... 'work as hard as grownups'

L. S., Granada Hills

I don't think it is fair for Mouseketeers Annette and Darlene to have all the publicity they are getting. I think they are both great girls, but not that much. I think the others deserve it too. Take Cheryl, she has something that Annette and Darlene don't have put together. That is beauty. Our whole family thinks she is adorable.

S. M., Elmonte

I want to say I'm with L. B. of Los Angeles and J. K. of Van Nuys about Annette and Darlene. I think they are the most hard working teenagers on TV. I also think people should give the teenagers and under more credit, because they do just as much hard work as the grown-ups. Darlene, Annette and all the Mouseketeers are real actors and actresses in my book.

H. S., Montrose

It looks as if Walt Disney has finally acknowledged the talents of Darlene Gilesie and Annette Funicello. We are all looking forward to the Oz picture.

S. K., Chatsworth

My friends and I think Darlene and Anette are the prettiest, sweetest and most talented teen dolls on TV.

Mrs. J. M. J., Lawndale

I am a mother of three small children and I'm wondering now that school has started and so many small children have to go to bed earlier, why can't KABC-TV please put Disneyland on an hour earlier or better still, at 6 p.m. and just change places with Kit Carson. Thank you for letting me sound off.

DOROTHY GARDINER

... charming KTLA hostess

T. R. J., Los Angeles

After viewing Dorothy Gardiner for several years, I had the pleasure of meeting her for the first time at one of her personal appearances. She's as charming as she is on television. I enjoy her KTLA show very much.

Mr. and Mrs. M., Riverside

We do wish it were possible for Joe Pyne to be on TV at an earlier hour. His program is very interesting and should not be on at such a late hour. Some of those headache programs should go. We can do without all that shooting on TV. Can't figure out why a good program must take a back seat.

Mrs. G. A. H., Huntington Park

Pat Boone and Tennessee Ernie are my favorites. I'm glad Ernie's back and Pat's got his own show.

Mrs. E. W., Torrance

I have one gripe to tell you about — from myself and many friends and neighbors. We all enjoy The Verdict Is Yours. We wouldn't miss it, but why, oh why does Jim McVay stick his head in the screen every few minutes and repeat a couple of times just what we've already heard from the lawyers and witnesses on the stand? We do miss out on so much of the case when he so rudely interrupts.

At Last! It's Here!

TV's First Adult Southern Civil War Series

STARRING as Confederate leader John Mosby (The Gray Ghost) on Channel 11 is actor Tod Andrews.

FROM the sublime to the superfluous. That's the story of various labels that they have pinned on recent TV series.

Just as in the old newspaper days, various producers wanted to be the firstest with the mostest. As a result, no adjectives were spared to give some kind of uniqueness to a new program. This tendency to expound the exclusivity of a particular program reached its peak during the past few seasons when so many westerns hit our TV screens. In the beginning, the shows (Autry, Rogers, etc) were merely called "westerns," and aimed for the kiddies. Then when shows like Gunsmoke came along, the expression "adult western" became popular. This past Fall, with so many new formats in the western field, every possible type of description was used to promote them.

When The Gray Ghost on Channel 11 came along, the KTTV publicity department (mainly as a gag) went one better than all the rest. The Gray Ghost series is based on the fascinating life and legend of Confederate Ranger John Singleton Mosby and his exploits during the Civil War. As the first TV series to delve into the fertile field of drama and heroism surrounding the War Between the States, it concentrates specifically on the activities of the rangers or "irregular army" which Mosby commanded.

Mosby, in real life, was practicing law at Bristol, Virginia, when the Civil War began. He offered his services to the Confederacy only on the condition that he be given the opportunity to lead a band of cavalry raiders. (During those times — unlike today — a man could make such a request when joining a "volunteer" army.)

Within a short time Mosby had 300 daredevils on horseback at his command. The record that Mosby and his men made — operating around and behind the Union lines, stealing horses and ammunition, and harrassing the Federal forces in general — forms the basis for the new KTTV series.

So how to describe it? Keeping in line with the recent trend of having the firstest, the mostest and the bestest, Channel 11 has come up with this description for The Gray Ghost:

"TV's First Adult Southern Civil War Series."

Who can doubt the authenticity of this claim to TV fame? The most disputed word would be "adult."

To back up this contention, the producers point out that they have hired Virgil Carrington Jones as the historical advisor for the program. Mr. Jones is the author of "Ranger Mosby" and "Gray Ghosts and Rebel Raiders," the two documentary books published by Henry Holt & Co., Inc. which form the basis for the current TV series.

Jones at the age of 51 is one of the South's most respected reporters and authors.

Bruce Catton, Pulitzer Prize winning Civil War historian, called Jones' latest book on Mosby "an uncommonly interesting and important new chapter in the Civil War story. One cannot fully understand the course of the Civil War in the Eastern theatre without digesting Mr. Jones' account of the guerrillas."

As further proof that The Gray Ghost is both "authentic and adult," the producers point out the great similarity between star Tod Andrews and the Confederate ranger leader whom he portrays.

Andrews, like Mosby, has taught himself to be an expert horseman. As a Confederate officer, he presents a dashing, handsome dramatically uniformed figure. A veteran mainly of Broadway, Andrews fits into the KTTV role with ease.

Maybe the description as "The First TV Adult Southern Civil War Series" — originally intended as a gag — is not so silly after all? At least, for the first time, it gives the Southerners a chance to get even with these usually victorious "damn Yankees."

HOW

Bing and Frankie

REALLY GET ALONG

By Jack Holland

WHEN BING CROSBY arrived at Samuel Goldwyn's Studio to film the Christmas Show with Frank Sinatra he learned that the director was The Voice himself.

"Where are my things?" Bing quipped. "I'm leaving."

This set the key for the antics and goings-on between these two. It was all-out and every man for himself.

