Lawrence Welk

Mrs. R.W., Van Nuys

I am a grandmother of 72 and I just can't stand Lawrence Welk. He is a big sissy and his whole show is a big corn. Those Lennon Sisters belong back in the 1920's.

H.R., Los Angeles

I agree that What's My Line should be on at an earlier, more reasonable time. My brother, who is blind, and his wife, used to enjoy it so much. But now it is so late, they can't stay up to hear it.

Mrs. D.S., Pasadena

I think that this is one of the best seasons we've had on TV for a long time, because there is a variety of shows — comedy, dramatic and western.

S.J.O., Long Beach

Would you please tell me why sponsors drop a good singer and entertainer like Bob Crosby and keep Frank Sinatra on the air? He's getting worse and worse. He doesn't even have a good guest on his show.

B.J.R., Long Beach

Why, why, why must such an attractive young girl as Lorrie Collins dress in such a disgraceful manner? She is very popular, but she would profit more if she could act and dress her age.

Darla Daret, Jeanne Black and Molly Bee are good examples of well-dressed young girls. Lorrie would be very much more liked if she would try to be like any of them.

Stan Freberg

... Still Feudin' and Fussin' Over Freberg Satire

M.C., Hollywood

I have been watching the Lawrence Welk show for nearly five years and I have never seen him act the idiot that Mr. Stan Freberg made him out to be, repeating himself so much.

If Mr. Freberg had been reading and trying to learn the little sensitivities of Mr. Welk, I'm sure he would have found some of them to be some of the things that he made fun of.

Can't this man Stan Freberg, find a way to make a living without making fun of others?

Ottola Nesmith

... Landlady of Nightmare Alley

R.A., Hollywood, Calif.

Hip-hip hooray! for the Landlady of the Nightmare Alley, Miss Ottola Nesmith. Stiff upper lip, dearie, and press on; we're with you all the way.

Walter Brennan

... Gaining in Popularity

L.F., Compton

This is only the first year on TV for The Real McCoys but already it is a hit with us. Walter Brennan, Dick Crenna, and Kathy Nolan play their parts very well. I don't think anyone can play their part as well as they do.

Mrs. G.M., Los Angeles

Our teenage daughters get a big bang out of The Real McCoys. I personally enjoy getting away from all the sophisticated programs for a half-hour.

We wish something could be done to boost the ratings of this wonderful show.

A nice thought — but don't worry about the ratings of the McCoys. They've been climbing steadily so that now it's one of the top rated shows on the air.

S.S.W., Pasadena

They surely have gone western but the only ones I like are Twenty Mule Team Death Valley Days, and Wagon Train. With all the serious talk we hear nowadays I like to see something where I can get a laugh. I'm glad that The Real McCoys are going so good, I enjoy them. I want to put a plug in for Shirley Temple for I think she is good. And for music Lawrence Welk and Perry Como are tops.

A.C., Santa Monica

At last KTLA has come up with a great noon show. Bill Bradley and his guests are wonderful. Too bad the school system doesn't send students to this very informative, interesting show packed with good guests.

READY — Contestants prepare to make the opening play on KTLA's new show designed for bridge enthusiasts: What's The Bid?

With some three and a half million bridge enthusiasts in Southern California, KTLA is cornering their attention with What's The Bid?

The Bridge on Channel Five

By Dave Vowell

The response to the program has been enthusiastic. "We have learned," Mr. Schrage rejoined, "that people have changed their bridge dates to Wednesday so that they could watch the program as a group before playing their own games. We know of several instances where as many as fifty members of a bridge club have met to watch the program. Bridge players are quite fanatic about the game."

Although the program has only been on the air several months, it had been in preparation for a year prior to taking the air. Both Mr. Schrage and Mr. Stusser commented that although there are 40 million bridge players in these United States, they are still considered as a specialized audience and the networks understandably were slow in considering such a program as What's The Bid? "However," Mr. Schrage said, "KTLA, apparently, is convinced that it is not only their duty but also to their advantage to step in where the networks can't. Our association is extremely pleasant. As a matter of fact—and this is quite a testimonial—many technicians, cameramen and floor men at KTLA have asked to be assigned to our show. As we said before, bridge players are quite fanatic."

Although it is not surprising that a station such as KTLA offers programming with specialized appeal, their assignment of Sam Balter, the well known sports commentator, to the show as host did come as somewhat of a surprise to everyone but KTLA's Director of Public Relations Bob Reagan, who commented: "Sam has spent many years behind microphones and in front of cameras. He is a polished performer—and a pretty good bridge player."

EXPERT AND HOST — Robert Lee Johnson, well known bridge expert confers with host Sam Balter, a polished player himself who sandwiches in What's The Bid? with his other KTLA duties.

IN Southern California," Henry Schrage was saying, "there are some three and a half million bridge players. Up to the time our show went on the air there was no program on television designed for their special interests."

Appealing to these bridge enthusiasts is the labor of love undertaken by producers Schrage and Larry Stusser, partners in the Dorojean Production Company, packagers of KTLA's 8 p.m. Wednesday offering: What's The Bid? The actual mechanics of the show are interesting because although prizes are awarded to the winning couple, the accent falls on the game itself and even non-bridge playing viewers can and do become engrossed in the play.

Promotes Game

Henry Schrage described the show as primarily being concerned with bridge players and correct bridge playing and also in promoting the game itself by being an entertaining and instructive program.

