What's developed in the last half-hour?

Chances are that color newsfilm was developed from negative in the last half-hour at one of NBC's five Owned Television Stations.

Each of these stations now has facilities to convert negative into color film, available for broadcasting, in only thirty minutes.

To audiences who expect even fast-breaking events to be in color, these facilities represent a significant viewing dividend.

Ours is the only station group thus equipped, and it adds yet another dimension to the news and color leadership established by the NBC Owned Television Stations in their communities.

For viewers and for advertisers alike, a development well worth looking into.

A writer knows that he gets to people when they buy his music. The writers and publishers affiliated with BMI must be reaching pretty nearly everybody—according to 1966 Gold Record Awards, certified by the Record Industry Association of America. This year, out of an all time high total of Award winners, recordings of music by BMI writers came out on top. 19 out of 23 Singles Gold Record Awards went to music licensed by BMI. 51 of the 58 certified long playing albums contained music by BMI composers. What this signifies is a spectacular talent for pleasing people. To qualify for an RIAA Gold Record Award a single must have amassed a sale of at least one million copies. A Gold Record Album must have earned a minimum of $1 million in sales at the manufacturer level. ♪ That's why we say BMI composers must be writing something right.

Are you tuned into color?

Color is the prime reality of television life today. You just can't run a black-and-white commercial on a color show without suffering the marketing consequences. Color adds immediacy, identity and impact to your message. Shouldn't you have the full spectrum going for your product?

Your producer and laboratory rely on the quality and dependability of Eastman color film systems. And Eastman engineering service is continually working behind the scenes to make sure commercials are delivered color-perfect.

NEWEST AND FINEST

Unexcelled Performance . . . Unequaled Features

COLOR TAPE RECORDER

...available today

The TR-70 Deluxe High Band Color Tape Recorder is the newest entry in a race where each new design "leapfrogs" the last. RCA engineers designing the TR-70 were not satisfied—dared not be satisfied—just to match the already available machines. They had to make the TR-70 better—much better. And they did. Thus, the TR-70 does everything, has everything (good) that the very best previously available recorder could boast of. But that's just the start. In addition it has a whole host of features and advantages not found in other recorders. Read on.

THE TR-70 DOES EVERYTHING

It produces the sharpest, most brilliant, truest color pictures you have seen. Makes superb color dupes through four generations. Offers all the wanted accessories—to electronically edit, compensate for dropouts, dimensional errors, variations in tapes. Operates at four switchable standards. And does it all more easily, more surely and more conveniently than ever before.

THE TR-70 HAS EVERYTHING

Everything you've ever heard of before. The basic machine is High Band color (not monochrome). It's designed, tested, and delivered that way. When you get it, it's ready to go! It's an integrated machine—there's no need to find space for a compressor—everything's built-in. Space is also provided for accessories, and all wiring's in place—no downtime to install—just plug in modules: Velocity Error Correction, Automatic Chroma Control, Dropout Compensator and Remote Control. (Pixlock, Line Lock, ATC and Color ATC are part of basic machine.)

THE TR-70 HAS MORE

Features not available in other machines, features that make for better, easier, more convenient operation and maintenance. Such as all-front access, eye-level (and ear-level) monitoring, less floor space. Standard modules, all the same type, same extenders—easily removed (you don't need a screwdriver). Test points on front of panels, D-C metering panel, built-in FM test facility. Grouped operating controls, automatic guide positioning, foot-operated brake release. And many more. To learn the whole story—hear all of the facts—call your RCA Broadcast Representative.

FOCUS ON FINANCE

TV shares join the upward trend on Wall Street

STOCKS are back in style and the selling streak that once plagued the market is all but forgotten. This is true of the market as a whole and it's true specifically of television and related shares. And, narrowing things even further, it is especially true of the service stocks (advertising agencies, station representatives, research, talent and production firms and so forth) which rose the steepest of all from closing Jan. 13 to closing Feb. 13. These stocks increased on the average 23.8%. Among the most buoyant issues in this category were MPO Videotronics, up 44%; General Artists, up 42%; Movielab Inc., up 40%, and Grey Advertising, up 32%.

MPO, which produces TV commercials and industrial films, announced Feb. 6 it had signed an "exclusive" one-year contract with Czechoslovakian Film-export for Jan Kadar and Elmar Klos, directors of "Shop on Main Street" to direct a feature film this summer. The company also reported to its stockholders that sales for the fiscal year ended Oct. 31, 1966, were $14,670,383, compared with $14,641,611 for the previous year. Earnings after taxes in 1966 were $238,568, equal to 51 cents a share (combined class A and class B shares). In the preceding fiscal year net income after taxes was $476,096.

Also among the service companies, A. C. Nielsen Co., Chicago, reported its sales and net profit reached record levels for the fiscal year ended Aug. 31, 1966. Income per share was $1.09 in 1966, compared with 87 cents for the year before, while net profit in '66 was $5,591,000 as against the previous year's $4,456,000. The company said that heavy losses incurred in the development and improvement of its local television audience research services were reduced substantially and it looked "hopeful" that this service will turn a profit this fiscal year.

Foote, Cone & Belding, whose shares rose 15% in the period under scrutiny, reported to its stockholders that net income for 1966 was $2,946,000 or $1.36 per share, as compared to $2,731,000 or $1.25 per share for 1965. Gross billings to clients for 1966 totaled $255.6 million up from $228.1 million the year before.

C-E-I-R issued its report for the first quarter of fiscal 1967 (which ended last Dec. 31). The company said sales were $5,682,000 compared with $6,203,000 in the same period a year ago. However, first-quarter fiscal 1966 sales included proceeds from C-E-I-R's American Research Bureau TV Syndication Coverage Study, which is produced only once every five years. If these are excluded, first-quarter sales were about the same level as one year earlier. Net income in the more recent three-month period was down to $121,000 from $275,000 in first quarter '66.

The next two categories of stocks that showed sharp increases were manufacturing, up 14.6%, and television with other major interests, up 14%.

Most dramatic gainer in the manufacturing category was Motorola Inc. The set-manufacturer's stock rose 29 3/8 a share or 30%. It was the biggest dollar gainer of any stock listed in the TELEVISION index. Motorola, however, still finds its stock being traded at a level considerably below its 1966-67 high of 234. Other manufacturers that registered sharp increases included Ampex and Reeves Industries, both 24%, and Admiral Corp., 22%. The 3-M Co., whose shares rose less than the average for its category from mid-January through mid-February, has announced that its worldwide sales rose to $1,152,600,000 in 1966, up 15.2% from $1,000,261,000 in 1965. Net income for 1966 climbed to $138,400,000, up 18.9% from $116,439,000. Earnings per share came to $2.59 compared with $2.18 per share in 1965

Among the firms listed under television with other major interests, Time Inc., parent of Time-Life Broadcast, predicted its revenues would increase by 10% for 1966, approaching the $500-million mark. James A. Linen, president, said per-share earnings were expected to be about $5.40 compared to $4.92 in the previous year. Net earnings grew to about $37 million. Time-Life Broadcast accounted for 4% of the company's revenues, or approximately $20 million.

In the same category, Bartell Media Corp. said it expects a 1966 net income of more than $1 million, up from profits of $289,455 the year before.

In the remaining categories, programming stocks increased 11.6%, purely TV stocks grew 7.5% and CATV shares were up 75%.

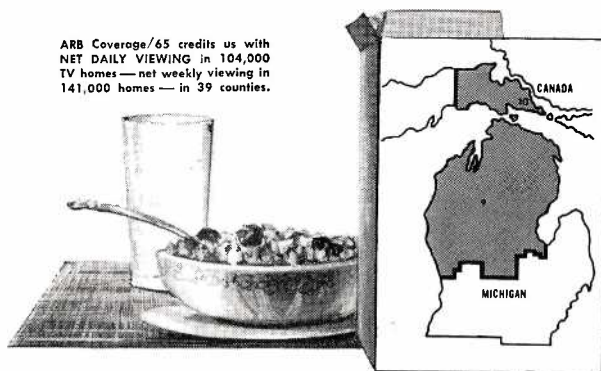

Leading gainers in the programming category were: Four Star TV, up 35%; Wrather Corp., 26%; Seven Arts, 23%, and Desilu, 22%.

Increases in the CATV listings included: Jerrold Corp., up 20%; H&B American Corp., up 10% and Teleprompter Inc., up 9%.

ABC, of course, was bound to be hit by the delay in approval of its merger with ITT—and it was: Shares fell 13% for the month's period under review. CBS, during that time, did better, but not spectacularly so, even though it reported record sales and earnings for the fourth quarter of 1966. Net income and sales for that quarter were $23,087,927 and $257,341,345 respectively. Comparable results for fourth-quarter 1965 were $17,255,071 and $219,421,815 respectively. Per-share earnings for the fourth quarter of '66 are $1.12 compared with 85 cents (adjusted for stock dividend) earned in the fourth quarter of 1965. The CBS board of directors declared a cash dividend of 35 cents per share on the company's common stock payable March 10, to shareholders of record at the close of business on Feb. 24.

Meanwhile, CBS acquired Film Associates of California, Los Angeles, a producer-distributor of educational films. The acquisition, for more than $3 million, followed shortly after the purchase of Bailey Films, another educational film firm in Los Angeles.

THE FISHER THEATRE, a spectacle in itself. With this lavishly appointed lobby and more than 2,000 plush seats, Detroit's $3.5 million Fisher is recognized as one of America's most beautiful legitimate playhouses. Here the nation's largest subscription list helps fill the house for a continuing flow of Broadway hits.

Just as Detroiters regard this roundly-applauded theatre as distinctive of Detroit, so they have regarded The WWJ Stations as distinctively Detroit for 46 years. Why? Because of programming that reflects the city's own interest in local news, sports, entertainment, public affairs, and community service. And, because of WWJ's home-ownership by The Detroit News. When you ask a Detroiters which radio and TV stations are distinctively Detroit, he'll instinctively tell you "WWJ."

Dog bites man...that's news?

Yes, when rabies is a threat. And aside from the straight news angle, the news media often perform a vital public service by alerting the community to the presence of the rabid animal. Lederle Laboratories, too, has its special assignment in such a news break...delivering the antirabies serum.