Actually, the two men really formed a sort of mutual admiration society—and this admiration goes a long way back, at least as far as Sinatra is concerned. When he was a kid in Hoboken, back in 1936, he saw a Bing Crosby picture and was so impressed with Bing's singing he decided to pursue the same career.

Today, Bing is such a Sinatra fan that he is convinced he deserves the title of "World's Greatest Entertainer."

Set Doings

Much went on during the shooting of this special program for Frank's ABC-TV show. The set was theoretically closed, but somehow people from the lot managed to sneak in side doors just to hear the two stars sing. Then the entourages of both Frankie and Bing were around—men like Jimmy Van Heusen, Sammy Cahn, Ted Husing, and, of course, Kathy Grant—now Mrs. Bing Crosby. Bill Morrow, who has written for Bing for years and who penned the notably successful Edsel Show, also wrote this one.

One of the madder moments on the set arrived when Mike Todd called one day. Frank answered the phone and when he hung up, he said with a grin,

FRANK SINATRA who is also a Capitol Records recording star, made his debut as a director on this episode for his ABC-TV show. He's not praying here. He's singing off-stage for an effect.

December 14, 1957

was in the scene, handed him his hat and said, "Take the skimmer." Then he gave him his coat with, "And the drape."

Altogether, there were 35 changes of dialogue due to ad-libs by the stars.

It was sheer magic to watch these two work. The two acted as though they were a life-long team. Bing was especially impressed by Frankie's directorial ability — especially little things he did to get the right effect. In one scene, Sinatra wanted a close-up on the faces of the 50 carolers used in the picture. While the camera picked up their expressions, Frankie, on the sidelines, was singing the carol to them to help put them in the mood.

About Bing, Frank was heard to say, "You got to be good to work with him. He's such a professional. If you just follow him around you're safe."

Not once did director Sinatra have to tell Bing what to do. The Groaner simply fell into each scene with perfect ease.

Classics?

This particular Frank Sinatra Show should be the gem of the year. Already it is being discussed as the next TV classic, for it will run each Christmas for the next three years. Frankie also hopes to put it on the theatre circuit with the proceeds to go to some worthy charity.

Certainly this will be one of the most expensive TV shows ever filmed—the talents of its stars alone costing a neat hunk of dough. But this should be one case where the money was well spent. What can top The Voice and The Groaner these days?

Sinatra is enthusiastic enough at any rate to be reportedly considering teaming his 17 year old daughter, Nancy, and Lindsay Crosby as a duet team in one of his upcoming TV shows. Which is certainly keeping it all in the family.

Bing Crosby and Frank Sinatra have a real special Christmas dish ready to serve you. But how did these two stars behave on the set during production?

THE TWO MASTERS of song and timing—Bing and Frankie—in a scene in the show. They play two lonely bachelors who face a bleak Christmas. (Cover Photo—Jack Albial)

"Simple," Dave replied. "He likes his work."

But in spite of the way he works, Frankie takes time to have fun. The ad-libs between Bing and Frankie were something. After they finished one number, Frankie cracked, "That ought to put the Four Aces out of business."

The opening shot of the show has Bing appearing in Frankie's dressing room. A voice, obviously Bing's is heard singing "Happy Holiday" and Frankie promptly joins in. However, the scene needed a bit of dialogue so Frankie promptly came up with some. He turned to the Philippine house boy who

THE STORY FLIPS BACK into another period, hence the stove-pipe hats and cloaks. This should be one of the really big shows of the year.

"The mad one wants me to do a film clip for his Garden party TV show." A short time later in burst Mike. He rushed into Frankie's dressing room, took off his coat, and said speedily, "Let's film this right now — let's get going."

"But I'm shooting my own show," Frank explained. "I can't do it right this minute."

"Sure you can," Mike insisted. "We can use your crew. I'll pay everybody."

So Frankie and Mike went on the set to film the short scene. And then Frankie remembered that he was filming his show in color and, therefore, couldn't do the Todd scene. This didn't daunt either man — they simply dashed to the next available stage and filmed it there.

The ironic part of all this is that the clip was never shown on TV. The director cut to Cantinflas doing something of no importance and omitted the Sinatra bit.

After filming the scene, Frankie hurried back to direct his own show again. Bing watched the guy tearing around and asked Dave White, Sinatra's stand-in, why he worked so hard.

Colt .45 Hero

HAS LED LOADED
LIFE

He's only 27. But Wayde Preston, Warner's new cowboy star on Channel 7 has already had his share of excitement.

WAYDE PRESTON'S life reads like fiction. But the facts are true. And they are doubly remarkable because the Warner Bros. hero of the new Colt .45 series is only 27 years old.

A seat on a plane changed his life. In 1955, the new KABC-TV cowboy star was flying on a vacation from Los Angeles to San Francisco. At the time, the 6 feet 4 inch, 185-pounder was working at the Douglas Aircraft guided missile plant in El Segundo as an electronic technician.

Sees Future Star

On the plane, Wayde sat next to a Hollywood agent, the late Ned Marin. Up to that time, the blue-eyed blond headed Preston had never thought about acting as a career—until Marin saw the tremendous possibilities in the youth.

As a boy and young man Wayde had an outdoor and at times pretty rugged life. He was born in the little town of Steamboat Spring, Colorado and moved at an early age to Laramie, Wyoming. It was in this great wide-open Northwest country that the athletic-minded Preston learned to hunt, fish, ride, and climb mountains. He also traveled with the rodeo circuits as a bareback bronc rider.

During his school days, for spending money, he often hunted coyotes at $5 a head. Since the bullets were costing him money, Wayde made sure that he seldom missed. So you can see, that the latest of the ABC-TV Western heroes, is no lily of the valley when it comes to riding the range.

After his undergraduate work at the University of Wyoming, and after a four-and-half-year hitch in the Army (two of them in Korea), Wayde went to work as a park ranger in the Grand Teton National Park. During the winter in 1955 he headed for sunny California and landed the job at the guided missile plant.

