THE WAVE

94.7 KTWV

THANK YOU!

Dear Listeners,

Over the past several months, we've been celebrating our 10th Birthday. We hope you've been able to participate in some of the events and activities we've held in celebration of this milestone.

We kicked off our celebration last Fall when we treated listeners to a "day off" at Disneyland, with a special private concert featuring Dave Koz, and a VIP viewing of one of the last performances of the Disneyland Electrical Parade. In October, the "WAVE Boat" cruised to Catalina for a picnic and yet another private concert for our listeners, starring the late, great saxophonist Art Porter. A number of events and on-air contests, expressly designed to thank you, our listeners, continued throughout the Winter and Spring.

As the culmination of our 10th birthday, we hope you will join us in August for a very special Birthday Party. See inside this issue for more information.

In the radio industry, we are considered a pioneer in this style of radio format. We're very proud of the fact that ten years after we launched The WAVE, we are more popular than ever. Although all of us at The WAVE work very hard to create a sound that fits the lifestyle of Southern California, we cannot take the credit. The credit belongs to YOU. Over the years, you have given us tremendous feedback that has allowed us to present a blend of music that is fresh, innovative and contemporary.

Please don't ever fail to give us your feedback in the future. We look forward to being a part of your life over the years to come.

Tim Pohlman
Vice President and General Manager

A RETROSPECTIVE

In early 1987, Ronald Reagan was President of the United States, most of us had yet to fax a document, turntables were used in the vast majority of radio stations' on-air studios, internet meant a very young intern, and 94.7 The WAVE was born. Like any child, it experienced growing pains along the path to adulthood, but at this juncture in time, we can look back and consider the launch and growth of The WAVE as one of the most intriguing and outrageously fun experiences broadcasters could ever dream of having.

Although many factors have been said to have contributed to the decision to change Rock 'n' Roll KMET to a format we called (in our first press release) "Somewhere between Rock, Jazz and New Age", there were very distinct musical benchmarks that made us realize there was a huge body of music Southern Californians wanted to hear on the radio, and was generally unavailable to you. The strength in sales of Contemporary Jazz, the astonishing growth of Windham Hill Records, and Paul Simon's multi-million selling "Graceland" project were among those benchmarks.

The WAVE was given birth to by a group of broadcasters who all still have a great passion for the music you hear on The WAVE. Frank Cody, The WAVE's first program director, and now CEO of Broadcast Architecture; Paul Goldstein, now Operations Manager of WNUA in Chicago; Tom Miller, who went on to hold programming posts at WAVE-type stations in Dallas and Chicago; and myself. The management of the radio station truly acted bravely when they gave the go-ahead to launch the station.

In essence, we had a blank sheet of paper on which to create a new musical format for radio. All of us brought a great deal of music to the table... knowing that it would be compelling to our potential audience. But, that was just the beginning. During the weeks before February 14, 1987, we discovered that the depth of talent was beyond what we knew existed. We all listened to CD after CD, vinyl after vinyl, and felt an incredible joy of discovery with every new track. Time and again, one of us would rip the headphones off our heads and demand the others listen to yet another gem of a piece of music.

We originally launched with "No Disc Jockeys". Again, quoting from the press release announcing the launch of the station: "Another major differentiating element of The WAVE is that there are no disc jockeys. However, three times each hour, KTWW will present 'Playlets'... contemporary dramatic moments where actors will perform what The WAVE bills as 'extraordinary moments in the lives of ordinary people'."

So, we had the formula for The WAVE. It was a challenge you might compare to designing the space shuttle. It all made sense, but would it fly?

Moon on February 14, 1987 was as emotional a day as anyone should want to have. As a former listener, KMET had given me some of the best broadcast moments I can remember. It had been, years before, a magic radio station. But we all felt that we were creating a new magic for the airwaves in Southern California.

The first months were tumultuous, and the years that followed saw many changes at The WAVE. Throughout those years, we've strived to respond to your changing tastes. It has always been our utmost hope that we are fulfilling your needs and expectations.

In early 1997, Bill Clinton, amateur sax player, is President of the United States. To many of us, faxing a document is an out-dated method of communicating, the preferred hardware in many radio station's on-air studios is floppy disc/hard drive, the internet is a medium that not even its creators can get a handle on, and The WAVE is celebrating a decade in Southern California.

Thank you, we couldn't have done it without you.

What's HOT!

Three reasons why we love listening to music for a living.