Because the rabies virus works with astonishing speed in the victim's nervous system, antirabies serum must be given immediately. Supplies of the serum are on hand at strategically located depots throughout the country. And, if additional quantities are needed, the Pearl River headquarters is ready—night or day—to provide the serum as fast as planes can fly it.

Like many other public service drugs, the serum involves long and costly processes. And because such drugs are used on comparatively rare occasions, their sale is seldom adequate to cover invested costs in research, development, manufacturing or distribution. As it is with the news media, however, public service is an integral part of the pharmaceutical prescription business.

THE MONTH IN FOCUS

Merger delay causes ABC to borrow $25 million from ITT

THE ramifications of the proposed merger between ABC and the International Telephone & Telegraph Corp. got "curiouser and curiouser," to borrow the terminology of an observer of another Wonderland.

Although the merger was approved Dec. 21, 1966, by the FCC, the Justice Department has since intervened with a request that the commission hold "a full evidentiary hearing" on what it said were conflicting and incomplete data about the merger.

On Feb. 17, ABC obtained a $25 million-loan from ITT. It stated that the loan was prompted by "a critical cash shortage" resulting from the moves of the antitrust division of the department to delay the merger.

The ITT loan will be converted into advances from ITT to the new ABC subsidiary if the merger takes place. If not, the loan will be repayable in one year at an interest rate one-quarter percent above banks' "prime," or minimum, lending rates. At mid-February, the prime rate was 5¾%.

ABC and ITT had until Feb. 23 to file evidence in answer to issues raised by the department. If the case is not reopened, it has been assumed by some observers that the department's antitrust division will attempt to stop the merger on procedural grounds.

The department claimed that ABC's cash position is relatively strong. It quoted an internal ITT document that said, according to the department: "ABC's 5-year cash throw-off through 1970 will approach $100 million, almost all of which will be available for reinvestment (by ITT) outside the television business." The department's brief added that ABC documents showed that ABC had considered making substantial capital investments in new areas of activity.

ABC has been singing a different tune. It said that the $25 million was "substantially less" than what would be needed in the next few years, but that it would "permit ABC to meet its immediate cash requirements" during the next several months.

■ A new set of initials appeared in television's alphabet soup, one that showed hopes of bringing sustenance to audiences as well as to the harsher critics of commercial TV.

PTV, or "public television," was the concept blueprinted by the Carnegie Commission on Educational Television in a plan to build noncommercial TV into "a new and fundamental institution in American culture."

Already dubbed by one observer as "a species of 'fourth network,'" it is a project which would be financed primarily by a manufacturers' excise tax on TV sets. Despite some murmurs of discontent, even among supporters of ETV, the plan drew prompt and substantial support from at least one commercial source: CBS. That network immediately pledged $1 million, while other broadcasters indicated they were giving the plan a most careful study.

The Carnegie Commission envisaged programing that would encompass "all that is of human interest and importance which is not at the moment appropriate or available for support by advertising, and which is not arranged for formal instruction."

The new system, projected from a base of 150 stations at the start of 1969, could be expanded to a total of 380 by 1980. It would derive its funds from a 2% to 5% manufacturers' excise tax on sets, supplemented by state and local funds and grants from foundations and other private sources.

Although the 15-man commission that drafted the report indicated it had nearly a thousand specific program ideas, the report as finally issued listed general concepts and guidelines.

As envisioned, the plan would require an average expenditure of $178 million per year for programing, equipment, operating and other costs, rising to $270-million a year when the system is full-grown, no later than 1980.

Although PTV would not fall into the category of instructional or commercial TV programing, the commission implied that it would be closer to the latter. One of its main program sources would be National Educational Television and at least one other national production center, the report indicated. They would, "in general," turn out programs "comparable in subject matter to those now available from NET, although of greater diversity."

Production costs for such national programs were projected by the commission at an average of $45,000 an hour, compared to a $20,000 per-hour average for present NET programs. A one-hour commercial TV program was scaled at $100,000.

The core of the operation would be the "Corp. for Public Television," a nonprofit, nongovernmental body that would commission and buy programing, arrange for interconnections to distribute programs, support research, talent-recruiting, libraries and, in general, provide "effective leadership" on all levels.

In terms of the commission's plan, the corporation would have a 12-man board of directors, six to be appointed by the President of the U.S. (subject to the approval of the Senate) and the other six to be elected by the first appointees.

The commission's report recommended that the corporation and especially its program operations should be protected from congressional influence by stipulating that its main source of funds, the yield from the proposed excise tax on TV sets, flow directly from the U.S. Treasury to the corporation through a trust fund, thus obviating the annual congressional appropriation review.

■ It was a big month for noncommercial television.

Ford Foundation announced that in October its $10 million ETV "laboratory" would unveil the first color TV series in noncommercial TV history.

Simultaneously, the foundation indicated plans to set up ETV's first regular network operation, providing interconnection on a routine basis.

Costs for the regular interconnection would not run much higher than the once-a-week interconnection, observed Av Westin, executive director of the laboratory.

NET interconnected 75 affiliates during January for a presentation of the President's State of the Union address and three other special programs. It plans two more such special events before October, Westin said.

■ Widespread rumors that Frank Stanton might leave CBS Inc. for a high government post died with the announcement that he had signed a new, 21-year contract with the company. The agreement calls for Dr. Stanton to put in five more years of active service with CBS, followed by 16 years as a consultant. His consultancy will end Dec. 31, 1987, three months short of his 80th birthday.

Details of his financial remuneration will be published in the company's proxy statement to stockholders next month in connection with its annual meeting. Dr. Stanton, fresh out of Ohio State University where he did a pioneer study in radio audience measurement, started with CBS as the number-three man in a three-man research department in 1935. He has been president of CBS Inc. since Jan. 9, 1946. He will continue as president during his remaining active service years, giving him 29 years in that post. END

FOCUS ON PEOPLE

GEORGE P. NORTON The advertising vice president of General Telephone & Electronics Corp. is a man on an enthusiastic mission. He is deeply involved in the firm's plan to sponsor four original TV plays on CBS Playhouse during the 1967-68 season (cost: $2 million). "We're opening with Loring Mandel's play, 'Do Not Go Gentle Into That Good Night.' It stars Fredric March and Florence Eldridge and is tentatively scheduled for September," he said. "Reginald Rose's 'Dear Friends,' a contemporary story of four couples, is now set, and decisions are pending on which plays we will use in the other two programs." GT&E launched itself into TV in January 1966, and because of the critical and popular acclaim accorded its documentary shows, the firm felt it was time to venture into a straight dramatic approach. "Some of the 1966 programs received excellent response," Norton recalls, "and it became apparent to us that audiences wanted to see something really different." He states firmly: "We are not in the rating race. But we want people to know about our company through first-rate TV productions that will reflect the character of the firm. Simultaneously, our commercials will show how our particular products or services will figure in the life of the average man." GT&E's track record in TV has been an impressive one, Norton believes. "We intend to maintain it by presenting programs that explore ideas and also have exciting entertainment values." Norton, a 1937 Williams graduate, is an avid theater and music buff, he admits to being something less than an Arnie Palmer on the links. As a viewer, he enjoys pro football ("among many other things"). It's a sure bet he's tuned in for all of GT&E's telementures.

JAMES R. KILLIAN JR. The soft-spoken, transplanted South Carolinian is said to be something of a genius at grasping and resolving the differences between opposing ideas and ideologies. It was not surprising therefore that the former adviser to Presidents (Eisenhower and Kennedy) was named to head the Carnegie Commission on Educational Television. Nor was it a surprise when the published report proved to be balanced, measured and perhaps even workable. For that is the sort of thing the chairman of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology Corp. likes—for things to work, and work well together. He thinks, for instance, that the relationship between commercial television and public television should be "symbiotic," by which he means they ought to be able to live intimately together in a mutually advantageous way. He is careful to note that the report itself does not "rest on a criticism of commercial television," nor, he says, should public television be considered in competition with commercial TV. Dr. Killian thinks it important that public television aim at "a wide range of kinds of people and not at an elite group." He notes that it can aim at "multiplicities of smaller audiences" whereas the commercial broadcaster "quite properly is concerned with the largest audiences." Dr. Killian began his long career with MIT after he was graduated from it in 1926 and was named assistant managing editor of The Technological Review. He and his wife live in a penthouse on campus in which he admits there are several TV sets. He describes himself as "a selective watcher. My wife calls my attention to important things. I saw the Picasso program, I saw Death of a Salesman and of course I watch channel 2 [ETV] in Boston."

HARRIS KATLEMAN Everybody knows about Goodson-Todman. They're the game show geniuses who turn out five of those long-running tape productions in New York. But here, maybe, is news for you. Goodson-Todman Productions has been packaging and producing Hollywood film series since the early '50's. The company also is in station and newspaper operations. Katleman, an impressively-groomed man who looks like he was born in an executive suite, is Goodson-Todman's man in Hollywood. As executive vice president of the company's West Coast office, he has been responsible for putting together such series as Philip Marlowe, The Web, The Rebel, The Richard Boone Show and Branded. He also oversees the Goodson-Todman-owned radio station, KOL Seattle. These days Katleman is working hardest to get Goodson-Todman back into the filmed series competition in time for the 1967-68 season. Branded, G-T's last Hollywood production, played network prime time a season ago. Now Katleman has three properties to fill the void. One, Rhubarb, a half-hour development deal with ABC-TV, will star Groucho Marx as "permanent special guest star." He will play "J. Paul Greedy, richest man in the world." A second project, Borderline, a half-hour western, is said to be attracting sponsor interest. A mystery called Mastermind, starring Michael Dunn, is being developed as a two-hour feature film for television, with an hour spinoff as a TV series the hoped-for result. Katleman recently turned down an offer to join a major film studio. His reason: "At Goodson-Todman we do what we want to when we want to. It's a free-wheeling operation."

JERROLD[®]

CENSUS CATV

THE 1,449 community antenna television systems and the 2,304 communities they serve are listed below, with comprehensive details of ownership and operation.

All of the systems presented in this list have filed reports with the FCC. What this amounts to is the first federal census of CATV.

All CATV's were ordered to submit reports by Dec. 1, 1965, but a number failed to meet the deadline. This list includes all those that filed through January 1966.

Systems are listed in the communities that they identified as their operational offices. Some systems serve more than one community. In such cases, appropriate cross-references appear. The listings are in alphabetical order of communities within alphabetical order of states.

