INSPIRE
THE PEN

Mrs. M.G., Wilmington

I read the horrible article Mrs. R. S. of Los Angeles wrote about Esther Williams. My four children and myself like Esther Williams very much, especially in swimming. I think she is wonderful and an inspiration to all children. Mine want to learn to swim just like her. All of my family thought the picture was marvelous. Of course there are some stuffed shirts around still. And like the old saying "you can't please everyone." Keep up the good work and wonderful front page pictures.

Instead of wasting money on introducing a new doll, Walt Disney should make some new films for both Disneyland and M.M. Club. He already has two prize dolls in Mouseketeers Annette and Darlene. He should look to his own backyard for talent and cut expenses so the public can profit too.

ELVIS PRESLEY

... Unending Favorite

B.P., Riverside

Just read J.H., Mar Vista's complaint on Elvis Presley. I think Elvis has a very nice voice and I think all teenagers will agree. Just because Bing Crosby was a very popular singer in your days, doesn't mean we can't have a very popular singer these days. Does it? And maybe when I am in my 30s and 40s and on up, I won't like the singers then. But just remember every generation has its own ways of fun. Bing Crosby may have been your teen-age love, just like Elvis is ours. So just remember Elvis Presley is a top singer to us, just like Bing Crosby was yours.

JULIE LONDON

... Cover Costume Slammed

Mrs. T.R.R., L.A.

We continue to enjoy your good and interesting magazine, but we didn't care for the picture of Julie London. We see enough of naked women on the Africans and Zulu women, and they have much more to offer. Can't you please put clothes on the front page? Character? Our teenagers think they can dress like the stars.

F. E. Graham, Bellflower

I wish to put in my "wee bit" — in favor of the Tennessee Ernie Ford show. We enjoy his show and like the whole cast. It's a nice clean no-drinking no-shooting no-smoking program. The whole family enjoys it.

We enjoy the spiritual songs. And try to buy the sponsors products at all times. Would like to see Betty and the boys on the show soon. What about it? Missed seeing the family on This Is Your Life, as our little portable TV went uncooperative and a flicker was all we succeeded in getting that night.

CAROL RICHARDS

... Praised

C.C., Norwalk

The Bob Crosby show is one of my favorites that I especially like. Carol Richards has a lovely voice. Why isn't she on more shows that I enjoy?

DICK WHITTINGHILL

... Defended

P.R., Alhambra

In a very recent issue of your magazine (which I enjoy extremely) was a slanderous remark about one of our top disc jockeys.

"Special note to a Hunt. Park Housewife."

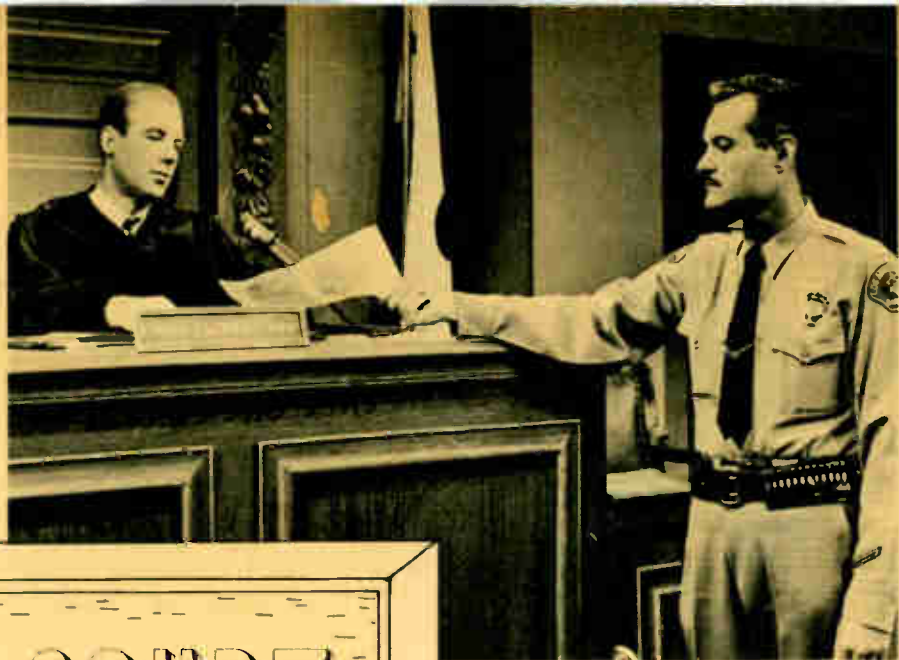

I cannot and I will not believe that anyone who is broadminded and mature enough could possibly think that D.W.'s show and remarks are vulgar. There is a right and a wrong way to take things. So in my opinion you must be the vulgar one.

Keep it up D.W., your doing great. My smiles are all for you.

How about you Public???

705,773 traffic citations were written within
 Los Angeles County in 1956
 ... these citations and trials are being re-enacted
 on KABC-TV's

TRAFFIC COURT

By Dave Vowell

AN AVERAGE of one out of every three residents of Los Angeles received a traffic citation last year.

The re-enactment of these traffic cases in a court room situation is the task taken on by KABC's "Traffic Court."

The program is live. There is no script. The principals on the show play themselves. Los Angeles Municipal Court Judge Evelle Younger presides over the court; Marshall Tim Sperl and Ed Worrell, bailiff and chief clerk at the Los Angeles traffic court appear regularly as well as medical and legal experts, city attorneys and members of the Los Angeles Police Department. Only the defendants, witnesses and defending attorneys are portrayed by professional actors.

TV Innovation

"Traffic Court" is indeed an innovation in live television. It is a dramatic show that is entirely "ad lib." Case histories of traffic offenses ranging from reckless and drunken driving to jaywalking will acquaint the viewer with the actual facts. The judge's decision will not be known before it is made on the show.