Business Plus Pleasure

A short time later, he met agent Marin on that plane. It was also Marin who introduced him to his future wife, actress Carol Ohmart. They were married November 22, 1956 and currently live at Malibu Beach.

Originally, Wayde and Carol were introduced strictly for business reasons. She was to help him with his acting; while he was supposed to teach her swimming and horseback riding.

They're still improving in their respective departments. Only now, they're keeping it all in the family!

Lifelines

BY EVELYN BIGSBY

JACK WEBB has a unique idea—it's a new TV show called People, featuring Jack's video sidekick, Ben Alexander. Big question mark is: Will people watch a TV program that stars people?

"WE CAN'T ANSWER THIS QUESTION," Jack commented. "So we decided there's only one way to find out. That's why we are showing People to the TV audience in Los Angeles on Sunday, Dec. 15, KABC-TV, 6:30 p.m. and are asking those who see it to let us know what they think about it. As a result, for the first time in TV history, the television audience itself will sit in on the preview of a new program and have a voice in deciding whether it should go on the air."

IF YOU CATCH THIS SHOW, don't forget to write in your comments. I'm inclined to be slightly prejudiced in its favor, because to me, people are the most fascinating things imaginable.

KNX NEWSMAN HUGH McCOY, just returned from a vacation in Russia, is a wealth of information and impressions. A mere luncheon hour proved inadequate for a chat covering only the high points. But I did learn that: the women in Russia are generally plump and wear low heels to negotiate the cobblestone streets; Russia is a gloomy, dim lit place and at this time of year the women, dressed in dark clothes, are bundled up so that they look like "pieces of bedding." The Russians have a deep sense of inferiority, but according to McCoy, "this has been overcome by Sputnik." When news of this achievement came out, the pleased Russians kept prodding McCoy, "When is the United States going to launch a Sputnik?"

HE SAW NO FROZEN FOODS while he was there. Steak, even in the best places, was only fair. No water is served with meals—you buy bottled mineral water. No paper cups. No chewing gum. Everything is made in Russia, though raw materials are no doubt imported. Chocolate bars are few and expensive (about $1.60 American money). No ice. Lots of cabbage and fried potatoes. Carrots and peas the only cooked vegetables he had. Salads plentiful. No ice cream, but a sort of vanilla sherbet. No pasteurized milk—it's all boiled. Cars have right of way over pedestrians.

TV AERIALS ON APARTMENTS and out in the country. TV and radio all government controlled. Women guards in the Odessa radio station carried pistols. Voice of America broadcasts come through and people may listen. Gather in groups at someone's home. McCoy was asked to relay the request that persons speaking on V. of A. do not talk so fast, because Russian listeners experience difficulty understanding rapid speech.

PEOPLE IGNORANT ABOUT MUCH of the outside world. Eager to hear. Tanya, a young girl who served as McCoy's guide, received almost as much information from him as he did from her. She requested the latest fashion magazines from America, also fan books telling how the stars and their families live. "There is a great need for interchange," McCoy concluded.

I'LL GO ALONG WITH THE IDEA that what the world needs is more understanding. That's why Omnibus did such a splendid show when it let TV viewers travel with Leonard and Felicia Bernstein to Disraeli for dedication of the fine new concert hall in Tel-A-Viv. We should make much more effective use of the language with no barriers, music.

Pick OF THE Pix

BY AUBREY DAHL

AT HAND is a document from Jerry Rogers, film director of KTLA, apologizing for substituting "They Drive By Night" for "Knut Rockne" (which I reviewed) two weeks ago. "Knut Rockne," it seems, turned out to be shorter in length than it was represented to be. Now if only "They Drive By Night" had been the same. (I apologize)

"The Maltese Falcon." (2) Dec. 14, 10:00. 1941. Written and directed by John Huston, this film version of the Dashiell Hammett novel about the adventures of private eye Sam Spade is quite probably the best detective movie ever made. (Anyone who deduces from this and my laudatory review of "Treasure of the Sierra Madre" that I am an admirer of Huston is right.) Witty, exciting, truthful, beautifully acted and stylishly presented, "The Maltese Falcon" will stand for years as a model, not only of whodunits, but of the best in picture making. Humphrey Bogart, as Spade, investigating the murder of his partner, becomes involved in the search for the statuette of a bird, reputedly very valuable, and for which Sydney Greenstreet is prepared to murder everyone in sight. The intrigue, the deft violence and the incipient lunacy which mark this tale of the subtle double cross are handled with an artistic insight that bats an audience from shock to laughter as if it were a tennis ball. Incredibly entertaining, it offers one memorable scene after another, including one with Walter Huston in a bit role as a mortally wounded sea captain, and a really hilarious scene in which Peter Lorre, as an effete con man, attempts to intimidate Bogart with a dainty pistol. The rest of the excellent cast includes Mary Astor, Elisha Cook, Jr. and Jerome Cowan, and speaking as one who has seen the picture four times, I am looking forward to this showing. No cutting, please, or I'll know.

"Passage to Marseille." (5) Dec. 15, 7:30. 1944. Another Humphrey Bogart - Greenstreet - Lorre starrer, this one is based on an entirely different premise, but is also an effective movie. A French ship picks up some derelicts and the captain, Victor Francen, discovers that they are escapees from Devil's Island bound for France to help the war effort. The conflict begins when news is received that France has surrendered and the Fascist elements, headed by Greenstreet, oppose Francen's purpose to take the ship to England rather than to the Vichy government. The other principals in this uncompromising indictment of appeasement are Michele Morgan, Claude Rains and Helmut Dantine.

"I'll Be Seeing You." (9) Beginning Dec. 16, 9:00. 1944. This is a David O. Selznick tear jerker with Joseph Cotten, as a combat fatigued army sergeant, and Ginger Rogers, as a temporarily paroled convict (manslaughter, bum rap). They meet on a train, go home to her parent's home for Christmas and get along fine until their secrets become known to each other. The film makes an effort to look compassionately at the difficulties of the two characters, but a little too much soap gets in the eyes.