Information on each system is presented in the following order:

■ Name of the community where the system has its operational office, name of the system and its address. If communications regarding the system are to be sent elsewhere, the other addressee is given in parentheses.

(Note: An asterisk preceding the name of a community indicates that the system listed there is within the grade-A signal coverage of a station in one of the 100 biggest television markets. FCC rules impose restrictions on the importation of distant signals by CATV's in such situations.)

■ Community or communities served and the population (pop) and number of subscribers (subs) listed for each, date system was started, number of TV channels it can carry, and the television stations it picks up. For each station carried the following information is given: call sign and location; channel of broadcast and channel of carriage on the cable, as for example, (5-2) meaning the station broadcasts on ch. 5 and is delivered on the cable on ch. 2; whether the station is picked up off the air (O-A) or by microwave (Mic). If the report failed to identify channel of cable carriage, the omission is indicated by a question mark, as in (5-?) . If method of pickup was not reported, the omission is indicated by the phrase "not given."

■ Additional services provided by the cable system. The nature of each is given (time-weather, FM, news ticker, film origination, local live origination or other) and the number of channels and hours per week (hrs per wk) devoted to each. (Note: owing to general misunderstanding of the FCC questionnaire, the number of channels devoted to FM by those systems carrying FM is not given.)

■ Officers and owners, with percentage of ownership of each. Ownerships of systems that are part of CATV groups are listed in detail in the directory of multiple ownerships beginning on page 86 ("The CATV Groups") and are designated in the individual listings beginning below as "see MO." Those CATV systems that are associated in ownership with broadcast properties are distinguished in the listings below by the designation "see BO." Details of the broadcast holdings of owners in both CATV and broadcasting may be found in the directory of broadcast owners beginning on page 96 ("Broadcasters in CATV").

so questionable by hundreds of CATV system operators. That many of them who did respond to the FCC poll did so with the greatest reluctance. Many attached statements to their completed questionnaires which asserted, in effect, that their return of the completed form was not to be considered a recognition of the FCC's jurisdictional assertions.

Despite the above qualifications to the statistical validity of the FCC figures, some significant trends are immediately discernible:

According to the FCC records, there are 1,449 CATV systems in the U.S. and the Virgin Islands. These systems serve some 2,300 communities with a total population of approximately 26 million. A total of 1,867,408 subscribers or 3.4% of U.S. television homes receive their broadcast fare via cable.

In addition to this, a closer look at the FCC survey reveals that the number of subscribers served by the average operating system exceeds 1,200, a figure somewhat larger than previous estimates. Many systems in remote hill or plains country have been operating for years with fewer than 100 subscribers, but as CATV has moved from solely rural areas to a more urban environment, the average system size has grown, quite naturally, with the number of potential households. There are quite a few systems that claim more than 5,000, and a few super-systems such as Potomac Valley Television Co., in Cumberland, Md., with 16,693 subscribers, and Mission Cable TV Inc., in El Cajon, Calif., which serves 19,163 customers.

That investors find CATV a lucrative proposition is pointed up by the fact that of the 1,449 systems responding to the FCC questionnaire, 869 or 61% are affiliated with 317 corporate entities or individuals with financial interests in more than one system. And although broadcasters have approached CATV with mixed emotions, the FCC figures show that 402 or 28% of the systems are owned wholly or in part by 175 corporations or individuals that have financial interests in either radio or television broadcasting. And of the 175 broadcasters in CATV, 77 of them find the CATV business attractive enough to invest in more than one system. Television broadcasters in CATV number 82, and the list includes such familiar names as the National Broadcasting Company, Cox Broadcasting, Time-Life Broadcast, Westinghouse Broadcasting Co., Avco Broadcasting Corp., Meredith Broadcasting Stations, General Electric Broadcasting Co., and RKO General Broadcasting Stations Inc., a corporate sister of Vumore Co., one of the larger CATV multiple owners with 33 systems serving 44,644 subscribers. In addition, broadcast related organizations such as the advertising representative firm of Harrington, Righter and Parsons, and the Washington communications law firm of Haley, Bader and Potts, hold interests in CATV systems.

Limited only by their own financial resources, many individual and corporate investors seem to be building virtual empires of cable. Largest multiple owner of all is H & B Communications Corp. with 27 systems serving 90,338 subscribers and based in Beverly Hills, Calif. Other giant group CATV owners are Jack Kent Cooke Inc. with 19 systems and 73,160 subscribers; Teleprompter Corp. with 14 systems and 64,289 subscribers; Television Communications Corp. with 13 systems and 51,599 subscribers; and Cox Cablevision Corp. with 11 systems and 41,818 subscribers.

One of the sore spots between the FCC and CATV interests, particularly group owners, has been the commission rule requiring system operators to win FCC approval before importing distant signals into an area within the grade A profile of a top-100 market station as defined by the American Research Bureau. The FCC reasoned that uncontrolled CATV growth within such an area might serve as the basis for pay television as well as a detriment to the growth of UHF television in the top-100 markets. While many respondents indicated they were not sure if they served subscribers within a grade A profile, a total of 366 or 25% of all respondents indicated they were operating within such a profile. Systems were also asked to indicate the method used to pick up television signals, whether off-the-air or via microwave. Most systems reported using passive antennas to catch their signals, but 372 or 26% indicated using microwave links to pick up one or more broadcast channels.

Systems equipped with high-band equipment capable of supplying subscribers with 12 or more channels, accounted for 803 or 53 percent of all systems reporting to the commission. The older five-channel (or less) capacity equipment is still in use by 513 systems or 36% of the respondents, while 98 systems or 6% reported they were equipped to supply subscribers with between six and 11 channels of programming.

Broadcast FM is by far the most frequent additional service provided to subscribers in addition to television signals. Of the respondents, 753 systems or 53% reported FM radio as an additional service, while 440 or 30% reported providing time and weather information over an unused television channel. FCC figures also revealed that only 51 systems or little more than 3% of the systems provide news ticker service, in which a television camera scans a news machine similar to that found in every broadcast station or newspaper.

Although the FCC's stand on local program origination has been somewhat ambiguous causing many systems to go slow on such activity, 104 systems or 10% of the respondents reported originating coverage of such local events as high-school football games or city council meetings. Because most systems reporting local live originations indicated they did so only occasionally, it was virtually impossible to calculate the number of hours devoted to such activity by all systems.

Local film material is originated by only 23 respondent systems, while only six reported the use of video-tape recording equipment. Four systems reported they cooperate with local school districts in originating educational material that is relayed from a central classroom to other rooms or other school buildings.

Systems also were asked by the commission to report additional services that have been announced that would be available to subscribers in the future. One hundred and twenty claimed they would provide a time and weather service; 86 reported they would begin carrying FM signals; 43 reported plans to incorporate a news ticker in their system; 91 plan to begin local live origination; 31 plan to carry film material over an unused channel; and nine systems reported plans to link their local school districts with cable. Of the total respondents, 427 or 30% reported they provided no additional service and had made no plans to do so.

The above figures represent the aggregate of the many facts submitted by the 1,449 systems listed in the following pages. And although some systems were unable or failed to respond, for one reason or another, to the FCC census, the information provided remains the most meaningful body of information on the dimensions of CATV.

EIGHTEEN years ago it was just a gleam in an engineer's eye. But the figures at the left attest to its growth and present dimensions: Within two decades, the community antenna television industry has developed from a simple antenna on a lonely mountain top to a multi-million-dollar-a-year business serving thousands of communities.