Before the show the actors portraying the defendants are told only what they are charged with and are given the details of their case. Thus, during the course of the testimony, a slip of the tongue from the defendant may be the deciding factor in the judge's decision — just as it happens daily in the traffic courts of Los Angeles.

Presiding Judge

A former Pasadena city attorney, Judge Younger is one of the most respected members of the Municipal Court.

Born in Nebraska, he was graduated with an AB and LLB degree from Nebraska University and was admitted to the bar before being old enough to practice law and returned to Northwestern University for graduate work in criminology.

A former FBI special agent, Judge Younger has written many national articles on traffic problems. He is married to Mildred Younger, lecturer and ABC radio and TV commentator. They have a son, Eric, aged 13.

"Traffic Court," with its goal of alleviating traffic problems in Los Angeles, the nation's mobile metropolis, has the endorsement of the National Safety Council, the Los Angeles Police Department and the Los Angeles City Attorney's Office.

The program has an endless supply of source material; 705,773 traffic citations were written in 1956. In the course of a year, every person in Los Angeles has some direct contact with a traffic problem. This year, you or a member of your family may either be in a traffic accident or cited by the police.

Your case may be seen on "Traffic Court."

Jack Bailey, famous emcee of NBC-TV's Queen For A Day, lets loose with some hitherto unrevealed pertinent facts and memorable quotes. This feature should satisfy anyone who wishes to know.

Is Queen For A Day On the Level?

By Ted Hilgenstuhler

MANY A TIME, Queen For A Day doesn't quite look on the up and up. It happens almost every day:

One particular queen candidate announces she is going to get married and she would like a wedding trousseau. Also some appropriate gowns for the bridesmaids. Fifteen or twenty minutes later, this same lady is selected as Queen For A Day. Then, presto chango, before anyone can say Jack Bailey, from behind the magic curtain steps a group of Queen models all dressed in lovely gowns. Immediately the howls begin:

"The show is fixed!" say some. "How could those girls have all those different wedding presents on so soon — unless they knew who was going to win ahead of time?" others ask. Obvious conclusion: the nationwide NBC-TV telecast must not be on the level.

Another example:

Any one of the five Queen candidates can announce at the beginning of the program what she would like if she were selected Queen For A Day. Then, almost invariably, the very presents that the candidate requested, will show up "on stage" at the conclusion of the half-hour show.

Then how about the chitter-chatter that goes on between emcee Bailey and the five candidates. Many times the dialogue seems a little too pat to ring quite true. The woman says something funny; jovial Jack allows her dilemma and the audience's laughter to increase; and then wham-o — there's a verbal payoff! The comedy and dramatic routines are just as clever as many TV skits which $1,000-a-week writers slave over for hours. Does this happen to emcee Bailey purely by chance?

Then, there's the "old pros," as they are called in the TV-radio world. They're the people who make a living at being professional contestants on quiz and audience-participation programs on radio and TV, and also for contests appearing in magazines and newspapers. The Moulin Rouge in Hollywood, originating point for the NBC-TV telecasts of Queen For A Day, is one of the "old pros" favorite hangouts. With all the loot given away from the Queen gang every day, it should be!

These are just a few of the comments that are heard whenever the "honesty and integrity" of Queen For A Day are discussed.

Daily With Bailey

Of course, Queen For A Day wouldn't be alone in this category of backstage conniving. Practically every quiz and audience participation program on TV and radio today have had charges leveled against them that their programs are as crooked as W.C. Fields' old pool stick. And you know what? Many of these charges have been verified.

Many people today (Jack Bailey happens to be one of them) are thoroughly convinced that there are few, if any, completely honest quiz shows on the air today. And there are very few tricks in the trade that emcee veteran Jack Bailey doesn't know — particularly when it comes to his specialty; quiz and audience participation programs.

In order to understand how complicated Bailey's job can get on the NBC-TV program, let's go through some of his functions chronologically:

THIS SHOT WAS TAKEN when Jack Bailey started Queen For A Day on network television for the first time. On radio for years, NBC-TV show is now a tremendous success. Crowning Jack are Queen models and NBC page boys.

First, every day at the Moulin Rouge in Hollywood, 21 contestants are selected from the average daily crowd of 700 people who attend the telecast from all parts of the United States. Jack does not pick the original 21. He lets the Queen staff do that — a staff, incidentally, which now numbers 30 people, not including the NBC crew.

Jack does select the final five contestants — who actually appear on the telecast.

"There's one and only one way that anyone can become a candidate on Queen For A Day," Bailey emphasizes. "A person must have a ticket to our show and must attend the telecast. The ticket actually serves as a ballot, on which the various candidates tell what they want and why they want to be Queen For A Day.

"If one of the candidates comes to me and whispers, 'I know so-and-so who is a friend of yours' — or any kind of personal remark, that's the kiss-of-death for them. They're out!"

Jack never deviates from this principle. On one occasion, he read a card submitted by a particular 'King' candidate — and Jack, without seeing the man, decided to use him on the program. However, when Jack went into the audience to meet the man, he saw immediately that he had met him someplace before. He wasn't a personal friend of Jack's, but at least a nodding acquaintance — and therefore was eliminated.

"Even if a person makes a simple remark, such as 'I'd like to see you after the show, Mr. Bailey,' then she wouldn't get on the air as a contestant in a thousand years. I just won't allow any personal contact with any of the candidates, either before or after the show. Maybe I'm a square for doing it. But frankly, I'd have everything to lose and nothing to gain if I did it any other way."

Jack An Old Pro, Too

If Jack himself picks the five finalists, and he makes certain he does not know them—why do many of his routines on-the-air seem so rehearsed. The only answer to that — is the long-time experience and know-how that Jack Bailey has as an emcee.