"Three Godfathers." (11) Dec. 20, 8:00. 1948. A John Ford production featuring John Wayne, Pedro Armendariz and Harry Carey, Jr. as a trio of desperados who come upon a woman in labor in the desert and promise her to look after her baby. This naturally leads to some humorous, touching, cornball situations in the Ford manner ("The Informer" excepted).

"Lady Be Good." (11) Dec. 19, 10:30. I can think of nothing that will get by. Suggestions accepted.

PRO FOOTBALL

The success of a great football team is largely dependent upon the perfect coordination of the offense and the defense. Apparently the Baltimore Colts, who will provide the next opposition for the Los Angeles Rams at the Coliseum Sunday afternoon, December 15th, have discovered this formula because they could quite conceivably present the loyal fans of Maryland with their first World's Professional Football Title this year.

Led by an unheralded quarterback Johnny Unitas—a young man who actually was released from the Pittsburgh Steeler football organization a few years back—the Colts have really caught fire this season. Unitas has hit his sterling ends Jim Mutscheller and Raymond Berry with unerring accuracy and has alternated tossing to Lenny Moore and L. C. Dupre, a speedy pair of backfield aces, to keep the defenses of every club in the league confused. For the big attack on the ground Alan "The Horse" Ameche has continued to carry the mail for the Baltimore Club in fine style.

With an offense like this most clubs could ramble through the league pretty well—but the assist from the Baltimore defensive unit has provided the spark to keep it up near the top all season long. Anchored by Gene "Big Daddy" Lipscomb, a L.A. Ram castoff, incidentally, and his 280-pound running mate Art Donovan, the Colt line has been nigh onto impregnable throughout the season. In addition the Colts possess a husky group of young men who shoot the line and make the life of opposing quarterbacks mighty miserable.

Although the Rams are out of the title running, they still have a lot to say about the fate of the 1957 season for the Colts. A victory in Los Angeles is most important to the Baltimore Club—but it is just as important to the Rams who have an intense desire to give their loyal backers a good send-off for the winter hot stove league. Sunday's game, you can be sure, will be one of the most rugged of the year with both teams up for an "all-out" effort.

The Los Angeles Coliseum is the scene of action—if you haven't seen a game in person yet this year, you could pick no better than this season's finale between the Rams and the Colts. But if you can't make it in person—be the guest of Falstaff Brewing, H. A. Hair Arranger, Jim Clinton Clothes and the Volvo Motor Car Co., makers of that amazing five-passenger Swedish car, over KMPC, when Bob Kelley and Bill Brundige bring you all the exciting play-by-play action beginning at 1:25 PM (PST).

YESTERDAY A DISC JOCKEY, TODAY A CLAM DIGGER!

UNTIL just recently I was a disc jockey on KABC, The Station That Love Passed By. Now I am only a clam digger and I feel better already.

The other day I dug my limit of the big Pismo clams—one dozen. Then I got my limit (50) of the little cockles at Malibu Beach.

Next I looked up the chowder recipe in The Boston Cook Book. Then came the CLAMAMITY. That's a calamity made with clams.

My wife, Neill (which is a boy's name) spoke to me in a most unkind manner charging that I had "dirtied every pot and pan in the kitchen."

Personally I thought my do-it-yourself clam chowder turned out pretty good even though the salt pork alone cost as much as a bucket of store-bought chowder.

There's a lot of romance and salt air in the old-fashioned approach to cookery but I guess Neill is right. Next time I'll use the modern approach which calls for going to a super market.

We at KoldKist don't happen to offer chowder. But we do have 11 other delicious specialties including chili con carne—frozen chili. Sure you could make your own chili just as I made my own chowder. But you would be much happier in the long run with Chili Con Carne the easy KoldKist way—chili cooked and frozen, ready to thaw, heat and eat.

LAST CHANCE TO MISS THE TRAIN.

This is my last chance to tell you about the trainload of KoldKist Chili we're giving away as a prize for the best answer to a simple question.

Here's the catch. It's a TOY trainload of chili—but you may keep the train. It's a Revell HO gauge model electric train—a diesel engine plus 10 carloads (10 lbs.) of KoldKist Frozen Chili.

Enter this easy contest now because we want to award the electric train plus the chili before Santa Claus gets here.

All you do is answer a question in 25 words or less. The Question: WHY SHOULD SATURDAY BE CHILI DAY IN OL' L.A.?

All right, why should it? Tell us in 25 words or less. Mail your answer promptly to me—Fred Beck, TV Radio Life, 1610 N. Argyle, Hollywood 28.

DUG BY JACK HOLLAND

I WOULD especially like to recommend that you watch Playhouse 90 on December 19 when Don Murray and Hope Lange star in "I Have Loved Strangers." This is a show you are certain to find emotionally rewarding and of real significance.

Behind this show, which was written by Don and Fred Clasel and adapted by Elick Moll, there is an amazing story, a story to renew your faith in human beings. It is frankly the story of how two motion picture stars, Don Murray and his wife, Hope Lange, have fought ceaselessly for the cause of other human beings. They have given all of their money to this cause, they are giving all the salaries they make on Playhouse 90 to the cause, and they have made the fight you'll see depicted on the show their fight.

It all began back in 1953 and 54 when Don was in Europe working in the refugee camps. At the time he felt that the story of the refugees from Communist-dominated lands who fled to what they assumed was freedom, only to be put into refugee camps behind barbed wires, was one the world should know about. Many had been so "interned" for twelve years. Don was so moved by the plight of the refugees that he started the wheels in motion then to provide homes out of the camps for these people. One of his first moves was to write a motion picture script called "The Homeless" based on the problem but he put it away and forgot it, primarily because he was not in any position in Europe to market it.

Then he met Fred Clasel, who had been a film director in east Germany and who had escaped from the Communists and had ended up in a camp in Italy. Clasel was so shocked by the life in the refugee camps that he felt that somehow a film should be made to show the western world how unjustly the refugees were being treated and how unfair the immigration laws were. Don told him of the script he had written and showed it to him.