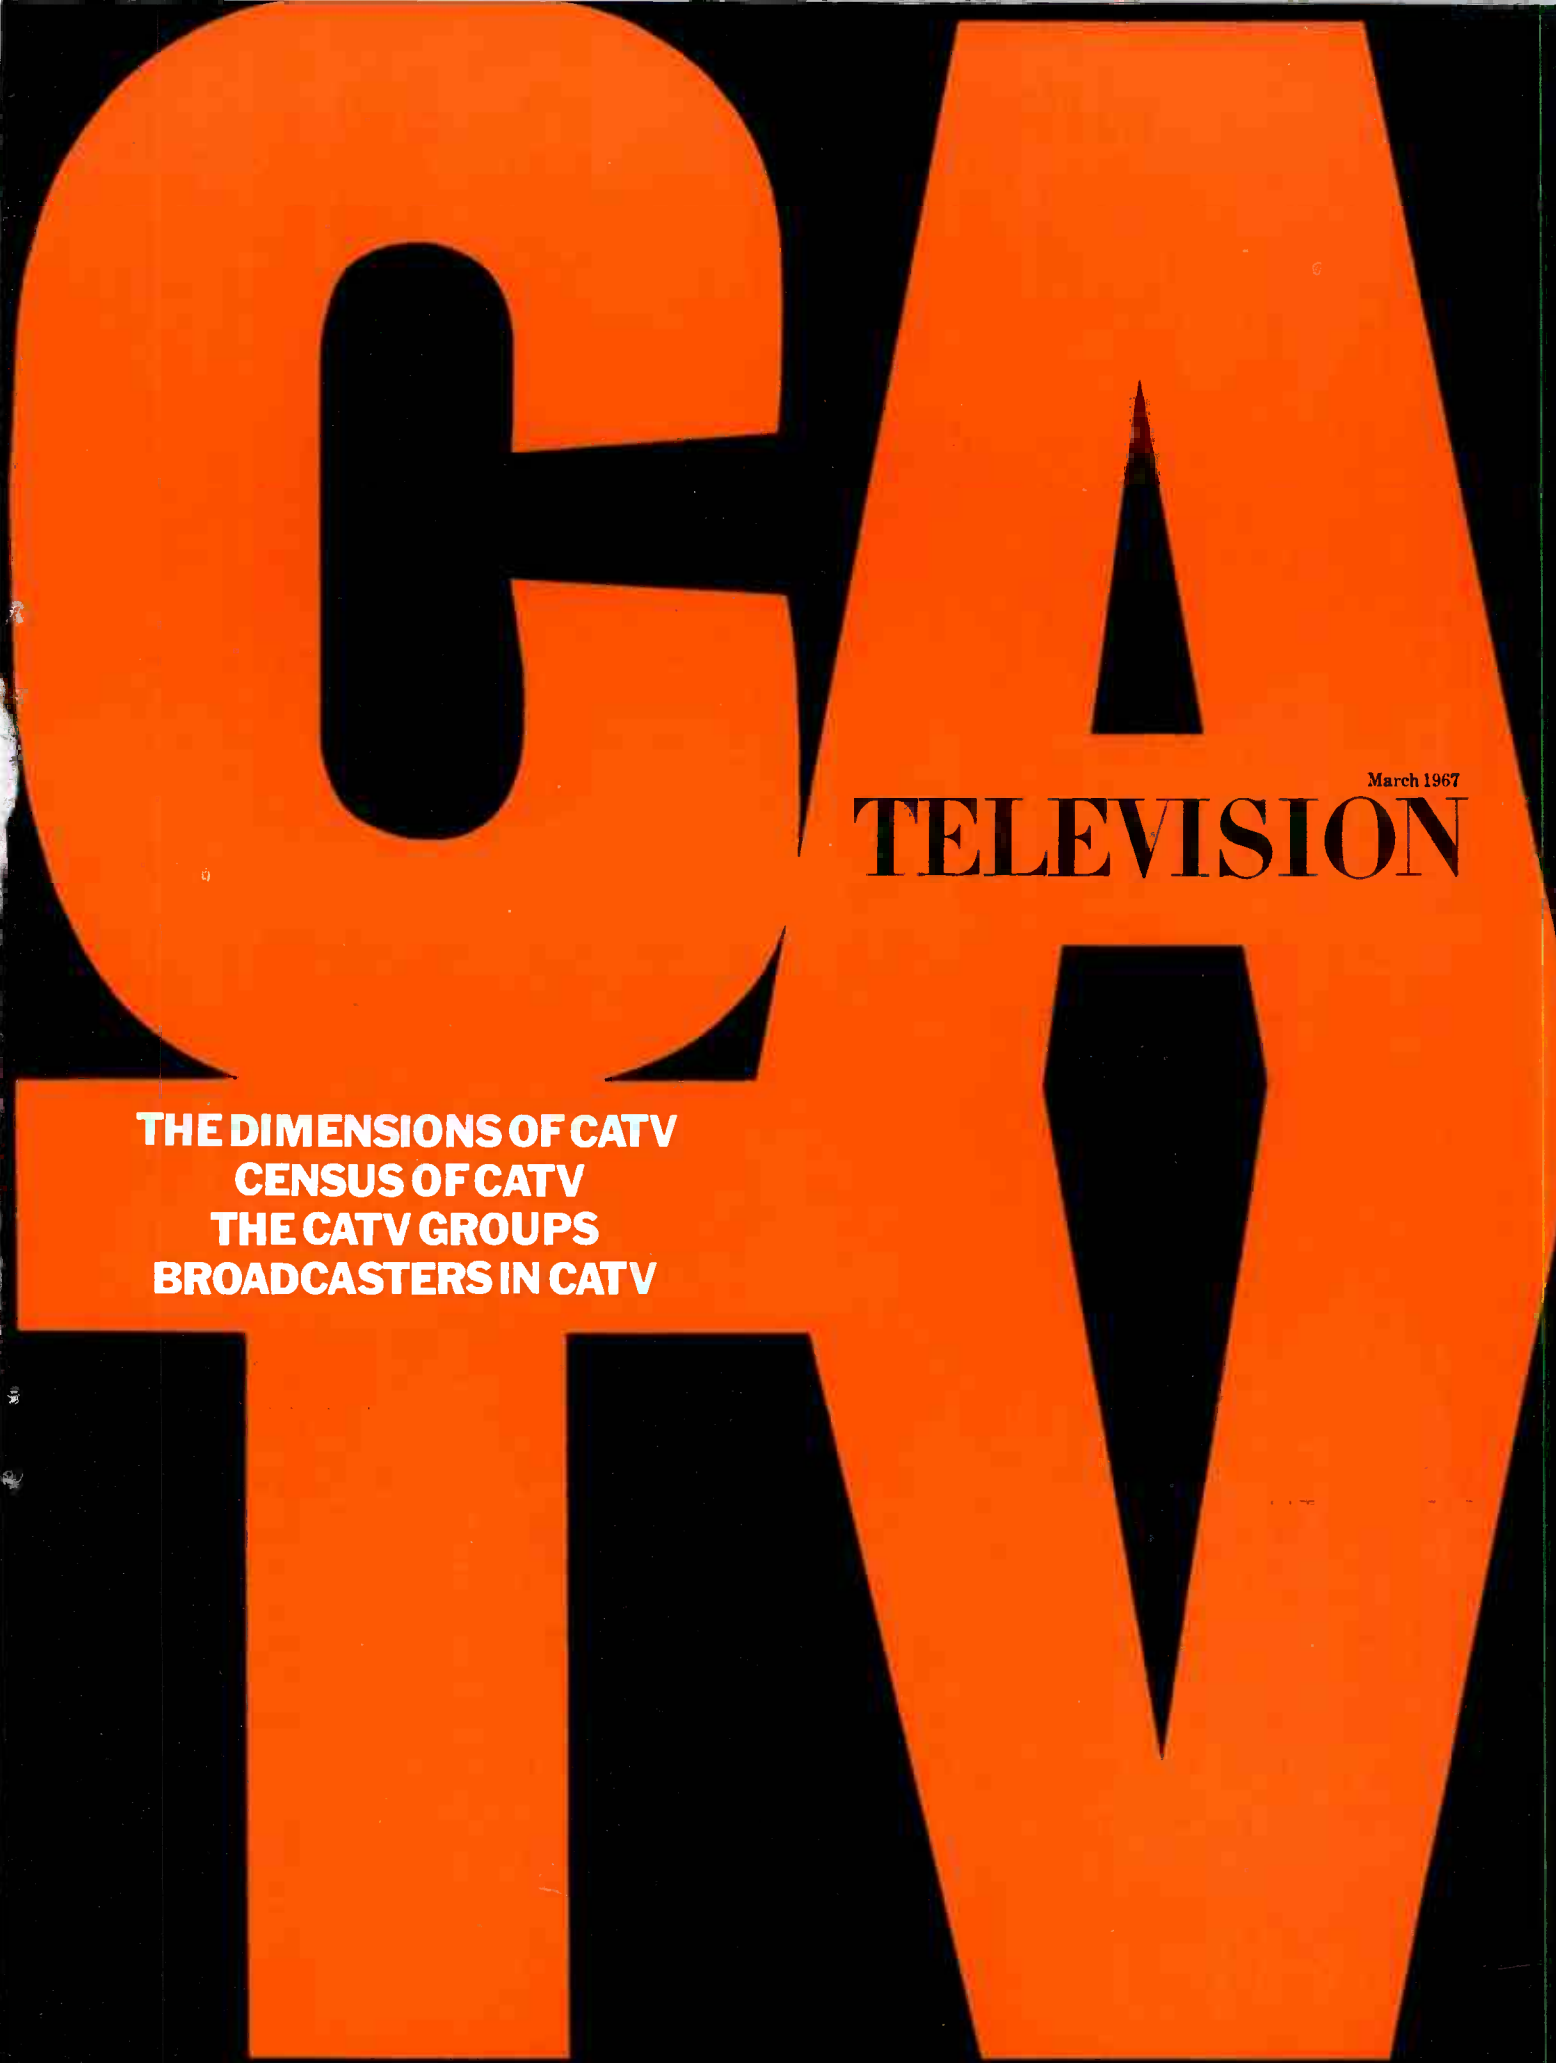

CATV has grown all right, but until recently, the size and scope of the relatively young industry were largely a matter of educated guesswork. Nobody knew for sure just how large it was, how many systems there were, where they were located, how many subscribers they had. Now, as a result of the first census by the Federal Communications Commission, CATV's dimensions have been officially measured. The findings are sure to serve as the benchmark from which all future CATV progress will be charted. Moreover, the statistics undoubtedly will provide the factual reservoir from which the FCC and Congress will draw when considering CATV matters.

On the following pages, TELEVISION presents a special directory of 1,449 CATV systems compiled solely from official FCC records. Along with pertinent information on individual systems (beginning on CATV-4), there are two additional sources for reference: a list of owners with interests in more than one CATV system (beginning on CATV-86) and a list of CATV owners with interests in television or radio broadcasting (beginning on CATV-96).

Systems with less than 500 subscribers, serving communities with less than 5,000 inhabitants were not required to submit financial data.

The information is based on FCC data and is at variance with various estimates of the industry's size made by certain nongovernment groups. For example, the National Community Television Association, the industry's trade group, estimates the number of operating systems to be 1,750, serving some 2.5 million subscribers. The discrepancies between FCC totals and unofficial estimates can be explained in a number of ways. For one thing, the census, according to the FCC, was not designed to reach cable systems with fewer than 50 subscribers or master antennas serving apartment complexes. For another, the deadline for submission of questionnaires was Dec. 1, 1966, almost four months ago, and although individual systems still are sporadically responding to the poll and are being included in FCC files, the main body of information is only current as of that date. Given the fast growing nature of the industry, it is reasonable to assume, as one FCC official does, that at least 60 additional systems have started operation since last December.

Another factor causing a disparity between FCC-gathered facts and industry estimates is that an undetermined number of CATV system operators are known to view the FCC's assertion of authority over the industry with antipathy. In March 1966 the commission, in its Second Report and Order, claimed jurisdiction over the cable television industry, a claim vehemently denied by many CATV interests. Shortly thereafter, the FCC in an effort to legitimize its claim of jurisdiction, asked Congress to affirm the commission's assertion, but the proposed measure died in the House Rules Committee during the 89th Congress. The proposal has yet to be brought before the 90th Congress, which convened in January of this year, and thus the matter rests. Until the FCC's assertion of jurisdiction is legitimized by either Congress or the courts, some CATV operators feel they do not have to answer the FCC in any matter, much less answer questionnaires that probe into ownership and operation. The FCC's jurisdiction is considered expected, walked off with 7:30 to 8 for ABC, while Daniel Boone at NBC stalked closely on its traces. Jericho at CBS touched bottom. From 8 to 8:30, Daniel Boone continued on top of the situation, with ABC's F Troop next in line for a merit badge, and the second half of Jericho bringing up the rear. At 8:30, CBS's My Three Sons won a more substantial following than both Dating Game (which took Tammy Grimes's rapidly vacated place at ABC) and Star Trek at NBC. Bewitched, ABC's entry at 9, bothered and bewildered the first half hour of CBS's Thursday Night Movies and the second half hour of Star Trek. Bewitched chalked up a 22.5 rating and Gray had it figured for 22.8—darn close. The movies marched off with the next hour, besting That Girl and Hawk at ABC, and The Hero and the first half of Dean Martin at NBC. But Martin had the last word, drubbing the final half of Hawk and shading the last half-hour of the movies. It was CBS's night by half a rating point, with NBC the runner up.