"I let them talk away and get themselves into all sorts of verbal trouble. I let them stay there just long enough to have some fun. And then pull them out of it."

Contrary to adverse publicity, Jack does not look for "tear-jerking" candidates.

"Sure, our show gets serious many times, it has to. But we're also on the air to give our audience some entertainment. And for that reason, we try to keep it pretty light."

Another comment often heard about contestants is that many of them are chronic liars.

"That I have no real control over," Bailey admits. "It's like a doctor trying to tell if his patient is really ill; or a teacher, trying to decide if one of her pupils is fibbing or not. After a while, I have a sort of sixth sense. And I can tell fairly well who is lying and who is not."

"Of course, the best judge of a liar is the audience. Especially our audience. I don't know why, but one woman can always sense when another one is lying. And if they feel that way about a contestant, (since the audience selects the Queen,) the person who is lying doesn't have much of a chance to win."

"Caught With Backroom Down"

What about after the Queen is chosen? How can so many prizes be known ahead of time — especially ones which requires the Queen models to dress up completely.

Jack Bailey explains this with one sentence:

"Many a time," he laughs, "we've been caught with our backroom down!"

The "backroom" Jack is referring to, is the immense storage room at the NBC-TV studios, where literally scores of all kinds of gifts are kept. More often than not, whatever a Queen candidate wishes for, the Queen crew can supply in a matter of minutes.

"As far as the wedding dresses are concerned," Jack begins, "that was sort of unusual. We always try to work ahead on the show. As a matter of fact, we have five different endings always prepared and written — one for each of the candidates. This is done by our staff right after I have selected the ladies, and while the program is actually on the air. One day, one candidate wanted some wedding dresses — so during the show we had the models change clothes. They were standing by behind the curtain when the Queen was selected, ready to go 'on camera.'

"However, if any of the other four candidates had been chosen, then we would have been out of luck and the girls would have gone home, never having been seen."

Finally, the "old pros," is one of Jack Bailey's favorite subjects.

"Many people might think I object to these professional contestants. I don't. I love 'em. Of course, I never allow them on the program. I can spot them a mile away. But they are extremely useful to me, especially during the warm-up period at the studio. There's one old man who shows up every week. He has a whistle he blows; for doing it, I give him a dollar; and it's always good for a few laughs from the audience."

Occasionally, one of the "old pros" fool Jack, especially the time he went back to New York. Not being familiar with the "local talent" around the New York studios, Jack selected one "kind and sweet old lady," as a candidate. She even won out as Queen For A Day that afternoon.

"And wouldn't you know it!" Jack laughs today. "They told me later, her name was Saddie Hertz, the biggest and most famous 'pro' of them all!"

JACK BAILEY, the king of the ad-lib, chats with Zsa Zsa Gabor, the queen of the wise-crack, at the NBC studios. Because of his straight-forward, honest approach, the women of America both like and respect the famed emcee.

The Man Who Changed Mae Williams' Luck...and Life

LOCAL TV FANS undoubtedly recall the fine program Mae Williams had on the air several years ago called "Break Through."

By and large, it was a "musical This Is Your Life" — with guest stars featured and with Mae singing songs connected with the subject's life.

Mae is back on the air again — this time on KTLA, Channel 5 — with basically the same format.

Although she herself has had innumerable tough breaks, and has many of her own personal "break throughs," Mae is quite explicit on one point:

"Certainly I've had my problems. But there's one thing I'd like to make perfectly clear: I'm not a sad or maudlin type person. As a matter of fact, I'm usually laughing or joking all the time. And these days, I can honestly say I have never been happier."

Enter Mr. Perry

The blonde-haired vocalist with the Mae West figure makes this last remark looking directly at her husband, Victor Perry, who is also the producer of the Channel 5 program.

"Meeting my husband was unquestionably the finest thing that has ever happened to me. Fall in love, at my age? I thought it was impossible, until I met him."

"Actually, I was in love with Mae for many years before I finally met her," her handsome husband explains. "I had admired her often as a performer, but we never met until last year. In 1950, we came close — we both later find out — when we stood at Times Square on New Year's Eve right next to Father Duffy's statue. She was on one side, I was on the other. Both of us were feeling pretty low and lonely — even in that howling mob."

KTLA Opens Door

A victim of polio twice, Mae suffered her greatest setback when she broke her back falling down a flight of stairs in 1954. That forced cancellation of her former KNXT program. In 1955, she received some encouragement when she was featured on This Is Your Life.

"Everybody loved her, but nobody wanted to give her a job," hubby Perry explains. "I beat on doors all over town trying to convince people that the Mae Williams show would be a success. Lew Arnold and the rest of the staff at KTLA finally believed me."

Mae Williams and her husband have only begun life together, both professionally and personally. What the future holds in store for them, no one can really tell. But whatever happiness or success they achieve, everyone agrees they truly deserve the very best.

KABC-TV's BETTY WHITE, an avid baseball fan, mixed business with pleasure when as "Vicki Angel" she played host to 400 fans and players (including Big Steve Bilko) at Wrigley Field — home of the L.A. Angels. Get it?

ANOTHER BASEBALL PERSONALITY visited town recently — Bob Feller, one of the all-time greats, guested with old friend, KNX's Tom Harmon. Feller has been big booster for players' rights.

SINGERS BILLY STRANGE and Homer Escamilla were all smiles this week. The reason: the release of their new song, "Good Golly, Pretty Molly." It's been recorded by KNX's Rusty Draper on Mercury.

BUSY BETTY WHITE, while in New York for 3 days doing over 20 interviews with press, guested on KNXT's Strike It Rich for blind woodwork expert, Nicholas Lalli (center). Betty and Mr. Lalli answered Warren Hull's questions correctly.