"As our 'voice of authority,'" Larry Stusser inserted, "we have Robert Lee Johnson, a well known bridge expert and author of a dozen or more books on bridge. He also operates a bridge school and club in Westwood. The element of chance that has always existed in any card game has been completely eliminated by presetting the cards. The players on the show don't know what cards they will receive but the home viewer can see the complete layout of the cards on a huge board. Mr. Johnson, who has set up this particular hand and who has given it much consideration, points out the line of play that should take place and the correct bids that each player should make. He also tells the home audience what the deciding play will be so that they will be able to follow the play more intelligently and also," Mr. Stusser commented, "to add to the suspense of the game."

ED SULLIVAN has waltzed off with an Emmy or two and may do it again.

BOB CUMMINGS will be up there too with Dwayne Hickman having a chance.

*Going out on a limb

Who

WILL WIN THE

Emmies

THIS YEAR ?

WHEN last year the eastern contingent of the Academy of Television Arts and Sciences ganged up on the Hollywood crew and voted its shows Emmies regardless of merit (in some cases), some bitter feeling resulted. This year the promise for better feelings and more intelligent voting looks somewhat better — but only somewhat.

For one thing, with more shows having moved to Hollywood, New York isn't going to be in exactly a gleeful state. But, on the other hand, even the New York crowd must have been aware of the fact that some of its awards last year were so on the ridiculous side that they only looked petty. But New York is still not anxious for closer cooperation with Hollywood this year, although the west coast has not this feeling.

This year there are no major changes in the physical set-up of the awards themselves. There is a closer liaison, fortunately, with the New York office this year in that both offices of the east and west coast have formed committees to make recommendations for categories. The only real change, then, is the dropping of four technical categories.

The whole idea of this year's Emmy set-up was to streamline the awards, because fewer winners mean more prestige for the Emmy itself. The last few years with so many categories and so many awards the net result was that the Emmy lost much of its significance and importance.

The past year was not one, generally speaking, of notable accomplishments for TV. Few series made any sensational splash. But, since we believe in sticking our necks out, here is how we think some of these Emmies will go this year. And these are being picked with no nominations yet available at this writing.

1. Best Single Program of the Year: The Edsel Show looks like it or G.M. Anniversary Show.

2. Best Dramatic Series With Continuing Characters: Gunsmoke should take this.

3. Best Dramatic Anthology Series: Playhouse 90 may again win, although it wasn't as successful this year as last.

4. Best Comedy Series: Jack Benny or Bob Cummings look like good bets, but Danny Thomas could take it all.

5. Best Musical, Variety, Audience Participation, or Quiz Show: This can go anywhere with Dinah Shore almost a sure winner — but how do you choose from such a varied group as music, variety, audience, and quiz shows! A ridiculous category.

6. Best Public Service Program or Series: See It Now, if listed in this category, should win it.

7. Best Single Performance by an Actor: We'll go along with Mickey Rooney.

8. Best Single Performance by an Actress: Polly Bergen.

9. Best Continuing Performance by an Actor in a Leading Role in a Dramatic or Comedy Series: James Arness could cop this one with Bob Cummings a dark horse.

10. Best Continuing Performance by an Actress in a Leading Role in a Dramatic or Comedy Series: Ida Lupino is getting support — and there is Jane Wyatt again to consider. But watch out for Spring Byington.

11. Best Continuing Supporting Performance by an Actor in a Dramatic or Comedy Series: For the men the field is wide open. Ann B. Davis could get it this year for actress in the same category.

12. Best Continuing Performance (Male) in a Series by a Comedian, Singer, Host, Dancer, M.C., Announcer, Narrator, Panelist, or any Person Who Essentially Plays Himself: Perry Como should take it. And in the same category for a female, Gracie Allen could walk off with this.

13. Best News Commentary: Chet Huntley is a good bet.

14. Best Musical Contribution for Television: Leonard Bernstein.

15. Best Direction (Half Hour or Less): Will ride with the Hit Parade or Sheldon Leonard.

16. Best Direction (One Hour or More): Probably John Frankenheimer.

Such are our "guesses" for the awards — and these are only part of the categories. If merited, awards will also be given for Best New Program Series of the Year, Best Coverage of an Unscheduled Newsworthy Event, and Best Engineering or Technical Achievement.

Let's hope this year's Emmy awards are not the same fiasco of the year before. Anything would be an improvement over that.

April 12, 1958

GUNSMOKE has been the year's prime favorite which means possible Emmies for its stars James Arness, Dennis Weaver, and Amanda Blake. Milburn Stone continues to register as Doc.

EDWARD R. MURROW has won many honors — and deservedly so. Marian Anderson recently was the subject in his See It Now presentation of "Lady From Philadelphia."

MARY MARTIN AND JOHN RAITT made "Annie Get Your Gun" the big special of the year for NBC-KRCA but the show was disqualified.

WALTER BRENNAN left out as contender for an Emmy for his work in The Real McCoys. With him here are Tony Martinez, Michael Winkelman, Lydia Reed.

MICKEY ROONEY is a big favorite for his great work in "The Comedian" on Playhouse 90. Kim Hunter and Mel Torme were also featured.

BARBARA NICHOLS:

The Marilyn Monroe of TV

And anyone who talks with her can tell after just a few minutes that she is just as savvy in the ways of show business as her famous filmland counterpart.

"I really got started in television, you know," she says, "doing routines with the top comics in New York. They didn't permit too much cleavage on TV — but I found out that you don't have to look sexy, to be sexy. You can act it just as well and get the message across. Besides, if you use too much cleavage, the women usually resent it, and I wouldn't want that.

"It was on the basis of a skit that I did with Sid Caesar and Nanette Fabray that I was signed to a Hollywood contract by Warner Bros."