FRIDAY

Friday was payday for CBS, which wound up the evening with a 19.4 average rating, well ahead of NBC's 17.5 and ABC's 13. Gray had the first hour pretty well figured. NBC's Tarzan, which won its time slot, did close to what Gray estimated, and so did runner-up Wild Wild West at CBS and ABC's low men on the totem pole, Green Hornet and Time Tunnel. (The general idea of time travel is not apparently as appealing as the shapers of this season thought it would be.) At 8:30, those comic POW's, Hogan's Heroes, won the half-hour for CBS, while at ABC the second half of Time Tunnel did slightly better than Gray predicted and the first half of Man From U.N.C.L.E. did worse.

However, as Man From U.N.C.L.E. continued at 9 it wrested supremacy from CBS, which begins its movie at that hour, and ABC, which found too late that Milton Berle today is not the drawing card he was yesterday. From 9:30 on, the movies held sway, elbowing both NBC's T.H.E. Cat and Laredo and ABC's 12 O'Clock High away from sizable audiences.

SATURDAY

Once again it was the network that offered the movies that won the night—in this case NBC. But the evening started off well for CBS in the round person of Jackie Gleason, newly reunited with Art Carney for another go at life among the proletariat. Shane was opposite for ABC and whoever said "Come back, Shane" had to eat his words. At NBC, Flipper did a little less well than Gray expected, but he foretold the following of Please Don't Eat the Daisies with great accuracy. Get Smart, at 8:30, turned the tide for NBC by rolling up a 22.0 (exactly as Gray foresaw), and Lawrence Welk, with 20.8, also did well for ABC. This was bound to take some of the starch out of Pistols 'n' Petticoats, and so it did. The hour Lawrence Welk show continues past 9 and won that half-hour for ABC. The first 30 minutes of the movies at NBC was the runner-up, and Mission Impossible placed third for CBS, although it did a bit better than Gray suggested. For the rest of the evening the movies ruled the roost, despite respectable ratings for Gunsmoke at CBS and Hollywood Palace at ABC.

Gray had predicted that the average rating for over-all prime time would be 18.7, but the actual average for all shows was 18.3. Perhaps next time around the networks will come up with something to bring in that four-tenths of a rating point. END half, and a 32.0 in its second. Meanwhile, ABC also played a high card at 9: Sunday Night Movies. This wasn't high enough, of course, to best Bonanza, but it rolled up a respectable rating opposite the Cartwrights and when they exited the movies took supremacy. It can be assumed that CBS also thought it was playing a face card when it threw Garry Moore in the breach between Bonanza and the movies. That would be a tough spot for anyone to be in, but Moore always had been able to attract a following in the past. Gray thought Moore would end up somewhere in the upper middle, but he landed in the basement to keep Jean Arthur and Milton Berle company. The rest of the night was a shambles for CBS. Both Candid Camera and What's My Line? took it on the chin. Line faltered so badly that CBS eventually decided not to run it next season, writing finis to a show that has been around since February 1950. It has been one of the few live shows on the networks, and the oldest continuing program next to Ed Sullivan. The night, as Sunday nights must, fell to Bonanza-rich NBC, but ABC came remarkably close.

Monday started with an almost exact three-way tie among the network offerings, with NBC's Monkees winning the time slot by only two-tenths of a rating point. Then Run, Buddy, Run, which Gray had estimated would be one of the more successful of the new shows, stumbled badly and the 8-8:30 period went to the second half of ABC's Iron Horse, with NBC's I Dream of Jeannie lurking close behind. But CBS is lucky in Lucy. She did about as well as Gray expected and walked off with 8:30-9. Roger Miller tripped up NBC and fared even worse than predicted by Gray, who based his judgment on Miller's successful special last year. As for ABC's Rat Patrol, it proved to be the hit new show of the season, although not quite strong enough to wrest the period from a tried-and-true trouper like Lucille Ball. With Lucy as lead-in, Andy Griffith went on to keep its time in CBS's pocket. Across the way at ABC, Felony Squad did about what Gray thought it would, while NBC's Road West, sorely undersupplied by Roger Miller's lead-in, rolled downhill to several points below Gray's expectations. Road West continued in the valley for its next half-hour, under joint attack from CBS's Family Affair, which proved to be another of the new shows that pleased the populace, and Peyton Place I, whose rating Gray figured nearly on the nose. What Gray didn't quite foresee was how Big Valley, which took a more "human interest" turn this season, was able to do a better job of hanging on to the Peyton Place audience. This knack boomed Valley's ratings and helped cinch the defeat of Jean Arthur on CBS (which Gray had guessed would bomb). At NBC, Run For Your Life lived up to Gray's estimates (in fact, it did a bit better), leaving CBS's I've Got a Secret in a depressing bind between the latter half-hours of two healthy shows. The night went to ABC—the only one it could claim.

TUESDAY

All three networks offered hour shows to start prime-time Tuesday: ABC with Combat, CBS with Daktari and NBC with Girl from U.N.C.L.E. The distaff agent of the United Network Command for Law Enforcement fared reasonably well early in the season but then the audience developed a species of mental fatigue and plummeted. Meanwhile Combat, of which Gray expected little, did better than he had foretold, but not all that much better. The hour clearly belonged to Daktari.

The next hour, just as clearly, was Red Skelton's for CBS. He wreaked havoc with the half-hour programs of ABC, Rounders and Pruitts of Southampton (since renamed the Phyllis Diller Show), which both drew less viewers than Gray thought they would and he wasn't very bullish about them in the first place. On NBC, Occasional Wife pulled a respectable enough rating, just about where Gray pegged it, but NBC's chances improved when Tuesday Night at the Movies moved in opposite the second half of Skelton. When Skelton departed at 9:30, the movies took first place for the rest of the evening, doing somewhat better than Gray had seen in his crystal ball. It was Tuesday night that NBC used to showcase its features-made-directly-for-television, and the audience tuned in heavily. Meanwhile, over at ABC, Love on a Rooftop floundered in the cellar, although it earned a rating point or so more than Gray expected. Fugitive, which followed on ABC, seemed to be running out of audience and fell considerably below Gray's guesswork. The CBS News hours, with their documentary air, couldn't, of course, outdraw the movies, but the early part of the evening had so cemented CBS's lead that it won the night—by 0.5 of a rating point.

WEDNESDAY

NBC's hour-and-a-half Virginian outdrew the opposition during its first 60 minutes and nearly did as well as CBS's Beverly Hillbillies in the final stretch. The Virginian's success, along with the audience appeal of movies-made-for-television, has heated up interest in the 90-minute medium. Meanwhile, Batman I, across the way at ABC, fell off sharply from Gray's prediction, and the Monroes, which followed, also proved orphans of the storm as far as ratings are concerned. Lost in Space, the hour program that starts off the evening for CBS, did just about what Gray said it would, and its second half-hour drew almost as many viewers as the Virginian. At 9, the high ratings of CBS's Green Acres and NBC's Bob Hope/Chrysler Theater left only crumbs for ABC's The Man Who Never Was. And with Man as a mouse-like lead-in, the soul-searching at Peyton Place II didn't attract quite as many viewers as Gray had foretold. Gomer Pyle also was downside from Gray's guess, while the second half of Bob Hope/Chrysler Theater proved more of a crowd-pleaser than expected. NBC went on to capture the rest of the evening with I Spy, whose rating Gray guessed quite closely. The opposition at CBS, Danny Kaye, and at ABC, Stage '67, fell as flat as Gray predicted. The night went to NBC, with CBS a fairly close second and ABC a distant third.

Why do so many corporations contribute to America's colleges?

1. () they want to help the colleges

You were right if you checked No. 2.

American corporations want to make sure there will be enough college-trained leaders to fill the management jobs open today and in the future.

This is good insurance for business.

And the need, we must remember, isn't getting smaller.

World trade is developing fast; business is getting more competitive, more complex; science is introducing new products and processes rapidly.

College-trained men and women are needed, in increasing numbers, to plan and direct the activities of business.

Successful introduction of super-length cigarettes will bring other new 100-mm brands all, a cigarette is something that is first of all a very personal item. You carry it around with you all day, and every time you light up, people note the brand, consciously or unconsciously. That might be 20 times a day, at least. But no one is going to switch brands unless there is a special appeal about a new one, preferably created by an ad that is memorable."

Television has been particularly effective in getting the Benson & Hedges 100's concept across, WRG believes. "Essentially, it's a visual thing," observes Greene. "Too many advertisers are hung up with the idea of getting the right word to prefix 'taste.' You hear them all the time: 'real,' 'true,' 'longer lasting,' but they're all variations on a platitude. The essence of selling anything is that you sell something personal."

Since its August inception, the Benson & Hedges campaign has unfolded in three stages. The second segment, called "Types," opened in early January. It features everything from a group of foreign legionnaires taking advantage of the cigarette's extra length to a condemned man facing a firing squad. He coolly refuses a mask, takes a drag and blows a cloud of smoke in his executioner's face. A third scene pictures a Zsa Zsa type at a cocktail party so absorbed in talking about herself that she forgets to puff her Benson & Hedges.

The third part, "Adjusting," which was unveiled in early February, illustrates the problems smokers have in getting used to the extra length of the B&H 100's. The initial scene has a man leaning up against his car's windshield, clutching a B&H in his hand. A garage mechanic removes the windshield and replaces it with a bubble-dome windshield to allow him more room to smoke the longer cigarette inside the car. Other scenes depict B&H smokers slitting tents so they can puff through the tent walls, sewing on larger-sized shirt pockets to accommodate the bigger pack, and finding containers such as color-slide boxes.

Wells, Rich, Greene is a solidly TV-oriented agency, maintains Rich. "The disproportionate part of our budget on the Benson & Hedges 100's has been placed in television because we are convinced it's the most effective medium for the messages we want to communicate. Of course, we used some print on the introduction of the 100's, primarily through leading papers in key marketing areas as well as Life, Time, Look,

Saturday Evening Post and others. To us, the whole question is: Does the message become a memorable one? That's where we lay our chips."