FIRST LOVE: Now that Sid Caesar and his former TV wife, Imogene Coca, have seemingly kissed and made up, we'll have to wait to see what kind of show they can put together and when and where they will get it aired. It is rather late (for next season) to be starting, but then again, it's different with Sid and Imogene who worked together so beautifully for so long. It will also be interesting to see whether they miss the guiding hand of Max Liebman.

IT WAS EXCITING TO READ a trade item to the effect that a TV series may be done on that great Comstock Lode metropolis, Virginia City. Source material for scripts would come from files of Lucius Beebe's Territorial Enterprise. This partly inhabited ghost town is fascinating with its wooden sidewalks, old hangouts, the Piper Opera House where all the greats of the Silver Rush days appeared. Last time I visited the Opera one could still walk out on the stage where famous performers were showered with gold coins and where the boards were specially sloped to show off the gorgeous gowns of feminine stars. If you ever stop in Virginia City, be sure to visit the Catholic Church where there is a wealth of museum material. And opposite Piper's notice the site of the renowned International Hotel, swank hostelry which boasted the first hotel elevator west of the Rockies. The International was destroyed in a fantastic fire after the turn of the century.

DOROTHY COLLINS, ex-Hit Parader, made a pretty bow to Hollywood press when she flew down from her Thunderbird engagement in Las Vegas to give Hollywood a second going-over. Now that her lengthy seven-year engagement with Hit Parade is over, Dorothy is more than eager to broaden scope of her activities (she's been taking drama lessons on the side). "I realize now that it was a mistake to tie myself down to one thing for so long," she observed. After Vegas she'll do musical comedy in the East, then guest with Steve Allen on September 25. Her husband, Raymond Scott, has returned to his chief interest, composing and to the jingle company which he heads (he wrote the "Be happy, go Lucky" jingle Dorothy always sang and which she tabs "The best one ever written"). The Scotts' little Debbie, now three, object of scores of gifts when she was born, is still remembered on birthdays by many of Dorothy's fans.

Hospitalized with breaks and bruises after a traffic mishap, she has lost out on Matinee in just about the best part she's ever had on TV.

THE BIG MULTIPLE SCLEROSIS show (they're not calling it a "telethon" but a "Ten Hour Parade of Stars for M.S."—will try to get all that in the log listings!) will be a daylight marathon from 7 a.m. to 5 p.m. Aug. 25, KNXT. Only three telethons a year now being permitted, this will be the final one and according to emcee Bob Crosby, will have more entertainment than others. Faithful Jack Rourke produces.

TRIP TIPS

By Jack McElroy

Another special cruise to Mexico has been announced by the Hawaiian Steamship lines.

The S.S. Leilani, usually on the San Francisco-Los Angeles-Honolulu run, has scheduled two holiday trips over Thanksgiving and Christmas.

Each will take two weeks including 3-day stop-overs at Acapulco and 2 days at Mazatlan. Passengers can embark from Los Angeles or San Francisco.

A very pleasant week-end jaunt from the Los Angeles area is the Glen Ivy Hot Springs. Located just a few miles outside of Corona, approximately one hour and forty minutes from Los Angeles, it features among other things, Danish food, their own private trout stream, horseback riding and three natural hot springs of varying degrees of heat ranging upward from 90 degrees.

It's set in a magnificent citrus grove in the foothills and has its own landing strip. Rates are reasonable and it has a family atmosphere.

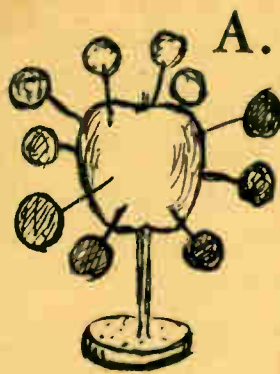

We are leaving today for a trip to Phoenix and will survey the surrounding area to suggest a vacation for you which will probably be apropos in the fall.

We'll tell you about it when we return. In the meantime hope to see you on Friday night at 6:15 p.m. and Saturday at 5:00 p.m. over Channel 4.

LIFELINES

MISS BERNICE KING, one of our mail subscription readers, recently received a letter from Spain and was so curious that she had it translated. It was addressed to "Dear & unknown Mrs. or Miss" and stated that the writer, a young Spanish boy, was interested in collecting post cards from all over the world and was "petitioning" her to send some of our fair city. He also asked for a pen pal. His name, etc: Elvio Victo Gonjalej, C/Ysidro Rueda No. 26, 2ndo Piso, Ponferrada (Leordi) Espana. How he got Miss King's name and address? Oh, to be sure! Seems one of her old TV-Radio Life's found its way to Ponferrada with her addressograph data quite readable.

I GOT myself out on the limb of a popo tree — here's how it happened: I was writing one of these weekly ads for our positively delicious KoldKist Fresh Frozen Cooked Foods and Meat Products and accidentally slithered off the subject and stated erroneously that Bob Cummings was the composer of the beautiful ballad "Typhoon Carry Up the Popo Tree."

It is true that the song was introduced at a bat-infested cabaret by Ann B. Davis who now plays Schultzzy on The Cummings Show, but it turns out that the popo song was written by the talented composer Jim Leighton to whom we apologize.

That still doesn't explain what is it a popo . . . and a popo tree.

A popo is like a meat ball but is made of chicken and lobster and is the size of a grape. Deep fried. When cooked the popos are impaled on toothpicks jabbed into an apple. (You better look at diagram A because it takes more than words to explain this.) Popo trees are avail-

RODOLFO HOYOS is one of this town's finer actors, his impressive talent being seen recently in the movie, "The Brave One," in which he played the father. He has also appeared on countless TV shows, one of the latest being the first hour-long Lucy-Desi show which will be seen in October.