"But still nothing was done about the movie," Don told me one day at 20th Century-Fox where he was making "The Hell-Bent Kid." "However, Hope, for whom I had written the part of the girl in the script, kept telling me to do something about the film—and this was before we were married. But by this time Hope and I had become involved in our own Refugee Resettlement Project in Sardinia. This project was designed to bring refugees from the barbed wire camps to their own land where they could be free. This meant buying the land, it meant several trips to Europe and back for Hope and me, but it was something we knew had to be done.

"Then the break came. Martin Manulis of Playhouse 90 had been asking us to appear in one of his shows but we were never able to find the time. We had been running out of money for our project and what funds we had received from the United Nations weren't enough, so Hope and I had the idea of doing a TV version of our movie script on Playhouse 90. Through this show we could raise some of the much-needed money. Just before we finalized the deal with Playhouse 90, we got word from Dr. Belden Paulson, who really runs the project in Sardinia, that more money was needed at once as a deposit on the land or we'd lose it. So I borrowed the money I'd earn on the Playhouse 90 show from my agents, they gave me an additional $2000 and it was all sent to Europe.

"For our project we have 130 acres. We have just started to make our own cement blocks to build the homes for

on guard

Yes, she's never off duty in guarding family health. She balances the family diet, takes the children for their "shots," prods her husband to get his annual checkup. But what about her health?

Caring for herself is the greatest gift a woman can give her loved ones.

So don't delay — see your doctor about your checkup. It's "living insurance" against cancer.

Holland's Tunnel

the refugees. Right now they are living in make-shift shacks. We know this is only a beginning, but we hope our resettlement project will be the first of a network of similar set-ups in Europe."

When you see this story on Playhouse 90, you won't be seeing fiction. And you'll be seeing two stars who aren't just playing parts but living a dream. They hope you'll be moved enough to send in whatever contributions you can to aid this cause. The address is Help, Elgin, Illinois. Every cent contributed goes directly to the refugees—none to any administrative expenses. And when I say Hope and Don have given all their money to this project, I mean just that. They are two recognized stars and yet they live very modestly and their home has only two rooms with furniture. They are returning to Europe again after Christmas and will also go back in the spring. These two deserve one deep, big bow. So be sure to see Playhouse 90 on the 19th of this month.

KBIG's Larry Berrill just got back from a tour of the Mediterranean with the U.S. 6th Fleet and he told me an amusing story of the King of Morocco. Seems the King had a long-standing rule that anyone in the military uniform of any country couldn't enter his palace. American soldiers and sailors stationed there consequently missed out on some interesting sight-seeing until recently when the ban was rescinded. This is what did it. Governor Price Daniel of Texas sent a 10 gallon hat to the King as a gift. The presentation was to be made by an American navy officer, but he had no civilian clothes with him so nothing could be done. When the King found out what held up the delivery of his hat, the officer suddenly made the presentation in his uniform and since then the non-uniform rule has been quietly ignored.

STAND-IN STANDS UP TO CHEYENNE

It's not easy to find guys who are 6-foot-6-inches tall. So Clint Walker, who is seen on television as Cheyenne Bodie in Cheyenne, had to be satisfied with a 6-foot-3-inch standin. Clyde Howdy, the standin, in order to fill in for the Western star obtained a pair of three-inch risers, providing him with the 6-foot-6-inch height. This is necessary because of the critical camera angle variance in television.

THE THALIANS

This is the final week for purchasing tickets to The Thalians big annual charity ball at The Beverly Hilton Hotel on December 16 at 7 p.m.

With each passing year, this occasion becomes the talk of the town the morning after. This year, according to advance information, the charity ball will be better than ever.

A ticket for $17.50 entitles you to a delicious steak dinner (which would ordinarily cost at least $10), plus some of the finest entertainment in the world of show business.

On hand for the dancers will be Ray Anthony and his Orchestra who has contributed his talents. A special play by Bud Freeman will also be presented. Singing waiters will serve you. As in past years, top Hollywood celebrities will attend.

For reservations phone The Thalian Office, 9453 Santa Monica Blvd.: CRest-view 5-6151.

In conjunction with the charity affair President Debbie Reynolds, Hugh O'Brian, Buddy Bregman, and Lori Nelson are making a guest appearance on Peter Potter's All-Thalian Juke Box Jury on Friday, Dec. 13.

Bob Crosby Tells —

Bob Crosby was not in a particularly genial mood. Rumors had floated around about why his CBS-KNXT show went off TV, and these rumors had him seething.

"When I went on a tour recently, some people actually bawled me out for taking my show off the air," Bob said. "I'd like to make it very clear that I did not cancel my show. Here are the facts. It was said I wanted to be relieved of my daytime program so I could do a night time one. This was not so. In reality, I wanted to elevate the daytime spot and do a night time show too. At no time did I ever want out of my CBS spot!

"CBS claimed that all the possible sponsors were used up on my daytime show so that the night time program was out of the question. Then I was told, when my show was canceled, that no day shows were to exceed a certain fixed budget. Then there was still another story as to why my show was cancelled even though it was completely sold out. It was said that the network had already contracted another program in my spot. This all sounded like double talk.

"I was supposed to do The Big Record too for CBS, but one day I got word from New York that since the show had to come from the east, I was out of consideration. No one ever said why it had to come from the east. My idea of The Big Record was much different from the way it is being done now, and I'm not unhappy about not getting this spot.

"But of all the arguments advanced against my doing a night time show the silliest was the statement that you couldn't do a daytime program at night. When I heard this I asked if there were two versions of 'South Pacific,' one for the matinee and one for the evening. I don't think that just because you're on at night you have to get a lot of production and dancing girls. I think people still like a good song and a good singer at night as well as during the day."

