ziegfeld's Follies to Jackie Gleason's chorus line, beautiful women have been exploited in the world of show business. And yet, till now, no one has come up with the idea of featuring girls—and only girls.

There have been two annual events, seen on television, which should have given a good indication that a weekly beauty contest would make a successful format. First, on a national basis, there's the Miss America Beauty Pageant held in Atlantic City and televised coast-to-coast. And then, in Southern California, KTTV for the past few years has focused its cameras on the Miss Universe contest from Long Beach. As most Southlanders know (especially the men) the Miss Universe telecasts are looked upon (literally) with great delight.

Pulchritudinous Premise

So the idea of a quest for the Most Beautiful Girl in the World has been proven to be a sound premise for a weekly, national show.

A sound premise, however, is not always enough to put a show on the air. There are other angles to be considered.

Will a sponsor be willing to pick up the costly tab? Will the public react favorably to it?

For various reasons the Revlon company thought the Most Beautiful Girl in the World was a natural for selling its product. Also, this same company had gained a national reputation for its sponsorship of the $64,000 Question. That was the program that started TV on its quiz-giveaway binge. Revlon had been the "firstest-with-the-mostest" with giving money away. Why not do the same with girls? Instead of brains, beauty is now the byword to success.

And who could be a better man for the emcee job than Hal March, the same man who started so many brains on the "road to the $64,000 Question?" Now he's doing the same with beauty—only this time the grand prize amounts to $250,000.

The worldwide contest is open to any girl without regard to age, occupation or race. Each week M. A. Wallach Research, Inc., recruits audiences from four local NBC-TV stations in different parts of the United States. Trained personnel in each of the four selected cities choose 50 names at random who represent a cross-section of that particular city in regard to age, income, racial origin and residential areas. The list is narrowed down to 25 persons, each of whom then vote for the girls on the basis of both talent and beauty.

The results from each city are transmitted on open telephone circuits to the NBC-TV Colonial Theater in New York where the program originates. The totals are electronically computed in view of the entire television audience.

Each weekly winner receives $1,000 and is then invited to return the following Monday to compete against new contestants. If successful the second week, she receives $2,000—and $3,000 if she wins the third week in a row. After that, the three-time winner becomes eligible for the semi-finals.

So it will be quite a few weeks yet, before there are enough finalists for the coveted Most Beautiful Girl in the World title. But who cares? This is one program that they can take their time picking a grand winner. Isn't that right, fellas?

Doug Edwards,

often called "dean of TV newscasters," heads the oldest established TV news program (CBS-KNXT). Broadcasting since he was fifteen, Doug started on a 100-watter rigged up by friends. Has been in TV ten years next April.

Sir Lancelot . . .

Family Man

From the most famous legend in English history, the bravest knight of the Round Table rides into your living room with dash, color—and chivalry.

WILLIAM RUSSELL (right), starring as the greatest knight of King Arthur's court, captures the villainous Sir Grint (Garry Thorne).

MATH AND HISTORY have long been known as two of the driest subjects in the classroom. Thus far, no one has come up with an idea to make 2 plus 2 more palatable, but there is a sudden rash of historical dramatic series on television.

Which could be a good thing.

One of the latest is KRCA-NBC's Sir Lancelot, produced in England and starring William Russell. It is produced by Hannah Weinstein, who also has been largely responsible for two other English historical series, Robin Hood and The Buccaneers.

In a mail interview with TV-Radio Life, Mrs. Weinstein said she felt the tales of Sir Lancelot and the Round Table will appeal to the American public because "it is a native legend that has all the elements of a timeless universal drama. The 'people' of that era were as much 'people' as we are today. They had their loves, wars, problems and conquests similar to those of the present. We have chosen Sir Lancelot as the central character because he was the most exciting and outstanding member of the Round Table.

"The hope is that the series garners the plaudits of the entire family, for while there are adventure and sword-play, the problems faced by the cast are adult problems with the human relationships of the individual characters forming an interesting sympathy in the viewing audience. Everyone connected with the production has followed a set theme of 'Sir Lancelot for the entire family.'"

Professors' Delight

What should delight the professors of English history and literature is the fact that the series has true historical value with the greatest care taken to assure authenticity of custom and heraldry in the Round Table era—the Sixth and Seventh centuries. Though strictly speaking, the tales of the Round Table are not history, but legend.

However, historians have established that a Round Table did exist in Sixth and Seventh century England and that probably a King Alfred reigned in place of King Arthur. Enough is known of the period to guarantee a reliable sequence of events, grouping of characters and the pageantry of the era.

"Two well-recognized men in the technical and art field in England have been placed in charge of research," according to the producer. "Gray Willoughby and Peter Proud worked in very close collaboration with the history department of Oxford University for nearly a year to establish the theme we followed as being authentic to the era involved.

"We feel we have captured the exact customs, architecture and heraldry for the period. However, Sir Thomas Mallory in his book, Le Morte d'Arthur, has set the pattern of the 'knights in shining armor.' This is such a well-accepted belief that we, for the sake of a more colorful production, will be following this one area for our costuming. The fact is the 'shining armor' era existed around the 14th century."