"This Lucy show is the best script I've seen in a long time," Rodolfo remarked. "It is wonderful. Wait until you see Lucy and Ann Sothern in a drunk scene. It's a riot!" We shot the show in almost a record—in three and a half hours. This was even more amazing considering that we had to change stages too during the actual shooting."

Rodolfo is glad to be doing comedy for a change since, outside of "The Brave One," he's been relegated to villainy roles. He's been in America for 32 years. He and his mother and father and brother came here from Mexico supposedly for two months and stayed 32 years. His father is a noted operatic singer, Rodney Hoyos, and has sung with Chaliapin, Martinelli, and others. In fact, Rodolfo made his acting debut in "Madame Butterfly" at the age of two.

Rodolfo is married, has two children, a boy 8½ and a girl who is nearing 6. He and his family naturally love music, opera especially and they have a large collection of records. Rodolfo's wife, Sophia, is, as he puts it, "a ham at heart. She really acts when she helps me with my scripts."

Oddly enough, it was a long time before anyone would cast Rodolfo—and simply because nobody thought he looked Mexican. "I also refused to give out with an accent that Hollywoodians thought was Mexican but was really nothing," Rodolfo said. "I had to grow a mustache finally in order to get any parts."

FROM time to time in this column I have made mistakes in my estimate of various films. I have praised pictures overmuch, or panned them unfairly, and recently I failed to give a film its just due. It was a Channel 2 movie a few weeks ago entitled, "We Are Not Alone," with Paul Muni, Jane Bryan and Flora Robson, and it is a really excellent picture. This statement is made without force or duress and without thought to financial gain unless offered.

"All This and Heaven, Too." (5) Aug. 4, 7:30. 1940. A love story in the grand tradition, this Anatol Litvak production stars Bette Davis and Charles Boyer, as governess and duke, respectively, who fall in love, a situation naturally leading to the ultimate elimination of the duchess, Barbara O'Neil. The story has an aura of psychological nuance which lends a certain credibility to Rachel Field's plot, and while a bit ponderous at times, the film is a good one.

"Jane Eyre." (2) Aug. 3, 10:00. 1943. Another love story in the period style, this famous Charlotte Bronte tale is brought to the screen with Joan Fontaine in the title role and Orson Welles as Rochester, the mysterious master of Thornfield Hall. All the familiar elements are here... the young governess, the mad wife, the devastating fire and the eventual uniting of the two lovers... done in a fine fashion by the cast, especially Welles, who was svelter, then.

"Roodhouse." (11) Aug. 4, 9:00. 1948. Now, here is a love story in the modern manner. Cornel Wilde and Richard Widmark own a gin mill and hire Ida Lupino to work for them as a thrush. Widmark loves her but goes away, which gives Cornel a chance to realize that he loves her, too. Widmark, returns, sizes up the situation, frames Cornel on an embezzlement rap and then has him paroled to his custody. The climax is a blazing fusillade of gunfire, Miss

Such is a candid view of a fine actor—and a fine person. Thought you might like to meet Rodolfo.

Dick Lane celebrates 15 years on KTLA this August and certainly this is a record of some kind. Dick's own particular talent has done much to spark TV, and he has continued to give KTLA something to brag about. It would be a very nice gesture if someone at KTLA gave Dick a whing-ding of a celebration for his anniversary. The years he has spent, the faith he has shown in TV are deserving of some recognition.

Odds and Ends: A young actor by the name of Henry Randolph is acting the hard way—getting jobs as often as he can and working in a gas station the rest of the time. This is real devotion to a career and he is deserving of some good breaks because he can act... Nice contest "Chuck 'n Luck" is throwing on KTLA—its jingle contest offers round trip ticket for two to Hawaii with two weeks at the Hale-A-Kulani Hotel, all expenses paid, an inter-island trip, and a complete luau...

Nat "King" Cole landed at the Coconut Grove and created his usual smash. Nobody does to a song what Nat does. He sort of plays with it, caresses the words, makes every ballad sound like a moonlit night and a tropic breeze, he socks across a comedy number like "Why Can't A Woman Be Like A Man?" and "Calypso Blues," and he winds up leaving his audience yelling for more. One of the greatest things Nat does, though, is to do practically no talking. He is a singer—and so he sings. Too many entertainers "chat" their audience into boredom. Incidentally, Nat's KRCA-NBC show is zooming!—and it's a fine job he's doing. He also has a new Capitol album called "This is Nat 'King' Cole," which is sure to be another best-seller.

I'm now taking off on a business-pleasure trip to Europe. Next week's column will hail from New York with others to follow from London, Paris, Rome and other points. Also one from the French Line's Liberte on which I'm sailing. Good bye for now.

Pick OF THE Pix

BY AUBREY DAHL

Lupino sings in a pleasantly infectious croak and Widmark is a rotter if ever I saw one.

"Dangerous." (2) Aug. 6, 11:00. 1935. And another love triangle, this time concerning a society belle, Margaret Lindsay, an architect, Franchot Tone and an actress on the skids, Bette Davis, who won an Academy Award for her performance in this picture, when everyone thought she should have won it the year before for "Of Human Bondage." Here, she proves a jinx to men and the theater and after an auto crash and the reappearance of an almost forgotten husband, proves that she is, indeed, at least dangerous.

"Back To Bataan." (9) Beginning Aug. 5, 9:00. 1945. This is a tribute to the courage and endurance of the Filipino guerrilla fighting forces who maintained a bastion on the Islands until the Allies could return. With John Wayne and Anthony Quinn.

"Red Dust." (11) Aug. 5, 10:15. 1932. "Mogambo" was a glossy African adventure about a guide, a sick husband, a wife who loved the guide and a lady of easy virtue and it starred Clark Gable, Ava Gardner and Grace Kelly. Well, "Red Dust" is the original of that film and it starred Clark Gable, Jean Harlow and Mary Astor and I'm sure that it will have a great deal more earthiness and excitement than "Mogambo."