Bob is now starting his engagement at the Cocomanut Grove and he is doing the same kind of show he had wanted to do on a night time spot. Some have said he was playing too sophisticated a spot but he believes that people only want good entertainment.

"Frankly, I'm scared to death of the Grove engagement," he said. "I'm the first Crosby to have the courage to play there since Bing got fired from the place years ago. But all I can do is do my best and hope for the best. I think TV has concentrated too much on New York and Hollywood audiences and forgotten those in the middle. I'm going to try to give those in between a show — at the Grove too."

"I've been told that you have to have caustic, sharp humor to get by in night clubs. My humor is more of the homey type. It will be interesting to see which pays off."

Bob was not indulging in sour grapes in any of his comments about his TV career — nor about his career in general. He was simply facing the truth bluntly.

"I've had a good career," he said, "but I've always been amazed that whatever success I've had has been taken for granted just because I'm Bing's brother. Yet, I did the Gisele MacKenzie Show and a couple of other spots, and I was thrown by the people who said to me, 'Why, I didn't know you could do that kind of thing,' meaning the humor and the banter. Why should they feel that way? It's all I've been doing for twenty years. How long does it take to prove yourself here — on your own?"

Bob has had his struggle to make it by himself. He has done highly creditable work. But he is convincing proof that it doesn't always pay to be related to a star.

As for his TV return, only CBS can answer that. He has four years to go on his contract and he hopes he won't have to spend it sitting on the sidelines.

SKIPPER FRANK'S SCAM-O-GRAM

Hi!

All of the letters indicate that you seem to enjoy the party stunt type of secrets . . . so here is "That's Easy?"

Ask an athletic member of your audience if he can touch the floor with his finger tips without moving his feet or bending his knees. Of course he replies "That's Easy." So you have him stand with his back against the wall and in front of him, within easy reach, you drop a napkin or handkerchief, challenging him to pick it up without bending his knees.

He just cannot win. The reason: With his back to the wall, he will topple if he tries to bend forward. Be sure that he is close to the wall, his heels right against it. Try this on yourself and you will understand.

Follow the above-with this two person stunt . . . "Space Platform." All you need is a sheet of newspaper. Open it out and tell two people that they can both stand on the same sheet of newspaper, facing each other, yet you will make it impossible for them to shake hands — in fact you will make it impossible for them to see each other! You also guarantee to use the sheet of paper just as it is . . . you simply place it on the floor and have them step on it . . . yet in a few seconds the spell will work!

Here is how to do it: Lay the sheet of newspaper in a doorway. Put one person on the far end of the sheet and close the door. Then put the other person on the near end of the paper.

See you next week,

SKIPPER
FRANK

L. A. RAMS READY FOR FINAL GAME OF SEASON

FOR THEIR EXCELLENT coverage this year on KNXT, Channel 2 of the Ram "away" games — Ken Panfil, the biggest Ram of all, gives announcers Bob Kelley and Gil Stratton "a big lift."

AS ALWAYS, RAM QUARTERBACK Norm Van Brocklin will be ready "to kick the stuffings" out of the ball and the Baltimore Colts when they tangle this week in the final home game of the season for the L.A. Rams. The game will be heard on KMPC radio.

26 THE STORY OF FORGOTTEN MEN

KRCA's 26 Men series sheds new light on the exploits of history's neglected law enforcers: the Arizona Rangers.

ON LOCATION at the actual historic sites where the original action took place, Tris Coffin and Kelo Henderson as Ranger Clint Travis enact a scene from 26 Men, a series based on the exploits of the Arizona Rangers.

by Dave Vowell

THIRTY MILES south of Phoenix on a hot, sultry day in September Captain Tom Rynning, along with two of the 26 men comprising the Arizona Rangers, followed the bellowing bloodhounds through the mesquite in pursuit of a desperado wanted for murder.

Suddenly, from behind the camera, the director called, "Cut!"

Tris Coffin spurred his horse, reined in and jumped into the middle of a milieu of bloodhounds and a semi-domesticated wildcat which had been used to lay a scent for the dogs. The hounds had unexpectedly caught up with their quarry. Tris dropped his character of Capt. Tom Rynning as soon as the director shouted. He jumped into the middle of the howling dogs and snatched the cat away. So that the cat wouldn't strangle itself on its leash, Tris started to untangle the line when, in one quick move, the cat turned and sank its teeth into the hand of its savior. So deeply did the wildcat's fangs penetrate that Tris had to insert a finger of his left hand into the cat's mouth and help it pry open its jaws.

After receiving hasty first aid, Tris once again assumed his leading role as Tom Rynning, leader of the Arizona Rangers, whose authentic exploits are being seen on KRCA, Channel 4. That evening, Tris reported in to the company doctor. The wild cat was examined and found to be free of rabies. But the doctor still looked gloom.

"Tris," the doctor said softly, "it looks like you're going to lose a finger." With the hand now the size of a ham, Tris heard the decision with quiet resolve. He refused to lose a finger. He received treatments, treatments and more treatments, and all the time didn't miss a day's shooting. As soon as a break came in the shooting schedule, Tris boarded a company plane and flew back to Los Angeles for consultation with his family doctor. He awaited anxiously while his friend examined the now not-so-swollen hand. "The only thing to do with that finger," the doctor said gravely just before he smiled, "is to let it get well — it's going to be all right!"

Tris now sat in a Hollywood restaurant, bending the index finger of his right hand in trigger-pulling fashion. "I don't mean to brag," he said, "but I'm proud of that finger. After doing so many Westerns over the years since I came out here from Monmouth, Utah, I've gotten pretty good with a gun — not so much with a pistol as with a rifle. I can pump seven shots out of a Winchester before the first cartridge hits the ground."

A lean, silver-haired six-footer (6' 1", 185 lbs.), Tris is known in Hollywood as a crack rider and a gun expert. He has appeared in hundreds of top films and TV shows but this is his first starring role in a series since he completed the File of Jeffrey Jones series for CBS a few years ago.