In one way production of the series in England has been simplified in that they are closer to the authenticities when it comes to props, costuming, and so on.

But in other ways it has not been all tea and crumpets.

The Fog You Know

"Our most difficult production problem in England," Mrs. Weinstein observed, "is the weather. We use the outdoors to such an extent in filming jousting contests, sword-play, et cetera, that the English weather has created a great problem.

"Another important problem has been the finding of all outdoor locations which relate to the era of our story. We usually find a brand new automobile shooting through the background while we're in the midst of filming a scene. We just can't get far enough away from modern day living in England to insure ourselves no interruptions."

In spite of the weather and the cramped locations, six months of TV films have been shot, edited and prepared for exhibition, with the series having made its bow simultaneously in the British Isles and the United States.

So the living room becomes a classroom, with Junior getting his history lessons to the clang of steel on steel.

And it might not hurt Father to watch too. This was the Age of Chivalry, you know.

L.A.'s First Disc Jockey

By Bill Kelsay

AL and his first assistant announcer, Heidi, comment on the music of KFI's Midnight Flyer show.

The term, "disc jockey," is of comparatively recent origin, and one of the first of the breed, KFI's Al Poska, fought bitterly against its acceptance. "It always brought to mind some sweaty guy riding a record," he comments, then shrugs. "But I was overruled. In fact, I've gotten to the point where it doesn't bother me any more."

This is only one of the myriad incidents in the 27 years the slightly-built, mild-mannered deejay has been spinning records, 20 of those years right here in Los Angeles.

"For one thing," he remembers, "there was a time when no self-respecting radio station would play a record—either music or sound effects. They all had stand-by musicians so that when something went wrong on the line, they would fill in with innocuous piano music."

"There was one station in Chicago that used a locomotive sound effect for its signature. But they wouldn't use a record. Instead they had a piece of machinery on top of the Merchandise Mart that was bigger than a locomotive, and this they fired up every time they wanted to identify themselves."

"Obviously, this was ridiculous, especially as recording equipment became better and more economical."

The Deejay

"As for the disc jockey, he began as a character, not a personality, on the all-night shows. These off-beat characters were the only ones who would work these hours. They would play a few records, have their equally off-beat pals drop in and chat about nothing articular and everything in general."

And people listened. They wrote letters to these guys, and very gradually the idea crept into daytime programming. The stations approached it very gingerly at first, but eventually it became a matter of simple economics. After all, how many stations can afford a 50-piece band to play a symphony or a pop piece?"

Al has been in radio since 1929 when he went directly from the University of Nebraska to Station KFAB in Lincoln. He had been bitten by the acting bug Al Poska started in radio when the morning-glory loudspeaker was still in vogue. He has grown up with the wireless machine . . . and with his listeners.

when he was quite young, but his parents had no intention of harboring an actor in the family and insisted he take a business administration course. However, when he came up with a trial balance in accounting that no one could figure out, he was duly flunked and his family was persuaded that Al was not cut out to be a titan of finance.

His first job was playing Victor Herbert melodies and extolling the virtues of the Dempster Self-Warming Hog Waterer. He described in vivid detail how live manure packed in the outer shell of the hog waterer kept the liquid warm, which was all well and good, except this was on a breakfast hour show. It is said his graphic accounts ruined more breakfasts in the Middle West than food poisoning.

In 1936, Al came to California on a vacation, fell in love with the place, resigned his show in Nebraska and moved west, in rapid-fire order.

Blasting Commercials

"It took me three months to find a job," he recalls. "I finally caught on with Station KEHE with an early morning record program. Later I found out I was hired because I sounded like I could pitch clothing. We did blasting commercials for small advertisers who were taking 10 years to go out of business."

Al stayed with the station and the early show as it gradually changed its format and the station's call letters successively became KECA and KFI. He served in the Navy during World War II and when he returned went on KFI's Midnight Flyer Show and the Al Poska Show where he still holds forth.

"I found the music that went big on the morning show was dead with the nighttime audience," he remarks. "They can't take the modern stuff, so I had to go 'square.' The nighttime listener seems to be older and more settled—and more neurotic."

"They are cat and dog lovers, too, I found out. I have had my dachshund, Heidi, on the show several times, and once when she had a minor injury from running in front of a car, I mentioned it on the air. Well, thousands of listeners were seriously concerned."

Pet Adoption Service

"As a result, I now pass on the word for Mrs. Florence Lovett at Laguna who runs what you might call a pet adoption service. We have had people write to us from Texas wanting pets and it isn't at all unusual for folks to drive down from San Diego just to pick one up that I have mentioned on the air."

Al indulges himself in two hobbies. One is a small apartment house on the beach front at Laguna. This keeps him occupied weekends and broke most of the time.

His other hobby is writing songs—which are never published.

But he has no complaints.

"I have grown up right along with my fans. They taught me to appreciate swing and they used to write in about the 'icky' stuff and the 'Mickey Mouse' music. And I find out they are still listening to me."

"There is a tremendous personal satisfaction in just knowing that people like you, and it's a challenge to try to pick the music that is good and that will go. Of course, I'm usually wrong, but it's fun trying."

"I guess it would be kind of hard," he says with a mild laugh, "if I ever had to go to work for a living."