Philip Morris believes the chips were put on the right numbers. Says Jack Landry: "Sales of the Benson & Hedges 100's have shown a tremendous increase since the campaign kicked off last fall. In fact, we've seen the sales curve rising steadily each week since the network introduction of the brand."

He adds: "We have already received hundreds of letters from people all over the country about our initial ad on the 'disadvantages' concept. They repeatedly commented on its humor, and said it was a relief from the usual hammering of cigarette sponsors. Inevitably, we got a number of suggestions for future segments of the ad. One woman said that while she was dressing for a formal dinner, she loved to smoke a Benson & Hedges 100. But the trouble was that when she put on a necklace or a string of pearls, the extra length of the cigarette always caused her to knock it out of her mouth. She asked us if we could do something with the idea."

SUCCESSFUL INTRO

More concrete indications of sales acceptance are not in as yet, admits Philip Morris's Landry. "But, based on our knowledge of the business, the feeling is that this has been a uniquely successful introduction of a new brand. Sales follow certain patterns for various brands, and that dictum is true here. Benson & Hedges 100's are moving better than ever in the area where the name has been best established, namely, the metropolitan market."

The acceptance of the B&H 100's is part of a trend, according to industry observers. American Tobacco's Pall Mall Gold, the first major 100-mm. brand, claims to have already nailed down 2.5% of the total market, while the B&H brand is said to be somewhere between 1.5% and 2% of total sales.

This response has not gone unnoticed by other tobacco producers. Liggett & Myers will soon test L&M menthol 100's, while R. J. Reynolds is putting Winston Super King 100's over the hurdles in key markets. Brown & Williamson, which has not been involved in new-brand activity since 1960, is also on the move with at least one new 100-mm entry.

Meanwhile, back at the agency, Dick Rich and Stew Greene are bemused by the success of their campaign for the Benson & Hedges 100's. "All this publicity about our being one of the so-called creative agencies is a joke. We're really rather conventional. All we do is sell the product."

campaign, the 60-second ads were planned for use on eight CBS-TV shows: The Red Skelton Show, The Jackie Gleason Show, Hogan's Heroes, the Thursday and Friday night movies, CBS Evening News with Walter Cronkite, Mission: Impossible and Family Affair. A major spot campaign in the top 25-30 markets was also set up.

The kickoff ad used the now-famous "disadvantages" concept, in which various smokers unfamiliar with the cigarette's extra length were depicted in a number of humorous contretemps. Elevator doors, car windows, telephones, newspapers, even cigarette cases suddenly became a huge problem to the new Benson & Hedges 100 smoker.

Stewart Greene comments: "Although the approach seemed a little off beat, the funny thing is that it created an affirmative response almost immediately. I think the secret is that we like to use real people in our ad situations, not the phony, Harper's Bazaar types who have been posturing for so many years with cigarettes. We're trying to reach all levels with the Benson & Hedges 100's. The appeal is not just to left-handed plumbers or women whose husbands are pulling down $25,000 a year. There's no point in that. We think it's possible to sell the truckdriver as well as the Park Avenue matron simultaneously. An ad should never be pompous or condescending, so we look for one thing: balance."

An important contributing factor to the success of the campaign has been its musical theme. Rich notes: "Mitch Leigh had come up with some original themes for us while we were at Tinker, especially on the Braniff and Alka-Seltzer campaigns. [Wells, Rich and Greene left Jack Tinker & Partners last year to form their own agency.] A version of the latter by Sascha Burland has already sold a million copies as a popular record. Leigh's B&H theme is well on its way to that figure right now."

The Leigh theme also backs the color version of the B&H ad. The bottom 15 millimeters of a B&H 100 are shown being sawed off. The pieces are then moved around into an assembly resembling four king-size cigarettes.

"This campaign, as originally conceived, has been a blend of negative and positive aspects, each lending itself to a humorous treatment," says Rich. "After

IF your smoking choice is a cigarette, chances are you've never set a friend's beard afire with it, caught it in a closing elevator door or bent it on your car window while ogling a passing chassis.

But these and other unlikely events have helped to popularize the new Benson & Hedges 100's in a campaign that Philip Morris calls "the most successful cigarette introduction in years." PM put an estimated $7 million-$7.5 million of its over-all $100-million budget into network and spot television behind the brand. The first commercials hit the screen in mid-August of last year.

According to Jack Landry, VP and director of marketing for Philip Morris Domestic: "The Benson & Hedges 100-millimeter cigarette had been researched for years by Philip Morris in an effort to determine its viability and desirability." The decision to market the finished product was made by the beginning of 1966, and PM began shopping around for the right agency.

Landry continues: "We had been impressed by what Wells, Rich and Greene had done with Alka-Seltzer while they were at Tinker. Personally, I felt they had broken the mold in a field that is pretty generic. After meeting with them on an exploratory basis, we became convinced they could be a mold-breaker for us, too."

Richard L. Rich of WRG recalls: "Right from the start, we recognized that one of our aims would be to emphasize the difference in length, since the B&H 100 is 18% longer than king-size and 40% greater than regular cigarettes. We sought a light-hearted approach that would point out both the advantages and the disadvantages of the new brand, and that would do it in such a way that it would be memorable."

WRG was assigned to the account in mid-May. Says Rich: "They bought it quicker than any other advertising campaign in their history, we learned. Their comment was that it was sensible and noncontroversial, although, oddly enough, some people in the trade seemed to think it was a bit controversial. What the term means to them, I can't imagine."

Three basic commercials (one in color) were prepared. Each was designed for possible editing into about 15 segmented versions of 40, 20 or 10 seconds for a piggyback schedule. To open the Gray's guessing did, indeed, count for something. If the average rating of all prime-time programs—this turns out to be 18.3 for the three-month period—is assigned arbitrarily to every show, how much worse would the results have been compared with Gray's estimates? The method of chance would have predicted 17 shows within one rating point, as against Gray's 37; 34 within two rating points, compared with Gray's 57; 53 shows within three points, against Gray's 73; 64 programs within four points, compared with Gray's 83—and where Gray had only three shows wrong by more than five points, chance would have had 18.)

This season, Gray picked the winners in 35 of the 50 half-hours in competition over the week's schedule, an accuracy of 70%. This is not quite as good as he did the year before, when he called the winners in 37 of the 50 half-hours, an accuracy of 74%. This difference, of course, is marginal.

Gray was perceptive enough to predict that no new show would scale the heights. The term "hitless season" has been tagged on 1966-67 because none of the new entries made the winning circle, unlike last season when Get Smart and Hogan's Heroes, both novices, showed up in the top 10. In Gray's predictions, the top new show was to be It's About Time, and it would rank 25th. However, in actuality Time finished 59th, and the best-rated new program turned out to be Rat Patrol, which Gray had forecast would rank 59th but which in fact tied at 17th with The Virginian. Other new shows Gray picked as potential winner were Hey, Landlord; Run, Buddy, Run; Man Who Never Was, and Road West. But they weren't. The new programs closest to the top after Rat Patrol were Family Affair, 20th in rank; Friday Night Movies, 25th; Tarzan, 38th, and Iron Horse, tied for 39th.

Gray usually was pretty good at picking the genuine disasters as well as the unalloyed hits. Of the 28 shows he guessed would fall within the bottom third of audience preference, 20 did just that, and the remaining eight ranked in the middle third. The situation is roughly similar with his predictions for the top third. Of the 30 he ranked in this category, 20 actually made it, while nine fell within the middle range and only one hit bottom. (The fact that some shows tied is the reason why the 90 programs are not broken down neatly into three ranks of 30 each.)

Gray also showed skill in predicting whether each half hour for each network would draw an audience that was bigger, smaller or the same this season compared to last. In estimating the direction the audience for the half hour would take—up, down, or sideways—he guessed right 112 times and wrong 38 times, making him correct 75% of the time.

Gray was right in judging that NBC would roll up the best rating average on Sunday night and CBS would do the same on Tuesday night but he was wrong about which networks would win the remaining nights of the week. The way things worked out, CBS won Thursday and Friday, NBC won Wednesday and Saturday and ABC won Monday. Gray had figured that CBS would win Monday, Wednesday and Saturday; ABC would take Thursday, and NBC would win Friday.

Overall, Gray tended to be a bit sanguine about CBS's chances. So he ended up by handing it the winner's wreath in average ratings across the board. His guess on the Monday-through-Sunday average rating by network was CBS first with 19.5, NBC a close second with 19.1 and ABC third with 17.6. As it happened, NBC took the laurels with 19.2, CBS followed sharp on its heels with 18.9 and ABC brought up the rear with 16.7.

The hindsight on Gray's predictions night-by-night:

SUNDAY

Sunday was a night of stunning disappointment for CBS. Gray thought that network would average a 20.3 rating, closely following NBC's 20.9—but CBS ended up with a 16.8. Lassie held up fairly well, winning its time period for CBS, but then It's About Time proved a real loser opposite the first half hour of Walt Disney on NBC and the second half of Voyage to the Bottom of the Sea on ABC. For one thing, Disney did better than predicted, and it's always hard to predict with Disney because the company doesn't reveal ahead of time just what it is going to fill its hour with. Anyway, the poor showing of It's About Time gave Ed Sullivan a weak lead-in. Sullivan, however weathered the storm, falling off only slightly from Gray's predictions. Sullivan, in fact, won the second of its half-hours, beating Hey, Landlord at NBC and the second half of FBI at ABC. Then came the moment of truth: 9 o'clock when Bonanza takes center stage. With lordly disdain, Bonanza overcame the handicap of a lackluster lead-in from Hey, Landlord and proceeded to roll up a 30.8 rating in its first

Gray only was able to match his predictions against actuality in 90 cases because Tammy Grimes died so precipitously she left no three-month rating record behind her. (In fact, she didn't leave even one month's rating.) In only three of these 90 cases were his guesses more than five rating points off. His worst miss was with Garry Moore, which he overestimated by seven rating points. Gray predicted a middling 42d rank for Moore but Moore surprised him (and CBS, too, for that matter) by plunging nearly to the bottom of the heap, placing 87th. The comeback trail apparently is strewn with more boulders than bouquets. Gray, himself, believes he gave too much weight to CBS preseason publicity that said the show would not be just another variety program but would try new, exciting things. That it did not.