Within a short time thereafter she had small but important parts in pictures starring Frank Sinatra, Clark Gable, and other famous actors. Her role in "The Sweet Smell of Success" was even given consideration as a possible nomination for an Oscar.

"I don't just want big parts," Barbara explains. "What's really important is that the role, no matter how small, is a good one. I just finished a scene in The Naked and the Dead. It only took a day. But I think it will be one of the best things I've ever done. Besides," she smiles, "I also got $1,000 for just one day's work."

Besides her body, her brains, and her bank account, Barbara is a courageous girl. This past year while in New York she was scheduled to star on Kraft Theater. It was going to be her "big break." She got a break, all right. A bad one.

One day, while driving with a friend in New York she had a terrible automobile accident.

"It wasn't just the physical pain," Barbara tells now. "The accident came at a time when I was just getting started in my career. I knew that if I was laid up for too long, people and producers would forget me. I had an internal injury which the doctors said would take many months, possibly years to heal." The blonde with the Brooklynese accent stops for a moment and looks at you. The same way she must have looked when she was alone in that New York hospital.

"I said to myself that I was going to get better. No matter what the doctors told me! I said to myself: 'My liver is going to heal faster than any liver in medical history.'"

It did. Within two months Barbara Nichols was not only out of the hospital walking around. She was working again.

Most recently on TV she has appeared on Matinee, The Thin Man, and Maverick.

She's also completed a role on Dragnet in which she plays "a famous, blonde movie star."

"That's the role they have typed me for," Barbara explains. "Whenever they want someone to act like a big star, they call me."

Barbara, and others who have faith in her ability, are confident that by September, or shortly thereafter, she won't have to act the part anymore. She'll be one.

ROSALIND RUSSELL IS A CLEVER WOMAN and amusing actress. She was a smash in "Auntie Mame," but bizarre in such a get-up for an occasion like the Academy Awards. No wonder the audience failed to restrain its gasp when she strode offstage. One gentleman facetiously remarked, "With Anita Eckberg and Sophia Loren there, Miss Russell probably thought she had to do something!" Too bad the program was not in color. Some of the gowns were enchanting.

BOB HOPE IS ALWAYS A SURE-FIRE emcee with the plus of knowing his way around television, something not all the actors can boast. He managed to pick up several minutes of lost time when the show was running far behind. David Niven also emceed in lively fashion. Later he told me that he managed to stir up quite a bit of commotion backstage by asking the movie greats what they were doing selling their big night of the year down the cable to TV. In the end he had to take a Milton to settle his own nerves before marching to the lectern. Apparently the Motion Picture Academy did itself and current products immeasurable and immediate good with the big telecast. But there are some who wonder why they go on network TV instead of doing a closed circuit telecast into theaters where admission could be charged.

THIS IS THE WEEK THAT KULDIP SINGH has the lead on Shirley Temple's Storybook, "Land of Green Ginger." "Cool-dip," as Groucho calls him, is much happier now that his family is here and approves his show business career. Kuldip's 19-year-old sister, Kishory, will be on Marx's show May 7. His older sister, Omi, will receive her degree in pharmacy in South America this year, then will come here. Brother Indurjit is a pre-med student at L.A. State. Brother Ranjit (what melodious names!) is in junior high. The Singhs have bought a home near Franklin and Yucca in Hollywood.

WELCOME BACK HOME, Jim Hawthorne (now on KDAY). Bye for awhile to Tommy Sands, rushing back to New York, then here again to cut some records . . . Molly Bee, enraptured with Tony Bennett's songs at The Grove ("I adore him!") explained she was grabbing every opportunity to study performers because she's going to do a single pretty soon in Reno . . . Mike Ansara has just wound up a whirlwind personal appearance tour (five cities in one week and Washington's Cherry Blossom Festival) . . . Mr. and Mrs. Myron ("Global") Zobel, having signed for KRCA in the fall, are already abroad shooting color pix in England. They'll visit France, Italy, Spain, Austria, Denmark, Ireland and more. What a delightful combo of business and pleasure!

A REPRESENTATIVE PANEL from various phases of TV hashed over the topic, "Television 1958, Bust or Boom?" at ATAS the other evening. The local Academy membership is now so large (1600) that Screen Directors Guild Theater was packed. Dr. Robert Williams of UCLA pointed out that TV did not suffer during the 1949 recession because there was such a backlog for goods, including TV sets. In fact TV sales tripled in '49. In 1954's doldrums, TV sales increased while the rest of advertising more or less marked time. A tax cut and increase in interest rates helped encourage sales. "These factors are not here now," he said. Williams suggested that TV costs, which as you know have taken skyward, might have to be cut now. This idea didn't seem to register too well with Frank Nelson, past prez of AFTRA which plans soon to ask for more money for its members.

Mike Wallace Talks It Over

Fails to flinch at a single question fired by interviewer

By Evelyn Bigsby

DESPITE the fact that his list of guests grows more and more imposing, Mike Wallace has so far experienced disappointment in not being able to coax a "yes" from Bishop Fulton Sheen, Francis Cardinal Spellman, Father Theodore Hesburgh, president of Notre Dame, and such always-retiring personalities as General Douglas MacArthur and Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh.

Some Hollywood stars have also declined to appear on Mike's ABC-TV interview program. "I am a little amused at the Hollywood people who refuse to come on," Wallace remarked. "Some say they want money, but then they do other shows like mine. I think they misunderstand our show and what we're after. Some of them are afraid of box office pressure. Some are afraid they will disaffect the producers. If they did appear on the program, all they would be able to discuss would be trivia. What we hope to have in our guests is controversial opinions, guests who are bright and articulate. We don't look for derogatory material and pound on it. We hope to have a good reason for putting people on. We feel that if we don't sufficiently illuminate in doing the interview, we've failed."