Boney James Sweet Thing

Saxophonist Boney James chose the title "Sweet Thing" for his latest offering because it is the title of one of the songs the disc. The tune was originally recorded by Rufus. Boney enlisted former Rufus guitarist Tony Maiden to both sing and play on that title track. We are glad he chose the title because it allows us to run amuck with gastronomic analogies describing this delicious CD. It is one scrumptious platter with a decadent piquancy that is smooth like cream and leaves you with a delightful aftertaste. — Sorry. It is an incredible album. We asked Boney how he approached recording this one: "I wanted to explore new directions, while at the same time, touch on some music that was important to my own development—everything from jazz fusion to Steely Dan. The result is a sort of 'live meets loop' approach; modern and retro at the same time." We think it is very tasteful.

Herb Alpert Passion Dance

Herb Alpert once again returns to the Latin arena with "Passion Dance." As the story goes, his Tijuana Brass sound was initially inspired by a visit to a bullfight. Last summer, he had a similar revelation while attending a Salsa Night concert at The Hollywood Bowl. He found himself dancing in the aisle that night and into the studio the next day. The CD is a heartfelt tribute to the Tijuana Brass faithful who asked if Alpert would record again in that vein. It is also very contemporary reflecting the state of Latin music today with urban rhythm-intense grooves. All of the ingredients are there: a standout cast of Latin players, percussion, layered horns and plenty of passion.

Bob James and David Sanborn Double Vision

Since this is our ten year anniversary issue, a classic is in order. "Double Vision" remains hot after all these years. Released in 1986, the collaboration between Bob James and David Sanborn defines Smooth Jazz. The interplay between Sanborn and James is magical and Tommy LiPuma's production clearly stands the test of time. This is one of the CD's that caused The WAVE.

Music Notes

Music Notes keeps its eyes on the artists that make the music. We'll let you in on what they're up to... on and off stage, so you can get a better picture of the people behind the music.

We are frequently asked what has happened to saxophonist John Klemmer: He has been keeping a pretty low profile, but we finally have some news to report on one of the originators of Smooth Jazz. Klemmer has been in the studio with Craig Chaquico working on Craig's upcoming project "Once In A Blue Universe." The album is scheduled to hit the shelves in late August. Other guest artists on Chaquico's album are Dave Koz, Richard Elliot and Peter White.

Fourplay's fourth release is in stores now. It is a "Best Of" CD that includes something imported, something re-mixed and something new. One of the tracks is a Nathan East composition that was previously only available as a Japanese import. They re-mixed "Why Can't It Wait Til Morning" featuring Phil Collins. The band also recorded a brand new song for the collection on which the vocal talents of Take 6 were enlisted for an interpretation of the Stevie Wonder classic "Higher Ground." The Fourplay foursome of Bob James, Lee Ritenour, Nathan East and Harvey Mason go into the studio to record their next album of all-new material in November:

The Bob James quarter of Fourplay can be found in his home studio putting the finishing touches on his next solo album due out in September: Boney "no relation" James stopped by to lay down some sax tracks for the project. Bob is re-cutting two of his earlier tunes for the album, but with a different twist—the titles are "Nautilus" and "Storm King." Both songs have been heavily sampled on dance and rap albums. If everyone else is going to mess with the songs, he may as well too.

BOB JAMES

BONEY JAMES

Speaking of sampling... Pianist Joe Sample is doing a whole album of re-makes of his own tunes. The CD is being produced by George Duke and should be out by the end of summer:

Richard Elliot has nine albums to his name and he is one of the most sought after sax players in the business.

So what does he do with his spare time? A cyber surfer from way back, he had been cruising the information super-highway before most people knew where to find an on-ramp. Two years ago Elliot and his partner started PacificNet, an Internet provider company. The company's original focus was on the needs of the music industry. Its scope has grown far beyond music and currently employs 20 people. Now Richard is volunteering his services and paying his crew to provide schools free Internet connections through his company. He told us, "We are trying to give opportunities to kids who would not otherwise have access to computers outside of the school setting. We are targeting schools that are economically challenged. The President has a goal of providing internet access to every kid in school... We are just cutting through the red tape and getting it done." As for his other gig: "We just started recording and should have an album out this fall." Richard told us that Paul Brown is producing the project making this the first time he has brought in an outside producer:

"Body And Soul" is the latest edition to trumpeter and flugelhornist Rick Braun's discography which includes 1995's "Beat Street" 1994's "Night Walk" and "Christmas Present" as well as 1993's "Intimate Secrets." Many Braun fans may be surprised to learn that he recorded one earlier album as a solo artist entitled "Gypsy Lady." It was an album of pop vocals released in 1981 by Teichiku Records, a Japanese label. We are still trying to talk Rick into letting us hear that album.

