Acknowledgments

In the time it took to produce this guide many helpful hands were extended through either words of encouragement or well-performed tasks. Regardless if the help was contracted or given in friendship, the people mentioned below showed a belief in the project for which we are most appreciative. We extend to them our warmest thanks.

The person that gave the most to this project both in time and effort is Kimberly Rennie. Kimberly joined the project at its beginning and became responsible immediately for computerizing the project. Data bases, programs, computer design work, and general assisting in all facets of the project were the tasks she did and did in an exemplary manner (most of this while she was a full-time college student). Following closely behind in time spent and responsibilities taken on was our son Joseph. Without his careful attention to detail and accuracy the project would have suffered greatly. Next we would like to thank Elaine's sister Ann Archey and her daughter Karen, who came in during times of excess work loads and performed the numerous mundane tasks that take so much time and energy.

When I work in my real profession (photography), I have the enviable position of working with many talented people. Many of those people were shown prototype designs and gave their expert advice on how to improve them. One designer I have to give special thanks to is David Larkin. Not only was he a catalyst in initiating me into action, but also offered invaluable expert opinion on design concepts. And on top of that, the poor bloke had to endure my incessant checking of radio stations as we drove to our photography locations.

Special thanks to three friends that made such a contribution to the project. First, Sabra Elliot, who we will forever be indebted to for presenting and advocating our project to the editorial board of The Berkley Publishing Group. Second, Blake and Pauline Gardner, who through suggestions and great moral support helped get us through some of the tougher times.

To our editors at Berkley, Natalee Rosenstein, Jill Dinneen, and Bill Harris, thanks for all that we saw you do, but extra thanks for all that was done in the background that we were not aware of. There is always more effort that goes into these projects than is readily noticed.

To Phil Ruderman, Steve Powell, and Sandy Powell, thanks for all the efforts in making the city skyline graphics interesting and fun. To another computer whiz, Jean King, thanks for taking a complex project and making it work.

Last but not least, we want to thank all the people in the radio industry who were so helpful in filling out questionnaires and taking time to talk to us on the phone when we had specific questions. And definitely we cannot forget the musicians that make the music we all listen to. It would be a very empty world if music did not exist.

Introduction

The idea for this radio guide originated from the same frustration that many of you have had while traveling for business or pleasure in unfamiliar territory. Wanting to listen to the radio, you start to scan the dial for a radio station that will give you an hour or so of your favorite tunes before you lose the signal. In searching for that station you find that one-third of the stations are on commercial break, so you have no idea if they are playing your type of music. Do you get lucky and find something satisfactory, or do you settle for a station that is at least close to what you want? If you do momentarily compromise, do you end up re-scanning in ten minutes, and if in a major city do you want to re-scan through twenty or more signals? The next problem encountered is not knowing where the signal is coming from. Is the tower thirty miles behind you so that in another ten minutes the signal begins to fade? The seek button on a radio might find you a song you like, but not necessarily a station you care for, or one whose signal you can anticipate having for a comfortable period of time. Therefore, we decided to develop a radio guide that you, the motoring public, could use to alleviate the frustrations of playing radio roulette.

Recognizing a problem is an important first step, but finding a solution is the difficult part. In the case of this radio guide, more than two years transpired before the idea of a linear approach utilizing the interstate highway system was conceived. This idea seemed to approximate as much as possible the actual use of a car radio on an extended trip. Text alone would not accomplish a solution to all problems, so to supplement the text it was decided to create an interpretive map at the top of the page. Metropolitan areas, with so many signals to choose from, necessitated having their own section in the guide. More graphics were incorporated in the design, so if you were driving alone and were momentarily stopped you could scan the pages quickly.

Problem number two was the question of what to include in the guide. The first major issue was whether or not to include the AM band. Because of space considerations and the limited listenership of AM versus FM, we originally decided to make the guide strictly FM. Within a year of gathering data we saw the error of our decision and decided that the AM band did have much to offer and could not be completely neglected. Again because of space considerations we had to be selective about what AM stations to include. The most logical choices were the talk, news, and clear-channel stations, which are those AM stations given the allowance to broadcast at full power during the evening hours.