Candid opinions, these, from the man whose interview with the notorious Mickey Cohen provoked cross-country headlines and hefty damage suits. Frankly stating he was disappointed in the way the suits were settled, Wallace added that his program has been some time in recovering from adverse reactions resulting from this telecast. Vehemently he denied that he had purposely baited the Cohen interview to attract publicity and rating, demanded "would I trade the integrity of my show for cheap notoriety?"

"We are now well regarded in New York for doing a responsible, adult job," Wallace continued. This time when I returned to Hollywood I noticed the whole attitude had changed. Now there is nothing but cordiality and respect. How can they argue with a show on which Eleanor Roosevelt, Alexander de Seversky, Walter Reuther and the five Nobel prize winners have appeared?"

In his lengthening string of guests,

WALLACE FEELS THAT he is unjustly always being put on the defensive. His mail, which runs around 1000 pieces a week is "heavily good." As to handling of guests and subject matter, Wallace says, "I'm the first to admit I'm not the most educated. But I'm not a mental bankrupt either."

Wallace has looked for what he calls "built-in controversy." He has found writers make the best guests because "they deal with ideas—it is the nature of their craft that they are disciplined to say what they think." Politicians are the least effective personalities for interview. "They cloak the same old ideas in a multitude of words." Staunchly upholding his controversial attitude, Wallace claims, "there is a vitality, a challenge, in talking about off-beat ideas of which TV shouldn't be denied."

Procedure

How does Mike go about pinning down his guests? He starts with feelers which, if acceptable, lead to firming of the guesting. Aiding Wallace in gathering background information are two who work with files and telephone as much as five hours before Mike himself steps in for personal contact and "ventilation of areas" which might form material for the telecast. Approximately 40 hours of research go into each telecast, total preparation for a program cumulatively amounting to 60 hours. To date most time in research was spent on subjects John Gates and Earl Browder.

In answer to the question "What self-imposed censorship do you exercise?" Wallace answered, "Good taste and the laws of libel and slander. Sometimes in setting guests I have to persuade the network's lawyers that it is in the public interest to have a certain person on. A person in case was the turncoat GI, David Hawkins. Up to now, we have had no known Communists on my program," Mike added.

Such a wealth of material is uncovered in researching a subject for Wallace's interview that generally only half of what is planned is crowded into the telecast. Wallace works from a series of questions set down on sheets of yellow paper. If the guest is especially nervous before airtime, Wallace reveals what his first question will be. Often Mike is surprised when well known figures become victims of stage jitters. He especially remembers Margaret Sanger, who was frightened "after 50 years before the public," and Pearl Buck, "that wonderful, warm, relaxed woman who froze."

On the other hand, there was Rudy Vallee, who smiled his way through the entire interview. "I had more fun with Vallee than anybody since Dagmar," Wallace gleamed. Vallee was also an easy subject to prepare for. Where many require interviews with half a dozen friends, Rudy himself and his agent were able to supply more than an abundance of material. There were only two taboos: children and religion.

Currently Wallace is working on other Hollywood personalities to appear on his ABC program. Mae West has practically said "yes" and so has Burt Lancaster. Wallace would like to land Mack Sennett when he feels better, Gene Fowler, Oscar Levant. Asked if, now that Hollywood better understands his program and is more willing to guest, he might base his interview series here, Wallace replied: "Over a period of time we could put on a good show between San Francisco and Hollywood. But I feel we would unnecessarily foreshorten our outlook if we based here. As it is, one-fifth of all our shows are from the West Coast. We'll continue to move around to get the guest in his native habitat. Next to Cohen, our interview with Governor Faubus was most controversial, but also important were the timing and the fact that we did it from the living room in Little Rock."

Of course, Wallace always runs the risk that something might happen to a scheduled guest even minutes before airtime. A stand-by filmed show with Otto Preminger was made about a year ago, but is a little stale now, even in a pinch. "If somebody shouldn't show up? I've often wondered!" Mike laughs.

As to the personalities who have been on his program, Wallace declares, "There is not one I wouldn't choose again."

THERE'S been a good deal of comment about "Tale of Two Cities," the last Du Pont Show of the Month, and most of it has been good. But to this department, it proved too clearly that some stories with scope and depth cannot be told effectively on TV. The crowd scenes were handled beautifully, the acting for the most part was good, but there was still a cramped, confined feeling to a story that certainly needs breadth and bigness.

About the Oscar Awards on TV—seeing it in the theater was tremendously exciting. And certainly the staging was flawless, with the highlight numbers being Mae West and Rock Hudson (and what a hand Mae got!) the dance between Kirk Douglas and Burt Lancaster. The one sour—and was it sour!—moment was the Donald Duck satire on some of the great moments in movies of yesterday. To satirize the Luise Rainer telephone speech or to cut in on Jeanette MacDonald and Nelson Eddy was downright stupidity. Almost everyone there would have loved to hear these artists again.

Tony Bennett was the Coconut Grove's recent offering and to the initiated he was apparently a resounding success. It is true he knocked himself out selling a song, but for my money he just used up too much perspiration. I could have done nicely with less pyrotechnics and more variety in his numbers. Bennett stays pretty much on one beat which is dandy if you happen to like that beat. It was, to this department, one of the less exciting events at the Grove. Dino (Dean Martin) arrives this week and he should attract nothing but packed crowds.

Met the most fascinating and interesting Jacques Bergerac who is here to do the Studio One production of "Mrs. 'Arris Goes to Paris" with Gracie Fields.