The new series, which debuted on KRCA October 21, draws its title and story line from the carefully documented exploits of the 26 men of the Arizona Rangers, a group of volunteers founded in 1901 to enforce the law in the almost lawless Arizona territory. The 39 episodes of the series are being filmed at the actual historic sites where the original action took place. With the complete cooperation of Arizona Secretary of State, Wesley Bolin, state archives were utilized as a source of dramatic material.

The series has been so carefully documented that research was ordered and was successful in finding the name of Capt. Rynning's favorite horse. It was Suntag, which, by the way, was also the name of a famous bandit who operated in the north of the Arizona territory. Tris has put in many hours himself, researching the part of Captain Rynning, who was the true life commander of the group of volunteers who accomplished the almost superhuman task of patrolling Arizona's 113,909 miles.

The job of authentically re-creating the adventures of these 26 men was undertaken two years ago by veteran motion picture producer Russell Hayden.

"We thought," the producer reported, "that we would be able to use local Arizona cowboys to fill out the Rangers contingent, but somehow a real cowboy just doesn't look like a cowboy, so we ended up importing actors from Hollywood. However," he added laughingly, "we are able to use home grown live stock."

Every character in the 26 Men series is based on fact with one notable exception: newcomer Kelo Henderson who, in 26 Men, has stepped before the cameras for the first time. But lack of camera savvy has not slowed down his fast rising star. Since filming the first segment, Kelo has appeared in several top TV shows in featured roles. With every rule there is always an exception and Kelo is it: he's a rough riding, good looking cow hand who looks like just what he is.

"He's real fast with a six gun," Tris Coffin commented. "In fact, I'll just about bet that he's got the fastest gun in Hollywood today. He's so fast that the director has had to ask him to slow down so that the movement wouldn't come out a blur on film."

Fastest gun or not, 26 Men seems to stack up, not only as entertainment, but as a historical document chronicling the achievements of the Arizona Rangers — the almost forgotten 26 Men.

An Old Fashioned Christmas Dinner

CHEF MILANI OUTLINES THE PREPARATION OF THIS SUMPTUOUS MEAL

IN MOST American homes, Christmas without a turkey is like Santa Claus without a long, white beard. Of course, there is no turkey that can compare with the kind 'grandmother used to make' but KABC-TV's Chef Milani has come up with a dinner that might compare quite favorably with those experienced at grandmother's house.

ANTIPASTO

Ingredients: Garbanso beans, anchovies with capers, sweet pickles, ripe and green olives, celery, pimentoes, asparagus, Genova salami, salami Cotto, Swiss cheese, sliced beets, cauliflower. Preparation: arrange on large platter. Pour olive oil or salad oil with wine vinegar to taste on all ingredients except cheese and salami. Season with salt and pepper. Serve as appetizer or salad.

ROAST TURKEY

Ingredients: 1 20-lb. turkey; 1½ packages all purpose dressing; 4 large onions chopped; 3 cloves garlic minced fine in olive oil; 1 tsp. sage; salt and pepper to taste; 2 quarts water; 3 tbsps. flour and 4 tbsps. butter. Preparation: Boil neck and giblets in 2 quarts water until tender. Strain broth; reduce to 4 cups. Chop giblets. Saute onions and garlic in 4 tbsps. of olive oil until soft. Add giblets and season with 2 tps. salt, 1 tsp. pepper and 1 tsp. sage. When golden, remove from heat and add to dressing. Stuff turkey which has been drained and salted inside and out. Place on rack in pre-heated oven and roast at 400 degrees for 30 minutes. Reduce heat to 300 degrees and roast 15 to 20 minutes per pound depending on age of turkey. For gravy: take drippings from turkey, strain. Melt 4 tbsps. butter in sauce pan, when hot, sprinkle in 3 tbsps. of flour to make a roux. Add strained broth little at a time. When thickened, reduce heat and simmer for few minutes.

CANDIED YAMS

Ingredients: 1½ cups honey; 2 tbsps. cornstarch; ½ tsp. salt; 1½ cups water; 1 tbsp. butter and 6 large cooked and sliced yams or sweet potatoes. Preparation: mix and cook in saucepan, honey, cornstarch, salt, water and butter. When clear, pour over yams and bake at 425 degrees until golden brown.

MASHED POTATOES

Ingredients: 8 medium potatoes; 3 tbsps. butter; hot milk or cream, salt and pepper to taste. Preparation: Pare and boil potatoes until tender. Drain and leave uncovered 2 minutes. Mash, add butter and season to taste. Add hot milk or cream a little at a time until potatoes are moist and velvety.

VEGETABLES

Greenbeans: fresh or frozen beans. Parboil beans until almost tender. Drain and saute in butter. Sprinkle sliced almonds (½ cup to 1 lb. beans) on beans; salt to taste. Peas: cook in boiling water until tender, drain, season with salt, pepper and butter.

No Man is Ever a Villain to Himself

By Jean Corlis

TWENTY-FIFTH WEDDING ANNIVERSARY picture of Paul and Helen (Nell) Ford and their children, Jean, Lois, Kathy, Paul, Jr. and Donald. The Fords were married December 27, 1924.

THE BEST KNOWN colonel in the United States today is undoubtedly Sgt. Bilko's boss, Colonel Hall.

"Nat Hiken, creator of the Sgt. Bilko Show saw me play Colonel Purdy in 'Teahouse of the August Moon' during the 2½ year stage run," Paul Ford volunteered, "and he hasn't promoted or demoted me since the first Phil Silvers show."

Paul was the only member of the stage cast of "Teahouse" to appear in the motion picture, and though he has appeared in many other characterizations in pictures and on television, the public most quickly identifies him in the role of colonel.

When asked the reason for his success, Paul was very modest. Tapping his abdomen he said with a wink, "All I am in the theatre I owe to my pot-belly." He thinks that casting directors feel that the role of authority calls for this special physical characteristic.