"Pilot No. 5." (11) Aug. 7, 10:15. He flew the Chanel, of course.

"On Camera"

by Bill Weber

George Sanders Theater
Saturday, 9 p.m.,
KRCA, Ch. 4

George Sanders is an excellent actor. But the present mystery series tied to the Sanders name is anything but. And one suspects that Mr. Sanders' liaison is purely of a commercial nature and not an affair of the heart. However that may be, Mr. Sanders comes off somewhat the worse in a heavy-handed struggle with all too preciously cute dialogue aimed at dispelling the boredom of commercials.

Sanders' plight brings up the old question of using the name actor as a huckster and as a box-office draw although he, or she, appears only rarely or as a somewhat awkward commentator on the action of a feeble script unable to exist on its own merits.

There can be no quarrel with the actor for such participation, for the actor, despite the glamor surrounding the profession, must eat like any other human being.

There is no gainsaying that a box-office name will draw an audience, but it is equally axiomatic that the material must have substance on its own merit. The theater has learned over the past few centuries that while a great play may establish an actor as star of luminous magnitude in the theatrical firmament, the great star has never been able to save from deserved oblivion the downright poor story.

The television producer who believes otherwise is indulging in wishful thinking or placates his better judgment by employing the stellar name as some sort of insurance for a dubious product. It would seem a much sounder investment to develop quality material storywise.

Too, today's television audiences are much more sophisticated than any theater audience in history. With the abundance of dramatic material on television offering entertainment names of all degrees in material of all degrees, the competition is just too stiff for any big name in the entertainment world to pull against the odds of bad material.

Careful study of series shows which have been associated with drawing power names would indicate that over the long haul it is the material that draws the audience. A notable case, of course, is the Alfred Hitchcock show. To be sure, audiences are captivated by Hitchcock's name, charm, and humor, but the big drawing card is that episode after episode is consistently good entertainment, whether Hitchcock or Joe Doaks is the host.

All in all, it pretty much boils down to the inescapable fact that it isn't just the fancy wrapping that sells; a five-and-dime store present wrapped in a Saks Fifth Avenue box is still a five-and-dime value.

HAVE FUN—SAFE FUN!

By Buster Crabbe,

(Former Olympic swimming champion, and star of NBC-TV's "Captain Gallant of the Foreign Legion")

I'm constantly astonished at the number of people who go so headlong into their vacations that they cast sanity aside.

As a kid in Hawaii, I was constantly reminded of the need for safety in recreation. I suppose that's why this has always been one of my pet causes.

A vacation can—and should—be a pleasure, but it also can—and shouldn't—be a disaster. Just a little bit of caution can make the difference. Let's start with fishing, for example. Here are a few simple rules I think might come in handy.

1. Keep those loose hooks under cover! You can't tell where they are apt to turn up. But if it's the wrong place, you'll find out—painfully.

2. Look around and check before you cast with your rod. Make sure there's enough room for the line. And be sure there's no chance of hooking anyone in the area—except fishes.

3. Grab that fish securely before unhooking him. There's no better way for a frisky fish and a sharpened hook to chalk up a casualty— you. Lots of you will be taking nice walks in the woods and here are a few tips about that vacation activity:

1. While you may feel like a Tarzan, don't try to be one. Walk around objects such as trees and logs— don't try to leap over them. You might take a spill or get pinned under the object.

2. Never go without a compass or without marking your path in strange woods. And head home in plenty of time before sundown— it's not too much fun to be lost in the woods.

Then there are the favorite pastimes of tennis and swimming. They're both plenty of fun— if you go about them right.

One big rule concerning tennis should be: don't overdo it! Unless you play regularly, take a week or so to break in slowly. Don't stay out in the hot sun too long, either.

As for swimming, here are a few fundamentals:

1. Don't swim until an hour and a half after meal-time.

2. Watch where you're going. Don't dive headlong into the water without first examining its depth. Make sure, too, that you don't exceed a safe depth for your swimming ability.

Remember, vacations are to have fun. Make it safe fun!

SKIPPER FRANK'S SCAM-O-GRAM

HI:
 Wheh!! We've been overwhelmed with the number of applications from all our pals who want to join the "Skipper Frank Herman Cartoon Carousel Club." Very soon we will be telling you how to pick up your membership and code card right in your own neighborhood.

Every week I receive letters that start like this, "I know I am much too old to be watching 'Cartoon Carousel' but I do enjoy the cartoons and etc, etc." Lets put these folks at their ease right now. CC is for everyone that is young in heart. In a recent contest we had entries from folks right up to the age of sixty-four.

Howard Jans of Puente writes, "I always enjoy the "How to do it Magic Tricks" on Cartoon Carousel... give us some more with money. OK, Howard, remember the Scam O Gram, is your column and I'll try my best to fill every request... here are three bill tricks.

Challenge your friends to find the key on a dollar bill. It is easy when you know where to look. It's in the lower part of the blue seal to the right of Washington.

Show your friends a five dollar bill and ask them to find the names of more than twenty states. They're in small print across the top of Lincoln Memorial. Hold bill flat against glass of water, and look through water to magnify printing.

Observation test. Challenge your audience to guess how many times "one" (either word or number) appears on the two sides of a dollar bill. At least 27 not counting the "ones" which may appear in the serial number.

Be sure to watch "Cartoon Carousel" on KTLA Channel 5, 4:00-5:30 p.m. every day.

In closing, Julius wants me to remind you about the Bop cannibal. The one who eats three squares a day.

RESEMBLANCE STOPS

Tallulah Bankhead and Gertrude Berg have homes on the same street in tiny Bedford Hill, N.Y. They often meet while shopping but never walk together. Tallu can't abide walking in the sun, and television's famous "Molly" hates the shady side.