Jacques looks and sounds as French as the Eiffel Tower but he is really Basque—which is a race of people who settled in the Pyrenees and have a language all their own. Jacques learned French however, from the beginning.

To fulfill his many commitments here and in France, Jacques has been commuting back and forth between Paris and Hollywood. Last January he did another show for Hitchcock on TV (he got his best break on a Hitchcock show), then went back to Paris for a movie. He returned immediately to Hollywood shortly after.

"I have a home in Paris and one here," Jacques remarked. "I don't know where I live any more or where I prefer to live. I just seem to be shooting and flying." (Of course, all this was said with a most charming accent).

Before Jacques arrived here in the States he had worked in the theater in France for several years. It was there that a talent scout from MGM saw him and signed him to a contract. When he arrived in Hollywood he couldn't speak one word of English so he studied the language for a whole year. At the end of that time, he asked MGM if they had any plans for him and when they said no, he asked for his release—since he wanted to work.

Jacques likes working in both French and American pictures because he finds the differences in technique stimulating.

"The French have more artistic freedom than you have here," he said, "in that they can deal with more adult subjects—and this good. But the French have little interest in TV. This is due to their way of living. They don't like to sit and watch TV or a movie for hours on end. They prefer to have dinner, some wine, and then spend the evening talking

Pick OF THE Pix

BY AUBREY DAHL

Lester Weinstern, of Chula Vista, writes: "Have great respect for your reviews but you disappointed me this week. "Johnny Guitar" was stolen by Mercedes McCambridge in 1953 and again tonight." Mr. Weinstein, she who steals "Johnny Guitar" steals trash.

"The Informer." (9) Beginning April 14, 9:00. 1935. Generally regarded as an all time film classic, this John Ford production won him an Academy Award in 1935 for best direction, as well as Dudley Nichols, for best screen adaptation (from Liam O'Flaherty's novel), Max Steiner, for best musical scoring, and Victor McLaglen, for best acting of the year. It is, truly, a great picture, and I really can't add much to that. It has been studied and emulated over the years, mentioned always in awe when students of the cinema gather, and looked forward to when revived, as I am looking forward to this showing. It is a story of the Irish rebellion and one man's part in it, a big, dumb hulk of a man whose desires become twisted with his duties when he informs on his best friend to the Black and Tans for a piddling reward, and then spends a long night dribbling it away as the rebels inexorably close in on him as the traitor. The picture is filled with memorable scenes and performances: the betrayed fighter for freedom is beautifully played by Wallace Ford, who has quietly become an actor of real stature over the years; J. M. Kerrigan is frighteningly evil as the bleating sychophant who manages to separate "King Gypo" (McGlaglen) from most of his wad before the end; Preston Foster does a solid job as the leader of the rebels; the squalor, the tension and the feeling that was Ireland of the time is beautifully wrought by Master Ford; and, above all, is McGlaglen's magnificent performance as the pitiful lout. Rumors have long been rife as to the tricks used by Ford to obtain this portrayal, and possible they're all true, but the fact remains that it is McGlaglen who is seen on the screen and it is he who all but tears your eyes out with one of the greatest screen performances of all time.

"Fury." (11) April 13, 9:00. 1936. This powerful picture constitutes an effective preachment against injustice and mob rule, and is a model of Fritz Lang's particularly potent style of directing, which is realistically impressionistic, if you ask me . . . or vice versa. Spencer Tracy is a nice young man who becomes innocently involved in a kidnapping, is put in jail, and is considered dead when a lynch mob burns the place down. Still alive, however, he swears vengeance on the human animals who wronged him. With Walter Abel and Sylvia Sydney.

"Sudden Fear." (4) April 12, 10:00. 1952. I suppose I should disqualify myself from reporting on this movie. I've never been inordinately impressed by the talents of Joan Crawford and Jack Palance, the central figures in this tale of suspense, and I happen to remember it very well, which is hardly fair to it. Miss Crawford is a successful playwright who turns down Palance for the leading role in her new play because he isn't romantic enough, a canard Jack speedily disproves by wooing and winning Joan for his wife. She is as speedily disillusioned when she discovers he is planning to kill her for money to spend on Gloria Grahame, and evolves a plan to turn the tables. I'll spare you the ironies of the ending. Suffice it that in the final chase, when Joan is running terror stricken through the streets of San Francisco, and Jack is closing in on her with malevolent intent, he steps on a cat's tail, producing a wail audible on Alcatraz: How's that for originality? I must add, however, that this film was well liked by many people, including the critics.

DJ's DIVERSIFIED

Gone are the days when deejays could merely spin records, chat a bit and relax. Talents today must be diversified and KFVB's Bill Ballance and B. Mitchel Reed are two popular deejays who do not limit their talents to their daily record shows.

Ballance is now writing columns for two nationally distributed magazines, Dig and Modern Teen; and Reed is emceeing the Avant Garde Tuesday Record Nights which showcase new and established recording artists weekly.

SKIPPER FRANK'S SCAM-O-GRAM

Hi:

Glad to see you survived April Fools Day and I'll bet you enjoyed a wonderful Easter. Ken Ricketts is our Scam O Gram letter writer of the week and he likes the "betcha" stunts. Soooo, this week we have two wagers that you can always win. This is a way to get even for April Fool Tricks that may have been played on you.

No. 1 - Challenge a friend that you will bet him one Easter Egg that you will give him four eggs if he will give you two. The devil himself would be tempted to take this bet - but even he would lose.

SECRET: When your friend passes you the two candies, announce that you have decided to lose the bet. You then pass him the one candy egg you owe him and keep the other one. Your profit? One candy egg. Whether you keep your betting pal is another question.

