INTRODUCTION

NO radio fan can afford to be without the "Almanac Wireless Log Book."

It fills every need of the radio receiver set owner. It contains all the facts the owner needs about all the broadcasting stations in the United States and Canada and broadcasting stations in all foreign countries.

The "Almanac Wireless Log Book" contains three complete up-to-date lists of the broadcasting stations of the world.

These lists are unique in that each one is complete in itself.

The purpose of the different arrangements of these lists is to make the information more accessible to the user.

INSTRUCTIONS

The Sheets Listing Broadcasting stations alphabetically by call letters provides spaces for Logging Stations and alteration of Wave Lengths.

With these sheets the radio owner soon establishes his own personal list and has before him, at all times, not only the proper dial setting for each station logged, correct wave length, but all the other data about the Station.

Before entering dial settings, in this log, be satisfied that you have the best settings you can obtain for the station in question.

There are numerous ways in which the "Almanac Wireless Log Book" will aid you and add to the interest and enjoyment of owning a radio set. A few of the helps are mentioned herewith.

Should you when listening in, hear only call letters, by reference to the call letter list, you immediately get the location, wave length, etc., of the station broadcasting.

Should you hear the city and owner's name, you refer to the list by states and cities and at once know call letters, wave length, etc.

The Wave Length table will prove very helpful in locating new stations, commonly called "distance hunting."

As you use the "Almanac Wireless Log Book" you will see many other points of help, all of which will add to your interest and enjoyment.

Note: Although the government's purpose is to reduce rather than increase the number of broadcasters, some additions and changes are liable to be made from time to time. For such changes there is provided space at the end of each list.