AT HOME
with the
HARMONS

TOM HARMON and wife Elyse Knox don't always stand like this in front of their home to greet guests—it's merely for our photographer to show him that they really are quite proud of their home.

"NOW WHEN THAT TACKLER comes at you, son," Tom explains to young Mark, "you stiff arm him that-a-way." Looks like Tom has a future All-American on his hands.

it's child's play

*Hi Fi may mean high finance.
So before you flip your tweeter pre-amp over teacup listen in while experts Wagner and Klein pose this question:*

SO YOU'RE GOING TO BUY A Hi Fi?

By Dave Vowell

MATHEMATICIAN-PHYSICIST-ELECTRONIC ENGINEER and star of KABC TV's Adventure Tomorrow, Dr. Martin Klein gets down to earth on build-it-yourself hi-fi.

HIGH FIDELITY music reproduction and its inherent pleasures and pains can be boiled down to a matter of taste, time and temperament.

If you have the taste for it and the time to tinker with its mechanical and electronic involvements, Dr. Martin Klein of KABC's Adventure Tomorrow is your man. However, if you have the taste but lack the mechanical inclination, stand referred to the opposite page and Jack Wagner, KHJ's deejay who has had the Hi-Fi bug for years.

Whatever your temperament, money is a prime requirement. Both gentlemen agree that an expenditure of approximately $300 is basic to good sound reproduction.

"A lot of people call any record player a Hi-Fi set, says expert Wagner, "and nothing could be less accurate. That's like putting a Cadillac and a jalopy in the same class — they're both cars but that's where the similarity ends."

Dr. Klein reports that it is necessary to bring four elements into alignment for Hi-Fi reproduction: a speaker, an amplifier, a turntable and arm, and either an AM or FM tuner or both.

Prices for these items run anywhere from $39 to $1,500 for the speakers to $10 for a turntable. Dr. Klein believes, however, that a good set can be put together for around $300.

Here's how he breaks it down — all prices are the lowest possible estimate for the best possible equipment.

Speaker or speakers, $150; turntable and arm, $75; amplifier, $30 and AM-FM tuner, $45. Total: $300.

These components are, for the most part, inter-connectable via standardized fittings.

Dr. Klein recommends a "composite loud speaker which combines the qualities of separate 'woofers' and 'tweeters'." He also advises against attempting to make a speaker at home because "speaker systems are the most difficult to design for faithful reproduction."

"The enclosure for the speaker is also vital," Dr. Klein says, "so it is wise either to buy a self-enclosed speaker or to build one only with tested and proven plans."

The turntable and arm are next in order of importance. The placement of the turntable should be at least five to ten feet away from the speaker to eliminate hum and possible feed back.

Dr. Klein argues against the automatic record changer on the grounds that it might damage the records when they drop onto the turn table.

"The amplifier has been over-emphasized," Dr. Klein claims, "because any wattage over ten is for the most part unimportant to the performance of the set." He adds that "most amplifiers or 'pre-amps' are covered with knobs and knobs on knobs that most people just don't need."

There is a kit available from which you can build your own amplifier by merely following the instructions. They cost around $10 to $15 and with the aid of a soldering iron, a pair of pliers and a screwdriver just about anybody, Dr. Klein says, could put them together.

Dr. Klein reports that "the variable reluctance pick-up reproduces excellently but the semi-precious stones used in the pick-up head are not permanent and should be changed after 50 hours or so of playing time. The viscous damped pickup arm which, because of its hydraulic action cannot come down heavily on a record even if it's dropped, is also recommended."

It is possible to build your own AM-FM tuner from a kit, but it's easier, Dr. Klein states, to use a cheap radio with an external out-put for your speaker. "A tuner merely picks up the signal from the antennae and feeds it to the amplifier so there's no need to put a lot of money in a tuner."

Finally, with tongue in cheek, Dr. Klein says that "when you get these four components together and hook them up you'll be able to hear high fidelity reproduction of music. But for real Hi-Fi, spend the $300 for a live orchestra; brother, that's Fi at its highest!"

THE WAGNER REPORT

At least three of the four basic elements of a Hi-Fi set can be made by following the instructions found in the package with the equipment, but KHJ deejay Jack Wagner likes the easy way.

"With $300 to play with," he says, "you can buy yourself a pretty good ready made set, although its best to go along with Dr. Klein and buy the parts separately. That is, buy the enclosed speaker, hook it up to a tailor made pre-amp and then connect that with a store bought tuner and an automatic record changer.

"You can get a self-enclosed co-axial speaker for about $30 to $75; a four-speed changer for about $75 and an AM-FM tuner in combination with an amplifier for $175.

"And with that you're just about ready to go—go out and buy some records."

In the record department, a slot where Jack feels pretty much at home, he says that because a record is pressed in Hi-Fi doesn't mean that you hear it in Hi-Fi.

"You can't get Hi-Fi out of a lo-fi machine—the record is only as good as the player."

He's Flicka's Friend

By Jack Holland

York a few days later to appear in another TV show, "Star Tonight." But by now Hollywood was buzzing him.

20th Century-Fox sent Johnny a wire asking him to come to Hollywood to test for the role of the boy in the My Friend Flicka series. He left for the coast, made the test, and then heard two days later he had the part.

Interests

The day I saw Johnny he was quite interested in another undertaking — his taking over as sponsor for a little league ball club. The team's name is Johnny's "Little Angels."

The acting job in My Friend Flicka was no problem but Johnny was a little concerned about having to ride.

"I was a real city slicker," he laughed. "My father gave me riding lessons as soon as he heard I had the part and I managed all right. I only fell off the horse once — and then it wasn't in the show."