Australian guitarist Tommy Emmanuel included a rendition of Sting's "Fields Of Gold" on his latest album "Midnight Drive." Tommy was quite honored and surprised to find Sting among his audience members at a recent live performance in New York. It turns out Sting is a fan.

TOMMY EMMANUEL

At least three WAVE artists are spending this summer with the air conditioning cranked-up and the egg-nog flowing. Grover Washington, Jr., Peter White and Dave Koz are all busy recording Christmas albums for release not too many shopping days from now.

For many Smooth Jazz artists, the launch of

The WAVE marked a significant milestone.

Here are the viewpoints of a number of successful and supremely talented musicians.

David Sanborn

"In 1987, I was doing my jazz radio show on the NBC Radio Network. I remember Frank Cody (founding program director of The WAVE) came to me and said he was working on a concept for a radio station called The WAVE and that they were going to use a lot of my music as part of their playlist. I thought, 'This is really great.' It was in L.A. when I first heard The WAVE and I love that there was finally a possibility of a format that would play a lot of music that wouldn't get played on pop radio or traditional jazz radio. It filled a void in the marketplace."

Kenny G

"In 1987, I had just released my album 'Silhouette' and I was opening for Whitney Houston on her tour. When I first heard NAC (New Adult Contemporary) radio, I thought, 'Perfect! About time! Finally!' And I was flattered that there was a whole format that would play and embrace music that I naturally did, as opposed to formats that were maybe forced to play me...When people heard that format, they heard me first. It's like falling in love for the first time, you never forget that. I happened to be with the right music at the right time. It was one of those things that was meant to be and I guess I was meant to be there at the beginning. I'm just glad I was."

Peter White

"In 1987 I was Al Stewart's musical director, guitarist, and keyboardist, as I had been since 1975. We were working on an album that came out the next year called 'Last Days Of The Century'. I became aware of The WAVE around 1988, and I remember hearing them play Acoustic Alchemy. I didn't know anything about them, but I thought, 'Wow, these guys are making instrumental music on guitar. I could do that!'"

So I did. I thought it was great there was a format for instrumental music that wasn't necessarily jazz. Another pivotal moment listening to The WAVE during that time was when I heard them play a song from 'Last Days of the Century' called 'Ghostly Horses Of The Plain', which was an instrumental and mostly featured my playing. I thought, 'Wow, that's me on the radio!' At the end of it the announcer said 'That was Al Stewart.'

That gave me a kick in the pants to record my own solo project in 1989, which was my first album, 'Reveille-Vous.'"

Keiko Matsui

"...Because it's not really jazz or pop, my music doesn't fit any other kinds of stations. So NAC radio means a lot to me. My music has classical, jazz, and rock influences. The NAC format has the capacity to carry broad musical elements. It's not just me—all instrumental musicians cannot live without the NAC radio format."

Bob James

"...When I first heard NAC, I hoped it would be successful because I knew I was in that genre and because it's the kind of music I wanted to listen to on the radio myself. Trends in radio are sometimes short lived, so that NAC is going stronger than ever in its tenth year is great!"

Rick Braun

"...I've toured the worlds with some major artists (Rod Stewart, Sade) and the response that fans of this music give is very personal. Musically, I do what I enjoy; that it fits with what's going on at radio is a very nice thing. Good music is the true strength of what's going on with stations like (The WAVE)."

After ten years on the air, The WAVE has been here to witness some remarkable talent emerge. A number of musicians who were side and session players a decade ago now have their names on the cover of entire catalogs. Brian Culbertson was fourteen when we made our broadcast debut. He now has three albums under his belt and is about to release a fourth. Musicians have told us that The WAVE's very existence has been instrumental in launching their careers. Before there was a WAVE, a number of musicians paved the way for us to create a radio station. The artists that inspired the format in 1987 are every bit as relevant today. The station was founded on the idea that some visionary artists were recording quality music that was not generally being heard on the radio. There existed a universe of music that was melodic, provocative and hip. We just played it.