While decisions about the AM band were in the making, the question of what to include or exclude from the numerous FM stations across the country also had to be settled. Since we were primarily making a guide for a mobile audience, we made the decision to eliminate very weak stations because their signals would not carry far enough to be practical for someone moving at 55 miles an hour. An exception was made in major metro areas, where it was felt that linear movement would be at a minimum. Of major concern was determining how far left and right of the interstate we would go to include stations. Very powerful Class C stations were brought in from up to sixty miles away. Moderately powerful Class B stations were included if within forty miles of the interstate. And the moderate power Class A stations had to be within twenty miles to get a listing. Since FM transmission is line of sight, topography also became a factor in determining whether stations should be included.

With all the programming and services provided by radio stations, the primary goal was to go beyond being just a format guide and introduce more detailed information about the stations. Public stations in particular had so much programming to offer that to just list them as either classical, jazz, or eclectic was to do a disservice to the stations and listeners. Commercial stations, with their traffic reports and news teams, were also providing the public with more than just music.

One area of programming that we decided to include that we knew was going to be very labor intensive and difficult to portray easily was news programming. The importance of knowing when a station was giving a news broadcast was made evident one day when driving home from Boston. There was a major happening in the world that we were trying to get informed about and it seemed that every station we tuned in did not have a news broadcast at the logical top of the hour. If we had known which station in the area gave a newscast, and at what time, we would have been most grateful.

To gather the information needed a survey was sent to each radio station listed in the book. In thanks to the men and women in the industry, the response rate was excellent and the information provided superb. What did not come by mail was then solicited by phone. All stations were provided an equal opportunity to provide us with data.

In conjunction with the data gathering, field tests of the design were taking place. Approximately 20,000 miles were logged in two vehicles checking the accuracy of the entries as they related to their placement on the page, signal power, and other technical criteria. It must be admitted that this was the fun part of the project. Some might question the wisdom of spending so much time on the road when theoretically you should be able to calculate signal projections from power and antenna heights. This is true, but not being engineers ourselves we felt more comfortable double-checking what theory said should happen. And in doing the checking we always managed to find some quirks that necessitated some change in our station placement or inclusion.

It is hoped that our efforts have resulted in a radio guide that is both informative and easy to use. This being the first edition, we realize there will be some inaccuracies that will have to be corrected, and we welcome suggestions from our readers and the radio industry. A cautionary note about radio formats though: some radio stations may change their formats in reaction to trends. We have made our best efforts to have the latest information about what each station is playing, but in the time that we close pages and the book is printed and distributed things can change in the radio industry. We will keep up with those changes and update these guides periodically.

One last note: If you are driving alone do not attempt to use this book while in motion. If you are in a city wait for the next red light or traffic jam, and if you are on the interstate wait till you have to stop for gas or coffee. We want you to be around to buy the updated version!

ROAD PAGE MAP EXPLANATION

Intersecting road with signal projections means town listed is only on that route. If last town on either side of map is in italics you will find the entries for that town on the previous or following page.

Intersecting roads are listed with page referrals should you be turning off onto one. All road directions are at top for convenience.

All mileage between cities are averaged air miles. In the Northeast and southern California strong stations (three bars) project a good signal 35 to 50 miles. In the rest of the country three-bar stations project up to 90 miles. Use these figures to estimate how far to look ahead for stations.

METRO PAGE EXPLANATION

The map immediately below is a visual representation of what is taking place in a metro area.

Central city Alpha has the major portion of stations. The surrounding cities or towns (A,B,C,D,E,F) comprise the remaining amount of signals placed in the metro area.

From the road map below notice that as you leave Greenville the signals from Metro Alpha are now reachable. At this point it is advisable to leave the road pages and open to Metro Alpha.

As you enter Metro Alpha from the south you can look for listings of three-bar stations. All three-bar stations from central city and surrounding towns A,B,C,&F should be receivable. Given your location in the very southern section of the metro area, the three-bar stations from towns D&E may have some difficulty being received and it is very unlikely that the two-bar stations will come in from those locations.

Two-bar stations from towns C&F may also be difficult to get. Depending on the distance, two-bar stations from central city and town B should be receivable in the vicinity of town A.

Not all metros are picture perfect so there will be variations in what signals are receivable. If you keep a mental picture of the map you can anticipate what stations will be available as you enter from any compass point. Generally, though, stations from the opposite compass points are going to be trouble until you get closer to the central city.