No. 2 - After your pal recovers from the above tell him that you will give him a chance to get even. Tell him that you will bet him one candy that he can pick out any book of fiction in the house and you will guess whether the first chapter starts on an even-numbered page or an odd number page. All he has to tell you is the name of the publisher and not the title of the book. This looks like a fifty fifty deal and your pal should duke in for another candy egg.

SECRET: The name of the publisher is a red herring . . . it's thrown in only to confuse the issue. The truth is that all fiction books and almost all non-fiction books, too, start on a right hand page, and all right hand pages are odd-numbered. This is a printing convention that has existed for centuries. Caution . . . this is not true of Oriental Books where all starts from the back.

Have fun with these and be sure to share your loot with the losers or you might win a shiner.

'til next week,

SKIPPER FRANK

LIFELINES

ZIV TELEVISION'S SALES MANAGER, Alan Martini, stated "there's too much talk about depression and recession. Our attitude is to expand, not retrench. We've upped our budget $4,000,000. We're very optimistic. Our men will simply have to sell harder."

SOMEBODY FROM THE AUDIENCE asked Wayne Tiss of BBD&O (a big agency) whether he agreed with the new rumor that sponsor identification on Westerns is poor because all the boots 'n' saddles shows are so similar. He replied that some research indicates this to be true, but added that one survey of sponsor I.D. showed that 27 per cent of the people queried thought Playhouse 90 was sponsored by Chrysler! A hangover from Climax!

AFTER THE ECONOMIC TUSSLE, ATAS members relaxed with some very intriguing TV films. From London were two British news programs, one done very tongue-in-cheek on the topic of American tourists, the other a documentary type on a big London workhouse for down-and-out men. Cleve Roberts, in introducing the second film, questioned whether a reporter here would have chosen subjects who were as badly scarred and deformed as two with principal interest in the London reel. Some Japanese TV commercials and others from the Philippines were crude but absorbing. In one shot the children dug their fingers into a margarine bucket and popped the stuff in their mouths to demonstrate how good it tasted. How Brave Eagle has French dialogue dubbed in to synchronize with our actors' lip movements was a topper along with a Reed Hadley Racket Squad film, done in Spanish. Pretty slick.

ASKED WHAT SURPRISED HIM most about Russia, Bob Hope, whose recent show on NBC unreeled a lot of Russian footage, replied: "the Western influence." He cited the musical prevalence of Les Brown, Glenn Miller, Louis Armstrong, and even Elvis Presley. Then he mentioned American clothes which are seen everywhere in Russia. "Of course," he added, "they've been wearing sack dresses there for a long time!"

—or arguing. TV may eventually change the habits of children in France, though, because they are beginning to enjoy watching the shows at six in the evening when they come home from school. Maybe they're just watching to avoid doing home work."

Jacques had much to say about other institutions in France—such as Brigitte Bardot.

"She really brings something to the screen," which was the understatement of the year. "There are many actresses who now want to show their bosoms and other physical attributes but Bardot has more than just physical appeal. She is mentally full of sex appeal."

And to that—a hefty sigh of agreement. "Brigitte is what I call a really feminine woman. Women here in America are, generally speaking, so interested in a career they're losing their femininity. They want to compete with me. They forget that femininity is a woman's greatest weapon. The American woman says to a man, 'I'd like that coat—get it for me' and he does, against his will. The French woman, on the other hand, is subtle. She puts her head on the man's broad shoulder, tells him how much she needs him, and how much she loves him, and then purrs, 'I'd love to have that coat sometime' and he rushes out to get it for her—feeling like a real god."

Jacques Bergerac is not only a good actor—he's a great spokesman for all males.

AS FAR AS TV IS CONCERNED, number "98" has moved to Channel 5. Tom took over Sam Balter's spot, who had to leave because of a sponsor conflict. On radio, Tom can still be heard on CBS every night.

HERE'S THE WAY Tom Harmon looked when he was an All American halfback at Michigan during the 1939-40 seasons. His number "98" jersey with the sleeves rolled up was familiar to thousands of fans who saw him swivel-hip his way for many a touchdown.

BEFORE THE KTLA CAMERAS, Tom interviews another football great—Y. A. Tittle, the slightly bald but always brilliant quarterback for the San Francisco 49er's who was selected in 1957 as the Pro Football Player of the Year.

TOM HIMSELF IS A SIX-FOOTER, but he looks like a midget compared to basketball stars Bill Russell (right) and Tom Heinsohn (left) of the Boston Celtics. Russell, who's six-ten, and Heinsohn, who's six-seven, guested on one of Tom's radio shows.

WE'VE SEEN TOM AT WORK AND PLAY. Here he is at home with wife Elyse, son Mark, and daughters Chris and Kelly. Elyse and Tom first met when Harmon came to Hollywood to make a movie about his life.

DICK POWELL, whose Four Star Films company produces Richard Diamond, once played the role on radio. He chose Janssen for the lead in the TV version.

IS A GIRL'S BEST FRIEND

At least, that's what they're saying about Richard Diamond, Private Detective being a lucky show. Or is it because David Janssen, its star, is still a bachelor.

By Jack Holland

BEING cast in CBS-KNXT's Richard Diamond show is getting to be a good luck charm for the young love-lies who engage in romantic byplay with the hero, David Janssen.

In practically each episode, David as Richard Diamond has derring-do with one of these charmers and so far the girls have landed themselves top flight jobs in other pictures as a result.