WAVE ARTISTS

THEN

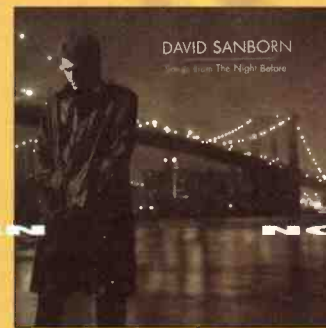

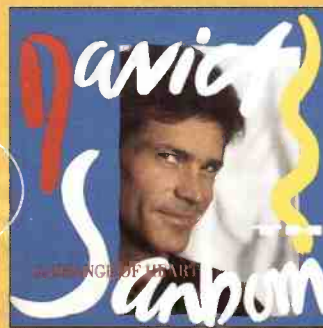

In 1986 Kenny G had a hit with "Songbird" from the "Duotones" album. In many ways that incident in pop music kicked open the doors for a whole genre of music. "Songbird" was being played on Top 40 radio and thus an entire generation was introduced to the idea that a melody could be every bit as compelling as lyrics. It was the first time an instrumental song made such an impact on pop culture since Herb Alpert had a hit with "The Lonely Bull" twenty years prior. Had Kenny never recorded another song in his life, he would have still made history. As it turns out, he chose instead to become a history making machine, forging accessibility for instrumental music. His incredible sense of melody has earned him the title of the best selling instrumentalist of all time. At the core of the WAVE sound is melody.

1984 was the year the world was introduced to the haunting voice of Sade. If The WAVE has a quintessential vocalist to hang our hat on, Sade is wearing it. Her voice is understated, mysterious, elegant and evocative. Her intoxicating arrangements are rich with heavy bass lines and exotic rhythms. Everything about Sade is alluring and enigmatic. She rarely does interviews and is seldom spotted in public when she's not actually performing. The latest Sade sighting was earlier this year when she appeared in a Montego Bay court to face charges of dangerous driving, disobeying a police officer and disorderly conduct. She points out, "The myth is that I am a shy reclusive diva. I'm a diva, of course. But I'm not shy or reclusive. I just spend my time with people rather than journalists." Perhaps the personal mystique of Sade adds to the seduction. All we know is that when someone describes The WAVE as sexy, we know that Sade's name is about to be mentioned.

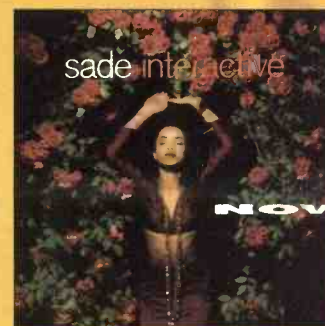

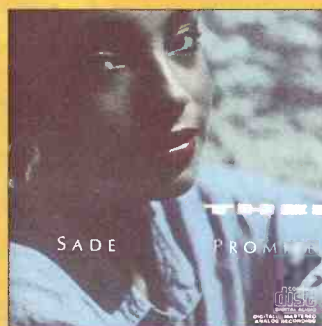

David Sanborn recorded his first solo album in 1975. The record deal was partially fueled by his cutting-edge sax performance on the David Bowie album, "Young Americans." By 1987, Sanborn's discography already included nine albums. Right after the launch of The WAVE he released his tenth, "A Change Of Heart." For us, it was an eagerly awaited album. It was not only one of the first new releases we would review since signing on the air, it was David Sanborn. His name had earned a reputation for cool. So, in came the album—a big black vinyl disc with grooves in which to place a needle. Everyone was huddled around the turntable not realizing their mouths were ajar. The hippness factor is hard to quantify: David just has it. His music is ever-changing and always passionate. He has a penchant for experimentation and that spirit is embodied in his art. In constantly raising the bar of innovation for himself he inspires others to do the same. When David's latest CD, "Songs From The Night Before" arrived here, it was met with the same kind of anticipation the "Change Of Heart" LP received ten years ago. We knew that whatever direction he decided to take with this one, it was going to be hip.

DAVID SANBORN

ZOOM

Lyndie, the lady for whom Kenny G wrote "Songbird" is now Mrs. G. Kenny tells us she has chosen the title of every album since "Duotones"—just for good measure. Sade is in the recording studio working on her first album of new material since 1992's "Love Deluxe," 1996's baby Ila and 1997's brush with the long arm of the law in Jamaica. The album release date remains a mystery. David Sanborn is headlining our tenth anniversary party in UCLA on August 2nd. We can think of no one better suited to propel us into the next decade. We only touched upon three of the artists that originally helped sculpt The WAVE. There were many. We are indebted to them all. Rather than attempt to mention the entire lot, Kenny, Sade and David each aptly illustrate The WAVE's defining characteristics: melodic, provocative and hip. They continue to represent the essence of the station. We are forever grateful to the legion of artists who created the ripples from which The WAVE was formed.