The other two shows he was more than five rating points wrong about were The Man Who Never Was, which fell six points below his estimate, and Batman I, which he overestimated by 5.2 points. When shows fail to live up to expectations by such a margin, there is usually more than one force at work. For example, Man Who Never Was followed The Monroes on ABC's Wednesday night schedule, and The Monroes also drew less of an audience than Gray thought it would and thus provided a disappointing lead-in. And then Bob Hope Chrysler Theater, which NBC slotted in the same time period as Man Who Never Was did even better than expected, further depressing the rating of Man Who Never Was. To go into even more microscopic detail about this: One of the reasons why Bob Hope Chrysler Theater did so well was that, during the three months under survey, there was more Hope and less drama than was usual for that series—and it is Hope that draws the bigger audience. Normally there are three Hope specials out of the 12 programs, but during October-November-December one of the dramas was pre-empted and an additional Hope was slotted, making the ratio four Hopes out of 11.

If Gray misjudged only three shows out of 90 by more than five rating points, how did he do with the other 87 shows? He predicted 37 of the season's 90 programs within one rating point (or 41% of the total); 57 of the shows within two rating points (or 67%); 73 of the programs within three points (81%), and 83 of the shows within four points (92%).

just as he said, and he also was right on the nose with Green Acres sixth, Beverly Hillbillies seventh, Bewitched eighth and Get Smart tenth. He was only a shade off when he predicted Ed Sullivan would be ninth and instead it tied for 10th. Where he was wide of the mark in his judgment of the top-10 hits was in his underestimation of the refurbished and Art Carneyized Jackie Gleason (Gray ranked it 16th and it finished in fifth place) and the audience appeal of Saturday Night at the Movies (he had it down for 32d place and instead it ranked eighth). In fact, like many others, his forecasts were on the low side for all five prime-time movie slots, although, unlike some, he predicted the movies would do even better this year than they did last season. He just didn't know how much better.

The five movies finished among the top third in rank, while Gray estimated they all would appear among the middle third. Interestingly, that special form, the movie made for television that NBC is experimenting with, proved even more winning with audiences than the run of movies made for theatrical release.

Where he overestimated among the top-10 shows (or in this case, top 11) was with Gomer Pyle, which he pegged as fifth but which pulled 14th rank instead, and Batman II, which Gray accorded 11th place but which ultimately camped out down at No. 37. Sic transit gloria.

GET on out there and do or die," said the networks last September to a mixture of old and new programs. So some of them did and some of them died and some who didn't die might as well have. But even before the curtain rang up on the 1966-67 season the guessers were at work, looking the shows over and weighing their chances. For those with sufficient self-assurance—or perhaps foolhardiness—to have made their estimates public, the time of trauma is here. TELEVISION faces this self-analysis each year, when "Hindsight" checks up on the "Forecast" predictions that appeared six months previous.

The latest "Forecast" was the magazine's ninth, and the second to be the work of Stuart Gray, media director for MacManus, John & Adams, New York. He predicted the average rating of each half-hour of prime time before the shows went on the air. Now his estimates can be matched against the actual ratings determined by the fourth-quarter national Niensens, which cover the months of October, November and December. The obvious question: How did he do this time around?

Uncannily well, it can be said right off, as far as the top-10 shows are concerned. There are actually 11 in this group, since Ed Sullivan and Get Smart tied for 10th place with a 22.0 rating. Eight of these top 10 he picked in their exact numerical order of finish. Bonanza was first, Red Skelton second, Lucy Show third and Andy Griffith fourth

Jacobs said that TVSI was in "a more fortunate position than most. We did not have to buy anything. But many of our stations had to commit themselves to one of several offerings. Clients and their agencies, especially, were really in the hot seat there. Their choice was a frustrating one—no matter which way they went—for, in essence, it amounted to riding with what they believed was the best of a sorry lot or staying out of the medium altogether."

Jacobs points out that in 1964-65 the mortality rate of new shows was over 60.5% and the following year it fell to 57.6%. "But this year," he says, "I predict a fatality record of 65.7%. Under these circumstances, no matter what an agency chose, the cards were stacked against it from the beginning.

It should be noted that some agencies tried to spread the risks by buying scatter plans or lower the odds by going only into established shows. According to TVSI data, the biggest single buyer in the fall of 1964 was Leo Burnett, which had participations in 30 network prime-time shows at the opening of that season. Burnett was followed by Young & Rubicam, 25 shows; J. Walter Thompson, and Ted Bates, 24 shows each; and Benton & Bowles with 22 programs.

In the opening of the season in 1965 J. Walter Thompson led with participations in 33 shows in prime time; Y&R was second again with 32 while B&B and Doyle Dane Bernbach were tied at 30. Ted Bates was in fifth position with buys in 29 different shows.

At the opening of this season JWT had spread its buys over 50 of the 91 network shows in prime time. Dancer, Fitzgerald, Sample was in second place with buys in 37 programs while Foote, Cone & Belding, B&B and Ted Bates had an even 30 programs in which they'd invested.

There is probably little connection between the sheer number of shows in which an agency buys for its clients and the survival rate of programs, but it is in part obvious that the agencies are trying to spread the risks. It is surprising therefore to note that there are more program survivals today than there have been in the past. New programs faltered badly this past season, but overall, more stayed around than usually stay around at this point.

According to TVSI Data, of the 92 programs in prime time this 1966-67 season, 58 remained, for a 63% survival record. This compares with a 55.2% survival record in the previous season for all programs and a 50% survival record in the 1964-65 season for all shows.

What made this past season especially unusual in this regard was that the carry-over shows from the previous year held up fantastically well. Of the 58 carry-over programs this year, only 11 wound up as rejects, which made for an enviable survival record of established shows of better than 80%. But of the 35 new programs that were introduced, says TVSI, 23 were rejected, which made for a new program survival record of 34%.

In the two prior seasons under study, the spread was never that large. In the 1965-66 season, for instance, the survival record of carry-over programs was nearly 62% while 42% of new shows managed to make it.

As television time costs continue to rise, the burden on the advertising agencies to come up with a winner will grow heavier. All would agree they need a little more science, and a little more luck. END

A TRACK RECORD OF AD AGENCIES AS PROGRAM HANDICAPPERS

Here's how the top-ranked advertising agencies in the TELEVISION Magazine-TV Stations Inc. study fared in their program selections for the 1966-67 season. The figures are audience shares from the Decem-I A. C. Nielsen pocketpiece. The agencies are listed here in alphabetical order.

On page 25, a year-by-year breakdown for the three-year period in the study shows the agencies in order of their standing for over-all performance and for new shows for each of the three seasons.

tising was only two-tenths of a point behind Bates with a 31.1 average share and SSC&B followed Compton with an even 31.0 average share. As the table above shows, over a three-year period of time there is little to choose between the major agencies for they tend to be only fractional points apart. In fact, the difference between the top-ranked agency in this study, Leo Burnett, and the bottom-ranked, Doyle Dane Bernbach, is less than four full points: a 32.2 as opposed to a 28.9.

On a year-by-year basis, however, there are some startling differences between agencies and there are complete reversals in rankings. In the first year of this study the 1964-65 season the point difference between top and bottom agency, between Benton & Bowles and Doyle Dane Bernbach, was nearly six, an outstanding 34.3 average share for B&B's program selections that year as opposed to a 28.6 for Doyle Dane. BBDO, which on a three-year average ranked 10th in terms of shares its program selections received, in the 1964-65 season ranked third with a 33.6 average share for its program picks. In that same season, Compton, which ranks within the top five on a three-year average, came in 13th with an average share for the season of 29.1.

In the following year, the 1965-66 season, Compton completely reversed its performance, placing first with a 34.0 average share for its program selections. In that same season, the three-year winner, Leo Burnett, dropped to seventh place with a 30.4 share average. That year, Kenyon & Eckhardt and Doyle Dane Bernbach received the lowest share average of any agency in the three-year analysis—a 27.9.

Obviously, if you're an advertising agency, it's no simple thing to come up with a respectable share all the time for all the shows you buy into for your clients. And when, this season, you encounter the Hitless Wonders, the three networks and their poorly received new shows, you can get into real trouble, especially if you're buying into new shows. This past season, Burnett managed to stay on top with a 32.9 average share for the shows it purchased into. But after that the list does not at all resemble the three-year average rankings. Doyle Dane climbed up into fifth place with a 30.2, just a fraction of a point behind Compton, while BBDO, with a 28.1, fell to bottom position. In this past demanding season, Benton & Bowles ranked 11th, as compared with its three-year average share ranking of third place. On the other hand, Ted Bates moved up, as did Young & Rubicam.

As the rankings by year on page 25 indicate, no one agency has a lock on a particular position, for last year's goat may be next year's hero. In the 1964-65 season, for example, Compton Advertising ranked next to last with a 29.1 average share; in the very next season it placed first with a 34.0 average share.

Agency track records based on new-show shares were also compiled by TV Stations Inc. Buying into new shows that have no track records is especially risky. Buyers must take the risk in the knowledge that more than half of the entries in a given season do not survive their first year.

The leading agency in this area in terms of new-show selections over the past three years is Foote, Cone & Belding, whose new shows averaged out to a 30.1 share in that period of time. Leo Burnett, which was the top-ranked agency in terms of over-all share performance for its show picks, plummeted to last place in the new-show derby. The average new show invested in by Burnett earned a 25.7 share over the past three years. Burnett's over-all average stayed high because it has managed to invest in and stay with such hits as Beverly Hillbillies and Jackie Gleason over the past several years.

NEW-SEASON BLUES

But Burnett, in this past difficult season, led the pack in terms of new-show selections with an average share of 28.0. Since that average figure was tops, it's clear that new shows generally didn't do too well in terms of shares this season. Bates, Benton & Bowles and Foote, Cone followed in close order to make the best of a bad season.

In the previous year Compton was the leader in new-show selections with an average share of 33.7. That year, the 1965-66 season, was a phenomenal one for Compton anyway, for it was in first place with its over-all program picks. It had such shows as Red Skelton, Petticoat Junction, Gunsmoke and Flipper.

As noted earlier, these tables and this analysis cover only those agencies that made buys into 10 or more shows and/or in five new ones over the past three years. (The shares of movies were not counted since they vary so much from week to week.) Were this qualification not necessary, Lenzen & Newell for one would appear on the list, and this season at least, run away with the entire ballgame. Its average audience share for all of the six shows it bought into at the beginning of this season was 37.9 and its lowest share was a 33.8 (for Man from U.N.C.L.E.).