But Paul Ford knows that it was long before he could afford to eat enough and relax enough to develop a pouch that he started on the road to success. It was during the depression; he was over 35, married, and the father of five children when he decided he wanted to be an actor.

Interviewed in the living-room of their temporary home in Hollywood, a top-floor apartment overlooking Beverly Hills, Paul grinned as he looked at his wife and remarked, "I used to tell Nell that some day I'd be making as much as $100 a week acting, but I'm afraid she never believed me."

Nell Ford chimed in, "No, I really didn't think he would. I thought it was just a crazy idea that he'd get over."

Paul reviewed the steps which had taken him from a failure in everything he had tried until the age of 35, to today when he is one of the actors in great demand. In addition to his role as Colonel Hall he has appeared in other television shows, and so far this year has made two trips to Hollywood to appear in starring roles in movies; "The Missouri Traveler," and "The Matchmaker."

"After a year at Dartmouth my father had financial reverses so I left to work as a proofreader on a Philadelphia paper. I quit this to sell ads and later subscriptions. This was when I met Nell, and I couldn't have been a very high pressure salesman because it took me two years to convince her.

"Then I wanted to be a writer so we went to New York. My output wasn't very big though — about 5,000 words a month. I tried collaborating with a friend whose daily output was that much. I acted out my 'plots.' My friend's comment was 'If you could write these things down the way you tell them, it would be terrific.' It took me ten years to figure out that this meant that I should act."

Paul did sell something, a couple of stories to Dell and an essay to New Republic. The essay was a statistical piece on how families were getting along during the depression. Besides his field work Paul had a lot of first hand information on this, because by this time he and Nell had five children.

An output of 5,000 words a month, even though it sold, wouldn't bring in enough cash to buy even the peanut

Paul Ford has played the role of the heavy many times on the stage, but at one time his relatives and his neighbors thought he was either a scoundrel or a madman.

FROM THE SEAT OF AUTHORITY, Paul Ford as Colonel J. T. Hall faces the camera with composure.

and said, 'OK, he's the type.' Remember what I said about my potbelly?"

That was Paul's start. Since then he's appeared in many successful plays, in the movies and on television.

"I must admit that I did feel brutal letting Nell go to work when I was playing around at being an actor in summer stock, but I did have confidence that I would make it. I'm sure she didn't think so but she went along with me just the same. Now it is a dream come true for me, and a miracle for her that we've had such success.

"One of the nicest gestures I've ever experienced," Paul said, "was the one made by Nat Hiken. My wife on the Sgt. Bilko show resembles Nell quite a bit, and Nat changed her name from whatever it was originally intended to be, to Nell."

The Fords will soon celebrate their 33rd anniversary. Their three girls are married, the oldest son lives in Chicago and the youngest son lives with them in an apartment in New York. They have seven grandchildren, with three more on the way. Since Nell travels with Paul when he comes to Hollywood to make a picture she has a lot of free time, and she fills this very easily by knitting for all her grandchildren.

Nell is a very attractive woman whose hair turned grey when she was in her 20's. The friends who shook their heads and blamed it on that slightly daft husband of hers are now complimenting her on how distinguished her silvery locks are for a "Colonel's" wife.

And Paul is no longer a villain even to his relatives. "I think the reason I am often called on to play heavies is that I never regard them as such," Paul said smilingly. "To me a heavy is still a human being. They are villains to others but never to themselves."

butter sandwiches his family practically lived on. Not that they felt poor. Even the drab Brooklyn neighborhood in which they lived didn't make Paul's children conscious of their poverty because they had a father who told them wonderful stories, who shared things with them.

"Things were pretty tough," Paul went on. "Even a job as a filling station attendant was a big deal, but I was lucky, so I thought, and for five years I was the worst station attendant they ever had. Fortunately for my future career the depression and NRA freed me from the gas station. The big company which owned it sold their gas stations to individual owners, and the new owner promptly fired me.

"Then I got a job as a night watchman, but I went to sleep too easily. Poor Nell. If she hadn't had those five children she'd probably left me! Next in the series of jobs, and my first step in the right direction, was when a neighbor of mine who was working on a WPA project taught me to make puppets. I got on the project, too, made puppets and wrote little plays for children and performed in them. My first real acting job was in 1940, when I was 38, during an exhibit at the World's Fair. I wrote the play and it now seems very significant. It was about America and how people can start with nothing and really amount to something. I was the narrator, dressed as the Old Timer who came down the aisle and interrupted the puppet speaker to say 'that wasn't how it happened.' I then went behind the curtain and with a puppet dressed just like the Old Timer, I demonstrated how it did happen."

The experience convinced Paul that he really did want to act. To add to their income while he was trying to figure out just how he should go about getting into the theatre, Paul and Nell made sandwiches at home and sold them to the people who worked in their neighborhood. Then they added fudge and peanut brittle to their line.

"My kids loved the selling and I was creating quite a reputation as a caterer of sorts," Paul said. "Then I had a chance to appear in a play in a Long Island summer playhouse at $3.00 a week and I gave up the sandwich route. The kids were pretty disappointed."

Nell took a job as a practical nurse at $3.00 a day, and with her weekly pay and Paul's $3.00 they managed to struggle through, but the neighbors, and even Nell, thought there was something a little mad about a fellow who would give up a promising career in the catering business for acting.

"The summer theatre work was the stepping stone," Paul declared. "I was playing in many well known plays, so when I went around Broadway and also applied at radio stations everyone took it for granted that a man nearing 40 must be experienced. When they asked me what plays I had been in I could rattle off a number of well-known hits—and I didn't mention that it was summer stock. Six months later I had ten radio roles a week and was making $150 to $300 a week.

"This was unheard of wealth in our neighborhood, so you can imagine how the family and the neighbors reacted when I gave up radio to appear on the stage at $85.00 a week. I'll always be grateful to Gertrude Applebaum, the agent who got me my first part. The play was 'Decision' and the director didn't even ask me to read for the part of a politician. He merely looked at me