SMOOTH JAZZ FROM SHANACHIE

5031

A favorite at the Wave...The Fantasy Band is an all-star contemporary jazz group featuring guitarist Chuck Loeb, bassist John Lee, sax star Marion Meadows and Spyro Gyra vibraphonist Dave Samuels. Special guests include Nelson Rangell and Andy Snitzer.

"Tonight We Love" features a number of Walter Beasley originals, as well as covers of Al Green's "Let's Stay Together," Roberta Flack's "Killing Me Softly" and the Temptations' "My Girl," all rendered distinctively in his contemporary jazz style.

5032

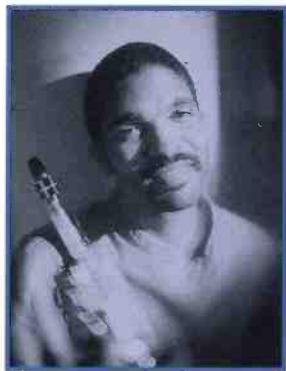

Jon Lucien's unique blend of soulful vocals, jazz and Brazilian/Caribbean textures has won him fervent fans. "Endless Is Love" features a sparking new version of his signature classic "Rashida", also included are his distinctive versions of such songs as "The Look Of Love" and "Sailing".

In MEMORY OF...

ART PORTER

ZACHARY BREAUX

This 10th Anniversary issue is dedicated to the memory of the friends we have lost.

And our industry friends: Howard Bloom, former VP/GM, The WAVE, Duke DuBois, GRP Records, Steve Feinstein, KKSF/San Francisco; and Greg Mundy, air personality, The WAVE.

To Paul Crosswhite & all the great DJ's at The WAVE,

I had to take the time to drop you a line and tell you how much I love your station. For years I listened to Rock 'n' Roll and Motown music...One day about 3 years ago I stumbled across your station and I've been hooked ever since. I love the selection of music you play.

...I just wanted to say thanks for doing such a great job...

Sincerely,
Joan Marchesano

Dear WAVE Staff,

...I want to thank all of you for your efforts in making The WAVE such an excellent station. I personally want to let you know that we enjoyed the Kirk Whalum Concert back in 1995. The cause, Boys & Girls Club charity event is a very good one and the concert that year was especially good. Thank you so much for making The WAVE a part of our lives.

Please keep playing all the good music that you do, especially the Jazz artists. We love Jazz!!!

Take care and we all wish you another 10 more years, and many more!!!

Sincerely,
Deborah Bunting & Family

Dear WAVE Friends,

Ten years ago, I tuned the dial on my car radio in search for some good music, and stopped at a beautiful, upbeat, sophisticated new and awaited-for tune, which tuned out to be on a new music station called The WAVE. That radio dial has not wandered much...

The genuine love and value you put in your excellent selection of music from artists of all around the world is felt and appreciated by your decade-long listeners. Keep up the good work and don't change.

Lilly SeHati
PS. Don Burns: love your deep hypnotizing voice.
Talaya: Your adventurous music is very lovely

Dear WAVE Staff,

You have asked us to share our thoughts about The WAVE on the occasion of its tenth anniversary...

Personally, I was involved in contemporary hit radio at the time of The WAVE's birth, I did not give it more than a passing thought in its early years.

However, in 1990 I chose to leave the radio industry and went to work for an airport shuttle van service. It was there that I truly discovered the joy of WAVE music...and also discovered that after a long airplane ride, it was the perfect music to soothe my customers' nerves...

As I shifted to working daytime hours from the night shift, (I discovered) the wonderful voice of Don Burns.

...The WAVE is still a frequent companion. It even plays at my bedside when I sleep. Its announcers are welcomed friends whose voices I recognize with a smile.

If I were still in radio, I'd want to be there with you...being paid to play music that I love.

Here's to the next ten years!
Kemberleigh Richards

Dear WAVE Staff,

I have been a listener for 10 years now and must tell you that your format was one I acquired a taste for like a smooth, stirred and shaken martini! When I first tuned in I thought it was too mellow for me, but found myself tuning in more and more often...I say goodnight to Amy Hiatt and good morning to Paul Crosswhite and Allen Lee...When I travel I have found that your format is in other large cities, and I search it out in the rental cars and hotels. I hope I don't wake up some morning to find your station has turned to Punk!

Thanks to ALL of you who make each day smooth and interesting.