The man who did this study, Herb Jacobs, president of TV Stations Inc., thinks that both his organization and the agency program buyers are in the same rocking boat. Jacobs and his people must tell client stations what programs will do best in a particular time period and the agency man must tell his clients pretty much the same thing—all before the season begins.

Noting that "forecasters were in a brutal spot" this season,

ning this analysis of agency successes and failures it is well to bear in mind that the numbers, the gross numbers, no longer are the supreme criteria along Madison Avenue, at least not all of the time. There is the product's specific audience—those elements of the total who would be more interested in it than others. Bonanza reaches a lot of people, but how many of them need a water softener, and of those, how many care? Hair-grooming aids are designed more for the adolescent who never got the hang of combing his hair properly than they are for the middle-aged man. Thus the Lawrence Welk Show, still running strong on Saturday night, probably is all wrong for Score, for the adolescent watching Welk is an oddity, a freak, a traitor to his peer group and the despair of market researchers.

With these qualifications in mind it is now possible to step forward and say, nevertheless, that most people—agency account man, client, network programmer, station manager—want to win, that deliberately buying into a third-place show (as Richard K. Manoff once did so successfully for an acne cure in Shindig) is more the exception than the rule. What follows is a special TV Stations Inc.-TELEVISION Magazine analysis of how the major advertising agencies are doing in selecting winning programs. TV Stations Inc., a non-profit cooperative group comprising 127 television stations in as many cities, acts as a program consultant, research service and buying force for its members. It is continually in the process of analyzing program performance and predicting relative standings of shows. In order to qualify for the analysis, an agency had to buy into 10 or more shows and/or five or more new programs in prime time in a given season. The share for each show the agency bought was compiled from the December I A. C. Nielsen pocketpiece over the past three years. Each qualifying agency was given an average share by adding the shares its shows did and then dividing by the number of shows it had purchased to come up with an average for each year. This was also done for new shows only, and it was also averaged out over the three-year period under study to come up with a three-year batting average per agency. What the reader then has is a ranking of agency program-selection performance on a share basis over a three-year period and a breakout for each of those years (see above). In no way is this a measure of efficiency, for, in addition to the factors mentioned earlier, there is the matter of cost, a show tops in its time period will be an inefficient buy if it is over-priced.

Price aside, and special product needs aside, who did best in a three-way race for first place, who got most of the available pie at the various magic moments when they decided to try for a slice? Averaged over three years, the answer is Leo Burnett of Chicago, whose three-year overall share performance of shows picked was 32.2%. (It should be noted that a 33.3 share, what might be considered average in a three-way race, actually would be phenomenal, for these share figures are reduced by the incidence of other viewing in prime time, i.e., of independent stations across the country.)

The second-place agency is Foote, Cone & Belding, which although tied with Benton & Bowles with a 31.8 three-year average share, was given the nod because its new-show selections (a subject to be taken up later) over those same three years averaged out better than B&B's.

In fourth place, a mere five-tenths of a point behind second and third place, was Ted Bates & Co., with a three-year share average of shows picked of 31.3. Compton Adver-

THEY'RE OFF! (AS OFTEN AS NOT)

THE art of placing money in network television programs before the season begins is not much closer to perfection than the art of betting on the horses. Those entrusted with the task of placing the client's money—the advertising agencies—would agree with that sentiment in a bad year and disagree in a good one. And this past year, the Year of the Dog in prime time, made for even more stress along Madison Avenue as the burden on the programing expertise of the advertising agencies was strained to the breaking point (title of a psychiatric thriller that had its problems only a few seasons ago). Despite the ubiquitous computer and the gradual assumption of decision-making by the fact-minded media men over the intuitive programing men, program selection among the major advertising agencies remains a fitful thing.

On the following pages are presented data to support the above conclusion and more: that despite it all some agencies seem better than others and, conversely, some are worse than others in the complicated business of selecting the best program vehicle for their clients.

Already the discussion falls into semantic difficulties, for what is best for one client is ludicrous for another: Would Geritol want the winning Monkees, or would it rather have a loser, say a special series on how to collect Social Security benefits? The answer seems obvious, and so, before begin-

"It's good business to help colleges"

"Our colleges and universities must have enormous quantities of new money almost constantly if they are to be enabled to serve society as it needs to be served. Every business institution benefits today from the money and labors that those now dead have put into the building of these institutions. We are all dependent upon them for future numbers of educated young men and women from which to choose, and for the continued expansion of man's knowledge of the world he inhabits.

"We owe these institutions a great debt, and we can pay this debt in two ways: By supporting them generously with contributions of money and time, and by upholding their freedom to remain places of open discussion, and to pursue truth wherever it is to be found. "Last year our company contributed to colleges and universities more than $310,000 which represented 1.2% of profit before tax."

J. Irwin Miller, Chairman
Cummins Engine Company

A major problem in the education of students is rising costs. If companies wish to insure the availability of college talent, they must help support colleges with financial aid.

His lifetime gets longer every minute

It's a good deal longer than it used to be, ten or twenty or thirty years ago. And it gets longer every day, thanks in large part to medical research. Over a million men and women are alive today, cured of cancer. Research helped find the answers that saved their lives. Research takes time. And money. The American Cancer Society spent over $12,000,000 last year alone, to find still more of the answers. Yet $2,000,000 in research applications, approved by the Society, could not be financed for lack of funds. Your dollars are desperately needed to help speed the day of victory over this dread disease. Send your check today to CANCER, c/o Postmaster.

THE GROUPS CATV

APPEARING below are all persons or organizations holding ownership interests in two or more CATV systems. They are listed alphabetically by company or individual name. An interest of 5% or more in any of two or more systems was considered to constitute multiple ownership.

In each listing the number of subscribers is given for each system owned. Percentages indicate amount of ownership reported for various systems by the multiple owner.

Where a multiple owner has interest in a CATV system that in turn owns other systems, the reader is directed to the listing, in this directory of multiple owners, of the other system for details. Example: Jerrold Corp. owns 50% of Ottawa TV Cable Co., Ottawa, Ill., which owns several systems. Jerrold listing contains all its own principally owned holdings plus this reference: Ottawa TV Cable Co., Ottawa, Ill. (see MO), 50%. The Ottawa listing contains information on systems Ottawa owns.

Throughout this directory "see MO" refers to other listings in this directory; "see BO" refers to listings in the directory of broadcast owners of CATV beginning on page 96.

Today's achievements in electronic communications are but a prelude to the opportunities of tomorrow.

Now the company that produced Surveyor, the lunar soft-landing spacecraft, the Syncom and Early Bird communications satellites and many other significant "firsts" joins with a renowned leader in closed-circuit and community antenna television for an exciting venture in modern electronic communications.

TelePrompTer Corporation and Hughes Aircraft Company have created THETA-COM to search out, develop and determine commercial applications for new products and systems in specialized areas of electronic communications.

EDITORIAL

Guardians of home and pad

THE members of the television code review board of the National Association of Broadcasters are mostly middle-aged or older, but they can't be accused of getting out of touch with the younger generation. Last month the board did its bit to stamp out LSD.

The board decreed that on television the use of LSD and other hallucinogenic drugs "shall not be shown or encouraged as desirable or socially acceptable." Before this restriction becomes officially embedded in the NAB's television code, it must be approved by the television board of the association, but that is probably only a formality. None of the NAB directors that we know would take a trip that couldn't be booked by American Express.

The code board did more, however, than to drum Timothy Leary out of the television hall of fame. At the same meeting, which was held in the nonpsychedelic atmosphere of Scottsdale, Ariz., a site 300 miles from the Sunset Strip, the board voted down a proposal to impose new restrictions on cigarette commercials. This means that cigarette advertising will continue to be acceptable as long as it makes no overt appeal inducing youngsters to pick up the cigarette habit and no claims that smoking is beneficial to health. Clearly the cigarette advertisers have something going for them that the LSD interests lack, and only a cynic would say it is $175 million in billings.

A third action was taken by the code board, this one possibly the most important in its long-range implications. The board ordered the NAB's Code Authority to investigate the desirability of simplifying the limitations on commercial time. The space remaining on this page is inadequate to set out the present time standards, but in summary they can be described as limiting the amount of time permissible for nonprogram elements (10 minutes and 20 seconds per hour in prime time, 16 minutes and 20 seconds per hour in other time), the number of nonprogram elements that can be played in sequence, and the number and length of station breaks between or within programs.

It isn't clear yet what modifications may be made in the code as a result of the code board's order to the code administration. The idea appears to be that general standards ought to be set for the total allowable nonprogram time in all time periods, the number of program interruptions and the number of different nonprogram elements per period. Under such standards broadcasters would have more flexibility than they now have in the placement of commercials. There might even be a tacit approval of the principle of clustering commercials in greater number but at less frequent intervals.

Ordering a new study of the commercial time standards is in itself a progressive, not to say revolutionary, change in attitude of the code board. Not since the standards were first adopted has their divine origin been questioned. Now that the board has admitted fallibility, it may have screwed up enough nerve to take the next step and order some research to find out how to handle commercials creatively.

It is our guess that competent research would show that there is no way to apply universal standards, to all kinds of commercials in all kinds of programming in all kinds of markets. The code board that faces that possibility squarely will leave a larger legacy than can be written on a cube of sugar dipped in LSD. □

IN terms of national impact, CATV in this country has yet to make much of a splash. As measured by the "Census of CATV" appearing elsewhere in this issue, cable operations show up as a disparate collection of small businesses that so far lack the means to join together in anything resembling a national or even regional force.

There are those in CATV, however, who foresee a larger future. To them the present installations could become the nucleus of an organized system providing sophisticated communication to and from many millions of homes. In the long run these venturers may be proved right, but they have short-term obstacles to overcome.

There is no doubt that there would be more CATV systems than are counted in this issue, and larger ones in major markets, if the FCC had not adopted its CATV regulations last year. To the FCC restrictions there will probably be added, perhaps this year, an extension of the copyright law that will require the more ambitious CATV systems to make payments for at least some of their programming. The market in which CATV must operate for the foreseeable future is much less free than the market in which it originated.

It would, however, be wrong to assume that CATV has been stopped in its tracks. Technology is developing rapidly, and imaginative management controls a good many systems. That combination spells growth. □