"Bob Wagner, who is a good friend of mine, was making a picture near our location, and I rode Flicka over to see him one day when I wasn't busy. I was riding bareback. On the way back the sudden roar of a motor scared Flicka, she bolted off, and I fell off, and cracked a couple of bones in my wrist. I was in a cast for a few days but I went on working."

Johnny likes it in Hollywood and plans to stay here. He has only one complaint — he can't find anyone who can fix fish and chips the way a certain corner store in Toronto prepared them.

"Fish and chips done that way are just about my favorite food. I'm kind of fussy about what I eat, though. I like things plain. And I don't like a lot of butter on toast."

"Once I did a margarine commercial on TV. I was told to take a huge gob of margarine, spread it on some bread, and then say how good it was. I did that all right but after spreading it I automatically scraped most of it off the bread and put it back on the plate. The sponsor did hire me again — why, I'll never know."

Well, this Johnny is a real find!

JOHNNY WASHBROOK is that rarity in pictures — a genuinely refreshing, unspoiled, non-precocious child actor.

Johnny, who now lives in Van Nuys with his brothers, Donald, 16, and Michael, 7, and his parents, hails from Canada. He has only been in this country for a little over two years.

Got Part

"I probably would never have been thought of for Flicka or for television here if I hadn't gone to New York on a holiday some time back," Johnny remarked. "I had met a girl from New York when she was in Canada and she asked my family and me to visit her. She lives on Staten Island. Well, one Easter we decided to accept her invitation."

"My mother and I had been at this girl's house for a few days when my friend had to go into the city for an audition for a TV job. I decided to go along with her — just for the ride. But when we got to the studio I was told they were trying to find a boy my age for a part in a U. S. Steel Hour show. I had done a good deal of acting on TV in Canada and so I was taken in for a reading."

About 80 boys had been auditioned for the part and none was satisfactory. Johnny read just a few minutes and was immediately cast in the part. However, the producers wanted him for the lead role, but it had been cast only ten minutes before Johnny arrived.

"Here's your script," Johnny was told, "but don't learn the lines."

This seemed rather odd but Johnny thought that perhaps they did things differently in New York. Two days later, though, the producer called and Johnny had the lead role. The boy who had been cast previously was paid off and let go.

"I didn't like to take anyone else's part and I at first refused it," Johnny said, "but I was assured that the boy didn't really want to act. He was a musician and he only wanted the money for his lessons. He got the money so all was all right."

Johnny did the show and then left for his home in Toronto. The response to his work on U. S. Steel was so fantastic he was immediately in demand for more parts. He returned to New

AND HIS DREAM

Vic Damone once again is doing his own CBS-KNXT show but it's probably his last time around on any regular basis. He has other plans for the future.

By Jack Holland

VIC DAMONE sat down at the table in the Polo Lounge of the Beverly Hills Hotel and asked for a phone.

As could be expected, he was phoning Pier, his wife. He makes it a point to call her several times during the day just to talk to her. With anyone but Pier and Vic such a thing might seem corny, but with these two you not only believe the real love that is here but you can't help saying to yourself, "At last, here is a couple who take time out for sentiment, who have found completeness in life through each other."

"Every time I call," Vic said, "my young son has to say hello too. He's only 21 months old. Go ahead — say hello to him."

I did and a small voice on the other end said lightly, "Hello . . . goodbye."

Vic then had a package brought in. He had bought a pin for Pier — a figure of an angel holding a small diamond. He had seen it in the store, it had reminded him of her because, as he said, "She's such an angel," and he bought it as a surprise for her.

Vic was returning to New York to do his own TV show again this summer for CBS-KNXT as he had done last year. But this time it was to be an hour program instead of a half hour.

TV Lessons

"Last year I was a novice and pretty shaky about doing TV," Vic remarked, "but now I'm much more relaxed and confident. I think I gained confidence only since I've been married and since our son was born. Having someone to work for gives you a feeling of security you get nowhere else.

"I learned a lot about TV last year. For one thing, I'm not going to learn each line of the script word by word as I tried to last year. Instead I'll just get the key phrases down, the basic thoughts.

"The format will be much the same as it was before with about two guest stars a week scheduled. I'd like to work in a few dramatic sketch lead-ins into a song since I am becoming more and more interested in acting.

"As a matter of fact, my one big ambition now is to make another picture so I can prove to the producers here I can really act. They look on me only as a young singer. I'd like to play a heavy — which may come as a surprise, but when you sing a heavy ballad you're certainly having to do some acting too. Pier is all for my ambition." After a pause he added, "There's one picture now that is right for me — 'A Very Special Baby,' I really want that one!"

Vic definitely has no desire for a regular TV show of his own — one that would go into a full season. Last year he wanted to attempt such a deal but not now.

"After I finish the present nine weeks I would like to do a guest spot perhaps once every three weeks or so," Vic declared. "I feel that anyone who goes on week after week is taking a chance with his career. The public can tire of you so fast. I've found audiences are very fickle, so I'd rather do my summer stint and then let them alone for a while, let them forget me."

Marriage

Vic has been away from his home much too often recently due to his commitments, but when he is in New York, Pier and his son will join him after the first couple of weeks.

"When I used to have to be away Pier and I would phone each other all the time," Vic said with a grin. "Now we just send telegrams. It doesn't cost quite so much that way. However, separations aren't so bad any more because our marriage is sound. We know it will last and we know that when we have to be apart it's not going to hurt what we have together.

"My marriage has been a wonderful thing. Every day I have found something new and beautiful in Pier. I've never been happier nor more contented. Believe me, you're looking at a very, very lucky guy."

Many spend a lifetime looking for what Pier and Vic have found. Some find it and let it slip through their fingers. With Mr. and Mrs. Damone and family it will never be lost.