Anne Neyland did a bit in one of the shows. Not long after she found herself under contract to MGM and a light in Elvis Presley's eyes. June Blair was another who had only a couple of lines and marched to a movie contract — at 20th Century-Fox. Sandra Giles did a walk-on and also wound up with a motion picture deal. Jill Jarmyn also found the Richard Diamond show to be a good luck deal.

But what about David Janssen who plays the rugged, debonair hero? What effect have these girls had on him?

"They're great to work with and I do enjoy the love scenes," jovial Dave grinned, "but I'm still a bachelor. I have dated some of them but usually they're on the show only a day and by the time

I get around to asking them they're gone and I can't find them.

Bachelor Life

"Right now I'm beginning to enjoy for the first time the full fruits of bachelorhood — the freedom, the fact that I have security now, a nice car, good clothes. It's great not to have to live from one pay check to the next. But I'm also beginning to find out what a deal it is to live alone. I rented a house out in the valley and I had to buy everything — from furniture to can openers. I spent days getting sheets, towels, pillows, knives and forks, pots and pans — the works. I'm still wondering how I got into such a mess."

The house is a one bedroom affair built on four levels. It is obviously — very obviously — not a place for a wife. So from all appearances, David isn't planning to change his bachelor status.

He has his ideas about the kind of a girl who could make him change his mind, though.

"I like an attractive and intelligent girl, which doesn't make me too unusual," he quipped. "A woman to be attractive, as far as I'm concerned, has to have interests herself. I wouldn't want one whose only interest and concern was me. Love shouldn't be such an all-engrossing thing. I even like career women — and I've gone with actresses, interior decorators, and girls with other types of occupations.

"However, I don't think I'd ever marry an actress since most of them are, possibly of necessity, pretty self-centered. Unless the conversation is about them they get either glum or sullen or talk over you to someone else. Of course, I've seen girls who weren't actresses who were rather self-centered.

"I also don't go for those who are overly made-up. I like to see the skin showing through. And I also prefer simplicity in the way a girl dresses. This plunging neckline bit doesn't intrigue me. I like subtlety more. And I sure can do without the dangling earrings bit."

David admits he would not be a good catch now himself, although the thought of marriage does occasionally enter his mind. He isn't in the least serious about anyone — at this writing anyway — and he sees no chance of this changing in the near future.

"This would be a bad time for me to marry," he said. "The hours I have to keep alone would make it difficult for a wife. I'm up very early in the morning, I seldom have time for breakfast, I get home around 8:30 or 9 at night, grab a fast meal, learn my lines and go to bed. This would not intrigue a wife, I'm sure.

"However, I'm not going to be hard to live with otherwise — I don't think. I'm not especially moody although I do like my moments of privacy where I can read all the things I want to read. And I don't throw tantrums" he laughed. "Besides — I'm very neat. I have an aversion to dirt in the house so my wife would have to be neat too or we'd have to get a maid."

David had to leave rather abruptly to get back to his house in order to greet the carpet man and the new furniture which was being delivered. He had a sudden thought about the man's trying to lay the carpet while delivery men walked through the place.

"This is going to be as bad as the day the wood I ordered arrived," he said. "I had asked for a half a cord, not having any idea how much that was. I've almost had to move out to make room for the logs." He shrugged his shoulders, shook his head, and cracked, "With the way I'm managing things at home, maybe a wife would be a good idea."

Which would be fine — if she also knew something about firewood.

DAVID JANSSEN stars as the personable Richard Diamond in the CBS-KNXT show.

CHRISTINE WHITE is the type of attractive and appealing girl who works on this show — and finds it a stepping stone to stardom.

Not all men believe that woman's place is only in the home, so if you have ability and crave a career, take Eva Wolas' advice . . .

By Jean Corlis

IF YOU want to succeed in a specialized field," advised Eva Wolas, CBS-TV producer "it isn't the men you will work with who should scare you. It's whether or not you are prepared for the job you're aiming for. I've found that when men know you have put in the necessary apprenticeship and have the potential, they'll open doors for you.

"You may run into some opposition," continued Eva, "but that is natural in everything in life. Women as well as men fight change. The 'status quo' is easier, and therefore more to be desired. But there are always men with courage who will break away from tradition and say 'I think this person has ability—regardless of sex.' If some man hadn't said that, I wouldn't have been a producer for Playhouse 90 last season, and Climax now."

Traditionally men always open doors for lovely women, and when, as in the case of Eva Wolas, beauty and femininity are combined with outstanding talent and thorough preparation, it is no wonder that even in a man's world she has not only been accepted, but welcomed.

Married to David Heilweil, also a producer, and the mother of a year-old daughter, Eva admitted that her business career was not the only important part of her life.

"Don't misunderstand me, I love my work, but my greatest joy is to be able to have things go so smoothly during the day that I can whip out of Television City at five o'clock and dash home to snatch Alexandra from her very devoted and efficient English nurse.

"It may seem strange that feeling this way I still continue to work, but I know my own nature so well that I recognize that even if I were to stay home all the time I would not be able to take on all the chores of a household. Some of my friends have made the transition easily

Don't Let Men
Scare
You!

from career-woman to housewife, usually because their husbands wanted it that way. My husband, who was a classmate of mine at Cornell, has always encouraged me to continue my work even since the baby was born, because he knows I'm a better wife and mother because of my career."

Encouragement of Eva's career started early in her life when her mother and father noticed her strong leanings toward literature and music. At the age of six she was allowed to appear in a play, and a few years later she wrote a script for One Act Play magazine. From then on she knew that her future would be in the field of the drama and all her studies were channeled to that end. She studied at Cornell University, Yale, and the University of Geneva in Switzerland, earning a Bachelor of Arts from Cornell and a Master of Fine Arts from Yale.

Most women with that much education would feel they were equipped to hold a very important job, but Eva Wolas felt that only the foundation of her career had been laid. She began building it by adapting and writing plays; assisting directors and producers, reading scripts and story editing. Eventually she gained the reputation of having one of the best script minds in television, and this recognition among producers and writers earned her the important job as story editor of Climax. From there she was signed by Screen Gems last year to produce eight filmed Playhouse 90 productions. This year she will produce ten live shows for CBS-TV's Climax series.

While most people are able to figure out for themselves what a director does, the word "producer" doesn't carry a very strong image.

"The producer originates the idea for the show, usually from a book, play, or event," explained Eva. "For instance, my first show for Climax was the semi-documentary story of Albert Anastasia, the gangster. The reaction to the announcement that this story was to be presented was violent, and we had to make sure that it was handled so that it would not glorify the criminal. My second show was of an entirely different type, 'The Thief With the Big Blue Eyes,' the story of a little boy, and the idea for this came from an unpublished story submitted to me some time ago. In each case I, as the producer, assigned a writer to develop a treatment which would be right for the purpose of the show. After the treatment was written I had to cast the proper writer to do the script—someone whom I knew had a flare for the particular type of story involved. When the script was finished and approved a draft was submitted to the director and I discussed my original idea or plan with him, and he brought to it his creative insight on sets and casting.

"I find it a very rewarding job," Eva continued, "I always wanted to be a teacher, but now that I'm a producer I realize that the qualities which make a good teacher are equally important in my work, especially the feeling to recognize talent and let it flower."

News is no longer just a time-filler and public service. In recent years, good news reporting means big business for the local stations. It has also brought about

The Undeclared News War on the L. A. Front

By Ted Hilgenstuhler

WHEN NEWS makes news, it's news. And that's exactly what's happening today in the TV-radio world, especially on the radio "front"—which in some ways is turning into an old-fashioned "news war" between rival media.

There has always been keen competition between the individual stations and networks but never to the extent which we are hearing today on the local radio stations.

In the cycle of evaluating news, there are two major events which consistently register a peak of public interest: wars and elections. During these critical periods it seems that the public can never get enough details and is constantly keeping its ear glued to the radio and its eye to the newspaper and TV set. 1958 is an important election year in California. But this is still not the main reason why people are more news-conscious today than in many years.

An expert in this field—Pat O'Reilly, the Director of News for ABC—explains the situation this way:

"During the past, oh, two or three years, there has been a tremendous upsurge in news reporting. Public interest in daily events has reached the same proportion that it did during World War II and later in the Korean conflict. For a while, there was a lag. But now people are hungry for information about national and international affairs. And local news, especially here in Southern California with the freeways, the elections this year, the floods and the countless other human interest stories, makes our job more important, and yes, more exciting than ever before."

Our Analysis

When we analyze some of the recent trends in the TV-radio industry, we can realize that there are some basic and fundamental reasons for this rejuvenated hunger for all kinds of news. Especially insofar as radio is concerned.

After World War II, radio enjoyed a monopoly in telecommunications. TV hadn't made any great strides yet, so radio cornered the market in news, entertainment, sports, music, drama—you name it. However, the stronger TV got, the weaker radio became. Ultimately radio was forced to become, by and large, a haven for disc jockeys and singing commercials. Sporting events got some attention — when they weren't being televised.

Slowly but surely, almost unconsciously it seems, it dawned on the brains behind-the-mikes that they still possessed an ace-in-their-crumbling broadcasting hand. News. Lots of news. Freeway reports. Beach reports. Flood news. Whenever and wherever it happened: get it first and get it right. Get the public in the habit of turning to their radios whenever it wanted to know what was happening in the world around them.

To do this, local stations brought their mobile units into action. They increased their news staffs. Disc jockeys turned into semi-reporters by breaking into their own programs with traffic reports. KABC did the ultimate by hiring Donn Reed and his helicopter to cover L.A. from the air.

Get 'Em — Keep 'Em

"Getting a story first is still important in our business," O'Reilly further explains. "But it's not absolutely essential. What every station attempts to do—and I know it's what we constantly strive for at ABC—is to get the public to believe in you. You have to get people to listen, and then to keep listening. To do this, you must develop an all-around reputation for swiftness, accuracy, and probably most important of all—integrity."

To help him do this job, O'Reilly and his assistant, Milt Fishman, have a ten-man staff of writers-reporters who handle both TV and radio for ABC. Only one of this group (Dan Ferris) is a "combination-man" — a man who announces on-the-scene. The rest are "leg-men" in the field and writers and editors in the office.

"We get news leads from various sources," O'Reilly continues. "From phone calls, the AP, INS and City News wire services, the daily papers, and personal observation. But we always check every lead before we write it up and put it on the air."

"We do get trapped once in a while, though. I can remember the time all the stations fell for a wire service story which said that Mickey Cohen was killed in Griffith Park. The reporter who sent out the story made it sound like a police report, rather than an individual tip. Besides, it was a perfectly believable story."

"We put it on the air right away. But while we were on, we checked it, and before the program was over, we had time to retract the false rumor."

This is proof positive that radio is still the fastest means of communication—even for retractions.

This daily battle is going on right now on our airwaves. O'Reilly is increasing his staff. So are other news departments around town. The ultimate victor, of course — and at last — is the listener.

Twist that radio dial around—if you haven't already—and hear for yourself how news-conscious Southern California has become. This keen competition is not in name of public service, either. News is no longer a necessary evil. It has become a necessity for survival.
